House of Representatives

The House met at 9 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Bonner).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC, September 29, 2006,

I hereby appoint the Honorable Jo Bonner to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. Dennis Hastert,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Reverend Dr. Barry C. Black, Chaplain, United States Senate, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, high and lifted up,
Your ways are often beyond our understanding.
Today, guide the leaders of our Nation and world.
When they cannot discern Your purposes, open their eyes.
Lead them away from the valleys of discouragement and pessimism to the high ground of faith and cheer.
Through Your power, direct them when clouds obscure the light of Your countenance.
May they do Your work when there are none to applaud and encourage.
Give them the wisdom to strive simply to please You.
Remind them that in everything You are working for the good of those who love You and are called according to Your purposes.
We pray in Your holy name. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. Kelly) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mrs. KELLY led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain up to five 1-minute requests on each side.

DO-NOTHING CONGRESS??

(Ms. FOXX asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. FOXX. I rise today to object to a phrase that has been said all too often lately, “the do-nothing Congress.” The Democrats are speaking for themselves as they have not put forth any constructive ideas or sound policy.

As for our side of this aisle, this Republican-led Congress has taken major steps in the advancement of our Nation. I am honored to be a part of the 109th Congress and its accomplishments.

This Republican-led Congress has voted to permanently end the death tax and voted for additional tax cuts. The results: The economy is strong. The unemployment rate is at 4.7 percent, its lowest average over the past three decades. Home ownership is up. And just yesterday the Dow Jones industrial average reached its highest level in 6 years.

But most notably is all the legislation that has been passed to support our troops and protect our homeland. We have listened to the American people and focused on their priorities. Our constituents wanted border security, and we passed several border security bills. In addition, Congress has passed numerous bills that will prevent terrorist attacks and give our military and intelligence forces the tools they need to win the global war on terror.

Mr. Speaker, this Republican-led Congress has taken tremendous steps in growing our economy, protecting our homeland, and fighting the global war on terror.

HEALTH CARE

(Ms. SCHWARTZ of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. SCHWARTZ of Pennsylvania. Every day, Americans work hard to meet their responsibilities, to pay their mortgage, to send their children to college, to save for retirement, and every day Americans worry about the health and safety of their family, friends, and loved ones. Yet, under the policy of the Bush administration and the Republican Congress, access to health care has gotten harder.

The number of untreated Americans is on the rise; 47 million are currently without insurance. Health insurance premiums are skyrocketing, a 73 percent increase over the last 5 years. And medical research is stifled because politics, not science, dictates public policy.

Democrats have a plan to make health care more affordable and to advance lifesaving medicine. Democrats will enable small businesses to join together to negotiate more affordable rates for their employees. Democrats will negotiate lower prices for seniors and eliminate overpayments to HMOs, and Democrats will work towards cures for diseases that affect all of our families by investing in the promise of stem cell research and innovative biotechnologies.

Our plan prioritizes the health of people, not the profits of special interests. Our plan will reduce costs and will find cures.

It is time for a new direction in health and science, one that Democrats can deliver.

LONE STAR VOICE—MAC GARRISON

(Mr. POE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. POE. Mr. Speaker, the running down of the Houston police officer by an illegal who shot him in the back has sparked new immigration safety concerns. Although the “open borders crowd” doesn’t want to talk about it, normal citizens are speaking the truth anyway. Mac Garrison of Kingwood, Texas, writes, "The murder of Houston Police Officer Rodney Johnson must serve as a wakeup call to all concerned citizens regarding the huge problem of illegal immigration."

“Our borders are nonexistent, our language is deteriorating, and our culture is melting away."

"Those that come here illegally, simply by the nature of their first act on American soil, breaking the law, have no respect for our laws and our social structure. Anarchy seems to rule the day now."

"The Federal Government has failed miserably to protect the border. And local law enforcement agencies are being denied the ability to work closely with other Federal agencies to stop this problem."

"We as a law abiding society must demand more accountability of elected leaders and our citizens. Now, more than ever is the time to get extremely serious about putting a complete halt to illegal immigration before more lives are lost and before our country is completely financially and morally bankrupt."

Mr. Speaker, Mac Garrison speaks for many Americans.

And that’s just the way it is.

REGARDING IRAQI OIL REVENUES

(Mr. EMANUEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. EMANUEL. Mr. Speaker, in March of 2003, Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul Wolfowitz said: We are dealing with a country, Iraq, that can really finance its own reconstruction, and relatively soon. Well, I guess 3 years doesn’t count as relatively soon. According to a new report by the Iraqi Special Inspector General, the Iraqi oil industry lost $16 billion because of violence, theft, and corruption. In fact, 3 years after Secretary Wolfowitz’s confident predictions, Iraq is actually paying billions of dollars to import refined petroleum. Iraq is importing refined petroleum products.

In the words of Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld, “stuff happens.” Maybe if this Congress has questioned Wolfowitz on his calculations a little more carefully, if the President had given the commanders on the ground the troops they needed, maybe if this Congress had conducted and sought accountability into Iraq’s reconstruction, we wouldn’t be dealing with quite so much “stuff.” But I guess under Republican leadership, you end up with the leadership you have, not the one you want.

TAX RELIEF/SMALL BUSINESS

(Mrs. KELLY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to the false argument by the Democratic leadership that the tax relief this Republican Congress has provided the American people during the last 5 years isn’t helpful. Democrats are voicing to repeal these tax cuts and are running around with a terribly false sound bite that tax cuts are for the rich.

So I ask them: Do only rich people have children? Because we increased the tax credit to $1,000 per child for every American family.

So I ask them: Do only rich people get married? Because we fixed a major flaw that punished every American married couple by charging them higher taxes for filing jointly.

And I ask them: Do rich people have a family income of $14,000 a year? Because it was for them that we created an income range, a new 10 percent tax bracket to specifically cut their tax rates. It cuts taxes for 6.1 million low-income taxpayers in New York alone.

Finally, I ask them: Are you labeling everyone small business owner in America as rich? Because we on the Small Business Committee worked very hard to ensure the majority of these tax cuts specifically helps small businesses.

When I walk down the main streets of Hudson Valley and visit the small businesses, the owners tell me they are certainly not rich. They tell me they need tax cuts to pay their workers, to serve their customers, and create new jobs.

Mr. Speaker, the truth is in the numbers. The Treasury Department shows that a family of four, making $50,000 a year, would experience a 132 percent tax increase in 2011 if Congress repealed these tax cuts.

Let’s remain a Congress that votes in favor of the taxpayer.

TIME FOR A NEW DIRECTION

(Mr. KUCINICH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KUCINICH. A war based on lies. An administration lost in ideological fantasies, stubbornly ignoring the best advice of military commanders. Getting ready for the next war. A President who refuses to see a situation collapsing around 130,000 young men and women he sent into battle. A global war on terror has become a war of errors, undermining our security around the world and here at home. A national security state has emerged, and America is immersed in lying, spying, and dying.

It is time for a new direction. It is time for a new direction in international relations, achieving security through cooperation. It is time for a new direction here at home in health care, Medicare for all. It is time for a new direction in job creation and infrastructure bill. It is time for a new direction.

We are homeward bound, America. We are coming home. We are coming back to take care of things that matter to us here at home, care and health care and education. Time for a new direction.

FOOTY’S BUBBLES AND BONES GALA

(Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to recognize south Florida Y-100 radio station, and especially John Kross, known to our south Florida community as “Footy,” for this year’s sixth annual Anti-Drug Bubbles and Bones Gala. Proceeds benefit Here’s Help, a private, nonprofit, comprehensive rehabilitation agency that caters to inner-city youth with substance dependency and addiction.

In my congressional district, programs such as these have been instrumental in saving the lives of many teenagers and young adults by helping them cope with their addictions.

I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Footy on this wonderful drug rehab program. This event will provide assistance to so many young people in need to make sure that they one day can live in a Nation where drug and alcohol addictions are no longer a fact of their lives.

AMERICANS WANT A NEW DIRECTION

(Mr. MCDERMOTT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. MCDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, the Republicans are shutting down the debate in Congress today. They don’t want the American people to hear anything other than Republican press releases. They have nothing else to show and offer the American people.

November will be a referendum on the President’s failed diplomacy, disastrous war in Iraq, and governing America by telling the American people to be afraid.

Now, maybe Aesop was wrong 3,000 years ago in his fable. Maybe you can shout, “Wolf, wolf, wolf,” and win an election. But you can’t stifle democracy and cling to power. The American people have had enough.

The Republican leadership believes that they are going to have the last word today, but, fortunately, on November 7, the American people are going to choose a new direction. They don’t want any more of this. They have watched it, they have given the President support, they have given him leeway, and what have they gotten? A war that is making more unsafe our world, and what have they gotten? A war in Iraq.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, by midnight, the American people are going to choose a new direction. They are going to get it on November 7.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1054 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it is considered expedient to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 5441) making appropriations for the Department of Homeland Security for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2007, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived. The conference report shall be considered as read.

Mr. Speaker, the rule before us today will provide for consideration of three important pieces of legislation. This legislation secures our homeland first and foremost by protecting our borders and revitalizing immigration enforcement, because border security is homeland security. It provides over $21 billion for border protection, immigration enforcement and related activities. It includes an increase of $2.1 billion over funding in 2006. This includes $5.2 billion for the Secure Border Initiative and additional funding to support technology, personnel and infrastructure to prevent terrorists and other criminals from exploiting our borders and immigration system.

Among other security-enhancing measures, this funding includes $2.77 billion for Border Patrol, adding 1,500 new Border Patrol agents for a total of 14,800. It includes $1.2 billion for border fencing, vehicle barriers, technology and infrastructure; $4.2 billion for immigration and customs enforcement; $1.38 billion for Immigration and Custody Enforcement custody operations, adding 6,700 detention beds, for a total of 27,500; and $28.2 million to assist State and local efforts to enforce immigration laws.

This conference report also recognizes the need to work with the private sector to implement measures, such as drug interdiction, law enforcement, maritime safety and Presidential protection.
Finally, this conference report provides for the necessary and appropriate oversight of the Department of Homeland Security. It fences off $1.6 billion from being spent until DHS meets certain planning and management requirements. Unless these requirements, DHS must develop a comprehensive strategy and plan for port, cargo, container security, and for the Secure Border Initiative. Department of Homeland Security must also provide expenditure plans for the border security systems, S-Visits, Federal Protective Service, business transformation for CIS, explosive detection systems in airports, Customs information technology systems, and overall better financial data throughout the department, and in particular, science and technology.

Finally, the agreement directs the preparedness Directorate and FEMA to improve its capacities in communications, training and other capacity assessments, including management logistics, emergency housing, debris removal and victim registration.

Second, this rule provides for consideration of the Military Commissions Act of 2006 as modified by the other body. The House version of this legislation was considered on Wednesday, and passed the House on Wednesday by a vote of 253-168 and was sent to the other body. Today’s legislation again provides congressional authorization for military commissions to try alien unlawful enemy combatants for war crimes. Amendment to the conference report before us today authorizes the establishment of military commissions to try alien unlawful enemy combatants, which is the legal term used to define international terrorists and those who aid and support them, for war crimes. While this new chapter is based upon the Code of Military Justice, it marks an entirely new structure for these trials.

These commissions will only be used to try alien terrorists for war crimes. Any U.S. citizen will be tried within the Federal United States judiciary. These alien terrorists acquitted of a war crime will still be detained as unlawful enemy combatants, which is the legal term used to define international terrorists and those who aid and support them, for war crimes. While this new chapter is based upon the Code of Military Justice, it marks an entirely new structure for these trials.

Third, this rule provides for the consideration of legislation to give private property owners the ability to litigate cases in Federal court when local and State regulations deprive owners the use of their own land. Although this legislation already passed the House this week with the support of the majority of its Members, it did not achieve the support of the super majority needed to pass under the suspension of the rules.

So, today, the House will once again have the opportunity to support this legislation. It reinforces that property owners have the same access to Federal courts as other plaintiffs claiming a violation of their constitutional rights.

It removes the judicial detour of forcing claimants raising solely Federal claims to first pursue their litigation in State court on the very same case and dramatically reduces the amount of time that property owners must spend preparing litigation and litigation after takings claims that can be heard on their merits.

I congratulate the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT) for all of his hard work in constructing and perfecting this legislation, and I look forward to supporting his efforts on the floor later this afternoon.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud of this work product that the majority has brought to the floor today. I encourage each of my colleagues to join me in supporting this rule and the underlying legislation that will keep Americans safer, uphold the rule of law and protect the private property rights of citizens. I encourage each of my colleagues to join me in supporting this rule and the three underlying bills.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Ms. SLAUGHTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, these are the not the circumstances under which we should be considering this legislation. The bills before us are not to do anything less than the security of our homeland and the fundamental nature of our Nation. Our citizens deserve better than to have their elected representatives rush to pass all of these bills in one day, bills that say a great deal about who we are as a society and where we are headed as a country.

The Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report and the Military Commissions Act provide an opportunity for us to determine how this country has chosen to respond to the challenges that confront us, challenges to our safety and our peace of mind.

Will we respond with flawed acts that undermine our economic vitality and sacrifice the very liberties we are theoretically fighting to protect? Or will we be measured in our response and do what is necessary to preserve our liberty from both threats abroad and the consequences of fear and mistrust here at home?

Mr. Speaker, this homeland security legislation means a great deal to my constituents in western New York and to the tens of millions of Americans who live in northern border communities throughout our country.

Our relationship with Canada is truly a unique one. Ours is the longest unguarded border in the world, a demonstration of the spirit of trust and openness shared by our two great nations. That spirit has produced and sustained a thriving cross-border tourism industry and hundreds of billions of dollars in trade between our two countries every year.

Border economies on both sides of the border depend on trade and tourism. So it would be shortsighted and self-destructive to permit a flawed border security plan to cut off such a lifeline. Unfortunately, the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative, put forth with so much fanfare by the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of State, threatens to do just that. In the name of heightened security, this plan, if implemented in its current form, will mean that millions of tourists from both countries will stop coming, and businesses will stop shipping their goods across the border. In its current form, this plan is a disaster waiting to happen. And considering that Canada is our largest trading partner, we have no choice but to fix it before it is too late. And what we need first is an extension of the WHTI implementation deadline, which I am relieved to see is still in this bill. Backing up the implementation until June or at least January of 2009 will give us the time we need to fix this program where it is broken.

My colleague and good friend from New York Representative McHugh and I have fashioned a bipartisan, commonsense bill that will correct the most egregious failings of WHTI and make it work for our constituents instead of against them. The Protecting American Commerce and Travel Act, or PACT Act, has gained the support of a wide range of Representatives in this body. It will ensure border security is on the same track to open to travel and trade. I urge all of my colleagues to consider and pass the PACT Act in the months ahead. We don’t have to choose between economic security and physical security. We can and we must have both.

Mr. Speaker, the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative was a flawed reaction to a perceived threat and today threatens the liberty and prosperity of our country more than those it supposedly protects us from.

In the same way, the Military Commissions Act before us represents a shocking assault on the fundamental President

This bill will dramatically increase the freedoms and liberties that we have been told we are fighting to defend. We have been told we are fighting to defend our freedoms and liberties that we have cherished so many other countries for following.

Yesterday in the Senate, my friend and New York delegation colleague, Senator HILLARY CLINTON, told a story about our country’s first great military leader, a man who went on to become our first great political leader.

On Christmas Day in 1776, in the midst of the Revolutionary War, General George Washington launched a daring raid that culminated in the capture of numerous Hessian soldiers. They were foreign mercenaries known for their brutality and who were fighting for the British. Despite what they had done to American soldiers, he ordered his men to treat them humanely. He said, “Let them have no reason to complain of our copying the brutal example of the British Army.”

George Washington, the man who so influenced our national consciousness, who was so deeply responsible for who we are as a people, wanted the world to know that the new American Army did not abuse its prisoners of war. He also wanted to do whatever he could to win the hearts and minds of the Hessians. If even one came to see the virtue of America and lay down his arms, that would be a victory in the fight for our Nation’s freedom and independence.

Mr. Speaker, I think we have heard some of the best arguments against this bill from General Washington’s successors: the men and women who have held top positions of responsibility in our Armed Forces. They have told us over and over again that if we ignore our country’s longstanding commitment to the rules of war and international treaties like the Geneva Conventions, we will be putting our own soldiers and our own Nation at risk. Opening the door to detainee abuse and indefinite detention will make our soldiers more likely to be tortured and dehumanized so that they fall into enemy hands, and that means our own country will be less safe.

A violation of the rule of law is more safe, not less safe, than a world based on power alone. To argue that those who oppose this detainee bill want to let terrorists roam free is both wrong and illogical. Suspected terrorists who have evidence against them will be convicted by courts of law. They will stay behind bars. At the same time, a steadfast commitment to due process will both defend our most cherished freedoms and free the innocent from unwarranted punishment. Depriving our liberty to deprive our enemies of one of the main tools that they are using to recruit their new followers.

We will show the world that the United States practices what it preaches about freedom and democracy and human dignity. We will bring others over to our side and make them less likely to take up arms against us. Why? Because ten years ago Congress passed a law called the War Crimes Act. Under that bill violating the Geneva Conventions is a crime in the United States. The administration argued that the Convention does not apply to enemy combatants, a term of its own invention. But the Supreme Court disagreed. In other words, the administration officials who have spent the last 5 years creating and directing our torture policy, as well as the government employees who have carried it out, could be liable for criminal prosecution for violating the War Crimes Act.

And so they have decided in this bill to go back in time to 1997 and to rewrite the War Crimes Act to make their actions legal. And that is exactly what this bill does. To call this strategy cynical and self-serving, Mr. Speaker, is an understatement. When President Bush signs this bill, he will be signing away any responsibility for the whole of these policies that he and those in his administration have enacted during the past 5 years. When he signs this bill, he will be signing a pardon for himself and for all other architects of these disastrous, self-defeating, and immoral policies.

But we have a choice here today. We can take a principled stand on behalf of the principles that make us great. We can choose to embrace our true nature and, in so doing, take a great step toward the creation of a world led by law and free from fear.

It is our choice, Mr. Speaker. And I implore all of my friends in this body, please, let us today make the right one.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, during the last few years, Members of Congress have spoken very plainly and openly to this administration about our thoughts and ideas and hopes and dreams, about how we can better protect not only this country and our borders but the rule of law, and this administration has been very open to hearing from Members of Congress about these thoughts and concerns.

Our next speaker is a gentleman who has engaged the administration, has talked about how important border initiatives are, to make sure that not only are we secure on our border but to make sure that we deal effectively and carefully with people who have come to this country, to make sure that they are safe, to make sure that they are not harmed in that process. If they have broken the law, they will take the full measure of law as it is given, but that we do so in a compassionate way.

Our next speaker is the chairman of the Rules Committee, the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), and I refer to him such time as he may consume.

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for his very kind words, but we do want to adjourn by this evening: so I appreciate the fact that he kept it relatively brief. And I want to thank him for his typical superb management of this very important rule and to say that we have very pleased that we have been able to work in a bipartisan way.

At least two of the three provisions in this rule deal with the single most important issue that we face: the security of the American people. Our Homeland Security appropriations bill and I believe this tribunal bill, which will be made in order under this rule, is critical to the security of the United States of America, and that is our top priority.

As I will, I should begin, since he is looking so relaxed there, by saying time and time again in the Rules Committee, my colleague Ms. SLAUGHTER and others said that it was MARTIN SABO’s last appearance before the Rules Committee. Well, I had every confidence, when people joked about the prospect of bringing a conference agreement back on the Homeland Security appropriations bill, that it would happen. And many people rolled their eyes. But thanks to the leadership of HARRY ROGERS and, of course, DAVID OBERY and JERRY LEWIS, we have been able to come together with a very important
Ms. SLAUGHTER was able to work on the appropriations bill itself, is absolutely essential to me and to all of us. I will miss him greatly.

And similarly, I am proud of another item that is included in this bill that is once again a bipartisan measure, and that is legislation that was introduced in the Senate by my California colleagues, Specter and Kennedy, and I was privileged to introduce it here in the House. We had an actual unanimous recorded vote on this measure, and it was to recognize that we have a problem at our border; that being since September 11, 2001, the discovery of 36 tunnels, one of which came from Canada into the United States, 37 from Mexico into the United States. And what we discovered is that there actually is no criminal penalty for people who are tunneling or using this very technology to the utilization of property here in the United States for tunnels to come up.

And what has happened? Through those tunnels we have seen tremendous problems with both human and narcotrafficking.

So in this measure that we pass, we will be actually implementing criminalization of that kind of action, once again demonstrating our commitment to securing our Nation’s border.

Similarly, we obviously are very concerned about the fact that in heavy urban areas and in five particular areas, we have seen just across the border, above ground, large problems of human and narcotrafficking, and for those areas we are going to see the construction of border fences.

I do not like the idea of fences. I really do not like the idea of fences at all. But our empirical evidence, Mr. Speaker, has shown that for the 14 miles along the border between Tijuana, Mexico, and San Diego, California, we have seen a great improvement in the standard of living and quality of life because of this border fence which has been established.

And similarly, so in those areas where we have heavy urban populations on both sides the border, I think it is essential that we do this.

There are other areas where utilization of 21st century technology, using motion detectors, using unmanned aerial vehicles, the aerial vehicles will be very beneficial in our quest to ensure that we secure our Nation’s borders.

Now, as we look at our items in this bill, I believe that the funding that is provided is going to deal with the overall global war on terror. Again, if you think about the preamble of the U.S. Constitution, I always argue that, in that preamble, the five most important words of the preamble are: Provide for the common defense.

And those five words, I believe, are addressed very successfully with this Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report. So, Mr. Speaker, I am very proud of the work that has been done in a bipartisan way, Democratic and Republican coming together, to do the right thing.

I hope it can be used as a model for many of the things that we proceed with in the future.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO).

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me time. Thank you for your great service on Rules Committee.

And to the chairman, I thank him for his kind remarks.

Mr. Speaker, I am a strong supporter of the base bill on homeland security funding. But there is one part of that bill which I think we could significantly improve. So I would ask Members today to vote against the previous question so that we can offer a separate concurrent resolution to the conference report which would delete from the bill four provisions as it relates to the regulatory provisions that, in my judgment, significantly weaken the legislation.

As background, the whole question of setting security standards for chemical plants is an issue that has concerned me for a long time. We have had a void in the ability of the Secretary to adopt any regulation as it impacts the regulation of chemical plants that, in my judgment, significantly weaken the legislation.

This year, while we were considering the appropriations bill, we offered and adopted an amendment that gave authority to the Secretary to adopt regulations relating to the security of chemical plants.

We envisioned that as being a temporary solution, while the authorizers produced a long-term recommendation. That was stricken by a point of view on the House floor. In the Senate, fortunately, in an amendment by Sen. BYRD, adopted that same amendment. And that is what we have in conflict here, that these are not going to be classified standards and the Secretary approves them.

And that is what we have in conflict here, that these are not going to be classified standards and the Secretary approves them.

The first one is a provision that states that: The Secretary may not disapprove a site security plan submitted under this section based on the presence or absence of a particular security measure.

What that means, I frankly do not know. The reality is that any security measure is going to deal with a whole series of particular security measures, whether the States have the authority or not, and it is certainly not significant that the authority of the Secretary to adopt regulations.

version of chemical security regulation that in my judgment is much weaker than it need be, and we should clarify it and strike those provisions. Not add anything new, but simply make sure that the Secretary has greater authority and to make sure that States have the right to adopt stricter regulation if they so desire.

So I urge the rejection of the previous question so that we can offer such an amendment.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, in the month of August, I had an opportunity with several other Members to go to Laredo, Texas, to visit our border and see the border operations and to see the things that were happening there. I had a chance to run across Texas Army National Guard personnel who were attempting to not only work but work successfully with Border Patrol, to see the necessary Immigration enforcement personnel. I wanted to draw attention to how important our National Guard has been from each of our States in protecting our borders, working on border security and doing those things that are necessary. This came as a result of a plan that happened with input from Congress, that happened through the great work that was done not only with the President but also with local Governors and people who are interested in doing this.

I had a chance to go with the Honorable Jo Bonner from Alabama down to Laredo. And both he and I together had a chance to firsthand see how the Army National Guard worked with Border Patrol. We went out that night to see firsthand their needs.

Mr. Speaker, that is what is in this bill, the ability that we have to protect our borders and to make sure that the necessary resources, to make sure that our men and women who are with official law enforcement and also those who are with the Guard are able to make sure that this country is protected.

That is in this bill. I am proud of it. I am going to ask for everyone’s vote for not only the rule but also the underlying legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Pallone).

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this rule because the bill would seriously undermine our efforts to secure chemical facilities. The language here exempts thousands of chemical plants not deemed “high risk” by the Department of Homeland Security, along with 3,000 drinking water and wastewater facilities that use large quantities of chlorine.

It also prohibits the Department of Homeland Security from doing anything to move towards the use of inherently safer technologies or substances.

And it also prohibits the Department of Homeland Security from doing anything to move towards the use of inherently safer technologies or substances. This is a comprehensive bill. It addresses several aspects of our porous border problem. It provides increased technologies for use in explosion detection. It beefs up maritime and chemical security and, most importantly, overhauls FEMA.

As we know a big part of keeping our homeland safe is protecting these borders. The bill includes $1.8 billion in emergency funding for border and maritime security. It includes $1.2 billion for the construction of a border fence, and it provides for the hiring of an additional 1,500 border patrol agents and a 100 helicopters. This legislation was brought forth by our chairman of the Rules Committee criminalizing the construction of border tunnels.

However, Mr. Speaker, despite the great things in this legislation, I realize that it is not a perfect bill. One of the most notable problems is securing our ports of entry with better background check technology. As you remember, we passed language in the 9/11 bill and in the REAL ID Act last year to require biometric passports by a certain deadline, and with the proper equipment to read the high-tech identification. The deadline was extended 6 months, and with this appropriation bill, unfortunately, it is extended another 17 months because someone in the other Chamber from our northern border State put language in there to further delay this crucial, crucial program. We cannot afford to keep extending the deadline when our security is at stake.

Mr. Speaker, shoe bomber Richard Reid, we all remember him, entered our country on an unsecured visa waiver. This visa waiver program allows 28 countries, their folks, to come into this country with nothing, really, to prove their identification. He came in with a visa waiver. We have to know who is coming into our country to prevent terrorists from having a free pass.

Despite all the improvements made in this appropriations bill, they are meaningless without securing our ports of entry.

Mr. Speaker, all week long we have witnessed this Congress passing legislation to fund critical Department of Defense programs, to try terrorist detainees in military courts and to listen in on the communications of terrorist operatives plotting our destruction. Heather Wilson from New Mexico explained that so well yesterday on this floor.

It is unfortunate that throughout this week we have witnessed obstructionism on just about every front and some on the other side advocating for a cautious approach to fighting terrorism out of concern of treating the terrorist as wrong. Mr. Speaker, this is the wrong approach, and we must remain aggressive in our efforts to keep America safe.

I encourage all of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to keep this in mind and give our government the tools it needs to protect our homeland.

I urge support of this rule and the underlying legislation.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentlewoman's courtesy and her leadership.

This is sort of a bizarre rule that is limiting debate on three very critical areas, but I would like to just focus on one because under the guise of protecting property rights, H.R. 4772 is back before us, and it will undermine the quality of life for most Americans. I find a stunning amount of irony that our friends on the Republican side of the aisle who say that they support local control are now going to gut some of the most basic protections for neighborhoods, businesses, and the environment to make sure that they are decided at the State and local level.

Remember, these are our same friends who have come to us with provisions to strip away from these same Federal courts being able to rule on the Pledge of Allegiance. They say it is too important to be given to the Federal courts, but you are going to take away opportunities for people to be able to deal with the most fundamental of issues in terms of neighborhood quality and throw that into the Federal courts without having an opportunity to work it through at the State and local level.

The Supreme Court itself has recognized that State and local courts are the best way to deal with things that are inherently local in nature. I spent 10 years as a commissioner of public works in the city of Portland. I watched development proposal after development proposal come over the transom. If your rules were in place, it would not help the little developer because they would not have the firepower to be able to go through the Federal process, but it would have been an amazing opportunity for developers to have their way for proposals that were incomplete, inadequate, or not carefully thought through. In some cases, there were things that were making mistakes. In others, they were trying to do something different. The bill ensures that terrorists could set higher security standards. This bill contained red teaming exercises to test whether or not security around these chemical facilities was, in fact, adequate. It contained worker training provisions to upgrade workers' ability to protect against an al Qaeda attack. It contained civil and criminal provisions, and it contained whistle-blower protections for chemical industry workers if any Paul Revere-like figure would rise up to warn that there was danger at a chemical facility.

Democrats and Republicans alike praised the committee's work, and Republicans promised to protect the language as it came out on to the House floor.

But instead, the House Republican leaders refused to allow it to be considered for a vote on the House floor. Instead, the Republicans on the Homeland Security Committee and on the Energy and Commerce Committee acquiesced to the wishes of the chemical industry behind closed doors to negotiate the weak, inadequate language contained in the conference report.

In public, the Republicans profess their support for strongest chemical security legislation, but in private, they provided their chemical industry allies with an early Christmas present, the weak legislation the industry had been pursuing all along, and that is what we are now going to debate on this House floor.

This is not the bipartisan bill, but the chemical industry-written bill that the Republicans are now bringing out here in a closed rule that will not have any debate at all.

And by the way, if back home you have a Governor, you have a mayor that is very concerned about the ability of their hometown or their State to put stronger security measures around a chemical facility, well, after today you can just tell your Governor, your mayor is up to the Department of Homeland Security. They are not going to be able to increase it back at home.

This bill is going to make it possible for the chemical industry to keep the local governments and the State governments wrapped up in red tape forever as those local communities, those local heroes, and by the way, if there is an al Qaeda attack, people are not going to call the Department of Homeland Security. They are going to call the local police, the local fire, the local emergency medical people, they are going to be the ones that have to respond, and when this bill is passed their hands are going to be tied behind their back in terms of their ability to put stronger, tougher protections around these chemical facilities, especially in urban areas.

It also reduces the number of facilities that have to be covered. Instead of all of the facilities that could cause up to 100 fatalities or 10,000 fatalities, they eliminate 90 percent of the facilities from having to be covered by the provisions of the legislation that we are talking about here today. And by the way, the Department of Homeland Security will be building a chemical facility security plan by the absence of any specific security measure.

So the Department of Homeland Security looks at a chemical facility, sees that there is a problem, they still cannot disapprove that plan. How in the world can the Department of Homeland Security be effective if their hands are tied behind their back? This is an area that we know is at the top of the al Qaeda terrorist target list, chemical facilities; and on the last day, professing to care about homeland security, and by the way, if al Qaeda is going to attack today, all the wire-tapping, everything else that you want to do, if there is a secret group already in America poised to hit a chemical facility, then you better have the protection that is built around it.

What you are doing today in this bill is you are making it infinitely more likely that al Qaeda can make a successful attack against a chemical facility. You are gagging the Democrats. You are handing it over to the chemical industry for them to decide on their bottom line cost-basis analysis of the type of security they want to put in place.

Right now, it is harder to get into some nightclubs in New York City than it is for al Qaeda to get into a chemical facility that is built around it.

As we are going to go to the floor today, we are not going to be allowed to speak from a position of weakness; we are going to speak from a position of strength. That is another one of the differences between the Republican Party and the Democratic Party. We are going to balance it out and do the right thing.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. Slaughter. Mr. Speaker, I will use my remaining time to close, but first, I wish to insert for the Record an editorial from this morning’s New York Times called, “More Comfort for the Comfortable.” That is the way they describe the Private Property Implementation Act. They say it is a deeply misguided giveaway for big real estate developers.

The bill does a lot of things its supporters claim to abhor. House Republicans were elected on a commitment to states’ rights and local autonomy, and opposition to excessive litigation and meddling federal judges. It is remarkable how quickly they have drafted bills aside to come to the aid of big developers.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the amendment be printed in the Record immediately before the vote on the previous question. The Speaker pro tempore, is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. Slaughter. Mr. Speaker, these provisions were not in either the House or Senate-passed versions of the Homeland Security bill. They were drafted in secret, and slipped into the conference report without the input of any Democrats in the conference. Even worse, these provisions may make chemical facilities more vulnerable to security problems.

When we talk about balance, I think Homeland Security was supposed to be about rules and regulations. The new language weakens the Homeland Security Secretary’s ability to enforce chemical facility site security plans. It takes the authority away. It allows the Secretary to preempt tougher State laws to ensure chemical facility security, and it severely restricts the rights of citizens to take any legal action to enforce chemical security requirements. Securing our chemical plants is far too important to be compromised by a secretive and inadequate security plan.

I want to stress that a “no” vote on the conference report will not stop consideration of the conference report, but a “no” vote will allow the House to remove these inadequate and dangerous provisions. Again, please vote “no” on the previous question.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Sessions. Mr. Speaker, I want to join my colleagues in thanking

[From the New York Times, Sept. 29, 2006.]

More comfort for the comfortable

Congress, which has done so little this session to address the nation’s real problems, is expected to vote today on a deeply misguided giveaway for big real estate developers. The bill would create new property rights that could in many cases make it difficult, if not impossible, for local governments to stop property owners from using their land in socially destructive ways. It should be defeated.

The Private Property Implementation Act would make it easier for developers challenging zoning decisions to bypass state courts and go to federal court, even if there was not a legitimate federal constitutional question. Zoning regulations are quintessentially local decisions. This bill would cast this tradition aside, and involve the federal government in issues like building density and lot sizes.

The bill would also make it easier for developers to sue when zoning decisions diminish the value of their property, and would cast this tradition aside, and involve the federal government in such matters. The result would be a secrecy and inadequate security plan.

I want to stress that a “no” vote on the conference report will not stop consideration of the conference report, but a “no” vote will allow the House to remove these inadequate and dangerous provisions. Again, please vote “no” on the previous question.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Sessions. Mr. Speaker, I want to join my colleagues in thanking Honorable MARTIN SABO for his service to this House and for his additions of the things he has brought forth in this legislation, not only working in a bipartisan basis but also his leadership on behalf of making sure that the next generation understands things like port security and other things which the gentleman has specialized in.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to thank our Speaker, DENNIS HASTERT, and majority leader, JOHN BOEHNER, for their vision and hard work to bring this forward today. They worked very closely with Chairman HAL ROGERS and Chairman JERRY LEWIS of the Appropriations Committee, DUNCAN HUNTER of the Armed Services Committee, Chairman JIM SENSENBRENNER of the Judiciary Committee, and certainly STEVE CHABOT of the Judiciary Committee.

This bill we bring forward today is a negotiated product, one where we have worked hard with not only members of the administration, but we have worked as Members of Congress, trips to see our borders wherever they might be, the northern border or the southern border. We have our appropriators, who have taken time to understand the intricate details and the needs of this great Nation. We have engaged with the Department of Defense to talk about those things that will be necessary to protect our men and women on the battlefield. We have taken time to make sure that we have talked to our Central Intelligence Agency, about the way that they need to do business and those attributes about who they engage across the world and how we can treat fairly, yes, but treat properly those who would engage in killing Americans and bringing down reigning terror in our cities.

Mr. Speaker, I want to say that this underlying legislation is very important to America’s learning lessons from the prior years and bringing those lessons to the field to protect the needs of this great Nation. We will speak from a position of strength, not fear. We will not worry about the things that we cannot get done but the things that we can get done. We will learn from our mistakes, and we will learn that, as terrorism in the 21st century evolves, we will, too. That is what these bills are all about.

I am proud of our country, and Mr. Speaker, I ask for all the Members to support this bill.

THE VOTE ON THE PREVIOUS QUESTION: WHAT IT REALLY MEANS

This vote, the vote on whether to order the previous question on a special rule, is not merely a procedural vote. A vote against ordering the previous question is a vote against the Republican majority agenda and a vote to allow the opposition, at least for the moment, to offer an alternative plan. It is a vote about what the House should be debating.

Mr. Clarence Cannon’s Precedents of the House of Representatives, (VI, 308-311) describes the previous question on the rule as “a motion to direct or control the consideration of the subject before the House being made by the Member in charge.” To defeat the previous question is to give the opposition a chance to decide the subject before the House. Cannon cites the Speaker’s ruling of January 13, 1920, to the effect that “the refusal of the House to sustain the demand for the previous question passes the control of the resolution to the opposition” in order to offer an amendment. On March 15, 1999, the majority of the majority party offered a rule resolution. The House defeated the previous question and a member of the opposition rose to a parliamentary inquiry, asking who was entitled to recognition. Speaker Joseph G. Cannon (R-Illinois) said: “The previous question having been refused, the gentleman from New York, Mr. Fitzgerald, who had asked the gentleman to yield to him for an amendment, is entitled to the first recognition.”

Because the vote today may look bad for the Republican majority, Speaker J. J. CUBA, (R-IL), will say “the vote on the previous question is simply a vote on whether to proceed to an immediate vote on adopting the resolution * * * [and] has no substantive legislative or policy implications whatsoever.” But that is not what they have always said. Listen to the Republican Leadership Manual on the Legislative Process in the United States House of Representatives, (6th edition, page 135). Here’s how the Republicans describe the previous question vote in their own manual, although it is generally not possible to amend the rule because the majority Member controlling the time will not yield for the purpose of offering an amendment, the vote * * * When the motion for the previous question is defeated, control of the time passes to the Member who led the opposition to ordering the previous question. That Member, because he then controls the time, may offer an amendment to the rule, or yield for the purpose of amendment.”

Deschler’s Procedure in the U.S. House of Representatives. The subchapter titled “Amending Special Rules” states: “a refusal to order the previous question on such a rule [a special rule reported from the Committee on Rules] opens the resolution to amendment and further debate.’’ (Chapter 21, section 21.2) Section 21.3 continues: Upon rejection of the motion for the previous question on a resolution reported from the Committee on Rules, control shifts to the Member leading the opposition to the previous question, who may offer a proper amendment or motion and who controls the time for debate thereafter.

Clearly, the vote on the previous question on a rule does have substantive policy implications. It is one of the only available tools for those who oppose the Republican majority’s agenda to offer an alternative plan.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the grounds that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

Pursuant to clause 9 of rule XX, the Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the minimum time for electronic voting, if ordered, on the question of adoption of the resolution.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 221, nays 186, not voting 25, as follows:

This bipartisan legislation was reported out of the Judiciary Committee by a voice vote on July 12. I hope it will receive the same bipartisan support on the floor today, and urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I don’t want to be controversial, but H.R. 4772 has nothing to do with Kelo. What the chairman said and what I said is correct; but the reason why H.R. 4772 has nothing to do with homeowers like those in Kelo is that the bill has nothing to do with eminent domain abuses. H.R. 4772 has everything to do with land developers and corporations and regulatory takings claims, and I include for the RECORD four editorials from The Washington Post, the New York Times, the Atlanta Journal Constitution and the Sacramento Bee.

THE HOUSE MOVES A RADICAL BILL TO HOBBLE LOCAL LAND-USE REGULATIONS

The House of Representatives is scheduled to take up today a terrible piece of legislation designed to strengthen the hands of developers in their battles with government. Congress considered and rejected a similar bill in 1997 and again in 2000. Now it’s back—only worse. The bill deals with legal claims under the ‘‘ takings’’ doctrine—a requirement of the Fifth Amendment under which government has to compensate property holders when it takes their land. Under current law, landowners must give local governments a chance to resolve such disputes and state courts a fair chance to adjudicate them before bringing the federal courts into the picture. The House bill would let developers make federal courts their first stop. This bill would give developers a big club to wield against local policymakers, gum up the federal courts with local land-use disputes, and diminish the rightful autonomy of state and local governments on the most local of questions.

Then—and here’s where this year’s bill is even worse than its predecessors—the substantive rules concerning takings and other constitutional challenges, regulations also would be changed in developers’ favor. Right now, federal courts are leery of such challenges in land-use cases, generally deferring to local authorities. Under this proposal, however, they would have to invalidate as a violation of due process any local decision that was ‘arbitrary, capricious, [or] an abuse of discretion.’’ The bill would give developers a strong new tool to press their case in federal courts with local land-use disputes, and diminish the rightful autonomy of state and local governments on the most local of questions.

Conservatives often style themselves as champions of federalism, and some conservative judges—including Justice Samuel A. Alito Jr. while he served on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 3rd Circuit—have taken principled stands on preserving local authority over land use. In 1994, Judge Frank H. Easterbrook of the 7th Circuit wrote in frustration: ‘‘Federal courts are not boards of zoning appeals. This message, oft-repeated, has not penetrated the consciousness of some landowners who continue to pen-

FEDERAL COURTS NOT FOR ZONING CASES

In the past, Congress has wisely rejected efforts to force local zoning disputes into federal court. But politically powerful developer groups armed with campaign cash have once again managed to resurrect the idea, and lawmakers in Congress should once again reject it.

Proponents of House Resolution 4772 claim it would help developers subjected to “takings” in their power over the right of communities to protect themselves through zoning against traffic congestion, massage parlors and other problems.

But the most disturbing thing about this measure is that the bill elevates the rights of property owners over all other categories of persons with constitutional claims. I know we do not believe that the rights of real estate developers are more important than the rights of other Americans. Perhaps some in this body might feel that way, which is why we are attempting to give developers special protections under an early Civil Rights Act, now known as the Civil Rights Act of 1968, that has been substan-

Second, H.R. 4772 undermines long-standing interpretations of the 5th Amendment. As
The distinguished chairman spoke of Kelo. This bill has nothing to do with Kelo and nothing to do with eminent domain. It is not about taking property. It is about regulating responsible use of property. It is about stopping the ability of local governments to pass zoning laws, environmental protection laws, to enforce them to protect homeowners from abuse by developers and polluters. The bill, actually, is about stopping the ability of local governments to protect homeowners from abuse by developers and polluters.

I would just note the irony that the Republicans, in leadership the other day, moved a bill that would limit the rights of religious minorities under the 1871 Civil Rights Act. This bill expands the rights of developers and polluters under the same 1871 Civil Rights Act and allows them to extort local communities. That is the Republican civil rights agenda.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT), the author of the bill.
I want to, first, thank the gentleman from Wisconsin for his leadership and his cosponsorship of this bill, also the 35 other cosponsors and the 234 Members of this body that voted for it. It passed just the other day by a margin of 60-38. Now, it needed two-thirds, so that is the reason for our being here today. But there is really overwhelming support. I also want to thank the gentleman from Tennessee, BART GORDON, for his leadership as well in support of them directly.

Just to address a couple of the points that were made before I get into the bulk of my speech here, the gentleman from Michigan mentioned that this elevates property owners above all other constitutional rights and individuals who are trying to establish their constitutional rights. It doesn’t do that at all. It puts them on the same level as other people who have a constitutional right that they are trying to enforce. And fortunately for everyone, already have their constitutional rights. This is a fifth amendment right in the Bill of Rights. A person cannot have their property taken without just compensation, without due process of law, and this happens in the court, the same level with all the other constitutional rights that we enjoy in this country.

The gentleman from New York said that this is radical and dangerous. I would venture to say there aren’t too many things that this side has tried to pass in the 12 years that I have served with the gentleman that the gentleman hasn’t considered to be radical and dangerous. There are exceptions when we have been on the same side. But I think this is not radical nor is it dangerous.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CHABOT. I would be happy to yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I will concede that when we passed last week my bill to recognize Congress’s support for a new World Trade Center site, after it had been held in committee for 2 years, that was not radical and dangerous.

Mr. CHABOT. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Speaker, as I had indicated, there have been times when the gentleman has not said things we are doing are radical and dangerous, and I agree with that part of what we just talked about. But the gentleman talks about this being developed by developers and not the little guy, so to speak. I would just note that H.R. 4772, this particular legislation, levels the playing field for small and middle-class property owners and retirees. The expense of bringing a Federal claim through the labyrinth of procedures in place today is disproportionately borne by private citizens who cannot draw on the public treasury to defend their rights. This bill, more than any big developer, helps small developers and the middle class, whose finances are particularly strained by the costs of defending their fifth amendment property rights.

This bill helps, for example, elderly retirees who may have all their savings tied up in their home that the government is trying to take away from them for whatever. When their home is unjustly taken by the government, the elderly should not have to spend 10 years paying their lawyers defend themselves in court. And that is what happens in communities all over this country right now. They should be allowed to go right to the Federal court and defend their federally protected property rights, and this bill would allow them to do just that.

On February 16 of this year, when I authored this, along with the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. GORDON), this Private Property Rights Implementation Act, and I want to thank the gentleman, as I already did, we introduced this legislation as a result of recent Supreme Court decisions last term, Kelo and San Remo. They, quite frankly, ignored the constitutional rights of property owners.

The fifth amendment to the Constitution, as I stated before, states: No person shall be “deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law, nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.” And that is exactly what we are talking about remedying by this bill.

The House of Representatives acted to correct the Kelo decision by passing a bill, H. R. 4128, by a bipartisan vote of 376-38. Today, Congress has an opportunity to restore the rights taken away by the San Remo decision by passing this bill which will correct that decision.

Now, here is the problem. Strange as it sounds, under current law, property owners are now blocked from raising a Federal fifth amendment takings claim in Federal court. And here is why: The Supreme Court’s 1995 decision in Williamson County v. Hamilton Bank requires property owners to pursue to the end all available remedies for just compensation in State court before the property owners can file suit in Federal court under the fifth amendment.

Then just last year, in the case of San Remo Hotel v. City and County of San Francisco, the Supreme Court held that once a property owner tries their case in State court, the property owner is prohibited from having their constitutional claim heard in Federal court, even though the property owner never wanted to be in State court with their Federal claim in the first place. The combination of these two rules means that those with Federal property rights claims are effectively shut out of the Federal court on their Federal takings claims, setting them unfairly apart from those asserting any other kind of Federal right, such as those asserting free speech or freedom of religion or other rights that could be established under the Constitution.

The late Chief Justice Rehnquist commented directly on this unfairness, observing in his concurring opinion in San Remo that “the Williamson County decision all but guarantees that claimants will be unable to utilize the Federal courts to enforce the fifth amendment’s just compensation guarantee.” The Second Circuit Court of Appeals has also held that both is ironic and unfair if the very procedure that the Supreme Court requires property owners to follow before bringing a fifth amendment takings claim, a State court takings action, also prevents them from obtaining a fifth amendment takings claim in Federal court.

H.R. 4772, the Private Property Rights Implementation Act, will correct the unfair legal bind that catches all property owners in what amounts to a catch-22. This bill, which is based on Congress’s clear authority to define the jurisdiction of the Federal courts and the appellate jurisdiction of the property owners. Nearly a decade of litigation would allow property owners raising Federal takings claims to have their cases decided in Federal court without first pursuing a wasteful and unnecessary litigation detour, and possibly a dead end in State court.

H.R. 4772 would also remove another artificial barrier blocking property owners’ access to Federal court. The Supreme Court’s Williamson County decision also requires that before a case can be brought for review in Federal court, property owners must first obtain a final decision from the State government on what is an acceptable use of their land. This has created an incentive for regulators to avoid making a final decision at all by stringing out the process and thereby forever denying a property owner access to the court. Studies of takings cases in the 1990s indicate that it took property owners nearly a decade of litigation, which most property owners, let us face it, especially a small property owner, can’t afford, before takings claims were ready to be heard on the merits in any court, whether it is State or Federal.

To prevent that unjust result, this bill would clarify when a final decision has been achieved and when the case is ready for Federal court review. Under this bill, if a land use application is reviewed by the relevant agency and rejected, a waiver is requested and denied, and an administrative appeal is also rejected, so they have gone through this long process, then a property owner can bring their Federal constitutional claim, again, that is a Federal constitutional claim, in a Federal court. The bill would not change the way agencies resolve disputes; rather, H.R. 4772 simply makes clear that the property owner must take to make their case ready for court review.

This bill also clarifies the rights of property owners raising certain types of constitutional claims in other ways. First, it would clarify that conditions that are imposed upon a property owner before they can receive a development permit must be proportional to... the impact a development might have on the surrounding community.

Second, it would clarify that if property units are individually taxed under State law, then the adverse economic impact the regulation has on a piece of property should be measured by determining the much value the regulation has taken away from the individual lot affected, not the development as a whole.

Third, the bill would clarify that due process involving property rights should be found when the government has been found to have acted in an arbitrary and capricious manner.

This legislation also applies these same clarifications to cases in which the Federal Government is taking the private property. This legislation is endorsed by a number of organizations: the National Association of Homebuilders; the National Association of Realtors; the U.S. Chamber of Commerce; the National Federation of Independent Businesses, which is oftentimes small businesses, most of the time; the United States Farm Bureau; and the Property Rights Alliance.

Again, this legislation passed. A majority of more than 60 votes for this legislation, opposed to against it just a couple of days ago.

Again, I want to thank the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSEN-BRENNER) for his leadership and also the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. GROSS). Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from New York.

(Mr. BOEHLERT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this bill. This bill is a bad idea that comes before us periodically but, happily, has never been enacted. And I hope it meets a premature end. That is why his attorney has been heard. That is why his attorney has been heard. That is why his attorney has been heard.

This bill is, quite simply, an effort to undermine our Nation’s neighborhoods and localities with this unprecedented and radical change in law. Let us listen to all the local governments and environmental groups that have always opposed this bill. Let us make sure our constituents retain their ability to protect their own neighborhoods. Vote “no.”

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) who has been instrumental in local development, planning efforts in local government.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman’s courtesy. Our record from New York set the right tone.

Basiclly I must respectfully disagree with the chairman of the committee. Maybe everything has been said, but I do not think everything has been heard. That is why his attorney general joined with 35 other attorneys general in saying this is flawed, unnecessary, dangerous legislation.

They basically flunked Property Protection 101. It ignores the fact that planning and zoning is to protect everyone’s property. Now, the gentleman from Cincinnati would not yield to me. I wonder, if I yielded him 30 seconds, if he would answer a question.

Mr. CHABOT. Of course there are. We have various zoning boards. We have various agencies. We have the same basic things in our community that most of the other communities have. And I was on the community commission. We have appeals of all kinds of nature.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. I appreciate the gentleman’s clarification, because I have the same experience you have. I was a county commissioner. I was the commissioner of public works for the City of Portland. I have an example where there were imperfect applications that were thrown over the transom. I can think of one where there was a massive shopping center that was going to be in an industrial area where they wanted a shopping center that required extensive efforts to protect everybody’s property protection.

I find it outrageous that you are going to be proposing, under your legislation, short-circuiting that local property protection.

It is ironic that the same committee is telling us that the Supreme Court is not competent to deal with issues of marriage, same-sex marriage. It is not competent to deal with something as simple as the flag amendment. So how you are going to be rocketing proposal after proposal into the Federal courts where the Supreme Court has already said that it is not the best place to deal with things that are uniquely local and State in nature.

It is not the small property owner that is going to benefit from this. The little old grandma that you are talking about in the first instance is not filling complex planning and zoning proposals. It needs them to be able to protect their own communities, where all of the fire power that was arrayed before the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, where they wanted a small, large developers who can wear down communities. And we have seen it happen. When it happens to small communities, where all of the fire power that was arrayed before the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, where they wanted a small community.

In 2006, the last time we debated this, the developers, quite rightly, described this bill as a hammer to the heads of local officials who are trying to guide and manage development. It is a very dangerous bill.

It is also a very odd bill. Here we have supposed conservatives begging Federal courts to intervene in the most local of matters. Why? So that the developers can scare localities into not doing their most fundamental jobs. Now this time around the proponents of the bill have come up with some new ingenious arguments for the bill. The only problem is that these arguments are wildly inaccurate. So let me make this clear to my colleagues: This bill does not deal at all with eminent domain or property seizures or the Supreme Court’s Kelo decision. Let me restate that, it is so important: This bill does not deal at all with eminent domain or property seizures or the Supreme Court’s Kelo decision, which was decided years after the bill was written.

This bill is only about localities exercising their zoning authority. It is not about localities taking property by eminent domain.

And by this way, the substantive problem in Kelo was that a developer was kicking people out of their homes. This bill would only strengthen the hand of developers to an unprecedented degree.

So let us not undermine our Nation’s neighborhoods and localities with this unprecedented and radical change in law. Let us listen to all the local governments and environmental groups that have always opposed this bill. Let us make sure our constituents retain their ability to protect their own neighborhoods. Vote “no.”

Mr. Speaker, I would respectfully suggest that rather than trying to drive a wedge into the planning process in local communities, processes that are designed to provide protections for everybody, I would strongly suggest that this legislation be rejected.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may con- serve to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT) who I think is right, and his attorney general is wrong.

Mr. CHABOT. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman is bringing up statewide office holders in Ohio for credibility purposes, I think the gentleman should probably review the elections in Ohio and some of the stature that some of those folks hold right now. If you are making an argument to support your side of the case, there are a number of them that are let’s say not at the height of popularity as we speak here today.

But just to mention a couple of things that the gentleman touched upon, especially the environmental concerns, for example. There is nothing in this bill that would prohibit the protection of land for environmental, health and safety reasons.

However, if the land is so regulated as to deny the owner any use of it, then, yes, the owner needs to be paid just compensation. The fifth amendment does not have an exemption for environmental laws or any other laws. In fact, the best approach would be to purchase the land, possibly through eminent domain, rather than trying to pull a fast one and harm the property owner or take that person's property without just compensation.

The basic idea is that individual property owners should not bear all of the costs of protecting our communities. A few land owners should not have to sacrifice their own land and economic well being for the betterment of a town or a city; rather, the town should give them just compensation. That is what we are supposed to do in this society to protect the trees, the environment can do. And that limit is called the Bill of Rights. When the govern- ment takes private property, own- ers must be fair- ly compensated for their land.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Cali- fornia (Mr. Farr).

Mr. FARR. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposi- tion to the bill. I represent some beauti- ful communities in California: Carmel, many of you know, Pebble Beach, Santa Cruz, that have built their aesthetics around regula- tion. And I sat as a county supervisor having to make these recol- lections. The author of the bill is right. We have eminent domain. When there is taking, you get compensated. What his bill is about is protecting developers at the expense of property owners. This is going to decrease property values. Decrease property values.

Because you do not have to pay for every kind of regulation. Now, all of us know that when you get a benefit, you do it with a responsibility. You get a driver’s license, but that does not allow you to drive over 65 miles an hour. In this case, you would have to pay some- one, because they bought a car that can go 100 miles an hour, you have to pay them the difference between 65 and 100.

Mr. Speaker, is what this kind of bill is about. What is the taking? Is it requir- ing that the trees be left standing? Is it required to have a little bit of a set- back? This bill injures property values and should be defeated.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time. Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wash- ington (Mr. Inslee).

(Mr. Inslee asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, it is dif- ficult to understand my friends on the Republican side of the aisle’s efforts to stick this burden on the taxpayers and allow developers to do the equivalent of developer's gerrymandering to in- crease their profits. Why should the taxpayers have to succumb to devel- opers to the benefit that polit- icians have done to the voters?

Politicians, what they have done to the voters is carved out these little districts to try to keep their seats safe. If this bill were to become law, which it would not, it will allow developers to carve up their little development, fancy little lines to extract the max- imum amount of money from the tax- payers.

There is the reason to allow devel- opers to decide their own rules, to write their own paycheck from the tax- payers? We have laws on the books en- forced by supreme courts that say that, if you have your property taken as a whole, you get compensation. But this bill, as it is, will create this arbitrary system where the devel- oper decides, not the courts, and that is a massive gambit to allow the guy who wants to build a strip club or a gambling spot or a strip mall in your neighborhood to make it impossible for your local community to have mean- ingful zoning to protect your neighbor- hood.

And it is done for one single reason, to put money in developers pockets in a way that is not fair. And, by the way, this is not about grandma out in her backyard. It is about people wanting to break up large chunks for a subdivi- sion, and decide that they are going to take a wetlands. Right now, if there is a wetlands, and we have lost humungous amounts of wetlands in the last couple hundred years; whether or not there is a taking depends on the whole property. Do not allow this gambit to take place. It is not fair. It is not Constitu- tional, and it is not going to pass.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, how much time is remaining?

Mr. Speaker, the gentle- man from New York has 9½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Wisconsin has 13 minutes remaining.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Blumenauer).

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I looked at the website of one of the wit- nesses that Mr. CHABOT brought from Connecticut, and looked at a couple of the things that he has been successful in achieving, as significant expansion in a landfill, siting a 1,000-foot radio and TV tower.

There are the sorts of things that I worked on as a county commissioner: I assume Mr. CHABOT worked on when he was a county commissioner. It took years, for example, for us to deal with sitings for radio tower emissions be- cause local people, neighbors and rep- resentation from industry were going crazy.

But the lengthy process was worth it; we produced the safest standards in the country that the industry ultimately adopted. Using Mr. CHABOT’s approach, it would allow those powerful interests to have bypassed us and gone to Federal court. We could not have stood up to them.

The neighborhood would have been at risk. It is exactly the sort of thing that people elect local officials like we used to be to protect. I think it is outrageous that Congress is going to undermine them.

Mr. SENSENBERN. Mr. Speaker, once again I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT).

Mr. CHABOT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I just make two quick points.

The gentleman from Oregon disparages the reputation of the gentleman who testified at the committee, Mr. Traut, who was an attorney, on the types of cases that he takes. I would just note that I oftentimes agree with people who come and testify, disagree. They are lawyers. They represent various sides.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CHABOT. I yield to the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I was not disparaging the gentleman. I was talking about his cases that he advertised.

Mr. CHABOT. Reclaiming my time, I happen to know that he also represents people that are at lower income levels that maybe are having their houses taken away by somebody. As all lawyers do, they represent a whole range of cases.

And the other gentleman from Washington talked about how awful this legislation the Republicans are trying to pass is. I would just note to the gentleman that there were 27 Democrats that voted for this legislation just the other day.

I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, it is important to get this debate back on track as to what we are talking about, not what we are not talking about, because the gentleman on the other side keeps bringing up matters that were not debated, that were not part of this bill.

This bill has nothing to do with Kelo. It has nothing to do with whether there should be compensation for a taking. If the government wants to take your house for a new highway, they have got to pay you. That is the fifth amendment. If the government wants to take your house to give it to somebody else to build something that they judge for public purpose, the Supreme Court said they can do it in Kelo. A lot of people do not like it. That is the Kelo controversy. That is not this controversy.

This controversy has nothing to do with that. This controversy is saying the following: If local government passes regulations legislating land use, you cannot destroy a wetland; you cannot build a building more than 50 stories tall; you cannot build more than five houses on an acre, because it is a suburb and we do not want too much crowding; you cannot build a factory next to the houses; you cannot build a mine in a residential neighborhood. These are limitations on the use of property. It does not say you cannot use your property. It says you cannot build a mine in a residential neighborhood in order to protect local property values, in order to protect the quality of life in local communities, should these laws remain possible? This bill says they should not remain possible.

This is what in two ways. One, we are going to drag the local community into Federal court where, contrary to the implications of the other side, it is a lot more expensive to litigate generally in Federal court than it is in a state court. I am going to say that if the megadeveloper who wants to build 300 homes or 50 stories or 100 stories on that local lot next to your house, against the local zoning, he can take you right into Federal court, make you spend a lot of money and not go through the local process and not go through the local court process. That is very dangerous.

That is why the proponents of this bill, the gentleman this is a hammer to the head of local officials. It is intended to be a hammer to the head of local officials. And who do the local officials represent? The local people who care about their property values, that is who they represent. But we are going to put a hammer to their heads because to hell with the property values of our local communities; to hell with the local planned development; we do not want big developers to be in here and be able to build there because no one can stay in the neighborhood.

Secondly, question: Is it a taking? The big developer buys 100 acres, has a 100-acre plot, two of them are a wetlands. The local government says or the law says you cannot build on the wetlands, you can only build on 98 of your 100 acres. The Supreme Court has always said you look at the totality of the property to determine whether that is a taking requiring compensation, and it is not, because you can build on 98 percent of your property. I am pleased to be an original cosponsor and want to commend Mr. CHABOT and Mr. SENSENBERN for shepherding this legislation through.

In Arizona, between State, Federal and Indian reservation, private property extends to less than 20 percent in the State, and so we take private property very seriously there because we
Mr. CHABOT. I agree that this is not directly related to Kelo, although there is, I think in many people’s minds, some connection, and I think rightfully so.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I want to make clear it is not the impression in people’s minds that counts in Congress. It is what is in people’s bills, and in this bill is nothing to solve the Kelo problem.

We should not let anger about Kelo allow developers to game the system. This bill should be rejected.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, this bill deals with when a government exercises zoning power and the big developer disagrees with what happens. It says you go into Federal court right away, which is more expensive for the local government to defend, and which is unconstitutional, as I mentioned a few minutes ago, because you have to go through the State courts.

But second of all, it changes the substantive law to enable the developer to say that any reduction in his use of the property, that says you cannot have more than X number of houses on the property or you cannot destroy all the wetlands on the property, anything that will help preserve the local communities, all the regulations it would depend on to preserve property values, to preserve local communities, they say are all gone because you have to pay for them and no local government is going to pay for them.

So nobody is going to be able to go to their local zoning board and complain. They will have to go to the Supreme Court, which will not have time for them.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, Colorado has been one of the fastest-growing States, and we have our share of contentious land-use disputes—in fact, sometimes it seems we may have more than our share.

And I do think the federal government has a role to play in helping our communities to respond to the problems that come with that rapid growth.

But I don’t think the help that’s needed is greater involvement of the federal courts in more and more local land-use decisions. And that’s what this bill is all about.

This bill does not deal with the questions about use of eminent domain for economic development projects that were involved in the case of Kelo v. New London which attracted so much attention when the Supreme Court issued its decision last year.

I voted for a resolution (H. Res. 340) expressing disapproval of that decision, and for a bill (H.R. 4128) that responded to the decision by barring any state or political subdivision from exercising its power of eminent domain for economic development if that state or political subdivision received federal economic development funds. That bill also would make a state or political subdivision violating that prohibition ineligible for any such funds for two years.

I think the bill is sound policy. I am very concerned that it would severely tilt the field in favor of one interest, developers, and it would make it even harder for our communities to meet the challenges of growth and sprawl. It would saddle taxpayers of our towns, cities, and counties with the costs of expensive federal litigation. That’s one reason it is opposed by the Colorado Municipal League as well as the National Association of Counties, the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the National Council of State Legislatures, and the Council of State Governments.

It’s also not good for our federal courts. When the House considered similar legislation previously, the Judicial Conference of the United States—the body that speaks for our federal judges—said it “may adversely affect the administration of justice” and “contribute to existing backlogs in some judicial districts.”

Finally, as a non-lawyer who takes very seriously the oath we all have taken to support the Constitution, I have listened carefully to the views of the many lawyers—including distinguished Members of the Judiciary Committee—who have concluded that the bill is likely unconstitutional.

I thought the bill was otherwise desirable, that would make me hesitate. But, as I’ve said, the bill has other serious shortcomings—and the constitutional issues that have been raised mean that enacting this bill would inevitably lead to even more protracted and expensive litigation that would go all the way to the Supreme Court. However the Court might finally rule, that additional litigation is not something that I think is necessary or that Congress should encourage. So, again, I cannot vote for this bill.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I support this legislation which was introduced by Congressman CHABOT. It protects the Americans’ private property. The Bill of Rights guarantees the right to private property. Such a right lies at the foundation of a democracy where citizens have the freedom to buy, sell, exchange, or make a profit on all forms of property.

In recent years, it has become more and more common for the government to seize private property under the guise of eminent domain for “public use.” This is something that landowners in my home state of Texas are already frequently faced with under the Endangered Species Act, which prevents a landowner from developing private property owner who suffers injury as a result of a violation of the bill.

I thought that was an appropriate response to the Kelo decision. But this bill is quite different, and I cannot support it.

I do not think it is needed. The vast majority of the public disputes currently revolve around local regulations or decisions amount to a “taking” of property, are resolved at the local or state level without significant delay.

There is no need to short-circuit the decisionmaking process under local and state law. We do not need to bypass our state courts, because, as noted in a letter signed by Attorney Generals of 32 States, “State courts . . . are ideal forums for resolving disputes involving state and local planning issues [and] . . . the bill thus runs counter to the admonition of Justice Alito . . . that the federal judiciary should avoid procedural rules under which it could be ‘cast in the role of a zoning board of appeals.’”

I also don’t think the bill is sound policy. I am very concerned that it would severely tilt the field in favor of one interest, developers, and it would make it even harder for our communities to meet the challenges of growth and sprawl. their property if an endangered species is found on the land. Under last year’s Supreme Court decision in Kelo, state and local governments now can take property from a private landowner in order to give or sell it to another private owner. So, we need to make sure Americans can protect their private property ownership.

For instance, H.R. 4772 corrects an anomaly created by two Supreme Court decisions that prevents a property owner from having their federal takings claim decided in Federal Court without first pursuing the case in state court.

And the legislation clarifies that the standard for due process claims in a takings case is “arbitrary and capricious” and not the much higher “shocks the conscience” standard that some courts are using and that almost no property rights case can meet.

The bill also clarifies what constitutes a “final decision” on an acceptable land use from a regulatory agency for purposes of being able to take the claim to federal court. Some regulatory agencies have avoided making such “final decisions” in order to prevent the property owner from moving forward with the property rights claim.

H.R. 4772 is a good bill that will protect America’s property rights.

Mr. Speaker, I thank Congressman CHABOT for offering this legislation, and urge my colleagues to support it.

Mrs. MALONEY, Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 4772, the “Private Property Rights Implementation Act.”

This bill strips local governments of their authority to enforce zoning regulations by allowing real estate developers to bypass the State courts and go directly to Federal courts to challenge local zoning decisions. While I strongly believe in the rights of property owners, zoning is an important tool of local governments to maintain livable communities where residents and businesses can coexist.

The city of New York opposes this legislation because it would curtail the authority over land use decisions. Additionally, this bill is opposed by a coalition of groups including the League of Conservation Voters, the National League of Cities, the U.S. Conference of Mayors, and the National Conference of State Legislatures.

I am puzzled about why the Republican Majority feels that this bill should be voted on before we adjourn when there are so many other issues like increasing the minimum wage and implementing the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission that have yet to be considered by this body.

I urge my colleagues to vote “no.”

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I appreciate this opportunity to explain my concerns with the bill; H.R. 4772, the Private Property Rights Implementation Act of 2005. I oppose the bill because I am concerned that it will weaken local land use, zoning, and environmental laws by encouraging costly and unwarranted “takings” litigation in Federal court against local officials.

Mr. Chairman, H.R. 4772 would fundamentally alter the procedures governing regulatory takings litigation. Those procedures are required by the U.S. Constitution and have been repeatedly reaffirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court, as recently as last year. The bill purports to alter these requirements by giving developers, corporate hog farms, adult bookstores, and other takings claimants the ability to bypass local land use procedures and State courts. Indeed, the National Association of Home Builders candidly referred to a prior version of the bill as a “hammer to the head” of local officials. Developers could use this hammer to side-step land use negotiations and avoid compliance with local laws that protect neighboring property owners and the community at large.

In addition, section 5 of the bill purports to dramatically change substantive takings law as articulated by the Supreme Court and other Federal courts by redefining the constitutional rules that apply to permit conditions, subdivisions, and claims under the Due Process Clause. The existing rules, developed over many decades, allow courts to strike a fair balance between takings claimants, neighboring property owners, and the public. The proposed rules would tilt the playing field further in favor of corporate developers and other takings claimants, even in the many localities across the country where developers already have an advantage.

As a result, H.R. 4772 would allow big developers and other takings claimants to use the threat of premature Federal court litigation as a club to coerce small communities to approve projects that would harm the public. By short-circuiting local land use procedures, H.R. 4772 also would curtail democratic participation in local land use decisions by the very people who could be harmed by those decisions.

The bill also raises serious constitutional issues. The provisions that purport to redefine constitutional violations ignore the fundamental principle established in Marbury v. Madison (1803) that it is “emphatically the province and duty of the Federal courts to interpret the meaning of the Constitution. Moreover, under longstanding precedent, a landowner has no claim against a State or local government under the Fifth Amendment until the claimant first seeks and is denied compensation in State court. Federal courts would continue to dismiss these claims, as well as claims that lack an adequate record of a claimant using the State law to side-step local land use procedures. The bill will create more delay and confusion by offering the false hope of an immediate Federal forum for those who have not suffered a Federal constitutional injury. In short, this bill is a great threat to federalism, our local land use protections, neighboring property owners, and the environment. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to vote against the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman’s time has expired.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 1054, the previous question is ordered on the bill, as amended.

The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 1054, debate shall not exceed 1 hour, with 40 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Armed Services and 20 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Judiciary.

The gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELETON) each will control 20 minutes and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. SENSENBRENNER) and the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. CONVEYERS) each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.
Congress. So you could say, I think, Mr. Speaker, that we have been charged not just by the President but by the Supreme Court with doing our job and putting together this process.

We have pursued the terrorists across the globe. We have captured some, and we have killed many. We have pursued them literally to the ends of the earth. We have caught them at 10,000 foot elevation mountain ranges in caves where they thought they were safe, so-called safe houses that turned out not to be safe houses. We captured some who, according to our intelligence personnel, helped to design the attack against New York and Washington, DC, and Pennsylvania. And I can think of no more important way to memorialize 9/11 than to produce a justice system that allows us to bring to justice, to bring to the courthouse and show justice to the widows and orphans of 9/11, to the victims of that attack.

This system is a product of extensive negotiations, hundreds of provisions that have been worked upon and weeded and looked at by counsel for both this body, the other body, the U.S. Senate and, of course, the administration. I think it is sound. I think it is solid. I think it is going to allow us to do this.

I think it is sound. I think it is solid. I think it is going to allow us to do this.

So as the American people watch these trials unfold, Mr. Speaker, and they watch the defendants, including some who worked to hurt our country and helped to cause the death of thousands of Americans, they are going to watch them with their taxpayer-paid-for attorneys exercising their rights against self-incrimination, their right to a fair speedy trial beyond a reasonable doubt; they are going to watch a jury system or a commission system that uses a secret ballot so that superior officers can't influence junior officers; they are going to watch all these safeguards put in place for justice, and I think the American people are going to say, although there will be some who will say they still didn't have enough rights, but I think the American people will come down on the side that what we have done here in the House.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of S. 3930, the “Military Commissions Act of 2006.” I can think of no better way to honor the fifth anniversary of September 11th than by establishing a system to prosecute the terrorists who, on that day, murdered thousands of innocent civilians, and who continue to seek to kill Americans both on and off the battlefield.

This is vital legislation important to the national security of the United States. Our foremost consideration in writing this legislation is to protect American troops and American citizens from harm.

The war against terror has produced a new type of battlefield, a new type of enemy. How is it different? We are fighting a ruthless enemy who does not wear a uniform. A savage enemy who kills civilians, women and children and then boasts about it. A barbaric enemy who beheads innocent civilians by sawing off their heads in a public square. A civilization enemy who does not acknowledge or respect the laws of war, the Geneva Conventions or any of the guarantees which are recognized by civilized nations.

Justice Thomas put it best in Hamdan. He said we are “not engaged in a traditional battle with a nation-state, but with a world-wide, hydra-headed enemy, who lurks in the shadows conspiring to reproduce the atrocities of September 11th, 2001, and who has boasted of sending suicide bombers into civilian gathering, has proudly distributed videotapes of beheadings of civilian workers, and has tortured and dismembered captured American soldiers.”

How is the battlefield new? First, it will be a long war. We don't know if this enemy will be defeated before this decade, or even longer than that. Second, it is a new kind of war, where intelligence is more vital than ever, where we have to interrogate the enemy. Not to degrade them, but to save the lives of American troops, American civilians, and our allies. But it is not practical on the battlefield to read the Geneva Convention and the Hamdan decision, but in doing so let's not forget the prosecution of people who attacked our nation against the enemy. We won't lower our standards, we will always treat detainees humanely, but we can't be naive either.

This war started in 1996 with the al Qaeda declaration of jihad against the United States. The Geneva Conventions were written in 1949 and the UCMJ was adopted in 1951. These documents were not written to address the war we are now fighting. In that sense, what we are required to do after Hamdan is broader than war crimes trials, it is the start of a new legal precedent, for the long war. It is time for us to think about war crime trials and a process that provides due process and protects national security in the new war.

So what do we do with these new military commissions? We uphold basic human rights and standards that our country's legal system is built upon. When we come to a legal void left by the Hamdan decision, but in doing so let's not forget the prosecution of people who attacked our nation against the enemy. We won't lower our standards, we will always treat detainees humanely, but we can't be naive either.

Section 5 clarifies that the Geneva Conventions are not an enforceable source of rights in any habeas corpus or other civil action or proceeding by an individual in U.S. courts.

Section 6 of the bill amends 18 U.S.C. Section 2441, the War Crimes Act to criminalize war crimes as any conduct which constitutes a violation of Common Article 3. As amended, the War Crimes Act will fully satisfy our treaty obligations under common Article 3. This amendment is necessary because currently Section (c)(3) of the War Crimes Act defines a war crime as any conduct which constitutes a violation of Common Article 3. Common Article 3 prohibits some actions that are universally condemned, such as murder and torture but also prohibits “outrages upon personal dignity” and “humiliating and degrading treatment,” phrases which are vague and do not provide adequate guidance to our personnel. Since violation of Common Article 3 is a felony under the War Crimes Act, it is necessary to amend it to provide clarity and certainty to the interpretation of this statute. The surest way to achieve that clarity and certainty is to define a list of specific offenses that constitute war crimes punishable as grave violations of Common Article 3. This is something we need now, because of the Hamdan decision.

Section 6 of the bill also provides that any detainee under the custody or physical control of the United States will not be subject to “cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment” prohibited by the Fifth, Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution, as defined by the U.S. reservations to the UN Convention against Torture. This defines the offenses covered by the War Crimes Act of 1996 by reference to the U.S. constitutional standard adopted by the Detainee Treatment Act of 2005.

Section 7 of the bill addresses the question of judicial review of claims by detainees by amending 28 U.S.C. Section 2241 to clarify the intent of the Detainee Treatment Act of 2005 to limit the right of detainees to challenge their detention. The practical effect of this amendment will be to eliminate the hundreds of detainee lawsuits that are pending in the courts throughout the country from another catastrophic terrorist attack.

Mr. Speaker, this is a complicated piece of legislation. In addition to establishing an entire legal process from start to finish, we address the application of common Article 3 of the Geneva conventions to our current laws.
Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The history of tribunals goes back to during, and after the Second World War: The German will be, as it were, captured at Ponte Verde, Florida, and Long Island were tried before a tribunal; the Japanese leaders who carried out such inhumane treatment toward the American soldiers and prisoners of war, among them General Yamashita and General Tojo; and, of course, the Nuremberg trials held in Nuremberg, Germany, after the war of the Nazis who perpetrated those various crimes.

Now, here we are trying to establish a tribunal or a commission, which we should do and need to do. The Supreme Court, as a result of the Hamdan decision, said that we in Congress need to do this. In my debate and comments recently, I pointed out some seven areas of constitutional uncertainty which may have their conviction overturned. Number one is a mistake made by the judge or a comment made by the prosecutor. On the other hand, someone may have their conviction overturned in the event that the law upon which the conviction is based is unconstitutional. Number two is the Supreme Court striking a conviction. Consequently, I think this bill before us, as I have said before, is still not in its final form. It is not only to be tough but to be uncertain that these convictions will be upheld.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER), who is the chairman of the Veterans’ Affairs Committee and a former JAG officer himself.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I was a good listener to my colleague, Mr. SKELTON, and we have worked very well over the years. Sometimes we disagree, but I think more times we agree than disagree.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I have worked with the administration and this Senate and my good friend Mr. GRAHAM. When you start this legislative process, Mr. SKELTON, and you start with five amendments and you end up with a colloquy, some good things must have happened in the process. So I just want my good friend from Missouri to know that a lot of the concerns I had have been worked out with Mr. HUNTER, with his cooperation, and with the Senate and with the administration.

I know some of you have some concerns that didn’t get worked out, and I can understand that and I can relate to the gentleman, but with regard to a process here, the Supreme Court struck down the tribunals, said the Congress needs to act on this to come up with a process, and when I examined this bill, we took some of the best, not only of our own legal system, but we took some of the best out of the UCMJ, and we took some of the best out of the world court to create the military commissions.

Mr. Speaker, in title 18, the first chapter will be the Federal criminal code that will apply to United States citizens. The second chapter then is the UCMJ, and the third chapter will now be the Code of Military Commissions. In the Code of Military Commissions is in fact a process that will reflect America’s values, and it will be balanced against the protection of our national security, and it has indispensable judicial guarantees that are recognized by the world.

The Supreme Court, yes, they will examine our commissions, no differently than how they examine the tribunals, but I am left in an area of good comfort, and that is my counsel that I now give to my country, of 26 years’ experience not only as a military JAG officer but also the 14 years here helping lead our country. I am comfortable with regard to this process, not only if I were the military prosecutor but even if I were the military defense counsel, about the protections that we are affording not only this unlawful enemy combatant but making sure that we have a balance of interplay.

Yesterday, on the floor, a couple of our colleagues had raised some issues as to whether American citizens could be subject to the Code of Military Commissions and whether or not, if an American citizen was even classified as an enemy combatant, could they then be subject to a military tribunal. The answer is no. American citizens cannot. Mr. HUNTER has made it very clear in this language.

So even a strict constructionist, when they read this language in the Supreme Court, it is very clear. Section 948 says this does not apply to American citizens; that it only applies to aliens. But let’s go with an example: Let’s say an American citizen has been arrested for aiding and abetting a terrorist, maybe even participating in a conspiracy, or maybe participating in an action that harmed or killed American citizens.

That American citizen cannot be tried in the military commission. His coconspirators could be tried in a military commission if they were an alien, but if that other coconspirator is an American citizen, they will be prosecuted under title 18 of the United States Code.

I am trying to go into details, and I want to share with the American people here beyond the rhetoric that sometimes you hear on the floor, that with regard to the process itself, I am very comfortable with the fact that American citizens cannot be tried in this.

The reason I am spending a little time on it is that there was an editorial that went out there by a law professor published in the Los Angeles Times. Let me tell you, as a lawyer myself, just because a law professor says it, I am going to tell you what: not necessarily true.

I read his editorial, and I also then looked at the law. Let me now speak unto the law professor: read the bill. Just like what you would do to your law students, you would tell them to read the bill. And when you read the bill and when you open it up, you would find that the words you wrote so that the readers in Southern California would think you take whole action, or give you credit or credence to your words, your words are false. And that is completely unfortunate.

So hopefully people will begin to understand that this whole issue about these military commissions applying to American citizens is not true.

In the end, let me thank Mr. HUNTER on a good work product. I do wish that, in the end, that this really could have been a product, Mr. SKELTON, that the two of you could have brought together. I don’t know what happened there, because I have such respect for both of you.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER).

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I am not going to get into any of the torture aspects of this bill, but I do want to address the due process aspects of this bill.

The distinguished chairman says we have created a system of justice with plenty of rights. Well, we have created two systems of justice. First of all, it doesn’t have so many rights. You can appeal from the military tribunal, but the military tribunal can hear hearsay evidence and it can hear evidence obtained under coercion, if not torture. That is debatable.

But the appeal is only on matters of law, not fact. It is determined that it is you and not someone whose name is similar to you who is the unlawful enemy combatant by the military tribunal, you can’t appeal that decision. You can only appeal the process of that decision. The civilian courts have nothing to say on questions of fact. That is number one.

Number two, much more important, the President under this bill has the ability, or Federal bureaucrats, for that matter, to point their finger at anybody in the world, as long as he is not a citizen, and say you are an enemy combatant because I say so; and because I say so, we are going to throw you in jail forever and you have no right to have a military commission. We may put you before a military commission, in which case what they were talking about applies. We may put you before a military tribunal, in which case what they were talking about applies; but there is no right to do that.

The bill specifically says that this whole process is exempt from the speedy trial requirements of law. So you may be in jail forever because your name was similar to the real guy.

The bill assumes that we need not have the normal protections that we have had since the Magna Carta for people to at least say habeas corpus; bring the body, sir King, before the magistrate to make sure you have the right to discuss the evidence and have some basis for holding this person and depriving him of liberty.

There is no such right. This person can be in jail forever without ever going to a military tribunal, without ever going to a combat status review tribunal, without anything our courts.

This, Mr. Speaker, is irrelevant and unconstitutional. This is un-American. It is against all our traditions, to be able to say that people have no rights. It specifically says you have no right to go to a military tribunal or a regular court, to protest that you are being tortured or to allege that you are being tortured. You can’t get into court. If you are being tortured, too bad. No one knows about it.

Secondly, you cannot go to court to say they got the wrong guy, because cops never make mistakes, no one ever makes a mistake.

And, finally, the bill is also unconstitutional because it sets up two systems of justice. If you pick up two people in New York, one of them is a citizen, they go to the Federal court, and you accuse them of being unlawful enemy combatants, they go to the regular American system of justice. One is awaiting citizenship but is a permanent resident, he goes through this other. He has no rights and can be in jail forever. That is clearly unconstitutional. It is a denial of equal protection.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER).

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, when the gentleman says the President can make any determination he wants with regard to status, I would just like the gentleman to know that the determination of one’s status is done by a tribunal under article V of the Geneva Conventions.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BUYER. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. NADLER. It is supposed to be done by a tribunal under article V, but the President claims the power. We have never held such a tribunal.

Mr. BUYER. Wait a minute. Reclaiming my time, please do not come to the floor and make things up. As a JAG officer in the first Gulf War, I wrote the practice and procedures for article V tribunals. I participated in the tribunals to determine status, a person’s status. The President of the United States does not participate in that process.

Mr. Speaker, please, don’t be silly and just make things up.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, let me just go to the Detainee Act. It says that review is done by the District of Columbia relating to any aspect of the detention of an alien, and we have expanded it from Guantanamo Bay to anywhere, who has been determined by the United States District Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia that they are not in compliance with the procedures set forth in section 1405. So there is a process whereby the review is made with respect to the status of that detainee.

Let me go to a second point. The gentleman spoke about hearsay evidence being allowed. That is true. Hearsay evidence is allowed, with certain restrictions. The judge has to find that it is probative, that it is relevant and that it is reliable.

The war crimes tribunals in Yugoslavia and Rwanda allow hearsay evidence. As I recall, the bill that was offered by Mr. SKELTON, that was voted on in the HASC, in the Armed Services...
Committee, also allowed for the use of hearsay evidence.

So hearsay evidence, I would say to my friends, is not excluded and has not historically been excluded in war crimes trials in Rwanda, in Yugoslavia.

Mr. CONYERS. The gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, first I would make reference to my friend from Indiana (Mr. BUYER), and thank him for his comments. I am sorry that we don't agree on the basis of this. But thank you for your comments a few moments ago.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KUCINICH).

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Missouri for his defense of basic constitutional principles. I would say that the basic premise of military commissions, that the U.S. military should try unlawful enemy combatants using draconian rules, that basic premise is false.

The commissions military officers are not peers of these detainees. The detainees are accused of crimes against humanity and should be tried like all other such persons. The U.S. should hand over these detainees to the International Criminal Court. The prosecution evidence that would be legal under our Constitution and the Geneva Conventions. This model of justice would set a precedent for other nations where the rule of law remains unfair, unjust, and inhumane.

The Koramatsu case has been called a serious case. It was a case from World War II in which the U.S. government was criticized for its handling of justice. The case has been overturned. And what it stands for is the proposition that civilians can be held by the military in this country.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, let me just make a comment about the fact that we enumerate the crimes that might be committed, what we call the grave offenses under article III.

I think that it accrues to the benefit of our soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines and our intelligence agents that they know what the crimes are when they have people in custody, and the fact that those grave crimes, and they are enumerated, are defined, gives clarity to our folks so they know what the offenses are. I think that serves the purpose. It does not deserve the purpose.

But the idea that we have also reserved to the President on nongrave offenses is a problem. For example, that was given by expert testimony was if you use the term "degrading," you could charge that a female JAG officer interrogating a Muslim male is in and of itself degrading, because it is a female interrogating a male, and in their culture that would be considered to be degrading.

I think it is important not to expose that female JAG officer to liability. And it is important, therefore, when you have what you might consider to be minor infractions to not label that person, that American, a war criminal, but to allow the President as Commander in Chief to put forth regulations.

So I think this is a good fit, and it gives the thing that is most important to personnel, and that is clarity.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HUNTER. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. BUYER. What I would like to share with everyone, having done interrogations, I have interrogated Iraqi high command when I was at the West-day job, because I have a Member I respect so much in judiciary, Mr. LUNGREN, who keeps trying to tell us that there are two rites of habeas corpus. A wonderful idea, if it were only true.

The statutory writ of habeas corpus, I say, by and large from California, is to implement the great writ in the Constitution. So to be telling us repeatedly, repeatedly, and I have got the cases, I have been waiting for this great moment in American judiciary history, that there are two rites and that this is just not to know which one you are talking about is absolutely incorrect.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas, SHEILA JACKSON-LEE.

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Let me thank the distinguished ranking member of the committee for his very insightful, instructive messages on the dilemma we face in Iraq and Afghanistan. Let me also acknowledge that there are individuals who have had firsthand experience in the military courts.

Having gone to a law school that had a very outstanding JAG school, I understand the importance of military law and was one time a member of the U.S. Military Court of Appeals. But I think it is important that we make this argument understandable, because in a few hours the President will give to my friends on the other side of the aisle an opportunity of bragging rights by having signed a bill that has been rushed through this process and has totally ignored the Supreme Court's decision.

Why are we standing here on this side of the aisle seemingly making arguments that don't promote security and safety in the United States? Well, that interpretation is totally wrong, because not one of us wants to take away the tools that would ensure America's security. But what we are concerned about are the faces here who represent those who have lost their lives on the front lines of Iraq and Afghanistan, and they continue over and over again. We have concerns about the life they sacrifice and the soldiers that they left behind. We know that soldiers don't leave comrades on the battlefield, injured or lost in the line of battle.

Today, this military tribunal commission will leave our soldiers on the battlefield, for what it does is it creates the atmosphere, no matter whether we are in a guerrilla war or we are in the confrontational wars that we know of World War I and II. It is to ensure that the treatment of our soldiers, if caught by the enemy, will reflect the lack of treatment that we have given here.

Mr. SKELTON has made it very clear, we could fix this, because he would have provided an expedited Constitution review of the entire matter to give the opportunity for entry into the courts under habeas. It would also require that these military commissions, because they are eliminating rights, we are not saying releasing people, we are saying eliminating rights, that then get related to the military treatment of those who are incarcerated or taken off the battlefield that are our soldiers.

Secondly, it refuses to give reauthorization language to the military commissions. We don't know where we will be in a few hours, where we will be in a few days. Negatively this will impact our soldiers on the battlefield, which next conflict that, God forbid, we may have to be engaged in.

Also, the language that my friends have gone beyond the scope of the Supreme Court's decision in Hamdan to decide whether or not detainees have habeas rights. The court already decided they do. Or whether or not the habeas provisions in the Detainee Treatment Act are constitutionally legal. The habeas provisions in the legislation are contrary to congressional intent in the Detainee Treatment Act. In that act, Congress did not intend to strip the courts of jurisdiction over the pending habeas cases.

In addition, although my friends say they fixed it, they also deny the rights which I had an amendment to to utilize the Geneva Conventions language to say that you were tortured or not tortured, even if you would put that defense in a citation.

So in concluding, let me say we owe them a debt of gratitude. Let's vote down this tribunal to save future lives. I rise in strong opposition to S. 3930, the Military Commissions Act. I oppose this bill because I stand strong for our troops. I stand strong for the Constitution. I stand strong for the values that have made our country, the United States of America, the greatest country in the history of the world. I oppose this legislation because it is not becoming a nation that is strong in its values, confident of its future, and proud of its ancient heritage.

Mr. Speaker, let us be crystal clear: All Americans, and Democrats especially, want those responsible for 9/11 and other terrorist acts to be tried fairly and punished accordingly, and we want those convictions to be upheld by our courts.

Democrats want the President to have the best possible intelligence to prevent future terrorist attacks on the United States and its allies.

Democrats agreed with the President when he said "whether the terrorists are brought to justice or justice brought to the terrorists, justice will be done." But Democrats understand that justice requires the Congress to establish a system for trying suspected terrorists that not only is fundamentally fair but also consistent with the Geneva Convention.

We should abide by the Geneva Convention not out of some slavish devotion to international law or desire to coddle terrorists, but because adherence to the Geneva Convention protects American troops and affirms American values.

S. 3930, the compromise before us, includes some improvements that I strongly support. For example, evidence obtained through torture can no longer be used against the accused. Similarly, the compromise bill provides that hearsay evidence can be challenged as unreliable.

Perhaps the most important improvement over the bill passed by the House is that accused terrorists will have the right to rebut all evidence offered by the prosecution. As is the case in the existing military justice system, classified evidence can be summarized, redacted, declassified, or otherwise made available to the accused, allowing sources or methods. This change to the bill goes a long way toward minimizing the chance that an accused may be convicted with secret evidence, a shameful practice favored by dictators and totalitarianists but beneath the dignity of a great nation like the United States. As Senator JOHN MCCAIN said: I think it's important that we stand by 200 years of legal precedents concerning classified information because the defendant should have a right to know what evidence is being used.

However, I am concerned that there is reason to believe that even with this compromise legislation, this system of military commissions may still lead to endless lawsuits struck down by the courts. Then we would find ourselves back here again next year, or five years from now, trying to develop a system that can finally bring the likes of Khalid Sheik Mohammed to justice. Why would we want to give terrorist detainees a "get out of jail free" card when we can avoid that by establishing military commissions that work. As currently written, the compromise bill has provisions that could lead to the reversal of a conviction.

Specifically, the bill contains a section that strips the federal courts jurisdiction over habeas corpus petitions filed prior to the passage of the Detainee Treatment Act last December on behalf of detainees at Guantanamo Bay. Mr. Speaker, nine former federal judges were so alarmed by this prospect that they wrote compelled go public with their concerns:

Congress would thus be skating on this constitutional ice in depriving the federal courts of their power to hear the cases of two detainees whose goal of the provision is to bring these cases to a speedy conclusion, we can assure from our considerable experience that eliminating habeas would be unconstitutional.

Mr. Speaker, common Article 3 of the Geneva Convention requires that a military commission be a regularly constituted court affording all the necessary "judicial guarantees which are recognized as indispensable by civilized peoples. Notwithstanding the provision in the House bill that the military commissions established therein satisfy this standard, the fact is that other nations will agree. Simply saying so does not make it so. Moreover, they may well be right. Consider this, Mr. Speaker:

The compromise allows statements to be entered into evidence that were obtained through cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment and lesser forms of coercion if the statement was obtained "in a manner not fundamentally fair but also consistent with the Geneva Convention."

To provide limited immunity to government agents involved in the CIA detention and interrogation program, the bill amends the War Crimes Act of 1996 to encompass only "grave breaches" of the Geneva Conventions. U.S. agents could not be tried under the War Crimes Act for war crimes, only "grave breaches" of the Geneva Conventions. U.S. agents could not be tried under the
Mr. Speaker, what is sometimes lost sight of in all the tumult and commotion is that the reason we have observed the Geneva Conventions—since their adoption in 1949—is to protect members of our military. But as the Judge Advocate Generals pointed out, the compromise bill could place United States servicemembers at risk by establishing an entirely new international standard that American troops could be subjected to if captured overseas. As Rear Admiral Bruce McDonald testified:

I go back to the reciprocity issue that we raised earlier, that I would be very concerned about other nations looking in on the United States and making a determination that, if it’s good enough for the United States, it’s good enough for us, and perhaps doing a lot of damage and harm internationally if one of our servicemen or women were taken and held as a detainee.

What’s more, Mr. Speaker, the Geneva Conventions also protect those not in uniform—special forces personnel, diplomatic personnel, CIA agents, contractors, journalists, missionaries, and all other civilians. Changing our commitment to this treaty could endanger them as well.

We can fix these deficiencies easily if we only have the will. What we should do is recommit the bill with instructions to add two important amendments: (1) expedited constitutional review of the legislation; and (2) a requirement that these military commissions be reauthorized after three years.

Under expedited review, the constitutionality of the military commission system could be tested and determined quickly and early—before there are trials and convictions. And it would help provide stability and sure-footing for novel legislation that sets up a military commissions system unlike anything in American history.

Such an approach provides no additional rights to alleged terrorists. All it does is give the Supreme Court of the United States the ability to decide whether the military commissions system under this act is legal or not. It simply provides the American people and our judicial system the ability to try to redefine the Geneva Convention. We should not do anything to alter our international obligations in an election-year rush. We cannot use international law only when it is convenient and expedient. Our commitment to the Geneva Conventions gives us the moral high ground. This is true in both a long war against radical terrorists and a war for the hearts and minds of people from every religion and every nation. If we compromise our values, the terrorists win. As Senator McCain has said: “This is not about the terrorists. This is about who we are.”

The United States was one of the prime architects of the Geneva Conventions and other international laws. Our goal was to protect prisoners of war in all kinds of armed conflicts and inns that no one would be outside the law of war. Coming shortly after World War II, they knew the horrors of war but they still chose to limit the inhumanity of war by establishing minimum protections of due process and humane treatment, even for those accused of gross violations of the Convention.

Mr. Speaker, our nation has the finest military in the world. Our nation also deserves to have the finest military justice system in the world. I oppose S. 3930 because it departs significantly from the tried and true procedures established in the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

The United States has long served as the model for the world of a civilized society that effectively blends security and human liberty. When we refuse to observe the very international standards for the treatment of detainees, which we were so instrumental in developing, we provide encouragement for others around the world to do the same. Our British allies have demonstrated that these traditional principles can be adhered to without distinguishing the security of its citizens. We must do likewise.

Mr. Speaker, the treatment and trials of detainees by the United States is too important not to do it right. In the words of Jonathan Winthrop, often quoted by President Reagan, “for we must consider that we shall be as a City upon a hill. The eyes of all people are upon us.” Let us act worthy of ourselves and our nation.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot recall being asked to render final judgment on a matter of such scope, consequence, and moment in so short a period of time with such a sparsely developed and insular, that no one would be outside the time to rush blindly forward. Rather, now more than ever, it is important to take our time and make the right decision and establish the right policy. And the right policy is not to jettison the Geneva Conventions.

We should try to redefine the Geneva Convention. We should not do anything to alter our international obligations in an election-year rush. We cannot use international law only when it is convenient and expedient. Our commitment to the Geneva Conventions gives us the moral high ground. This is true in both a long war against radical terrorists and a war for the hearts and minds of people from every religion and every nation. If we compromise our values, the terrorists win. Mr. Speaker, our nation has the finest military in the world. Our nation also deserves to have the finest military justice system in the world. I oppose S. 3930 because it departs significantly from the tried and true procedures established in the UCMJ.

The United States has long served as the model for the world of a civilized society that effectively blends security and human liberty. When we refuse to observe the very international standards for the treatment of detainees, which we were so instrumental in developing, we provide encouragement for others around the world to do the same. In the words of Jonathan Winthrop, often quoted by President Reagan, “for we must consider that we shall be as a City upon a hill. The eyes of all people are upon us.” Let us act worthy of ourselves and our nation.

So Mr. Speaker, I stand in opposition to this legislation. But I do not stand alone. I stand with former Secretary of State Colin Powell. I stand with former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs John Vessey. I stand with the 911 Families Opposed to Administration Efforts to Undermine Geneva Conventions. I stand with the retired federal judges and admirals and Judge Advocate Generals.

The bill before us is not the right way to do justice by the American people. I therefore cannot support it and I urge my colleagues to reject it. We have time to come up with a better product and we should not do anything to cause you are adjudged by a tribunal; or, one, because the President says so without a tribunal. Otherwise, this language has no meaning. That’s page 3 of the bill.

And if you look at page 93 of the bill, you find that no court shall have jurisdiction to hear an application for writ of habeas corpus or for an application relating to any aspect of the detention transfer, treatment, trial, or conditions of confinement of an alien who is an unlawful enemy combatant.

In other words, anyone other than the citizen can be accused by the President or by any bureaucrat of being an unlawful enemy combatant, thrown in jail, and get no benefits.

We have heard repeatedly that we are giving rights to terrorism. No, we are not. We are not trying to give rights to terrorists. We are saying that before someone is accused of rape or murder, you don’t string them up; you first give them a trial and then string them up.

And what they are saying, what this bill says is the President or his designee can designate someone as an unlawful enemy combatant, and, with no trial, no hearing, no status review, no nothing, throw them in jail forever. That is un-American. It is worse than what we rebelled against the King of England for in 1776, and we should be ashamed of ourselves.

Mr. HUNTER. I yield myself such time as I may consume, Mr. Speaker, and let me make five points here.

First, there is nothing in this language that directs people to pick up or not pick up people. This is the language. This bill design and constructs military commissions. On page 8 of the bill it gives the jurisdiction of the commission, and it says: “A military commission under this chapter shall have jurisdiction to try any offense made punishable by this chapter or the law of war when committed by an alien unlawful enemy combatant before, on, or after September 11, 2001.” That would allow us also to try those folks from the Qaeda and the Embassy bombings.

With that, let me go to Mr. Wu’s point. Mr. Wu said, if we pointed out the Detainee Treatment Act provided for review, he said that he thought it expired because it was attached to an appropriations bill and expired annually. That is not so. It is a permanent code. So the Detainee Treatment Act is in place. And if the gentleman can show me where it is expired, we will be happy to entertain that.

Secondly, the gentleman also said that it was procedural only. I am referring to the Detainee Treatment Act that the court has the jurisdiction to review relating to any aspect, and I am quoting, any aspect of the detention of the person in question, relating to any aspect. And, of course, that would go as to whether he was a combatant or not as you stated, it is not simply a procedural review.

So I just want to go over those points.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SKELTON. I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished chairman of our Veterans Committee, Mrs. Davis, who is a member of the Armed Services Committee.

Mrs. Davis of California, Mr. Speaker, I want to give this administration, any administration, the ability to prosecute, convict, and punish individuals who have committed terrorist acts and who are planning acts against the United States. But we must do this under the guidelines outlined by the Supreme Court in Hamdan v. Rumsfeld.

The United States entrusted this Congress with the duty to reform military tribunals in a manner consistent with the Constitution and international treaty obligations.

While the Senate attempted to respect our obligations under Geneva, concern remains. We have heard that on many occasions that this bill will grant the Executive the power to define certain types of interrogation methods that may be inconsistent with common article 3 of the Geneva Conventions.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in response to Hamdan, the House Armed Services Committee heard from current and former judge advocate generals. Mr. Speaker, I listened to them. Their testimony was compelling. Many spoke out against modifying the Geneva Conventions in any way, in anyway, because of the risk that this provision could put our troops in harm’s way and could be found to be inconsistent with Geneva.

Mr. Speaker, I believe, that we miss an opportunity to be absolutely clear on these points and to show the world that America can be tough on terrorism while staying true to the values we hold so dear.

Ms. Jackson-Lee of Texas. If the gentlewoman would yield just for a moment, I thank you for your comments.

Mr. Speaker, I think the law that the framework for soldiers may not be habeas in civilian language, but there is a procedure that soldiers would have to be able to petition their detention, and it is a military term. And what we are saying, for instance, the lingo using DCM commission language is that doesn’t exist.

Mr. Skelton. Mr. Speaker, in closing, let me say that being tough on terrorists not only centers about a conviction, a judgment rendered on what they did, whether it be the death penalty, life imprisonment or a term of years but also centers upon the fact that there is certainly after a conviction; and the last thing I want to see coming out of this is for there to be a reversal on appeal which destroys certainty because of what we did in this law.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the distinguished sir.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, to bring a chill into the debate, the issue of who they did, whether it be the death penalty, life imprisonment or a term of years but also centers upon the fact that there is certainly after a conviction; and the last thing I want to see coming out of this is for there to be a reversal on appeal which destroys certainty because of what we did in this law.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Sensenbrenner. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of S. 3930, the Military Commissions Act of 2006, which is identical to legislation the House passed in a bipartisan manner on Wednesday evening by a vote 253-168. The other body voted 65-34 to approve this bill last night.

Let me say that the only reason we are here today is because the other body has committed a flagrant act of legislative plagiarism. The House passed its version of the bill first. They would not take up a bill with an “H.R.” number but instead picked up the work product that this House did, put an “S.” number on it, and then required us to have an hour debate on this issue for a second time. I regret that, and I think all of the arguments that were made on Wednesday did not one word. In the legislation between the time it passed the House and the time the Senate reintroduced it with an “S.” number and put through an hour debate on the rule and an hour debate on the same bill, in my opinion unnecessarily.

Having said that, on the merits of the bill, the way we treat terrorist enemy combatants sends a strong signal to the rest of the world about our commitment to the rule of law. This legislation says we will not subject enemy combatants in our custody to the cruel and brutal treatment they regularly utilize against our soldiers and civilians.

At the same time, this bill makes it clear to the terrorists and their lawyers in America that America will not allow them to subvert our judicial process nor to disrupt the war on terror with unnecessary or frivolous lawsuits. The bill strikes the right balance. It establishes a mechanism that is full and fair but also is orderly and efficient.

Indeed, the bill provides some 26 new rights to terrorist detainees, far more rights than any other system employed in the history to try suspected war criminals. Those who have suggested that this legislation will be found unconstitutional are misguided.

In this legislation, we accomplish precisely what a majority of the Supreme Court, and Justice Breyer, invited us to do in the Hamdan case: construct a full set of rules for conducting military commissions that meet the fundamental test of fairness under our Constitution.

In fact, the Supreme Court rejected such an argument in the 1950 case of Johnson v. Eisentrager. That portion of Eisentrager is still good law. Moreover, in the 1990 Verdugo case, the court reiterated that aliens detained in the United States but with no substantial connection to our country cannot avail themselves of the Constitution’s protections.

If the Supreme Court follows its own precedent and takes seriously its invitation to Congress to legislate in this area, the Court should have no problem concluding that this bill passes constitutional muster.

As we consider this legislation, it is important to remember, first and foremost, that this bill is about prosecuting the most dangerous terrorist that America has ever confronted, individuals like Khalid Sheikh Mohammed, the mastermind of the 9/11 attacks, or Abid Nashiri, who planned the attack on the USS Cole. None of the victims was treated with the same kind of respect for human life and the rule of law that is embodied in this legislation.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE

- There is a right to obtain witnesses in her evidence.
- There is a right to exculpatory evidence as soon as possible.
- There is a right to be present in court with the exception of certain classified evidence involving national security, preservation of safety or preventing disruption of proceedings;

- The right to have any findings or sentences announced as soon as determined;
- The right against compulsory self-incrimination;
- The right against double jeopardy;

- Voting by members of the military commission by secret written ballot;

- Treatment and discipline during confinement the same as afforded to prisoners in U.S. domestic courts;
- The right to review the full factual record by the convening authority; and
- The right to at least two appeals, including to a Federal Article III appellate court.

I submit, Mr. Speaker, that none of the people who have been beheaded by terrorists had any of those rights.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to begin by inserting the New York Times editorial of September 28 entitled “Rushing Off a Cliff.”

RUSHING OFF A CLIFF

Here’s what happens when this irresponsible Congress railroad a profoundly important bill to serve the mindless politics of a midterm election. Administration officials use Republicans’ fear of losing their majority to push through glibly worded bills that will do the same to our 217-year-old nation of laws—while actually doing nothing to protect the nation from terrorists. Democrats betray their principles to avoid last-minute attack ads. Our democracy is the big loser.

The bill would limit appeals and bar legal action after 911. Rights that are defined in a retrograde way that covers only forced or coerced activity, and not torture or violations of the Geneva Conventions, to authorize what normal people consider torture, and to deny justice to hundreds of men captured in error. There is a right to service of charges sufficiently in advance of trial to prepare a defense.

The right to a public trial except for national security issues or physical safety issues;
- The right to have any findings or sentences announced as soon as determined;
- The right against compulsory self-incrimination;
- The right against double jeopardy;
- The defense of lack of mental responsibility;
- Voting by members of the military commission by secret written ballot;
- Prohibition against unlawful command influence toward members of the commission, counsel or military judge;
- Two-thirds vote of members required for conviction and three-quarters vote required for sentence of life or over ten years, and unanimous verdict required for the death penalty;
- Verbatim authenticated record of trial;
- Cruel or unusual punishments are prohibited;
- Treatment and discipline during confinement the same as afforded to prisoners in U.S. domestic courts;
- The right to review the full factual record by the convening authority; and
- The right to at least two appeals, including to a Federal Article III appellate court.

I submit, Mr. Speaker, that none of the people who have been beheaded by terrorists had any of those rights.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.
on to tell you that he can be subjected to a combatant status review tribunal or any other tribunal established under the authority of the President or the Secretary of Defense. That’s the first page.

Then I get to my esteemed chairman of the committee that the United States has never held that people can have habeas rights. Well, as my colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER), points out, we are talking about being picked up and held potentially indefinitely from Chicago. You don’t have to be outside of the U.S. That’s the problem. This is the most drastic piece of legislation that has ever come before the House of Representatives dealing with the writ of habeas corpus.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER).

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, the radical nature of this bill is that, as the gentleman from Michigan said, anybody picked up in Chicago can be subject to this bill. The President can determine unilaterally, look at paragraph 1 on page 3, that someone is an unlawful enemy combatant, or they can be held before a tribunal, paragraph 2 on page 3, to decide if he is an enemy combatant. But you don’t have to have a tribunal.

A little later it says that military tribunals are not subject to the speedy trial rule. So someone could be determined by the executive branch to be an unlawful enemy combatant, someone in America, never have a trial, never go before a combat status review tribunal, never go before a military commission, have none of the rights everybody is talking about, and be held in jail forever. That is wrong.

Secondly, the gentleman who was debating me before said soldiers have never had rights to habeas corpus. Certainly, if you pick up someone on the battlefield in Afghanistan, he shouldn’t have habeas corpus. But if you pick up somebody in Chicago or New York or Los Angeles, who is to say that person is an unlawful enemy combatant? If you pick up somebody in Chicago or New York and say he is a murderer or a rapist and you want to hold him in jail until you can have a trial, you go before a judge and say, here is our evidence. There is some evidence that he is, in fact, a murderer or rapist to justify keeping him in jail.

Under this, though, you say he is an unlawful enemy combatant and that’s that. You never hear his name again. That is against all our traditions. It makes the President a dictator because someone who claims the power to put someone in jail forever, with no hearing, no evidence, and no recourse, is a dictator. And on page 60 of the bill it says that the President shall have jurisdiction to enter habeas corpus, which is simply a request to say show me why you are holding me in jail, or to enter any action saying, hey, you are torturing me, about the condition of confinement. So you can take this person because the President says so, put him in jail, subject him to any torture or whatever, and whatever you write in the last three sentences, because no court can hear it. There is no one to bring the complaint before it. That is wrong and it is unsupportable.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from California, Mr. LUNOGEN, was so moved by the last speech that he rose.

Mr. DANIEL E. LUNOGEN of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for the time.

Mr. Speaker, let me make clear, first of all, the distinguished ranking member of the full committee referred to the first page of the bill, but he needs to go on further, to section 948b subsection (a), which defines the purpose of the military tribunals, where it says: “This chapter establishes procedures governing the use of military commissions to try alien unlawful enemy combatants.” So where initially he referred to the definition of unlawful enemy combatants, this bill refers to “alien” unlawful enemy combatants engaged in hostilities on behalf of the U.S. So you can’t pick up just anybody in the United States.

Section 948a(3) defines an alien as a person who is not a citizen of the United States. Therefore, the language of the bill before us precludes the use of military commissions to try citizens of the U.S.

Second, the limitations on habeas corpus also only apply to alien enemy combatants. By its very terms, section 7 says that “no court, justice, or judge shall have jurisdiction to hear or consider an application for a writ of habeas corpus filed by or on behalf of an alien detained by the United States who has been determined by the United States to have been properly detained...” Therefore, under the expressed terms of the bill, an American citizen will have the unencumbered ability to challenge his or her detention as they have under the Constitution.

So let’s not confuse it. Let’s read all sections of the bill. We are dealing with, as the bill says, “alien unlawful enemy combatants,” those people who are not in uniform, those people who are not following the rules of international law with respect to war, those people who hide behind women and children, those people who use the very fact that they are not identified as “legal combatants” to try to kill and maim Americans around the world.

That is what this tribunal is set up for, to give them more rights than they would have virtually anywhere else and in any other system, as articulated by the chairman of the full committee. So let’s not confuse the facts.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE), a superlative member of the committee.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman. He has waged a powerful argument.

My good friend from California is arguing, if we had taken the time to clarify this bill. Let me tell you what is really in the bill.

First of all, as I continue to acknowledge the existence of the lost lives of our soldiers, the bill does not clarify this whole definition. We have 11,000 non-U.S. citizens serving in the United States Army. We have individuals who are U.S. legal aliens, United States citizens. There is no clarification that they could not be defined as an unlawful enemy combatant. The definition of “alien unlawful enemy combatant.” In some places it is defined in some places it is not.

In addition, the Geneva Conventions is not respected. We have taken this away from the McCain-Warner compromise, and we have destroyed it because instead of the President, not this President, any President, the ability to adjudicate what the Geneva Conventions, how to interpret it, how to utilize it. This is a wrong way to do it. This should have more time. This is not a political opportunity. This is not a campaign speech. These are the lives of our soldiers.

Mr. Speaker, at this time I will insert the Record a letter from admirals and, as well, the 911 families opposing the military tribunal commission.

September 12, 2006.

Senator JOHN WARNER of Virginia, U.S. Senate Committee on Armed Services, Russell Office Building, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Senator CARL LEVIN of Michigan, Ranking Member, U.S. Senate Committee on Armed Services, Russell Office Building, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

We find it necessary yet again to communicate with you about issues arising out of our policies concerning detainees held at Guantanamo Bay. It would appear that each time the U.S. Supreme Court speaks, efforts are made to reverse the decision of the Court. We refer, of course, to the Supreme Court’s Rasul and Hamdan decisions and to the provision in the Administration’s proposed Military Commissions Act of 2006 that would strip the federal courts of jurisdiction over even the pending habeas cases that have been brought by the detainees at Guantanamo to challenge the basis for their detention. We urge you to reject any such habeas-stripping provision.

As we have argued and agreed since 9/11, it is necessary for Congress to enact legislation to create military commissions that recognize both the basic notions of due process and the need for specialized rules and procedures to deal with the new paradigm we call the war on terror. This effort must cover those already charged with violating the laws of war and those newly transferred to Guantanamo Bay.

But the military commissions we are now fashioning will have no application to the vast majority of the detainees who have never been charged, and most likely never will be charged. These detainees will not go before any commissions, but will continue to be held in enemy combatant facilities critical to these detainees, who have not been charged with any crime, that Congress not
The letter closes by urging members of Congress to “reject the Administration’s ill-conceived proposals which will make us both less safe and less proud as a nation.”

SEPTEMBER 14, 2006.

DEAR SENATOR: As members of families who lost loved ones in the 9/11 attacks, we are writing to express our deep concern over the provisions of the Administration’s proposed Military Commissions Act of 2006.

There are those who would like to portray the legislation as a choice between supporting the rights of terrorists and keeping the United States safe. We reject this argument. We believe that torture and cruel treatment which honor our values and our international commitments makes us safer and is the smarter strategy.

We do not believe that the United States should criminalize cruel and inhuman interrogations. The Geneva Convention rules against brutal interrogations have long had the strong support of the U.S. because they protect our citizens. We should not be sending a message to the world that we now believe that torture and cruel treatment is sometimes acceptable. Moreover, the Administration’s own representatives at the Pentagon have strongly affirmed in just the last few days that torture and abuse do not produce reliable information.

We believe that we must have policies that reflect what is best in the United States rather than compromising our values out of fear. As John McCain has said, “This is not about who the terrorists are, this is about who we are.” We urge you to reject the Administration’s ill-conceived proposals which will make us both less safe and less proud as a nation.

Sincerely,

MARILYN ROSENTHAL, NICHOLAS H. RUTH, ADELE WOLFE, MOLLIE KLEINBERG, BONNIE GREENE, JOHN LEBLANC, ANDREA LEBLANC, RYAN AMUNDSON, BARRY AMUNDSON, COLLEEN KELLY, TERRY KAY, ROBERTA MITCHELL, ROCKY KOREMATSU, HARRIS, DAVID POTORTI, DONNA MARSH O’CONNOR, KJELL YOUNGRN, BLAKE ALLISON, TIA KNIME, JENNIFER GICK, LORIE VAN AKEN, MINDY KLEINBERG, ANTHONY AVERSANO, PAULA SHAPIRO, VALERIE LUCZNIKOWSKA, LLOYD GICK, JAMES AND PATRICIA PERRY, ANNE M. MCKINNIER, MARION KINME, ALISSA ROSENBERG-TORRES, KELLY CAMPELL, BRUCE WALLACE, JOHN M. LEINUNG, KRISTEN BREITWEISER, PATRICIA CASAZZA, MICHAEL CASAZZA, LORETTA J. FILIPOV, JOAN GICK

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 seconds to my colleague from Oregon (Mr. Wu).

Mr. WU. Mr. Speaker, we do a grave injustice today because this statute applies to American citizens as well as everybody else.

Fred Korematsu was a U.S. citizen. He was picked up on a U.S. street. And we issued an apology years later.

If we pass this bill today, some future Congress, long after we are out of office, long after we are dead, some future Congress will be issuing an apology.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, this has been an exceedingly interesting discussion here today. I only close by reminding the distinguished member of the Judiciary Committee from California that in the opening parts of this law, this bill, there is no word “alien” anywhere in it. It is referring to an unlawful enemy combatant. An unlawful enemy combatant could be an American.

I oppose this legislation, finally, because it endangers our troops because we are lowering the standards set forth in the Geneva Conventions by allowing the President to unilaterally interpret the conventions and that can be used against our own troops. Don’t endanger our own troops.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, the one issue that really has not come up in this debate, and that is the immunity that is given in this bill to the people who are interrogating the enemy combatants.
We need to pass this bill so that interrogations can start up again because without the immunity, anybody who is hired by the United States Government to try to find out whom they are planning on blowing up next would be subject to a lawsuit that would be filed by some attorney who would claim that he was representing the public interest.

This is a protection bill for the interrogators. It is something that is needed, and that is another reason why it ought to pass.

Mr. GOVERNOR. Mr. Speaker, I will not take up any more time speaking about why I oppose this bill. I spoke at length during the House debate, and nothing has changed over the past 48 hours to make me believe that undermining our history, values and constitutional commitment to human rights, civil rights, the rule of law, due process and judicial review is the right thing to do.

Instead, I would like to submit for the RECORD the views of others in the face of this monumental mistake this Congress is making in submitting to the demands of an imperial White House.

I ask unanimous consent to submit into the RECORD the following materials:

RESOLUTION CONDEMNING TORTURE

CMSM condemns torture in all its forms regardless of putative justification, and encourages support and help for victims of torture throughout the world, but especially in areas under the control of the United States Government.

Rationale: Jesus death and resurrection reveal the value of every life being in God’s eyes. (Cf. Mt 5:44–48; 10:29–31) Torture is a denial of that value. The Catholic Church condemned torture and expressed its respect for the person, and for human dignity.” and Gaudium et Spes of the Second Vatican Council (#27) characterizes as criminal “all violations of the integrity of the human person, such as mutilation, physical and mental torture, undue psychological pressures,” including them in a list that also contains “all offenses against life itself, such as murder, genocide, abortion, euthanasia and willful suicide.”

Resolution: Given the universal condemnation and the universal and continuous support for the person and for human dignity, the Conference of Major Superiors of Men resolves:

To condemn unequivocally any use of torture by agents of any government for any reason;

To encourage its constituencies to use their resources of education, preaching and advocacy to eliminate use of torture as contrary to both natural law and human dignity, and in fundamental opposition to God’s salvific love for humanity;

To encourage its constituencies to work in advocacy for the abolition of torture, and to offer help and support to victims of torture.

The Justice and Peace office will be responsible for such a program.

Additional Facts/Related Circumstances:

Background: “The torturer has become like the pirate and slave trader before him hostis humani generis, an enemy of all mankind.” So proclaimed the US Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in 1980 [Filartiga v. Pena-Irala, 806 F. 2d 157 (2nd Cir. 1980)]. In his 1958 Chicago address to the Radio and Television News Directors Association, Edward R. Murrow said, “Not every story has a happy ending, and one of the unhappiest is the story of torture.”

For the purposes of this Convention, the term “torture” means any act by which severe pain or suffering is intentionally inflicted on a person for such purposes as obtaining from him or a third person information or a confession, punishing him for what he has done or is suspected of having committed, or intimidating or coercing him or a third person, or for any reason based on discrimination of any kind, when such pain or suffering is inflicted by or at the instigation of or with the consent or acquiescence of a public official or other person acting in an official capacity.

The United States has a long history of opposition to the use of torture, and to offer help and support for victims of torture and other acts of inhumane treatment of persons in U.S. custody. Tragically, our nation’s record has been marred by reported instances of abusive treatment of enemy combatants held in military prisons in Iraq, Afghanistan and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. (The complete document is available at www.usccb.org/sdwp/international/ senateletterretorture100405.pdf.)

The CMSM Executive Committee issued a statement in May of 2004 that included the following:

The Executive Committee of the Conference of Major Superiors of Men is greatly disturbed by the revelations of torture and abuse of U.S. military personnel. We have consistently called for U.S. troops to abide by international standards and laws that govern the treatment of detainees and have opposed efforts that would allow the U.S. to abridge or suffer the jurisdiction of international monitoring organizations such as the Red Cross, the Red Crescent, Amnesty International have had at detention centers in Guantanamo Bay, Afghanistan and Iraq. Reports by independent organizations and military personnel, combined with the photographs and the admission by Administrations officials of the abuses indicate that the U.S. military personnel and others contracted by the U.S. to work in the detention centers must be monitored to protect the rights and dignity of detainees.

As people of faith and as leaders of the Catholic congregations of the nearly 23,000 brothers and priests in the United States we very loudly and unequivocally condemn the torture of all human beings, especially those who represent our nation are perpetrating these abuses. We believe that as a nation we stand for the protection of human rights and uphold the dignity of all peoples regardless of their ethnic or religious background and we hold our national and military leaders responsible for the conditions that made these abuses possible not only, but who refused to acknowledge them even after they knew of the abuses.

other legal justifications have been provided for conduct we consider to be indisputably illegal under both U.S. and international law. Against this background of repeated legal contortions intended to justify and permit torture and abuse—some abandoned, some apparently still in effect—it is absolutely essential that the Congress be clear that these kinds of abusive interrogation techniques are illegal and covered by the War Crimes Act. We urge you to leave no shred of doubt on these crucial issues by naming specific techniques and by evidencing your belief that violations of the War Crimes Act or, at a minimum, creating a legislative record that these techniques are prohibited.

We oppose the provisions in the bill that strip individuals who are detained by the United States of the ability to challenge their detentions are not grounded in tort deprivations of liberty and to ensure that executive detentions are not grounded in tort or other abuse. Likewise, we are deeply concerned about the provisions that permit the use of evidence obtained through coercion.

This letter is not intended to offer a comprehensive catalogue of the provisions in the proposed compromise legislation which are of great concern. We appreciate the efforts you have made to ensure that abuses like interrogations cannot take place and to provide fair judicial procedures for detainees. However, we do not believe that the proposed compromise is fit to have satisfied those important goals and feel strongly that these issues must be resolved.

RUSHING OFF A CLIFF

Here’s what happens when this irresponsible president uses Congress as a profoundly important bill to serve the minute political advantage and mid-term election: The Bush administration uses Republicans’ fear of losing their majority to push through a ghastly idea: that antiterrorism that will make American troops less safe and do lasting damage to our 217-year-old nation of laws—while actually doing nothing to protect the nation from terrorists. Democrats betray their principles to avoid last-minute attack ads. Our democracy is the big loser.

Republicans say Congress must act right now to create procedures for charging and trying terrorists—because the men accused of plotting the 9/11 attacks are available for trial. They are right. These defendants could have been tried and convicted long ago, but President Bush chose not to. He held them in illegal detention, had them questioned in ways that will make real trials very hard, and invented a transparently illegal system of kangaroo courts to convict them.

It was only after the Supreme Court issued the inevitable ruling striking down Mr. Bush’s shadow penal system that he adopted his tone of urgency. It serves a cynical goal: Republicans think they have won this game, this fall, not by passing a good law but by forcing Democrats to vote against a bad one so they could be made to look soft on terrorism.

Last week, the White House and three Republican senators announced a terrible deal on the呵呵公务辞件. Bush most of what he wanted, including a blanket waiver for crimes Americans may have committed in the service of his antiterrorism policies. Cheney and his willing lawmakers rewrote the rest of the measure so that it would give Mr. Bush the power to jail pretty much anyone he wants for as long as he wants without charging them, to unilaterally reinterpret the Geneva Conventions, to authorize what normal people consider torture, and to deny justice to the Geneva Conventions, in particular, saying that the president’s position are seniors. Principle is triumphing over partisanship. Let’s hope the debate will end with the United States’ embracing a position that will allow America to reclaim the moral high ground.

The administration’s policy has undergone a sea change. The executive branch has abandoned the idea that “torture” is that, anyone so defined by the White House or Defense Department—may be locked up indefinitely without ever being charged that secret courts do not and that congressional input or oversight is unnecessary and that international laws and treaties are irrelevant. The Geneva Conventions in particular, saying that the president’s position are seniors. Principle is triumphing over partisanship. Let’s hope the debate will end with the United States’ embracing a position that will allow America to reclaim the moral high ground.

but the real aim appears to be to let CIA employees engage in “rough” interrogations without fear of legal sanctions.

Powell and the senators argue that the guidelines are too strict and that a kind of calculated ambiguity that deters U.S. interrogators from testing the limits. “Clarifying” our treaty obligations will be seen by others as sending the wrong signal. This would be the wrong posture to take under international law? And take action under international law?

Part of the war on terror is an ideological battle, as Senator Graham, a former staff judge advocate in the Air National Guard, he's right. No other nation has sought to narrow the Geneva Conventions’ scope by “clarifying” them. Does the United States want to be the first? Why not retain the status quo and then consult with other countries that are also grappling with such suspects and aim at a genuinely “common” clarification of the Conventions? If we “clarify” the Conventions to allow, say, waterboarding and other “rough” procedures, what happens to a CIA operative who is captured in a foreign country? Can that country “clarify” the Conventions and torture him? If it does, would the United States have any basis to condemn it and take action under international law?

Powell made another argument to me. “Part of the war on terror is an ideological battle, and part of that battle is sending the right signal to the world.” The administration seems blind to this political reality. After Guantánamo, Abu Ghraib, Haditha and more, America is perceived abroad as the nation that showed a basic decency. Qubbling with the Geneva Conventions is the wrong signal, by the wrong administration, at the wrong time.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, the Senate-passed bill before us today is identical to H.R. 6166. I would not support that bill when the House considered it earlier this week, and nothing that has happened since that has caused me to change my view that it should not be enacted. So, I must continue to oppose it.

As I said earlier, I agree that Congress should establish clear statutory authority for detaining unlawful enemy combatants and using military tribunals to try them. In fact, I thought this should have been done long ago because I took seriously the warnings of legal experts who said the system established by President Bush's unilateral Executive Order lacked departed too far from America's fundamental legal traditions to be immune from serious legal challenges.

That is why for several years I have cosponsored bills to replace that Executive Order with a sound statute that would allow prosecutions to proceed without the same vulnerability to challenge.

Unfortunately, until recently neither the president nor the Republican leadership thought that a need for Congress to act—the president preferred to insist on unilateral assertions of executive authority, and the leadership was content with an indolent abdication of Congressional authority and responsibility.

There is a danger that the Supreme Court put an end to that approach with its decision in the case of Hamdan v. Rumsfeld, which struck down the system established by the Executive Order—just what many of us had seen coming, and which we had sought to avoid through legislation. So, I must vote on this bill only because the Supreme Court has forced the Administration to do what it should have done much sooner—come to Congress for legislation. And the voting is occurring this week, under rushed procedures that do not permit consideration of any changes, because, above all, the Republicans have decided they need to claim a legislative victory when they go home to campaign, to help take voters' minds off the Administration's missteps and their own failures. And there is the job that has to be done before the election than to do it right. And, regrettably, I remain convinced that this bill fails that test.

I remain concerned about the bill’s specific provisions. But just as serious are my concerns about what the bill does not say. In particular, I am concerned about the lack of any provisions to prevent indefinite detentions of American citizens who have never left the United States.

I cannot support any legislation intended to give the president—any president, of any party authority to throw an American citizen into prison without what the Supreme Court has described as “a meaningful opportunity to contest the factual basis for that detention before a neutral and independent decision maker” that would be beyond the scope of military tribunals. In an analysis published before the earlier vote here in the House—which I am attaching for the benefit of our colleagues—Professor Akerman notes: “The legislation . . . authorizes the president to seize American citizens as enemy combatants, even if they have never left the United States. And once thrown into military prison, they cannot expect a trial by their peers or any other of the normal protections of the Bill of Rights. . . . This grants the president enormous power over citizens and legal residents. They can be designated as enemy combatants if they have contributed money to a Middle Eastern charity, and they can be held indefinitely in a military prison. . . . What is worse, if the federal courts support his initial detention decision, ordinary Americans would be required to defend themselves before a military tribunal without the constitutional guarantees provided in criminal trials.”

And, as Professor Akerman notes: “We are not dealing with hypothetical abuses. The president has already subjected a citizen to military confinement. Consider the case of Jose Padilla. A few months after 9/11, he was seized by the Bush administration as an ‘enemy combatant’ upon his arrival at Chicago’s O’Hare Airport. He was wearing civilian clothes and had no weapons. Despite his American citizenship, he was held for more than three years in a military brig, without any chance to challenge his detention before a military or civilian tribunal. After a Federal appellate court upheld the president’s extraordinary detention, the Supreme Court refused to hear the case, handing the administration’s lawyers a terrible precedent. . . .”

“But the bill also reinforces the presidential authority over citizens and ‘enemy combatants’ that the Supreme Court has already struck down as unconstitutional. The legislation . . . authorizes the president to seize American citizens as enemy combatants, even if they have never left the United States. And once thrown into military prison, they cannot expect a trial by their peers or any other of the normal protections of the Bill of Rights.”

The dangerous compromise not only authorizes the president to seize American citizens as enemy combatants and subject him to military justice. Congress is poised to authorize this presidential overreach. Under existing constitutional doctrine, this show of explicit congressional support would be a key factor that the Supreme Court would consider in assessing the limits of presidential authority. I do not have the legal expertise to say that Professor Akerman is completely right in this analysis. But I cannot in good conscience vote for this bill, and I urge my colleagues to vote no also.

And, as I said when the House first considered this bill, it is clear that several of its provisions raise enough legal questions that military lawyers say there is a good chance the Supreme Court will rule it unconstitutional.

They may or may not be right about that, but their views deserve to be taken seriously—not only because we in Congress have sworn to uphold the Constitution but also because if our goal truly is to avoid unnecessary delays in bringing terrorists to justice, we need to take care to craft legislation that can and will operate soon, not only after prolonged legal challenges.

Finally, I remain concerned that the bill gives the president the authority to “interpret and apply” obligations under the Geneva Conventions. Instead of clearly banning abuse and torture, the bill leaves in question whether or not we are authorizing the Executive Branch to carry out some of the very things the Geneva Conventions were designed to ban.

I cannot forget or discount the words of RADM Bruce MacDonald, the Navy's Judge Advocate General, who told the Armed Services Committee: “I go back to the reciprocity issue that we raised earlier, that I would be very concerned about other nations looking in on the United States and making a determination that, if it's good enough for the United States, it's good enough for us, and perhaps doing a lot of damage and harm internationally if one of our service men or women were taken and held as a detainee.”

I share that concern, and could not in good conscience support legislation that could put our men and women in uniform at risk.

Mr. Speaker, as I said earlier, establishing a system of military tribunals to bring to trial some of the worst terrorists in the world shouldn't be a partisan matter. It also should not be handled in a rush, without adequate care to get it right. Unfortunately, that has been the process used to develop this legislation and the result is a measure that I think has too many flaws to deserve enactment as it stands.

So, as I said earlier, I cannot support it.

residents. They can be designated as enemy combatants if they have contributed money to a Middle Eastern charity, and they can be held indefinitely in a military prison.

Not now. The bill calls even this limitation into question. What is worse, if the federal courts support the president's initial detention decision, ordinary Americans who wanted to defend themselves before a military tribunal without the constitutional guarantees provided in criminal trials.

Legal residents who are not citizens are treated even more harshly. The bill entirely cuts off their access to federal habeas corpus, leaving them at the mercy of the president's suspicions.

We are not dealing with hypothetical abuses. The president has already subjected a citizen to military confinement. Consider the case of Jose Padilla. A few months after 9/11, he was seized by the Bush administration as an "enemy combatant" upon his arrival at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. He was wearing civilian clothes and had no weapons. Despite his American citizenship, he was held for more than three years without trial, without any chance to challenge his detention before a military or civilian tribunal. After a federal appellate court upheld the president's extraordinary actions in the Padilla case, the Supreme Court refused to hear the case, handing the administration's lawyers a terrible precedent.

The new bill, if passed, would further entrench this precedent. At the very least, it would encourage the Supreme Court to uphold mass detentions without the semblance of judicial review.

But the bill also reinforces the presidential claims, made in the Padilla case, that the commander in chief has the right to desist and extend his wartime powers. At the very least, it would allow the Supreme Court to draw an invidious distinction between citizens and legal residents. There are tens of millions of legal residents living in the United States, and the bill encourages the justices to uphold mass detentions without the semblance of judicial review.

The bill further undermines our commitment to constitutional protection this provides, as noted in his letter to Senator McCain, former U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell, that allowing the President to interpret the Geneva Convention would expose U.S. soldiers to more dangers. Colin Powell emphatically opposed this provision. S. 3930 also violates separation of powers and the constitutional protection this provides, by stripping the federal court of its habeas corpus review. The independence of the judiciary is one of the fundamental principles on which this democracy is built. Under this bill, the normal appeals process would be available to the detainees, but this is a far-fetched piece of legislation that has the potential to impact the very foundation of civil liberties and fundamental freedoms on which this country is built. It will impact the American citizen's freedom of speech, freedom of association and the press.

If the U.S. President is allowed to reinterpret and apply an international treaty, what would stop other nations from doing the same? Additionally, as noted in his letter to Senator McCain, former U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell, that allowing the President to interpret the Geneva Convention would expose U.S. soldiers to more dangers. Colin Powell emphatically opposed this provision.

Terrorists must be brought to justice and we must act accordingly to secure our country and our citizens. However, these same goals can be achieved in a constitutional manner. I urge my colleagues to oppose this unworthy bill.

Mr. MICHAUD. Mr. Speaker, the final language for the bill was brought to the floor quickly and without thorough review by the House. I believe that it is important to have a system to try accused terrorists for their war crimes in a quick and fair way. In my original review of the bill, I believed that it took steps to protect fundamental human rights, prevent torture and provide for a fair legal process.

As I have heard from more and more legal experts and from my constituents, it is clear that the bill does not create a system that meets our high American standards for a fair trial and human rights.

Make no mistake; I believe that convicted terrorists must be punished for their war crimes. But it must be done in such a way that the American people are confident that our values are upheld. I do not believe that this bill makes this clear to the American people or to the international community that looks to us as a place of human rights and fairness.

Some people may question me for changing my vote. I believe that elected officials must have the strength to recognize new information and to take it into account to make the right decision. I wish President Bush would do the same thing with our policies in Iraq.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to House Resolution 1054, the Senate bill is considered read and the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the third reading of the Senate bill.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, and was read the third time.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 5122, JOHN WARNER NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007

Mr. HUNTER of California (during consideration of H. Res. 1053) submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 5122) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2007 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes:

WAIVING REQUIREMENT OF CLAUSE 6(a) OF RULE XIII WITH RESPECT TO CONSIDERATION OF THE H.R. 5122, JOHN WARNER NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1053 and ask for its immediate consideration.
Resolved, That the requirement of clause 6(a) of rule XIII for a two-thirds vote to consider a report from the Committee of Ways and Means on the same day it is presented to the House is waived with respect to any resolution reported on the legislative day of September 29, 2006.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COLE) is recognized for 1 hour.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members be given 5 days to revise and extend their remarks and insert tabular and extraneous material into the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, on Thursday night the Rules Committee met and reported a rule for consideration of resolutions reported by the Rules Committee on the same day. The rule waives clause 6(a) of rule XIII and applies a special waiver to any resolutions reported this legislative day.

Mr. Speaker, it is of the utmost importance for the House to pass this rule and move the debate along so that important legislation may be considered before the House adjourns. Legislation that may be considered under this same-day rule may include the fiscal year 2007 National Defense Authorization Act and the Port Security Act and other measures brought to the floor through a special rule reported by the Committee on Homeland Security. This rule will provide the House the flexibility and ability to move the remaining legislation in a timely and efficient manner so that we can adjourn this legislative day.

To that end, Mr. Speaker, I urge support of the rule and the underlying bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Oklahoma for yielding me the customary 30 minutes, and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this martial law rule.

It is not unusual for a rush of bills, especially conference reports, to come to the House floor in the final hours before a recess or a final adjournment no matter who holds the majority. We are used to seeing that. But the manner in which this House has conducted business this week should be a matter of grave concern to all Members no matter what side of the aisle they sit on.

Closed rules have become a norm in this Chamber. Bills that have not gone through committee hearings, markup, or open debate or with a chance for Members to offer and debate thoughtful amendments, bills that magically appear out of thin air with the Republican House and the Senate to vote “yes” on far-reaching legislation that nobody has actually read.

Mr. Speaker, we cannot continue to operate the United States House of Representatives in such a fashion.

It demeans our democracy. It is bad enough that this House is passing bills that will be signed into law that undermine our system of justice and due process both here at home and internationally. But the very way in which this House has conducted legislation this week is an affront to the Democratic process.

I know that we all want to return home to our districts to meet with our constituents and prepare for the upcoming elections, but I genuinely worry about how we are living up to our oaths of office when I look at how the Republican leadership shut down debate on some of the most significant issues facing our country.

Mr. Speaker, there are only a few hours left before Congress adjourns to go home. After the most do-nothing Congress in the history of the country, Republican leadership continues to ignore critical issues that are absolutely important to the American people in a rush to get out of Washington.

Some of us, Mr. Speaker, have spoken in the past about the culture of corruption that exists in this institution; and it is more than just about the antics of Mr. DeLay and Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Abramoff. This culture of corruption that we talk about is also about a corruption of the process that the Republican-controlled Congress to become a place where trivial issues get debated passionately and important ones not at all. It is a process where rank and file Members of both parties, not just Democrats but Republicans, routinely get locked out of the ability to offer amendments and to be heard on the floor of the people’s House.

Now, Mr. Speaker, when gas prices went sky high, President Bush and the Republican-controlled Congress gave tax breaks to the oil companies. They did not give us an opportunity to debate and to vote on a real energy bill that would provide funding for alternative sources of renewable energy. But that is how they responded to that crisis.

When our troops in Iraq and Afghanistan needed body armor, we got “mission accomplished”. Mr. Speaker, the headlines of the last week alone should show not only how messed up things are in Iraq but how this administration has deceived American people and deceived this Congress.

And what has been the response of Congress over these many months? Has it been to hold the administration accountable? Has it been to conduct proper oversight?

No. It has been a rubber stamp. Just let things go on as they are. Stay the course, which has become code for stay forever. With American workers crying out for an increase in the minimum wage, President Bush and the Republican-controlled Congress forced through an estate tax cut benefiting only the wealthiest people in this country.

Mr. Speaker, the Federal minimum wage is at $5.15 an hour. $5.15 an hour. $5.15 an hour. Now, during those same 9 years, this Congress has given itself pay increases of $31,600. I mean, we have the time. We have the time to give ourselves a pay raise in this body, but we do not have the time to give the American workers a pay raise? $5.15 an hour is what the current Federal minimum wage is.

And would you not think that there would be a sense of urgency in this House of Representatives to not adjourn until we have a clean up or down vote on the minimum wage? No, that is not part of why we have a martial law rule here today. They are not doing this so they can bring up the Federal minimum wage, an increase in the Federal minimum wage. That is not what this is about.

Mr. Speaker, with the cost of college tuition skyrocketing and student aid not meeting the need, President Bush and the Republican-controlled Congress instead give us a bill congratulating Little League teams. We have done nothing in this Congress to address the real concern and the real need out there by so many American families to help pay for the cost of a college education.

And as thousands of our senior citizens fall into the doughnut hole of the Medicare Prescription Drug Plan, President Bush and the Republican-controlled Congress answered their pleas for help by naming more post offices. That is not paying for the cost of medical care.

And as Americans have poured into the streets and demanded an increase in the Federal minimum wage, President Bush and the Republican-controlled Congress answered their demands for a living wage by giving us a minimum wage that does not do what it is supposed to do.

And for our veterans who hold the majority and have said not only how messed up things are in Iraq but how this administration has deceived American people and deceived this Congress.

It is time for a new direction; and I hope that my colleagues will indicate their frustration with the way this House has been run and demonstrate their dismay at the lack of accomplishment of this Congress by voting “no” on this militarist war rule.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Presiding Officer of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to just disagree with my good friend from Massachusetts. In his characterization of the accomplishments of this Congress, as a matter of fact, if you start ticking off the record, it is pretty impressive. Bankruptcy reform, class action lawsuit reform, a transportation bill that put more money into our infrastructure than any transportation bill in American history. Significant energy legislation passed last year, dealing with the entitlement spending problem, an across-the-board budget cut.

All of those are genuine accomplishments. Pension reform, bill after bill, after bill. Some of them bipartisan, some of them, frankly, passed without the cooperation of our friends.

And, frankly, to criticize us for minimum wage, when in this House we have voted on and passed the minimum wage, which was passed, along with it, a reform of the death tax and tax extender bills that are important, I think is somewhat disingenuous.

That legislation passed with a majority vote in this floor; and, frankly, a majority of that body favored that legislation. Our friends on the other side of the aisle used their friends on the other side of the rotunda to route a bill through the floor. Even when the majority of the United States Senate agrees with the will of this House, as was the case with the minimum wage, with ANWR, and another piece of legislation with the tax extenders, with reform of the death tax, an obstructionist minority of Democrats on the other side of the aisle, a bipartisan majority from actually reaching the magic 60 vote level that is required in moving legislation forward.

We are not responsible for that. Frankly, I am proud of what we have moved through the floor here. I also want to disagree with my good friend on the Medicare measure that he discussed in his remarks. Quite frankly, it is something that I think our good friends on the other side of the aisle. Pension reform, bill after bill that they did not support. It was the largest expansion of spending for senior citizens and entitlement spending since 1965. Since 1965.

Now the argument that the Democrats advanced that night, and I was here, was it is not enough. They were not willing to vote for something that was the largest increase in almost 40 years. It simply was not enough. And I think now that tens of thousands of seniors are getting health care that in the past they were not able to get, and that is why on the other side they had nothing to do with that accomplishment, puts them in the position where they feel like they have to take away from the achievement that they could have been part of but rejected the opportunity to participate in.

Finally, let me just conclude my observation that there are only two times when we get criticized from the other side. One is when we do something and when we do not.

Day after day, and particularly morning after morning this week, we have heard demands from the floor or from the other side that we have up or down votes on issue after issue. Now when we are bringing important issues for up or down votes, issues that in many cases have been dealt with for months through the committee process, we are dealing with conference reports or providing an up or down opportunity, we are criticized for that. So I suspect we are going to be criticized regardless of what we do.

When I am pleased with is the record of accomplishment that this Congress has to offer to the American people in issue after issue. My only regret is that, frankly, our friends on the other side of the aisle have so often chosen to obstruct in the way of giving their personal opinion,constructively in this process.

I hope that that changes ahead. Frankly, there have been times when it has been different on this floor. I would hold the pension reform bill out as an example of that. I would also point out on things like the PATRIOT Act, where we had 40 odd of our friends from the other side participating; tort reform, where 70 odd of our friends participated in the process. There have been many instances of bipartisan reform cooperation. Unfortunately, in my opinion, it has diminished as we have moved forward in the Congress and moved closer to November. I hope on the other side of November that will change. But I, for one, am very proud of this Congress and what it has accomplished; and I look forward to working with our friends on the other side of the aisle so we can accomplish more in the months that remain in this Congress and, frankly, in the next one.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I appreciate my friend from Oklahoma, but when I go home, you know, I have a lot of seniors telling me that they have hit that doughnut hole in the prescription drug bill. They do not know what to do about it. I have a lot of my senior citizens say to me why we would give the Federal Government the ability to negotiate lower drug prices for our senior citizens? What is so radical about that?

I mean, that is one of those best-business-type practices. Why cannot we allow our Government to negotiate lower drug prices for our senior citizens? The reason why is because the people who have funded the Republican National Committee and the campaigns, the pharmaceutical industries, do not want that.

There are people asking me all of the time, you know, why has this Congress not implemented the $11 Commission not to help our country safer? You know, a nonpartisan commission that has set forth an agenda that I think almost everybody agrees with, and yet we cannot implement those recommendations.

The minimum wage. You play politics with the minimum wage. If you cared about the workers of this country who are earning a minimum wage, then you would bring up a minimum wage that would pass. But, no, in order to help low-income workers, you have got to help the richest people in this country. You want to play politics with that issue.

The minimum wage has been stuck at $5.15 an hour for years. You do not have the time to give these workers an increase, but yet we can all give ourselves a pay increase. No wonder why the American people are so fed up with this Congress.

On student aid, students returning to college continue to confront skyrocketing tuition costs; and yet the Republican Congress made it harder to pay for college by cutting $12 billion in student aid. Congress needs to pass and approve the Labor-HHS appropriations bill that restores the massive cuts in college tuition and expands the size and availability of Pell Grants.
You know, why cannot we focus on that? Pass an energy plan that decreases our dependence on foreign oil. Your energy law, you know, written in secret by the Cheney task force and Big Oil and energy lobbyists, gives billions of special interest giveaways to oil and gas companies that are enjoying record profits.

I mean, yeah, you passed some things but things that really do not make a difference to the average working person out there. So you can be proud of your record in this Congress. But I want to tell you, there is a reason why only 25 percent of the American people approve of the way that this Congress has handled its job.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) to file a conference report.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I am going to try to submit a conference report. I just wanted to say that this conference report is largely the product of Mr. Bob Cover, who after many, many years is leaving the Office of Legislative Counsel. We appreciate his great service to our country.

I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to take a moment to respond to my good friend from Massachusetts. We simply, I guess, see the world differently. The reality is most of the legislation that comes to this floor that passes is bipartisan, passes with at least a bipartisan vote. It is my friends on the other side who so often find themselves in lonely partisan isolation, less frequent on this side of the aisle.

Again, I could go issue after issue, whether it be tax reform, the TRIO Act, bankruptcy reform, the transportation bill, defense bills, there are overwhelming bipartisan votes.

Frankly, I think our friends at this point are more interested in problems than solutions. They simply do not want to run on them. They want to create the impression that the Congress has been neither productive and is overly partisan. That is something we are going to have to agree to disagree on.

I also want to again remind my friend, on the Medicare bill, it is this side of the aisle that provided tens of millions of seniors with prescription drug coverage for the first time ever, and I think if my friend checked the polling reports or checked the rates of satisfaction he would find that it is very, very high. I personally think our friends are disappointed in themselves for not having participated, not having worked with us.

Many times our friends want to negotiate, but they also tell us what is non-negotiable before we sit down to negotiate. They certainly did that during the Medicare situation. They certainly did that when the administration wanted to discuss Social Security earlier last year: these are the things we will not talk about; now, let us sit down and talk. That is not a negotiation in my opinion.

Finally, I want to remind my friends, when they talk on education spending, I would be delighted to debate the record of this Congress and frankly this administration in the area of funding education. The largest increase in spending for education at all levels has been under the Bush administration, over 50 percent since 2001. It is this party that has delivered time and time again when it came to funding.

Finally, last point, my friend made the point that the minimum wage would pass quote "if." It did pass. This is the point. It came to this floor and passed. It went to the United States Senate. Over half, 57 of our Senators out of a body of 100 of the other body, were in favor of legislation. It was a minority that blocked the passage of the minimum wage and a minority in the United States Senate. I regret that. We still have time before the Congress is finished to deal with that, and I hope that we will do so.

I think there are some that would rather have election issues than have a solution. I think when you offer a compromise solution, we had many Members in this body who did not want to raise the minimum wage, had many Members in this body that did want to raise it. We had also Members that wanted to reform the death tax, those that did not. Most of us on both sides of the aisle were in favor of the extenders. That was actually a very finely crafted compromise that had something for everybody. Our good friends wanted everything for themselves, but nothing for anybody else in terms of the compromise.

I think we put on this floor a fair bill, a bill we can be proud of. I am very proud to be able to go home and say I voted for a minimum wage increase; when it came to the floor of the House, I voted to reform the death tax; and I voted to extend some important economic tax incentives and a reduction. I wish more of the Congress could, but the majority of us actually can go home and say that.

The majority in the United States Senate can say it. It is the obstructionist minority in the other body that, those that did not participate in the compromise with us, but again, there is still time left in the Congress. We will be back here in all likelihood in November and December. I hope that opposition on the other side of the election will lead us to be able to pass significant compromise legislation. Frankly, I trust that it will.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. CORRINE BROWN), a champion for increasing the minimum wage.

Ms. CORRINE BROWN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank you for your leadership on this matter.

The people on the other side of the aisle, Republicans, always want to talk about the Bible, and you know, the Bible said the poor will always be with us. But our jobs as Members of Congress is to help raise the standard.

A few months ago, I voted against raising the minimum wage. Well, why would I vote against raising the minimum wage? Because I do not think there is anybody in this body supports raising the minimum wage more than I do.

Well, it was a poison pill. It was a kiss of death because what the Republicans did, they tied raising the minimum wage to passing an estate tax. I mean, you would put trillions of dollars out of the budget just to help what I call their rich friends.

The Republicans have practiced over and over again what I call reverse Robin Hood, robbing from the poor and working people to give tax breaks to their friends.

So now they put the minimum wage on the floor, but tied it to an estate tax that would have taken thousands and thousands of dollars out of the budget. Yes, we have not dealt with the agenda of the American people.

In closing, the Bible says the poor will always be with us, but our job is to help raise the standard. Give us a clean bill on this floor on minimum wage, and let us vote to help the American people.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I do not want to associate myself with the comments of the gentlewoman from Florida who just spoke. Again, the leadership in this Congress, the majority in this Congress, gave themselves a control the White House, they control the House of Representatives, and they control the United States Senate. So if they really wanted to increase the minimum wage, they would be able to do it, but they do not; and if anybody believes that it is in their heart to try to help the American people, after the elections are all over with, I think you are in for a rude awakening.

For 9 years, Republicans in Congress proudly refused to raise the minimum wage for hardworking Americans, even when their own pay increased by $31,600. This year the Republicans are playing politics with a pay raise for millions of Americans, killing a minimum wage by attaching it to tax cuts for the wealthiest people in this country. This is how they chose to kill it this year, and they have been killing it every year for 9 years. I mean, that is their legacy and we need to change that, and hopefully come November that will change.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes. I want to thank you for your leadership on this matter.

The people on the other side of the aisle, Republicans, always want to talk about the Bible, and you know, the Bible said the poor will always be with us. But our jobs as Members of Congress is to help raise the standard.

A few months ago, I voted against raising the minimum wage. Well, why would I vote against raising the minimum wage? Because I do not think there is anybody in this body supports raising the minimum wage more than I do.

Well, it was a poison pill. It was a kiss of death because what the Republicans did, they tied raising the minimum wage to passing an estate tax. I mean, you would put trillions of dollars out of the budget just to help what I call their rich friends.

The Republicans have practiced over and over again what I call reverse Robin Hood, robbing from the poor and working people to give tax breaks to their friends.

So now they put the minimum wage on the floor, but tied it to an estate tax that would have taken thousands and thousands of dollars out of the budget. Yes, we have not dealt with the agenda of the American people.

pay raise, but they cannot bring themselves to giving hardworking American families a pay raise, those who earn the minimum wage. There is something wrong with that equation.

The bottom line is we work for the people of this country, and the Federal minimum wage has been stuck at $5.15 for 9 years. It is disgraceful; and for 9 years this leadership, this majority has proudly stood to fight against increasing the minimum wage. They should be ashamed of themselves. We give our selves a raise, but we cannot give hardworking American families a pay raise.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY).

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts, and I certainly appreciate his leadership in this matter.

Mr. Speaker, as I hear this discussion today, it is a heartbreaking thing to see this legislation engage in partisan politics because it does not matter to the American people when they cannot afford their medicine, when they cannot afford health insurance anymore.

Health insurance, the cost has doubled under the Bush administration. They come and pretend and posture and try to give the impression that they care about what happens to the American people.

What America fails, we all share in that failure. We all suffer. We all get part of the pain. When we cannot afford to fill our automobiles up with gasoline, we all suffer. When Social Security is threatened, we all suffer. When the minimum wage is not raised to a reasonable level, we all pay the price.

It is very distressing to know that under the Bush administration and the majority Republican Party leadership in this Congress that we have failed on every count. Not only can we not afford our gasoline or our health care or to educate our children because they have raised the cost of student loans, we know what a mess we have in Iraq. We know what a failure our borders have been under the direction of the Bush administration and the Republican majority in this Congress.

It makes me very distressed to know that we are going to leave here this week very likely without doing anything substantive on any of these issues.

The good news is this: we can go in a new direction. We know how to provide health care to the American people. We know how to provide gasoline they can afford. Is it not a sad state of affairs when we think $2.15 gas is a good deal? We know how to provide prescription medicine to our people at a fair and reasonable price that they can afford and they will not need any government help to purchase it.

One of the great Arkansas companies just came out with a new plan this week that demonstrates the power of massive buying. That is Wal-Mart, and they have a new prescription drug plan that they are going to present to America.

All of these are good things.

We know how to get the job done, and the Democrats cannot wait to get started to see that our people do not have to go to bed wondering if they are going to be able to afford their medicine or their gasoline or their light bill, thinking that they are going to work tomorrow and be working for $5.15 an hour, wondering if Social Security is going to be there for them. That should be something that there is no question about.

As I said, the Democrats cannot wait to get started in the right direction. We know how to do these things. We are excited about being part of it, and to continue to play these political games on the floor of this great institution is a sad commentary on the corruption and absolute power that is going on in this country.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I want to just note for the record I am delighted to finally hear something good about Wal-Mart coming from the other side because generally that is not what we hear, but I agree with my good friend. It is a great company and not just a great Arkansas company, but a great American company.

I also want to say, Mr. Speaker, that I am very proud when I had the opportunity to vote to give tens of millions of seniors drug coverage for the first time in the history, I did.

I am very proud that when I had the opportunity on this floor to vote for an increase in the minimum wage, I did.

I am very happy when I had the opportunity to vote for the PATRIOT Act because I had the opportunity to vote to make our country safer and stronger, and I did.

I am very glad when the Patsy Act came up for reauthorization I had the opportunity to vote to make our country safer and stronger, and I did.

I am very glad I had the opportunity to vote for liability reform for medical cases, and when the opportunity came to vote on the floor, I was pleased to do so.

Finally, when I have had on a number of occasions the opportunity to vote for measures that would increase the energy independence of this country, and hold down the escalation of gasoline prices, I have done that. I am very pleased that I had an opportunity to do so.

I think what we are hearing today is unfortunately regret that so many of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle did not vote for those things when they had the opportunity; and rather than simply express their disagreement, they are simply trying to denigrate the work of the Congress, which has been substantive and good for the American people.

So I am pleased with the record of Congress and look forward to going home to talk about it and look forward, again, to the balance of the Congress after the election.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, could I inquire from the gentleman from Oklahoma many more speakers he has on his side.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. I am prepared to close when the gentleman is.

Mr. McGovern. I thank my friend. Mr. Speaker, how much time do we have remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Massachusetts has 10½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Oklahoma has 18 minutes remaining.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I once again want to express my deep disappointment in the lack of accomplishment of this Congress. I mean, this really is a do-nothing Congress, and that is why I think that one would have thought we could have come together in a bipartisan way on, for example, allowing the Federal Government to negotiate cheaper drug prices for our senior citizens that the majority in this House chose not to want to reach out and work with us.

There are issues of energy independence that we could have worked together on that they did not want to work with us on. In fact, as I said in the very beginning, every time we have an idea, every time we want to express a different opinion or want to present a different alternative, we go to the Rules Committee and we are told, no, you are not welcome; no, you are not allowed; no, we are going to shut you out.

That has been the hallmark of this Congress. This is probably the most closed Congress in the history of the country. I don’t remember a time when we have had more closed rules, more restrictive rules than we have in this Congress. I am going to tell you, that is something maybe my friend from Oklahoma wants to take some pride in, but I find that shameful. My expectation is that if the Democrats have the privilege of taking over this Congress, Leader Pelosi has already indicated we will have a whole different tone here, and all ideas, not just Democrat ideas but Republican ideas, will be welcome as well.

That is what the American people expect. Every one of us represents the same amount of people in our congressional districts, yet you would never know that when you go to the Rules Committee and people routinely get shut out.

We debated a bill on torture, we debated a bill on wiretaps dealing with people’s civil liberties, dealing with theideon in this country, yet had some strong opinions, not just Democrats but Republicans, and they were told no, no, no, no, no, you have no right to come to the floor and offer your opinion.

That is not a democracy. That is not the way this place is supposed to run. This is supposed to be a deliberative body, and we are routinely shut out. I think people get sick of that. People don’t want politics as usual. People want a change. They want a new direction. And a new direction is not just in terms of policies but also in terms of tone.

My friends on the other side of the aisle run everything. They run the White House, they run the House of Representatives, and they run the Senate. Yet they cannot get things done. They can’t even work with their own Members in the other body. So I think it is time for a change to get people put in places of power who are going to actually be not only advocates for working families in this country but who will deliver and who are going to reach out a hand and try to work in a bipartisan way. That isn’t what we have here.

There is no bipartisanship here at all. There is none.

So this talk about we want to work together in the future on this issue or that issue, it has not happened in the past, so why should it happen in the future?

Mr. Speaker, before I talk about the previous question, I want to urge Members of this House to vote against this martial law rule. This rule allows the Republican leadership to bring up virtually any piece of legislation with only a few minutes notice to this House. That is just plain wrong. We have no idea what may be coming our way. I mean, they could bring anything up with a few minutes notice. I do not think that is the right way to do business here. I do not think that is the way we should conduct ourselves in the House.

Mr. Speaker, before I get into my previous question speech, my good friend from Virginia (Mr. MORAN) just came to the floor, and I want to yield him 3 1/2 minutes.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. I thank my very good friend from Massachusetts, who has done such a fine job in succeeding Mr. Moakley on the Rules Committee.

Mr. Speaker, we are about to adjourn, and yet we are going to leave the American people without the resources and legislation they need to provide the kind of security that the bipartisan 9/11 Commission said was necessary. Five F’s and 14 D’s on the Commission’s scorecard, yet we can’t act on the 9/11 Commission’s recommendations.

Mr. Speaker, we have the greatest gap in compensation between the rich and the poor that we have ever had since the days of the Great Depression in this country, and yet we can’t even see our way through to raising the minimum wage from $5.15 to $7.25 an hour. Shame on this Congress.

Mr. Speaker, there are hundreds of thousands of senior citizens who are being dumped into the doughnut hole as we speak, who are going to have to pay 100 percent of the cost of their prescription drugs. And do you know that there are hundreds of thousands of additional senior citizens, Mr. Speaker, who are going to be stuck with a penalty as they lost their prescription drug plan for the rest of their lives because we couldn’t fix the Medicare prescription drug program to eliminate the monthly penalty and the prohibition on the government’s ability to negotiate lower prices. We have seen enormous cuts in college tuition assistance imposed by this Congress, a Congress that has refused to provide the kind of size and availability of Pell Grants that would have enabled these young people to get to college and to afford college.

Mr. Speaker, not to provide the resources for our students when we will spend over $400 billion on a misguided mission in Iraq is unbelievable, and yet we are ready to recess.

Mr. Speaker, I will conclude with this. I mentioned four reasons why this Congress shouldn’t even think of recessing, but there is another one. There is billions of dollars that the large oil companies are getting in tax breaks. They have had more revenue than at any time, more than they could have ever imagined. In fact, in the last quarter, they showed $47 billion of profit, all coming out of the pockets of hard-working Americans, and yet we continue to give them tax breaks. Unbelievable.

Mr. Speaker, this Congress has no business recessing, and this martial law rule certainly should be defeated.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, once again, I will be asking Members to vote “no” on the previous question so that I can amend this rule and allow for the immediate consideration of the five bills that we on this side of the aisle believe will really make a difference to our Nation’s working families.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to insert the text of my amendment and extraneous materials immediately prior to the vote on the previous question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, these bills are the same ones I talked about yesterday; the same ones I have talked about today. Every Member of this House of Representatives should support the goal of these important legislative initiatives. My amendment would allow all of them to be considered immediately.

The first bill will implement the long-overdue recommendations of the highly respected bipartisan 9/11 Commission. My friends on the other side like to talk about their great record on national security, yet the 9/11 Commission has given them D’s and F’s for the implementation of their recommendations to better protect our homeland. This would allow that bill to come up immediately.

The second bill would allow us to bring the minimum wage up to $7.25 per hour. It has been stuck at $5.15 an hour for 9 years. You have given your pay raise and pay raise after pay raise. How about giving the American worker a pay raise?

The third bill would let the Secretary of Health and Human Services negotiate for lower prescription drug prices for senior citizens and people with disabilities. Why not? What is wrong with free enterprise? What is wrong with doing what the Veterans Administration has done so effectively? Let us get those prices down lower and keep them low.

The fourth bill would repeal the massive cuts in college tuition assistance opposed by the Congress, and it will expand the size and availability of Pell Grants. People can’t afford to go to college any more, and you have made it more difficult. We say we want a 21st century workforce, that we need to make sure our young people get the education they need, and that means they have to be able to afford to go to college.

And, lastly, the fifth bill will roll back the tax breaks for big oil and invest those savings in alternative fuels to achieve energy independence. We are tired of tax break after tax break after tax break and subsidy after subsidy after subsidy for big oil. It is time to be on the side of working families.

Mr. Speaker, each of these bills has enormous potential to help the quality of life for tens of millions of deserving hard-working Americans and their families. We have one more day before we adjourn for more than a month. Let us use this opportunity not for suspension bills but for something that will really make a difference in people’s lives, to provide people these opportunities by passing this important legislation that will truly help so many.

So vote “no” on the previous question so we can bring up these measures.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. Cole of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I know we are not at Halloween yet, but we must be getting close, because we have to scare the American people on issue after issue after issue.
Frankly, most of the measures that my good friend talked about, if they were brought up, would have to be brought up under the very same closed rules he so often voices his concern about.

We are told this Congress somehow operates differently than the others. I simply want to provide for the information of our body some information provided to me by the Congressional Research Service. Same day rules during the last week of session during the final last Republican Congresses, the Hundred First, the Hundred Second and the Hundred Third, totaled six. Same day rules under the last three Republican Congresses, the Hundred Seventh, the Hundred Eighth and the Hundred Ninth, totaled five. Basically, the body operates about the same way procedurally that it has operated throughout most of its history and certainly throughout its recent history.

I also want to remind my friends who talk about a minimum wage that they had the opportunity to vote for a minimum wage increase. I voted for it. I certainly am happy that I did. I wish more of my friends had. A majority of this body did. Indeed, a bipartisan majority had favored the increase. The majority of the United States Senate favored it.

It was my friends’ friends on the other side of the rotunda that decided not to enter in and allow that increase to take place because they wanted a perfect bill from their perspective. They didn’t want to compromise. They didn’t want to give and take. They didn’t want to have some discussion. Frankly, what they wanted is what they got, or what they believe they got, which is a political issue for the November elections.

I am hopeful that after the elections are over we can come back here and actually have a discussion and come to a compromise solution, such as was crafted in this body.

Our friends talk to us a lot about education. I think they should. They probably ought to thank President Bush for being the best friend education ever had. It is President Bush who came up with No Child Left Behind, and it was President Bush who has recommended throughout his tenure over a 50 percent increase in Federal funding of education.

My friends are concerned about the cost of college. I just had a son who graduated. I am very grateful. But, quite frankly, most of that problem is at the State level, where we have State government after State government running enormous surpluses, yet not passing some of that surplus on to higher education institutions and to their own students.

The reality is that after coming in with a recession beginning in 2001, followed by September 11, something that all of us on both sides of the aisle recognize as a really and dismally event, this administration and this Republican Congress has gotten the economy moving again and has accomplished after accomplishment to run on. I am not surprised that our friends on the other side see it differently or want to obscure it, but I have profound faith in the good judgment of the American people to understand fiction and understand fact and know the difference between the two.

Mr. Speaker, today, in closing, I want to reiterate the importance of passing this rule. This rule allows us to move forward, pass the necessary legislation, and to do the business of the American people. I address how we have heard complaints by the other side of the aisle that this is a do-nothing Congress, yet at the same time the other side wants to slow down the process today to prevent important bipartisan legislation from being passed. It wants, in effect, to do less, not more.

Mr. Speaker, I am sure it is no surprise that I intend to vote for the rule and the underlying legislation, and I would urge my colleagues to do the same.

The material previously referred to by Mr. McCOVERN is as follows:

PREVIOUS QUESTION FOR H. RES. 1053, BLANKET MARTIAL LAW RULE WAIVING CLAUSE 9(a), RULE XIII

At the conclusion of the resolution, the following new Sections:

Sec. 3. Notwithstanding any other provisions in this resolution and without intervention of any point of order it shall be in order immediately upon adoption of this resolution for the House to consider the bills listed in Sec. 4.

Sec. 4. The bills referred to in Sec. 3. are as follows:

1. a bill to implement the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission.
2. a bill to increase the minimum wage to $7.25 per hour.
3. a bill to provide authority to the Secretary of Health and Human Services to negotiate for lower prescription drug prices for senior citizens and people with disabilities.
4. a bill to repeal the massive cuts in college tuition assistance imposed by the Congress and to expand the size and availability of Pell Grants.
5. a bill to roll back tax breaks for large petroleum companies and to invest those savings in alternative fuels to achieve energy independence.

THE VOTE ON THE PREVIOUS QUESTION: WHAT IT REALLY MEANS

This vote, the vote on whether to order the previous question on a special rule, is not merely a procedural vote. A vote against ordering the previous question is a vote against the Republican majority agenda and a vote to allow the opposition, at least for the moment, to offer an alternative plan.

Mr. Clarence Cannon’s Precedents of the House of Representatives, (VI. 308-311) describes the vote on the previous question on the rule as “a vote to direct or control the consideration of the subject before the House being made by the Member in charge.” To defeat the previous question is to give the opposition a chance to decide the subject before the House. Cannon cites the Speaker’s ruling of January 13, 1929, to the effect that “the refusal of the House to sustain the demand for the previous question passes the control of the resolution to the opposition” in order to offer an amendment. On March 15, 1909, a member of the majority party offered a rule resolution. The House defeated the previous question and a member of the opposition rose to a parliamentary inquiry, who was entertained. Speaker Joseph C. Cannon (R-Illinois) said: “The previous question having been refused, the gentleman from New York, Mr. Fitz-...

- [Roll No. 367]
The Speaker pro tempore. The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky). Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 508 on S. 3930, I mistakenly recorded my vote as “nay” when I should have voted “yea.” I ask unanimous consent that my statement appear in the RECORD immediately following rollcall vote No. 508.

So the Senate bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:
Mr. MELANCON, Mr. Speaker, during rollcall vote No. 508 on S. 3930, I mistakenly recorded my vote as “nay” when I should have voted “yea.” I ask unanimous consent that my statement appear in the RECORD immediately following rollcall vote No. 508.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION WAIVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 5122, JOHN W. WARNER NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 109-703) on the resolution (H. Res. 1062) waiving points of order against the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 5122) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2007 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. Roggers of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include tabular and extraneous material on the conference report to accompany H.R. 5441.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 5441, DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2007

Mr. Roggers of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution
Mr. SABO. The gentleman will be missed in this body. Very few Members now soon to be finished in this body, from our Congressional Fellow, Brett Dreyer, an expert on the homeland security effort, has become invaluable and expert, and we will miss him terribly. I want to thank Stephanie Gupta too and the staff of the subcommittee and staff on both sides of the aisle for the great work that they have done.

And, finally, I want to say a word about MARTY SABO, ranking member of this subcommittee, who will be finishing 27 years of service in this body. She has been a great servant of the public on this committee for a number of years. Her service has been invaluable and expert, and we will miss her terribly. I want to especially thank Michelle Merdeza, who could not be with us in these final days because of an illness in her family which required her to be absent. But she is retiring from this body. She has been a great servant of the public on this committee for a number of years. Her service has been invaluable and expert, and we will miss her terribly. I want to thank Stephanie Gupta too and the staff of the subcommittee.

In addition to these significant levels of funding, the conference agreement includes several legislative provisions that will fortify our homeland security, including legislation to criminalize for the first time the construction or financing of a tunnel across or under the U.S. border; two, legislation that significantly strengthens and improves FEMA, a whole new authorizing law; and, thirdly, breakthrough legislation requiring the Department of Homeland Security to regulate security of port and chemical facilities across the land.

Our homeland security needs are both numerous and they are complex, but I believe this conference report will make a major contribution towards those needs. So I urge my colleagues to support the agreement.

Before I sit down this time, Mr. Speaker, I want to pay special tribute to our staff on both sides of the aisle who have worked long, hard, and laborediously over these last several months. I want to especially thank Michelle Merdeza, who could not be with us in these final days because of an illness in her family which required her to be absent. But she is retiring from this body. She has been a great servant of the public on this committee for a number of years. Her service has been invaluable and expert, and we will miss her terribly. I want to thank Stephanie Gupta too and the staff of the subcommittee.

In addition to these significant levels of funding, the conference agreement includes several legislative provisions that will fortify our homeland security, including legislation to criminalize for the first time the construction or financing of a tunnel across or under the U.S. border; two, legislation that significantly strengthens and improves FEMA, a whole new authorizing law; and, thirdly, breakthrough legislation requiring the Department of Homeland Security to regulate security of port and chemical facilities across the land.

I cannot say enough in tribute to this man. He has been a helpmate to me and the subcommittee and the country on this bill for a number of years now, as well as before that we served in the same capacities on the Transportation Subcommittee; and of course, as you know, he was chairman of the Budget Committee for a number of years some time past.

A great public servant whose work is not only for the benefit of us, but for the benefit of all of us, and he is also an expert on budgetary matters and has become an expert on the homeland security effort of this country. And a huge void will exist on the horizon of this body when MARTY SABO leaves this body.

I want to especially thank Michelle Merdeza, who could not be with us in these final days because of an illness in her family which required her to be absent. But she is retiring from this body. She has been a great servant of the public on this committee for a number of years. Her service has been invaluable and expert, and we will miss her terribly. I want to thank Stephanie Gupta too and the staff of the subcommittee.

Mr. Speaker, the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee will soon take leave from our Congressional Fellow, Brett Dreyer, who, after having served the Committee with great distinction over the past 2 years, will assume new responsibilities as a senior Special Assistant for U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE).

Special Assistant Dreyer’s professional career mirrored the transitions of the years at the Department of Homeland Security. He began his Federal service in Newark, New Jersey as an immigration enforcement agent with the Immigration and Naturalization Service; moved up to become a Criminal Investigator at INS; and then transferred to the U.S. Customs Service where he helped secure airports as the security situation was resolved, and was at Ground Zero in New York, searching the rubble for remains of victims of that terrible attack. After DHS was established he found himself an ICE Special Assistant, where he witnessed the trials and tribulations of the agency merger that was repeated throughout the Department.

Brett came to the Subcommittee in January 2005, and at once proved himself a key member of the professional staff. His critical judgment, familiarity with agency matters, and expertise on Customs and Immigration law and regulation made him integral to the operations of the Committee during the extraordinary developments over the past 2 years, in particular the response to the 2005 hurricanes and the intensified effort to secure our borders and strengthen administration of immigration law. His strong understanding of organizational dynamics, of operational issues and real-world, real-time considerations for building a successful new department contributed significantly to the operations of this Subcommittee. Brett brought to the appropriations processes the clear, thoughtful analysis and mature judgment developed in his successful career in criminal investigation. Throughout his service here, Brett’s unqualified professionalism, perceptiveness, great sense of humor and cool head have helped this Subcommittee and the Congress move forward on a wide range of policy and budgetary issues. His assistance in planning and coordinating complicated subcommittee oversight trips were of particular benefit, and in coordinating the many classified briefings our oversight requires.

Special Assistant Dreyer has served me, this Subcommittee, and the House well: We are sorry to see him leave, and will miss him as a personal friend and a member of this Subcommittee.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBNEY. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I want to join the chairman and our ranking member in paying tribute to MARTIN SABO, whom I also consider a dear friend and one of this institution’s finest Members.

MARTIN has served here for 28 years. He was one of the first members of this Subcommittee when Congress passed the largest deficit reduction package in its history. He served as our ranking member on Transportation appropriations and on Homeland Security Appropriations ever since that subcommittee was formed.

MARTIN is an exemplary Member of this body in every way. He is a skilled legislator who is more interested in achieving results than in claiming credit for the crafted legislation with a knack for finding common ground. He is a man who understands and loves this institution. He is a congenial colleague and he is a good friend, displaying qualities of character that in the end matter above all.

So we will miss MARTIN SABO. We salute him for his service to Minnesota and to this country, service that is indeed exemplary and has inspired and encouraged us all.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, well, I am not sure I should say anything. But thank you to my chairman, Mr. ROGERS, for his kindness and for his consideration to Homeland Security. So I have achieved those accomplishments, for the way he has dealt with the needs of this body as an institution, for the respect that he has shown for the values and the traditions of this institution and the respect that he has shown for persons on both sides of the aisle. He is truly a gentleman. He is a great legislator. I hate to see him go. I hope he is back to visit us often. I thank the gentleman profoundly for the quality of his service.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBNEY. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I want to join the chairman and our ranking member in paying tribute to MARTIN SABO, whom I also consider a dear friend and one of this institution’s finest Members.

So we will miss MARTIN SABO. We salute him for his service to Minnesota and to this country, service that is indeed exemplary and has inspired and encouraged us all.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, well, I am not sure I should say anything. But thank you to my chairman, Mr. ROGERS, for his kind comments. We have been together. I think, 6 years now, 4 years on homeland security, 2 years on transportation.

As I said last night in front of the Rules Committee, the ultimate compliment I can give to somebody is to say that this is a pro. It has been a pleasure to serve with him. He is on the majority party. He has a responsibility to the President of his own party.

At the time, he is someone who has asked many a tough question and asked for discipline. He did in his opening comments, that he expects to continue to do oversight of the operations of this agency which has had many, many growing pains. It has not been an easy committee to chair as we merged all of these 22 agencies into one, with an incredible amount of chaos; and he has shown, I think, an intellect and toughness and fairness in trying to steer this agency in the right direction. It has been a privilege to work with Chairman Martinez.

My friend, DAVE OBNEY, who I have known, and known him for many years before I came to the Congress, neighbor across the border in Wisconsin, I have served with him on Appropriations for 28 years, both a personal friend and somebody who has an absolute passion for public policy and for making this institution work.

It has been a real honor, DAVE, to get to know you and Joan and to work with you. You are just a great human being.

And to DAVE PRICE who served with me on the Budget Committee, I am often asked, why do you leave? And, you know, particularly if the partisan nature changes and the opportunity to chair a subcommittee. And I always say, I have no regrets that because I know the next person in line is DAVE PRICE, who is a person who has great skill as a legislator and great understanding of public policy. And I think he will do a great job, as he has done in many other roles, whatever the role might be, whether it as a Chair or ranking member of the subcommittee in 2 years. So it is an honor to have your kind words today.

And to the staff, to all of the majority staff, Michelle, who is not here because of a family crisis and who is leaving the House and has done an incredible job, but all of the majority staff have been great to work with.

I suppose a special word to Stephanie. She followed us from Transportation to Homeland Security. So I have had an opportunity to work with her in both roles.

To our own personal staff on this committee, to Chris, who has worked with us, and Bev Pheto, who sits right here next to me, who has worked with us, me personally on this committee, 5 years, 6 years, 2 years in Transportation, 4 years in Homeland Security, who I am constantly amazed at her knowledge and her energy. She has to compete with all of you on the majority side and has remarkable knowledge and ability. It utterly amazes me. And she is a remarkable person.

Marjorie Dense from my staff, who originally was an intern in our office and is now in our office for many years working with Mr. Homeland Security, has worked on transportation, defense, housing, you name it, from simple issues to the most complicated issues, just been an incredible person, dedicated to public policy and all the right, but at the same time, tough, hard-nosed to work with agencies to make sure that the Government does what it is supposed to do.

Just incredible people who make this institution work. I simply say thank you.

A couple of words about the bill, if I might. It is a good bill, and it does lots of good things. It has got additional funding.

Some of the other issues we worked on, we have had a concern over how sensitive security information is handled by the Department. There are provisions here for handling that information, which I think is good. I think the changes made to FEMA strengthens the role of FEMA. I was one, along with Mr. Obey, who a year ago thought we were making a mistake as we created a new Department or agency on preparedness and how it was structured. This basically goes back to strengthening the role of FEMA within the Department. I think it is a significant improvement.

Frankly, if I had my choice, I still would make FEMA a separate agency outside of this Department. I would prefer that. That is not going to happen. I think the changes in this bill represent substantial improvement.

I have to say that I am concerned over how we add the money in this bill for the Department. We do it on an energy basis. I think $1.8 billion is desperately needed and will be well spent. But, at some point, we have to come back to passing budget resolutions in this body that are real.

The need for additional expenditure for homeland security are not emergencies. They are going to be there on an ongoing basis in the years ahead; and, in 2005, we added $450 million as an ongoing basis in the years ahead; and, in 2005, we added $450 million as an emergency basis. I think $1.8 billion is desperately needed and will be well spent. But, at some point, we have to come back to passing budget resolutions in this body that are real.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROGERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. That is correct, except for the newly authorized items that are in this bill.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time.

All of the money that is needed for borders, for ports, all of the money we have appropriated can be spent?

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. That is correct.

Mr. SABO. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. I thank the gentleman for his very, very kind remarks; and I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. Lewis), the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, who has been extremely helpful on this bill, as all of the others.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the fiscal year 2007 Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report. This is the second of 11 individual conference reports I hope to bring to the House floor for consideration this year.

The conference report funds the Department of Homeland Security at $34.8 billion for fiscal year 2007, an increase of $2.3 billion over the fiscal year before.

The conference agreement aggressively addresses our most critical homeland security needs including border and presidential security; cargo and container security; transportation security; natural disaster preparedness and response; and support to State and local first responders.

I would really like to praise Chairman Rogers and Ranking Member Slaughter and the members of our subcommittee. We have a good subcommittee. I think this committee has made a great contribution.

Mr. Chairman, I do have to ask one question. I understand we have a variety of entities for homeland security that are authorizing bills, that seem to be hanging up the adjournment or our recess. Am I wrong that everything that is in this bill is currently authorized? All of our money can be spent that is in this bill? It is not subject to any authorization?

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABO. I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. That is correct.

Mr. SABO. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the fiscal year 2007 Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report. This is the second of 11 individual conference reports I hope to bring to the House floor for consideration this year.

The conference report funds the Department of Homeland Security at $34.8 billion for fiscal year 2007, an increase of $2.3 billion over the fiscal year before.

I would really like to praise Chairman Rogers and Ranking Member Slaughter and the members of our subcommittee. We have a good subcommittee. I thank the gentleman for his very, very kind remarks; and I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. Lewis), the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, who has been extremely helpful on this bill, as all of the others.

date. We thank you for your assistance in this endeavor and we look forward to working with you as we together accomplish our legislative goals this year.

Sincerely,

JERRY LEWIS,
Chairman, House Committee on Appropriations.

THAD COCHRAN,
Chairman, Senate Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. Speaker, early in the process I made it very clear to our leadership and to our Members that the Appropriations Committee would not entertain the prospect of an omnibus spending bill. This committee is doing everything in its power to ensure that this does not happen.

The Appropriations Committee passed each of the 11 spending bills through the full committee by June 20 of this year, and passed 10 of 11 bills off the House floor by June 30. We remain committed to pass the final appropriation bill at a moment’s notice.

The Appropriations Committee made a commitment to move its spending bills individually, in regular order, and within the framework of the budget resolution. We have done that. The Appropriations Committee has kept its word.

Moving our spending bills individually is the only way to maintain fiscal discipline. The pursuit of an omnibus strategy is a budget-buster and an invitation to unrestrained spending. If history is any guide, an omnibus spending bill would become a vehicle for other forms of legislative mischief.

Again, Chairman Cochran and I would ask our colleagues to avoid that approach and move forward in passing individual conference reports together, we remain committed to completing our work at the earliest possible date.

I also urge the adoption of this conference report in a vote later today.

As I outlined in those comments, let me say one more time, Mr. ROGERS and Mr. SABO have a reflection in this bill of the finest of bipartisan efforts, exactly the same thing with President Reagan and President Nixon. But this is the first President I have known who has seemed to purposefully divide the country in order to govern, and I just want to trace what the facts are with respect to defending the homeland.

I remember, in August of 2001 when I was at home in Wisconsin, receiving a call from Attorney General Ashcroft telling me he had just been briefed by the CIA and that they were extremely concerned about the traffic that they were intercepting around the world, and they thought something big was up, did not know if it was international, but the intelligence community was very worried that something was coming. That was in August, just before 9/11.

The day before 9/11, Attorney General Ashcroft met with his staff to set out their priorities for the year, and in that meeting, he was presented a spreadsheet with various boxes indicating which would be his preferred activities and focus for the coming year. He declined to check any of the boxes that had anything to do with antiterrorism. He was, in fact, urged by his staff to reconsider and rejected that advice and told the staff, “No, I want to focus on drugs.” The Attorney General denied that in a hearing of our committee, but in fact, my office had been leaked the documents by his own agency that showed exactly what he had done in that meeting.

Then, after we were hit by anthrax, I called BILL YOUNG, who was then the chairman of the full committee, and suggested that since we could not get into our offices, we talk to the security agencies to see what they felt they needed in order to respond to the threat represented by 9/11.

We talked to the FBI, the NSA, CIA, you name it, all of the security agencies to see what they felt they needed in order to respond to the threat represented by 9/11.

We went down to see the President. He came into the room. Before we could say a word, he said, “Well, I understand that you have requested $10 billion more than I have requested for homeland security.” He said, “My good friend Mitch Daniels here from OMB tells us that we have got enough money in our budget, and so I want you to know, if you appropriation a dollar more than I have asked for, I will veto the bill. I have got time for four or five comments and I am out of here.”
way of the facts as far as he is concerned.
So I just want to make the point that I do not question the President’s patriotism because he chose to put tax cuts as a higher priority than even additional funding for homeland security. That is a judgment he made, and that is a judgment he will have to defend. I do not question his patriotism. I question his judgment. I think that it comes with considerably ill grace from a man with the track record of refusing efforts of this Congress to strengthen homeland security on various occasions, to have that man question anybody else’s dedication to this country, question anybody else’s dedication to defending this country.

The record does not bear out his claims, and I think if you check the record, you will find out that every statement I have made today is fully true and accurate.

With that, I thank the gentleman for the time.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York. Mr. KING, the very distinguished chairman of the authorizing Committee on Homeland Security in the House, whose cooperation on this bill has been fabulous, for the purpose of a colloquy.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of engaging in a colloquy with Chairman ROGERS and Chairman SENSENBRENNER. I would like to address the meaning of section 506 of the fiscal year 2007 Department of Homeland Security appropriations conference report regarding the Western Hemisphere Traveling Initiative, also known as WHTI. I would like to establish the fact that the language proposed in the conference report does not require a delay upon WHTI. It is up to DHS and State to make sure the program works securely and is implemented as soon as possible, which can and should be in accordance with the original WHTI deadline of January 1, 2008.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP), a very valuable member of this subcommittee, hardworking, and a conferee on the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for the outstanding job he does.

This $34.8 billion brings the total that we have spent on this Department since September 11, 2001, to $513.7 billion, a significant investment in this new Department.

I want to hail the service of MARTY SABO over the years but specifically on this subcommittee and because of his cooperation specifically in one area where there is agreement. MARTY SABO and I have had hearings on this in Washington State and hearings in New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL). We have reached a place where we have had hearings and have had hearings on this in Washington State and hearings in New Jersey, and this is not the way to treat our law enforcement. It is not the way.

We have done everything to try to put before the American people and the Congress the necessity of the money and to say that we will not facilitate adequate security to our law enforcement. It is not the way.

We have had hearings on this in Washing-

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LATHAM), a very valuable member of the subcommittee and of the conference.

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chair for his rise to support of this conference agreement and urge my colleagues to also support it. I also want to commend Chairman ROGERS, Mr. SABO, and the subcommittee staffs on both sides for their great work on this bill. I also want to take note that this is the last time that Congressman MARTY SABO will be on the floor with the Homeland Security appropriations bill. He has been a key member of the subcommittee and a valued member of the full committee, and on behalf of Kathy and myself, we wish you and Sylvia the very, very best for the future. You are great people, and it has been an honor to get to know you. I appreciate your great service.

The process of putting together this appropriations bill to address the operational needs of the Homeland Security Department has once again been a very difficult process. I participated in the process on this bill. I have come to the conclusion that our approach to funding homeland security has been well thought out in the face of having to make difficult choices. This year, as in the past, we have worked hard to balance the priorities. While I am not fully satisfied with some of the choices, overall I am pleased with many of the components of this bill. I am very happy that we put extra funding into enhancement of border security. We added funds for new border patrol personnel and capital infrastructure. This is one more significant step toward the best combination of assets to protect our borders. This is a must, in my view.

I am also pleased that we have included a structural overhaul of FEMA, an issue that had to be addressed. The components of the overall bill set FEMA on a path to better carrying out its mission.

At the end of the day, there are no perfect answers to our homeland security problems, and there is no perfect dollar resource level for any of these homeland functions. We are not going to reach a 100 percent security umbrella no matter what level of funding we allocate to the homeland function. Since we cannot reach security perfection, because our resources are limited, we simply have to allocate resources wisely, and we have done that again this year.

I would ask all Members to support this conference report.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, allow me to thank the distinguished gentleman and pay him a great debt of gratitude for his service and for his fight. MARTIN SABO knows his business, and he gets the job done, and I simply want to thank him very much.

I wish as we proceed in this bill that there were elements of it that really could answer the questions that the American people ask about homeland security. I am disappointed we could not work out the right kind of approach to chemical security, primarily because it is a sizable number of chemical plants and, most recently, we have experienced a number of incidents that have impacted the surrounding neighborhoods.

So I would have hoped we would have been able to plan that had a great deal more teeth to it than what we now have in this bill.

Also, I would like to mention that, although the Homeland Security Committee looked at and does agree with FEMA remaining in the Homeland Security Department at this time. I am disappointed that the monies, which we really do need to reconstruct FEMA and to make it work, one, are missing; and, two, that the question of the FEMA staffing question that has not been answered.

Also, as my good friend from New Jersey indicated, we are still fighting the battle of interoperability, and that is a key element, as reflected in the 9/ 11 Commission report.

We also determined that the local law enforcement is very, very unhappy with the presence of the USASI grants in FEMA. I wish we had had more time for consultation to work with the Nation’s chiefs of police to be able to ensure that these grants would be distributed fairly.

Much can be said about the improvement of this bill, but, Mr. Speaker, I hope that we would have the opportunity to ensure that there is full funding for homeland security and full staffing. Without that, it cannot work. I rise in support of the Conference Report to the Homeland Security Appropriations Act of 2007 to H.R. 5441. Although the compromise is far from perfect, we believe it contains enough good things to warrant my support.

I am pleased that the legislation includes all of the recommendations that the Democrats on the Homeland Security Committee released in February, entitled “Directing FEMA Towards Success: A Democratic Report and Legislative Solution.” The legislation combines some of the Department’s preparedness functions (Grants and Training, U.S. Fire Administration, and the National Capital Region office) with FEMA and keeps the new entity within the Department. I hope that the Administration does not interfere with these efforts. I believe that FEMA possesses a demonstrated ability in and knowledge of emergency management and homeland security and have no less than 5 years of executive leadership and management experience. Finally, the legislation designates the Administrator as the principal advisor to the President for all matters pertaining to emergency management and authorizes the President to designate the Administrator to serve as a member of the Cabinet during emergencies.

INTEROPERABILITY FUNDING TO MEET THE NEEDS OF LOCAL RESPONDERS

It is unfortunate that Republicans opposed the inclusion of $3.1 billion dedicated interoperability funding for state and local first responders. Five years after the 9/11 attacks and one year after Hurricane Katrina, the Department still does not have a dedicated interoperability grant program. As a result, states and localities are still robbing Peter to pay Paul by using a huge amount of their homeland security grant funding—in some instances 80%—to purchase communications equipment. States and localities are forced to shortchange first responder training, local terrorism prevention activities and securing the nation’s critical infrastructure.

Although the bill shortchanges interoperability, the legislation does include increased authorizations in FY 2008 for a variety of programs that Democrats have championed throughout the process. These include:

A $20 million increase for the Urban Search and Rescue Teams;

A $30 million increase for the Metropolitan Medical Response System;

A $175 million increase in FY 2008 for the Emergency Management Performance Grant program; and

$4 million in grants for the administration of the Emergency Management Assistance Compact, which is used to coordinate assistance between the states during disasters.

With respect to the new FEMA’s overall funding, the legislation also authorizes a 10% annual increase over the next three years for administration and operations. It remains to be seen whether the Administration will include the crucial funding in their 2008 budget request.

My Democratic colleagues on the Homeland Security Committee, including Ranking Member BENNIE THOMPSON (MS), Representatives JANE HARMAN (CA), NITA LOWEY (NY), BILL PASCOE (NJ), and I have been outspoken leaders in the effort to solve the problem of interoperability for our Nation’s first responders. Although the majority blocked our attempts to provide dedicated funding to address the issue, the legislation does adopt many Democratic provisions related to emergency communications.

The legislation creates an Office of Emergency Communications to support, promote, monitor, and promulgate operable and interoperable communications equipment and consolidating various offices across the Federal government. Additionally, it requires the development of a National Emergency Communications Plan that would identify ways to expedite the adoption of consensus standards for emergency communications equipment and recommend both short and long-term solutions to overcoming obstacles to achieving nationwide interoperability and operability.

It also mandates the completion of a national baseline study assessing the state of emergency communications in federal, state, tribal, and local governments. Finally, it ensures that recipients of homeland security grants are coordinating and operating consistent with the goals and recommendations of the National Emergency Communications Plan.

Unfortunately, and for no apparent policy reason, this legislation fails to place this new Office of Emergency Communications where it most logically belongs—FEMA. Instead, it is an outlier grouped in with the office that oversees cybersecurity. By failing to do this, Republicans have perpetuated—and written into law—the very fragmentation of the preparedness and response functions that led to the Administration’s failed response to Hurricane Katrina.

While the bill authorizes the existing Chief Medical Officer and gives him primary responsibility for medical preparedness issues in the Department, Republicans rebuffed efforts by Homeland Security Democrats to locate this office where it most logically belongs within FEMA. In addition, provisions to establish a program to assess, monitor, and study the health and safety of first responders involved in disasters was stripped by the Republicans, as was language to direct the Chief Medical Officer to provide guidance for the Metropolitan Medical Response System and to develop and update guidelines for State, local, and tribal governments for medical response plans for WMD attacks.

Additionally, the legislation authorizes a national training and exercise program for first responders, as well as a comprehensive assessment system and a remedial action program to identify and disseminate lessons learned. However, Republicans stripped out a Democratic proposal—accepted by the Majority in the Homeland Security Committee—bill to authorize an exercise to prepare for pandemic influenza.

Finally, the bill stripped a Democratic provision to create an Office of Public and Community Preparedness, which was proposed to address the recommendations from Hurricane Katrina—that citizens need to be prepared to protect themselves and their families and cannot rely on assistance for the first few days of a disaster. The office would have consolidated various programs at the Department of Homeland Security into one office with the primary responsibility within the Department for assuring the efforts of State, local, and tribal governments in preparing citizens and communities in the United States for acts of terrorism, natural disasters, and other emergencies. Notwithstanding these weaknesses, I will support the Conference Report because on balance the weaknesses, which I will work to eliminate next year, are outweighed by the following good provisions:

- Prohibits the Secretary from allocating, re-allocating, or discontinuing organizational units within FEMA under the authority of section 872 of the Homeland Security Act of 2002.
- Creates a national and 10 regional advisory councils (one in each FEMA region) made of up local officials, emergency managers, first responders and the private sector, to advise the Administrator and each of the regional Administrators and ensure coordination.
- Creates a Disability Coordinator, a position advocated by Rep. JAMES LANGEVIN (D-RI), to ensure that the needs of individuals with disabilities are being properly addressed in emergency preparedness and disaster relief.
- Directs the Administrator, in coordination with the heads of other appropriate agencies, to provide evacuation preparedness technical assistance to state local and tribal governments. Democrats on the Committee had introduced legislation on this issue over a year ago.
- Directs the Administrator to collaborate with local and state officials and first responder groups to establish standards for the credentialing of first responders and the typing of resources needed to respond to disasters.
- CODFYs the national preparedness goal, target capabilities list, national planning scepower and the autonomy it needs within the overall perspective of homeland security.

As far as chemical plant security, this is extraordinary legislation because for the first time it gives the Department of Homeland Security rule-making power over the chemical plant industry.

I could go on for a good length about this legislation, but I would like to yield to Sherriff Reichert.

Mr. REICHERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 5441, the fiscal year 2007 Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report. I would like to discuss the Post-Katrina Emergency Management Reform Act of 2006, which is included as title VI.

As Chairman of the Subcommittee on Emergency Preparedness, Science, and Technology and as one of title VI's principal authors, I proudly announce today both Chambers and both parties have come together and reached a landmark agreement to overhaul the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

This landmark agreement will, among other things, reform FEMA by:

- Elevating the standing of FEMA within the Department of Homeland Security by promoting the Administrator of FEMA to the level of Deputy Secretary;
- Requiring that the Administrator possess a demonstrated ability in executive leadership and management experience;
- Directing the Administrator to serve as the principal advisor to the President and others for all matters relating to emergency management;
- Reestablishing the nexus between emergency preparedness and response; and
- Elevating the role of emergency communications within the Department by establishing an Office of Emergency Communications and requiring that Office to draft a National Emergency Communications Plan and conduct a baseline operability and interoperability assessment.

These and the other important reforms of FEMA in Title VI are based, in large part, on, H.R. 5351, the "National Emergency Management Reform and Enhancement Act of 2006," which I introduced on May 11, 2006, and which passed the Committee on Homeland Security last week.

Finally, this legislation addresses emergency communications. Congress has already appropriated billions of dollars for interoperability. However, standards are still not established. Many States do not have plans statewide and are still working on it.

Before spending billions more, there are less expensive, but integral reforms that must be implemented. Once these reforms occur, they and only then should we consider an additional grant program. I look forward to working in a bipartisan way to create that new grant program.

The American public demanded that Congress fix FEMA. This agreement does that.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 5441, the "Fiscal Year 2007 Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report." In particular, I'd like to take a few moments to discuss the "Post-Katrina Emergency Management Reform Act of 2006," which is included in Title VI of H.R. 5441.

As Chairman of the Subcommittee on Emergency Preparedness, Science, and Technology, and as one of Title VI's principal authors, I am especially proud to announce that both Chambers and both parties have reached this landmark agreement to overhaul the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

Mr. Speaker, if you Google the term “FEMA,” over 2 million hits pop up. Fixing FEMA has been on the forefront of the American consciousness since Hurricanes Katrina and Rita last year, and some said it couldn't be done—that Congress could not come together in a bipartisan, bicameral way to fix this problem. There were too many obstacles and too much politics. That the problem itself was simply too massive and no one knew where to begin. But Mr. Speaker, we have overcome those obstacles in the interests of the American people. And, to do so, we began by listening to those who know best what the problems are and what the solutions might look like. I reached out to the first responders and emergency managers.

This landmark agreement will, among other things, reform FEMA by:

- Elevating the standing of FEMA within the Department of Homeland Security by promoting the Administrator of FEMA to the level of Deputy Secretary;
- Requiring that the Administrator possess a demonstrated ability in executive leadership and management experience;
- Directing the Administrator to serve as the principal advisor to the President and others for all matters relating to emergency management;
- Restoring the nexus between emergency preparedness and response; and
- Elevating the role of emergency communications within the Department by establishing an Office of Emergency Communications and requiring that Office to draft a National Emergency Communications Plan and conduct a baseline operability and interoperability assessment.

These and the other important reforms of FEMA in Title VI are based, in large part, on, H.R. 5351, the "National Emergency Management Reform and Enhancement Act of 2006," which I introduced on May 11, 2006, and which passed the Committee on Homeland Security last week.

As a former law enforcement officer for more than 33 years, I can assure my friends in blue that nothing in this agreement would in any way undermine the terrorism-specific focus of the Department's terrorism preparedness grants and other prevention and protection programs. In fact, my colleagues and I drafted the base text of this legislation with the direct input of our Nation's first responders.

Finally, some have recently brought up the need to immediately create a new multi-billion dollar grant program for interoperability. However, before spending additional billions of Federal dollars on interoperable communications, there are less expensive but integral reforms that must first be implemented. This agreement contains an entire subtitle of such reforms. As a former Cop and Sheriff, I know that first responders need standards in place and that States need to adopt Statewide Interoperable Communication Plans to ensure that Federal money is well spent. It is then, and only then, that we should create an additional interoperability grant program. Once these reforms have been implemented, I look forward to working in a bipartisan way to create that new grant program.

However, to be clear, Congress has already appropriated billions of dollars for emergency communications. From FY 2003 through FY 2005, recipients of DHS' terrorism preparedness grants have obligated and spent more than $2 billion on interoperability projects—the single largest use of such grant funding. Moreover, the Department of Justice's COPS program has allocated more than $300 million for interoperability grant programs to state and local emergency agencies during that same period of time. Finally, in the Budget Reconciliation Act of 2005, Congress established a $1 billion interoperability grant program to be administered by the Commerce Department.

Following Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, the American public demanded that Congress fix our Nation's broken emergency management system. This agreement does that and more. It is for that reason that I urge my colleagues to support this landmark, bipartisan legislation.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, I have read the chemical bill language, and I do not understand whether that language preempts the ability of a State to adopt more stringent requirements than the Federal standards.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, it is our understanding, and we had the opinion of committee counsel on this, that it does not preempt States.

Mr. SABO. The intention is not to preempt the ability of the States.

Mr. KING of New York. That is not the intention.

Mr. Speaker, let me just commend the gentleman for his many years of service to this House and wish him the very best in the years to come.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Shuster), who is Chairman of the Emergency Management Subcommittee of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

(Mr. SHUSTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank Chairman Rogers for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of this legislation, in particular the FEMA reforms. It was a tremendous effort by many, and I want to extend my personal thanks to Chairman Rogers, Chairman Don Young, Chairman Davis, Chairman King, and Chairman Rechert. This was truly a collaborative effort, and I think we have some important reforms for FEMA here today.

FEMA was one of the most well-respected organizations in the Federal Government, but Hurricane Katrina demonstrated how badly FEMA declined in just 3 years at DHS.

I had the privilege to serve on the Katrina Committee that did the investigation and we laid out five principles for reforming FEMA: The President has to be involved in big disasters; there must be a clear chain of command; preparedness must be put back into FEMA; FEMA's capabilities must be restored and enhanced; and, finally, we need an all-hazard approach to disasters.

While I believe that putting FEMA out of DHS was the right way to embrace these principles, I recognize that it is not the only way. These principles served as a foundation for the compromise we consider today.
This bill fixes and improves FEMA. With the leadership, authority and resources necessary to respond effectively to the next disaster, FEMA can once again be a model Federal agency. The American people deserve nothing less.

Before I close, I would like to thank the Emergency Management Subcommittee staff who worked very long hours on this important legislation: Dan Matthews, Jennifer Hall and Hugh Carroll, and also Liz Mogensen from the full committee. They did a great job, and I want to thank them.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support this legislation.

Prior to the creation of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) was one of the most well respected organizations in the Federal government. Hurricane Katrina illustrated how badly FEMA had declined in less than three short years.

I want to thank Chairman Young for his leadership and his oversight efforts over the years to ensure that FEMA would remain a model Federal agency. Through his leadership on this bill, I believe FEMA will not only return to its former status, but out perform the FEMA we once knew.

I had the honor of serving on the House Katrina Committee under Chairman Davis. He deserves tremendous credit for leading the investigation. He made a commitment to follow the facts wherever they took us, and he uncovered a surprising record of actions and neglect that undermined our Nation’s disaster preparedness. Without his leadership, we would not be here today.

There have been a lot of complaints that the House has not consolidated jurisdiction over the DHS into one committee. Today, I can tell you that it is a good thing that jurisdiction over DHS does not reside with one committee.

This bill balances the need to prepare for a terrorist attack with all of the other hazards we face today. The Katrina Committee has decades of experience with emergency management. The Homeland Security Committee brings real expertise on terrorism matters. Between these two committees, we came up with a good product.

I would like to thank Chairman King and Chairman Reichert. This comprehensive reform could not have been possible without their support, vast knowledge of preparedness issues, and strong desire for reform.

After the Katrina Committee investigation, we laid out 5 principles for reforming FEMA:

First, Presidential involvement and professional disaster advice are essential.

Second, effective response requires a clear chain of command.

Third, the four elements of emergency management need to be closely integrated and managed, particularly preparedness and response functions.

Fourth, FEMA’s essential response capabilities must be strengthened and enhanced.

And fifth, the tension between the nation’s all-hazards emergency management system and terrorism preparedness must be resolved.

While my personal opinion is that pulling FEMA out of DHS is the best way to embrace these principles, I recognize that it is not the only way. These five principles served as a foundation for this compromise, which helped us achieve comprehensive reform.

This legislation elevates the Administrator to the Deputy Secretary level and provides that the Administrator will report directly to the Secretary. It directs the Administrator to serve as the principal advisor to the President, the Homeland Security Council, and the Secretary of Homeland Security, and permits the President to designate the Administrator as a member of the Cabinet in the event of natural disasters, acts of terrorism, and other man-made disasters. Additionally, the Administrator is given explicit responsibility for managing all disasters.

Furthermore, I am proud that this bill clarifies the chain of command during the Federal response to natural disasters, acts of terrorism, and other man-made disasters by providing that the Federal Coordinator for all matters related to emergency management and permits the President to designate the Administrator as a member of the Cabinet in the event of natural disasters, acts of terrorism, and other man-made disasters. Additionally, the Administrator is given explicit responsibility for managing all disasters.

This bill increases FEMA’s response capabilities through a variety of tools. Through this legislation FEMA will establish robust Regional Offices, Regional Advisory Councils, and multi-agency Regional Strike Teams to ensure effective coordination and integration of local, Federal, State, and regional response providers, emergency managers, and other stakeholders. Additionally, the Administrator is provided a number of tools for rebuilding and restoring the Federal workforce through the use of a strategic human capital plan, recruitment and retention bonuses, and professional development and education.

Finally, this bill establishes an all hazard national preparedness goal and system for bringing direction, professional expertise, and accountability to federal, state, and local preparedness activities.

This bill puts FEMA back together again and gives FEMA the tools and authority to do its job. With the leadership, authority, and resources necessary to respond effectively to the next disaster, FEMA can once again be a model agency within the Federal Government.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, before I yield back my time, let me simply say to my friend from Minnesota (Mr. Gutknecht), thank you for presiding today in a very fair and efficient manner. It is a pleasure working with the gentleman. And on Twins.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, this year has been a difficult year for this bill, as they all are. We did not have all of the allocation that we could have used. However, I think we judiciously have spent the monies that were allocated to us.

There is no more important chore that the Congress has, in my judgment, than to protect the country as best we can from its enemies and from natural disasters. That is what this bill is all about. It is such a huge undertaking. We have got 7,500 miles of borders with our neighbors, we have 12,000 miles of streets, including the 4,000 lakes, 400 commercial airports with 600 million passengers a year internally and millions more from outside the country, rail and subways and tunnels and bridges and cyber structures, and the financial system. Everything we have is subject to attack, and it is a very, very difficult chore for the government, both the executive branch and the legislative branch, to try to get our arms around the mission and to try to find the moneys there to try to finance the effort to defend the country against its enemies.

But I think we have done that within this bill as best we can. We have covered practically every angle that you can think of with plenty of funding. I am especially pleased to find huge new sums to spend on border security. We can’t exist as a country if we can’t protect that border, and that is what this bill is all about in its main emphasis.

Again, I want to thank Marty Sabo for his years of service and friendship, he and Sylvia. Marty, you and Sylvia, we wish you Godspeed.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, today, the House debated the Conference Report for Homeland Security Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2007. Section 535 of the conference report included a provision that will allow individuals to import into the U.S. from Canada a 90-day supply of a prescription drug, on their person, for their personal use. The provision specifically exempts controlled substances and biological products.

As the Chairman of the authorizing Committee with jurisdiction over the regulation of drugs and biological products, it is important for me to clarify what the language in this section means in regards to biologic products. The exemption applies to biological products, as that term is defined in Section 351 of the Public Health Service Act. The legislation does not confer the exemption of only those products licensed under Section 351 of the PHS Act. This is an important distinction. To be clear, the language exempts biologic products licensed under the Public Health Service Act and those approved under the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

Members have also asked questions and offered various wishful opinions as to whether the chemical security section of the 2007 Homeland Security Appropriations bill preempts state or local law. Perhaps a review of the evolution of this provision would shed some light for Members. The House Committee on Homeland Security considered a bill in 2003 and was asked to explicitly state that the bill would not preempt state law. Why? Because Members recognized correctly that State or local laws that conflict with or frustrate the purpose of Federal laws are pre-empted by the Federal law in the absence of explicit Federal language to the contrary, and the amendment’s proponents wanted to ensure that States would not be so constrained. However, that bill was never considered by either body. When Senator Byrd initiated the process of using the 2007 Homeland Security Appropriations bill as a vehicle for legislating a Federal chemical security pro- gram, and then other Members began to venture suggestions to amend Senator Byrd’s language in the bill, the Chairmen of the three authorizing Committees, one in the other body and two in this body, were consulted.

During negotiations it was discussed and consciously decided among the authorizing committee negotiators to not include a provi- sion exempting this section from Federal pre-emption because we do not want a patchwork of chemical security programs, and we do not want chemical facilities that are trying to se- cure themselves against threats of terrorism caught in a bind of wondering whether their site security complies with all law. It was only upon the agreement of the three authorizing Committee Chairmen that the Appropriations Conferences included the chemical security pro- vision in the Appropriations Conference Rep- ort.

During Appropriations Conference delibera- tions, some Members argued and voted against including the chemical security sec- tion, in part because it was silent on preemp- tion. However, they were outvoted. We are fully confident that courts of law, if ever faced with such a question, will examine the State or local provision and decide for themselves whether it conflicts with or frustrates the pur- pose of Federal law, including the chemical security section of the 2007 Homeland Secu- rity Appropriations bill and Section 101(b)(1)(F) of the Homeland Security Act of 2002 which states explicitly that the mission of the Department of Homeland Security includes ensuring “that the overall economic security of the United States is not diminished by efforts, activities, and programs aimed at securing the homeland.”

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, the conference rep- ort we are considering today on the House floor fails to close dangerous homeland secu- rity loopholes that continue to put Americans at risk more than 5 years after the 9/11 at- tacks.

This bill fails to include strong chemical se- curity language that had been agreed to, on a bipartisan basis, in the Homeland Security Conference.

But Republicans have caved to the wishes of their allies in the chemical industry by crafting weak provisions that do not provide the security safeguards that are urgently need- ed to protect Americans. The fact is, there are nightclubs in New York City that are harder to get into than some of our chemical plants. This bill fails to fix the problem.

This bill also does not contain a mandate that all of the cargo on passenger planes be screened before it is placed onboard. An amendment I offered to require 100 per- cent cargo screening on passenger planes passed the House overwhelmingly three years ago and enjoyed the support of Homeland Security’s spending bill. But the Bush adminis- tration ensured that the provision was deleted from the final version of the bill, and Repub- licans have blocked it ever since.

In addition, this bill fails to provide the re- sources needed to ensure that our airports have the equipment needed to detect explo- sives that may be hidden in bags bound for airliners. Earlier this month, a nonpartisan report de- veloped by experts in airport security, airport operators, the Federal Government, and con- tractors recommended that Congress should “continue Federal appropriations of at least $435 million for purchase and installation of Explosive Detection Systems, escalating annu- ally.”

And what have Republicans in Congress decided is the appropriate funding level for the purchase and installation of explosive detec- tion equipment at airports? About $150 million, or roughly one-third the amount recommended by the experts.

This is another example of Republicans nickel-and-diming homeland security while writing a blank check for the War in Iraq.

The foiled London bombing plot last month shined a light on the Bush administration’s bungling of the research, development and de- ployment of systems that can detect liquid ex- plosives at airports.

In its final report card, the 9/11 Commission gave the Federal Government’s checked bag screening capabilities a “D” and directed that “The TSA should expedite the installation of advanced (in-line) baggage screening equip- ment.” But almost a year later, we’re still far behind where we need to be.

This bill also does not address another aviation security weakness that leaves us vulner- able to a terrorist attack.

Specifically, there keeps in place an artifi- cial cap that Republicans have placed on the number of airport screeners that can be hired. This is creating security challenges at our air- ports, as passenger traffic increases, and workers are expected to be on guard for a growing array of threats.

According to the bipartisan report released earlier this month “without adequate capital in- vestment, screener staffing levels would have to increase significantly to maintain 100% electronic screening.”

But we currently have the worst of both worlds: Republicans refuse to invest the need- ed funds in explosive detection equipment while they also cap the number of screeners regardless of security needs. This is a dan- gerous, wrong-headed policy that puts Ameri- cans at risk.

This bill also fails to sufficiently fund the Metropolitan Medical Response System, a vital program designed to limit casualties in the event of a major emergency, such as a nuclear attack or avian flu outbreak.

Clearly, our New Direction to ensure that security loopholes are closed and Americans are protected from terrorists determined to inflict another devastating attack on our country.

Republican’s continue to ignore glaring loop- holes such as porous security safeguards at chemical plants, failure to scan all the cargo on passenger planes, flawed checkpoint screening equipment, and the lack of enough TSA screeners.

As a result, Republicans are providing our nation with homeland insecurity, rather than the real security that Americans deserve.

I urge a “no” vote on this bill.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Fiscal Year 2007 Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report. It includes several provisions that I authored in the Homeland Security and Appropriations Com- mittees, including much-needed provisions to help first responders communicate.

More than two years ago, I proposed legis- lation to require the Department of Homeland Security to create a national interoperability strategy. It is time that we give our first re- sponders the tools they need to adequately communicate with one another without having to use many of the same tactics as Paul Re- vere.

This strategy is long overdue. Ten years ago, the Public Safety Wireless Advisory Com- mittee recommended “unless immediate measures are taken to promote interop- erability, public safety agencies will not be able to adequately discharge their obligation to pro- tect life and property in a safe, efficient, and cost effective manner.” Because of inadequate radios, 343 firefighters died while heroically rescuing thousands of workers at the World Trade Center on September 11th. Last year, communications failures exacerbated the poor response to Hurricane Katrina.

Amazingly, the Department has no real plan to solve the communications crisis and has determined to inflict another devastating attack on our communities. This bill requires it to complete a baseline study to assess current capabilities; create a resource plan; expedite voluntary consensus standards; set goals and time frames; identify obstacles; co-ordinate planning with other federal as well as state, local, and private sector partners; de- sign a backup system to protect when primary systems fail; and verify manufacturers’ claims that equipment meets certain standards.

Unfortunately, the conference report does not include my dedicated communications grant program. While it is imperative that we have a workable strategy, it can only be exe- cuted when local public safety agencies have funding to plan, design, implement, and main- tain interoperable networks.

In addition, the bill cuts funding for the major first responder grant programs, further delaying the progress that state and local governments should be making to increase communications capabilities.

Although the conference report is not per- fect, I am pleased that conferees took the first step in adopting my interoperability strategy.

Mr. ROGERS of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the pending Con- ference Report, and thank the Chairman of the Homeland Security Appropriations Sub- committee, Mr. H. AL ROGERS, for his work on this legislation.

I appreciate the fact that this bill includes important provisions that consolidate the Noble Training Center with the Center for Do- mestic Preparedness; establish a Homeland Security Education Program; and ensure fi- nancial accountability of the Secure Border Ini- tiative, which is similar to a provision of my bill—H.R. 6162—that the House passed yes- terday.

In addition, this bill includes funding to add 1,500 new Border Patrol agents. In 2004, Congress authorized 2,000 new agents be added each year. To date, the Border Patrol had added fewer than 2,000 new agents.

In May, the President announced that the Border Patrol will increase its ranks by 6,000 new agents by FY 2009. At the current pace, we will not meet this goal.
I look forward to working with Members of the Homeland Security Appropriations Sub-committee to ensure that the Border Patrol will be able to make the President's goal a reality. While I support the overall Conference Report, I am deeply concerned with one provision included in it.

This provision would require that all instructors at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center—referred to as FLET—be Federal employees. This is a terrible provision that could prevent Federal law enforcement agencies—not just DHS—from being able to quickly and cost-effectively train their officers and agents. Particularly in emergency circumstances; like we experienced immediately after the 9–11 terrorist attack.

OMB Director Rob Portman wrote to Congress on September 6th regarding DHS Appropriations and expressed his serious concern that this provision is too restrictive.

He wrote that by preventing public-private competition, the provision—quote: "deprives the Department of the operational efficiencies to be gained by competition, and limits its ability to direct Federal resources to support other priorities."

I have reviewed FLET’s course list and find it indefensible that anyone would advocate that only a Federal employee can efficiently and effectively teach some of these courses.

For example why is it that only a Federal employee can teach “7 Habits of Highly Effective People,” or “Archeological Resources Protection,” or “Self Leadership Through Understanding Human Behavior?”

All of these are courses taught at FLET’s facilities. All of these courses could very easily be taught by a State or local government official, a college professor, or a professional from the private sector.

Since the terrorist attacks of September 11th, the need for FLET training has increased dramatically, and FLET is under significant strain to meet these needs.

Should an emergency arise tomorrow, I am certain that this provision will make it impossible for the Department to be able to meet any surge in demand for training that might arise.

I urge my colleagues to consider the serious ramifications of this provision, and join me in working to lift this ban in the future to ensure our Federal law enforcement agencies can meet all their training needs.

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the conference report to H.R. 5441, the fiscal year 2007 Department of Homeland Security Appropriations Act. With this bill, the federal government takes important steps forward on securing our border and reforming the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

It is heartening to see that Congress is beginning to wake up to the critical importance of a secure border. Indeed, this bill provides $21.3 billion for border protection and imigration enforcement—nearly an 11 percent increase over last year— including $5.2 billion for the department’s Secure Border Initiative, the government’s comprehensive multi-year plan to secure America’s borders and reduce illegal immigration.

Also, the emergency plan includes $2.25 billion to help the Department of Homeland Security improve the effectiveness of homeland security operations, and $1.2 billion for border fencing, vehicle barriers, technology, and other infrastructure improvements.

H.R. 5441 also takes important steps to protect against the growing threat of border tunneling. Penalties for individuals who assist in the construction and use of border tunnels will be subject to much harsher penalties— fines and imprisonment of up to 20 years. Anyone using a border tunnel to smuggle aliens, weapons, or other goods will be subject to a maximum term of imprisonment that is twice the punishment that would have applied had a tunnel not been used.

In addition, I am extremely pleased that the conference committee provided more than expected funds to assist in the transfer of the Shadow Wolves from the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection (CBP) back to their logical home in Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). The Shadow Wolves officers are Native Americans who combine modern technology with ancient tracking techniques to play a critical role in our government’s counter-narcotics efforts along the 76 miles of border in the Tohono O’odham Nation. When the Department of Homeland Security was originally created, the Shadow Wolves were placed under the control of the CBP. Unfortunately, however, the CBP’s mission and methods were found to be notably unsuited to the ways of the Shadow Wolves, whose methods employ tracking smugglers more than merely defending a border line. This bureaucratic misjudgment has significantly hurt the Shadow Wolves’ morale, causing their numbers to dwindle. Because of this situation, I appreciate the conferences’ decision to provide $3.1 million—a million more than in the House bill—for ICE to pay for the newly-transferred Shadow Wolves’ salaries and other needs.

It is also important to note for our friends in Canada and Mexico that nothing in this bill should be misrepresented as changing our commitment to requiring a secure border ID.

As we require more secure IDs to get a driver’s license, to vote, and to get a job within the U.S., you can be assured that we certainly intend to pursue an identical approach in border security. Working together, we can maintain our important trade and tourism relationships while maintaining the security of our Nation.

Last, I am pleased that this conference report will enact important reforms to FEMA to help ward off some of the biggest examples of mismanagement seen in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. For example, this bill creates a smarter FEMA management structure by establishing 10 FEMA regional offices and regional directors with the ability to coordinate and direct the federal response in times of crisis, so that FEMA is not trying to manage disaster from Washington. By putting FEMA on the ground where the crisis is occurring, regional directors will be able to coordinate more effective and timely responses. Also, each regional office will maintain a multi-agency regional strike team, with the ability to quickly respond to emergencies, and three national emergency response teams will be created in a case rapid supplements to the regional teams are needed. Finally, while codifying the FEMA director’s status as the principal advisor to the President and the Secretary of Homeland Security, this bill refrains from establishing FEMA as an independent, cabinet-level agency—a misguided notion designed more to placate the media than institute meaningful reform.

Mr. Speaker, I commend Chairman ROGERS and the rest of the conference for their hard work on this bill, and urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Appropriations Act (H.R. 5441) because $35 billion is too high a price for failure. Hurricane Katrina provided a vivid and massive example of DHS’ incompetence, but additional evidence of incompetence can be seen daily in the display. Just this week, Secretary Chertoff announced with great fanfare a new risk-based port security program. Perhaps he knows something about the terrorists that we don’t, because apparently they are more likely to target the ports in Burns Harbor, IN and Duluth, MN than Oakland, CA. Those ports received new funding while Oakland got nothing. The fourth-busiest port in the nation, the gateway to Asia, in the heart of a major metropolitan center and the high-technology headquarters of the country is apparently at no risk of a terrorist attack.

Another recent round of urban security grants cut funding by 40 percent for New York and Washington, DC, but increased it for Louisville and Omaha. The American people might also be interested to know that DHS’ National Asset Database, which is used to determine how to allocate preparedness funding, lists Indiana as the state with the most potential terrorist targets. Supposedly, the Hooiser state has 8,591 targets compared to California’s 3,212. The Amish Country Popcorn Factory in Bergholm, IN is on the list, but the Empire State Building is not. I couldn’t make this stuff up.

The more DHS promises to improve and stop wasting money, the worse things get. Last year, more than half of contracts were awarded without a full competitive bidding process, compared to 19 percent in 2003. If it seems to you like the Katrina recovery is going awfully slow for how much money has been spent, perhaps you aren’t considering the 2,000 sets of dog boots costing $68,442; the 54 gallons of cleaning solution costing $80; 54 iPOds worth $7,000; 37 designer rain jackets for a Customs and Border Protection firing range that isn’t used when it is raining; and a beer brewing kit for $1,000 purchased by DHS staff.

This Homeland Security Appropriations bill does nothing to require stronger oversight or to stop the hemorrhaging of money to our least-vulnerable areas. The popcorn factory and petting zoo lobby will be happy, but I am disgusted, and I urge my colleagues to join me in voting no.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the conference report and the provisions dealing with chemical plant security.

I truly regret this issue is being debated in the context of an appropriations bill. As Chairman of this Body’s two Committees of jurisdiction, I am committed to engaging the policy debate in the future on chemical plant security legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I have been astounded by the lack of real knowledge by some professors about the way that chemical plants are regulated under existing Federal laws. When Congress resumes this debate in the next couple of years, it is essential that all interested persons know what their government and the private sector are already doing before heaping an array of well-intentioned mandates on government and the private sector.

America does not become more secure by piling on more laws, it just becomes more regulated.

These provisions on chemical plant security are a step forward in making America more secure—and this is the only criterion by which I find myself supporting them. The legislation is far from perfect. However, it does establish, for the first time, an actual, and enforceable chemical plant security program for the whole Nation.

Let me highlight some key provisions:

First, this legislation requires chemical plants to conduct vulnerability assessments and security plans. Similar steps have been required of other facilities by Congress and have passed without a dissenting vote.

Second, this legislation requires the Department of Homeland Security to develop risk-based security plans for securing high risk chemical plants within the next six months. This provision includes a much wider scope of plant coverage than what the Senate spending bill contained and it also makes the critical distinction that not every chemical facility or operator has the same risks, or is similarly vulnerable.

Third, this legislation allows the Department to approve chemical plant regimes that other public or private interests develop that meet the criteria in the Department’s regulations. This is crucial because it allows parties that have already invested in protecting chemical plants from terrorist attacks to avoid having those costs stranded simply because they had the foresight and initiative to act before this legislation became law.

Fourth, this legislation protects sensitive information. We must never make security-sensitive information about chemical plants available to anyone for the asking, including terrorists. Information protections have been included in every homeland security for securing high risk chemical plants within the next six months. This provision includes a much wider scope of plant coverage than what the Senate spending bill contained and it also makes the critical distinction that not every chemical facility or operator has the same risks, or is similarly vulnerable.

Fifth, this legislation keeps the Department focused on chemical plant security. Some people want to have the Department’s mission diluted with extraneous tasks such as regulating chemical plant pollution, chemical plant manufacturing processes, or chemical plant workplace relations.

We must not dismiss the volumes of environmental and manufacturing laws and enforcement expertise at both the Environmental Protection Agency and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, not to mention their state counterparts, so another Agency of the Federal government can get into the act.

Sixth—this phrase “industrially safer technologies” some want to vest in the Department of Homeland Security the power to regulate chemical feedstocks, processes, and products. One environmental protection agency is enough, Mr. Speaker. EPA has the authority and expertise it needs under the Safe Drinking Water Act, Toxic Substances Control Act, Clean Air Act, and other laws to protect our environment from harmful chemical exposure.

Let’s let the Department of Homeland Security focus on protecting us from the threat of chemical terrorism so that our plants and communities are secure, and manufacturing facilities can continue to meet the needs of the American consumer, the American worker, and the American citizen.

Seventh, this legislation distinguishes facilities that are already regulated by Federal law to prevent terrorism consequences. This includes drinking water and Maritime Transportation Security Act (MTSA) facilities. Some more immediate meaning drinking water and maritime transportation facilities do not get protection. On the contrary, the protection from terrorism we’ve already given them is so good we don’t want conflicting regulatory programs to interfere.

We don’t plant DHS, which is not an environmental or public health agency, setting de facto drinking water standards under the guise of security regulations. Both the Public Health Security and Bioterrorism Preparedness and Response Act and the Homeland Security Act create new DHS power in charge of drinking water facilities. Let’s keep it there.

Eighth, this legislation requires DHS to audit and inspect chemical facilities to ensure compliance. Further, any facility not in compliance faces civil penalties and those facilities who do not obey an order to take corrective action face the prospect of being forced to cease operation. Considering its consequences for dedicated workers and its downstream impacts on interstate commerce, I trust this power would be used, if ever, only as a last resort.

Last, this legislation prevents private rights of action against the chemical facility solely as a means of private parties enforcing the security provisions in this section. This bar against third-party suits does not extend to any presently existing right a person might have under any other law. Simply, this provision prevents self-deputized persons from using the courts to enact national security policy.

Mr. Speaker, imperfect as the chemical security section is, it is better than current law and should make us a more secure nation. I urge all my colleagues to support its inclusion in this bill and adoption of the conference report.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, two years after the bipartisan 9/11 Commission gave the Republican led Congress and this Administration fail- ing grades for their efforts to secure our na- tion, they are still failing the American public. Take the issue of port security for example.面上 Coast Guard has identified over $7.3 billion in port security needs over the next decade, yet since 2002 we have barely pro- vided $900 million.

Four days ago the Homeland Security De- partment announced its latest round of port security grants and not one single penny was given to the Port of Oakland in my district, even though it is the fourth busiest container port in the country.

Instead of spending money to secure the Port of Oakland—seven of our nation’s ports, we are spending nearly $2 billion a week—over $321 billion so far—to fight this unnecessary war in Iraq.

A war which our intelligence services are now telling us is spawning a whole new genera- tion of terrorists and making us less safe.

Mr. Speaker, we should be spending tax- payer dollars to secure our nation, not to cre- ate new terrorists.

While I support the funding in this bill, I believe we need much more.

Democrats have proposed a new direction for America that delivers on our homeland se- curity needs. It’s time for a change, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, while this bill pro- vides important funding that is very late in coming for our border security, there are still holes in the funding Congress has passed . . . and what the 9–11 Commission said was the 9–11 Commission should do to combat the terrorist threat.

Let us use the Intelligence Reform bill that became law in December, 2004, as a bench- mark of what this nation must do to try and control the security of our borders: the bill mandated 10,000 Border Patrol agents over 5 years (2,000 annually) and 40,000 detention beds over 5 years (8,000 annually).

Here is a compilation of all the funding bills the Congress has passed that have become law—including the bill passed today, laying out how many Border Patrol agents and how many detention beds we have actually funded: Emergency Supplemental in 2005 (Passed May 2005), 500 Border Patrol Agents, 1,950 Detention Beds; FY06 Homeland Security Chemical Security Program Report (Passed June 2005), 1,000 Border Patrol Agents, 1,800 Detention Beds; Emergency Supplemental in 2006 (Passed June 2006), 1,000 Border Patrol Agents, 4,000 Detention Beds;

Add in what we are passing today: FY07 Homeland Security Appropriations Bill, 1,500 Border Patrol Agents, 4,870 Detention Beds;

Our grand total of what we should have done according to the 9–11 Commission to do was, 4,000 Border Patrol agents and 16,000 detention beds. While we are finally caught up on paying for the least the 9–11 Commission said we should do for Border Pa- trol agents, we are still 1,550 short on detention beds.

Never let it be said that we did the least we could do—this Congress is paying for less than what the 9–11 Commission said was the least we should do. And let me add that it took a national guilt trip and backlash to get this Congress to pay for the least amount of Bor- der Patrol agents the 9–11 Commission de- manded.

What has appalled so many of us is that DHS is releasing thousands of illegal immi- grants into the general population of the U.S. because they simply do not have the detention space to hold them. These illegal immi- grants—also referred to as OTMs (other than Mexicans)—are given what they call “walking papers” and are released on their own recogni- zance with an order to appear at a deporta- tion hearing weeks after they release. In fact, they are asked where they are trav- eling to in order to give them a hearing near their final destination. Of course, they rarely return. This is hurting the morale of our U.S. Border Patrol Agents and it is a misguided priority.

Because of “catch and release” the number of immigrants who have come across our bor- ders has significantly increased. According to the April 2006 Department of Homeland Secu- rity Inspector General report here’s what underfunding border security means: 774,112 illegal immigrants were apprehended during the past three years. Of those, 280,987—or 36 percent—were released largely due to a lack of personnel, bed space and funding.
Our willful neglect of our border security had galled our fellow citizens. As a political gesture, this Administration and this Congress want to build a wall and militarize the border? That’s not what we need. We need to keep our promises to the American people and fund the priorities we want.

We must send a clear message that when you cross our borders illegally, you will be caught and detained. I get our desperate fiscal situation. But compromising border security is not the way to trim the deficit.

At some point, this Congress must deal with the national security risks that remains with the very large number of OTMs released into the general population who are still unaccounted for. Funding the effort to locate all the released OTMs is going to make paying for the minimum number of agents and beds seem like child’s play.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the conference report.

Pursuant to clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Ms. Curtis, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed a bill of the following title in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 3661. An act to amend section 29 of the International Air Transportation Competition Act of 1979 relating to air transportation to and from Love Field, Texas.

WAIVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 5122. JOHN WARNER NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1062 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 1062
Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 5122) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2007 for military activities of the department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived. The conference report shall be considered as read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COLE) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Matsui), pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and attach tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, today, the Rules Committee met and reported a special rule for consideration of H.R. 5122, the fiscal year 2007 National Defense Authorization Act. The rule waives all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration and provides that the conference report shall be considered as read.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the rule for H.R. 5122 and the underlying legislation. Today, we are at a critical juncture. The conference report for the fiscal year 2007 National Defense Authorization Act is before us. This legislative companion to the fiscal year 2007 defense appropriations bill authorizes and provides critical legislative language for full implementation of our defense policy.

Let us be clear: This is an excellent piece of legislation, a good bipartisan package that represents the best work of the House Armed Services Committee. Recognizing that, I would like to personally thank both the gentleman from California, Chairman Hunter, and the gentleman from Missouri, Ranking Member Skelton, for delivering a package that I am sure almost all of us can support.

Mr. Speaker, having served on the House Armed Services Committee and currently being a member on leave of absence from that committee, I know how closely the members of that committee work together to achieve a bill that is bipartisan, that is good for our servicemen and women and that is good for increasing the security of our country.

Mr. Speaker, this year, the Armed Services Committee produced a bill that contains several major legislative initiatives and funding impacts. Among them are an additional $70 billion in supplemental bridge funding to support the war on terror’s operations costs; personnel expenses and procurement of new equipment; additional funding for force protection needs in support of Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom, including up-armored Humvees, Humvee IED protection kits and gunner protection kits, IED jammers and state-of-the-art ammunition; a 2 percent pay raise for all members of our Armed Forces; and an increase of 30,000 personnel for the Army and 5,000 personnel for the Marine Corps to help them sustain their required missions.

The bill blocks the Department of Defense proposed TRICARE Prime, Standard, and Select Reserve fee increases. The bill authorizes grants and loan guarantees to U.S. shipyards to approve their efficiency, cost effectiveness, and international competitive performances. The bill fully funds the immediate Army and Marine Corps short-falls for replenishing supplies and replacing equipment in the amount of $17.1 billion for the Army and $5.7 billion for the Marines.

Mr. Speaker, more importantly this legislation directly supports our servicemen and -women in the field and on deployment. Operations in Iraq and Afghanistan are dependent on us passing this legislation that contains so many changes in legislative language.

Mr. Speaker, a bumper sticker we often read says: “I support our troops.” Today we have that opportunity and responsibility. We could support our troops and improve the security of our Nation in a way that other Americans can. We can offer support of this legislation as 60 of 61 members of the House Armed Services Committee did when they initially passed the bill.

This is not a controversial proposition. This is something we should be proud to do, regardless of our perspectives and different positions on the war in Iraq. All of us are proud of our troops. All of us are committed to them and commend them for their courage and their professionalism, and all of us will do everything we can to increase their safety and effectiveness.

Mr. Speaker, I would be remiss if I did not also note that the Afghan and the Iraqi people also deserve to be commended for their efforts in our common struggle. During the decades of both these countries have held elections, written constitutions, and formed permanent governments. Afghan and Iraqi citizens are watching what we do here today. They require and request our continued support as they move forward in their efforts to build new and better countries. The passage of this rule and underlying legislation is an important sign that this country and Congress will keep its commitments. Afghanistan and Iraq are striving to create a future of hope and promise. We can play an important role in helping them do that here today.

Mr. Speaker, many may wish to raise policy issues in this debate. Some may want to discuss issues that, however important, are superfluous to providing for the needs of our men and women in uniform. And I welcome that exchange, if indeed it occurs.

Mr. Speaker, I believe we should focus on what should count. We have committed hundreds of thousands of our service men and -women to fight terrorism and advance the cause of freedom in Iraq and Afghanistan. We owe them our full support in the battles they wage on behalf of the American people and the cause of liberty. This rule and the underlying bill represent the efforts of Congress to keep that solemn commitment to the service and sacrifice of America's Speaker, to that end, I urge support for the rule and the underlying bill.

I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Oklahoma for yielding me the customary 30 minutes, and I yield myself such time as I might consume.

(Ms. MATSUI asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, the rule before us makes in order a conference report for the fiscal year 2007 defense authorization bill. The underlying agreement has been a long time in the making, and I am happy to report that it is in the spirit of bipartisanship, I applaud the conferees for refraining from adding extraneous provisions. This bill is about our troops, and I appreciate the Members preserving that focus.

I am not unsympathetic to the desire of many in this Chamber to do more before we adjourn. As my colleagues and I have been urging all week, Congress should not leave town without allowing for floor debate on the American people’s priorities. These include fully implementing the 9/11 Commission recommendations, allowing a clean vote to increase the minimum wage, and restoring the massive cuts in student financial aid passed by this Congress earlier this year. Despite being the waning hours of this Congress, there is still time to conduct the business of the American people. There is certainly time for debate and a vote on these other urgent priorities.

But to return to the rule we now debate, I allow for consideration of a bill of our national defense and it is a good agreement.

When H.R. 5122 was first considered by the House, I discussed that this bill serves two critical roles: first, as a planning blueprint in order to ensure that our military has the resources and tools to meet any threat from abroad; and, second, to provide for the men and women on the front line of our Nation’s defense.

I am happy to report that the conferees kept both of these goals in mind in crafting this responsible agreement. It goes far in the support of the most professional and dedicated military in the world.

The agreement does not permit increases in the military’s TRICARE prescription drug program, as the House version of this bill would have done. That is a very good thing. Our men and women in uniform should not pay more to access their benefits, particularly in a time of war.

Additionally, the agreement also maintains a critical role of our military chaplains and what they play in the spiritual lives and health of our troops. In a time of war, we cannot afford to change the rules in ways which may degrade readiness and unit cohesion.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I appreciate that fiscally prudent the wirewove in the underlying bill, which preserved the troop strength of our National Guard. The tragedy of Hurricanes Katrina and Rita, the annual wildfires in my home State of California and other parts of the West, as well as many members of the Guard called to duty in Iraq, demonstrate the numerous demands placed on the Guard and the important role they play.

For all that we ask of them, these individuals, be they members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Reserves, or National Guard, ask very little of us in return. What they ask is that we provide the equipment they need to get the job done, provide for them, provide for their family. And the agreement passed today is what I would do. I thank the conferees for their efforts to craft this compromise.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I would like to yield such time as he may care to consume as he may wish to consume to the distinguished chairman of the Rules Committee, the gentleman from California (Mr. DÍEZIER), who does so much to make sure that we operate in an orderly and expeditious fashion in this Congress.

(Mr. DÍEZIER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DÍEZIER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this rule and the conference report. I want to begin by congratulating Mr. Cole and Ms. MATSUI for their management of this rule and to say that this is a great example of bipartisanship.

Our friends DUNCAN HUNTER and IKE SKELETON have worked very closely on this bill, which is, if I recall, $562.8 billion. It includes that $70 billion bridge fund, a 2.2 percent increase which is part of a 40 percent increase over the past 8 years that has been provided for our men and women in uniform. It is a very important thing as we continue to fight this ongoing struggle against terrorism that we are deploying all over the world.

Only the United States of America can provide the kind of leadership that is being provided today. And, Mr. Speaker, I believe that it is absolutely essential that this Department of Defense authorization bill continue to set the example of bipartisanship in our quest to win that war against terrorism.

The reason that I wanted to take a few minutes here, Mr. Speaker, is that I wanted to underscore the fact that our reforms are working.

Now, why would I be talking about the issue of reform as we bring up the Department of Defense conference report’s rule? It is the fact that this is the first time in a conference report that we have actually had a required listing of the so-called earmarks, items that were not included in either the House-passed authorization bill or the Senate-passed authorization bill. We use this term ‘air dropped’. There are five particular provisions, Mr. Speaker, that have been listed. This list is now made available, and the American people, our colleagues on the American people ask for transparency in the media, and obviously this is online, can see exactly what items were provided. And it enjoyed bipartisan support this reform. We had Democrats, whom I am happy to say joined with us in our quest to ensure that we could have greater transparency, disclosure, and accountability so that the American people will be able to see on these very important items the strength of our Nation’s defense capability. They now don’t have those hidden; they are in fact open for everyone to see, and that is a reform led by Speaker HASTERT that we have been able to implement.

And I want to thank the Speaker, Majority Leader BÓEHNER, and Members on both sides of the aisle for their efforts to craft this rule. The three of us introduced the legislation that called for this rule change, and we were able to implement it expeditiously; and it is now in effect, and this conference report is the first time that we have seen it.

So I just want to join in extending congratulations to Messrs. HUNTER and SKELETON and all of those who have been involved in this process and to say that we look forward to the passage of this rule, of course, and passage of the legislation.

Ms. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to my good friend, the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. CAPPS).

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this rule and to the underlying bill. And I do not take a single one of a ridiculous earmark, despite what the Rules Chairman has just stated, which was added by Chairman HUNTER in order to keep the public out of a national park, which happens to be in my district, the Channel Islands National Park.

This provision monkeys around with a court settlement to end a lucrative privately run trophy hunting operation on Santa Rosa Island.

The owners of the elk and deer herds, the Vail family, were already paid $30 million by taxpayers when they decided over the island back in 1986. They were supposed to end this hunting operation entirely. A trophy hunt, which by the way, costs hunters up to $17,000 per weekend, shuts the island to park visitors for 5 months out of each year. Mr. HUNTER is seeking to allow private hunting in the park to go on indefinitely, and this will result in more lawsuits.

One might wonder why this provision is in a bill which deals with supporting our troops. The proposals and reasons behind it have evolved over time. At one point it was to establish a hunting preserve for the military's top brass and their guests. When that didn’t fly, it was quickly changed to making Santa Rosa Island a place for disabled vets to hunt. But when the paralyzed veterans of America actually went to the island, they told Chairman Hunter, and I quote, “the Santa Rosa initiatives is not viable.”

The provision morphed into saving the animals from extinction. That is right. The intention is that we are going to save the animals, though they continue to be hunted indefinitely and on the island. This provision is opposed by the Park Service, the PVA, the Humane Society, and many public lands groups. Even the U.S. Senate unanimously passed a resolution against this proposal.

So what is in the bill? Who knows. What we do know is that taxpayers who paid $30 million for the island are now being told by our chairman they can’t visit it for nearly half the year. This is an insult to our constituents, to all taxpayers. It is also an insult to our troops. This provision to this country is being used as a cover for this special interest boondoggle.

Now, I know the underlying bill will pass by a wide margin, and I understand that also know that this House has never endorsed this proposal. And given the opportunity for an up-or-down vote, I am sure they would agree with me. And so this is yet another sad day for taxpayers, for our national parks, and for this House.

PVA,
July 26, 2006.

Hon. Vic Snyder,
Chairman, House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

Dear Representative Snyder: On behalf of the Paralyzed Veterans of America (PVA), I am writing to convey our inquiry and concerns regarding efforts to provide hunting opportunities for paralyzed and disabled veterans on Santa Rosa Island. While PVA applauds the efforts by Chairman Hunter to open hunting and outdoor venues for our members, other disabled veterans and current service members we have come to the conclusion that the Santa Rosa Island initiative is not viable. PVA has sent one of our members to the island and we have explored possible solutions to the challenges posed by the site; however, it is our opinion that the numerous obstacles inherent to the island, including ingress and egress, logistics, personal safety and cost, far outweigh the possible, limited benefit it could provide.

It is our hope that the concept of expanded hunting and outdoor opportunities on federal facilities for our members, other veterans and service personnel will continue to receive the attention of Congress. Chairman Hunter’s efforts should serve as a starting point for more initiatives to provide accessible venues for both veterans and active duty personnel. We would be happy to work with you and other members to explore alternative opportunities to this issue and identify other opportunities across the country that may afford veterans expanded options.

Sincerely,
Douglas K. Vollmer,
Associate Executive Director for Government Relations.

Department of the Interior,
Office of the Secretary,

Hon. Duncan Hunter,
Chairman, Armed Services Committee,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman: The Department of the Interior would like the opportunity to provide you with section 1036(c) of H.R. 5122, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007, as approved by the House of Representatives.

We recommend deletion of section 1036(c) in order to ensure that the National Park Service is able to continue its progress toward the recovery of species and providing year-round access for other recreational activities on Santa Rosa Island.

Section 1036(c) states that “(the Secretary of the Interior shall immediately cease the use of the plan, approved in the settlement agreement for case number 96-7412 WJR and case number 97-4096 WJR, to exterminate the deer and elk on Santa Rosa Island, Channel Islands, California, by helicopter and shall not exterminate or nearly exterminate the deer and elk.”

We believe section 1036(c) is intended to overturn this settlement agreement that prescribes a phase-out of the privately-owned deer and elk on Santa Island, culminating in their complete removal by the owners by December 31, 2011. The National Park Service is party to that settlement agreement. Fulfillment of the agreement is necessary to accomplish the purposes for which the National Park Service acquired Santa Rosa Island.

The National Park Service purchased Santa Rosa Island for $30 million in taxpayer funds in 1986 after Congress included the 54,000-acre island in the Channel Islands National Park in 1980. The purpose of this acquisition was to restore the native ecology of the island and open it to the public for hiking, camping, sightseeing, and other recreational activities. Although hunting is usually not allowed in National Parks, a private hunting operation for deer and elk was permitted to continue under a special use permit at the request of the owner, who had retained a 25-year reservation of use and occupancy (through 2011) in 7.6 acres on the island. That agreement, along with the court-approved settlement agreement in a case brought by the Paralyzed Veterans of America and the local community, is also opposed by Representative Lois Capps, whose district includes the Channel Islands. Trophy hunting on this island is not viable for several reasons, and is not consistent with the wishes or the mandate of the National Park Service.

Although a large island, the deer and elk managed for trophy shooting have no opportunity to escape their pursuers. It is effectively a “canned” hunt. Conservation groups, hunters and animal protection organizations have openly agreed in their opposition to canned hunts. Canned hunts are commercial enterprises conducted under circumstances that generally violate the laws of the United States. Canned hunts can all be identified by the two traits they have in common: (1) they charge their clients a fee to kill an animal; and (2) they violate the general standards of the hunting community, which are based on the concept of fair chase, by eliminating escape possibilities. Our national park land should be safe havens for animals, not privileged playgrounds for a small group of trophy hunters.

We hope you will omit Hunter’s language to establish a hunting operation on a unit of the National Park Service in the final version of the FY07 National Defense Authorization Act.

Sincerely,
Wayne Pacelle,
President & CEO.

National Parks Conservation Association,
Washington, DC, September 8, 2006.

Hon. John Warner,
Chairman, Armed Services Committee,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman: On behalf of the 327,000 members of the National Parks Conservation Association, I am writing to express our strong opposition to Section 1036(c) of the House-passed National Defense Authorization Act, which purports to modify a court-approved settlement agreement in a lawsuit regarding the management of the Channel Islands National Park. I urge you not to include this harmful provision in the conference report on the DOD bill.

Under the terms of the Settlement Agreement, the park is provided (NPCA v. Kennedy, Civil Action Number 96-742 WJRI) non-native deer and elk are to be removed from the Park's Santa Rosa Island, and the lucrative privatization of its range, which undermine restoration efforts and limit public access to the park, are ended by the year 2011. The onerous language in the House bill is to alter that agreement by forestalling removal of the animals.

The ostensible purpose of the language is to create a reserve for American soldiers, disabled veterans, but the Paralyzed Veterans Association has stated unequivocally that Santa Rosa Island is not suitable for that purpose and that its range terrain, accessibility, and cost. This altogether worthy idea is in fact addressed in another section of the bill [Section 1036(a)(b)] which would provide increased hunting and fishing opportunities for disabled veterans and other armed service personnel at many existing, suitable DOD owned locations throughout the country.

On August 6th of this year, the Senate passed S. Res. 488, supporting the continued administration of the Channel Islands National Park. The Congressional mandated purpose of the park is, “to protect and interpret the internationally significant natural, scenic, wildlife, marine, ecological, historic, archeological, cultural and scientific values of the Channel Islands.” The Senate is in accordance with the laws, regulations, and policies of the National Park Service. The Congressional mandate of the park is, “to protect the international significance of its range terrain, accessibility, and cost. This altogether worthy idea is in fact addressed in another section of the bill [Section 1036(a)(b)] which would provide increased hunting and fishing opportunities for disabled veterans and other armed service personnel at many existing, suitable DOD owned locations throughout the country.”

The National Park Service is strongly opposed to this provision, the Department of the Interior has recommended deleting the provision from the bill, and the Department of Defense has never requested it. This unrelated and non-jurisdictional controversy has no place in an important defense authorization bill. If Section 1036(c) is enacted, as a party to the court’s Settlement Agreement, we will have no choice but to pursue every legal avenue to preserve the settlement’s integrity. I hope that will not be necessary, and that you will drop this ill-conceived, unwarranted and damaging provision from the final Defense Bill.

Sincerely,

THOMAS C. KIERNAN,
President, National Parks Conservation Association.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. And the only reason I am rising is to set straight the record which, sadly, has been not accurate that has just been laid out by my colleague, the gentlewoman from California.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. And the only reason I am rising is to set straight the record which, sadly, has been not accurate that has just been laid out by my colleague, the gentlewoman from California. I was taking a bunch of marines who were up hunting up in northern California down the California coastline, and one of them brought up the point that Santa Rosa Island off the coast, which is owned by a private company and which had elk on it, was going to see those deer and elk exterminated, and wouldn’t it be a great place for our wounded people returning from Iraq and Afghanistan, rather than exterminating these animals with helicopters in the end, which is in the court order, to allow our people who like to pursue hunting in the Armed Forces who have been wounded to have a place to go and have a great time with their families

Taking that under advisement, I put a provision in to allow that to happen. I have never put in a provision that was intended to have the Navy brass or VIPs or Army brass or Marine Corps brass out there hunting. This is for wounded people, and right now it is operated by a private company.

The ranching family, whom I have never met, I will tell the gentlewoman I have never met them. I have never had discussions with them, except one of them called up and asked me to tell the Park Service that I have never met them and an anathetism. We say simply, listen, the island is going to be turned over by the private family to the Park Service in 2011. The court orders that all the animals be wiped out, be exterminated, be killed. All these people we say is, don’t exterminate the animals. Don’t shoot them from helicopters, as the court order now directs. Let the herd stay and let us let our disabled veterans hunt.

Now we have the Paralyzed Veterans go over and check out the island. They wrote a letter back saying this is not their cup of tea. It is pretty rough terrain. It is hard to get over to the island. That is why almost nobody from the public comes over. The number of people who visit this 50,000-acre island per day, it is extremely small. There are almost more Park Service people on the island than there are members of the public. And this would only be for a short time during the year.

All we are asking they don’t shoot the animals, don’t exterminate them, and they let the disabled veterans hunt.

Now after the Paralyzed Veterans said this is not our cup of tea, because of the public, and now they go and they visit the island. The Paralyzed Veterans Association has stated unequivocally that Santa Rosa Island is not suitable for that purpose and that its range terrain, accessibility, and cost. This altogether worthy idea is in fact addressed in another section of the bill [Section 1036(a)(b)] which would provide increased hunting and fishing opportunities for disabled veterans and other armed service personnel at many existing, suitable DOD owned locations throughout the country.

will continue, to reach out to people with special needs to make available the wonderful resources on the island. I am happy to take the chairman up on his invitation to visit the island.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER).

Mr. HUNTER. That island is over 50 square miles. Can the gentlewoman tell me how many people from the public visit the island per day on a given day? I yield to the gentlewoman.

Mrs. CAPPS. I don’t have those numbers, but I can certainly make them available to you. Even with it being off limits to the public 5 months of the year, it is either 5,000 or 8,000 visitors that were out there last year. Part of the attraction of the island is its remoteness and the fact that it is set apart.

Mr. HUNTER. Reclaiming my time, if there are 5,000 people per year, that means roughly 20 people per day on that entire island. That’s 5,000 people. With 365 days a year, 10 people a day, so 3,000 people and if you double that, 20 people a day for 50-square miles. That means there is one visitor from the public per 2 square miles on that island per day.

Now we have many, many places in America where we have mixed use, where you have hunters and fishermen and members of the public. These disabled veterans, they are not going to push anybody off the island. If you compare that to our other parks like Yosemite, with thousands of people coming per day, 10 or 20 people per day on a 50-square mile is no density whatsoever.

In fact, I bet you that the park employees, the U.S. Government employees, on many days outnumber, because there are more than 20 of them at any time on the island, I bet you they outnumber the number of visitors.

I tell the gentlewoman, because you have to take a boat trip or an airplane to get to that park, you will never have the type of visitors you get in parks where people can drive up. So that makes it perfect for these wounded people, these great American veterans, to come on over and have a great outdoor experience.

Ms. MATSUJI. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, the rule before us makes no provision for what would happen on the fiscal year 2007 Defense authorization bill. I urge all Members to support its adoption.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. COLE of Oklahoma. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Today, in closing, I want to reiterate the importance of passing this rule. This rule allows us to move forward and pass necessary legislation and do the business of the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I particularly again want to thank the distinguished chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER), and also the ranking member, the distinguished gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON). They have worked together on this legislation and presented us with a truly model bill and one I think they adjusted during the legislative process to meet the needs of American men and women who are serving under very difficult circumstances to protect this country.

I particularly appreciate the fact that they made sure that these deserving individuals got the pay raise, that they made sure that the people who defended the country in the past were not subjected to unnecessary fee increases in the Tricare system, and they worked hard to shift funds towards force protection and the protection of individual American soldiers. And, at the same time, they addressed the very, very serious and critical needs of the Army and Marine Corps in terms of additional personnel and additional equipment.

I think the chairman and the ranking member can be exceptionally proud of their efforts, and I think all of us can appreciate the bipartisan spirit that the members of the House Armed Services Committee acted in, and I am sure when we vote later today we will have a strong vote in support of the legislation.

Obviously, it comes as no surprise that I intend to vote for the rule and the underlying legislation. I urge my colleagues to do the same. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered. The resolution was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RESPIGNATION FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. MURPHY) laid before the House the following resignation from the House of Representatives:

Hon. J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker, House of Representatives, Capitol Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: I hereby resign as the representative of the 16th Congressional District of Florida, effective today.

Sincerely,

MARK FOLEY,
Member of Congress.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Hon. JEB BUSH,
Governor, State of Florida, Tallahassee, FL.

DEAR GOVERNOR BUSH: I hereby resign as the representative of the 16th Congressional District of Florida, effective today.

Sincerely,

MARK FOLEY,
Member of Congress.

JOHN WARNER NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to House Resolution 1062, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 5122) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2007 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe military personnel strengths for such fiscal year, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 1062, the conference report is considered read.

(For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of today.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) each will control 30 minutes. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on the conference report currently under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California? There was no objection.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, let me start out by saying this is a tough job for a lot of our members of the committee and the subcommittees that make up the Armed Services Committee. It involves a lot of travel to the warfighting theaters. Almost every member on our committee has gone multiple times to Iraq and Afghanistan. It involves a lot of time away from families and a lot of tough work in committees. It involves a lot of analyses to try to figure out how to manage the logistical problems of all of the problems that attend the war fight in two theaters, Iraq and Afghanistan, and the war against terror around the world, and at the same time look over that horizon and try to exercise some vision as to what the next conflict may be and what we have to do to prepare for the future.

Let me tell you, Mr. Speaker, I could have no better partner in that endeavor than the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON).
the military and you have got to be in uniform.

Mr. Speaker, this is an immense bill, $532-plus billion. We did something very unusual in this bill and I think unprecedented, and that is that we added $20 billion. This includes lots of money for force protection, for body armor, for up-armed Humvees, for surveillance capability to fight the IED war in Afghanistan and Iraq, lots of things to support the troops, and, of course, all of the quality-of-life issues for the troops.

This pay raise this year means that over the last 80 years, we will have increased pay by a little more than 40 percent for our men and women in uniform. The base readiness of our forces and military construction and all the things that combine to make America's defense apparatus the strongest in the world, we did all of that, but this year we did something extra. We asked the Army and the Marine Corps to come to our committee, largely in classified session, as to what shortages they had that they needed to be funded so that they could take the tanks, the trucks, the fixed-wing aircraft, and the helicopters and all the other pieces of equipment for the Marines and the Army and reset them, that is, repair them as they come off the battlefield so that they can be ready to go again.

A massive analysis. And they came forth with a plan in that analysis. And when we got finished, we funded, we authorized on top of the defense budget $20-plus billion to make up the total reset cost, every dime, that was submitted to us by the United States Army. And the appropriations committee, largely in classified session, as to what shortages they had that they needed to be funded so that they could take the tanks, the trucks, the fixed-wing aircraft, and the helicopters and all the other pieces of equipment for the Marines and the Army and reset them, that is, repair them as they come off the battlefield so that they can be ready to go again.

Mr. Speaker, this is a great bill. I want to mention that we have wonderful members on both sides of the aisle that make up this committee.

And JOEL HEFLEY is leaving after many, many years, a great personal friend and a guy who is kind of architect of privatization of housing so that American military families, many of whom are in homes that were built 40, 50, 60, and 70 years ago and were under some sort of disrepair, now live in new homes that afford a great quality of life. And many of the developments now that they have in come and built on military bases have community centers. I have been in a number of them, where families can come in and enjoy swimming pools and recreation and moms can come in and work out and have their toddlers in a little room right off the exercise room and keep an eye on their kids while they are having a little relaxation and a little rest and where families can get together for social activities.

This new military construction that is springing up all over the United States at our bases is largely a function of MR. HEFLEY's foresight and vision, and he is leaving us after those many years. I have often said JOEL HEFLEY is in the Heritage Club in Congress. He used to rodeo with the great Casey Tibbs and a number of other rodeo greats. He is a wonderful guy whose word was his bond and still is, and we wish him the very best.

And along with us, leaving and running for Governor in Nevada is MR. JIM GIBBONS. JIM GIBBONS also brought a great deal of background and expertise to our committee. As a fighter pilot who worked the Desert Storm I operation and who understands what it takes to fly tactical aircraft as well or better than any member of the Armed Services Committee or the full House, JIM GIBBONS brought a special insight to our committee. He also brought a great love for the National Guard and has been a great and powerful advocate for them.

I know he is going to continue to do that in his new role. But JIM GIBBONS, like JOEL HEFLEY, is one of those quality guys that you just enjoy working with and who comes to the job every day, he cares about the service, he cares about the people that wear the uniform.

There is a real joy in working on this committee, and those gentlemen are people that every one in this House likes to work with and understands the value added that they bring every time they walk into this Chamber or into the committee room. So our many, many thanks to them.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I would like to listen to my great colleague, who has a great taste in coats today because we came with exactly the same outfits here. MR. SKEELTON, the fine gentleman from Arkansas, has done a wonderful job working on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, let me take this opportunity to thank my friend from California for being such a gentleman and for his courtesy not just this year but through the years. We appreciate it very, very much and also his very thoughtful words a moment ago. Mr. Speaker, we thank DUNCAN HUNTER very much.

Leaving us is LANE EVANS, a gentleman who was a marine and served here and is on the top row of our committee for so many years on the Veterans' Affairs Committee and we say a fond farewell to him and thank him for his excellent service to the Nation.

JOEL HEFLEY, who, as the chairman has spoken, is well off, has been such a good friend to all through the years. JIM GIBBONS, who is going into other political pursuits, we certainly wish him well. Dr. SCHWARZ, CYNTHIA MCKINNEY also will not be coming back. We wish them Godspeed in the days ahead.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly support the National Defense Authorization Act. It is, as you may know, named in honor of Senator JOHN WARNER, who is for the last time, under the rules of the Senate, chairing the Armed Services Committee. We thank him for his accomplishments with the Armed Services Committee and if the chairmanship is responsible in large measure for many of the compromises that were allowed under this bill.

This is a good bill. It is good for America. It is good for the troops. It deserves our support. This wartime bill adds a total of $70 billion, and, as was mentioned by the chairman a few moments ago, $70 billion authorization for a bridge fund supplemental, of which $30 billion is for the reset of the equipment lost or damaged in operations overseas.

As many have heard me speak, I am terribly concerned about the readiness of our ground forces, our Army, our Marines; and this bill provides the critically needed downpayment to begin to set that right.

Under the testimony of General Schoomaker, it is not only for the Army, some $17 billion needed this year, but 12 billion reset dollars for over the next several years apiece. And of course, the Army and Marine Corps equipment is wearing out, and we do know that some units are coming back to little or no equipment whatsoever. That has a serious readiness challenge, particularly in the Army and the Marine Corps. Just, in the days and years ahead, prepared to deal with sustained deployment not just in Iraq and Afghanistan but who knows what the future will hold.

I have been blessed, Mr. Speaker, to represent the Fourth District of Missouri. This is my 30th year here in Congress. And during that 30 years, there have been 12 engagements in which American forces have been either deployed or used, some minor, some major, but if the future is anything like the past, we will have times when our forces will need to be prepared to be called on, to be used, if nothing else, to deter aggression or adventurism in the years ahead by other countries. And it is a serious matter to make sure that the reset comes to pass and that the readiness is corrected.

Of course, the ongoing wars in Iraq and Afghanistan demand our immediate attention, but we cannot afford to lose sight of other security challenges that loom across the road.

We are getting seven new ships for the Navy and recommend some $400 million for advanced procurement of a second VA-class submarine. We have a multiyear procurement contract for the F-22, and I very much hope that the books for us to authorize and build.

I am most pleased about what the bill does for our magnificent men and women in the Armed Forces and their families. The end strength for the Army and Marines has increased by 30,000 and 5,000, for the Army and Marines respectively. In addition, this year we are able to enact an initiative first proposed by the gentleman from Mississippi, GENE TAYLOR. This conference report expands the TRICARE Reserve Select to members of the Selected Reserves and terminates the current three-tier eligibility program. I am also particularly glad to note that there is a moratorium on increases on TRICARE and pharmacy fees. I had offered a similar amendment in committee, and I am pleased that that was included in the final product. I am proud that we are able to provide our servicemembers with a well-deserved 2.2 percent pay raise and a targeted pay raise for those mid-grade and senior noncommissioned officers and warrant officers who truly are the backbone of our military.

These are just a few examples of why this is a critical bill at this critical time.

Mr. Speaker, much has been said about Iraq. Much has been said about the fight against terrorism, which has the genesis in Afghanistan. But the bright spot in all of this is the young man and young woman who wear the American uniform. There is no way for us to thank them sufficiently as we should and thank you for your service. And a special note of gratitude for the families of the young men and young women in uniform, to be called on for a year, one, two, three, and in some cases I know some SEALs that have been deployed four times for 7 months at a time. And there is no way really to say thank you well enough to the families that endure this: the spouses; the children; and in some cases, yes, the grandchildren, for which the chairman and I share a mutual interest.

So let this bill be a tribute to their service, a thank you for their service, and a warm note of appreciation to the spouses and children of those magnificent warriors wearing the American uniform.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, at this time I would like to yield 8 minutes to the chairman of the Readiness Subcommittee, Mr. HEFLEY, the gentleman who is departing after 18 years of great service on this committee.

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 5122, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007.

And I would like to thank the chairman of this committee and the ranking member of the committee both. You have earned your pay all the way through, but particularly in the last few weeks as we have struggled to get this conference report through and actually bring this bill to the floor; and I appreciate the yeomen effort that both of you have put in.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield on that point?

Mr. HEFLEY. I don't know if I should, but I guess I will.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. HEFLEY, I appreciate that. Let me just say the fact that we were able to bring this bill to the floor and do as much work as we did on it, as big as it is and as comprehensive as it is and with so many people dependent on it and at the same time do the bill that will allow us to prosecute terrorists, do all that, that takes tremendous staff, this wonderful bipartisan staff that we have on the Armed Services Committee.

They have done a fabulous job, and that is why we are able to juggle these two important challenges at the same time. They are great, great people, and what professionals, and also people who can work very effectively when they have been up for 24 hours. That has always astounded me, frankly, but they have done a great job, and I think they deserve a lot of thanks from this committee.

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HEFLEY. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. MCHUGH. Mr. Speaker, I am sure the chairman will yield you some more time.

Let me start off by associating myself, as I know all of us do, with the comments of the esteemed chairman.

But, Mr. Chairman, I know you would agree with me that it is appropriate to recognize the many years of loyal and dedicated service to the House Armed Services Committee, this is Subcommittee Chairman HEFLEY's final authorization bill.

He has been a lion in defense of the men and women in uniform. He has been a guiding light to more junior 14-year Members such as myself. I just wanted to let the record show how much we are going to miss him and how much we all appreciate the great service he has provided to this committee, to the people of this country, and, most importantly, to the men and women in uniform of the United States of America. Thank you, Joel.

Mr. HEFLEY. Thank you, Mr. MCHUGH. I appreciate that very much and the kind words Mr. SKELTON said earlier.

You know, there is a lot that I am going to miss about Congress; and more than anything else is my service on this committee. Because you felt very strongly I was working on this committee that you were doing something worthwhile, something that was important for America. I am so privileged to have done this with the wonderful people that are on the committee and also on the staff. We do have an absolutely outstanding staff that we are very proud of.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HEFLEY. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. SKELTON. I really want to say a special personal thanks to you for the tremendous work you have done on our committee and in working with me in particular for helping Whiteman Air Force Base, Ft. Leonard Wood, Missouri, be what it is. I would be remiss if I did not just say a special note of gratitude to you, JOEL HEFLEY.

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. SKELTON, thank you so much. You have been such a good friend over the years.

And I also would be remiss if I did not thank Mr. ORTIZ, SOLOMON ORTIZ. He and I have been teammates leading the Readiness Committee but before that leading the Military Construction Committee.

I would guess that we have agreed on 95 percent or more of everything we have dealt with during this period of time. In fact, I can't think of anything, SOLOMON, that we have not agreed on, but there might have been something. But, obviously, if we did not agree, we disagreed in a professional, pleasant, friendly way and moved on to try to do what is best for our troops and for the defense of this country. SOLOMON, I cannot tell you how much I appreciate you.

Mr. Speaker, you know, despite 5 years of demanding combat operations, our Nation's military remains the most effective, most powerful, most ready force in the world. However, it comes as no surprise that the wear and tear of the years of wartime activities have resulted in increased funding requirements for training, operations, equipment and maintenance.

Recognizing this, the Readiness Subcommittee has conducted rigorous oversight on military readiness through hearings, classified briefings, and visits with military personnel in the field. Our oversight efforts led the committee to include in this conference report both funding and policy actions intended to further enhance the readiness of our military forces.

The most striking example is the inclusion of nearly $24 billion within the supplemental budget accounts for the repair, modernization, and replacement of equipment damaged or destroyed in Iraq and Afghanistan. This money will satisfy all past and current reset requirements of the Army and Marine Corps.

But suspect, Mr. HUNTER, you have probably already mentioned this, but this is the high point of our bill. This is so important.

The conference report also includes important policy initiatives that will improve readiness and allow Congress to better monitor readiness-related developments within the services, such as:

A requirement that the Secretary of Defense fully fund equipment reset for all of the services, equipment for Army mobility, modality, and Army prepositioned stocks;

A requirement for the Department of Defense to create a uniform strategy policy for the prepositioning of materiel and equipment;

A mandate for continued capital investment into our depot maintenance facilities.
In addition to such efforts, this conference report also authorizes more than $13 billion for military construction projects, more than $1 billion for family housing, and $5.6 billion for implementation of the 2005 base closure rounds. These funds are critical for both quality of life and military readiness.

I would like to add here that I hope we will not use these base closure monies to do other things, because it is important to do base closure procedures that we do it and we get these properties back into some useful use.

In conclusion, this conference report provides the necessary funding and policy changes to improve our Nation’s military readiness. I urge my colleagues to support the conference report for this very important bill.

You know, in 20 years that I have been here, Mr. SKELETON, I am not proud of everything we have done. I am proud of some things we have done, but I am not proud of everything we have done. But I can tell you I am very proud of this bill. It is a good bill, as you said and Mr. HUNTER said. We need to support it.

Mr. SKELETON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

Mr. SPRATT. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to support and to praise the chairman and the ranking member for their efforts in bringing this bill to fruition this fall, rather than providing a Christmas Eve, as was our experience last year.

There may be some questions as to whether or not it is worth it, to have two committees process a bill of this magnitude, an authorization process and an appropriations process. But in addition to having a second scrub of a $462 billion bill, that double, two-part process also leads to some positive provisions from each mark. Let me just highlight a couple to show you some of the valuable features in this bill.

A couple of years ago, we became concerned about the level of Servicemembers’ Group Life Insurance. We increased the amount of coverage from $250,000 to $400,000.

I offered an amendment to pay for the full premium for those troops that go into a combat zone and hazardous duty zones. That did not pass, but we did pass a provision that $150,000 of the increased coverage would be paid for. This bill takes it a step further, as it should.

What we are saying in this bill is that the full $400,000 of life insurance coverage in the combat zone will be paid for when you enter the combat zone. This is the least we can do for those who put their lives on the line for our country. The least we can do is to make sure that their family and loved ones should be taken care of in that manner if the worst should happen to them.

Second, nonproliferation is a major concern, big defense risk. In this particular bill, we plussed-up the President’s budget for the megaports bill by $15 million, and we added $20 million to the Global Threat Initiative. This additional funding will allow for the installation of additional radiation detectors at the world’s major border crossings and ports and help secure and dispose of nuclear material in some of the most vulnerable research reactors around the globe.

Finally, one of the things we did not do was to endorse the authorization for space-based missile defense. I have always had great concerns about the efficacy. This bill says to ballistic defense: Before you undertake this program, make sure it works, what its scope is, what its strategic implications are.

And, finally, we right and timely put in this bill $23.7 billion to reset the capital assets of the Marine Corps and the Army. And this is an illustration of a cost that is going to be staring us in the face for years to come as we try also to fund transformation and modernization.

We will have to pay this expense just to keep standing still, another reason we needed a bill of this magnitude, $462 billion. So do not count on it. I commend the leadership of this committee for bringing this bill to fruition.

Mr. HEPFLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. DRAKE).

Mrs. DRAKE. Mr. Speaker, predatory lending practices have become a major concern in areas surrounding military installations. This is of particular concern in the Second District of Virginia, with a very high number of payday lenders. Interest rates on these loans have been recorded as high as 780 percent.

Many young servicemembers attempt to climb out of debt by adding additional debt on top of debt, which quickly becomes unmanageable. Lenders add to this by encouraging extensions of the loan through refinancing. This type of predatory lending leads to multiple issues, chief among them, the loss of a security clearance. A military member lost in uncontrollable debt could be a security risk, and clearances are often revoked. This represents a national security issue.

Additionally, this represents a moral issue. Individuals have a tendency to co-sign or co-own loans when they are mired in uncontrollable debt. When servicemembers are concentrating less on their mission and more on their debt, it affects readiness.

To safeguard servicemembers, the conference report prohibits creditors from rolling over loan balances, charging annual percentage rates that are higher than 36 percent, including fees, and it prohibits the borrower from pre-paying the loan or charging the borrower a fee for prepayment.

This is a fairness issue. It has been a grave concern to our military commanders. I would like to commend our chairman, our ranking member and our committee for their concern for this issue.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. DRAKE. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

You know, we went into this thing. I thank her for all of the great work that she did and lots of other Members who really worked this hard. I know Mr. DAVIS brought some important elements to this package.

We wanted to have a package that would make the sergeant majors who saw their kids going out and paying massive loan fees trying to pay off their loan, they could not pay it off, having the loan rolled over, and then seeing higher and higher fees stacked on top of that. In fact, I think it was Mr. DAVIS’ provision that barred the roll-overs.

We want to see those sergeant majors see a bill come out of our committee and out of conference that, as I said, would make them throw their hats in the air and shout: Hooray, Congress has done what it took for our kids.

And we kept them apprised, as we moved this conference report along, as the gentlewoman knows in working on the team, to protect our people. And when we showed them the product, they threw their hats in the air, and they yelled hooray, and they felt like it was a good product.

You know, the other thing we have got to do is we have got to get these credit unions that are in the base, the guys in the institutions we allow to be inside the perimeter of that base, to reach out and establish short-term loans for our servicemembers so servicemembers go there instead of feeling they have got to go to a loan shark to get that loan.

I thank the gentlewoman for her leadership and her great work on this.

Mr. SKELETON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. ORTIZ), the ranking member on Readiness.

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the bill. I want to thank Chairman HUNTER and Mr. SKELETON for their skills and leadership in addressing the military issues before us today. I want to thank Chairman HEPFLEY for your friendship, for your leadership and for so many years you and I have worked together. I will always remember the good that you have done for this country and for those young men and women who are in harm’s way. I know that you are too young to retire, but I wish you the best in whatever you do, and we are going to miss you around here.

This bill provides, in some measure, for the needs of our troops and their families. One of the most important parts of this bill is the attention given to the immediate readiness needs of our men and women in uniform.
The bill takes some action to address the shortfalls in operations, training and maintenance funding that the Department of Defense failed to address in their budget submission.

Now we have taken care of our most immediate readiness needs, which we have. But we have not yet begun to address, but I can tell you this is a very, very good beginning.

When we come back to this in the next Congress, again after we recess, we need to particularly address the lack of equipment for the National Guard and for the Reserves. The National Guard and Reserves have been as busy as the active duty military in Iraq and Afghanistan, and they need to be considered equal in status with the other partners in our fighting efforts.

The equipment shortfalls for the National Guard mean we will be unable to respond as we need to do in the next natural disaster, or God forbid, another war.

I thank Chairman Hunter, Chairman Hefley for their outstanding work, but I want to thank my ranking member, Ike Skelton, the top Democrat on the committee whose outstanding leadership has gone a long way to address the many problems in our defense budget, while balancing the need for our military to remain the world's premier fighting force.

So I ask my friends, my colleagues to support this bill. It includes $310 billion in O&M funding to operate the military, $17 billion funding for the military construction, and an additional $20 billion added to the bridge funding to help offset some of the immediate needs of the Army and the Marine Corps.

This is a good bill. I want to thank the staff as well for doing a great job.

Mr. Hefley, Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Upstate New York (Mr. McHugh), absolutely tirelessly as chairman of our Personnel Subcommittee.

Mr. McHugh. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, this is a great bill and it is a great bill given the times we live in, the challenges that our men and women in uniform and their families face in, frankly, the economic environment in which we find ourselves.

I know my ranking member Vic Snyder and I both feel a great deal of pride year after year that when a majority of Members of this House will speak kindly about this bill, which they will, they will refer to many of the provisions in the personnel mark.

We owe a debt of gratitude to the chairman, Duncan Hunter, and to the ranking member for allowing us to have the opportunity to try to do better by the most important part of a great military, the most important part of the greatest military the world has ever seen, that of the United States of America; and I know, Mr. Speaker, many that have gone before and others that will follow have talked about the terrific things in this bill, the 2.2 percent pay increase that diminishes that gap between military and pay that had existed down to 4 percent from a high of about 14 percent.

We increased strength, adding tens of thousands of soldiers into the Army and the Marine Corps to lessen the pace of deployments and the operations tempo.

Most importantly, in my judgment, at a time of war, when our men and women in uniform are sacrificing, when we have made commitments to our veterans, we rejected to the tune of $486 million, that the conferees had to find the increases proposed by the Department of Defense to the military health care system in both the TRICARE program, as well as the pharmacy program. None of those increases will occur.

I also want to add my words of thanks, indeed, to the gentlewoman from Virginia (Mrs. Drake) and to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Davis) for their work in ending the scourge of predatory payday lenders who get rich on the backs of the men and women in uniform and their families.

This is a terrific mark from top to bottom; but we are particularly proud of the personnel marks, and I would hope all of our colleagues would vote in support of this legislation.

Mr. Skelton, Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 1/2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from El Paso, Texas (Mr. Reyes), who is also the ranking member of the Strategic Forces Subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee.

Mr. Reyes. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I rise in support of this conference report on the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007. I want to thank our chairman, Chairman Hunter, and our ranking member, Ike Skelton, the staff on both sides. So many people have put in so much effort and a lot of work on this bill that supports our men and women in uniform.

While I might have preferred a more inclusive process, taken as a whole, the product is worthy of everyone's support in this House. It provides our troops with tools and support that they need to defend our Nation at a time of war.

I am particularly pleased that the final legislation does not include language that linked funding for the Army's Future Combat System with the critical need to replace and repair equipment that has been lost or damaged in Iraq and Afghanistan.

As the ranking member of the Strategic Forces Subcommittee, I am also pleased to report that the final bill before us today contains bipartisan compromises on the issues within our jurisdiction.

The Strategic Forces Subcommittee has oversight of numerous complex and contentious programs, including the ground-based midcourse defense system, the AGS ballistic missile defense system, the Patriot PAC-3 system, the Terminal High Altitude Area Defense system, and the sensors necessary to support such systems.

I rise in support of the House provision preventing use of funds for testing or deployment of a space-based missile defense interceptor.

Mr. Speaker, while time does not permit me to describe in detail the rest of the conferees' work that I again want to thank Chairman Everitt and our Senate colleagues for their cooperation in achieving this bipartisan, successful measure; and I want to recognize colleagues that they vote 'yes' on this very important legislation to support our troops and their families.

Mr. Hefley. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. Simpson), the ranking member of our committee and a distinguished Vietnam War veteran.

Mr. Simmons. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman, I thank the Chair, and I rise in support of the Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007, which is a bill that brings good news to our men and women in uniform and especially good news for the U.S. submarine force and to the American shipbuilding industry.

The conference report before us contains $600 million in spending authorization to begin the construction of two fast attack submarines in the year 2009 and also expresses a sense of the Congress that the attack submarine force should not drop below 48, the stated requirement of the U.S. Navy to meet its critical missions.

Because of submarine shortfalls, the Navy is on track to meet only 54 percent of the submarine force requirement as requested by the U.S. combatant commanders. We need to do better than 54 percent. This legislation puts us in the right direction of doing better, and we will do better.

My colleagues on the House Armed Services Committee understand this reality, and I would especially like to thank subcommittee Chairman Roscoe Bartlett from Maryland, and the ranking member, Gene Taylor from Mississippi. These gentlemen probably have more knowledge about American and global shipbuilding than any one else in the Congress. I would also like to thank my colleague from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN), who for the last 4 years has worked with me in a bipartisan fashion on these issues and is the co-chair with me on the Congressional Submarine Caucus.

Finally, I want to thank Ranking Member Skelton who works in such a fine bipartisan fashion and our chairman, Duncan Hunter, who comes from the city of San Diego with a great shipbuilding tradition and who has also visited my part of Connecticut. We have a shipbuilding tradition as well right in Connecticut, the submarine capital of the world. That is what we call it.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SIMMONS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend for yielding.

I just want to thank the champion of Groton for his hard work and all the work that Mr. LANGEVIN, and as you said, Mr. TAYLOR and Mr. BARTLETT, have done. I want to thank all of them for their great work and also to the gentleman for his hard work on payday lender and trying to make sure that the troops have a good situation now and will not be the victims of loan sharks and what to do on that.

You have brought a real insight to undersea warfare that has been important to us and especially in a Taiwan scenario or another type of scenario in the future which could be very, very critical to American sea power.

I thank the gentleman.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. In concluding, he referred to his $88 a month and the loan sharks. When I was in as a private, I made $68 a month. The loan sharks were out there. So the legislation to get them off the backs of our soldiers is welcome news.

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the hardworking gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN), a member of the Projection and Terrorism Subcommittee.

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Before I begin, I just wanted to recognize and commend the great service of my friend and colleague, Congressman Hefley, and I have so enjoyed serving with you in a number of capacities, particularly in our work in the Armed Forces Committee. We had an opportunity to work on several important issues, and I thank you for being such a gentleman and giving such great service to this Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 5122 and thank Chairman Hunter and Ranking Member Skelton for their hard work.

The bill helps our servicemembers and their families, as well as military retirees. It includes a 2.2 percent pay increase for personnel and much-needed increases to end-strength numbers. It places a 1-year moratorium on cost increase for the TRICARE pharmacy benefit and expands TRICARE eligibility for Reservists, two very important issues to my constituents.

I am particularly pleased that H.R. 5122 recommends $100 million to expedite the construction schedule for the Virginia-class submarine so that we can start building two per year as early as 2009. I commend the great work of my friend Congressman SIMMONS and his leadership on this issue. He is a great partner in this effort. The Navy’s plans call for our submarine fleet drop to dangerously low levels, and this bill underwrites we cannot allow that to happen.

I thank the committee for its leadership in its efforts, all of the staff and all of my colleagues on the committee for their efforts to accomplish these important goals, and I encourage my colleagues to support the measure.

Mr. HEPFLE. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. EVERTT), who is chairman of our Strategic Forces Subcommittee.

Mr. EVERETT. Mr. Speaker, I thank you very much. We are going to miss Mr. HEPFLEY. We still have some unfinished business between us that I am going to hold him to.

I want to recognize also the gentleman from California, my long-time friend, the chairman of the committee. I do not think in the 14 years I have been here that I have had the privilege to serve with anyone who has the patience that he has had. He has a great skill in leading this committee, and he mentioned earlier in his opening remarks about the fact that this committee works so hard, and it does. The members take very seriously what they are doing.

I had the great privilege, along with Mr. MCCLUSKEY, of being the first Members of Congress into Baghdad after we invaded, and I just appreciate his outstanding leadership and dedication to the fighting men and women of our country.

And also the gentleman from Missouri, who has the same type dedication, and who knows that he is welcome back to Dauphin, Alabama, any time he wants to. It has only been about 40 years since he has been there. I do support the conference committee, the National Defense Authorization Act, H.R. 5122. It supports the administration’s objectives, while significantly improving the budget request.

Moreover, our national security investment must continue to develop transformation capabilities of future systems, and this conference report does that.

Finally, let me also say that my subcommittee, the one that I head, Strategic Forces, simply would not have been able to work like it did in a very bipartisan manner if it had not been for my good friend, Mr. Reeves of California. Much of what we have been able to do has been on a bipartisan basis, as he had mentioned earlier, on very complex, contentious issues, perhaps some of the most contentious issues in the committee. We were able to reach a consensus that would serve the best interests of our fighting troops, and I again thank him for his efforts as well as the other committee members who oftentimes had different views. But we all came together.

I want to also have an outstanding staff who has to study these very complex issues to see if we can’t come to an accord that is in the best interest of the Nation.

So, again, I recommend supporting the final version of this bill.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the very distinguished gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. SNYDER), the ranking member on the Personnel Subcommittee.

Mr. SNYDER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman; and I rise in support of this bill. I think this bill has a lot of good things in it for our troops, and I appreciate all the work Members on both sides of the aisle have done.

I want to mention two or three things that I think we need to work on and maybe we can work on in the future.

First of all, Mr. MCCLUSKEY and I participated in a joint hearing yesterday on the administration’s proposal of the Veterans Committee’s subcommittees, and Ms. Herseth, the ranking member; and we had a really good hearing on the GI bill.

The GI bill has challenges. We have problems now in that the GI bill program for folks in the Active component is a different program than for those in the Reserve component, the folks in the Army Reserves and the National Guard. What has happened as the years gone by it has become a really terribly unfair program for our folks in the Reserve component, and for the folks in the Active component, the cost of going to school gets higher and higher.

So we had a good hearing yesterday. I hope that this joint hearing between the Veterans Committee and the Armed Services Committee will continue but with the ultimate result being we make a change in some of the issues about the GI bill.

One provision I wished had been accepted, Senator LINCOLN had inserted on the Senate side, dealt with what I think is just unconscionable, and that is the way we treat members of the Reserve who are activated in the GI bill.

The way the system currently works is if they get activated, let’s say activated to go to Iraq, 14, 15 months, and then get out. So here they have been in a war zone for a year, their enlistment ends, and once the enlistment ends, there is zero educational benefit. Zero educational benefit.

Now the administration says that helps retention. But the retention numbers are good. That, to me, is terribly unfair, and we need to do a better job on that.

Another provision I wish that we would either do in the defense bill or as a stand-alone provision is what Senator Truman did during World War II. We made available to the Truman Commission to deal with the waste of billions and billions of dollars and the dissatisfaction of American taxpayers with how the dollars have been spent on reconstruction projects in Iraq.

A third point I would make, and I made it before, is I really hope, we have tried it now 10 years without the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, and in my view that has been to the great detriment of the American people, the American taxpayer, and our men and women in uniform. So I hope we will bring back the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations to the House Armed Services Committee.

If you’ll support this bill, and thank you to Chairman HUNTER and Mr. SKELTON for the work they have done on this bill.

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. BARTLETT), who is chairman of the Projection Forces Subcommittee.

Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend Chairman HUNTER and Ranking Member SKELTON for their exemplary leadership in bringing this conference report.

I also want to thank my subcommittee ranking member, Mr. TAYLOR, for his tireless efforts and dedication in the preparation of this important legislation. I am grateful for our strong and cooperative relationship.

In addition, I would like to recognize my fellow colleagues on the subcommittee for their diligence and commitment to a job well done.

They were involved in preparing this conference report before we has been accomplished with the assistance of our professional and hard-working staff, and I commend their efforts and the quality of the final product.

Staff, thank you very much.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this conference report. It strikes an appropriate balance between modernizing and maintaining our existing weapon systems, while investing in replacement capabilities for our future force.

In this bill, we move forward with the development of our future fleet by funding the lead replacement amphibious assault ship and the dual lead DDG-1000 destroyers, while also providing advance procurement funds for the next generation aircraft carrier.

The bill also continues to build-out our fleet of Virginia class attack submarines, San Antonio class amphibious ships, and Littoral Combat Ships. This conference report also contains funds for continuing the refueling and complex overhaul of the USS Carl Vinson and provides funding for the modernization of the Arleigh Burke destroyer and the Air Force’s fleet of strategic airlift and bomber aircraft.

We have taken action to provide our future force with the capabilities they need to meet future threats. We have also taken steps to ensure that the current force is not retired prematurely. This conference report mandates the Department of Defense maintain a minimum strategic airlift force structure of 299 aircraft and allows limited retirements of KC-135E aerial refueling aircraft.

One point of concern deals with the submarine force for the future. It is destined to go back to 40 submarines. It is the strong sense of this subcommittee that it ought to go no lower than 48 submarines.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting our sailors, our airmen, our soldiers and marines by voting “yes” for the fiscal year 2006 National Defense Authorization Act.

Mr. Speaker, may I make an inquiry as to the time remaining for each side, please?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Missouri has 10 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from California (Mr. SKELTON), who is the ranking member of the Projection Forces Subcommittee, a true friend of those who wear the uniform of our country.

Mr. SKELTON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR), who is the ranking member of the Projection Subcommittee, a true friend of those who wear the uniform of our country.

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I thank Chairman HUNTER, the ranking member, and Chairman BARTLETT for the great work they have done.

I also want to thank Lieutenant Commander Kevin Aanestad, who the Navy was nice enough to let work in my office for a year. Just a while back Kevin was flying combat missions in Iraq. He has been assigned to this office, as was last year Captain Randy Edwards, and let us not forget that that is what this bill is all about. It is for the Kevins, the Randys and the people who have been there, and the people who are going there.

I want to thank Chairman BARTLETT for the great work he has done on the dual-lead strategy for the DDX. I think the DDGs have served our Nation very well, but it is time to move on to another platform, and it is great we are finally getting started on that.

I want to thank Chairman McHUGH for including TRICARE for guardmen and reservists in this bill. It was kind of a contentious vote last year. I wish we could have prevailed last year, but the good news is it is going to happen this year. Our guardmen and reservists are called upon increasingly to serve our Nation.

At the time I made my pitch on the floor, 40 percent of the all people serving in Iraq were guardsmen or reservists. Since I made that pitch, we actually had a National Guardman by the name of Josh Russell. He died the night of Hurricane Katrina on a search and rescue mission only 30 miles from his home.

They deserve the same benefits as the Active Duty force. If we are going to use them there and to the Active Duty force, then it is a great thing that this bill is going to give them the same health care benefits.

The only disappointment I would like to express, Mr. Speaker, is number one. I want to thank Chairman HUNTER and thank Ranking Member SKELTON for including language in the bill that would have provided an IED jammer on every vehicle in Iraq. If you look, as I do, at the casualty reports in the Iraq War, the over half of all the casualties in Iraq are the result of IEDs, improvised explosive device exploding near their vehicle. Over half of all the casualties in Iraq are the result of IEDs, improvised explosive devices.

We can jam that signal most of the time. And it is not a parochial thing. These devices are made nowhere near south Mississippi. But what they will do is save the lives of south Mississippians and Marylanders and people from California and people from Missouri. So I deeply regret that the Senate would not agree with us on this provision.

They did, however, include a provision that every vehicle has some sort of coverage. But, again, in the chaos of combat, I think our Nation would be better served if every single vehicle had this provision; and I want to put my colleagues on notice that it is something we need to work on again next year.

So, again, I want to thank Chairman BARTLETT for his great cooperation. JOEL HEFLEY, you are one of the classiest acts that has ever served in the United States Congress. Thank you for your service. Chairman HUNTER, Ranking Member SKELTON, thank you very much for your help on this bill.

I want to thank Chairman HUNTER and Ranking Member SKELTON, as well as Chairman BARTLETT and Ranking Member LEE, for their work on this Conference Report. They have done an outstanding job making this a truly bipartisan effort. As always, Chairman BARTLETT and the Projection Forces staff have done a tremendous job crafting our Subcommittee’s section of the bill. He has gone out of his way to ensure that this is a bipartisan effort, with provisions that make fiscally responsible decisions. I thank the Chairman for his leadership and for his consideration, even on issues on which our views differ. I strongly support the provisions in the Projection Forces portion of this bill.

I would like to thank the Chairman and Ranking Member for the compromise reached on the “dual lead ship” strategy for DDG 1000.
Mr. Speaker, at this time I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Long Island, New York (Mr. ISRAEL), who belongs to the Tactical Air and Projection Subcommittee and who has taken a great interest in professional military education. Mr. ISRAEL. I thank the gentleman. Mr. Speaker, all of us can celebrate this conference report and the support that it provides to our troops. It is a good product, and we have had some hard-fought differences on various issues.

For me, we have been grappling with the proper balance between religious expression and tolerance in the military. I am very pleased that this conference report struck language that in my view would have made it easier to engage in certain practices by overturning existing DOD standards on tolerance of all faiths. And I thank my ranking member, Mr. SKEELO, and I thank Senators WARNER and LEVIN of the other body, the Department of Defense, and many, many different religious organizations, from the National Conference on Ministry to the Armed Forces, to the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops, to the American Jewish Committee, and many others. They understand this is not just an issue of tolerance, Mr. Speaker, it is an issue of good order and discipline and unit cohesion.

We maintain the overall language requiring respect of all religious faiths, but this language does reopen a loophole, a loophole that allowed commanders and chaplains at the Air Force Academy to chastise cadets for not attending certain religious services, a loophole that allowed one chaplain to tell cadets of all faiths that some of them would burn in the eternal flames of hell for not following his faith. So we still have some work to do, and we still have some good-faith discussions ahead of us.

And I want to take this opportunity to say something to my friends on the other side of the aisle and on the other side of this issue, people who I respect and admire a great deal. I want to continue working with them. I have been troubled by the occasional rhetorical excess that has suggested, because I am opposed to proselytizing of any specific religion on any military base, I am somehow trying to stop people from invoking the name of Jesus in their prayers.

Nothing could be further from the truth. People should be able to pray how they want, when they want, where they want, and to whom they want. They just can’t compel others to join them.

For those of you who truly believe that the chaplain who told cadets willing to die in the defense of freedom that after they died they would burn in the eternal flames of hell, well, you and I have some profound differences on that issue. So profound that I don’t think the issue should be decided in 3 weeks of discussion in a House-Senate conference. It ought to be put before the American people in hearings.

And I want to close, Mr. Speaker, by suggesting that, as we move forward in trying to resolve this issue, we all re-dedicate ourselves to the spirit of openness, sensitivity, to tolerance, and respect. And don’t take my word for it. Mr. Speaker, because behind me, carved into this wood dias on the floor of the United States House of Representatives, is the word “tolerance,” right in the center. That word will not remain with us. My speech will come and go. This word will always stay. That is what makes our military great. That is what makes our country worth fighting for.

Mr. Speaker, I want my colleagues here to know that my comments have nothing to do with a lack of appreciation for your efforts on this bill, but rather relate to some institutional and historical concerns that I have.

The U.S. can spend tens of billions of dollars less and do a far better job of protecting our Nation. The defense-industrial complex follows a misguided strategy of buying weapons that provide Americans with no increased safety against ever more expensive fighter jets, massive naval ships, and a missile defense system that provides no additional protection for our Nation.

There are no fighter jets or naval ships that can challenge our Air Force or our Navy. Furthermore, the claimed ballistic missile threat is grossly overexaggerated. Terrorists do not possess ballistic missiles and the few nation states that do have no desire to face the under- sensitivity, to tolerance, and the ability to earn a decent living. If you can level this playing field, there is no desperation that may potentially evolve into radical hatred.
I will support a defense budget that matches real threats to our security with appropriate defensive measures. In the long term, the federal budget needs a fresh look at our foreign policy, that promotes an economic stability worldwide, thereby eliminating the true roots of terrorism, desperation.

IRAQ

The ever-rising cost of our military is not sustainable. This year Congress has handed over to the Pentagon over $400 billion, including $70 billion in “bridge funding” to support ongoing operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. But did we look at this massive number? The Administration will be back before the end of the fiscal year seeking more funding for continuing operation in Iraq and Afghanistan. Of the numerous reasons to vote against this bill, the continued funding for the war in Iraq is especially absurd. If the U.S. were to be withdrawn as soon as possible out of Iraq, we’d save $1.5 billion each week in Iraq, $6 billion a month and $72 billion annually. For every $1 spent on war costs, we are taking $1 away from domestic programs. It is increasingly clear that this Administration’s occupation and reconstruction of Iraq has failed.

After three and half years, Iraq is less safe, not much. All of Iraq’s major cities have failed. It has damaged our once unchallenged reputation. It has cost us in blood and treasure. We have been irrevocably lost, and tens of thousands more injured. Between 100,000 and 200,000 innocent Iraqis have died as a result of the U.S. invasion. Everyday, 120 more Iraqis die at the hands of execution-style death squads, kidnappings, murders, IEDs, and sectarian violence.

The war in Iraq has been a grave and tragic mistake. It has cost us in blood and treasure. It has damaged our once unchallenged reputation.

Mr. Speaker, the greatest tragedy of this war is the 2,669 American soldiers that have been irretrievably lost, and tens of thousands more injured. Between 100,000 and 200,000 innocent Iraqis have died as a result of the U.S. invasion. Even the National Intelligence Estimate suggests the invasion of Iraq has evolved into our largest terrorist threat.

But, Mr. Speaker, the greatest tragedy of this war is the 2,669 American soldiers that have been irretrievably lost, and tens of thousands more injured. Between 100,000 and 200,000 innocent Iraqis have died as a result of the U.S. invasion. Even the National Intelligence Estimate suggests the invasion of Iraq has evolved into our largest terrorist threat.

The President’s promise that we would not leave Iraq until after his Presidency will only compound past failures and make our nation less safe.

Our continued occupation of Iraq is not only counterproductive, but fuels the civil war. Mr. Speaker, I believe it is time we end this grave misadventure in Iraq and bring our troops home with the honor and dignity they deserve.

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished ranking member, I thank the chairman, and I wish best wishes to the distinguished gentleman from Colorado for his service.

Everyone, though, knows that Texas has given the full measure in the war in Iraq and Afghanistan, as have our soldiers across the Nation. But to our soldiers in Texas, I pay great tribute. I rise to simply applaud this conference on its emphasis on military quality of life, military health care that has been improved, and certainly military pay and bonuses.

I also want to acknowledge a very important project that speaks to the partnership between institutions of higher learning like Historically Black Colleges, and a Center for Human Materials Resources that will occur at Texas Southern University that addresses testing of uniforms and equipment. What a new and exciting opportunity for new partners.

Lastly, I would hope that in the future we will be able to address the question I have raised, which is the ability of individuals who are receiving their loved ones who have fallen in battle at Dover Air Force Base to be able to have a public display if they so desire. It is an honor that there are no cameras there for families who desire that. I hope we will be able to address that.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to support this and have no disagreements.

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON), the chairman of our Terrorism Subcommittee.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Speaker, let me just begin by recognizing the true bipartisan nature of this bill. The bipartisan nature of this bill is due in no small part to our great chairman and my friend, DUNCAN HUNTER, and the person that he often refers to as his partner, Congressman IKE SKELTON, and their respective staffs. Ike, thank you very much for your great cooperation, and for working through the summer as conferees with our colleagues in the Senate to fine tune this measure to provide the maximum benefit to our troops at the same time making sure that we fund health care to equipment to armor and to advanced weapons systems for now and those contemplated far into the future.

We funded 11 of the top unfunded requirements for the U.S. Special Operations Command, adding almost $200 million to the command’s acquisition budget. We also funded technology initiatives within each of the services and in DARPA, ensuring the continued defense of our nation’s systems and equipment. Cutting-edge medical research was also addressed.

Seeing a continued greater need for modernization airlift, one the Air Force clearly needed but could not afford, we authorized 12 C-17 aircraft requested by DOD and added 10 more, for a total of 22 C-17 aircraft. I see this as a good start and hope we can continue to fund the C-17 line in future years. The best Army and Marine Corps in the world, which is that which we have, must be able to get to the fight to be effective.

We haven’t forgotten our oversight responsibilities, providing for a number of initiatives in the acquisition, information technology and chemical demilitarization areas.

Mr. Speaker, this is a time of great stress for our Nation for we are in a war which has been referred to in many different terms, but most soberly, the war on terror. The war that every American can be proud of. Republicans and Democrats have come together to build a measure that helps soldiers and their families across the board.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a “yes” vote on this bill.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the great Roman orator, Cicero, once said that the greatest virtue of all virtues is gratitude, and I am filled with gratitude at this moment, Mr. Speaker, for our chairman DUNCAN HUNTER, for the members of this committee, the ranking members, subcommittee chairmen, every member, as well as our hardworking and dedicated staff.

I think it is also a moment like this when we are getting ready to pass a defense bill which fulfills the first duty of Members of Congress and of our government to protect the citizens of our country.

A special note of gratitude and appreciation should go to those who wear the uniform of our country, to those who have worn the uniform of our country, to those who have sacrificed, and especially to those tremendously supportive families of those who serve in our various services.

With that, a great moment of reflection and gratitude, Mr. Speaker, I say thank you.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, it is a great pleasure to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON), a friend who came to Congress at the same time I did and who does such an enormously important job on our committee.

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this legislation and congratulate our distinguished chairman and ranking member for their outstanding work.

We take great pride on this committee in doing our defense work in a bipartisan manner. In our subcommittee we had no disagreements. Our markup lasted for 5 minutes, which is typical for us. Neil Abercrombie and I came to terms on every issue. Whether it was the F-22, tactical aviation, Army modernization, you name it, we were able to find a common ground. I think the reason we can do that is because of the tone set by our leadership on both sides of the aisle.

It is especially sad, though, for me, Mr. Speaker, because my good friend is leaving. Joel is the president of our class. We came together with the Speaker, and JOEL will no longer be sitting alongside of us. Mr. HEFLEY has been an outstanding Member, along with the other Members who are not returning. I just want to pay my respects to my good friend and let him know that America is better because of his service to the country. Mr. HEFLEY, Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. WELDON, thank you very much. I thank all of you for the kind words that you said about my service on this committee. But it is really my great pleasure and honor to have been able to serve with all of you, both staff and Members.

CURT has been as tireless as anybody. As I introduced people going through this exercise here, each one I wanted to say so much more about, because I have been there with them through the late nights and long hearings and so forth as we struggle. Sometimes we disagree about details between ourselves. Even on the Democrat side or the Republican side, there is some disagreement sometimes, but our hearts are all together and our focus is all together, and that is the defense of this Nation, and our hearts are with the troops.

I want to particularly thank our chairman, DUNCAN HUNTER. Golly, I couldn’t have served with a better chairman than DUNCAN HUNTER. DUNCAN came to my district when he didn’t know me when I was running. CURT, as you were in the summer of 1987, and he came and helped me in my election effort. Little did I know that these 20 years later, we would be serving together in this very important job.

Mr. HUNTER, you are a great chairman, and I appreciate it so much.

Mr. SKELTON, of course, you and I have been friends for a long time. I kid you that I have named everything in your part of Missouri after you. I probably have named everything after you, but whatever we have gotten done, you deserve it. I appreciate your work too.

Isn’t it something to see how bipartisan this effort is when we get to this stage? It is nice to see that here. You don’t see that very much. It is because we all have the same goals and the same purpose. Sometimes we have different roads to get there, but the same purpose.

Mr. Speaker, I encourage strong support for this bill.

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support this year’s National Defense Authorization Act. It includes many provisions that are vital to giving our military the tools it needs to defend the nation, although it also leaves much work undone that will have to be addressed in the future.

The bill addresses one issue in particular that merits attention. Despite the Pentagon’s repeated denials of a military readiness crisis, this bill authorizes an additional $23 billion in funding as a downpayment on the damage to the U.S. Army and Marine Corps from repeated and sustained deployments to Iraq, and the Bush Administration’s decision to fund the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan through a parade of emergency supplemental appropriations. The wars themselves are wearing down our equipment at a tremendous rate. Further damage is done by supplemental appropriations because the military services are denied the funding they need in a timely and predictable fashion. These two factors are doing serious long-term damage to our military readiness, and the Congress must address them.

During Armed Services Committee deliberations on this bill in March 2006, I offered an amendment to address this very reason. Sadly, that amendment was voted down on a party-line vote. I offered the amendment because we had a growing readiness problem and because I thought putting as much of the funding for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan as possible into the base budget was the most honest and effective way to proceed. My approach ended up in the final version of this bill. The $23 billion in this year’s bill is a good start, but this funding will have to be sustained in many subsequent bills to address the readiness crisis we continue to face.

I am also pleased that this bill includes many important legislative provisions that directly improve the lives of the people of my district and my state. First, it takes the first step toward dealing with the chemical munitions dumped off the coast of Hawaii in the 1940s. These compounds will pose a serious health and environmental risk, and Section 314 of this bill requires a comprehensive research effort by the military to identify, analyze, and assess the potential threat these sites may pose.

Section 345 of this bill addresses a major land transfer issue in Hawaii regarding the former Barbers Point Naval Air Station. Affordable housing for the people of Hawaii and a new public transit system are critical local issues. This language requires the Navy to turn over an important parcel of land that will allow both new housing and transit development. Balancing the needs of the military and the local population in Hawaii is a challenge, but in this case, I think an arrangement was reached that helps both sides accomplish their goals. I thank Chairman HUNTER and Chairman HEFLEY for working with me on this language.

Lastly, Section 343 of the bill requires an analysis by the Army of its future live-fire training infrastructure needs in Hawaii. The Army’s presence in Hawaii is undergoing tremendous change. A new Stryker Brigade is due to be activated this coming year, and thousands more troops will be coming to Hawaii as part of the larger changes in the military’s Pacific region basing posture. Supporting these growing military and economic, cultural, environmental and quality of life concerns of the people of Hawaii is essential. This report will help Congress understand where the Army wants to go in Hawaii with its training infrastructure, and how to get there. In particular, it will address the sensitive issue of the Army’s long-term future in the Makua Valley, an area of Hawaii owned by the people of Hawaii and on temporary loan to the military. Eventually, this land must be returned, so the report requires the Army to look beyond its current use of the Makua Valley toward the eventual return of this historic and environmentally sensitive treasure to the people of Hawaii.

There are critical quality of life issues that were not resolved. Specifically, it does not do enough to help military families who need the Survivor Benefit Program and Dependency and Indemnity Compensation offset repealed. For me, this is a basic issue of fairness that must be addressed at some point in the future. The bill does not do enough to protect TRICARE health insurance for veterans from skyrocketing premiums. The Department of Defense asked for legislative authority to negotiate lower prices with major drug companies. The majority was unwilling to let this provision into the final bill. Finally, the bill before us only provides a 2.2 percent pay raise for active duty military in 2007. I want to thank all of you for the kind words of my friends and colleagues, and especially in Hawaii. We have asked a lot from these men and women. We owe them more in return.

I want to now turn to the portion of the bill that falls under the jurisdiction of the Tactical Air and Land Forces Subcommittee, on which I am proud to serve as the ranking minority member. This year, the subcommittee had a daunting task: to reconcile a budget submission that was simply unrealistic in some respects. Despite obvious shortfalls in the investment decisions that were made by the Pentagon, there are significant strategic pressures when compared to the needs of the military both today and in the future.

Our military is clearly being pulled in many directions at once. Today our forces are fighting unconventional wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, the demands of which, in terms of equipment, training and personnel, are very different from possible future conventional conflicts. The U.S. military has to be able to fight and win both types of wars, but there is clearly not enough funding for doing everything the services want to do.

This bill authorizes critical short-term needs such as modernization of Army equipment in combat today and increased production of aircraft like the C-17 that are absolutely vital to current military operations. The bill also looks to the future in continuing successful aviation and ground systems. Finally, it takes funding from programs that are not working and moves that funding to more pressing needs, ensuring that taxpayer dollars are not wasted.

It also demands additional analysis and testing of systems in development that the subcommittee has concerns about. These provisions may discomfort some people at the Pentagon, but it is Congress’ duty to oversee these programs and ensure that the troops get what they need.

Overall, this year I think the subcommittee did a very good job. I especially want to commend Chairman WELDON on his leadership of the Tactical Air and Land Forces Subcommittee. His willingness to work in an open and nonpartisan manner greatly facilitates the subcommittee’s work and produces a better product for our troops and the civilians who serve the nation at the Department of Defense.

Finally, another member of this committee deserves special recognition. I worked for many years with JOEL HEFLEY on the Armed Services Committee. He is both a valued colleague and a close friend. Among his many accomplishments during his distinguished career on this committee, he helped shepherd through one of the most important changes in military housing construction in decades. His vision for leveraging private investment dollars into a massive new program to rebuild and rehabilitate military family housing is now a reality. In my state alone almost ten thousand military homes will be upgraded in the next few years through this program. The purpose of making an all-volunteer military ready, and Joel Hefley was a leader in this revolutionary program. I was and am grateful for the opportunity afforded to me to partner with him in accomplishing passage and implementation of this key legislation enhancing the quality of life of our fighting men and women.

Ms. BORDALLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the conference agreement on H.R. 5122, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2007. I am pleased that we have completed this Act before the onset of the new fiscal year because it contains provisions vital to the operation of our Department of Defense and to the men and women of our armed forces who are fighting the war against terrorism around the world today.

Several provisions in this Act are particularly important to my district and the people of Guam. Among these provisions is Section 1014, which closes a legal loophole that had previously been utilized by the Department of the Navy to permit repair of U.S. Navy vessels in foreign shipyards at the expense of U.S. shipyards. Without this provision, Guam may continue to be eligible for repair in foreign shipyards. Paragraph 6(b)(5) of COMSCINST 4700.14A, also makes clear that vessels that are homeported overseas, when voyage repairs are necessary or where operational demands dictate. The Navy should not and cannot use excessively liberal definitions of voyage repairs or an overseas homeport to enable foreign repair of its vessels.

Further, many vessels operating in the Pacific frequently make port calls on Guam. Section 1014 of this Act, when read in concert with related instructions from the Commander, Military Sealift Command and in particular the instruction identified as COMSCINST 4700.14A, also makes clear that vessels that make such port calls on Guam should no longer be considered eligible for repair in foreign shipyards such as the shipyard in Singapore. Paragraph 6(b)(5) of COMSCINST 4700.14A also makes clear that vessels that make such port calls on Guam should no longer be considered eligible for repair in foreign shipyards such as the shipyard in Singapore. Paragraph 6(b)(5) of COMSCINST 4700.14A also makes clear that vessels that make such port calls on Guam should no longer be considered eligible for repair in foreign shipyards such as the shipyard in Singapore. Paragraph 6(b)(5) of COMSCINST 4700.14A also makes clear that vessels that make such port calls on Guam should no longer be considered eligible for repair in foreign shipyards such as the shipyard in Singapore.

The Navy must evaluate what capability it needs to provide for growing its capability and capacity because of the significant increase in military utilization of the bases on Guam. I note that Guam will soon be home to 8,000 U.S. Marines who will be relocating from Okinawa and who will have points of embarkation in Apra Harbor. Guam will also become home to a third fast-attack nuclear-powered submarine squadron. The total amount of work expected on Guam will likely exceed local capacity and require additional labor, as have other large construction booms in Guam’s past. Nonetheless, a principal part of my focus in representing the people of Guam remains preparing and training the local Guam workforce so that it can receive maximum benefit from the military buildup.

This provision ultimately enables Guam to prepare to meet the demands of future construction while also enabling the United States Government to meet its international obligations and thereby maintain its credibility and reputation with important allies.

I am pleased that this Act also authorizes a major increase in military construction funding for Guam. The military construction funding for Guam is a continued reflection of the Department of Defense’s recognition of Guam’s key role in Navy ship repair and workforce issues. I would like to particularly thank the efforts of their respective staffs, especially the efforts of House Armed Services Committee Professional Staff Director Peru Fengler and Paul M. Fengler. Mr. Fengler has recently left the committee staff but I would like to acknowledge his professionalism, expertise and work ethic in representing his Chairman and in facilitating robust oversight by the House Armed Services Committee and its Members. I know that Mr. Fengler will have a bright future and I thank him for his dedication and service to Chairman HUNTER, to the committee and to our country.

This Act also includes a provision, Section 2610, to repeal Section 2664 of Title 10 in the United States Code which prohibits H-2B skilled foreign laborers, or nonimmigrant aliens, from working on military construction (MILCON) projects on Guam. Many community and industry stakeholders recognized that the restriction on labor contracts for military construction projects on Guam did not apply to other military construction projects elsewhere. Stakeholders felt that the Guam specific restrictions could negatively impact the ability to execute the planned military growth on Guam in the required timeframe. Because the movement of troops from Okinawa to Guam in a timely manner is a major component of an international agreement, it was considered important to enable the Department of Defense to complete military construction projects associated with this movement without undue constraints. In accordance with the timeframe set out by the governments of Japan and the United States. At my urging, all parties agreed that the priority for hiring labor for military construction projects on Guam will continue to go to the local workforce. Many observed, however, that the amount of work expected on Guam will likely exceed local capacity and require additional labor, as have other large construction booms in Guam’s past. Nonetheless, a principal part of my focus in representing the people of Guam remains preparing and training the local Guam workforce so that it can receive maximum benefit from the military buildup.
the Air Force's realignment of forces in the Pacific and its increased utilization of Andersen Air Force Base on Guam. While I am disappointed the Senate did not recede to the House authorization for the new commercial gate at Andersen Air Force Base, I join the Senate in my strong belief to evaluate military construction projects scheduled for Guam to ensure that they fit within the overall plans for growth on the island and are consistent with the needs not just of the military but of the civilian community on Guam. While I believe the commercial gate already fits well within the plans for overall development on Guam, the concerns expressed by the Senate are shared in general and I look forward to working with my House and Senate colleagues to provide robust oversight of military development on Guam to ensure it is properly executed in the interests of all parties.

The $193,446 million in military construction funding for projects on Guam authorized this year represents continued growth in military activity on the island and provides assistance to Guam's civilian community. I believe that the realignment of military forces at the peripheries of military construction on the island which will soon be far more robust.

It is unfortunate that the conferees did not include in the conference agreement Section 632 of the House passed authorization bill. This provision would have authorized servicemembers assigned to and from non-fort overseas locations to ship a second personally owned vehicle at government expense to the new assigned duty station consistent with the U.S. government's authorization for assignments within the continental United States. This change in law is still needed. This is an important quality of life issue for servicemen and women and their families who receive orders to serve on bases located outside the 48 contiguous States. Supported by The Military Coalition and by the Congressional delegations from Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and Guam, it is my hope that the committee will once again consider this provision next year and that its enactment will ultimately be won. Our men and women in uniform deserve the enactment of this provision.

This Act also contains language directing the Department of Defense to study cases of reported off shore disposal of munitions by the Department of Defense. I encourage the Department to study any cases of potential off shore disposal in the waters off of Guam. Should the Department determine that any dumping of munitions took place in the waters off of Guam, I urge the Department to take action to remedy any potential harm of such dumping. I further urge the Department to be not just comprehensive but transparent in its findings and its methodologies. It is vital that the communities connected to any past disposal actions be kept fully informed as to Department findings and actions.

I also support provisions in this Act that direct the Secretary of Defense to develop a plan that would enable the Department of Defense Education Activity (DODEA) to assist local educational agencies that are affected by force structure changes in their communities. I plan to continue to work closely with the Department of Defense to ensure the impacts that the movement of 8,000 Marines to Guam will have on Guam's local education system. The 8,000 Marines are expected to be accompanied by 9,000 dependents and perhaps several thousand civilian employees. While the dependents of the Marines are expected to attend DODEA schools, it is not unreasonable to believe that some Marine children as well as the children of civilian employees will enter the Guam Public School System. We must begin planning now to prepare Guam for any such impact.

I am a strong supporter of our Nation's National Guard and especially of the National Guard and Reserve servicemembers who reside on Guam. I remain a strong supporter of H.R. 5200, the National Guard Empowerment Act. I believe that the time has come to change the way we think about our Guard and Reserve because in this war on terror we have changed the way we use them. No longer can the Guard and Reserve come second in funding, equipping or anything else.

So while I am pleased that H.R. 5122 substantially increases authorized funding for Guard and Reserve equipment, I believe this bill should have also included the provisions of H.R. 5200 to ensure that the Guard would receive a Chief with a fourth star that sits on the Joint Chiefs of Staff and could advocate for and protect Guard interests. I also believe it is time to give the Guard independent budget authority from the parent services because history has told us that the parent services care for themselves first and the reserve component second. In an era when the Guard is completing the same mission as its active duty counterparts, I believe it is appropriate to empower the leadership and authorities as its active duty counterparts. I will continue to advocate for reform and increased empowerment of the Guard and Reserve. I look forward to the study of H.R. 5200 by the Commission on the National Guard and Reserves and trust that the Commission will recommend adoption of many of the provisions contained within the legislation. I also note that conferees removed authority included in the House passed authorization bill that would have enabled to mobilize Guard members without the consent of a state or territorial governor in the event of a natural disaster. Granting such an authority would remove a fundamental and constitutional control granted to state governors regarding their state's military readiness that the provision has been stricken from the bill.

Finally, I am encouraged that the conferees retained in the final bill language proposed by the Senate that requires the President to appoint a senior presidential coordinator of U.S. policy on North Korea and to submit to Congress a semi-annual report on the nuclear and missile programs of North Korea (Section 1211). While I remain a strong supporter of the Six-Party Talks, North Korea's testing of a Taepodong II missile indicates that current policy toward North Korea is not proving a sufficiently effective deterrent against the unstable regime currently in Pyongyang. More must be done to secure our country and to assure all allies in the Pacific that our state and its allies will be able to respond to the danger. I remain a strong supporter of House passed authorization bill. The legislation provides for measures ranging from a well deserved pay raise for our uniformed servicemembers to construction funding for ships vital to our Navy's future. I am in support of this legislation and urge my colleagues to pass H.R. 5122.

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this conference report. As relatively new member of the Armed Services Committee, I appreciate having had the opportunity to work with my colleagues, especially Chairman HUNTER and Ranking Member SKELETON, on a number of provisions of particular importance to Colorado.

I want to express my particular thanks to JOEL HEFLEY, the dean of our Colorado delegation, who I am proud to call my colleague and friend. He and I have joined forces on a wide variety of matters, including steps to respond to the danger our state's communities from wildfires, and I have benefited greatly from the opportunity to work with him both before and especially after I became a member of the Armed Services Committee.

The Senate bill included language to name a hospital facility at Fort Carson in honor of Representative HEFLEY, who is retiring at the end of the year. I thought it was appropriate, and while the conference report does not include that provision, I am glad to note that it does include a section (Section 2002) that accurately states that since his election in 1986, Representative HEFLEY "has served in the House of Representatives with distinction, class, integrity, and honor."
The same section goes on to note that Representative Hefley’s efforts on our committee have benefited the military value of installations in Colorado and the quality of life of the men and women stationed there. It also reminds us that he was a leader in efforts inadequately handling on military installations, beginning with a pilot program at that Colorado base, an effort which has “brought meaningful improvements to living conditions for thousands of members of the Armed Forces and their spouses and children at installations throughout the United States.”

And it concludes by saying that “Congress recognizes and commends Representative Joel Hefley for his 20 years of service to the people of Colorado, members of the Armed Forces and their families, veterans, and the United States”—a well-earned commendation in which I completely concur.

Looking ahead, I anticipate receipt of two reports on matters of particular importance to Colorado.

Part of the report of our House Armed Forces Committee accompanying this authorization bill reflected our recognition of the importance of the High Altitude Aviation Training Site (HAATS) based at the Eagle, Colorado Regional Airport and its need for enough aircraft to fulfill its mission.

HAATS is the primary site for training military aviators on operations in hostile, high altitude, and power-limited environments under all seasonal weather conditions, such as Afghanistan. Responding to language I had included in the authorization bill last year, the Army National Guard pledged to provide two Blackhawks to HAATS. However, I’m told HAATS needs five Blackhaws in order to sustain training requirements.

To address the need for possible future action to meet that need, our committee’s report included a request for the Secretary of the Army to provide a report on high altitude aviation training to the congressional defense committees by December 15, 2006. The report is to include: (1) The current location and types of aircraft included in the program, the advantages of pilots who receive such training on an annual basis at each location and the types of aircraft used in such training; (2) the number and types of helicopters required to provide the high altitude aviation training needed to sustain the war strategies contained in the 2006 Quadrennial Defense Review, assuming that priority for such training is given to commanders, instructor pilots, aviation safety officers, and deploying units; and (3) a thorough evaluation of the accident rates for deployed Army aviation who received or did not receive high altitude training and deployed helicopter pilots who did not receive such training, including the number of accidents related to power management, using high and low estimates and the number of accidents involving combat and non-combat environments. I expect that this report will make clear the importance of HAATS’ critical mission and the need for its having more aircraft.

And this conference report includes a section (section 2627) requiring a report by November 30th of this year analyzing any potential expansion of the Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site, which is associated with Fort Carson. As a member of the Armed Service Committee and the Colorado delegation, I will be very interested in the information presented in this report.

The conference report provides funds for important projects in Colorado, including $10 million for work at Buckley Air Force Base, $4.9 million for construction at Peterson Air Force Base, $21 million for work at Schreier Air Force Base, and $26.1 million to be used at Fort Carson.

And, at the national level, it includes many provisions that will improve our overall military readiness and provide for our troops and retirees.

Among other things, it authorizes a 2.2 percent pay raise, effective January 1, 2007, and includes a provision, developed through the leadership of our colleague Representative John Spratt, to provide targeted pay raises for mid-grade and senior NCOs and warrant officers, effective April 1, 2007. It also expands TRICARE Reserve Select to members of the Selected Reserves, and terminates the current three-tier eligibility program while putting a one-year moratorium on any increases in retail pharmaceutical prices under the TRICARE system.

The conference report also establishes additional financial protections for service members, prohibiting creditors from charging service members and their dependents annual interest rates for loans higher than the legal limit for state residents, or no more than 36 percent in any case.

And, of course, it authorizes a $70 billion supplemental for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, including $23.7 billion to replace and reset equipment lost or damaged in operations.

I opposed President Bush’s decision to invade Iraq and my concerns about this poorly managed and badly planned war have been realized. I believe it was a strategic mistake to make nation building in Iraq the centerpiece of our war against Islamic terrorism—a belief that has been strengthened by the April 2006 National Intelligence Estimate entitled “Trends in Global Terrorism: Implication for the United States,” portions of which were recently declassified. But now that our troops are there and it is safe to assume that we are in a long war, we cannot withdraw them immediately, and we must continue to provide the funds necessary to maintain and re-equip them.

I urge approval of the conference report.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I reluctantly rise today to oppose the Conference Report for The National Defense Authorization Act, H.R. 5122.

The National Defense Authorization Act is Congress’ only opportunity each year to seriously debate the defense policies of our Nation. Yet, legislation in earlier this year, the Republican Majority prevented any debate about the most important national defense issue we face: the war in Iraq. More than 2,700 American service members have lost their lives fighting in Iraq. American taxpayers have paid more than $100 billion to fund the effort. Yet, despite authorizing an additional $70 billion for the war, we have had no debate on this floor about our policy or needed strategy changes. This is an unconscionable failure of the House.

The House previously made mockery of Congressional responsibilities to guide policy by shamefully politicizing Representative John MURTHA’s thoughtful proposal for a phased redeployment of American troops in Iraq. Regardless of one’s opinion on the best course of action in the war, the failure of Congress to entertain debate or exercise real oversight is a dereliction of our duty.

Just this week, news reports revealed that a National Intelligence Estimate (NIE) written in August 2006 to the Congress in Iraq is making America less safe. I have been telling my constituents for months that this war is endangering the lives of our service members, fueling the terrorist insurgency, and failing to make us safer. The NIE confirms this. Another important provision is also long overdue for a serious examination of our nuclear weapons policy. Fifteen years after the collapse of the Soviet Union, we behave as if the Cold War never ended, maintaining a stockpile of thousands of nuclear weapons, many on hair-trigger missiles—far more than we need to assure our continued military dominance. It is time we honor the commitment we made when we signed the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty and begin to phase out our nuclear stockpile. This bill fails to make any changes to our nuclear posture and it is my hope that the committee will work with me to get the United States to honor our NPT pledge.

I am also disappointed that this bill authorizes $9.4 billion for the missile defense programs within the Missile Defense Agency (MDA). Since its inception during the Reagan administration, MDA has spent nearly $100 billion for missile defense programs that have repeatedly failed flight tests. This money would have been more wisely spent on other national security priorities, such as jamming devices for improvised explosive devices (IEDs), up-armoring Humvees, and radiological detection at our ports and borders. One of the craziest ideas I have ever heard is that we should deploy this missile defense system as a way to test it. Simple strategic analysis tells us that a provocative yet permeable defense is destabilizing and weakens the security of all Americans.

This authorization bill fails to address and make needed changes to U.S. policy in any one of these three areas, which is why I oppose this bill.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this $533 billion Defense authorization bill.

But, Mr. Speaker, the bill before us today does have a very important proviso in it: language preventing the establishment of permanent military bases in Iraq.

This is an important first step in taking the targets off the backs of our troops in Iraq by showing the world that we have no designs to stay in Iraq permanently.

However, this provision will only apply to funds for FY07. We need to make the policy of the United States not to have permanent military bases in Iraq.

Furthermore, it’s unfortunate that this bill is the vehicle for this critical policy.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that our Nation is best defended by funding priorities that make our Nation and world safer.

This bill, Mr. Speaker, does not do that. Mr. Speaker, what does it say about our priorities when Congress authorizes nearly $70 billion more for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan without any direction, or exit strategy?

Mr. Speaker, what does it say about our priorities when this bill authorizes a $10.4 billion for a missile defense program that has consistently failed, will never protect us from terrorists?
What it is says, Mr. Speaker is the priorities of the Bush administration are grossly misplaced. When it comes to making our Nation safe, they are spending almost $2 billion a week on a war in Iraq, but can't spare a dime for the security of the Port of Oakland, our Nation's fourth largest container port.

That's why, Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to reject this bill and offer Americans a real bill that protects America and truly reflects our Nation's security priorities.

Mr. HEPFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

(d) The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, before we amend the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, Efficiency Transportation Equity Act: A Legacy for Users (Mr. DeFazio) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on H.R. 6233.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, before we amend the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, Efficiency Transportation Equity Act: A Legacy for Users, or SAFETEA-LU, to make technical corrections.

The bill was introduced by Chairman DON YOUNG of Alaska, Mr. JIM OBERSTAR of Minnesota, PETER DEFAZIO of Oregon and me, who worked together as we move forward toward the next major Surface Transportation Act in the not-too-distant future.

So the bill had, as any major bill does, a few inadvertent drafting errors, probably due to the Senate, and some legislative language that needed some minor change.

In particular, there was a problem with funding for the Service Transportation Research Development and Deployment Account, that the funding was oversubscribed. It meant that the Federal Highway Administration would not have been able to continue its legacy research program, which is an extremely important program that looks at activities, including the Biannual Conditions and Performance Report, an objective appraisal of highway bridge, transit finance, physical condition, operational performance and future investment requirements, information that will be absolutely critical as we move forward toward the next major Surface Transportation Act in the not-too-distant future.

So the bill is otherwise a straightforward technical correction, without additions. I would recommend it to my colleagues.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR).

Mr. OBERSTAR. I thank the gentleman for yielding.
1,000 technical corrections. We have many fewer this time, but it seems more contentious, particularly with the other body.

It has just taken seemingly endless hours of discussion and meetings among staff, committees, and Members. And I particularly appreciate the patience of the chairman, the gentleman from Alaska (Mr. YOUNG), who, on occasion, his impatience has moved the process along.

We have to do that. We should have been able to come together, look at the problems, just little oversights, misspellings, misstatements of what Members agreed upon in the conference and in the two versions of the bill that went to conference. We should have been able to do that in a matter of a couple of months.

But here we are almost a year later, well over a year later, and we are getting these items ironed out. Meanwhile, of course, a number of Members changed their mind about projects that they had, and circumstances changed in the various districts across the country.

So we have come back, and again with great bipartisan cooperation and an effort on the part of the majority and minority staff, who have given tremendous hours of their time, Saturdays and Sundays, working, attempting to work through the August recess, when the other body went off and was not willing to cooperate with us.

But here we are. The SAFETEA–LU bill has proven to be enormously successful and effective. The policies that we set forth in that bill are being carried out by the States and with the practitioners of transportation across this country, and the bill has been received with great acclaim.

The technical corrections that we bring are, the gentleman from Wisconsin, the chairman of the subcommittee, Ranking Member DeFAZIO has spelled out some of them. Ranking Member DeFAZIO has spelled out others.

I want to particularly address the re-capture of critical research funds for the future strategic highway research program, which is a long-term research initiative addressing the most significant problems of highway safety, reliability, capacity, and renewal.

The University Transportation Center Program, which has been very, very successful in offering new initiatives to deal with problems of transportation through the application of technology in education research, and innovative technological approaches to our transportation.

The development of publication of DOT's Conditions and Performance Report. That is so important. That is a little-understood item that is paid little attention, but it is the basis upon which we will move to the next authorization of transportation which will guide the practitioners, the State Departments of Transportation, the Federal Highway Administration in applying SAFETEA–LU. It gives us an objective appraisal of highway conditions, bridge conditions, financing of our transit and highway programs, performance of our highway, bridge and transit systems, and the needs for future improvement.

This Conditions and Performance Report is a critical matter. I am glad we were able to get it straightened out. The bill also modifies the Repeat Intoxicated Driver Allow for the use of ignition interlock devices.

We were making a lot of progress against highway fatalities, but suddenly in the last 2 years the number has been going up, somewhere the 44,000 fatalities a year. Should be going in the other direction. Half of those, nearly half of those, 40 percent of those fatalities are alcohol-related. It is not the bad road conditions. It is not bad bridges. It is alcohol related.

The Interlock provision was included in both House and Senate bills, but it was not included in the conference report by simply an oversight. So the technical corrections incorporates the change of the bill to allow States flexibility to continue with the 1-year license suspension requirement, or a 45-day license suspension. That is an important initiative if we are going to continue to save lives.

I am talking about just the fatalities. There are 1,300,000 people injured in accidents nationally. The repeat offenders are just a part of the U.S. drunk driving problem. They represent one-third of 44,000 fatalities a year. Should be going in the other direction. Fifty to 75 percent of repeat offenders whose licenses have been suspended continue to drive illegally.

So an ignition interlock will prevent those offenders who have imbibed too much from operating their vehicle. They will be able to drive to work, drive to school or go to an alcohol treatment program, but we want to keep those bad drivers, repeat bad drivers off the road and save lives, and this initiative will help do that.

The technical corrections bill also corrects and states in much clearer language an intention that was written in to permit the construction of a bridge over Interstate 35 near North Branch in the southern tier of my congressional district, and how the State said that the Federal Highway Administration could have misunderstood the language we wrote in that bill is beyond me.

We authorized $7.5 million for design, engineering and construction of a bridge, and the Federal Highway Administration and the State said, oh, no, the way you wrote it, we interpret it to be only for design and engineering. Well, I tell you, you do not spend $7.5 million to design and engineer a $7.5 million bridge. We have made that very clear in this technical corrections.

So with those adjustments, I offer my heartfelt thanks to Chairman PETRI for his patience, for his perseverance; Chairman PETRI, for a partnership that we have continually had his leadership; and the gentleman from Oregon, who has invested an enormous amount of time; but especially to the staff, minority and majority, Graham Hill, Ward, and Jim Tymon, and everybody that has worked on this legislation, along with the other body.

We now are at a point in the last days of this session that we will be able to get this bill done so we can go forth and implement what we did in SAFETEA–LU and that is getting transportation built within this country as it should.

The gentleman from Minnesota also mentioned about the foundation, and I have to say this because I know we are on this TV or C-SPAN and I will say that right now the institution of knowledge about previous law is crucially important for the next step in building infrastructure in this country. Much of SAFETEA–LU was based upon what was done in the previous transportation act and the next one, 4 years from now, will be based upon SAFETEA–LU, and that is crucially important to understand where we were before we can go forward from where we should be.

So for Members that say, well, this is an important institution, it is not important. If you want transportation to be built adequately and justifiably, then you go back through history and go forward on the blocks of building which we established in this legislation.

I just want that it is a good technical correction bill. It will be done, I believe, tonight; and the other body has agreed to accept this, even though I cannot speak for them, but in doing so we will get the roads built, the bridges built and all the other programs the gentleman from Minnesota and the gentleman from Oregon and the gentleman from Wisconsin mentioned and that is why we, this SAFETEA-LU.

So I congratulate those that worked so hard and took the time. I congratulate you for taking the effort, and I do think we ought to step forward and strongly support the passage of this legislation.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, I insert this exchange of letters between DON YOUNG and SHERWOOD BOEHLERT for the RECORD.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Chairman, Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous materials on S. 3661.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the motion of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The SPEAKER pro tempore. This legislation is exactly identical to H.R. 6226 which was introduced by the House Transportation and Infrastructure chairman, the Honorable Don Young, and ranking member, the Honorable James Oberstar, and by several Members of the Texas delegation, including Representatives EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON, KENNY MARCHANT, KAY GRANGER, JOE BARTON, MIKE BURGESS, CHET EDWARDS, RALPH HALL, SAM JOHNSON and also PETE SESSIONS.

First, I want to commend my colleagues from the Texas delegation for working together to get this amendment that is the basis for this legislation.

This legislation, Senate bill 3661, would implement a locally initiated and locally approved agreement that seeks to change and eventually eliminate what has been commonly known as the Wright amendment which, in fact, has restricted commercial air passenger service out of Dallas Love Field for over three decades.

This is an anticompetitive law, and it results in higher air fares and fewer service options for consumers for some decades now. It seems that the only beneficiary of the Wright amendment has been the small army of lawyers hired by the affected cities and airlines to litigate almost every aspect of this poorly conceived law.

Earlier this year, members of the congressional delegation, along with the mayors, the airlines and others came together and reached a consensus agreement that is the foundation of this legislation.

This bill crafts a number of important provisions that will open service again and some of the worst restrictions imposed by the Wright amendment.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to see the Wright amendment repealed immediately. However, in my opinion, this is our best option.

The political reality is that without this legislation, the 35-year-old “Cold War” waged by the affected cities, airlines, and communities will continue indefinitely.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker. In 1972, Justice Thurgood Marshall wrote the following in the case of United States v. Topco Associates, Inc.: “Antitrust laws in general, and the Sherman Act in particular, are the Magna Carta of free enterprise, the great bulwark of our economic system, including the preservation of economic freedom and our free enterprise system as the Bill of Rights is to the protection of our fundamental personal freedoms. And the freedom guaranteed each and every person, matter how small, is the freedom to compete, to assert with vigor, imagination, devotion, and ingenuity whatever economic muscle it can muster.”

Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this legislation. The Wright amendment is anticompetitive, there is no doubt about it, and it has increased the cost of long-distance travel to people who live in the Dallas-Fort Worth area by as much as a third as compared to other markets with other airlines.

What this legislation does is continue vestiges of the Wright amendment and its anticompetitive policy on until at least the year 2025. If we think the Wright amendment is bad, we should get rid of it once and for all, and remember, Congress imposed the Wright amendment back over 15 years ago.

Now, what this bill does is it codifies an agreement among private and local government parties that court per se violations of the antitrust laws. With limited exceptions, the Wright amendment expressly insulates Dallas-Fort Worth from interstate international air passenger competition from Dallas Love Field.

Now, let us stop and think about this because this bill would provide a congressional approval, requiring the demolition of existing gates at Love Field, some of which are privately owned and that may be used by airlines to offer additional air passenger service to points across the United States.

The agreement also prohibits Southwest Airlines from offering service from the DFW Airport until 2025 and limits the ability of all airlines to offer service from Love Field and maintains a ban on most interstate flights from Love Field to 42 States. Now, that means if you live in the 42 States that this bill seeks to protect, you are going to pay more to come to Dallas-Fort Worth, no two ways about it.

There was a memo leaked out of the Justice Department that says that this agreement, which allows Southwest to stay out of DFW for 19 years, would be a hard core per se violation of the Sherman Act.

Now, proponents of this bill will claim that the antitrust laws are unaffected by it and do not need to be. Why? According to 54 American Jurisprudence 2d, Monopolies and Restraints of Trade, No. 243, the Hornbook on antitrust law, says: "In determining whether subsequent Federal legislation has granted immunity from the antitrust laws, a court should reconcile the operation of both statutory schemes, where this is possible."

A court looking to this legislation will be forced to ignore the antitrust laws because the legislation contains mandatory obligations that the parties engage in contact that violates the per se violations of the antitrust laws.

So this compromise is a compromise in name only, and the result is exactly the same, creating implied antitrust immunity by eliminating a cause of action for conduct that presents a clear violation of the antitrust laws.

Now, we are going to hear that the Wright amendment is a local issue, and they are right. It is a local issue for the Members of Congress who represent the 42 Members who are helping vestive by the anticompetitive output restriction/cartel that this legislation perpetuates.

We have got to have the courage to stand up for consumers, our constituents who vote for us, and adopt the pro-competing goals of the Airline De- regulation Act by defeating this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire as to how much time the gentleman has remaining and also how much time do we have in general?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida has 17 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Wisconsin has 15 minutes remaining.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 10 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas, and I ask unanimous consent that she be able to control those 10 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(PerMs. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of Senate bill 3661. The bill passed by the Senate earlier today mirrors House bill 6258 previously scheduled for consideration today.

At the outset, I want to extend my thanks to Chairman YOUNG and Ranking Member OBERSTAR, Subcommittee Chairman MICA and Ranking Member COSTELLO for their cooperation and support throughout this process. Each of you, in addition to the committee staff, has been extremely helpful in accommodating the requests of myself and north Texas colleagues, and I am truly appreciative.

The road leading to this point has been long and arduous, but I am delighted that the bill before us today represents a bipartisan piece of sound legislation. The bill’s fundamental objective is to open the non-Dallas market to more competition in air transportation, not to further restrict it, despite the claims of some.

This bill phases out the Wright amendment completely in 8 years, offers immediate thru-ticketing in and out of Love Field, saving consumers an estimated $259 million annually. It will generate over $2 billion annually in spending and related economic activity for north Texas and for many communities that serve the current Wright amendment parameter.

It opens Love Field in a responsible way, ensuring resolution of Love Field-area residents’ concerns over noise, traffic, and safety for the area.

It protects competition by preventing the legislation from taking effect until the Federal Aviation Administration notifies Congress that the additional aviation operations in the Dallas/Fort Worth/Love Field airspace expected as a result of this Act can be conducted safely and without adverse effect on airspace use.

It protects competition by preserving the FAA’s authority to enforce airport rules that obligate Love Field to make its facilities available on a reasonable and nondiscriminatory basis to new entrant carriers, and stimulates competition and travel commerce throughout the United States.

This bill is important to north Texas, the heart of our aviation community, and particularly my constituents, as Dallas Love Field Airport is located within the heart of my congressional district.

Two months ago, the city of Dallas, the city of Fort Worth, Southwest Airlines, American Airlines, and Dallas/ Fort Worth International Airport reached a compromise to resolve long-standing issues regarding the Wright amendment.

As many of you know, the three-decade-long legislation imposes long-haul flight restrictions to and from Dallas Love Field Airport. The agreement marks an important milestone, as efforts to repeal the restrictions over the past decades have served as a major point of contention among north Texas stakeholders and the aviation community at large.

To have all the aforementioned entities in solidarity behind this compromise that ultimately lifts long-haul flight restrictions at Dallas Love Field is nothing short of amazing.

I would like to impress the following upon my colleagues: It is important to note that the Wright amendment was a direct result of a community-crafted compromise between the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, regarding two north Texas airports.

Thirty years ago, north Texas, upon the recommendation of the Civil Aeronautics Board, decided that DFW Airport would be the region’s primary air travel investment. This decision is captured in the 1968 Regional Airport Concurrent Bond Ordinance, which I will enter into the RECORD.

The lieu of this Love Field, the Wright amendment was crafted to protect the interests of the Dallas/Fort Worth Airport as well as those of Southwest Airlines. As the agreement said, that commercial traffic would close at the time that DFW opened. The balance between our two airports as a result of the Wright amendment has served this region well.

These airports are eight miles apart. Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport and Love Field Airport are vital complements to the area and the success of the regional economy. Respectively, they rank third and fifty-fifth nationally in terms of total traffic enplanements. As such, I have felt quite strongly that any policy decision regarding the Wright amendment that could have implications for future aviation in north Texas should not be carried out without the input of the localities directly involved; and I have asked over and over again for the last 20 years to have the local entities to come to an agreement.

My position has not always gone over well within certain segments of my constituency, but, for the record, I would like to reiterate that I am not anti-competitive, I am not anti–lower fares, I would be stupid to do that, nor am I anti-free enterprise. I am, however, pro-principle. And it has always been my belief that the Wright amendment exists as a principled agreement between these two north Texas airports.

Each time the subject of repeal of the Wright amendment has arisen, it has placed the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, 27 miles apart, on guard against each other because it violates the agreement. Over the past decades, this issue has created much grief, litigation, and oftentimes flat-out distrust among the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth. This type of back and forth over the past 30 years has not been healthy for north Texas, as we have been pressing each other to require us to work together in good faith if we are to be successful as a region.

Mr. Speaker, I support the compromise. The compromise outlined within Senate Bill 3661 requires give and take of all vested stakeholders. But, most importantly, Mr. Speaker, the measure represents a unified local consensus of which I am most proud.

Further, many homeowners and constituent groups that live and work within the Love Field area also support this compromise.

As I close, I want to commend the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth for coming to the table and acting in good faith to bring forth a compromise that I hope will allow us to once and for all bring an end to one of aviation’s most storied standoffs.

Is the compromise perfect? No. But I do feel it represents one of the best chances we as a region have to finally resolve any substantive issues. The communities have responded, and they are deserving of this body’s support.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Thank you, Chairman SENSENBRENNER.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman is recognized for 2½ minutes.

Mr. BARTON of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished chairman of the Judiciary Committee for his gracious offer; and I rise today in strong support of Senate Bill 3661, the Wright amendment compromise of 2006. I want to use the brief time that I have to explain what the compromise is all about.

Back in the 1960s, the two cities of Dallas and Fort Worth could not agree on anything, including where to locate their two respective airports. The Civil Aeronautics Administration said we would fund one Federal Aviation airport in the DFW area but not two. That would allow thru-ticketing to create what is now known as Dallas/Fort Worth Airport.

When a struggling airline called Southwest decided to fly their one plane out of Love Field to and to San Antonio, they went to court and won the right to fly commercial air service out of Love Field, which had been suspended when DFW came into existence. Hence, we got what is called the Wright compromise, which restricted flights from Love Field to an area within Texas or States contiguous to Texas.

Today, DFW Airport is one of the five largest commercial aviation airports in the country. Love Field is a regional airport that currently has in use, I believe, 13 gates and several hundred flights per day. The compromise before us would repeal the Wright amendment over an 8-year period. It would allow thru-ticketing immediately from Love Field, and it would create what I call a super-regional airport, where the majority of the gates, over 100 gates, would be at DFW, and it would allow for up to 20 gates to be in Love Field, which, as Congressman JOHNSON pointed out, is only eight miles from the eastern-most runway at DFW.

There are currently only in use at Love Field 13 gates. So this limitation, so-called, of 20 gates, would actually allow an expansion of gates in actual use at Love Field. There are more empty gates at DFW right now today than there are total gates at Love Field.

This compromise is supported by almost every member of the Texas delegation and may yet be supported by every member of the delegation. It would put to bed an issue that has vexatious for a number of years, in fact, you could say a number of decades.

I know my good friend from the Judiciary Committee has some antitrust exemptions, but again I will point out there are more empty gates at DFW than there are total gates at Love. This would be pro-competitive.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of S. 3661, "The Wright Amendment Reform Act." This is a very timely bill that will help resolve, once and for all, a local dispute stemming from the Wright Amendment. What we are doing here today is important to my constituents and the north Texas region.

I want to thank the Speaker and the Majority Leaders and to thank everyone for their support of this legislation. I also want to give special thanks to Chairman Don Young; Ranking Member Oberstar; and Subcommittee Chairman Mica for their leadership and excellent contributions in crafting this responsible and beneficial compromise into legislation. Their committee staff members worked long and hard on this bill. I also want to thank my staff director, Theresa Lavery, for her tireless work on this issue.

As you may know, I have long supported the covenant between the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth because I believe the best public policy for the north Texas market is to have competing airlines, not competing airports. Today's legislation embodies a compromise intended to firmly cement the role of Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and Love Field Airport, and put to rest calls for immediate repeal of the Wright Amendment.

This bill, once signed into law, will give our region and the traveling public resolution on this issue and leave time for public and private stakeholders to plan for final repeal in eight years. In the interim, consumers across the Nation will reap the benefits of immediate thru-ticketing at Love Field.

The compromise was hammered out in a deliberative fashion, considering valid concerns and unique factors of operation that have benefited the growth of the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex since enactment of the Wright Amendment. This bill is a balanced compromise that has the support of Dallas and Fort Worth, as co-owners of DFW Airport.

Finally, this agreement ensures that Love Field will continue to offer an important alternative for consumers while not diminishing the capacity for competition available at DFW Airport. Growth at Love Field is restricted, as it is a land-locked airport and therefore should not be constituted for greater traffic with repeal of the Wright Amendment. Love Field will be reduced to 20 gates over time, and this will allow the residents of the area peace of mind concerning pollution, noise, traffic, and safety concerns.

I view this agreement as facilitating a "super" airport, where the terminals at DFW Airport serve national and international destinations, and Love Field's gates provide a regional function with select national routes offering direct competition via thru-ticketing. Importantly, after eight years the Wright Amendment will exist today, will be repealed. This is truly the best of both worlds for consumers in Texas and throughout the country.

Mr. Speaker, local leaders have negotiated a thoughtful, viable alternative to the status quo that should be supported. I commend everyone involved for their efforts. I urge my colleagues to support S. 3661.

My fellow north Texas colleague, Congressman Burgess, has traveled to Texas today for the funeral of his friend, Byron Nelson, but he would like me to express his support for S. 3661. As a representative of DFW International Airport, he feels strongly in protecting the economic engine of north Texas. While he believes in the integrity of the original Wright Amendment, he is pleased that the local entities' constructed a compromise that met the needs and wishes of all parties. Not only will the airports and airlines benefit from the compromise but also the tens of thousands of employees and residents of north Texas.

Mr. Speaker, I certainly hope we will get a two-thirds vote, and I again thank Mr. Sensenbrenner for yielding me 1 minute.

Mr. Sensenbrenner. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Conyers) for a response.

Mr. Conyers. Mr. Speaker, and members of the various committees that are on the floor, before I begin my comments it is my observation that this may be the last bill that the House Judiciary Committee may be involved in until we adjourn, and so it becomes my responsibility as the ranking member to commend Chairman James Sensenbrenner for his efforts as chairman over almost the last 6 years.

He has served the Committee of Judiciary for many years, and I have had the honor to serve and work with him throughout his career on the House Judiciary Committee. He has worked hard all the way up to the title of chairman.

It has been a pleasure and honor to join with him, and I would like to just take a moment to tell you why I am making this statement.

The first thing that comes to my mind is the fact that he has done a stellar job in protecting the jurisdiction of the Judiciary Committee. In doing so, he has brought us more work than anybody ever has. We handled more bills than almost any but one committee. And he has been willing to stand up to special interests wherever his convictions lead him.

Secondly, I commend this chairman for his willingness to protect the integrity of our antitrust laws and fight for competition. Time and time again, whether it was in sports, transportation or telecommunication, I have been proud to work with him together to ensure that America's consumers were protected from unfair competition.

Finally, I will never forget the unstinting work that he has put in voter rights legislation, starting back in 1965 when we reauthorized it, and certainly in 2006 where, without his strong leadership, we would not have been able to forge a bipartisan coalition to pass the bill, stronger and with greater ease in both bodies, than we have ever been able to.

There is no doubt in my mind that he has been a leading, stalwart supporter of voting rights and its enforcement for all Americans throughout his career. I salute the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee for his many years of service, particularly his leadership as chairman.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if I may return to the measure before us, because I am impressed with the argument that has been propounded by all my friends here, particularly the gentlewoman from Dallas, that there is no intent in this bill's language to provide antitrust immunity.

Now, we are all "anti" a lot of things, but I want you to know I am not anti-consumer. These things called "consumers," you know, are the people in every district that are the ones called upon to vote and expend their resources on everything, including air travel.

Mr. Speaker, I love Dallas, Texas. I don't know much about Fort Worth, but I even get invited there from time to time, and I enjoy it very much.

By the way, I want to mention the fourth Tuesday of each month. Mr. Speaker, to me, we have got a bit of difficulty here that may be resolved by restoring the antitrust exemption. We put it in before. Most of the Members that I am looking at have never expressed any hostility toward the antitrust exemption itself. This agreement between private parties missing the antitrust exemption is a very questionable act that we are about to do in the closing hours of this session.

With the chairman of the Judiciary Committee's leadership, amended the original bill to include the antitrust savings clause, but this so-called new bill, hot off the press, doesn't contain such protections. It has never been considered by either the Transportation Committee or the Judiciary Committee. It was drafted, and just recently, I don't know what hour of the day or night, something happened in the other body, but it has not been considered by any committee on either side of the Capital.

This new bill and the agreement preserves the Wright amendment for 8 more years, restricts the number of gates; and, if it weren't for this antitrust scrutiny, it seems to me that we would all be able to agree on supporting this measure.

So I rise very reluctantly, but nevertheless I have to do it. As I have said, I am not anti-consumer. The Consumers Union has guided some of my views in this matter.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the record a letter from the Consumers Union, Gene Kimmelman, Vice President, as CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

DEAR MEMBER OF CONGRESS: We are writing to urge you to vote with American consumers by voting “No” today on H.R. 6228, the “Wright Amendment” legislation. This bill codifies a private agreement between American Airlines and Southwest Airlines, along with the cities of Dallas, Ft. Worth and Dallas/Fort Worth Airport, to divide up the airline market for Dallas at the expense of the flying public. The Antitrust Division of the U.S. Department of Justice has called the bill a “per se” violation of the antitrust laws. The proponents of H.R. 6228 are employing extraordinary tactics to bring this anti-consumer and anticompetitive legislation to a vote in the final hours prior to adjournment. In fact, the language of H.R. 6228 has never been considered by the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, nor the Judiciary Committee. Even more objectionable, however, is the fact that H.R. 6228 completely ignores the vital work of the Judiciary Committee to strike the “deal’s” antitrust immunity provisions.

The Judiciary Committee approved an amendment by Chairman Sensenbrenner and Ranking Member Conyers that would at least ensure that the bill comply with the nation’s antitrust laws – laws enacted to protect consumers from this very type of special interest legislation. Instead of honoring these important amendments, the bill’s proponents have whipped this measure to the House floor under suspension of the rules. Erasing the important work of the committee charged with protecting consumers from anti-competitive behavior would constitute a breakdown of rational governance in the House of Representatives.

Passage of H.R. 6228 would not only harm consumers and competition in the Southwest and Southeast, it would be an affront to citizens across the nation. We agree with the attached column from The Washington Post which states, “The loser (in this deal), of course, was the only party with no seat at the negotiating table—namely, consumers. Any consumer representative would have immediately recognized the deal for what it is—collusion between two dominant competitors to limit supply, carve up a market and keep out other competitors. In other words, a flagrant violation of the antitrust laws.”

As you and your colleagues work to conclude your business before the November elections, please don’t forget about American consumers. With this assault on the anti-trust laws, a bad bill that affects an icon of American commerce, with its image as an evan-

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 6228. The Wright Amendment Reform Act, which would implement the agreement reached by the Cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, the Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport Board, American Airlines and Southwest Airlines to reform the so-called Wright Amendment.

The Wright Amendment was an effort by our former colleague, Jim Wright, then Majority Leader, later, Speaker Wright, to codify an agreement reached in 1979 among the Dallas and Fort Worth business and political communities, and surrounding communities, to newly opened Dallas/Fort Worth (DFW) Airport. This agreement ensured that DFW would be the primary airport for the DFW metropolitan region, and that Love Field would remain a limited, short haul airport.

Recently, the Dallas and Fort Worth communities, along with American Airlines and Southwest Airlines, came forward with a new agreement that would, in their view, make repealing the Wright Amendment acceptable. The Transportation & Infrastructure Committee, along with the issues surrounding the Wright Amendment legislatively, rather than allow it to erode piecemeal as it has over the years, without a view to the larger national aviation context. The “stakeholders” in this process are not just the Cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, the airlines, and the airport authorities. The “stakeholders” are all Americans.

If you approve a law for an additional highway on the East Coast, it does not do much for traffic on the West Coast. However, if you approve a law for additional feet of runway at an airport on the East Coast, it does make traffic from the West Coast more accessible to the East Coast because of the nature of air travel. Similarly, dealing with DFW and Love Field is a national matter.

H.R. 6228, would implement three core provisions of the parties’ contract: to repeal the Wright Amendment 8 years after enactment of this Act; eliminate the restrictions on through-ticketing from Love Field; and to cap the Love Field gates at 20 in perpetuity.

Imagining the bill addresses two very significant issues that I raised in Committee: safety and new entrant access.

Love Field is approximately 8 miles from DFW. In 1991, when I served as Chairman of the Aviation Subcommittee, I held a hearing during which significant safety concerns were raised regarding the potential expansion of flights at Love Field. Many witnesses attending that hearing expressed concern that the proximity of approach and departure procedures to and from both DFW and Love Field, along with conflicting flight patterns, could decrease the margin of safety.

While I have the utmost confidence in our nation’s air traffic controllers, I want to ensure that by adding more flights at Love Field, we are not reducing the cushion of safety. Controllers should not need to slow air traffic to accommodate the safety margin, nor should they be compelled to operate at the outside of the power curve to avoid delays in and around the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

H.R. 6228 addresses this very significant issue by including a provision that prohibits the legislation from taking effect until the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) notifies Congress that additional aviation operations in the airspace serving Love Field and the Dallas-Fort Worth area, which are likely to be conducted after the enactment of this Act, can be accommodated in full compliance with FAA safety standards, in accordance with the FAA’s mandate to maintain safety at the highest possible level, and without adverse effect on airspace use in the area.

The second issue is competition. The agreement would change the gate availability at Love Field to greatly increase the difficulty of any carrier other than Southwest or American to serve Love Field. Currently, there are 32 gates at Love Field, 13 available for new entrants. The agreement would reduce the gates to 20, and allocate all of these gates to American, Southwest, and Continental. To ensure that a prospective new carrier would have reasonable access to these 20 gates at Love Field, H.R. 6228 preserves the FAA’s authority to enforce grant assurances that obligate Love Field to make its facilities available on a reasonable and non-discriminatory basis.

Further, Love Field continues to be subject to all federal requirements relating to safety, security, labor, civil rights, small business concerns, veteran’s preference, disability access and revenue diversion that are applicable to all airports.

As to antitrust issues, this legislation does not implicitly or explicitly provide antitrust immunity. The antitrust laws were designed to ensure that the City of Dallas would reduce the number of operational gates to no more than 20, which includes the removal of the 6 so-called Lemmon Avenue gates, and allows the City to allocate the use of the remaining gates based on business cases and obligations. These directives could be advanced as a defense in an antitrust case.

Accordingly, I want to thank the Chairman Young and the Texas delegation for working with me on this legislation to ensure that my concerns on safety and new entrant access are addressed and I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 6228.

WRIGHT AMENDMENT REFORM ACT ANTITRUST BULLETS

The Judiciary Committee opposed the original bill reported by the Transportation Committee. The legislation was an exception from the antitrust laws. To meet this concern the bill has been modified to remove the exception. This change met the antitrust concerns of the Chairman of Senate Judiciary who now supports the bill.

The House Judiciary Committee Chair argues that even though the antitrust exemption has been removed, the bill still directs actions, such as the closing of gates, which would violate the antitrust laws if done by agreement of private parties. This is not a valid argument. Congress has the authority to direct the closing of gates for environmental or economic reasons, even if private parties would not be allowed to do this under the anti-trust laws. The antitrust laws are only Congressional legislation, and Congress can pass subsequent legislation creating exceptions.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. GRANGER), one of the prime creators and initiators of this compromise agreement.

Ms. GRANGER. Mr. Speaker, I would first like to thank the House Transportation Committee for their work on this bill and the leadership of Chairman DON YOUNG, Ranking Member OBERSTAR and Aviation Subcommittee Chairman Mica.

Also, I want to thank the Speaker and Majority Leader for working so hard to get this bill done and on the floor.

All of the Texas delegation, including our two Senators, have played a part in making this bill possible; and the five stakeholders, the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, American Airlines and Southwest Airlines and Dallast-Fort Worth International Airport, have all come together in really an unprecedented way to forge an agreement and get this issue behind us.

The Mayors of Fort Worth and Dallas and community leaders met from both cities for months putting this agreement together, and they deserve much credit. Everyone gave up something for the better good, and then they gave their product to us to put into law, as is required for this to work.

Having worked and struggled with this issue for 15 years, first as Mayor and then as Congresswoman, I am more than ready to move on to something else and proudly support this legislation and urge a yes vote for its passage.

I also extend to Mr. CONYERS an invitation to come to Fort Worth. You will love it, and that will love you for helping with this bill.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONYERS).

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Mr. Speaker, I have heard the best arguments presented about why this is a good measure: Safety is increased, noise is decreased, congestion is mitigated, competition is increased. Is there anybody on any of the committees that wants to say something about the consumers? Is that something that hasn’t been contemplated up until now?

Come on, guys. Give me a break. Consumers consist of everybody in America. They are not just in Texas.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from New York (Mr. MEEEKS).

Mr. MEEEKS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to support S. 3661. This is a fair and pro-consumer compromise that is in the public’s best interests and was passed by unanimous consent this afternoon by the Senate.

Local communities should have input to limit airport size in order to deal with the issues of noise, congestion and safety. Accordingly, this bill respects the desire of the community to make sure that the more urban of its two airports does not become overbearing. Failure to do so will send a signal that the Federal Government is prepared to override every other community that wants to limit the size of its airport facilities to protect the environment for safety reasons.
McA. I urge my colleagues to vote “yes” on S. 3661.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CONVERSE).

Mr. CONVERSE. Mr. Speaker, to my brother from New York, Brother Meeks, this is a pro-consumer compromise that all the consumer organizations that I have consulted and that have consulted me are strenuously opposed to. Can anyone explain to me how this is a pro-consumer bill?

Mr. CONVERSE. I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I submit for printing in the RECORD a statement relating to the Wright Amendment Reform Act and the antitrust issues that have been raised, and information relating to how S. 3661 will enhance airline competition and benefit consumers, in response to questions that have been raised in regard to those items.

WRIGHT AMENDMENT REFORM ACT—ANTITRUST ISSUES

The Judiciary Committee opposed the original Wright amendment bill (H.R. 5830), which was reported by the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, because our bill included an exemption from antitrust laws.

To meet the concerns expressed by the Judiciary Committee, S. 3661 has been modified to remove the exemption.

Chairman Sensenbrenner argues that even though the antitrust exemption has been removed, S. 3661 still directs actions, such as the closure of gates, which would violate the antitrust laws if carried out through an agreement of private parties.

This is not a valid argument. Congress has the authority to direct the closing of gates for safety, economic or environmental reasons, even if private parties would not be allowed to do this under the antitrust laws.

S. 3661 WILL ENHANCE AIRLINE COMPETITION AND BENEFIT CONSUMERS CONGRESS MUST FIX MESS THAT IT CREAT ED BY ENACTING AMENDMENT

The Wright amendment was intended to protect the then-new Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, DFW.

Since DFW is now the third-largest airport in the U.S. in terms of annual passenger movements, the Wright amendment is no longer needed.

By restricting commercial air service out of Dallas Love Field to cities in Texas and eight surrounding states, the Wright amendment has resulted in higher fares and fewer service options for consumers in the Dallas-Fort Worth market.

IMMEDIATE REPEAL OF WRIGHT AMENDMENT NO VIABLE OPTION

Due to complex and long-standing political, economic and environmental concerns, the ideal solution—immediate repeal of the Wright Amendment—was not supported by the Cities of Dallas, Fort Worth, local communities and affected airlines.

Consequently, S. 3661 represents a locally-generated, bipartisan compromise that balances carefully the interests of the local parties.

CONSUMERS WILL BENEFIT IMMEDIATELY UNDER S. 3661

S. 3661 will intensify competition in the entire Dallas-Ft. Worth market by lifting all existing geographic restrictions on commercial air service at Dallas Love Field in eight years.

Two independent studies found that S. 3661 will increase traffic to and from North Texas by 2 million passengers annually and produce $259 million per year in fare savings immediately.

Airlines serving Dallas Love Field could immediately begin marketing connecting commercial air service from Love Field to cities outside the Wright Amendment’s geographic area.

20-GATE LIMITATION AT LOVE FIELD WILL NOT HINDER COMPETITION

Due to safety and environmental concerns raised by local communities, S. 3661 would limit capacity at Dallas Love Field to 20 gates for commercial service.
S. 3661 would not reduce existing capacity at Dallas Love Field, where fewer than 20 gates are currently being used by airlines for commercial air service.

S. 3661 protects existing procedures that ensure any airline seeking to provide new commercial passenger service at Love Field may do so.

In addition to utilizing Dallas Love Field, airlines that wish to provide new commercial service to the Dallas-Fort Worth area can operate at DFW Airport, which is located just eight miles from Love Field and currently has 20 unused gates.

I am pleased now to yield 1 minute to a very distinguished member of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, a newer member on the team but has also heard this issue, KENNY MARCHANT, the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. MARCHANT. Mr. Speaker, the Wright amendment is the number one business issue in my district, District 24. American Airlines headquarters and Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport are located in that district.

The job statistics speak for themselves: American Airlines has 7,300 employees in my district, and DFW Airport itself has 16,000 jobs. The airport itself is responsible for almost 260,000 jobs in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Therefore, it is obvious that the people of my district have a lot riding on this bill.

Mr. Speaker, the Wright amendment was a unique law created for a unique circumstance: therefore, its repeal calls on a unique solution. I think this bill before us today provides just that, and I urge the House to suspend the rules and pass the bill.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to yield to the distinguished Chair of the full Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, a gentleman who has helped craft this historic agreement and codify it today, Mr. Young.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I want to thank the Texas delegation for working together to bring forth this bill and solving a problem. My job is to solve problems, and this bill does solve a problem. It takes two cities and puts them together, and allows the State to go forward and we won’t have this problem before us anymore.

A lot of times we lose sight of solving problems in this body by hanging up on jurisdiction or hanging up on a small clause. But we are the people that write the laws, we create the laws, and we try to make them work.

This is a bill that will take and rectify a mistake, I believe, in the past, and bring both parties together, both cities together, all airlines together, and provide for the service of the people of Texas and this Nation. I urge the passage of this bill in District 24.

Mr. COSTELLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support S. 3661, the Wright Amendment Reform Act of 2006.

I’d like to thank Chairman Young, Mr. Mica, Mr. Oberstar, and Mr. Johnson for their hard work in getting this agreement re- pealing the Wright amendment. I know there was a lot of “give and take” on both sides to reach this legislative agreement.

In particular, Ms. Johnson has been a leader on this matter and she should be commended for her hard work. Without her persistence, we would not be here today.

This legislation seeks to fully repeal the Wright amendment, with several conditions.

In 1979, Fort Worth and Dallas came together and reached an agreement to have one regional airport—Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport, DFW—thus restricting service at other local airports. This local agreement was codified by congressional action known as the Wright amendment.

The Wright agreement was a logical step when enacted in 1979. It brought stability to the north Texas air market.

As a result, I have supported the Wright amendment as a way to enhance DFW’s growth and development. The airport has done its part by fueling the region’s economy.

However, today, DFW is far from a small regional airport. As an international airport, its influence is far-reaching and has become a major player in markets that other airports cannot serve from Love Field.

In response, some have sought to repeal the Wright amendment through a piecemeal approach, an approach that is ineffective and very poor policy.

On June 15, 2006, it was announced that Southwest Airlines, American Airlines, the city of Dallas, and Fort Worth worked out a local agreement.

The Aviation Subcommittee held a hearing July 12, 2006, on this historic agreement where many questions, concerns, and issues were addressed.

While S. 3661 addresses many of those concerns, I must say that I have reservations that by accepting this agreement, we are restricting the aviation capacity at Love Field.

Congress, in part, will be making it harder for new airlines to enter the market—5 years, 10 years, or even 20 years from now—by allowing the infrastructure that a new competitor will need at Love Field to be destroyed.

I question the idea of restricting and destroying infrastructure that could be used in the future in order to address a problem today. I hope the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee and the FAA will closely monitor the implementation of this legislation to ensure consumer protection, economic growth, and competition.

Mr. Speaker, that said, I will support S. 3661.

Mr. BURGESS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of S. 3661, the Wright Amendment Reform Act of 2006. As a representative of DFW International Airport, I have always felt strongly in protecting the economic engine that is north Texas. It is still the case that this region is responsible for the region. Together with DFW International Airport, American Airlines, and Southwest Airlines, they brought to Congress an agreement that will protect and benefit my constituents and allow for better service at Love Field. I sincerely thank the mayors for their commitment and dedication to this delicate and complicated task.

Also, the north Texas delegation has worked endlessly on this matter, and the passage of this legislation today is a testament to the determination and dedication of my colleagues. We have all had to make concessions, but at the end of the day, the enactment of this legislation is crucial for our districts.

I ask for my colleagues to support the north Texas delegation and as we try to solve a unique problem with this unique and important legislation.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of S. 3661, the Wright Amendment Reform Act. This legislation implements a locally achieved compromise resolving the longstanding controversy over the 1979 Wright amendment, which imposed Federal restrictions on commercial airline service to the Dallas love Field.

I note Mr. Speaker that all of the key stakeholders—Southwest Airlines, Fort Worth, DFW Airport, American Airlines, and the city of Dallas—support the locally achieved Wright amendment compromise and urge Congress to approve this legislation. But as Southwest CEO Gary Kelly observed, the only sure fire winner from this locally achieved agreement, is the public—the public citizens who will find it easier and far less expensive to travel to and from North Texas for business and personal reasons; the citizens who will reap vast economic benefits in their communities from enhanced travel and tourism, at a lower cost."

A key component of the compromise is the change in Federal law embodied in the legislation allowing Southwest Airlines to immediately begin selling “through tickets” for travel to and from Dallas Love Field. This change will enable Love Field customers to travel on a one-stop basis to and from cities within our nation-wide system which are outside the limited number of States Southwest currently is allowed to serve under the terms of the Wright amendment.

A recent study indicates that through ticketing at Dallas Love Field will increase passengers traveling to and from north Texas by 2 million annually and produce $259 million per year in fare savings. Additionally, the study found that through ticketing will generate over $2 billion annually in spending and related economic activity for north Texas and for many communities outside the current Wright amendment perimeter.

The approval of through ticketing, the local compromise will have a very significant and widespread economic impact from the beginning. Further, the local compromise calls for the Wright amendment to be repealed in its entirety in 8 years, allowing airlines serving Love Field to fly nonstop to any domestic destination. The outcome will be continued economic benefits for consumers nationwide.

Approval of this legislation by the Congress will bring to a close a dispute that preoccupied the Dallas Metroplex for nearly 30 years all while negatively impacting the rest of the Nation. I applaud Congresswoman Eunice JOHNSON and other members of the Texas congressional delegation for their yeoman work in bringing this saga to a happy conclusion.

H8010
CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE
September 29, 2006
conclusion. I ask my colleagues to join me in supporting this legislation. I ask you to vote for S. 3661.

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, as many know, last year, I authored the Right to Fly Act which would completely and immediately repeal the Wright Amendment. The legislation ignited quite a debate in the metropolitan area.

Within a year the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth as well as DFW Airport, American Airlines and Southwest Airlines reached an historic consensus among them. I saluted Mayors Miller and Moncrief for their tenacity and leadership in forging that consensus. Although disappointed, I certainly was not surprised to learn that their plan did not mirror my own. Still, I stood ready to compromise and support a congressional plan that provided immediate “through-ticketing” and full repeal of Wright 8 years later. Then I read the fine print.

Although I respect my Congressional colleagues with differing opinions, in my view, the Wright Amendment is not really repealed under this plan. It is simply repackaged. As a fervent supporter of free markets, I simply believe that if both Congress should not interfere in the market competition between airports.

Still, I have always maintained a willingness to support Wright Amendment repeal plans aside from my own as long as they met a twofold test: (1) they clearly benefit consumers and (2) the plan removes Congress from the business of airport protectionism, which costs us greatly. According to the Department of Transportation, we pay about 1½ more for long distance airfares.

With respect to consumers, I am concerned that the agreement essentially constitutes an 8 year extension of the current Wright Amendment as opposed to a gradual phase-out. One study indicated that consumers annually pay almost $700 million extra in airfares due to the Wright Amendment. An 8-year extension would cost consumers an additional $5 billion—which, even by Washington standards, is a big number and a huge burden to American families.

On the other hand, I believe immediate “through-ticketing” can positively impact competition and airfares. American Airlines and Southwest Airlines commissioned a study—the findings of which I announced at a recent Congressional Hearing on the Wright Amendment—that concluded that through-ticketing can produce $259 million in fare savings annually. I find it encouraging that consumers could recoup some of their losses from this part of the local agreement.

My main concern is that the agreement does not get Congress out of the business of interfering with airport competition. That is the essence of the Wright Amendment, not the specific interference of perimeter restrictions. For example, in the local agreement, the City of Dallas agrees to reduce the number of gates at Love Field from 32 to 20. Though I might not like it, I respect their right to contractually bind the airport and decide whether Love Field is limited to 20 gates, 10 gates or even shut down. It is their airport.

But I believe it is wrong for the parties to ask Congress to establish into Federal law their private contractual obligations. Those are enforceable in court. By including these privately made agreements in a new federal law, Congress would be replacing one complex set of anti-competitive rules with another. Terminating today’s version of the Wright Amendment, whereby Congress imposes distance limitations on an airport, only to replace it with a new version of the Wright Amendment whereby Congress imposes gate limitations on an airport, does not constitute repeal—today, in 8 years or ever. Additionally, the unusual anti-trust exemption language is troubling.

For far too long the Wright Amendment has been a burden on both consumers and the national economy. In the spirit of compromise, I again would support a simple federal law that would enact immediate through-ticketing, fully repeal of Wright in 8 years while respecting the rights of American Airlines, Southwest Airlines, DFW and the cities of Fort Worth and Dallas to otherwise enter into lawful contracts to mutually bind themselves as they choose. Try as I may, I cannot in good faith support the current bill, which I fear simply replaces one version of the Wright Amendment with another.

Should this legislation become law, I hope it proves to be of significant benefit to the air traveling public. If it does, I will take some satisfaction knowing I helped play a small role as its catalyst.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BASS). The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MICA) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, S. 3661.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds of those present have voted in the affirmative.

Mr. SENSENBRENNER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays. The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX and the Chair’s prior announcement, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The bill instructs the Department of Energy and the National Institute of Standards and Technology to research fuel additives and other technologies that would make biodiesel fuels more compatible with the country's petroleum-based infrastructure.

The bill also promotes energy conservation in three important ways. First, it provides incentives for the construction of energy efficient buildings. Today's buildings consume 50 percent of the Nation's supply of natural gas and 70 percent of its electricity, more energy than any other sector of the economy, including industry and transportation.

Second, the bill offers grants to States who deploy solar cells and purchase plug-in hybrid electric vehicles.

Finally, it establishes a cooperative extension program to encourage the use of advanced energy technologies patterned after the successful agricultural extension programs that aided farmers in incorporating advanced technologies and food production.

H.R. 6203 is a modified version of H.R. 5656, which was approved by the Science Committee in July. Like most bills that come to the Science Committee, H.R. 6203 represents a compilation of great ideas from a number of members of the committee, including my colleagues from Texas, Lamar Smith and Mike McCaul. And I would especially like to thank the ranking member, Mr. GORDON, for his leadership and his additions to the bill. The bill was further perfected in committee by Goddesses Doris Matsui, Lynn Woolsey, Sheila Jackson-Lee, Eddie Bernice Johnson, Ken Calvert, Al Green, Brian Baird, and Brad Miller. I want to thank my colleagues on the committee for their contributions. H.R. 6203 is the product of a truly bipartisan effort.

Mr. Speaker, high natural gas prices and the summer spike in gasoline prices serve as a stark reminder that the path to energy independence is a long and arduous one.

To make significant progress down this path requires a steadfast commitment from Congress and the Federal Government to support the development of advanced energy technologies and alternative fuels that will help end our addiction to oil.

The bill we are considering today would do just that in a fiscally responsible way. In some cases, it gives new direction to research funding authorizations in EPACT. In others, the House already has appropriated funds for the programs.

I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 6203.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GORDON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 6203. This bill is very similar to Mrs. BIGGERT's H.R. 5656 which the Science Committee passed favorably in June. We support the changes that were made and believe they express some of the concerns our Members had with H.R. 5656.

The original bill contained a number of important provisions from Democratic Members, and I want to thank Chairwoman BIGGERT for working with us to include them in this most recent version. I am especially pleased to see my bill, H.R. 5658, included as section 15 of this bill.

If our country is serious about reducing our dependency on foreign oil, we need to get serious about mobilizing the infrastructure necessary to distribute and dispense the next generation of fuels.

The bill instructs the Department of Energy and the National Institute of Standards and Technology to research fuel additives and other technologies that would make biodiesel fuels more compatible with the country's petroleum-based infrastructure.

My bill, contained in section 15, also addresses potential challenges as fuel suppliers transition to ultra-low sulfur diesel, a fuel significantly cleaner than traditional diesel.

This section instructs the Department of Energy and NIST to develop portable, low-cost, and accurate methods suppliers can use to test sulfur content in fuels. It should be noted that in no way is this meant to interfere with the authority or activities of the EPA to continue the successful transition to ultra-low sulfur diesel or other fuels programs. It is intended to assist companies that are complying with EPA’s programs, and I encourage DOE and NIST to coordinate these activities with EPA.

While I support Mrs. BIGGERT’s bill, I personally believe the committee should be sending a stronger message regarding the future of high-risk, high-payout technologies. Specifically, we should move towards the establishment of an Advanced Research Projects Agency for Energy, or ARPA-E, as directed in my bill, H.R. 4435.

There is a need for an organization capable of finding and promoting research breakthroughs and converting those findings into potentially transformational energy technologies that will make this country more energy self-sufficient.

Mr. Speaker, all in all, I believe this is a good bill with some strong energy research programs. I urge its adoption.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I recognize a valuable member of the Science Committee, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) for 3 minutes.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, first of all, I would like to thank the gentleman from Illinois, who is the chairman of the Science Committee’s Subcommittee on Energy for yielding to me; and I want to express my appreciation to Mrs. BIGGERT for assembling this legislation, which will contribute mightily to our energy independence.

H.R. 6203, the Alternative Energy Research and Development Act, incorporates two pieces of legislation that I introduced: the Plug-In Hybrid Electric Vehicle Act of 2006 and the Solar Utilization Now, or SUN Act, of 2006. They will reduce our Nation’s dependence on foreign sources of oil by promoting plug-in hybrid vehicles and the use of solar power.

The Plug-In Hybrid Electric Vehicle Act establishes a partnership between public and private entities and requires the Secretary of Energy to carry out a program of research and development for plug-in hybrid electric vehicles and electric drive transportation technologies. The goal is to develop a plug-in vehicle that can travel up to 40 miles on battery power alone.

The bill also establishes a pilot program of grants to State and local governments and metropolitan transportation authorities.

Congress has the responsibility to help promote this new technology.

I introduced the SUN Act of 2006 because the answer to much of our energy needs in fact comes up every morning. The goal of this legislation is to make electricity from solar power cost-competitive by 2015. The SUN Act encourages State governments and private industry to team up to apply for Federal grants. Solar power is clean, plentiful, and it generates zero emissions and zero waste.

The Federal Government needs to ensure that the research and development of alternative energy technologies continues. The current concern about high gas prices, our dependence on foreign oil and global warming. This bill addresses those concerns and is good for our energy security, national security and environmental security.

Mr. Speaker, I want to first thank Congresswoman BIGGERT for taking the lead on these issues and for getting this package to the House floor.

Mr. GORDON. Mr. Speaker, we have no other requests for this hour and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I recognize another member of the Science Committee who has worked hard in this area, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. McCrery).

Mr. McCrery of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I want to first thank Congresswoman BIGGERT for her leadership on this bill. We have worked very hard to get to this point on the floor. I was very proud to be a part of it. I thank you again for your leadership.

And I thank Congressman KIRK for helping us in this effort and my colleague from Texas, Mr. Smith, for his hard work.

This alternative energy legislation is crucial for America. But it isn’t just an alternative energy issue. It is also very much a national security issue. For some time now, we in the Congress, as the gentleman from Tennessee has said, have been working on reducing America’s addiction to foreign sources of oil. This is a giant step in the right direction. This bill will provide research and development for energy independence, for clean energy technologies, for plug-in hybrid vehicles, solar power, wind, biofuels, clean coal technologies, and hydrogen.

If passed, this visionary legislation will put us on the track to provide cheaper and more reliable alternatives to fossil fuels and will work to provide a cleaner environment for our children and our grandchildren.

I want to thank our colleagues on the other side of the aisle for their strong support of this legislation as well. It is an important bill for America’s energy future.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I recognize the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP), who is not a member of the Science Committee but has been so helpful as a member of the Policy Committee and of the Appropriations Committee, and I yield 3 minutes.

Mr. WAMP. Mr. Speaker, I thank Mrs. BIGGERT and Mr. GORDON for their leadership.

For 6 years, I have had the privilege of serving as the co-Chair on the House of the Renewable Energy Efficiency Caucus with Mark Udall of Colorado, which is over half of the House. They bill passed in the Senate. There is widespread bipartisan support for these programs. I think it is so important that we do this.

I want to say that one of the under-reported stories of the last 2 years is the impact of last year’s energy bill, the final agreement. I didn’t support the House bill, but I supported the final bill because the Senate made it so much better, advanced especially the establishment of an Advanced Research Projects Agency for energy, charcoal plants under construction across America today because alternative fuels is what we need to advance.

Leadership cries out for us to do what we need to do for the next generation with respect to energy, regardless of what energy costs today. Some people think if it is $4 a gallon you have to make changes, but if it is $2 a gallon you don’t need to. No, we need to. And leadership cries out for us to be aggressive.

And I am a conservative. Sometimes conservatives forget we are supposed to conserve, to save, to be efficient. Plus our dependence on other sources of energy is causing us not to be independent and to really be vulnerable. So this is a security issue.

I think, frankly, if we don’t do things like this we are being penny-wise and pound-foolish. These initiatives are real. They are substantive. This is a great first step.

It is really a second step. I think EPACT was the first step. This is the second step. I would even argue next year we need to do a third step and continue to advance this cause.

We didn’t balance the budget for 3 years by cutting spending. We did slow the rate of growth of spending, but we balanced the budget because the economy grew because we led the world in information. Earl Blumenauer, from out on your side of this country, The Microsoft explosion was a robust, U.S. manufacturing export-driven economy where revenues surpassed expenses and we balanced the budget.

We can do that again, solving the world’s energy problems because we are the smartest people in the world. A dynamic, export-driven economy if we will invest in energy solutions for the world, and you can’t just expect it to happen. The government plays a role. We have to lead on this issue.

This is a double negative, but I with close with this: We cannot afford not to do this. That is what the House needs to understand. We cannot afford not to do this. Please support this bill, move it forward, and then let’s go further in the 110th Congress.

Mr. GORDON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WAMP. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. GORDON. Let me just add my voice to my friend and colleague from Tennessee to say he has been a strong, consistent leader in this area, and I want to thank you for that. It has made this Congress better for your effort.

Mr. WAMP. Reclaiming my time, thank you for your leadership, and thank you, Mrs. BIGGERT.
Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I recognize the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KIRK). He has been the chairman of the Suburban Caucus, and this bill has been on the Suburban Caucus list for those bills that are important to not only Illinoians, but all over the country, and I yield 2 minutes to Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland.

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleagues from Illinois who put together this legislation as a leader in Congress. Along with Congressman McCauley, you have outlined an alternative energy and renewable fuels future for the country in a bipartisan way, along with the gentleman from Tennessee.

The U.S. imports nearly 5 billion barrels of oil a year. And there has been a recent decline in the price of gas across the United States, but we need oil independence to protect us from a volatile world of oil markets, increasing global pollution, and unstable leaders in Iran and elsewhere.

I move to State the need for alternative energy and renewable fuels equals national security for the United States.

This legislation will accelerate the development of advanced and clean technologies. It promotes the implementation of solar photovoltaic, wind, geothermal, and hydropower. It establishes a research and development program for the conversion of coal into pipeline-quality fuel.

In my State of Illinois, we have a 250-year American supply of coal, one of the largest supplies in the United States; and with the development of clean coal technology we can better utilize a vast resource to help out the United States.

The grants, incentives and programs established in this bipartisan bill have the potential to save American consumers billions of dollars, create thousands of new jobs and dramatically decrease energy consumption and pollution. In achieving the goals set forth in this bipartisan bill, we end our addiction to foreign oil and enhance our national security.

Mr. Speaker, on a day in which we look at the loss of a colleague in this House, in which we see vigorous foreign policy debate, what is being missed without a single reporter in the gallery is bipartisan legislation working on an alternative-energy future for the nation. It is a story that should not be missed, both parties joining together to make sure we enhance renewable and alternative fuels and that we make sure that America leads.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I recognize the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. BARTLETT), a long-time member of the Science Committee and the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. BARTLETT) of Maryland. Mr. Speaker, there have been in the last couple of years two major government-sponsored studies on energy. One was a big SAIC report, commonly called the Hirsch Report. The other was a more recent report by the Corps of Engineers, and both of them reached essentially the same conclusion.

The world has either peaked in oil production, conventional oil production, or it will shortly peak in oil production with potentially devastating consequences. The Hirsch report said that the world has never faced a problem like this, that mitigation consequences will be unprecedented.

Today I got across my desk a flyer from a group here on the Hill that said that we ought to be cautious about this suspension vote because some new programs were suggested here. I hope, Mr. Speaker, that these programs are suggested here because the reality is the Hirsch report said if you didn’t anticipate the peaking of oil, in 20 years there were going to be economic consequences.

We knew 25 years ago that this was a reality. By 1980, 1981, we absolutely knew that M. King Huppert was right. The United States had peaked in 1970. We are well down that slope now. He predicted the world would be peaking about now.

I hope, Mr. Speaker, that there are a lot of new programs in here because we don’t have 10 years. We don’t have 20 years. I think we have essentially run out of time. We have run out of energy.

And don’t be lulled into complacency by this find of oil in the gulf. Instead of our responding, saying here is some energy and we can invest in alternatives, what we have said is, I don’t need to buy that hybrid now; I can now buy an SUV. We have exactly the wrong response to this.

Please, this is a great bill. I hope there are new programs in it. My only complaint with the bill is it doesn’t have enough new programs in it.

Thank you very much for a great bill. Everybody should vote “yes” on this.

Mr. GORDON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to reclaim my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

Mr. GORDON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, let me rise in support of this legislation and ask my colleagues to support it and thank the gentlewoman from Illinois and the gentleman from Tennessee for their leadership and to comment on how the Science Committee provides such a contribution in a bipartisan way of looking at the next generation of alternative fuels.

Representing what has been called the “energy capital of the world,” I know the use of fossil fuels, oil, gas, coal. And, frankly, I believe that energy comnotes opportunity, new energy alternatives, and our companies are called “energy companies.” So this gives us an impetus and an bipartisan way to take this country forward.

I will drop tonight legislation that deals with cellulose research on ethanol to encourage the production of ethanol in a different manner. And I hope that as we are dependent at this time on oil, gas, and coal that we will also look to the research opportunities that have been created by this legislation and the forward-thinking aspects that this legislation antedates.

Research, investment in research, generates value for the consumers, efficiency for the consumers, and low cost for the consumers.

And I think that we have to give the dialogue that we have had, whether we are for or against wars that are raging around the world, all of us have discussed the question of dependency on foreign energy resources. This legislation allows us in a thoughtful manner to create a pathway of independence for America.

And I want to thank the gentlewoman for yielding and thank the gentlewoman and ask my colleagues to support this legislation. And I hope in the Science Committee, Congress we will be in the forefront of alternative energies because I would be delighted to have those same energy companies in Houston, Texas, of which I may belistening and I am not, I am not far from being a user of oil and we are using gas, but in any event to diversify and utilize alternative fuels, and I think we will be the better for it.

I ask my colleagues to support it.

Mr. GORDON. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FLAKE).

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman and the gentleman for yielding.

I just think there ought to be somebody who stands and says that research like this is going on in the private sector, continually, as it should be. That is where it ought to be. I hope that we can reach more energy independence.

But when we look at the situation that we have now with a massive deficit and a huge debt, I think it is too much to ask, particularly given the oil prices that are all the face right now. There are huge profits being made by oil companies who have plenty of room to actually fund a lot of this research on their own, and it is a little too much to ask taxpayers, in my view, to come in and support.

And I have heard the price tag to be somewhere around $600 million. That would seem to me to be a bit steep.

So I for one do not support the legislation. I know that it has overwhelming broad bipartisan support, and I am not hopeful that my views will prevail. But I just want to add that I think the day of the taxpayer, for a taxpaying at this time, is not a wise move.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to Mr. BARTLETT from Maryland.

Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland. Mr. Speaker, we have 2 percent of the non-reserves of oil. We use 25 percent of the world’s oil. We import almost two-thirds of what we use. Ten years from now when we look back purp is going to be that there wasn’t ten times as much money in this bill for these programs.
Chairman, Committee on Science, 2320 Rayburn House Office Building.

November 18, 2006

Mr. Speaker, yesterday's headlines announced that the national average price of gasoline dropped another 12 cents in the last week, the seventh straight week that gasoline prices have fallen. That is certainly good news for the American consumer in the U.S., and businesses.

However, we cannot allow ourselves to be lulled into a sense of complacency whenever the price of gasoline drops. We have to face the fact that we cannot meet today's energy needs, much less tomorrow's, with yesterday's energy infrastructure and technology. We must reduce our reliance on expensive natural gas and Mid-Eastern oil and instead encourage the use of clean, efficient alternatives like solar, wind, hydrogen, and biofuels. These advanced energy technologies offer the best hope for diversifying energy supplies. They can improve efficiency. They can promote conservation. And perhaps most importantly, they can bring us ever closer to ending our reliance on Mid-Eastern oil.

I want to thank the staff who worked so hard to bring this bill to the floor today, including Bill Koetzle in the Speaker's office and Michael Ference in the majority whip's office. And I want to thank the staff of the Science Committee for all their hard work on this bill and the many others we have worked on together over the past years. And particularly I want to commend David Goldston for his tireless efforts on behalf of the committee and its chairman. Both he and my good friend, Chairman BOEHLERT, will be missed.

Again, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 6203.

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this bill, but I rise mostly to praise the Members who have contributed to it: Chairman JUDY BIGGERT, and Congressmen LAMAR SMITH and MIKE McCaUL not only wrote the excellent provisions of this bill, but it's been their persistence that has enabled it to come to the floor today. I also want to recognize my ranking Member, Mr. GORDON, and his colleagues, who have also contributed provisions to this bill.

This bill should be one of the easiest votes we cast this Congress and certainly today. The bill commits our Nation to conducting more research and development on the technologies that will reduce our dependence on foreign oil. That includes biomass, solar, wind, hydrogen, and hybrid vehicle technologies. It's a non-controversial list, indeed, it's a must-do list.

Many of the provisions in the bill originated with the President's Advanced Energy Initiative.

This bill is quite frankly the bare minimum we can do to establish the right foundation we need to build from, to urge my colleagues to support this valuable measure.

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 6203, which is very similar to a bill we marked up earlier this year in the Science Committee, with some of the more expensive and contentious elements taken out.

I'm pleased that this bill, which enjoys bipartisan support, contains amendments offered by a number of my colleagues in committee, including Mr. BARD, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. BRAD MILLER, Ranking Member GORDON, Mrs. MATSU, Mr. AL GREEN, Ms. WOOLEY, Ms. JACKSON-LEE.

The bill addresses research on a wide range of important energy technologies, including advanced biofuels, hydrogen storage, wind energy, plug in hybrid vehicles, energy efficient buildings, and alternative biobased fuels and ultra low sulfur diesel.

The bill also establishes programs for energy technology transfer and green energy education, and calls for a study of an advanced Research Projects Agency for Energy.

I'm particularly pleased that the bill includes research on advanced solar photovoltaic technologies and a photovoltaic demonstration program. In August, Chairwoman BIGGERT and I held a field hearing in my district that focused on photovoltaics.

At the hearing, the witnesses, and let me just note there were 2 Nobel Prize winners on the panel, described how the relatively high cost current supply constraints associated with currently available solar technologies are limiting adoption. But they also outlined several research directions that will help reduce costs and ease manufacturing, which will expand availability.

So I'm glad that this bill will help move that research along and establish a demonstration program with the goal of making electricity generated by solar photovoltaic power cost-competitive by 2015.

I have some concerns about the ramifications of the coal methanation section in the area of greenhouse gas emissions. While I want to reduce America's dependence on foreign oil as much as anyone, in doing so we need to be mindful of the harmful effects of global climate change.

Converting coal to liquid or gaseous fuels results in much greater carbon dioxide emissions than for conventional crude oil derived fuels. I hope any plants built using such an approach will incorporate carbon capture and storage, in order to keep those gases out of our atmosphere.

The rapid development of alternative energy sources is essential to our nation's security, and while I wish we could do more, I'm happy to support the efforts included in H.R. 6203 and ask my colleagues to vote for it.

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentlewoman from Illinois (Mrs. BIGGERT) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 6203.

The question was taken; and (two-thirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on Senate 3661.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from Illinois? There was no objection.

SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND IDEALS OF RED RIBBON WEEK

Mr. DEAL of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the resolution (H. Res. 1028) supporting the goals and ideals of Red Ribbon Week.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. Res. 1028

Whereas the purpose of the Red Ribbon Campaign is to commemorate the service of Enrique "Kiki" Camarena, a Drug Enforcement Administration Special Agent who died in the line of duty in 1985 while engaged in the battle against illicit drugs;

Whereas the Red Ribbon Campaign is nationally recognized and is in its twenty-first year of celebration, helping to preserve Special Agent Camarena’s memory and further the cause for which he gave his life;

Whereas U.S. governors and attorneys general of the States, the National Family Partnership, Parent Teacher Associations, Boys and Girls Clubs of America, and more than 100 organizations throughout the United States annually cosponsor Red Ribbon Week during the period of October 23 through October 31;

Whereas the objective of Red Ribbon Week is to promote drug-free communities through drug prevention efforts, education, parental involvement, and community-wide support;

Whereas drug and alcohol abuse contributes to domestic violence and sexual assaults, and places the lives of children at risk;

Whereas drug abuse is one of the major challenges that the Nation faces in securing a safe and healthy future for families and children;

Whereas although public awareness of illicit drug abuse is increasing, the silent abuse of prescription medication, with over 5,000 children a day has gone almost unnoticed and demands attention; and

Whereas parents, youth, schools, businesses, non-profit agencies, religious institutions, service organizations, senior citizens, medical and military personnel, sports teams, and individuals throughout the United States will demonstrate their commitment to healthy, productive, and drug-free lifestyles by wearing and displaying red ribbons during this weekend celebration; Now therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives—

(1) supports the goals and ideals of Red Ribbon Week;

(2) encourages children and teens to choose to live a drug-free life; and

(3) encourages the people of the United States to promote drug-free communities and to participate in drug prevention activities in support of healthy, productive, drug-free lifestyles.

We know that ultimately education is the answer to preventing drugs among our children. What Red Ribbon Week does is nationally recognize the importance of keeping our youths off drugs, and I am particularly pleased that we are also commemorating Special Agent Enrique “Kiki” Camarena with this resolution. The agents of the Drug Enforcement Agency serve the public to make our communities a safer place to live and work. Our gratitude to them for doing their part in our communities and to keep them drug free should certainly be recognized.

Mr. Speaker, I think this is a great resolution, and I would like to commend my good friend from Indiana, Mr. Souder, for sponsoring this legislation and for his leadership on this issue. I would also like to commend my colleague on the Energy and Commerce Committee, Mr. Terry from Nebraska, for serving as an original cosponsor of the legislation. I urge my colleagues to support this important resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I rise in support of House Resolution 1028, a resolution that recognizes and supports the concept of Red Ribbon Week.

The Red Ribbon campaign began in 1985 after drug traffickers in Mexico kidnapped, tortured, and murdered by the DEA was kidnapped, tortured, and murdered by drug dealers in Mexico.

Resolved, That the House of Representatives—

The Red Ribbon campaign began in 1985 after drug traffickers in Mexico City murdered Kiki Camarena, a United States Drug Enforcement agent.

Red Ribbon Week is sponsored by the National Family Partnership. Each year more than 80 million people show their commitment to a healthy, drug-free life by wearing a red ribbon. During the last week in October, those who wear the red ribbon are saying that we will not tolerate the use or sale of illicit drugs in our Nation.

Substance abuse, and the sale of illegal drugs, is a serious problem in this country. That is why it is so important that as we approach the month of October that we remember Kiki Camarena by wearing a red ribbon. Preventing substance abuse and the associated violence that took Kiki’s life is of great concern to me. Let us celebrate the life and work of Kiki Camarena by passing H. Res. 1028.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DEAL of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. Souder), who is the sponsor of this resolution. Mr. Souder, Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, Red Ribbon Week is a national week celebrated at the end of October that honors the sacrifice made by DEA Special Agent Enrique “Kiki” Camarena. It brings together local communities all over America for anti-drug abuse education and other prevention efforts. I would like to thank all the Members who cosponsored this resolution, as well as Speaker HASTERT, Chairman JOE BARTON of the Energy and Commerce Committee, and Chairman NATHAN DEAL of the Health Subcommittee, for their assistance in bringing this resolution to the floor this evening. I would also like to thank Congressman ELIJAH CUMMINGS, the ranking Democrat on our Drug Policy Subcommittee; and Congressman LEE TERRY of Nebraska for their consistent efforts in the anti-narcotics arena.

As you have already heard, 21 years ago in March, 1985, Special Agent Enrique Camarena of the DEA was kidnapped, tortured, and murdered by drug dealers in Mexico.
Red Ribbon Week is a tribute to the men and women of the Drug Enforcement Administration who daily leave their families to stand on the front lines of this Nation’s counter drug efforts. Those efforts extend to Afghanistan and around the world, from the National Black Market Interdiction Unit to today’s Drug Enforcement Administration Special Agents operating in an increasingly hazardous environment to aid the fledging and almost overwhelmingly anti-drug efforts in that country.

It is regrettable that the work of these courageous men and women frequently lacks the necessary assistance from the Department of Defense to complete their perilous mission. I call on the Department of Defense to increase its level of support so that the memory and sacrifices made by Kiki Camarena and others continue to have meaning and value. Drugs and terror are inexorably linked, and the fight against them should be a seamless, unified campaign, where Government agency assets complement each other so more agents do not die.

Since 1985, we have made substantial progress in the fight against drug abuse, but even today it remains our number one health problem in America. Each year 20,000 will die of drug abuse. Each day all over America a new person and new people are tempted and fall to narcotics abuse.

We must never slacken our efforts. We will never completely win drug war, because new people are tempted every day. But we can make progress. And when we stay at it in prevention, in treatment, interdiction, eradication and enforcement, we do, in fact, reduce the level of drug abuse in the United States and the last year.

Mr. Speaker, once again, I thank the House for joining with me in supporting this resolution recognizing the vital work of drug abuse prevention, recognizing the DEA for their leadership, and encouraging all Americans to participate in Red Ribbon Week.

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, this red ribbon is saying to people across this country, don’t get involved with drugs. Young people, stay in school. That is what it is saying, and stay away from drugs.

So every time you see this red ribbon, especially you young people, understand that it is saying, do not get involved in drugs.

Camarena gave his life trying to make this world a better place for us to live. We should never forget that. So we should wear the red ribbon, saying to people everywhere that we will not tolerate the use of drugs in this country, illegal drugs.

Also, let me just conclude by saying that we have an obligation and a responsibility to keep the work of Camarena alive; and we need to do that by demonstrating everywhere that we go that we have this red ribbon on, and that is what it means. The red ribbon says no to drugs. Stay in school, young people.

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H. Res. 1028 to support the goals and ideals of Red Ribbon Week.

Red Ribbon Week was established 21 years ago to honor the life of Drug Enforcement Administration Special Agent Enrique “Kiki” Camarena, who died in the line of duty while fighting illicit drugs. More than 100 organizations across the United States, including the National Hispanic Council and community organizations such as Boys and Girls Clubs of America, have joined in this effort to promote drug-free communities.

As a Representative of the great State of Nebraska, I reiterate the importance of such efforts to prevent abuse of dangerous drugs such as methamphetamine. The war against the rising tide of meth in the Mid-West and on the West Coast—and now even in some parts of the East Coast—can only be effectively fought through partnerships with law enforcement, government, social service agencies, communities, schools, parents and children. The meth problem affects all aspects of our communities and requires comprehensive solutions at all levels of government and in partnerships with private charities and volunteer organizations.

We need effective drug prevention and education programs; greater parental involvement and public awareness; and law enforcement and social services coordination in order to rescue our communities from the ruination and devastation of meth.

The recent survey of 500 county law enforcement officials found that meth abuse is still the number 1 drug problem nationwide. Many States, including Nebraska, have enacted laws to control access to Sudafed and other drugs that act as the basis for “cooking” meth. The number ofMom and Pop meth labs dropped by an astounding 70 percent in Nebraska and other States. However, 85 percent of law enforcement officials report the meth problem is still growing due to drug trafficking from “superlabs” in Mexico.

This Congress can best honor the memory of Agent Camarena by continuing a strong battle in the “new front” of the war against drugs: methamphetamine.

I urge my colleagues to join me today in not only supporting our law enforcement officers who risk their lives to keep our communities safe, but to join me and other Members of the Congressional Caucus to Fight and Control Methamphetamine by pledging to stop the scourge of meth across our Nation.

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The motion having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin) at 9 o’clock and 20 minutes p.m., the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin) at 9 o’clock and 30 minutes p.m.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE HON. JOE BACA, MEMBER OF CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Honorable Joe Baca, Member of Congress:

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Hon. J. Dennis Hastert,
Speaker, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Dear Mr. Speaker: This is to notify you formally, pursuant to Rule VIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives that I have been served with a civil subpoena duces tecum, issued by the Superior Court of Los Angeles, California, which seeks personnel records relating to a former employee.

After consultation with the Office of General Counsel, I have determined that compliance with the subpoena is consistent with the precedents and privileges of the House.

Sincerely,

JOE BACA, Member of Congress, 3rd CD.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 4954, SAFE PORT ACT

Mr. KING of New York submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H.R. 4954) to improve maritime and cargo security through enhanced layered defenses, and for other purposes:

[Conference report will appear in Book II of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of September 29, 2006]
WAIVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 4954, SAFE PORT ACT

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order at any time for the chairman of the Committee on Rules or his designee, without intervention of any point of order, to report to the House Resolution 1064; that the resolution be considered as read; and that the resolution be debatable for 20 minutes equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?
There was no objection.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the previous order of the House and as the designee of the chairman of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 1064 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 1064
Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 4954) to improve maritime and cargo security through enhanced layered defenses, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report shall be waived. The conference report shall be considered as read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) each will control 10 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this consent agreement providing for the consideration of a conference report for the Security and Accountability for Every Port Act. This port security bill, which has been agreed to now by the conference committee, under the previous order of House action that was made on May 4 that passed this House 421-2.

Mr. Speaker, I want you to know that there are four major provisions within this SAFE Act: number one, enhancing security at U.S. ports; number two, preventing threats from reaching the United States of America; number three, tracking and protecting containers en route to the United States; and, number four, establishing the Domestic Nuclear Detection Office. Mr. Speaker, we have spent a lot of time in this House of Representatives speaking about and working with our counterparts in the United States Senate as well as the administration on better ways that we can enhance port security. This conference report which we bring tonight, the last night before we go to recess, is an important victory for the American people. It stands to continue the safeguard position that this great Nation expects not only of its government but expects from the American people. It stands for the American people. It stands for this great Nation expects not only of the American people but demands from the American people. It stands for the American people. It stands for the American people. It stands for the American people. It stands for the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 4 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, as has already been pointed out today, at least tonight, we consider the conference report for the major security legislation for this year. I voted for this bill in May, and I likely will vote for this conference report.

I point out, however, that this bill could have and should have been much better. If the majority really cared about safety and security and if they cared more than they do about naked partisanship and political advantage, this would be a bill that we could all be proud to pass.

For example, Mr. Speaker, when the bill was considered this spring and again now, we were prohibited from considering a Democratic amendment made by Representative Oberstar, Mr. Lowenthal, and others which requires that every shipping container be scanned and sealed before being loaded onto a ship destined for the United States. The majority view remains that less than 5 percent of all containers coming into the United States through our ports are scanned.

Mr. Speaker, as someone who represents a district which depends greatly upon our ports for national and international trade, not allowing this amendment to be considered. I take issue with your conscious decision to block the House from considering proposals which would have, without a doubt, made my constituents and the American people safer.

Moreover, the rule this past spring prohibited the ranking Democrat member of the Homeland Security Committee, an expert in this field, Bennie Thompson, from making constructive changes to the bill. Ranking Member Thompson’s changes address the fact that the current section allowing Customs officials to do more with less. His amendment authorized funding for U.S. Customs and Border Patrol to hire 1,600 more officers at seaports.

Mr. Speaker, as I previously mentioned, I am proud to represent a region in our country which is home to some of our largest international seaports. Port Everglades in Fort Lauderdale, Port of Palm Beach in Riviera Beach, and the Port of Miami, each within my district. I am privileged to represent, have led the way in security improvements in America. The three, Port Everglades in particular, have all enjoyed national and international best practices recognition.

So when I come to the floor today and consider the underlying legislation, I have to ask does this legislation get our ports to where they need to be regarding security. The answer is it gets us closer, but we can and must do better.

Mr. Speaker, we had an opportunity in May to do something about a real problem which we all know exists at America’s seaports. We will accomplish some with the passage of this bill, but we must return to this topic when the new Congress convenes next January after a new direction. We can do better and we will do better for the American people.

When we look at this year, Democrats will give our Customs and Border Patrol officers the necessary tools and directives to do everything that they can possibly do to stop attacks from happening here in the United States. Until we have this bill, which is a first step, and that is all it is, a first step.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, my colleague from Florida has pointed out not only the hard work that we have been doing on this bill, bipartisan work for a number of years, but also really about the effort or the direction, the direction that we are aiming at. And, in fact, under this SAFE Port Act of 2006, we are setting a timeline by which 100 percent of all containers will be scanned for radiation, by requiring the Department of Homeland Security to set the timeline for deploying these radiation detectors.

Mr. Speaker, we are also making sure that we are adding the number of people to the Customs and Border Patrol who will conduct these validations. We are going to make sure that we can do it, as necessary, the numbers of people pointed at the right direction.

The gentleman from Florida is correct: we are not exactly where we want to be. But for us to think that 100 percent of everything can just be done overnight is not the reality of where the threat is at this country. I believe in this President. I believe in this administration. I believe this Congress have been aware of the frailties of our systems. We are trying to match our dollar to this resolve the direction. We have the ability with the ability on all of our borders to be able to make sure that we are looking at the threats of the 21st century that come to us as a result of terrorist organizations. We want to make sure that by doing this bill tonight that we allow and put into action the opportunity for the Department of Homeland Security to be better prepared to face those threats that come against the United States.

This page 421-2. It is an indication, it was in May, that we are headed in the right direction. I am confident tonight that the final answer that comes from the negotiation with the Senate can be on the President’s desk as early as tomorrow, ready and waiting to protect this country.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. I heard that the conference was a farce. My colleague from Texas said we are heading in a new direction. Perhaps.

People don’t need no new direction. What people need is an absolute destination. And the fact of the matter is there were people who could have made this bill better and we are shut out of the process the same as we have been all the way down the line.

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to yield 3 minutes to my very good friend, the lady from Nevada (Ms. BEROY).”

Ms. BEROY. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my very dear friend, the outstanding congressman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) for yielding me this time.

On Wednesday morning I came to the floor of the House to protest the fact that the Republican leadership was holding up the Department of Defense bill because they wanted to attach a ban on Internet gaming. It was more important to the Republican leadership to keep people from playing poker on their computers in their homes than passing a defense bill that would help protect our troops serving this Nation in Iraq, Afghanistan, and the rest of the world. So the last bill that we pass before we adjourn on the vital and important issue of port security contains the ban on Internet gaming.

What does banning Internet gaming have to do with port security? Absolutely nothing.

This section was added to the bill in an attempt to fire up the far-right anti-gaming element of the Republican Party in time for this year’s election. They could not sneak it into the defense bill, so they put it into the port security bill.

What does banning Internet gaming have to do with port security? I cannot think of a single thing.

To ensure that this provision stayed in, they actually prevented the conferees from meeting and offering amendments. That is taking partisanship to a new low even in this Congress where partisanship is the rule rather than the exception.

If we must resign ourselves to adding extraneous provisions to conference reports, why don’t we add something meaningful that could actually help people? How about stopping the cut in Medicare physicians’ reimbursement so that the doctors can continue to treat older Americans? How about something like that that can do millions of Americans some good? But that wouldn’t please the far-right ultraconservative anti-gaming types in the Republican Party as much as preventing individuals from wagering on the Internet in the comfort of their own homes.

Mr. Speaker, I will vote for this bill because it addresses important national security issues. But I hope that the American people, those that are listening to us debate tonight, are aware that the provisions that are being played with this bill by the Republican leadership in this Congress.

I support all of the strenuous objections you have, Mr. HASTINGS, to this piece of legislation that is important, could have been good, should have been better, and isn’t.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I came down to speak about the bill, the SAFE Port Act of 2006, and to move this bill forward.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

I will be asking Members to vote “no” on the previous question. If the previous question is defeated, I will offer an amendment to the rule that instructs the enrolling Clerk to modify the conference report and add important provisions from the Senate version of this bill. These provisions are virtually identical to those in the motion to instruct that the House overwhelmingly adopted just 24 hours ago by a vote of 281–140.

Any Member who supported that motion last night should support my amendment today.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the amendment be printed in the RECORD immediately before the vote on the previous question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The previous question is before the House. All Members are again instructed to vote “aye” or “no” on the previous question.

Mr. Speaker, why cannot we include legislation to improve our mass transit and rail security?

Mr. Speaker, when the House passed this bill in May, it passed by a wide bipartisan margin and focused exclusively on port security issues. When the Senate took up this bill, however, it broadened the scope of this legislation to address the gaping security holes in our country’s rail, subway, bus and trucking system.

Secretary Chertoff and the House Republicans called these new sections “goulash.” I think they are good policy, and I think they should be part of the bill we send to the President today. If we can stick unrelated gambling legislation into this conference report, Mr. Speaker, why cannot we include legislation that will improve our mass transit and rail security?

Mr. Speaker, the 9/11 Commission noted in its final report that our surface transportation systems such as railroads and mass transit are not protected because they are so accessible and extensive. We all know that Congress has not done enough to address this problem. So let’s take this final opportunity to make some progress by including the Senate language.

Mr. Speaker, I want to stress that a “no” vote on the previous question will not stop consideration of the port security conference report, but a “yea” vote will allow the House to include in the conference report the critical Senate provisions that were contained in yesterday’s motion to instruct that passed this House by a bipartisan and overwhelming vote.

Again, vote “no” on the previous question.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Florida, my friend, who has engaged this entire year in attempting to work with us the best as possible, despite some objections, on getting these bills to the floor.

The Rules Committee does have a job to do. That is our job tonight. Our job is to make sure that this rule is brought forward. I am asking all Members to vote “aye” on the previous question, to vote “aye” and then to get this bill on the floor with an overwhelming bipartisan vote, 421–2 the last time we voted on this bill.

It is the right thing. It makes sure that we include the tools that are necessary to the President of the United States effective immediately. I think we are going to get it done, Mr. Speaker.

I am very proud of the work that is happening in the U.S. House of Representatives.

I am proud to know that tonight we will be through, we will be home, we will be with our families, but we should not leave until we get our work done, and that we are done.

Mr. THOMPSON of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the rule on H.R. 4954, the Security and Accountability for Every Port Act of 2006.

This rule is a farce and an abuse of process that can be summed up in two words—a joke. After weeks of negotiations, Republicans refused to share the final conference report on legislation that was supposed to be bipartisan. Indeed, this legislation builds on what my colleague LORETTA SANCHEZ did last Congress and that JANE HARMAN took up this Congress.

Last night at 7:30, a conference report meeting was called and it was missing the key ingredient—a conference report.

After opening statements, Chairman PETER KING closed the meeting, telling us it was his intention “that amendments would be offered.”

And, at 11:30 last night, we finally received the report with a very clear P.S. from Mr. KING—there would be no amendments offered.

His actions contradicted the will of this House, which voted yesterday 281–140 to instruct conferees to consider specific issues that the amendments to be offered would have covered.

Now, the Committee on Homeland Security has been a bipartisan committee to date. These questionable processes undermine our homeland security efforts—all in the name of politics.

I know the elections are important to my colleagues across the aisle but they should not take precedent over America’s homeland security efforts.

Adding even more insult to the process, the Republicans have attached internet gambling to the port security bill.

Now, Mr. Speaker, I ask someone to explain to me how prohibiting internet gambling is more important to our homeland security than making our trains, subways, and buses safe?

You will hear excuses about why we can’t do mass transit and rail security and that we will “take it up soon.”

When?

We need to put America’s moral baseline where it should be because there are good things, but they aren’t enough.

Frankly, this body can and should do better. We need to put America’s security first and foremost before politics.

I urge all Members to oppose the rule.

The material previously referred to by Mr. HASTINGS of Florida is as follows:

PREVIOUS QUESTION FOR RULE ON CONFERENCE REPORT FOR H.R. 4954—SAFE PORT ACT

Strike all after the resolved clause and insert:

"That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 4954) To improve maritime and cargo security through enhanced layered defenses, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived. The conference report is hereby adopted.

Because the vote today may look bad for the Republican majority they will say "the vote on the previous question is simply a vote on whether to proceed to an immediate vote on adopting the resolution . . . [and] has no substantive legislative or policy implications whatsoever." But that is not what they have always said. Listen to the Republican Leadership Manual on the Legislative Process in the United States House of Representatives, 6th edition, page 135. Here’s how the Republicans describe the previous question vote in their own manual: Although it is generally not possible to amend the rule because the majority Member controlling the time will not yield for the purpose of offering an amendment, the same result may be achieved by voting down the previous question . . . When the motion for the previous question is controlled, control of the time passes to the Member who led the opposition to ordering the previous question. That Member, because he then controls the time, may offer an amendment to the rule, or yield for the purpose of amendment." Dechler’s Procedure in the U.S. House of Representatives, the subchapter titled “Amending Special Rules” affirms: "a refusal to order the previous question [a special rule reported from the Committee on Rules] opens the resolution to amendment and further debate." (Chapter 21, section 21.2 Section 21.3 continues: Upon rejection of the motion for the previous question on a resolution reported from the Committee on Rules, control shifts to the Member leading the opposition to the previous question, who may offer a proper amendment or motion and who controls the time for debate thereon.

Clearly, the vote on the previous question on a rule does have substantive policy implications. It is one of the only available tools for those who oppose the Republican majority’s agenda to offer an alternative plan.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the Yeas and Nays were ordered to be taken, pursuant to the rule, and the Yeas and Nays ordered to be printed in the Congressional Record.
Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion. The motion reads:

MOTION TO REFER THE RESOLUTION

Mr. BOEHNER moves that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion.

The Clerk reads the resolution, as follows:

PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE—PRIVILEGED RESOLUTION REQUIRING INVESTIGATION OF KNOWLEDGE OF OFFENSES OF REPRESENTATIVE MARK FOLEY

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to rule IX, I rise in regard to a question of the privileges of the House and I send to the desk a privileged resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Whereas for more than 150 years, parents from across the country have sent their children to be pages in the U.S. Capitol, the Page School is a national treasure, and the children who work in the Congress are our special trust;

Whereas these charges demand immediate investigation, including when the e-mails were sent, who knew of the e-mails, whether there was a pattern of inappropriate activity by Mr. FOLEY involving e-mail or other contacts with pages, when the Republican leadership was notified, and what corrective action was taken once officials learned of any contacts with pages, when the Republican leadership was not informed; and

Whereas given the serious nature of these charges and the serious page program丑闻, and our colleagues must be assured that such egregious behavior is not tolerated and will never happen again; Therefore be it resolved,

That the Chairman and Ranking Member of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct are directed to immediately appoint a Subcommittee, pursuant to Rule 19 of the Rules of the Committee, to fully and expeditiously determine the facts connected with Representative FOLEY’s conduct and the response thereto; and

That the Chairman and Ranking Minority Member of the Committee on Standards are further directed to make a preliminary report within 10 days.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The resolution presents a question of the privileges of the House.

MOTION TO REFER THE RESOLUTION

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Speaker will report the motion.

The Clerk reads as follows:

Mr. BOEHNER moves that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized under the hour rule.

Mr. BOEHNER.

Mr. Speaker and my colleagues, I think all of us realize this is not very serious a matter. We have not seen this resolution nor known of its contents until this moment; and, given the seriousness of the matter, I would ask that the House refer this issue to the Committee on Ethics immediately.

Again, this is a very serious matter, and I think we all realize it is a serious matter, but I would ask we do this under the rules of the House. Referring this to the Ethics Committee is the appropriate place to it.

Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the motion.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken, and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes had it.

A recorded vote was ordered.

Mr. SPRATT changed his vote from “yea” to “nay.”

Mr. WALSH and Mr. BOOZMAN changed their vote from “nay” to “yea.”

So the previous question was ordered.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 4594, SAFE PORT ACT

[For conference report and statement, see proceedings of the House of today.]
The SPEAKER pro tempore, the gentleman from New York (Mr. KING) and the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. THOMPSON) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York, Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight in strong support of the conference report on H.R. 4954, the SAFE Port Act.

This is a night of a true success in the area of homeland security and port security. This is an issue which the country was focused on earlier this year with the whole Dubai Ports issue. It is an issue which the Homeland Security Committee addressed head on. We passed the bill out of committee. It passed the full House floor by a vote of 421-2; and now we are here tonight, Mr. Speaker, for final passage.

Let me first commend the ranking member of the committee, Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi, for the tremendous cooperation that he gave throughout the committee process on this bill; Subcommittee Chairman LUNGREN on our side for his work, the leadership he demonstrated, and also Ms. SANCHEZ and Ms. HARMAN. This was definitely and truly a bipartisan effort, and we are here tonight because both parties came together, we worked together, we realized the importance of this. We realized that homeland security should not be a partisan issue.

Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to go on at great length, but I will give just some of the highlights of the bill. It provides $400 million a year in dedicated port security grant programs, three pilot programs for 100 percent screening for nuclear and radiological material. It enhances the Container Security Initiative, CSI. It codifies and strengthens CTPAT. It also establishes the Domestic Nuclear Detection Office. It also sets deadlines for TWIC.

Mr. Speaker, this is legislation which encompasses so much of the issues that we have to address with port security. It is legislation whose time has come. It is legislation which makes our country safer or makes our ports more secure. It will enable the commerce of the country to go forward. And it is a bill which distinctly addresses the concerns raised by the American people.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, once again we are here on the floor debating another security bill that will not fully secure America. This bill does a lot to strengthen port security, but it leaves a number of glaring gaps.

I want to thank Ms. SANCHEZ and Ms. HARMAN. They are the chief architects of this bill. They have been true champions on port security since the early days of this committee. I want to thank Mr. LUNGREN and Mr. KING for working with us on this bill on a bipartisan basis, although I was very disappointed that this process broke down in the last few days.

Additionally, Homeland Security staff on both sides of the aisle made sure that this was not just one side’s bill. We heard positive insight from industry, first responders, port security experts. I appreciate all of them for their help.

But despite all our efforts, at the end of the day this measure fails short. Once again, Republicans have turned their back on everyday working folks who rely on buses and trains to get to work. When offered an opportunity by the Senate to secure our mass transit and rail security, they chose to do nothing.

Quite frankly, Mr. Speaker, this port bill has become just another act in the play the House Republicans have billed as “homeland security” month. They could have offered America a star performance, and instead, Mr. Speaker, they delivered mediocrity.

Let me serve as a narrator of this story for a few moments:

Act one, protecting ponies. The week before the fifth anniversary of 9/11, the leadership was more concerned about protecting horses than protecting our ports.

Act two, border security. Thinking good fences make good neighbors, they squandered the little time we had left in this session to revolve a fence bill. As the Senate passes the fence bill tonight, Americans should feel safe in their homes. America will have a 700-mile fence across the U.S.-Mexico border.

Well, Mr. Speaker, not really. The appropriations bill we passed today paid for barely half of that fence. I am sure terrorists and others crossing the border are quivering in their boots at this half-baked half fence.

Let us move to act three, FEMA. The Committee on Homeland Security tried to fix FEMA and give first responders the interoperability they needed. Instead of fully funding the reorganization, Republicans chose to do “FEMA on the cheap,” leaving our police, firefighters, and EMTs without the ability to talk to one another.

And here we are at this late hour beginning act four, the closing act in this political comedy, port security. H.R. 4954, as passed by the House, was a good bill overall. The Senate improved upon the bill by, among other things, addressing rail and mass transit security. Unfortunately, this sham conference process denied consideration of the Senate ideas as well as Democratic amendments to better protect our Nation. And that, after this body over three being consultation with the other side. I remember act one, act two, act three being consultation with the other side. I remember working very closely with Members of the other side of the aisle and their staffs. I recall us spending months working this out. I recall our morning meetings with Ms. HARMAN, joining Congresswoman HARMAN to go across the Rotunda to the other side, to try and see if we could begin our journey together, that is, to see that our bill would be close in terms of its text, in terms of its breadth, in terms of its direction with that of our colleagues on the other side.

I can recall the next act when we brought it to the subcommittee, and I can recall getting a unanimous vote out of the subcommittee. I can recall the next act, when we went full committee. We had a 29-0 vote; and where I come from, that is pretty doggone close to unanimous.
We then had the further act which was acting on the floor of the House, and we got a 421-2 vote. It was totally bipartisan. Even the two who voted against it split one Republican and one Democrat. You cannot get much more bipartisan than that.

We have worked together to preserve the essence or the guts of the bill that we have crafted through our committee structure and which we passed on the floor. I am proud to stand here and say that we have accomplished something that many people thought could not be accomplished.

The Senate began their journey several months before we did in terms of a formed bill. Yet we leapfrogged over them in the work that was done in our subcommittee and committee. And I do believe that the actions of this House nudged, if I might use that term, our colleagues on the other side of the Rotunda that which are able to bring this bill to the floor for completed action tonight on this side of the Rotunda and the other side of the Rotunda.

Rather than create an act of political statement, we have created an act of law. That is, this will go to the President, and the President will sign this. So I hope that all who are here in this Chamber will think of the spirit of bipartisanship with which we started this journey that will be part of the end of this journey.

Today, we have taken a solid step forward in securing our Nation. I do not think there can be any doubt about that. This is not a half measure. This is a major measure.

The sums of money authorized in here are significant. The grant program is a stream of $400 million a year for 5 years. That is a $2 billion grant program for our ports across this Nation. That is something we have been looking for for some time.

We now authorize it. We authorize other programs that Members on both sides of this aisle have spoken for for a long period of time, all to secure this Nation and particularly to secure our ports.

Our enemies have stated that they want to disrupt our economy, murder our citizens, and destroy our way of life. By passing this bill, we do not make a statement, we actually begin to protect our Nation’s ports, safeguard the American people, and increase the confidence in our international trade.

The American people expect us to take action to protect our ports, and with this bill we have done precisely that. We have addressed the possibility of our enemies using our open society and trade, and we have taken away a potential weapon, one capable of causing major disruption to our economy.

In passing this bill tonight, we are taking rational action to harden our domestic critical infrastructure, ensuring that those who wish to harm us are unable to have access to those critical facilities.

But this bill is more than just protecting our local facilities. Securing international maritime trade is incredibly complex. At any one time there are hundreds of vessels and literally hundreds of thousands of containers crossing the oceans on the way to our ports.

With this bill, we have developed a strategy to implement a system to scan each container before it enters our domestic stream of commerce. We will be able to identify and track containers even more effectively using training and technology to identify any that may pose a risk.

We are pushing out our borders beyond our geographical limits to make a rational approach to stopping the opportunity that those who would kill us and maim us and destroy our economy would otherwise have.

We have reached out in this way to our trading partners to include them in this strategy to keep international trade flowing. This strategy allows us to integrate security into international commerce, allowing us to facilitate trade rather than hinder it, so that we do not allow the terrorists to succeed.

We have worked with the Department of Homeland Security the tools it needs to protect against the potential of weapons of mass destruction being delivered to our shores. We have created a program for our best minds to develop creative and innovative technology for facilitating legitimate trade that is critical to the Nation.

The bill also provides for more Customs and border protection agents, which should enable the Department to continue its mission of both building security and facilitating legitimate trade that is critical to the Nation.

We provided for the Coast Guard to create joint port security operational centers in our Nation’s major ports to coordinate effective response to any incident that threatens the security of these ports.

Some may wish to focus on what the bill does not do, when we should appreciate it for what it does. It strengthens our port facilities, it enhances the security of the international supply chain, increases the resiliency and confidence in our economy.

By doing all of this, the significant piece of legislation and all of those that worked so hard to bring it to passage, including Chairman King, Ranking Member Thompson, Congresswoman Harman, Ranking Member Sanchez and our colleagues in the Senate all have joined together to increase the security of our Nation; and I, for one, am proud to have been involved.

Mr. Thompson of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I thank Mr. Lungren for the accurate recap of the early parts of the act. But like most early parts of the act, people forget over time; and so saying to you is, while bipartisanship might be good, the process is incomplete.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Harman), one of original authors of the bill.

(Ms. Harman asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the Ranking Member of the Full Committee for yielding to me so early in this debate.

Mr. Speaker, today, I rise in support of the conference report for the SAFE Port Act. In a month that was supposed to be all about the context, this measure is the only one we have considered that will actually make America more secure.

This bill is as good as it is because it was developed through a bipartisan approach. From introduction back in May, through subcommittee and full committee mark-up, to passage by an astonishing vote of 421-2 in May, we worked on this bill together.

Sadly, as our Ranking Member has said, this bipartisanship ended in the conference. The component, while good, could have been much, much better. But the fact remains that this bill will add value. As we debate tonight, operations are ongoing at the port complex of Los Angeles and Long Beach. This complex, which adjoins my district, is the largest container complex in the Nation.

Nearly 55,000 20-foot containers were processed at this complex today. Right now, thousands of containers are being unloaded from large cargo ships by 4,000 dock workers who work every day under the threat of a terrorist attack. They will be comforted that we are closing big gaps in port security with this legislation.

Because of the SAFE Port Act, most containers will have been screened for nuclear and radiological materials at their port of embarkation, thousands of miles from us, our business and our families. I am sure we will hear later in this debate that scanning would be better, and I agree. But we could not achieve that in this legislation. The good news is we have three pilot projects.

Because of the SAFE Port Act, a trusted company can partner with the U.S. Government, and assure they have no threat. Right this minute, on hundreds of trucks traveling on southern California highways, containers are about to make their way through the City of Los Angeles bound for large retailers, ‘mom and pop’ stores, and wholesalers across the country.

Because of the SAFE Port Act, port officials will have the technology to be sure that radiological materials do not leave the ports and enter the center of our country.

This process will be repeated millions of times every year, and each time we will significantly reduce the chance of a terrorist attack that could make 9/11 look tame.

My thanks to the co-author of this bill, Mr. LUNGREN of California, who was a terrific partner working this bill through to the conference; to the Ranking Member of the Committee, Mr. THOMPSON; of the Subcommittee, Ms. SANCHEZ; and to the Chairman of the Full Committee, Mr. KING. It is also true that our security sisters in the Senate, Senators SUSAN COLLINS and PATTY MURRAY, made a great effort and would make sure the bill would be heard in that body.

Yes, the SAFE Port Act is not perfect; and it passes late at night in a week of disappointments. But it is the real deal. One star in a dark night. Vote yes.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH),

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to note that fold- ed into the SAFE Port Act is the Lawful Internet Gambling Enforcement Act which is one of the most important pieces of family legislation this Congress has ever considered.

Internet gambling restraints have been under review for four Congresses. This evening we are finally poised to act on legislation on this subject, and I want to extend my personal appreciation to the Speaker; to the majority leader, Mr. BOEHNER; and to the Senate majority leader, Mr. FRIST, for their steadfast support.

Companion legislation to the House product was forthrightly led in the Senate by JOHN KYL of Arizona. Many Members have played an important part over the years in this legislation, particularly MIKE OXLEY and SPENCER BACHUS from the Financial Services Committee and BOB GOODLATTE and CHRIS CANNON from Judiciary.

But I want to stress this is bipartisan legislation. The majority of Democrats voted for it just a few weeks ago. Indeed, all of us can be proud of this legislation. It should be considered a significant accomplishment of this Congress. After all, with each passing day we learn of friends and neighbors touched by devastating losses from Internet gambling. Never has it been so easy to lose so much so quickly at such a young age.

As a professor of business at the University of Illinois has noted, Internet gambling is crack cocaine for gamblers. There are no needle marks; you just click the mouse and lose your house.

The reason the NCAA, the NFL and the NBA, the NHL, and Major League Baseball support this legislation is their concern for the integrity of their games. They care for the common community from Baptists and Methodists to Muslims has rallied to this cause is because it is concerned for the unity of the American family.

The reason we should adopt this approach is that we must be mindful of our obligations to the American family.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support for this legislation, and I will submit for the Record at this point its legislative history.

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY FOR THE UNLAWFUL INTERNET GAMBLING ENFORCEMENT ACT

Section 801. Short title

This Act may be cited as the “Unlawful Internet Gambling Enforcement Act of 2006.”

Section 802. Prohibition on acceptance of any payment instrument for unlawful Internet gambling Subsection (a) adds a new ‘Subchapter IV—Prohibition on Funding of Unlawful Internet Gambling.’ The new subchapter will come immediately after subchapter III, covering Money Laundering and Related Financial Crimes.

Section 5361. Congressional findings and purpose

(a) Findings. The Congressional findings note that: (1) Internet gambling is primarily peddled through the personal use of payment system instruments, credit cards, and wire transfers; (2) the National Gambling Impact Study Commission in 1999 recommended the passage of legislation to prohibit wire transfers to Internet gambling sites or the banks which represent such sites; (3) Internet gambling is a growing cause of debt collection proceedings for insured depository institutions and the consumer credit industry; and (4) new mechanisms for enforcing gambling laws on the Internet are necessary because traditional enforcement mechanisms are often inadequate for enforcing gambling prohibitions on the Internet, especially where such gambling crosses State or national borders.

(b) Rule of Construction. No provision is to be construed as altering, limiting, or extending any Federal or State law or Tribal-State compacts enabling or regulating gambling within the United States. This is intended to alleviate fears that this bill could have the effect of changing the legality of any gambling-related activity in the United States.

Section 5362. Definitions

This defines the term ‘bet or wager’ as the staking or risking by any person of something of value upon the outcome of a contest or game, or any bet or wager by any means which involves the use of the Internet, where such bet or wager is unlawful under any applicable Federal or State law in any State in which the bet or wager is initiated, received, or otherwise made. Clarifies that purely intrastate transactions conducted in accordance with state laws with appropriate security controls will not involve unlawful Internet gambling. Likewise, transactions solely within Tribal lands complying with similar security standards and the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act will not be considered unlawful. Section 5362(10)(D) addresses transactions complying with Inter-state pari-mutuel wagering Acts will not be considered unlawful, because the IHA only regulates legal transactions that are lawful in each of the States involved. Also clarifies that intermediate routing of data packets does not determine the location in which bets or wagers are made.

The Internet gambling provisions do not change the legality of related gambling activity in the United States. For instance, if use of the Internet in connection with dog racing is approved by state regulatory agencies and does not violate a law, then it is allowed under the new section 5362(10)(A) of title 31.

Internet gambling provisions do not interfere with intrastate laws. New section 5362(10)(B) creates a safe harbor for the term “unlawful Internet gambling” for authorized intrastate transactions. If the state law has adequate security measures to prevent participation by minors and persons located out of the state. The safe harbor would let us keep the current state gambling prohibitions such as the Wire Act, federal prohibitions on lotteries, and the Gambling Ship Act so that casino and lottery games could not be placed on websites and individuals could not access these games from their homes or businesses. The safe harbor is intended to recognize current law which allows states jurisdiction over wholly intrastate activity, where bets or wagers, or information assisting in bets or wagers, do not cross state lines. This would, for example, allow retail terminals to process bets or wagers in a processing center within a state, and linking of terminals between separate casinos within a state if authorized by the state.

Tribal gaming laws are similarly preserved. Transactions solely within tribal lands complying with similar security requirements and the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act will not be considered unlawful, under section 5362(10)(C). Moreover, the principle of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act is that state governments cannot pass discriminatory laws against gaming authorized by tribal governments within the state. If a state authorizes use of the Internet for gambling pursuant to this Act, the tribal government also authorizes this, gambling businesses located on tribal lands within that state would be permitted to “export” gambling services to persons in the rest of the state, off of tribal lands, if the “exported” game complies with state law, pursuant to section 5362(10)(B). This does not give the state jurisdiction over the operation of the tribal gambling business, including licensing requirements, and does not allow the state to dictate tribal gaming laws. Only the gaming businesses— including the state of play—must comply with state law if a person physically located off of tribal lands places a bet that is received by a tribal gambling business. This applies in reverse: if a person on tribal lands plays a gambling game with a state-based gambling business, the game must not violate tribal law.

Section 5362 also defines the terms ‘business of betting or wagering,’ ‘designated pay- ment event,’ ‘Internet,’ and ‘restricted transaction.’ Several additional terms are defined by reference to other sections of the U.S. Code.

Section 5363. Prohibition on acceptance of any financial instrument for unlawful Internet gambling

Prohibits persons engaged in the business of betting or wagering from knowingly accepting credit, funds, bank instruments, or proceeds of any other form of financial transaction in connection with the participation of another person in unlawful Internet gambling or in providing a ‘restricted transaction’ according to the definitions section.

Section 5364. Policies and procedures to identify and prevent restricted transactions

(a) Regulations and (b) Requirements for Policies and Procedures. Requires the Secretary of the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board, in conjunction with the U.S. Attorney General, to prescribe regulations within 180 days of enactment requiring any financial institution to establish policies and procedures reasonably designed to identify and block restricted transactions, or otherwise prevent restricted transactions from entering its system.

(b) Enforcement. The Federal functional regulators and the Federal Trade Commission are given the exclusive authority to enforce this section.

Section 5365. Civil remedies

Authorizes the U.S. Attorney General and State Attorneys General to pursue civil remedies, including a preliminary injunction or injunction against any person to prevent or restrain a violation of this legislation. It clarifies that this does not alter, amend or otherwise affect the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act; generally limits responsibility of an interactive computer service to the requirement of access to an online site violating this section, upon proper notice; restricts the ability to bring injunctive cases against financial transaction providers.

Internet gambling operators primarily use the resources of two types of businesses to conduct their unlawful enterprises: payment systems and interactive computer services. The unlawful use of payment systems is addressed by section 5364, not by injunctions. The legislation addresses the unlawful use of interactive computer services through injunctions, but with appropriate limits to avoid imposing any duty to censor or monitor on these computer services. Section 5366 also extends to interactive computer services the same immunity from liability that common carriers are afforded when complying with a notice from law enforcement. Section 1084(d) of the 18 to discontinue service to a gambling business.

Section 5366. Criminal penalties

Authorizes criminal penalties for violating sections 5362 through 5365. The maximum fines or imprisonment: for not more than five years or both. Also authorizes permanently enjoining a person convicted under this section from engaging in gambling activities.

Section 5367. Circumventions prohibited

Provides that, notwithstanding the safe harbor provided in section 5362(2), a financial intermediary or interactive computer service or telecommunications service that has actual knowledge and control of bets and wagers, and operates or is controlled by an entity that offers an unlawful Internet gambling site can be held criminally liable under this subchapter.

Section 803. Internet gambling in or through foreign jurisdictions

Subsection (a) states that, in deliberations between the United States and any other country on money laundering, corruption, and crime issues, the U.S. Government should encourage cooperation by foreign governments in identifying whether Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering, corruption, or other crimes. Advance policies that promote the cooperation by foreign governments in the enforcement of this Act, and encourage the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering to study the extent to which Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering. It also requires the Secretary of the Treasury to submit an annual report to Congress on the deliberations between the United States and other countries on issues relating to Internet gambling.

Subsection (b) requires the Secretary of the Treasury to report to Congress on any deliberations between the United States and other countries on issues relating to Internet Gambling.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR), the ranking member on the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

(MR. OBERSTAR asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York, chairman of the committee of conference, and also Chair of the Homeland Security Committee, and the gentleman from Mississippi who have done stellar work on this legislation, I am disappointed with the outcome.

There are two issues here. There are substance and process. On the substance, our conference report adopts the Senate provision to authorize a pilot program for 100 percent scanning of containers to be scanned for nuclear weapons before a container destined for the United States was loaded in a foreign port. I am pleased that the conference report adopts the Senate provision to authorize a pilot program for 100 percent scanning of containers in three foreign ports. I am also encouraged that the conference report requires the Secretary to scan 100 percent of containers when they are unloaded from a ship in a U.S. port, why can’t we scan those same containers before they are loaded on that same ship in the foreign port? Why can’t we continue to work to “push the borders out”?

While the conference report goes a long way toward strengthening port security, it does not do a thing for rail and transit security and other issues, which were covered in the Senate bill and should have been included in this conference report.

Last night, the House passed, by a vote of 281–140, a motion to instruct conferees on H.R. 4954 to adopt the Senate provisions on rail and transit security, as well as other security measures. Less than an hour later, the Conference Committee met and conference was allowed to make statements, but not amendments to a draft conference report. In fact, the conference had no legislative text to consider, and it appeared that there was no interest among House Republican conference to have a serious discussion about including rail and transit security in this bill.

One by one, Members of the Conference Committee asked the Conference Committee Chairman when we were going to be able to review the final conference report and when Members were going to be able to offer amendments to it. The gentleman from New York (Mr. King)—and I quote—stated, "The expectation is we will receive the final documents, go to debate and consider amendments and go forward at that time."

Two hours later, Mr. King's staff advised members that there would be no further meetings of the conferences. What could have possibly been done in those two hours to create such a great delay that the documents were not available for a meeting today? Why do Republicans consistently prevent Democrats from offering amendments that will make our country safer?

In the wake of the Madrid, London, and Mumbai bombings, Congress has a responsibility to the American people to assure the safety and security of our Nation's rail and transit systems. This year, the Federal government will invest $4.7 billion in aviation security improvements. Amtrak has requested more than $100 million in security upgrades and nearly $600 million for fire and life-safety improvements to tunnels on the Northeast Corridor in New York, Maryland, and Washington, DC. The American Public Transportation Association, which represents transit agencies and commuter railroads, has well-documented transit security needs that exceed $6 billion (including more than $5.2 billion of capital investment security needs).

The Senate-passed port security bill would have helped meet those needs, and the conference should have been granted the right to vote on them before they were stripped from the final version of the bill. Do we have to wait for an attack before we take action to secure our nation's railroads and transit systems? What is wrong with providing funding for critical rail and transit security needs? What is wrong with inspectors? There are only 100 Transportation Security Administration (TSA) rail inspectors responsible for the security of our Nation's 144,000-mile freight and passenger railroad system. What is wrong with requiring development and implementation of a national rail and transit security plan to clarify the roles and responsibilities of federal, state, and local agencies in securing rail and transit systems? What is wrong with ensuring that key workers have the necessary support and training required to protect our rail and public transit systems? Nothing, the House Republican Leadership just did not want to do it.

Another example of what should have been included in this conference report and wasn't: Removal of the cap of 45,000 on TSA screeners. That cap is both arbitrary and counterintuitive, and it is also impairing security. The Aviation and Transportation Security Act (ATSA) passed by Congress in the wake of the September 11th terrorist attacks requires 100 percent electronic baggage screening. Yet, there is evidence that staffing shortages are undermining electronic screening efforts.

Staffing shortages often require TSA to use alternative screening procedures to screen checked bags, and the Government Accountability Office (GAO) found that TSA's use of alternative screening procedures is a trade-off in security effectiveness. While the number of airport screeners remains static, passenger traffic grows. Airlines are expected to carry more than one billion passengers by 2015, increasing from approximately 700 million in 2004. TSA currently screens 522 million bags per year. GAO reports that TSA could be screening as many as 96 million more bags than it now screens—an 18 percent increase—by as early as 2010. According to TSA data, the use of alternative screening procedures will increase at some airports because of rising passenger traffic. All of these issues should have been dealt with in this conference report. While I support the port security bill, it has left much work undone.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, could I inquire as to how much time is remaining.

Mr. KING of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Dingell), the ranking member from Energy and Commerce.

Mr. Dingell. Mr. Speaker, well, the mountain shook, the lightning flashed, the thunder roared and the mountain gave birth to a mouse.

In last night's discussion, there was no discussion and nobody has been brought in to talk about what this legislation does, but I think we can talk about what we do not have. First of all, it does not allow the Members opportunities to offer amendments to discuss issues of importance. It does virtually nothing to protect 25 million Amtrak riders and millions of Americans who live and work near railroad and freight tracks and passing trains carrying highly hazardous materials. It also stripped long overdue rail and mass transit security measures from the final bill, as well as a number of other important security measures. It should be noted that the bill in the Senate included provisions improving the securities of other surface transportation, including truck, bus, hazardous material transportation and pipeline security, as well as it strengthened aviation security. All gone, gone, gone.

The conferences should have been granted the right to vote on these provisions before they were stripped from the final version of the bill. Particularly in light of the fact that last night we heard the House express its wishes overwhelmingly when we voted for the instruction of House conferences 281–140 to retain rail and transit titles, as well as other important provisions.

We talk about this as a great bill to address the question of airport, railroad and port security. It does not. It is not.

I would note that when we showed up last night for the conference, we all sat around for a goodly while. We had no agenda. We had no business to come before the committee. We were told there would be a meeting this morning to do business and we were given the opportunity to amend. Somehow or another that commitment vanished, but it did not vanish so much we do not have a bill here which was drafted without any input from any Member on this side of the aisle.

So we have sent the distinguished chairman, for whom I have enormous affection, a letter. Fifteen of our colleagues on this side of the aisle joined in signing it, and we said to you: "Dear Chairman King: You made a personal and public commitment last night. You broke it. "We write to protest your decision to shut down the House-Senate conference on H.R. 4954. Many of us took your word that we would have a voice in the conference process. However, your action to silence input from every Democratic member of the conference by denying the right to offer amendments effectively stripped the long-overdue rail and mass transit security measures from the final bill." This is a sorry process. It is a sorry procedure. It is a sorry piece of legislation. It is inadequate, and it is another example of the majority trying to do things on the cheap and then marketing it as something good.

Chairman PETER KING. House of Representatives Committee on Homeland Security, The Capitol, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN KING: You made a personal and public commitment last night. You broke it. We write to protest your decision to shut down the House-Senate conference on H.R. 4954. Many of us took your word that we would have a voice in the conference process. However, your action to silence input from every Democratic member of the conference by denying the right to offer amendments effectively stripped the long-overdue rail and mass transit security measures from the final bill, as well as other important security measures. Consequently, these important elements of our transportation systems remain vulnerable to terrorist attack.
Senator LIEBERMAN and Senator MUR-the floor tonight and all they can say is there is something here that is good, though they are afraid to acknowledge it, and then they talk about something which was never part of our bill to begin with.

We dedicated ourselves to port security, and we got it done. We should be proud of that. And, again, there is a special place in life for begrudgers.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL), one of the conferees on this particular bill.

Mr. PASCRELL. You know, Mr. Chairman, you sound like an Irish tenor this evening.

This is a bill which we can support. We thank both staffs on both sides of the aisle. They worked very hard on this.

Simply put, this is a good bill. Many Members on both sides of the aisle have worked tirelessly to bring the critical legislation to finality; and while I think it could have been improved if those of us on the conference committee were given a chance to offer further amendments, I wish to thank the chairman, last night, ultimately, this is still a good product.

There is no doubt that authorizing $400 million in port security grants for each of the fiscal years of 2007 to 2012 is a wise undertaking, as is creating deadlines to require the Department of Homeland Security to issue transportation worker identification cards to workers with access to secure areas of ports. No one should be allowed into those ports that do not have a proper card and a proper identification; and we should really carry this over to those folks who work at our airports, which we have not done.

I am particularly pleased that the two provisions I was able to secure when this bill originally came before the Homeland Security Committee remains within the legislation this evening: Section 114, which authorizes the Secretary of DHS to establish an exercise program to test and evaluate the capabilities of Federal, State, local, and other relevant stakeholders to coordinate appropriate response and recovery from acts of terror. Section 115, which directs the Secretary to require each high-risk facility to conduct live or full-scale exercises not less than once every 2 years in accordance with the facility security plan that this bill mandates.

Both provisions will enhance the capabilities of our nation’s seaports to prepare for, respond to, and mitigate against acts of terror. I am grateful for this inclusion in the legislation.

But, as with so many things in the realm of homeland security, we have missed some opportunities. As I, like most of my Democratic colleagues, would have much preferred that this bill also included improvements to security for America’s rail, subway, buses, and trucking. And in all due reverence, I know that you feel the same way, Mr. Chairman.

But we’ve got to the best point at the best time, and we need to pass this legislation, and I want to thank the ranking member, Mr. THOMPSON.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from New Jersey for his kind remarks about the bill, and I especially want to tell him for much it means to me that he commented on my great Irish singing voice as I delivering my remarks tonight. So, Mr. PASCRELL, you are a man of great ethnic perspicacity and my admiration for you is unbounded.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I now yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. LANGEVIN).

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 4954, the SAFE Port Act, which is a comprehensive approach to securing our ports. And though not a perfect bill, it surely could have been better; it is an important first step.

One of the worst-case scenarios experts fear is that terrorists would be able to smuggle nuclear material across our ports. This is an unacceptable reality that we face today, which highlights the importance of having adequate detection devices at all of our seaports and border crossings. Our radiation portal monitors are our last, best chance to prevent catastrophic nuclear or radiological attack, and our intelligence analysts continue to tell us that the threat is very real.

I am glad to see that under this bill all containers entering the U.S. through the 22 busiest seaports will be examined for radiation by the end of next year. While this is certainly a great start, we ultimately need to deploy radiation portal monitors at every point of entry to fully secure our Nation’s ports.

I am also pleased to see that this bill contains provisions to strengthen the Container Security Initiative. Under the SAFE Port Act, we will have a greater ability to foster communications between the United States and the countries whose ports include and impact the U.S.-bound cargo before it reaches our ports. We need to continue to do everything in our power to screen cargo at its point of origin to prevent the dangerous possibility of nuclear material ever reaching our shores.

Mr. Speaker, the SAFE Port Act most certainly makes strides in terms of securing our ports, but we must acknowledge that it is just one step in a much larger process. I will continue to work with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to secure our Nation’s vulnerable ports.

I want to commend both the chairman and the ranking member for their hard work in getting us to this point today. Again, it is an important first step. Let us continue to rededicating ourselves to making sure that we are doing all we can to make sure the American people are safe.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. THOMPSON. Might I inquire, Mr. Speaker, as to how much time remains?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Mississippi has 6 minutes remaining.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE).

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman. As there is a great deal of admiration in this room, let me say that I too admire the staff and the authors of this bill, Ms. SANCHEZ, Ms. HARMAN, Mr. THOMPSON, and the wonderful Mr. LUNGREN and Mr. KING, but it is obvious we could have done more. And I listened to the distinguished gentleman talking about regular order. We have not had regular order this entire day.

I do want to say the good work shows that we are concerned about port security, with $400 million in port security grants, training for port workers, such as longshoremen, transportation workers’ I.D. cards, screening of the 22 busiest seaports, establishing the Domestic Nuclear Detection Office, and the need for Customs and Border Protection personnel and port security plans.

But I am very proud of the language of training residents of seaport communities, that the conferees agreed that it is crucial to involve communities in disaster preparedness by providing for an annual community update to the homeland security training program described in this bill. This was language that I included because of the area in which we live in Houston where there is sizable populations living around the community.

The port security training program is designed for the purpose of enhancing the capabilities of each of the Nation’s commercial seaports to prevent, prepare for, respond to, mitigate against, and recover from threatened or actual acts of terrorism, natural disasters, and other emergencies. The language I contributed extends this training program to include vulnerable areas and neighborhoods in proximity of the seaports by educating, training, and involving population at-risk neighborhoods around ports, including training on an annual basis to learn what to watch for.

However, I would hope that we would move forward in the next few months 100 percent screening of container cargo, which we have not done.

I also hope that we realize, as my colleagues have said and as Mr. THOMPSON pointed out in his motion to instruct, we have to be concerned about rail security. I mentioned during his motion to instruct that rail security is not just people riding Amtrak. It is the railroads that travel through neighborhoods throughout the regions of the Nation, including the South.

I would also note that I live around a very large port, and this will have a positive impact on the Houston port. I represent a very large port, and this will have a positive impact on the Houston port. I would also note that I live around a very large port, and this will have a positive impact on the Houston port. I represent a very large port, and this will have a positive impact on the Houston port.

Many elements of this legislation are beneficial: $400 million in port security grants for each of fiscal years 2007–2012; training for port workers, such as longshoremen; Transportation Workers Identification Credential (TWIC) cards to workers with access to secure areas of ports and background checks; screening at the 22 busiest seaports; establishment of the Domestic Nuclear Detection Office, DNDO, within the Department of Homeland Security; additional Customs and Border Protection personnel; requires port security plans to include training for residents of neighborhoods around facilities.

Safe and secure seaports are an essential element in building efficient and technologically advanced supply chains that move cargo quickly to distribution centers, stores, and factories around the world. Although we have made progress since the 9/11 attacks in enhancing the security of the nation’s ports, we cannot afford to be complacent.

The language I contributed extends this program to include training for residents of neighborhoods around facilities.

I am proud and thankful that the conference agreed that it is crucial to involve communities in disaster preparedness by providing for an annual community update to the Homeland Security Training Program described in this bill.

The language I contributed extends this training program to include communities and neighborhoods in proximity of the seaports by educating, training, and involving populations of at-risk neighborhoods around ports, including training on an annual basis to learn what to watch for.

Many communities across the country have a “Neighborhood Watch” program that teaches citizens to watch for suspicious activity or other signs of danger. This language provides for a similar “citizens corps” preparation program in anticipation of a national security threat. The intent is to mimic the Citizen Corps initiative begun by the White House and the Department of Homeland Security in 2002.

While 44 percent of Americans say their neighborhood has a plan to help reduce crime, only 13 percent report having a neighborhood plan for disasters. Nearly two-thirds of respondents, 63 percent, believe it is important for neighborhoods to have a way to work together on emergency preparedness.

Fifty-two states and territories have formed state level Citizen Corps Councils to support local efforts. My hope is that before the next disaster, we are trained and ready to react effectively and timely, and perform as local responders themselves.

There are many such communities across the country that are vulnerable and face the federal government’s leadership in the areas of security and protection. This bill fails to require 100 percent scanning of contents bound for our borders before they leave other nations. By the time they arrive and are unloaded onto our soil, it is too late.

We have the technology to do this—the ports of Hong Kong and Boston already screen most inbound cargo for both radiation and lead shielding (to hide the radiological materials) using commercially available technology without interrupting the flow of commerce. And when we continue to fight to protect our borders, we need to continue to develop cutting edge technologies to detect and defeat next generation threats to port security.

According to security expert Steve Flynn, the cost would be about $50–$100 per container. Compared to the $4000 per container it costs to ship from Asia to the U.S., and to the $66,000 in average worth that each container carries. This is accessible, technologically feasible, and necessary. It is beyond me why it is not a part of this bill.

It is unacceptable to consider rail and mass transit security, as Secretary Chertoff stated, “goulash.” I fear the day when a tragedy will strike on a subway, or on a bus, and we will suddenly discover how large a mistake it was to miss this opportunity. We know how easy a target mass transportation can be—witness Israel, London, Madrid, and Mumbai amongst many others. We have focused so much effort on securing our borders. I wonder why Republicans are not just as concerned with securing us.

I am disappointed that this provision is not included in this conference report. At the very least, yesterday’s Motion to Instruct the Conference, which passed 281–170, instructed the conference to accept the rail and mass transit provisions from the Senate. It takes gall to ignore an on-record vote of the House of Representatives.

The Port of Houston is a 25-mile-long complex of public and private facilities located just a few hours’ sailing time from the Gulf of Mexico. The port is ranked first in the United States in total tonnage, second in total tonnage, and sixth in the world. About 200 million tons of cargo moved through the Port of Houston in 2005. A total of 7.057 vessel calls were recorded at the Port of Houston during the year 2003.

Economic studies reveal that ship channel-related businesses support more than 287,000 direct and indirect jobs throughout Texas while generating nearly $11 billion in economic impact alone. Additionally more than $29 million in state and local tax revenues are generated by business activities related to the port. Approximately 87,000 jobs are connected with the Port of Houston itself, and over 80% of those people live in the Houston metropolitan area. Centralized located on the Gulf Coast, Houston is a strategic gateway for cargo originating in or destined for the U.S. West and Midwest. Houston lies within close reach of one of the nation’s largest concentrations of consumers. More than 17 million people live within 300 miles of the city, and approximately 60 million live within 700 miles.

The danger is very real that we may be escorting a weapon of mass destruction to its target. For every mile along the Houston Ship Channel that dangerous cargo passes, an additional 2000 people are at risk. Clearly, once the cargo reaches the city, the risk is greatest.

There are many such cities and states across the country that are vulnerable and need the federal government’s leadership for security and protection. This bill fails to require 100 percent scanning of contents bound for our borders before they leave other nations. By the time they arrive and are unloaded onto our soil, it is too late.

RAIL AND MASS TRANSIT

It is unacceptable to consider rail and mass transit security, as Secretary Chertoff stated, “goulash.” I fear the day when a tragedy will strike on a subway, or on a bus, and we will suddenly discover how large a mistake it was to miss this opportunity. We know how easy a target mass transportation can be—witness Israel, London, Madrid, and Mumbai amongst many others. We have focused so much effort on securing our borders. Mr. KING of New York. I would just add, if the gentlewoman will yield, this is the bill that came back to us from the Senate, and I would remind the gentlewoman that unlike the transit and rail provisions, which never passed this House, the Internet gambling bill legislation this House passed by a vote of 317–93. There was at least some nexus which was lacking with the others.

Ms. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, reining my time, could you please explain the difference between port security to keep this country safer and a ban on Internet gambling? Give me a break.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to remind my chairman that the motion to instruct said to include rail and mass transit to the conferences. That is in response to your response to the gentlewoman from Las Vegas. We may as well less said “do it” from the House perspective, and it wasn’t done.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, I was just trying to answer the gentlewoman’s question. She thought I was giving her a break.

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Markey).

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Massachusetts is recognized for 2½ minutes.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from Massachusetts, and I thank him for his excellent work on that legislation.

I would say that the gentlewoman made a fine point here. The Democrats waited for days to find out what was in this bill as the Republicans deliberated by themselves. Finally it comes back over, and now we learn what they included.

Did it have anything on rail and rapid transit security? No. Did it have something on moving hazardous materials in a way that got them around densely populated areas? No. Did it have anything to do with ensuring that we screen for nuclear bombs on ships before they came into the ports of the United States? No.

But what did they include? Well, they included an Internet gambling bill. Now, you would think given the fact that it was a port bill, you would think they would have something in it on riverboat gambling. But, no, nothing even on that.

So, ladies and gentlemen, what they have produced is a fine piece of political pork that the Republican Party in secret has put together. Meantime, al Qaeda has its number one objective in the world still undealt with by the Republicans, and that is obtaining a nuclear weapon out of the former Soviet Union, to a port in the world, placing it in a container on that ship, bringing the ship into a port in the United States, and then detonating that nuclear bomb before it is ever taken off the ship. And the Republicans in this bill, do they require that there be screening for nuclear bombs before they leave for the United States? No.

So, ladies and gentlemen, this bill on the one hand has a truly number one threat to our security, a nuclear bomb in a container on a ship, no requirement at all for the screening before it comes to our port. They have the screening after the nuclear bomb arrives at the port in the United States. By then it is too late.

So, ladies and gentlemen, it is like instead of buying a dog, they put a “beware of dog” sign. So when the bomb has reached the port of New York or Boston or L.A., the only thing that will be there is “beware of dog.” They refuse to put up the protection.

Vote “no” on this terrible bill. The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New York has 14 minutes remaining.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous materials on the matter under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I assure the House I will not use the 14 minutes.

I also at this stage would like to commend the staff for the tremendous hard work on this legislation. I would like to thank Mandy Bowers, Matt McCabe, Amanda Halpern, Kevin Gronberg, Diane Berry, Sterling Marchand, Kerry Kinirons, Mark Klaassen, Mike Power, and also the people working on the security side of the legislation. In saying that, let me just say, Mr. MARKEY brought us into the new day, and let’s accept this good legislation, let’s go forward, let us realize we made the perfect be the enemy of the good, let’s accept this good legislation, let’s go forward, let us realize we made the American people far safer. And we did it because of a bipartisan effort, which I am particularly pleased with the inclusion of the Senate staff, if he had spoken to the committee staff, if he had spoken to the ranking member, he would have known what was going on.

Also, I waited patiently for 29½ minutes listening to the opposition trying to say one word about the port security bill. Finally, Mr. MARKEY came up with his argument and he was talking about detecting radiation overseas.

The fact is, again in the spirit of bipartisan and consensus building, we adopted the language put forth by Senator LAUTENBERG in the Senate to have three pilot projects. So there we are agreeing with the Senator from New Jersey, which I guess is not good enough for the gentleman from Massachusetts.

I would also say that this legislation goes right to the heart of the issues that we are trying to address. The gentleman from Massachusetts cannot accept that.

But I will say for the other Members, certainly Mr. FASCErell, for the contributions that he made to this bill, to the ranking member, to Mr. LANGEVIN, who has really been a leader in the whole issue of radiation portal monitors, they have been the ones to do it.

So I would again say let us celebrate the fact that we are passing historic port security legislation tonight. Let us respect the fact that our committee, which has already in its final product, has passed major legislation. Let us respect the fact and acknowledge the fact that our committee paved the way. We showed the way for the Senate. We passed a bill which has been virtually intact, from the subcommittee to the committee to the House floor and now here tonight with the conference report.

And rather than begrudging, rather than saying it could have been this or it could have been that, rather than let the perfect be the enemy of the good, let’s accept this good legislation, let’s go forward, let us realize we made the American people far safer. And we did it because of a bipartisan effort, which should have been bipartisan right to the last moment. Unfortunately, the naysayers tried to take this over.

The fact is they cannot deny the reality. This is excellent legislation that makes our country safe. We should be proud.

I urge the adoption of the resolution.

Mr. LoBIONDO. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the very significant provisions in the SAFE Port Act that will go a long way to make our ports and waterways secure. I thank Chairman Young and Chairman King for their hard work on this legislation, and particularly pleased with the inclusion of the Maritime Terminal Security Enhancement Act, legislation I authored in the wake of the Dubai Ports deal to ensure that the security at our ports remains in the hands of American citizens. The Maritime Terminal Security Enhancement Act would require Facility Security Officers to be American citizens. It would also provide for periodic, unannounced inspections of security at our port facilities, as well as place deadlines on the deployment of the Transportation Worker Identification Card to ensure the identity of our port workers; a long range vessel tracking system that will enable the Coast Guard to further extend our borders and monitor vessels bound for U.S. ports; and requirements for the Department of Homeland Security to issue regulations to require foreign merchant mariners to carry an enhanced crew member identification credential when calling on U.S. ports.

The SAFE Port Act builds on the unprecedented work we did in the Maritime Transportation Security Act of 2002. I was proud to be an author of that bill and I am proud of the work we did to enhance port security in this bill.

However, I am not proud, nor do I support the decision by the leadership in the other body to attach at the last minute and without consultation, the Internet Gambling Prohibition and Enforcement Act. There is no question that Internet technology has rapidly and substantially changed over the past six years, with new advancements being made every day. It is therefore imperative that our thinking and approach to this issue is changed as well.

Unfortunately, this bill does not take into account the significant advancements in the technology, nor does it include language I support to establish a commission to study whether Internet gaming can be properly regulated.

Mr. Speaker, I will be reluctantly supporting the SAFE Port Act, as I am extremely disappointed with the action of the leadership in the other body to attach this non-germane issue to an otherwise tremendous piece of legislation that will strengthen and enhance an important piece of federal law and the federal government to regulate internet gaming have pushed online consumers to illegal, black market sites that have little to no regulation.

Online gaming is a potential economic opportunity for the State of Nevada and the entire country. Current estimates of online gaming revenues range from $7 billion to $10 billion for 2004 alone, with U.S. bettors providing at least $4 billion or more of that amount.

Many nations, including England, are in the process of legalizing, regulating, and taxing online gaming.

I, along with my colleagues from Nevada, Congresswoman Berkley and Congressman Porter, have introduced a bill, H.R. 5474, that would establish a nine-member commis- sion to undertake a complete study of the Internet gambling issue. The results of this study would allow the President, the Congress, and every state and tribal government to make informed decisions about this issue and pre-sents a much better alternative to a knee-jerk total ban than this bill.

I voted for H.R. 4954 because it is necessary that we secure our ports against those who wish to do us harm, but I do so with grave disappointment in the decision to add this nongermane internet gambling language. I was pleased to vote for the SAFE Ports Act when it was considered by Congress in May and I intend to do so tonight. However, I am disturbed that The Internet Gambling Prohibition and Enforcement Act was added to this bill during conference. My understanding is that this provision was slipped into the bill at the conclusion of the conference even though internet gambling has nothing to do with port security.

I have long opposed The Internet Gambling Prohibition and Enforcement Act since the federal government has no constitutional authority to ban or even discourage any form of Internet gambling. In addition to being unconstitutional, this provision is likely to prove ineffective at ending internet gambling. Instead, by passing law proportion to ban internet gambling Congress will ensure that gambling is controlled by organized crime. History, from the failed experiment of prohibition to today's futile "war on drugs," shows that the government cannot eliminate demand for something like Internet gambling simply by passing a law. Instead, this provision will force those who wish to gamble online to turn to criminal suppliers willing to launder the ban. In many cases, providers of services banned by the government will be members of criminal organizations. Even if organized crime does not operate internet gambling enterprises their competitors are likely to be corrupted by organized crime.

After all, since the owners and patrons of internet gambling cannot rely on the police and courts to enforce contracts and resolve other disputes, they will be forced to rely on members of organized crime to perform those functions. Thus, the profits from internet gambling are likely to be shared by organized crime. Furthermore, outlawing an activity will raise the price of such a service, driving it to the black market.

Mr. Speaker, I am disappointed that the agreement under consideration does not include the language to strengthen rail and transit security passed by the U.S. Senate during its consideration of port security legislation.

By including language to authorize $1.2 billion for freight and passenger rail security as well as $3.5 billion for mass transit security in a ports bill, the Senate clearly recognized that rail and mass transit have also been grossly underfunded, this in the face of repeated terrorist attacks against rail and transit systems worldwide—from Paris, Tokyo, and Moscow to Madrid, London, and most recently, Mumbai.

In furtherance of the Senate's action, just yesterday the House passed a motion to instruct the House conferences to accept the Senate's position on rail and mass transit security by a margin of 281-140. Regrettably however, the rail and transit language did not make it into this conference report.

Mr. Speaker, while this agreement is a good start towards securing our seaports and the international supply chain, I think we've missed a major opportunity to afford rail and transit similar respect.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Conference Report on H.R. 4954, the SAFE Port Act. This bipartisan legislation makes critical improvements to strengthen our domestic and international security efforts and provides the resources necessary to detect tampered cargo before it enters our ports. Passage of the SAFE Port Act today is vital to our national security.

For Washington state, the SAFE Port Act will bring greater regional coordination, new security grants, increased Customs personnel for Puget Sound and radiation detection equipment that is both modern and appropriate for the Port of Tacoma's increased rail capacity.

The SAFE Port Act takes important steps to plan for and immediately recover from any incidents on our docks. With the increased role of western ports like the Port of Tacoma and the Port of Seattle in our global economy, we must ensure the free flow of commerce.

Passage of the SAFE Port Act will help protect our communities, our critical infrastructure and our homeland. The SAFE Port Act will move America in the right direction.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the conference report for H.R. 4954, the SAFE Port Act.

As a member of the Port Security Caucus and as an original co-sponsor of this legislation, I have been consistently fighting for a massive increase in funding and focus to secure our Nation’s ports.

But as the 9/11 Commission’s failing grades have pointed out, over the last four years, the administration and the Republican Congress have done far too little to secure our Nation’s critical infrastructure.

Just earlier this week the Homeland Security Department announced its latest round of port security grants. The Port of Oakland in my district did not get a single penny even though it’s the 4th busiest container port in the country and is a gateway to trade with Asia and the Pacific. That is just inexcusable.

By authorizing $400 million in annual port security grants, the SAFE Port Act takes a step in the right direction. Now we have the responsibility to fund this language.

We must also fix the gaps that still remain by requiring 100% screening of cargo before it reaches our shores.

At the same time I am disappointed that the Senate language to expand funding to secure our rail and transit systems was not included in this bill.

The London and Mumbai rail and submarine bombings happened on our watch. We should not adjourn this session without addressing this critical vulnerability.

Ms. MILLER-MCDONALD. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased the House and Senate were able to work with my colleagues to enact my legislation we pass in the 109th Congress.

To defeat al-Qaeda and prevent it from achieving its goals of destroying America physically and economically, the Administration, Congress, our citizens in the private sector, and our international partners must work together—and trade cannot be seen as the enemy of security.

I have made it a priority in this bill to ensure that through consultation and cooperative programs, all of these key partners are brought together so that we have the most effective and unified effort we can against terror and for trade.

I congratulate all the Members of this Conference on this bill and look forward to its quick passage.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield back my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken and the vote on Final Passage ordered on the conference report.

Mr. KING. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I take this opportunity to clarify my “yes” vote on Final Passage on the Conference Report H.R. 4954 SAFE Port Act. My “yes” vote is in full support of all the necessary Homeland Security and Port Security provisions included within the legislation, however, I do not support the inclusion of the non-germane and unnecessary prohibition on Internet Gambling. I am strongly opposed to the inclusion of this language and long felt that Congress does not have a comprehensive understanding of the complexities of this issue. It is based on this lack of knowledge that I introduced H.R. 5474, The Internet Gambling Study Commission Act. It is imperative that Congress fully understand the facts of internet gambling before coming to any rash decisions.

The purpose of my bill is to establish a commission to study issues posed by the continued spread and growth of interstate commerce with respect to Internet gambling.

Although U.S. federal and state governments insist that online gambling is illegal, in reality, it is a flourishing business. There is a huge disconnect between current government policy and reality.

Millions of U.S. residents gamble online every day without the protection of reliable regulatory structures that ensure age and identity verification, the integrity and fairness of the game, and that responsible gambling polices are followed.

Neither U.S. federal nor state governments receive tax revenues from online gaming.

Disrespect spreads for laws that are neither enforced nor even effectively enforceable against an activity that enjoys wide and growing popularity.

The online gaming industry creates no jobs in the United States and American businesses earn no returns from online gambling.

Current inconsistencies in U.S. Internet gambling laws have profound implications by the World Trade Organization (WTO).

Again, Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this inclusion of this language and look forward to working with my colleagues to enact my legislation, or some similar type of study legislation in the future.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to be here today to advance this important legislation. A few weeks ago, President Bush gave a speech in which he stated that our intelligence can be here today to advance this important legislation.

To defeat al-Qaeda and prevent it from achieving its goals of destroying America physically and economically, the Administration, Congress, our citizens in the private sector, and our international partners must work together—and trade cannot be seen as the enemy of security.

I have made it a priority in this bill to ensure that through consultation and cooperative programs, all of these key partners are brought together so that we have the most effective and unified effort we can against terror and for trade.

I congratulate all the Members of this Conference on this bill and look forward to its quick passage.

Mr. KING of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield back my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question was taken; and the vote was ordered on the conference report.

Mr. KING. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—aye 409, noes 2, not voting 21, as follows:

[Roll No. 516]
Mr. BARRETT of South Carolina changed his vote from "no" to "aye." So the conference report was agreed to. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. JOHNSTON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, on September 29, 2006, I was away from my official duties due to a family matter, and subsequently missed a recorded vote on Roll Call No. 516, on final passage of H.R. 4954, a bill to improve maritime and cargo security through enhanced layered defenses, and for other purposes. Had I been present, I would have voted "aye."

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Ms. Curtis, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has agreed to a concurrent resolution of the following title:

H. Con. Res. 483: Concurrent resolution providing for a conditional adjournment of the House of Representatives and a conditional recess or adjournment of the Senate.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 5411) “An Act making appropriations for the Department of Homeland Security for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2007, and for other purposes.”

VETERANS’ COMPENSATION COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENT ACT OF 2006

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table the Senate bill (S. 2562) to increase, effective as of December 1, 2006, the rates of compensation for veterans with service-connected disabilities and the rates of dependency and indemnity compensation for the survivors of certain disabled veterans, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

S. 2562
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That this Act may be cited as the ‘‘Veterans’’ Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 2006.

(a) Rate Adjustment.—Effective on December 1, 2006, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall increase, in accordance with subsection (b), the dollar amounts in effect on November 30, 2006, for the payment of disability compensation and dependency and indemnity compensation under the provisions specified in subsection (b).
(b) Amounts To Be Increased.—The dollar amounts to be increased pursuant to subsection (a) are the following:
(1) Wartime Disability Compensation.—Each of the dollar amounts under section 1114 of title 38, United States Code.
(2) Additional Compensation for Dependents.—Each of the dollar amounts under sections 1115(1) of such title.

(5) Dependency and Indemnity Compensation to Children.—Each of the dollar amounts... amounts under sections 1313(a) and 1314 of such title.

(c) Determination of Increases.—

(1) Percentage.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), each dollar amount described in subsection (b) shall be increased by the same percentage as the percentage by which benefit amounts payable under title II of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 401 et seq.) are increased effective December 1, 2006, as a result of a determination under section 215(i) of such act (42 U.S.C. 415(i)).

SEC. 4. TECHNICAL AMENDMENT.

Section 1311 of title 38, United States Code, as amended by redesignating the second subsection (c) (as added by section 301(a) of the Veterans Benefits Improvement Act of 2004 (Public Law 108–454; 118 Stat. 3610)) as subsection (f).

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table the bill (S. 2562) the Veterans’ Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 2006, and move for its immediate consideration in the House.

Mr. Speaker, the annual cost-of-living adjustment, S. 2562, as amended, is one of the more important bills the Congress considers each year since it was first provided in 1976. Briefly, S. 2562, as amended, would authorize a cost-of-living adjustment—COLA—to VA’s disability compensation effective December 1, 2006.

The Congressional Budget Office currently projects the COLA will be 2.2 percent. However, it may be higher or lower depending on changes in the Consumer Price Index. The exact percentage will be calculated in the next few weeks and the COLA will go into effect on December 1, 2006.

As Chairman BUYER indicated, this is one of the more important pieces of legislation the Veterans’ Committee brings to the floor each year, and I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Ms. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Chairman BUYER, Ranking Member EVANS, and our Subcommittee Chairman MILLER, as well as Senator CRAIG and Senator AKAKA on the Senate side, for moving forward on this bill. Passage of this legislation will assure most of the men and women currently receiving benefits from the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) cash benefits retain their purchasing power and are not eroded by inflation.

The House and Senate Veterans’ Affairs Committees are following the longstanding practice of setting the COLA by reference to the yet-to-be-determined Social Security increase.

In February 2006, the Administration projected a 2.6 percent increase; as of May 2006, the Congressional Budget Office is projecting the COLA to be 2.2 percent. However, it may be higher or lower depending on changes in the Consumer Price Index. The exact percentage will be calculated in the next few weeks and the COLA will go into effect on December 1, 2006.

As Chairman BUYER indicated, this is one of the more important pieces of legislation the Veterans’ Committee brings to the floor each year, and I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Ms. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Chairman BUYER, Ranking Member EVANS, and our Subcommittee Chairman MILLER, as well as Senator CRAIG and Senator AKAKA on the Senate side, for moving forward on this bill. Passage of this legislation will assure most of the men and women currently receiving benefits from the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) receive a well-deserved increase in benefits as of January 1, 2007.

We should never allow the compensation received by our disabled veterans in service to the Nation to erode in value as the cost of living rises. S. 2562, the Veterans’ Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 2006, will help our service-disabled veterans and their survivors maintain the purchasing power of their benefits in 2007 by providing for an increase in benefits.

This bill will help most, but not all, VA beneficiaries maintain the value of their benefits. Once again, I am disappointed that the bill does not include widows, widowers and their children to receive a cost-of-living adjustment for their supplemental transitional benefits as provided in the House passed bill. As a result, the value of the $250 transitional benefit paid to surviving spouses with minor children for their first 2 years of eligibility will erode.

Mr. Speaker, if we can find millions to maintain the tax cuts provided to our wealthiest citizens, surely we can find an additional five or ten dollars a month to maintain the transitional benefit paid to our surviving spouses with children. Our Gold Star Wives, husbands whose wives have perished in our current conflict and their children deserve better.

Mr. Speaker, I hope all Members will support this bill and I ask unanimous consent to revise and extend my remarks and that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks, and include extraneous material on S. 2562, as amended.

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of S. 2562, as amended, the Veterans’ Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 2006. The House passed a similar measure, H.R. 4834, on July 26, 2006 by a vote of 408–0.

Each year since 1976, Congress has provided a cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) to the benefits provided to our Nation’s disabled veterans and their survivors.

The purpose of the annual COLA is to ensure that Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) cash benefits retain their purchasing power and are not eroded by inflation.

The House and Senate Veterans’ Affairs Committees are following the longstanding practice of setting the COLA by reference to the yet-to-be-determined Social Security increase.

In February 2006, the Administration projected a 2.6 percent increase; as of May 2006, the Congressional Budget Office is projecting the COLA to be 2.2 percent. However, it may be higher or lower depending on changes in the Consumer Price Index. The exact percentage will be calculated in the next few weeks and the COLA will go into effect on December 1, 2006.

As Chairman BUYER indicated, this is one of the more important pieces of legislation the Veterans’ Committee brings to the floor each year, and I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mr. BERKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank Chairman BUYER, Ranking Member EVANS, and our Subcommittee Chairman MILLER, as well as Senator CRAIG and Senator AKAKA on the Senate side, for moving forward on this bill. Passage of this legislation will assure most of the men and women currently receiving benefits from the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) receive a well-deserved increase in benefits as of January 1, 2007.

We should never allow the compensation received by our disabled veterans in service to the Nation to erode in value as the cost of living rises. S. 2562, the Veterans’ Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 2006, will help our service-disabled veterans and their survivors maintain the purchasing power of their benefits in 2007 by providing for an increase in benefits.

This bill will help most, but not all, VA beneficiaries maintain the value of their benefits. Once again, I am disappointed that the bill does not include widows, widowers and their children to receive a cost-of-living adjustment for their supplemental transitional benefits as provided in the House passed bill. As a result, the value of the $250 transitional benefit paid to surviving spouses with minor children for their first 2 years of eligibility will erode.

Mr. Speaker, if we can find millions to maintain the tax cuts provided to our wealthiest citizens, surely we can find an additional five or ten dollars a month to maintain the transitional benefit paid to our surviving spouses with children. Our Gold Star Wives, husbands whose wives have perished in our current conflict and their children deserve better.

No amount of money can adequately compensate our veterans for the loss of their health, or families for the loss of a loved one. It is important that the benefits, which our Nation provides to partially compensate for such losses, do not lose their value over time.

In 2006, over 29,000 veterans received disability compensation or pension payments from VA and thousands of Nevada family members and survivors receive VA cash benefits.

In the action we are taking here today will help the Nevada veterans and families who depend on these VA benefits.

I understand the urgency of passing this COLA so that veterans and their dependents will receive a timely increase in VA benefits. I hope that before this Congress recesses for the year, the increase in DIC benefits and other provisions passed by the House and Senate can be enacted into law. Those who have served this Nation, deserve no less.

S. 2562 will receive my full support and it deserves the support of all Members of this House.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

NORTH KOREA NONPROLIFERATION ACT OF 2006

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker’s table the Senate bill (S. 3728) to promote nuclear nonproliferation in North Korea, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. KUCINICH. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, this bill will not bring relief to the millions of North Koreans who are suffering every day. It is estimated that 2 million people have died of starvation in North Korea. More than 1 million North Koreans suffer from malnutrition, including 60 percent of all children, the worst rate among 110 developing nations surveyed by the World Health Organization and UNICEF. North Korea had an infant mortality rate of 2 percent in 2000. South Korea’s infant mortality rate for the same year by contrast was 0.5 percent. There are chronic shortages of food and fuel already. Heavy military spending, estimated at between one-quarter and one-third of GDP by contrast is constrained and skewed economic development. North Korea has a per capita GDP of $1,000. South Korea’s per capita GDP by contrast is $18,000.

Despite significant inflows of international assistance over the past decade, harsh economic and political conditions have caused tens of thousands of persons to flee the country.

The better approach the U.S. should be supporting is the approach adhered to by the South Koreans. They have taken the approach of unification as a way to pull North Korea into the modern world. It worked for East Germany, and it can work for North Korea again. The downside of this approach is that missile defense advocates will have to create another false reason to spend in excess of $9 billion a year on the failed system. I am confident they can conjure up some new enemy and protect defense contractors.

Now, it is true, Mr. Speaker, that North Korea has declared that it possesses nuclear weapons, this according to a report by Dr. Hans Blix that was presented and remarked on in a dissectional subcommittee the other day. He said this report says it has not provided evidence of this claim. It has violated the NPT and twice declared its withdrawal from the treaty.

It operates a nuclear fuel cycle consisting of a 5-megawatt research reactor, which uses natural uranium; a reprocessing facility which produces plutonium; and various uranium processing and fuel fabrication facilities. The United States has claimed that the country also has an enrichment capability.

In 2005 Pakistan’s President Musharraf stated that the A.Q. Khan network had provided centrifuge machines and designs to North Korea, although the enrichment capability remains unknown. North Korea has not signed the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty.

Now, under a section called “What Must Be Done” in the report that Dr. Blix delivered to the Weapons of Mass Destruction Commission makes many specific and detailed recommendations. The most important of them are summarized as, number one, to agree on general principles of action; number two, to reduce the danger of present arsenals, no use by states, no access by terrorists; number three, to prevent proliferation, no new weapons systems, no new possessors; number four, work towards outlawing all weapons of mass destruction once and for all, including preventing an arms race in space by prohibiting any stationing or use of weapons in outer space. I would recommend this to the reading by Members of this Congress who are concerned about nuclear proliferation.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, I think that it is time that this Congress calls for the abolition of all nuclear weapons. That, in effect, is what the Nonproliferation Treaty is all about. It is true that the use of nuclear weapons threatens the future of mass public, cities, nations, civilization itself, and, indeed, all of life on Earth. Nuclear weapons in the arsenal of any country undermine the security of all countries, including the United States. Under the Treaty of Nonproliferation of Nuclear Weapons, the NPT, all nuclear weapon states are committed to good-faith negotiations to achieve nuclear disarmament.

On June 6, 2000, the Chair and Vice Chair of the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States, commonly known as the 9/11 Commission, cited as their number one concern for the security of the United States the availability of nuclear weapons materials for attack upon the American people. The 2006 report of the Weapons of Mass Destruction Commission concludes: “So long as any state has nuclear weapons, others will want to use them. So long as any weapons remain that they will one day be used by design or accident. Any such use will be catastrophic. The model nuclear weapons convention circulated by the United Nations demonstrates the feasibility of achieving the global elimination of nuclear weapons.”

So, Mr. Speaker. I am once again asking this House to call for the abolition of all nuclear weapons and to ask that the House call upon the President to initiate multilateral negotiations for the abolition of nuclear weapons. We can start by opening up direct negotiations with North Korea for the purpose of getting their participation, and I think that is a much better approach than the legislation that we are about to send over to the President.

And for that purpose, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. Wu. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to inquire of the chairman what his reasoning is in moving this bill when he was so supportive of selling fissile materials to India, which, like North Korea, is not a signatory to the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty and, unlike North Korea, has a demonstrated nuclear capability.

Now, I was only a kid then, but I remember when we sold F-15s to Iran so that Iran could offset Soviet power in South Asia. And because we sold F-15s and other things to Iran, we wound up selling chemical weapon precursor materials to Iraq to offset Iran in the Middle East. Now we are told that we should sell nuclear materials to India, which would free up Indian nuclear reactors to produce many more nuclear weapons for the Indian nuclear weapons program as an offset to Chinese power in Asia.

Mr. Chairman, if we do this with India, what would it do is encourage the Chinese to increase their nuclear arsenal, and I submit to you that we are one of the potential targets of that enhanced Chinese nuclear arsenal.

Even more worrisome is that this Indian nuclear build-up would accelerate further the Pakistani nuclear build-up, which my friend from Ohio referred to a moment ago.

And while I have strong confidence in the stability of the Indian government, and in the stability of Indian democracy, I have much less faith in the stability of the Pakistani government, and of Pakistan’s government, and of the Pakistan government’s ability to keep under control those nuclear weapons which it already has, and more of which it would be encouraged to build because of the sale of fissile material to India.

And in a military coup, if there is a military coup in Pakistan, which there has been multiple times in the last 20 years, we should be very, very concerned about the stability of not only South Asia, but of the world.

I think the chairman, as one of the subcommittee chairs of the International Relations Committee would surely agree with me that rather than promoting nonsignatory States, approving of nonsignatory States to those nonproliferation treaties, the better course of action is to respect these international agreements and to immediately bring to the Senate a total ban on nuclear testing, and comprehensive treaties concerning nuclear proliferation.

I would be happy to yield to the chairman for his response.

Mr. ROYCE. Yes. Let me explain to the gentleman that, first, our efforts with respect to India is to bring India into the nonproliferation regime.

Mr. Wu. Reclaiming my time. Is not ultimately the big picture effect of permitting India to go forward with this kind of proliferation is to blow out of the water the entire treaty system with which we have tried to restrain nuclear nonproliferation in this world? I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Albright supports, and the United Nations Security Council resolution supports actions by member States in response to North Korea pulling out of the nonproliferation agreement. To go forward and put these types of sanctions on the transfer of technologies to North Korea that would allow it to develop these types of weapon systems.

North Korea is a proliferator, India is not.

Mr. Wu. Reclaiming my time. Is the gentleman citing support from the United Nations? I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. ROYCE. I am citing the United Nations Security Council resolution adopted on July 15, 2006.

Mr. Wu. Reclaiming my time. Is this the Congress of the United States or are we abdicating responsibility to the United Nations?

Mr. ROYCE. I am pointing out that all member States, in response to the actuality by North Korea to develop and to proliferate weapons of mass destruction such as long-range ballistic missiles and atomic weapons, have attempted to curtail the transfer of technologies to this State, since it has adopted a very aggressive posture and that has become a direct threat to the United States and to our allies in northeast Asia.

Mr. Wu. Reclaiming my time. It is a very short question, amenable to a yes or no answer. Is this not the United States Congress that is not abdicating responsibility under your comment to the United Nations rather than taking responsibility ourselves?
Mr. ROYCE. We are taking responsibility because North Korea is a direct threat to the United States.

Mr. WU. I mean taking responsibility for Indian nuclear weapons, which will be produced as a result of our sale of fissile materials to India.

Mr. ROYCE. Our attempt with respect to India is to bring India into the MPT regime and lead it to peaceful purposes of nuclear energy and away from producing weapons outside of an MPT regime.

Mr. WU. I thank the gentleman and yield to the question from Ohio.

Mr. KUCINICH. I want to say that the gentleman from Oregon’s point is well taken. As someone who engaged in the debate over India, I am familiar with the concerns that he has raised. And there are concerns about the ability of the United States Congress, which is being asked to on one hand as- cend to the (Korea) should aim group, and deny the proliferation of another, for this Congress to be in a position of trying to help this country have a con- sistent program of nuclear non- proliferation, which I know is exactly the point that the gentleman relates to.

In addition to that, the Weapons of Mass Destruction Commission has said that North Korea ought to be given the same kind of guarantees that is in the agreed framework of 1994 that they are not going to be attacked. This is the same thing that has been recommended that is done with Iran as well. So we do not need to get into these nuclear cri- ses anymore as threats if we engage them in talks that work to- wards nonproliferation.

This group made recommendations, Mr. WU, that I am sure you are familiar with. They said that a negotiation with North Korea should aim group, and deny the proliferation of another, for this Congress to be in a position of trying to help this country have a con- sistent program of nuclear non- proliferation, which I know is exactly the point that the gentleman relates to.

And notably saying that neither North nor South Korea shall have nu- clear weapons nor nuclear reprocessing and uranium enrichment facilities, and fuel cycle services should be assured through international agreements. The agreements should also cover biologi- cal and chemical weapons as well as nuclear weapons. The comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty, thus making the Korean Penin- sula a zone free of weapons of mass de- struction.

So what Mr. WU is asking about, and which I certainly support, is some con- sistency in policy. And it beings with Congress since we are being called upon, as Mr. WU stated, to either agree or disagree with these policies. I want to thank the gentleman for raising this, because this is the appropriate time to raise that.

Mr. WU. Reclaiming my time. I thank the gentleman. I want to make clear that I am certainly not defending the North Korea regime. But, I am call- ing into question the actions of this Congress and the strong advocacy of the chairman in favor of a proposed treaty with India which would have the result of starting a nuclear arms race in Asia and just as importantly, which in the big picture blows out the whole treaty system for restraining the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

I would be happy to yield to the gent- leman.

Mr. ROYCE. With respect to the strategy to bring India into the MPT, in our considered judgment, and the judgment of the majority of the Mem- bers of this House, it is a wiser policy to bring them into the tent, to get their cooperation and to focus on using nuclear energy to produce energy for peaceful purposes in India.

Now, with respect to North Korea, it remains a very real threat with over a billion people. Several nuclear weapons, and most importantly, the propensity to export these types of weapons. This is not something we have seen from India in the past.

But North Korea is an exporter of its missiles anytime. And for that very reason, the goal of this legis- lation is to put a prohibition on the transfer to North Korea of the types of technologies that could be used by North Korea in order to further develop its weapons that simple.

It is the same with respect to Iran. It is the same with respect to Syria. Now, we are putting in place a provision stating that North Korea shall not have the ability to receive from the United States or any companies in the United States this type of technology. U.S. companies will not be able to be licensed to export this kind of tech- nology. They will be sanctioned if they attempt it.

Mr. WU. I share with the gentleman the concerns about the export of nu- clear weapons from North Korea. The point of my earlier comments is not about export from India, but because of our actions with respect to India, that we would be encouraging and accel- erating the Pakistani nuclear program from which there is a real risk of ex- portation. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. KUCINICH. This is a discussion that should have been happening a long time ago in this Congress. Because no one really talked that deeply about the implications of our decision granting India the ability to gain access to fissile materials, in terms of the poten- tial dialectic of conflict which develops between the proliferator, Pakistan, and India gaining the fissile materials. Mr. WU has raised the point that is really central to the discussion about how do we protect world peace. How do we stop some kind of a conflagration and has shown a willingness to put such a system in place.

I mean, we know as was pointed out in the WMDC report here, that in Feb- ruary of 1999, India and Pakistan signed a memorandum of under- standing on a variety of nuclear con- fidence building measures.

Both countries, however, this report says: “Are continuing their efforts to develop and produce nuclear weapons and their delivery vehicles.” So, Mr. WU is right on in raising this. And this is the exact time this has to be raised, even though it is almost one in the morning on Saturday. I yield.

Mr. WU. Reclaiming my time. I would be happy to yield to the chair- man.

Mr. ROYCE. Yes. In response, I do not think the opposition is to this bill. But I understand the concept, and the argument relating to the nonprolifer- ation regime as you have laid it out.

But I think we have an honest dis- agreement about the approach to India and whether or not that will strength- en the regime. And that is what is playing itself out in debate here.

From my standpoint, the prolifera- tion issues have been between Pakistan and North Korea, whereas India has shown itself resistant to proliferation, and I would be happy to look at a way to be brought into the fold of the MPT. So I saw that earlier initiative to bring India within the framework agreement and with the MPT as a posi- tive step forward.

And with respect to this legislation, basically what it does is to apply ex- actly the same system of forced com- pliance on companies that now exist with respect to Iran and Syria.

It is the same with respect to India, and its weapons systems. It is that simple.

And with respect to Iran, it is that simple. Mr. ROYCE. With respect to the weapons of mass destruction, Mr. WU is right on in raising this. And this is a discussion that should have been happening a long time ago in this Congress. Because no one really talked that deeply about the implications of our decision granting India the ability to gain access to fissile materials, in terms of the poten- tial dialectic of conflict which develops between the proliferator, Pakistan, and India gaining the fissile materials. And with respect to India, it is that simple.
irresponsible. This administration has undermined the Nunn-Lugar legislation which seeks to purchase fissile materials, which would be otherwise available to terrorists on the open market.

This administration has proposed a treaty with India that would sell India nuclear fissile materials that would result in a nuclear arms race between India and China and India and Pakistan, and Pakistan is not a stable country. There is great danger of the leakage of weapons from Pakistan. You heard earlier from another speaker about Pakistani aid to nuclear proliferation elsewhere in the world.

Let the record show that if or when a mushroom cloud ever erupts over an American city, it will be traced back to this unwise vote in the United States Congress and to a bone-headed policy of this administration with respect to treaty rights, to Nunn-Lugar and this sale of nuclear materials to India.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, if I could make just one last comment in support of what the gentleman is saying, I am sure many are familiar that in the Hindu religion Brahma, the Creator; and Vishnu, the Preserver; and Shiva, the Destroyer exist simultaneously and represent the multiplicity of God.

We are called upon to determine which of the principles, Creator, Preserver or Destroyer, shall work through each of us. As the gentleman from Oregon says, if we continue to pursue nuclear proliferation as embodied in the nuclear agreement with India, we will be open to the principles of destruction. At this moment when world tensions are rising and violence is cycling higher, we need to take the direction of preserving the peace and creating a new opening through the abatement of nuclear weapons.

Again, I want to thank my friend from Oregon for raising this point at this propitious moment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair would like to inquire as to whether or not the gentleman from Oregon is planning on withdrawing his reservation or not.

Mr. WU. Mr. Speaker, I simply want to yield to the chairman for any further comments he might have.

Mr. ROYCE. I am going to yield back, and I appreciate the gentleman yielding.

Mr. WU. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the chairman’s forbearance and the Speaker’s forbearance.

Ms. BORDALLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of S. 3728, the North Korea Non-Proliferation Act of 2006. This legislation would amend the Iran and Syria Nonproliferation Act to extend the provisions of the Act to North Korea. Enactment of this legislation would impose sanctions on persons who transferred such weapons and related goods and technology to and from North Korea. This legislation would authorize sanctions that are equivalent to those required under current law for persons who are found to transfer such items to and from Iran and Syria. S. 3728 also calls on the international community to act in accordance with the provisions of United Nations Security Council Resolution 1695 (UNSCR 1695), which prevents member states from conducting missile and related transfers to North Korea in reaction to the tests. This bill is timely and important. It deserves steadfast support from this body.

North Korea’s nuclear ambitions are destabilizing. Its recent missile tests on July 5, 2006, were conducted against the urging of the Six Party Talks. Ultimately, this recent missile test was a failure. But that act, taken together with its previous tests and North Korea’s intransigent behavior during international talks on this matter, is indicative of the recalcitrant nature of the North Korean regime. North Korea is in fact continuing to pursue its nuclear and ballistic missiles programs in spite of diplomatic efforts by the international community and in contradiction with North Korea’s previous commitments.

North Korea’s pursuit of nuclear weapons and ballistic missiles’ technology and capabilities is an emerging danger to the national security of the United States.

North Korea’s recent missile test also disappointed the international community. On July 16, 2006, the United Nations Security Council Resolution 1695 in order to prevent United Nations member states from conducting missile and related technology transfers to North Korea in reaction to the tests. UNSCR 1695 also requires North Korea to suspend all activities related to its ballistic missile program and return to the negotiating table. Enactment of S. 3728 would strengthen U.S. laws, authorizing the U.S. government to investigate, sanction, and prevent proliferation efforts made by or on behalf of the North Korean regime by government or private entities. But sanctions alone will not ultimately solve this problem. Robust and constant diplomatic pressure on the North Korean regime must continue to be applied by the United States in coordination with the United Nations and other countries. North Korea and its pursuit of nuclear weapons and delivery vehicles is not only a threat to the United States, but to the fact that China, Japan, South Korea, and Russia remain desirous of a peaceful resolution to this problem. The Six Party Talks involving these countries and North Korea should continue.

More progress should be made toward constraining North Korea’s ability to develop nuclear weapons and ballistic missile technology and capabilities while we continue diplomatic efforts to encourage that government to abandon its nuclear ambitions. S. 3728, the North Korea Non-Proliferation Act of 2006, will help to achieve those goals.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of S. 3728, the North Korea Non-Proliferation Act of 2006.

Mr. SCHATZ. Americans around the nation celebrated the Fourth of July this year by watching fireworks, hosting backyard barbecues, and spending time with their families. The North Koreans chose to observe America’s birthday in a far more threatening fashion: they test launched a series of missiles, one of which was potentially capable of hitting American soil with a nuclear payload. Pyongyang’s destabilizing actions not only angered Washington, but set off alarm bells in Seoul, Tokyo, Beijing and Moscow, our partners in the Six Party Talks. The UN Security Council quickly adopted a resolution requiring all Member States to prevent overseas sales of North Korea missiles, and to stop transfers of any financial resources to North Korea related to its missile or WMD programs.

This legislation today implements this groundbreaking Security Council Resolution. By adding North Korea to the Iran and Syria Nonproliferation Act, the United States will take concrete actions against foreign firms that engage in missile- and WMD-related trade with North Korea.

The Executive Branch will now be forced to review every six months all credible intelligence regarding commercial transfers to North Korea of items applicable for the development of weapons of mass destruction and ballistic missiles.

On the basis of these reviews, the President must sanction foreign firms that engaged in such trade, or explain to Congress why he has not done so.

This is Congressional direction at its best. We must remember that the Iran and Syria Nonproliferation Act, which this amends, forced the Executive Branch to take actions against firms engaging in illicit trade with both Iran and Syria, actions that the President would otherwise not have taken. Dozens of firms have been sanctioned for such Iran- and Syria-related trade in the years since, focusing global attention on their activities and on their governments.

The regime of Kim Jong-II poses as much of a threat to international security as Iran and Syria. Common sense requires us to understand the same review and sanction regimes for Pyongyang’s activities and their commercial co-conspirators as we do for Iran and Syria.

Mr. Speaker, the North Korean leadership was hoping to gain the world’s attention with its July missile launches. Pyongyang succeeded. But rather than forcing the world to bring a new tray of goodies to North Korea, the tests unified the world in opposition to North Korea’s destabilizing actions, and brought about a new round of UN-approved sanctions.

Mr. Speaker, with the right package of carrots and sticks, I remain optimistic that the U.S. and its Six Party allies can negotiate a comprehensive and verifiable deal with North Korea. I hope that by July 4th next year, we will have such an agreement in hand. Until then, we must bring our laws in line with the recent UN Security Council resolution, and act decisively to undermine North Korea’s missile and WMD programs.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly support this legislation, and am gratified that it has passed this House.

Mr. WU. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Our Father in heaven, hallowed be Thy name. May Thy kingdom come, and may Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread, and forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation but deliver us from evil. Amen.

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The President pro tempore, under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The President pro tempore, under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business until 10 a.m., with the time equally divided between the two leaders or their designees.

SCHEDULE

Mr. Frist. Mr. President, this morning at 10, we will have a vote on the adoption of the conference report to accompany the Department of Defense appropriations bill. That will be the first vote of the day. We will then resume postcloture debate on the border fence bill. Given yesterday’s cloture vote of 71 to 28, I am hopeful to complete this bill early in the day.

Following the border fence bill, under the order, there will be a cloture vote on the Child Custody message. The Homeland Security appropriations conference report has been filed, and we will need to consider this important funding legislation as soon as it becomes available. In addition to the items I have outlined, we have executive items to address, including treaties and nominations, one of which is the Secretary of the Department of Transportation. As of now, a Saturday session certainly is a possibility, and I will update my colleagues on the schedule later today as we continue to move forward.

As I said, Senators can anticipate a full day during today’s session.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The President pro tempore. The Democratic leader is recognized.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, while the distinguished majority leader is on the floor, let me make a couple of comments.

First, if I can ask the Parliamentarian: What time will the vote take place on final passage on the border security bill?

Mr. Frist. It should be 3 a.m.

Mr. Reid. That is a fairly good estimate, Mr. President—about 3 o’clock on Saturday morning?

Mr. Frist. Mr. President, while you are checking that out, it is my understanding, based on discussions last night, that we started at 9 o’clock last night. That is when the time officially started, and it would be 30 hours from 9 o’clock last night, which will be about 3 a.m.

Mr. Reid. Mr. President, on the bill that is now before this body, I hope that if there are going to be amendments, one of the amendments we need to take into consideration—I am sure the leader has heard from his Members, as I have heard from mine—is disaster relief. I hope we have this vehicle moving through here today and that we do something regarding agricultural disaster assistance legislation. We passed it three times in this body, and it has never made it out of the House.

It is not just the Midwestern States that we know produce a lot of food. We have had natural disasters all over. The State of Nevada has had raging fires. In California, there is one fire that has been burning since the 1st of September and they still haven’t put it out. So I hope the leader will consider that legislation.

Also, I wasn’t able to respond to my friend, the distinguished majority leader, last night, but on the India nuclear bill legislation, the reason this matter hasn’t been to the floor much earlier is there was a provision put in this legislation by Senator Lugar. I agree with it. I support the legislation. But on the majority side, there are people who have held up the legislation because of that provision.

This is important legislation. I have said on a number of occasions that I strongly support this legislation. It is important we find time to consider this bill before this Congress comes to an end.
The speech of the Senator from Washington regarding VA provides a very clear example of what I mean. During her speech, the Senator from Washington highlighted a recently released GAO report that the problems VA encountered in its formulation and execution of its budgets in fiscal years 2005 and 2006 that ultimately led to the Bush administration—what is right, this administration, and this Congress asking for a supplemental funding of $3 billion.

From that report, she drew her own conclusions—in my view unsubstantiated conclusions—that the VA had misled and even lied to Congress about the veracity of its budget requests. Then she demanded accountability, as if it were nonexistent. I am here to tell my colleagues of the steps that have been taken to establish that accountability that is there and very clear today.

As soon as we learned of last year's budget shortfall, I called hearings and we got answers. The answers all of us received from the VA at that hearing and then in subsequent oversight hearings were what the GAO reported—that they were following much of what was being done to establish greater credibility. More importantly, what the Senator from Washington left out of her rendition of the GAO's report was that VA had already implemented nearly all of the GAO's recommendations prior to submission of its fiscal year 2007 budget in February.

Solutions to a problem were identified and implemented long ago, and that is why our VA is functioning as it is today. Also, based upon what we learned during our oversight hearings, we required VA to submit quarterly reports on budget execution. We have received three such reports this year. VA officials made themselves available to Members, to the staff, Republicans and Democrats alike.

We have historically operated the Veterans' Affairs Committee in a very bipartisan way, and it is beyond the pale that it appears we are now into partisan attacks just prior to the election.

Furthermore, for anyone interested in learning the facts about how VA is holding itself accountable for performance, you need to look at the record.
Just open up the VA’s budget documents and you will see a host of performance measures that show a degree of institutional accountability that is the envy of other Government agencies and roundly praised by independent observers. Let me tick off a few of those performance measures, and as I am doing so, please be mindful of how the improvements in these areas during the Bush years have impacted the lives of veterans.

The percentage of patients who report they were seen within 20 minutes of scheduled appointments by the VA care facilities has improved from 65 percent in 2002 to 73 percent through the end of last year. The percentage of primary care appointments scheduled within 30 days of the desired date has improved from 89 percent in 2002 to 96 percent through the end of last year. The percentage of specialty care appointments scheduled within 30 days of the desired date has improved from 86 percent in 2002 to 93 percent this year. The number of veterans the VA treats in noninstitutional, long-term care settings has increased by 50 percent since 2002. And the list goes on and on and on. And the list goes on and on and on.

In 2004, the Rand Corporation examined why VA patients get better chronic preventative care than similar U.S. audits. The answer? Rand concluded that the VA’s edge is linked to improved information technology, tracking of performance, and accountability. That is when in these charts this kind of recognition began to take over. All of this was ignored in the speech by the Senator from Washington. So let’s look at some of those facts.

Washington Monthly is not necessarily a publication that constantly praises the Bush administration, but it says VA care is the “best care anywhere” — a tremendous statement and a very positive article about the phenomenal increases in quality health care delivered by the Veterans’ Administration over the last number of years. That is not the end of that story. Here is another part of that story, and this comes from not a Washington publication but from Time magazine. It goes on to say in this article how VA hospitals have become the best in the Nation. It says that for the sixth year in a row—let’s backtrack to the Bush administration’s period of budgeting of the U.S. Government. Has a Republican-led Congress turned its back on American veterans? Quite the opposite.

The GI bill educational benefits for veterans has been boosted by 65 percent, raising the lifetime benefit from $23,400 to $38,700. A new educational program was created for members of the Guard and Reserve activated after September 11, 2001, providing up to $39,900 in lifetime benefits. The educational benefit for survivor and dependents of vets has been increased by 46 percent. The maximum VA home loan guarantee has been increased by 107 percent. The largest expansion of the National Cemetery System since the Civil War is currently underway. Historic legislation was enacted to permit certain disabled veterans to receive their death pensions and military retirement benefits concurrently.

Comprehensive legislation was enacted to update and strengthen civilian protection available to members of the Armed Forces. Comprehensive legislation was enacted to improve job training and placement services for veterans.

A new insurance program was created to provide immediate benefits—payments of between $25,000 to $100,000 to service members who have been traumatized since the beginning of the war on terror. Mr. President, 2,700 injured veterans have received that benefit. That is the record. That is the record, and that is the one this Congress and this President have responded to in a most timely and, more importantly, responsible fashion.

Now that I think the record is clear, what are some of the other answers? Well, some on the other side would say it is money, money, money, and more money. We have found it is quite the opposite. It is making the system we have work more efficiently, more responsibly. We are now reshaping VA to handle the high-tech problems it has had, or the informational problems it has had, to make sure we secure the names and the lists and the informational flow of our veterans and their backgrounds. I am extremely proud of the work we have done, and we have done it in a bipartisan way. So why now, in the late hours of this year, are we all of a sudden hearing all of these things that are what I believe to be improper statements about the Veterans Administration? Well, I think we have to recognize what is at hand. It is a political year. But there is nothing we have never done; that is, politicize veterans or politicize our military. And we shouldn’t start now.

Our record is strong. Our support of veterans has always been there. I have given my colleagues the facts and the numbers. I am proud of the accomplishments we have made this year alone, a near 14 percent increase in veterans health care or veterans budgets in general. There is no other agency of our Government except Defense that has had that kind of an increase.

So let’s recognize what the year is all about. It is politics and it is political. What have I given my colleagues is a factual accounting of the great successes we have had in veterans affairs, with veterans, delivering service to veterans. That doesn’t mean we are perfect and it doesn’t mean every veteran got exactly what they wanted the moment they asked for it. That will never exist. But we will be responsive. We do care. And the expression on the part of this Congress, this President, and the American taxpayer in relation to the support of our veterans is, in fact, unprecedented. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who yields time?

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who yields time?

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I believe it is time to close morning business.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES. The Senate is correct. Morning business is closed.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE APPLIcATIONS ACT, 2007—CONFERENCE REPORT

The PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES. The previous order, the hour of 10 a.m. having arrived, the Senate will resume
Mr. President, the appropriations conference report before us today appropriates over $447 billion dollars for the Department of Defense. While this is considerable funding, it is more than $1 billion below what the President requested. Not only does this legislation provide less than the President’s request, but many of the President’s programs have been stripped out and replaced with earmarks for favored projects. These are serious times that require serious people to make serious decisions—decisions that are focused against the special interests. I need not remind my colleagues that we are at war. Supporting the President’s budget and the troops it sustains should be our primary focus, not parochial interests.

The issue we face as a Nation require all of us to make sacrifices. The service members who defend our Nation interests around the globe are asked to make sacrifices, and families who wait for them back home are making sacrifices. Because we ask these heroes to forfeit so much, we in the Congress should also be ready to make sacrifices. By doing so, a message can be sent that the Nation’s security and the welfare of our service members are higher priorities than earmarks inserted to gain favor from special interests or the opportunity to send out a press release touting the bacon we are bringing home.

The practice of earmarking has reached epic proportions, and the harm it has caused in some cases has been clearly exposed. In the last 2 years alone we have had ample evidence of the corrupting influence of these earmarks on the decision making that the American taxpayer has placed in their elected officials. How high will we let the Federal deficit climb before we take our fiscal responsibility seriously? I am going to take for us to finally say, enough is enough? We should pass a Defense Appropriations Bill which mirrors the authorization bill and fulfills the requirements of our military as requested by the President.

The American taxpayer has a right to expect us to get the most out of each and every defense dollar, especially at a time when those dollars are so critical. The money that is being diverted to unauthorized projects should instead be used to address the needs of our services. It is the service chiefs who are in the best position to advise Congress of their priorities. Unauthorized earmarks drain our precious resources and adversely affect our national security.

Here is a sampling of nondefense related earmarks in the conference report or the joint explanatory statement we are considering: $12.8 million for Alaska Land Mobile Radio; $4 million for the Northern Line Extension of the Alaska Railroad; $1.4 million for the South Carolina Center for Excellence in Educational Technology; $10 million for the Port of Anchorage Intermodal Marine Facility Project; and $3.2 million for the Lewis Center for Educational Research, which houses a school and science center, but no known military application.

One of the more egregious add-ons in the legislation currently on the floor is the addition of over $2 billion for 10 C-17 cargo planes that were not requested by the administration. The Air Force is not asking for these additional C-17s and the Quadrennial Defense Review clearly stated a need for a total of only 180 aircraft. What we are getting is a new category, for aircraft weapons range support equipment; $10.6 million for “Other Aircraft” in the Air Force procurement category; $22.5 million for human factors engineering technology; $1.3 million for protectionist policies and counterintelligence; $11.9 million for industrial preparedness; and $44.5 million for the Maui Space Surveillance System.

This list goes on and on. In fact, there are hundreds of such add-ons that total over $5 billion dollars. I think we need to be clear that some of these earmarks could be used for good causes. But I do protest the process by which Congress ignores priorities of the armed services so that they can deliver otherwise tax dollars for local programs, some of which have nothing to do with the defense of our Nation.

I am also concerned about our restrictive trade policies and the potentially negative impact they have on our readiness and interoperability with our allies. Every year, so-called “Buy America” restrictions cost the Department of Defense and the American taxpayers billions. I oppose these types of protectionist policies financially and morally they just don’t make sense. Free trade improves relations between nations and promotes economic growth. “Buy America” restrictions could seriously impair our ability to compete freely in international markets. If we impose them, we impair our warfighters the best available technology. Though I oppose these protectionist provisions, I appreciate that the earvehve provided for appropriate waivers based on case-by-case certification. But these types of acquisition policy, not appropriations matters, and should be addressed during the defense authorization process. Let’s leave the authorizing of acquisition policy to the authorizers and debate these types of issues on authorization bills.

Mr. President, the appropriations measure before us is critical to our mission of ensuring our readiness and interoperability with our allies. fight against terror. Ideally, I would not need to criticize this legislation, but we owe it to the American taxpayers to inform them of how their money is being spent.

The conference report was agreed to. Mr. STEVENS. I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, again, I thank the 2 people primarily responsible for the bill being so well put together, Sid Ashworth and Charlie Houy, respectively, assistants for Senator INOUYE and me. It has been a good period dealing with this bill. This is the largest bill we have ever provided for the Department of Defense.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Order of Business

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent there now be a period of morning business until 12 noon with the time equally divided between the two leaders or their designees, the time count under rule XXII, and the following Senators be recognized in the following order: Senator BYRD, for up to 20 minutes; Senator SANTORUM, for up to 20 minutes; Senator FEINSTEIN, 15 minutes; Senator DE MINT, for up to 10 minutes; and 20 minutes under the control of Senator FRIST.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Reserving the right to object, I ask the distinguished majority leader if he could add me to the list as the last person for 10 minutes.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I will modify the unanimous consent to Senators BYRD, 20 minutes; SANTORUM, 20 minutes; FEINSTEIN, 15 minutes; DE MINT, 10 minutes; 20 minutes, ENZI, not FRIST.

I am going back to my original unanimous consent request because I have too many Members wanting to talk. What we are doing, just for the information of our colleagues, is to lay out just morning business. We might even be able to extend morning business until the Democratic leader and I plan out the remainder of the day.

Now, as soon as I do the unanimous consent, we have a lot of Members who want to talk. We will not cut anyone off, but Members have been waiting—including Senator BYRD—since last night, and I want to be able to recognize them.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I do object, I want to cooperate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period of morning business until 12:45, with the time equally divided between the two leaders or their designees, and further that the time count under rule XXII, and that the following Senators be recognized in the following order: BYRD, 20 minutes; SANTORUM, 20 minutes; FEINSTEIN, 15 minutes; DE MINT, 10 minutes; ENZI, 20 minutes; LANDRIEU, 10 minutes; BOXER, 10 minutes; and CRAIG, 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Hearing none, it is so ordered.

The Senator from West Virginia. Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank Senator Frist and Senator Reid and all other Senators.

APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, there are only 2 days—2 days—remaining in the fiscal year, and the Senate has passed only 2—only 2—of the 12 appropriations bills. The Senate just adopted a continuing resolution to continue the operations of Government for 14 of the 15 Departments.

This dismal performance is not the result of the work of the Appropriations Committee. The Appropriations Committee did its work and, on a bipartisan basis, proposed its 13 bills by July 26. Chairman COCHRAN did an outstanding job, a remarkable job in leading the Appropriations Committee.

Yes, the Appropriations Committee did its work, did it well. Yet, here we are, just 2 days—2 days—from the new fiscal year, and not one—not one—appropriations bill has been signed into law. And as everyone knows, the most vital bills that have to be done before we go home are the appropriations bills or the Government will stop running. Only two are likely to be sent to the President before the majority leader recesses the Senate for the elections.

The appropriations process has once again fallen victim to politics. The majority leadership designated September as National Security month. As a result, conferees have completed actions on the Defense bill and on the Homeland Security conference report. These are good, bipartisan bills. But not one other appropriations bill has come before this body, the Senate of the United States.

When it comes to the funding bills for domestic agencies, with the exception of Homeland Security, the majority leadership is apparently satisfied with a mindless continuing resolution. When it comes to the education of our children, when it comes to the health of the elderly, when it comes to the ability of our deteriorating infrastructure to sustain a growing economy, and the fiscal health of our farms, the majority leadership wants no debate—no debate—just a rubberstamp of a formula-based continuing resolution for 13 of the 15 Departments.

The majority leadership made a specific choice to delay bringing the domestic appropriations bills to the floor because it wished to avoid an open debate in the Senate—in this forum, where debate is free and open and one may speak as long as his or her feet will sustain him or her—it wished to avoid an open debate in the Senate about the many issues confronting Americans in their daily lives. That is what we are talking about.

The President submitted a budget for domestic programs that cut funding by $14 billion below the level necessary to keep pace with inflation. The President’s budget is not sustainable. Yet, once more behind closed doors, the majority leadership inserted a cap on spending at the level proposed by the President’s budget. This was done by jamming a cap on spending in an unamendable conference
Mr. President, the Senate has had a chance to debate whether the education sector? No.

On July 19, the Commissioner of Social Security wrote me a letter in which she stated that the level of funding in the Labor-HHS bill: "... would require employee furloughs of approximately 10 days Agency-wide."

Has the Senate had an opportunity to debate whether our elderly citizens want long lines at our Social Security offices? No. American seniors—yes, American senior citizens, the elderly—are dealing with a serious health crisis. At issue is how to cope with the burden of high prescription drug prices. Seniors should not be asked to split pills in half. Seniors should not be asked to choose between food and medicine in order to make ends meet. No. Never. Never, I say.

According to a research report released by the AARP, the average annual increase in the cost of a senior's medication is $300. Has the Senate had an opportunity to debate a provision in the Labor-HHS bill to allow drug reimportation? Has it? No. No.

The Environmental Protection Agency projects that our communities need in excess of $200 billion for clean and safe drinking water systems. Yet the Interior appropriations bill would cut funding from a level of $1.1 billion in fiscal year 2005 to $887 million in fiscal year 2007, a cut of 26 percent. Has there been any debate? No. Has there been any debate about the need for safe and clean drinking water in our communities? Has there been any debate on the Senate floor, in this forum of free speech—intended to provide disaster relief for the victims of Hurricane Katrina and to fund the efforts of our valiant troops serving so heroically, yes, so heroically in Iraq and in Afghanistan?

To avoid debate—get that: to avoid debate; to avoid free and open debate—on the domestic appropriations bills, the Senate majority leadership has kept the Senate operating at a snail's pace in order to finish business before the summer.

In July, the Senate had rollcall votes on only 9 days. In August, we voted on only 3 days. As a result, the Senate should be in overtime to finish the appropriations bills, we have had votes on only 22 days. That is a pathetic—that is a pathetic—sorrowful performance.

Why? Why? The majority wants to avoid the opportunity to debate how best to respond to the largest annual increase in crime in 15 years? No. No.

More than 30 farm groups—ranging from the National Farmers Union and the American Farm Bureau Federation to the American Sugar Alliance, the National Cattlemen, the National Cotton Council, and the Independent Community Bankers of America—are pressing the Senate to enact agriculture disaster relief. Sixty-six percent—66 percent—of all counties in the United States have been declared disaster areas by the Agriculture Department this year, and 88 percent—88 percent—of the counties were declared disaster areas in 2005.

The Appropriations Committee, on a bipartisan basis, adopted a $4 billion disaster relief package back in June—back in June. Has the Senate had an opportunity to debate whether that relief package meets the needs of our farmers for disaster relief? No. No.

On July 19, the Commissioner of Social Security wrote me a letter in which she stated that the level of funding in the Labor-HHS bill: "... would require employee furloughs of approximately 10 days Agency-wide."

Has the Senate had an opportunity to debate whether our elderly citizens want long lines at our Social Security offices? No. Has there been any debate about the need for safe and clean drinking water in our communities? Has there been any debate on the Senate floor, in this forum of free speech—free, unlimited speech and debate? No. No. No.

If there is one lesson we all should have learned from Hurricane Katrina, it is that there are consequences to starving Federal agencies. FEMA, which performed marvelously after the Northridge earthquake, the Midwest floods, and the 9/11 attacks, simply was no longer up to the task when Hurricane Katrina hit the gulf coast last year. I wonder which other Federal agencies could be the next FEMA. Could it be the Food and Drug Administration? Has the Senate had the opportunity to debate whether the FDA has the resources and leadership necessary to make sure we have safe food and drugs? No.

The cost of attending a public 4-year college has increased 32 percent since the beginning of this administration. Yet the maximum Pell grant award has not been increased since 2002. Has the Senate had an opportunity to debate the value of investing in the health of our children? No.

The Labor-HHS bill cuts funding for the Centers for Disease Control's immunization program—one of the most cost-effective tools in preventing disease. For every dollar spent on vaccines, we save up to $27 in medical and societal costs. Has the Senate had the opportunity to debate the value of investing in the health of our children? No.

On the heels of the first cut to funding for the National Institutes of Health since 1970, the President proposed level funding of NIH in fiscal year 2008. As a result, the total number of NIH-funded research project grants would drop by 642, or 2 percent below last year's level. The President's budget would cut funding for 18 of the 19 institutes. Funding for the National Cancer Institute would drop by $40 million, and funding for the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute would drop by $21 million. Has there been a debate about the wisdom of these cuts? No. No. No. After the coming recess, when the Congress returns in November, the prospect for the domestic bills is just as grim. Last week, under a veto threat from the White House, the majority agreed to carve another $5 billion out of the domestic bills. Nothing but another monstrous omnibus bill or a legislative continuing resolution is on the horizon for all of the remaining domestic bills.

When I was chairman of the Appropriations Committee, from 1989 to 1994 and in 2001, the Senate debated and passed every bill but one. It takes persistence, it takes determination, and it takes a commitment to the U.S. Senate to debate and approve all of those bills. Chairman COCHRAN of Mississippi has determined that was successful just last year in bringing every bill to the Senate floor. However, the majority leadership does not, apparently, value that persistence and hard work. He does not value that persistence and hard work. He does not value that persistence and hard work. He does not value that persistence and hard work. He does not value that persistence and hard work. He does not value that persistence and hard work. He does not value that persistence and hard work. He does not value that persistence and hard work.

In an election year, the only thing of value is spend and win.

Mr. President, I regret that we have, once again, so markedly demonstrated in the Senate that keeping our jobs far outweighs the desire to do our jobs and do those jobs well for the American people. Make no mistake, the American people will judge us accordingly.
I yield the floor.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I rise to talk about a couple of issues that I think are very important. One I will get to in a minute, the pending legislation before us, the issue of immigration, illegal immigration, and what we are trying to do to combat that in the Senate.

Today, I am very hopeful that with the proper cooperation, we can get this done today and over to the President in the next 48 hours to begin the process of securing the border and dealing with an issue that may be the No. 1 issue in my State right now. I probably hear about this issue of illegal immigration from casual contact with my constituents in grocery stores, the train station, everywhere. It is more people coming to me about the issue of illegal immigration than any other issue we deal with.

It is remarkable in the sense that if you talk to folks here in Washington and talk to the media, this is not important to people. Particularly, you would think in a State such as Pennsylvania, which is miles away from the southern border but not too far from the northern border, this would not be an important issue. But it is an issue. It is an issue. It is one that I am very pleased the Senate is going to deal with today. I think, making a misstep in the previous consideration of illegal immigration legislation. We have now taken a step in the right direction, a step where we put the horse before the cart instead of the cart before the horse. So I am very excited about that. I will mention that in a moment.

There is one issue I wanted to get to. It is an issue the leader spoke about last night, the issue of Iran and the Iran Freedom and Support Act, which was passed in the House of Representatives yesterday. The House negotiated—and many of us in the Senate were involved, as well as the White House—and worked on an extension of the Iran-Libya Sanctions Act, to update that act, which needed to be done, and to take into consideration the change in dynamics in Libya and the change in dynamics with respect to Iran.

There is no country that I see on the horizon that is more dangerous to the national security of this country, in my opinion, than the country of Iran—not just to the national security of this country but the safety and security of the world. We need to have a better regime of sanctions as well as a better overall policy for dealing with Iran than what we have today in the ILSA, or Iran Libya Sanctions Act.

The House of Representatives, on a bipartisan basis, worked on the legislation, again, with the administration, which previously had opposed the Iran Freedom and Support Act, a bill that has 61 cosponsors here in the Senate, which we debated earlier this year. They took elements of that bill and the companion bill in the House, offered by ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN from Florida. Working together with several House and Senate members of the administration, they were able to come up with a compromise and, again, many of us in the Senate worked with the administration and the House in drafting this. We were able to pass a bill that has a comprisitively thinking about the bill didn’t even have to take a record vote on it. It passed by consent over there. That tells you the kind of strong support the bill enjoys. It was a bill authored by TOM LANTOS and ILEANA ROS-LEHTINEN, and the chairman and ranking member of one of the committees of jurisdiction, the International Relations Committee, were on the legislation and, again, it passed yesterday unanimously. That bill now is sitting on the floor of the Senate, at the desk.

The leader mentioned last night that it is our intent to bring this legislation up and to try to pass it in the Senate. We did not last night, ask consent to do that because we were made aware there might be concerns on the other side of the aisle with respect to some of the provisions. We wanted to give ample opportunity to have the other side go through the legislation.

Again, I state that this is not a new issue. I am not misrepresenting a leader got up today and suggested that there have been no hearings on the bill and there hasn’t really been a discussion on the bill. I will tell you that just within the last year, the following hearings were held:

There was an ILSA reauthorization hearing in the Banking Committee, June 22; a terrorist threat hearing in the Homeland Security Committee, November 15 of last year; a nuclear Iran hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, March 2; response to nuclear Iran, Foreign Relations, September 19 of this year; Iran’s nuclear and political ambitions, a two-part hearing, May 17 and 18 of this year; Iran’s nuclear program/intelligence, Foreign Relations Committee, May 11.

In addition, as I mentioned, the Senate fully debated for 3 days the amendment I had offered to the National Defense Authorization Act back in June, challenging the amendment, and a 3 days. We had a vote on the Senate floor. We had a full discussion of all of the provisions in the act, many of which, as I mentioned before, have been dropped. But many of the provisions that were debated were added to this bill—the one that was noncontroversial. Things that were controversial were adapted to make them noncontroversial.

To suggest that somehow this is a brand new piece of legislation, we have seen this before. Where haven’t been any hearings, we don’t know anything about it, is just not accurate. We have had a full debate.

This is an important issue. For the United States Senate, for the Congress, the President to speak out on the issue of Iran at this time is critical as we confront, as we saw from a couple weeks ago, the machinations at the United Nations and the President Administration and many of the things he does a little bit at the United Nations, but he is rattling sabers and all other types of weaponry in front of the people of Iran when he goes home and he speaks in his native language.

This is a very serious and dangerous threat. It is without question the principal reason we are having increased problems in Afghanistan and Iraq, because of the influence of Iran. Iran is there with fighters from Iran, with money and support, weaponry from Iran to foment sectarian violence.

One of the reasons we are having the level of sectarian violence that we see there is because of Iran and its stated intention of being the dominant view in the Islamic world. The clash between Shia and Sunni is front and center in the ideology of the ruling mullahs of Iran and the President of Iran, Ahmadinejad. This is what their objective is. It is part and parcel of their war within the war, within the religion, but it is also part of their strategy of destabilizing Iraq so democracy cannot flourish because if democracy flourishes, then it is an opportunity for moderate Islam to win the day over the fanatics who are trying to destroy that region and destroy the Middle East.

This is a vitally important issue for the Senate to bring up, I think no more important issue than for us to deal with this real threat, as I said on the floor a couple of weeks ago, I think the greatest threat that has ever faced this country and the world. If we do not act now when this threat is in its nascent stage, we risk cataclysmic consequences by not confronting this evil in time. We risk cataclysmic consequences if we do not take this legislation permits, increased sanctions on companies that do business with Iran and their nuclear program.

This is a very important piece of legislation, one that is so important that we were able, as I mentioned before, to get this kind of very quick consideration on the floor of the House of Representatives, and it passed unanimously. People in the House understand the threat of Iran. I hope the Senate does so also.

I will submit for the record the provisions of what this bill does. Some have suggested that it is a watered-down version of the Iran Freedom and Support Act. So to that degree I say, yes, it is, but it is watered down for the purpose of arriving at a consensus so we can speak into the moment.

This makes major changes particularly with respect to the President’s waiver. We have had ILSA now for 10 years. We have had the waiver. The waiver has only been utilized, to my recollection, one time because there is no requirement the President has to forces inside and outside Iran. These funds are authorized for groups that are committed to democratic ideals, respect for human rights, and equality of opportunity, among other things. Activities such as radio and television broadcasting into Iran are examples of activities that could be funded under this bill.

Pifth, the bill states that Congress declares it应当 be the policy of the U.S. to support the efforts of the people of Iran to exercise self-determination over the form of their government, and to support independent human rights and peaceful pro-democracy forces inside Iran. This provision is central to our efforts to successfully effect peaceful change there.

Sixth, there are provisions that enhance current money laundering sanctions available to the government. Current law is enhanced to enable Treasury to target entities that are involved in money laundering related to the proliferation of WMD and missiles.

In all, the bill takes many of the provisions found in S. 333 and H.R. 282, the House companion, and blends them together in a bill that has earned Administration support. The bipartisan bill is a side stakeholder such as the American Israel Political Affairs Committee (AIPAC).

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I am hopeful today that the leaders will be able to get together and will be able to get consensus on this bill. I assure you, this is a bill we must pass. This is “the extension” of ILSA with some very well thought out, negotiated compromises between Republicans and Democrats in the Congress, as well as the administration. I am hopeful that we can get a successful conclusion to that bill. The security of our country demands it.

IMMIGRATION

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I would like to move to another topic, and that is back to the issue of immigration and the fence bill with which we are dealing here.

A lot of people have talked about a variety of implications of this legislation. To my mind, one of the principal considerations is the issue of national security.

The 9/11 Commission stated in the preface of its report that: It is perhaps obvious to state that terrorists cannot plan and carry out attacks in the United States if they are unable to enter the country.

That is obvious, but it is an important statement to be made that one of the things we must do to help secure this country is to make sure we have a better immigration policy, whether it is a legal immigration policy and people coming here legally, properly screened for legal immigration, or people who are coming in.

One of the things we are hearing is there are a lot more people coming across the southern border who are being picked up who are not Mexicans, who are not from Latin America. They come from places all over the world. This becomes an increasing concern with the porous southern border.
these people were wanted on these charges. So this is not just a national security problem, but it is also a personal security problem when we are not regulating the people coming into this country, when we are allowing anyone with any record or with any intention into this country.

Again, that is the right of every country to do: to make sure our citizens are safe, and we have a way to accomplish that. I think this fence bill will be a step in the right direction. Other ways in which people in this country are violating Americans, not just through potential terrorist activity and criminal activity, but another criminal activity that we are seeing more and more of—and we heard some cases during the debate—is identity theft.

A woman came to my attention. A constituent contacted us by the name of Laurie Beers who had her Social Security number stolen by an illegal immigrant who is a nurse who, as part of her job, is constantly traveling. She learned her information had been stolen and misused. She did everything she was supposed to do: contacted the FBI, reported it to the identity theft hotline, protected the credit cards, on and on—obviously, contacted the FBI.

In response she found out, yes, she was a victim of identity theft. She contacted the IRS. She was told that the man using her Social Security number is an illegal immigrant. After talking to the FBI and Secret Service, they confirmed the person is an illegal immigrant who has been working for an employer in New York City and has been filing income tax returns under her Social Security number.

Obviously, she was upset that a man working in New York was using her Social Security number to file income taxes for 3 years. She contacted the employer of that man who has been anything but cooperative in resolving this situation. In fact, she has reported they have been downright nasty.

She is lucky her credit hasn’t been destroyed. But this man has, unfortunately, with her Social Security number passed some bad checks, and now she can’t use checks at Wal-Mart and other stores because of her Social Security number being linked to the passport of this credit card.

The question is: Is it a big deal in the security of America? No, but it is a big deal if you are the person who is a victim of identify theft. So we see this as one “small example,” but big in her life, as well as thousands of other Americans who have been affected by the stealing of Social Security numbers.

This is an issue we need to address. We need to get this bill done this year. We need to step away from the bad provisions that the Senate passed, which I can go into in great detail, but they have been discussed over and over, everything, again, from legalizing people who committed illegal activity by first stepping into this country, to the Social Security issue, and a lot of others.

My time has expired. I thank, again, the leadership, BILL FRIST, for moving and pushing this bill. Let’s hope for Senate passage today and a start to dealing with the issue of illegal immigration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I believe I have 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.\n AGRICULTURAL WORKERS

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, we have an opportunity today with the border fence bill and with the concurrence of Members of this body to help an industry that right now is in deep trouble, and that industry is American agriculture.

The reason it is in deep trouble is because it does not have the workforce to harvest the crops. This is true whether it is Florida, the State of Washington, Iowa, Idaho, California, Arizona, or any other agricultural State. The reason for the shortage is because agriculture dominantly depends on what is an undocumented or illegal workforce. The reason that is the case is because it has been found over the years that American workers simply will not do this work. Therefore, agriculture, the huge industry that we have in America, has come to depend on an undocumented workforce.

Just to give one example—and I wish I had a big chart—but this is the pear crop in Lake County, a farm owned by Toni Scully, and these mounds are rotting pears on the field because they cannot be harvested in time.

California is the largest agricultural State in the Nation. It is a $34 billion industry. It has 76,000 farms. California produces all of the nation’s fruits, vegetables, and nuts from only 3 percent of the Nation’s farmland. If these products cannot be harvested—and it is late in the harvest season today—the price of fresh produce all over this Nation is going to rise.

We have an opportunity to do something about it. I am joined on the floor by Senator Larry Craig of the State of Idaho who is the main author of the AgJOBS Program, in the Judiciary Committee. In the immigration bill, we revised AgJOBS and it was part of the Senate-passed immigration bill. Along with AgJOBS, we have reformed the agricultural guest worker program called H-2A. These two programs combine to give the farmers of America the certainty they need that there will, in fact, be a workforce able to harvest their crops, plant their crops, prune, cut, pack, and sort crops in this great country.

In my State we have roughly 350 different crops: lemons, tomatoes, raisins, lettuce, prunes, onions, cotton, and many others that are grown all across the State. Growers are reporting that their harvest crews are 10 to 20 percent of what they were previously. It is a disaster, and it will be a very costly disaster for the farm community as well as for the consumers of America. And it can be solved. We could move today to put the AgJOBS bill on the Senate floor. I think it isn’t germane postulate, but the body could agree to include it because of the emergency circumstances that exist in agriculture States throughout the Nation today.

In my State we employ at least 450,000 people in the peak of the harvest, with farm workers progressing from one crop to the next, stringing together as much as 7 months of work. The estimate is that the season is falling short by 70,000 workers.

It is a very serious situation. Fields in Pajaro Valley in Santa Cruz County are being abandoned. Farmers can’t find workers to harvest strawberry, raspberry, and vegetable crops. In the Pajaro Valley, one farmer reports he has had to tear out 30 acres of vegetables. He has about 100 acres compromised by weeds because there is nobody to weed the field. He estimates his loss so far to be $200,000. California and Arizona farmers say they need 77,000 workers during December to May to harvest vegetables, and they estimate the shortage will be 35,000 workers.

It is amazing to me that we can’t do something about this by passing a bill that has been heard in the Judiciary Committee, that has been amended, that has been discussed over a period of years.

I would ask, if I might, the Senator from Idaho a series of questions, through the Chair. The first question is how long the Senator from Idaho has been working on this issue?

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I appreciate the Senator asking the question. I began to work with American agriculture and specifically western growers in the Pacific Northwest and in the Senator’s State of California starting in about 1999 when they came to me and recognized, as they now clearly know, that they were beginning to rely on an illegal workforce of undocumented workers who were coming in because the law that exists, the H-2A, was so complicated and so bureaucratic, it was simply failing them. So it has been now at least 7 years that we have worked to comprise and build the AgJOBS legislation.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, if I may, through the Chair, is there a crisis in the State of Idaho? Is there a crisis in the State of Idaho?

Mr. CRAIG. There is a growing crisis in the State of Idaho. I would like, if the Senator from California doesn’t mind, to submit for the RECORD a "Dear Colleague" letter that the Senator from California and I sent out late last month. It is in the RECORD.

I ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. CRAIG. In Idaho we have an opportunity to do something about this by passing a bill that has been heard in the Judiciary Committee, that has been amended, that has been discussed over a period of years.
There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,

DEAR COLLEAGUE: Earlier this week, we went to the floor to highlight the desperate need for agricultural workers. In our colloquy, we discussed how American farmers are suffering, not because they don’t have the crops in question, but because they don’t have the workers to bring their crops to the market.

In just this morning, a New York Times front page story proclaimed “Pickers Are Few, and Growers Blame Congress.” (copy attached) To be honest, we agree with their sentiment.

Farmers across this country have every reason to be angry and frustrated. There is simply no reason AgJOBS has not been enacted, and no reason it could not have been passed now. The New York Times article is just one of dozens that have been written this summer highlighting the plight our farmers are facing.

The California is the single largest agriculture state in the nation with over $34 billion in annual revenue and approximately 76,500 farms. The growers in California are reporting that their harvesting crews are 10 to 20 percent of what they were previously. As the Times reported, “California farmers say 450,000 people are at the peak of the harvest, with farm workers progressing from one crop to the next, stringing together as much as seven months of work. Growers estimate the state fell short this harvest season by 70,000 workers.” The impact is devastating “fields go untended, and acres have to be torn up because there is no one to harvest them.” (San Jose Mercury News 8/9/06)

Agricultural labor shortages affect not just California; in fact, they are impacting farms across the country, including harvesting of citrus in Florida, apples in New Hampshire, strawberries in Washington, and cherries in Oregon. In Wyoming, it has been reported that the labor shortage played a central role in the imminent closure of the $8 million Wind River Mushroom farm. The Idaho Department of Commerce and Labor reports that the number of farm workers hired in Idaho is down by 18 percent, and the Potato Growers of Idaho believes "appropriate legislation, such as AgJOBS, is needed to keep the industry growing and expanding.” (copy attached)

According to Cox News Service, “One farmer in Cowlitz County in Washington state reported blueberry orchards laid in the field for want of enough pickers,” and a farmer in Oregon complained “farm workers should have been harvesting 25 tons of fruit per day from his Polk County cherry orchard. Instead, he could only hire enough temporary farm workers to pick 6 tons.”

Most shocking, the American Farm Bureau has found that Congress enacts legislation that deals only with border security and enforcement, the impact on fruit and vegetable farmers nationwide would be between $5 billion and $7 billion annually. The peak of the harvest, with farm workers progressing from one crop to the next, stringing together as much as seven months of work. Growers estimate the state fell short this harvest season by 70,000 workers.

Stepped-up border enforcement kept many illegal Mexican migrant workers out of California this year, farmers and labor contractors said, putting new strains on the state’s shrinking seasonal farm labor force. Labor shortages have also been reported by apple growers in Washington and upstate New York. Growers have gone from frustrated to furious with Congress, which has all but given up on passing legislation this year to create an agricultural guest-worker program.

Last week, 300 growers representing every major agricultural state rallied on the front lawn of the Capitol carrying baskets of fruit to express their anger and frustration. This year’s shortages are compounding a trend that has been affected already by the Sept. 11 attacks, when security checks forced it to fire illegal migrant employees who were working in tomato fields on a military base. The company lost $2.5 million on that 2001 crop, she said.

Over the years, occasional programs to draw American workers to the harvests have failed. “Americans do not raise their children to be farm workers,” Ms. Halstrom said.

The failure of Congress to approve a new guest-worker program surprised California growers because a proposal that the Senate passed stemmed from a rare agreement between growers’ organizations, the U.F.W. and other advocates for farm workers, and legislators ranging from conservative Republicans to liberal Democrats.

Known as H-2A, the program requires employers to prove they tried to find American workers and to apply well in advance for relaxation of immigration laws. As it has become known, H-2A farm workers must be paid the same as Americans, which is more than they are paid there. ‘I would have raised my wages,” said Steve Winant, a pear grower whose 14-acre orchard is still laden with ripe fruit. “But there weren’t any people to pick them.”

The tightening of the border with Mexico, begun more than a decade ago but reinforced since May with the deployment of 6,000 National Guard troops, has forced California growers to acknowledge that most of their workers are illegal Mexican migrants. The U.F.W. estimates that 90 percent of the state’s farm workers are illegal.

On July 17, a California Farm Bureau survey estimated that the workers employed for the 2006 season were mostly illegal, with many employers reporting that they could not find enough legal workers to fill their fields. And last month, a survey of the state’s farm labor force leaves agriculture with only 80 percent of the state’s farm workers are illegal.

Most California growers gave up years ago on recruiting workers through the seasonal agriculture worker program. Known as H-2A, the program requires employers to prove they tried to find American workers and to apply well in advance for relaxation of immigration laws.

“Our experience with the current H-2A program has been a nightmare,” said Luwanna Hallstrom, general manager of Harry Singh & Sons, a vine-ripe tomato grower based in Oceanside, near San Diego. Ms. Hallstrom said her company tried to use the program in the months after the Sept. 11 attacks, when security checks forced it to fire illegal migrant employees who were working in tomato fields on a military base. Her company lost $2.5 million on that 2001 crop, she said.

Over the years, occasional programs to draw American workers to the harvests have failed. “Americans do not raise their children to be farm workers,” Ms. Hallstrom said.

The failure of Congress to approve a new guest-worker program surprised California growers because a proposal that the Senate passed stemmed from a rare agreement between growers’ organizations, the U.F.W. and other advocates for farm workers, and legislators ranging from conservative Republicans to liberal Democrats. Known as AgJOBS, the proposal would create a new temporary-resident status for seasonal farm workers and give them the
Mr. IVICEVICH. A 69-year-old family farmer, is not given to displays of emotion. But he paused for a moment, overwhelmed, as he stood among trees sagging with pears that oozed when he squeezed them. His nighttime sleep, in his cottage among his 122 acres of orchards, is disrupted by the thud of dropping fruit and ringing of branches.

For decades, Mr. Ivicevich said, migrant pickers would knock on his door asking for work climbing his picking ladders. Then about five years ago they started knocking, and he turned to a labor contractor to muster harvest crews. This year, elated, he called the contractor in early August. Pears must be picked green and quickly packed and chilled, or they go soft in shipping.

"Then I called and I called and I called," Mr. Ivicevich said.

The picking crew, which he needed on Aug. 12, arrived two weeks late and 15 workers short. He lost about 1.3 million pounds of pears.

His neighbor, Mr. Winant, standing in his chopping orchard with his hands sunk in his jeans, said: "I would rather bulldoze the pear trees than start preparing them for a new season."

"It's like a death, like a son died," said Mr. Winant, 45, who cares for the small orchard himself during the winter. "You work all year and then see your work go to ground. I want to pull them out because of the agony. It's just too hard to take."

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, clearly what is happening—and the Senator has said it so well—is this a failure of American agriculture or is this a failure of Congress? It is clearly a failure of Congress.

We have known our borders are porous for a long time, and we are closing them now, and we should close them. There is nothing wrong with doing that. In fact, for national security and to build an orderly process in immigration, it is not necessary for us to do that and control them. But we also knew that immediately attached to it had to be the creation of a legal guest worker program. That is where Congress has said it so well—is this a failure of Congress?

I think somebody around here should speak for 7 minutes as in morning business. I will allow us, and I will call up—well, I listen, that the leadership of this body has prepared me if I am wrong, we would be prepared to change that sunset from 5 years to 12 years. This will bring about concurrence from the Members.

But the point is there is a crisis out there. The point is we can solve that crisis now with this legislation. And the point is it is critical. It has been authored, debated, discussed, heard now over a 6-year period. It has been refined. Both Senator CRAIG and I are convinced it will work. It was part of the immigration bill.

So this is an opportunity. It is an opportunity for us to respond to an industry which is in deep trouble at the present time. It is an opportunity for our workers. It is an opportunity for all of us. It is an opportunity for us to reverse the culture job lost, we lose three to four jobs for every one job that Americans will not do this kind of difficult, hot, stooped labor.

So this is an opportunity. It is an opportunity for us to respond to an industry which is in deep trouble at the present time.

Let me go on with a few other examples. I mentioned that California and Arizona farmers say they need 77,000 workers to pick their apple harvest, and they estimate they may be 35,000 workers short. The estimates from my State are that illegal immigrants make up at least one-fourth of the workforce and as high as 50 percent of the farm labor payroll. It is also estimated that for every agricultural job lost, we lose three to four other related jobs. I am told that in the Senator's State, farm workers are down 10 percent, and the potato growers of Idaho want AgJOBS passed to begin to think of the consumer. I don't want to say to California families they are going to go in and buy heads of lettuce at $4 a head or more or broccoli at $5 a head or anything else because of a dramatic shortage, because farmers won't plant, because farmers can't pick, because farmers can't harvest, they can't sort, they can't pack, they can't can. That labor is needed, and year after year it has been documented that Americans will not do this kind of difficult, hot, stooped labor.

Next year we would be ready, willing, and able to do this, but we will have lost another agricultural season, we will have lost a spring season, a summer season. I hope that someone will listen, that the leadership of this body will allow us, and I will call up—well, I can't do it now, but at an appropriate time I will call up the amendment that is at the desk.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. DEMINT. Mr. President, I ask to speak for 7 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized for 7 minutes.

Mr. DEMINT. I thank the Chair. (The remarks of Mr. DeMINT related to the introduction of S. 3995 are printed in today's Record under "Statements On Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

PROTECTING THE PUBLIC HEALTH

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I am rising in support of the motion of my colleague from North Carolina to pass the bioterrorism and BARDA legislation. It is vital we pass this bill before we adjourn because bio-preparedness should be strengthened now and not put off until some distant time in the future. I urge all Members to support this motion and the bipartisan bill.

As Chairman of the Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions, I know this issue has been a priority of both Democrats and Republicans on the committee. Senator Burr... is the chairman of the committee’s Subcommittee on Bioterrorism and Public Health Preparedness. It has been clear to me that he has directed a very open process that sought to get input from all stakeholders. In the past 2 years, at least eight hearings and roundtables on this subject, with witnesses representing a wide range of views and opinions. I also know that he held a lot of meetings with stakeholders, people who had an interest in this bill and ideas on this bill. He also hired some extremely professional staff with a lot of experience who could provide input and work to find those third ways of doing things when things were difficult. I have been pleased with the bipartisan effort and bicameral effort that he has made on this bill: to keep the House folks educated on what we were doing, to try to keep the Senate educated on what we were doing.

The substance of this bill, according to me, represents a consensus of what public health officials, experts, and public policy groups from around the Nation believe needs to be done immediately to protect the public health of our Nation’s families and workers. While we have made remarkable strides in our efforts to identify and address our Nation’s weaknesses to biological threats, the fact remains that our defense on these fronts is far from perfect. Despite our best efforts in Congress and administration’s efforts, there are holes we must fill if we are going to adequately ensure our safety. Senator BURR has worked tirelessly in a bipartisan fashion in the HELP Committee to examine these conditions and construct a solution to appropriately address the current shortcomings of our biodefense. The product of that work is now the subject of this motion, and it deserves our support.

Before we go home we all want to be able to return home to our families and workers that we are taking all steps necessary to protect us from a natural, an accidental, or a deliberate public health threat. Supporting Mr. BURR’s motion this morning is an essential step toward enacting these protections.

The bill has two distinct parts. The first part is the creation of a new authority built upon the highly successful Department of Defense’s defense advanced research projects. This authority will be the development of new bioterrorism countermeasures. It is a look into the future; a way to figure out, before it happens, what needs to be developed using experts who can then encourage people to develop those products.

The second part is the reauthorization of the Bioterrorism Act. Both parts are necessary to ensure our Nation’s biodefense security. A few years ago we had hoped that, through the creation of the bioshield fund, the pharmaceutical industry would create the drugs necessary to protect Americans. We cannot close our eyes and pray they have done what we hoped. They have not. The pharmaceutical industry is not commercializing enough drugs to fight infections diseases, whether they are spread naturally or through the effort of man.

The rise in the incidence of antibiotic-resistant strains is one threat and the specter of bird flu is very disturbing and demands our immediate attention. It is clear that without the passage of this legislation little will change.

The bill before us addresses this deficiency in a very similar strategy and process that we have seen to be effective with the Army through DARPA. By applying the successes of the DARPA programs to bioterrorism, we hope we can spur the industry to address this urgent need.

It is not clear if this step is enough, but it is clear if we do nothing, nothing will change.

The second portion of this bill also is vital to our biodefense preparedness. This new authority is the Bioterrorism Act. To be clear, the Bioterrorism Act, which we passed after the anthrax attacks, was a giant step forward. The law has done a tremendous amount to help State and local governments. But the same time, the specter of a pandemic bird flu was not on the horizon. In addition, we have learned a lot from the biohazard experience after the effects of Hurricane Katrina in the gulf coast.

More recently we have come to realize that State and local public health agencies know exactly what needs to be done and how they should be prepared.

The bill strengthens what we have already started to do and gives us the flexibility to prevent biological events from happening in the future. We cannot put off for another day the vital biodefense preparedness provisions contained in this bill. Our families and workers need this help today.

I urge my colleagues to support the motion. I support my colleague from the State of North Carolina as he tries to address this legislation immediately. I thank him for all of his hard work to get us here today.

I have not seen anybody dig into an issue to the level that he has, to get the expertise that he has in a very difficult area. We were pleased when he came over from the House to be part of the Senate and brought the expertise on the biodefense to this body. He has done a tremendous job, and I appreciate the way he has reached out to get something done.

It is my understanding that there might be an objection to going ahead and doing this today. Normally, at this point we would read a unanimous consent request to get on the bill, but it is my understanding that no one is going to come down from the other side of the aisle to object, and I can tell you I am not going to object to that on anybody’s behalf.

Civility in the Senate says if the other side doesn’t show up to object, somebody is supposed to object on their behalf. I am not going to do that. Instead, I am going to put off the request until later, until somebody can actually be here to object because I have difficulty imagining that people would object to this kind of national security at that point in the history of the United States.

So with that announcement, I will allocate the remainder of the time to the chairman, who has been working diligently on this bill, and let him give a few more informational comments and allocate the rest of the time.

I thank Senator BURR for his tremendous efforts, the tremendous work that has gone on up to this point. We do need to finish it now.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized. There is 12 minutes remaining.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I thank the chairman of the committee, and I also thank the ranking member, Senator KENNEDY, who has been extremely helpful throughout this whole process. If we were left up to what this bill would have become law and would have been signed by the President months ago, because in fact 50 percent of this bill was passed unanimously in the House of Representatives. But as you begin to see now the interest of my colleagues who think this is a vehicle leaving the Senate, some of the amendments that have popped up are not even germane to the issue of what we are here to talk about.

More importantly, I think we need to focus on why we are here—because of the threat of terrorism, the power of Mother Nature, what we have learned from the destruction of Katrina, what we continue to hear from the voices of individuals whose intent is every day to kill Americans.

This morning, the World Health Organization confirmed that the H5N1 bird flu strain has mutated. As you know, we don’t have a vaccine today, but we are desperately trying to get there.

This Congress has made some exceptions as it relates to our development of a vaccine for pandemic flu because of the urgency. Yet, they do not see the same urgency as it relates to e. coli, or smallpox, or anthrax, or the ability to genetically modify any of them to overcome anything that we might have in our arsenal to defeat them today.

Yet this morning the World Health Organization announced that in areas of China they have established that bird flu has mutated. That mutation means we do not have a vaccine; it means that the antivirals Tamiflu and Relenza are in urgent need for this strain. It means we are completely unprotected.

In addition to that, reported today by the head of al-Qaida in Iraq, he put out an audio message that said this: “We have don’t protect against you as American bases are the perfect place for nonconventional experiments of biologic and dirty warfare.”
But some argue that is not a real threat, that al-Qaeda never participated in that. However, this quote is from the head of al-Qaeda calling on his brothers, his scientists, to bring their research and development and see how well it works. If it can be used there, it can be used here.

In this bill, our attempt was to make sure that we have in place a robust research and development process that is focused on threats that might be intentional, threats that might be accidental; that might be natural. We certainly saw the power of the natural threats 1 year ago with Hurricane Katrina. As we sit here almost on the fifth anniversary of the anthrax attacks on the Congress, I think it is worth reminding our colleagues that this threat hasn’t gone away. This threat continues yet today, and 5 years later we do not have the vaccines and drugs to defeat these threats. And if in fact terrorists have spent any time to generate any threat, we have to question whether we have an antiviral capability to treat individuals who are infected and reverse that course and make sure there is no loss of life.

We are headed into a new season of pandemic planning this fall and as a season starts and we detect those infected birds, how long will it be before one bird finds the shore of the United States, be it through Canada or Alaska?

We need to continue. We need to pass this bill that is really most important, that is most important, that is most important, that is most important, that is most important. We have reached out to every Member of this body. I have continuously solicited their input, and most of that is incorporated into this bill. I will assure you there has been some input that I could not accept in the bill because it would be inconsistent with what we tried to accomplish; that is, to assure the American people we are doing everything within our power to make sure they are safe.

The legislation we have developed focuses on strategies to address public health and medical needs of at-risk individuals. Every person in this body learned after Hurricane Katrina that we have to better prepare to meet the needs of at-risk individuals, children and older Americans, in a totally different way from our current response plans. In our bill, we require that to be part of our national preparedness goals. We set up an at-risk individuals advisory committee to continually remind those responsible for responding to disasters of what in fact they need to do for at-risk populations.

In addition, we require of every State emergency response plan to incorporate at-risk individuals into their plans. We have not left them behind. We have made them a centerpiece of our focus in this legislation.

We also strengthen the State and local public health infrastructure in this bill by reauthorizing over $1 billion a year in Federal funding for grants from Health and Human Servces for public health and medical preparedness.

The last thing we do, which I will focus on is really important thing in this bill. We put somebody in charge. We made one individual responsible for the health care response of the Federal Government. And where we had those responsibilities fragmented before, with the help of the chairman of the Department of Homeland Securitiy Appropriations Committee, we began to move those things. And where there needed to be greater consultation with agencies such as the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta, we built in that concentration.

I am convinced that with one person in charge when there is another disaster in America, we will not have fingerprinting. We will know exactly who to go to and who to hold responsibility. The chairwoman of the committee, Chairman ENZI, and Senator BURR, have reached out to every Member of the majority who is allocated in place these changes so that the American people have that comfort of knowing we are doing our job.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 5 minutes. If the objection is sustained, I will yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I comment the chairman of the HELP Committee, Chairman ENZI, and Senator BURR, who is the energy and author of this bill.

I don’t think there is a bill that comes to this floor that isn’t important. Obviously, it wouldn’t make it to this point if it wasn’t calling something “important” becomes sort of a common phrase around here. But when you are talking about the issue of whether America is prepared for either a pandemic flu, or a terrorist attack using a biological agent which could threaten thousands and thousands—potentially tens of thousands—of Americans, you are talking about something that everyone, including Senator BURR has focused on this issue.

We have in place laws that Senator
ENZI and I helped structure a few years ago on Bioshield, to try to get this process started of getting ready for that kind of a biological attack. But the process didn’t work the way it was supposed to work. It wasn’t getting the industry involved, which has been devastated in our country—literally wiped out for all intents and purposes—by lawsuits. It was not willing to get started up again because they didn’t feel there was, first, an adequate source of resources in the area of dealning with a biological attack and, sec-cion, they feared the huge potential liability that might fall on them for the production of what would be not a major item within their market.

Senator BURR has spent a year addressing these issues: How do we get more manufacturers, more entrepreneurs and more medical specialists into the business of developing and being positioned to develop vaccines which will deal with potential pandemic flu or a terrorist attack.

In addition, he recognized that is not enough, that you have to get the common—especially State and local communities—thinking about how they will handle a situation where they must have literally tens of thousands of people they have to care for at once, that type of a surge, or that they have to isolate from the community.

This legislation should be passed.
There is no reason it shouldn’t pass. It passed in the House overwhelmingly. It passed in the House overwhelmingly. It passed in the House overwhelmingly.

This legislation has evolved here through a superior exercise in legis-lativity activity by Senator BURR and Senator ENZI. This legislation has evolved in a bipartisan effort, a bicameral effort to address these very significant problems which we have found within our health care delivery system when it comes to dealing with a potential threat of a pandemic event or biological event.

This legislation should be passed.
it occur with biological weapons, we need to get ready now for that. This bill does that.

I congratulate the Senator from North Carolina, and I congratulate the chairman of the committee, a superb chairman, who did a great job. But the smart people did not stop it over to the Senator from North Carolina to straighten it out. This is a good bill and should be passed. I hope the Senate will pass it today.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. I ask unanimous consent to speak for 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, first, I thank Senator BURR. Senator BURR and I served on the Commerce and Health committees in the House together. He also served on Intelligence in the House, and we have his expertise, his experience, and his tremendous insight into what needs to be done, and the risks.

I find it ironic that since we talk about all the issues that face our country it is this that is potentially one of the most deadly risks our country faces—not just from a natural occurrence such as bird flu but from the intentional use of manipulating biological, of manipulating viruses and bacteria. We know the intent of the people we are now fighting. It is to use fully any means at any time in any way to cause great disruption not only to the lives of Americans but on the economy of America.

The fact that someone would hold up this bill to give us the capability to direct resources to become prepared says one of two things: Either they don’t believe there is a real threat either from Mother Nature or the leaders of the “Islamo-fascist” terrorists who want to attack us today or that they think we are prepared. And we are not prepared.

We heard Senator GREGG talk about the vaccine industry. We need a program to redevelop our capabilities. I am a practicing physician. What we do know is vaccine costs are higher today because we have no industry. We have a limited supply of vaccine manufacturers. We need research into vaccines at every area of every virus and every bacillus and possibly be used against us, and then we need a way to get that out and a way to utilize it. We need research into new antiviral drugs for many of the viruses that could be posed as a biological weapon against this country.

I find it ironic, kind of like last night, we are trying to do something for victims of HIV, and those who want to object will not come to the floor and object; they want to hide in secrecy. They do not want to say what is really wrong. Why? They want to do the best they can to get the process, hold up the process, and not accept the responsibility. There is no one in this Senate who holds up more things than I do, but everybody knows that I am the person doing it and they know why I do it.

This is within the responsibility of the Federal Government. It is within the priority of making a decision on where we spend money and what should be spent first. Protecting this country should be one of the No. 1 things we do. Protecting the lives of American citizens should be one of the No. 1 things we do.

To not come here and defend why we think this bill is not appropriate, to not come here and stand up and take credit for stopping prevention of accidents and terrorism in this country says a whole lot about the lack of transparency in this Senate. They should come to the Senate and say what is wrong and why they object. We should have a debate. If they want to object after that, let them do it. But to not come to the floor to make a formal objection as a courtesy to Senator Enzi, who does represent the other Members of this Senate, it means those Members who will not come hide in the shadows, and the American people do not get to know what others might think is wrong with proceeding. That does a real disservice to the country and to this Senate.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I don’t see additional Members in the Senate, so I will take the opportunity to ask unanimous consent to address the Senate for 5 minutes. If I do see additional Members seeking recognition, I will certainly accommodate them.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I was reminded, as Dr. COBURN spoke, that we do have a blueprint that guides us as it relates to pandemic flu. It is “The Great Influenza.” Most of us in the Senate were not here in 1918. I daresay we have few Members who were here at that time. This book is the greatest recap of what happened at that time and the significant impact on the lives of the American people and how many individuals died. Unlike what we might expect in a flu season, those affected were not the old and at risk. They were the young and healthy. They were the ones who were attacked with this case of pneumonia which we call a strain which could not be overcome with any medicine they had available.

One walks away from this historical lesson realizing, if we think it could happen—which Nobody questions—then we should do everything within our means to make sure we are not left in the same position we were in 1918 with no stable of products to defeat this virus.

What do we do in this bill? We develop a partnership between the Federal Government and academic institutions, between the Federal Government and any re-searcher who might have research that leads us to believe they might hold the key to a cure. We enter into that partnership with the belief that as long as the research and development shows promise in the right direction, we will continue to be a good partner, but if at some point we are not headed where we want, we stop our funding. We are fiscally responsible.

We make sure one person is in charge of the health response in the United States versus a multitude of individuals in multiple agencies. For the first time, this country would have an approach to our health response and to our development of antivirals and vaccines to defeat these agents that is not limited to one area but covers all hazards.

We build on the State preparedness plans. We do not trump the State plan. We do not create two separate plans. We integrate into that State plan to make sure we are there to support the responses. Most of the logistic needs. We have to make sure, in fact, that in the first 72 hours after a disaster, individuals feel the full effects of local, State, and Federal resources.

We should the public health infrastructure in America. I challenge anyone to look at the community they live in and compare the public health infrastructure they grew up with to the one they have today. It is impossible to believe that someone, in the interest of saving logistics, could not have a plan of response if, in fact, our public health infrastructure varies as greatly as it does today from the inoculation point for low-income children to the only place, in some cases, where health care can be delivered.

We strengthen our surveillance, which, as we look at the bird flu, is absolutely crucial, our ability to identify at the earliest possible point whether, in fact, an infection and a threat is alive and well.

We allow for the surge capacity of health care professionals. I see my colleague from Louisiana in the Senate. She would be the first to know that one of the challenges when Katrina dramatically affected this country was that health care professionals around the country who intended to go to Louisiana and supply that very important medical surge capacity had a licensing problem in Louisiana. I forgot the exact reason. But the question is, How can we overcome this challenge in the future? We create in this bill a voluntary network that health care professionals can sign in to get their credentials verified ahead of time, where the United States can then deploy these trained health care professionals on a moment’s notice without any additional hurdles.

I see my colleagues. Since we do have individuals who could execute their objection, it would probably be an appropriate time to offer the unanimous-consent request.

Mrs. MURRAY. I suggest the absence of a quorum.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina controls the floor.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous-consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT REQUEST—S. 3678

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous-consent that the HELP Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. 3678 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration. I also ask unanimous-consent that the substitute at the desk be agreed to; the bill, as amended, be read the third time and passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I ask unanimous-consent that the majority leader, with the concurrence of the Democratic leader, may at any time turn to the consideration of S. 3678; that it be considered under the following limitations: that the managers’ amendment be withdrawn and a managers’ amendment that has been agreed to by both managers and both leaders be agreed to for purposes of the original text; that the first-degree amendments deal with similar subject matter as contained in the text of the bill, except where noted; and that relevant second-degree amendments be in order thereto. The amendments are as follows: Durbin, single food agency; Conrad, national emergency telehealth task force; Lieberman, at-risk populations; Lautenberg, mass-transit preparedness; Wyden, FOIA; Leahy, compensation fund; amendment; Levin, one amendment; Obama, one amendment; Leahy, one amendment; in addition to any time limits on amendments, there be 6 hours of debate on the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator’s unanimous-consent request is out of order by merely reserving the right to object. The Senator has to object to the pending unanimous-consent request by the Senator from North Carolina.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I ask unanimous-consent to modify the request of the Senator from North Carolina with another unanimous-consent request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. As the Chair understands it, the Senator from Washington would still have to object to the pending unanimous-consent request in order to make it a substitute.

Mrs. MURRAY. I believe the other Senator will have to object to my request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the Senator would pause, is the Senator’s second request to modify the pending unanimous-consent request of the Senator from North Carolina?

Mrs. MURRAY. That is correct.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That would be in order.

Mrs. MURRAY. I ask consent to modify the pending unanimous-consent request of the Senator from North Carolina to the extent I just outlined, and also I add that there be 6 hours for debate on the bill to be equally divided between the two leaders or their designees; and that upon conclusion of the Senate amendments and the use or yielding back of time, the Senate bill be read a third time and the Senate proceed to vote on passage of the bill.

I ask unanimous-consent that the Senator from North Carolina modify his request to include this consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the motion?

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, as Members may have missed the over 90 minutes many of us have been in the Senate Chamber, a significant amount of time and effort has gone into this bill. A very general solicitation and at times a very specific solicitation for input has been sought from my colleagues, without a response.

Yesterday, a list of possible amendments was supplied. Most of those amendments were not even applicable to what is in the bill. We are not in a position right now to know what the specific modifications are that are being suggested, since we have not seen the actual amendments. Therefore, I object to the unanimous-consent request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

Mrs. MURRAY. Knowing they would object to our asking for a number of our Senators to be allowed to have amendments, I object to the Senator’s request as well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard to both the modification and the original unanimous-consent request.

The Senator from Louisiana is recognized for 10 minutes.

OFFSHORE ENERGY

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, we are trying to wrap up many important issues before we leave. One issue that has remained true at this point is the solution for our offshore energy bill. The House has passed a version; the Senate has passed a version. I am here to talk about the benefits of the Senate approach to this subject since there seems to be some real confusion on the part of some of the House members about the Senate approach. I have had many private conversations and many meetings, but I thought I might try to clarify a few things as we seek to understand each other a little better.

I have great respect for many Members on the House side. Chairman Pombo and others have worked very hard. I know they are very sincere about trying to find new avenues for domestic production. It is most certainly a goal I share and that many Senators in the Senate share, Republicans and Democrats.

I have heard our arguments, knock-down, drag-out arguments about ANWR. I am clearly on the side that supports production in ANWR. I happen to be in a minority of Democrats on that, and we could never pass that in the Senate, or have not to date. We have been debating it now for 30 years. But there is consensus—there is consensus—in the Senate about opening a significant area in the Gulf of Mexico to help bring much-needed oil and natural gas to this country.

I wish to put into the RECORD from the Consumer Alliance for Energy Security what they say about natural gas:

Natural gas is used to make fertilizer for ethanol.

For those who are arguing for more diesel fuel in our buses and fleet vehicles, electric utilities use natural gas to generate clean power.

Natural gas is a raw material that goes into lightweight cars for fuel efficiency, wind power blades, solar panels, building insulation and other energy efficient materials.

Natural gas is used to make hydrogen fuel necessary for fuel cells.

They say:

In the face of declining natural gas production, consumers are hungry for a solution to our energy crisis.

The Senate has provided a solution. Democrats and Republicans agree—we need more natural gas. So we have carved out an area. Shown on this map, is an area that is under leasing moratoria right now and which has been under leasing for the last 15 or 20 years. It has been closed off to production—8 million acres.

But this Senate, in a historic vote, has decided that we need the natural gas. We believe in what the Consumer Alliance and thousands of organizations have stepped up to say. We need natural gas. We are prepared to open this section—8 million acres.

To put this in perspective, ANWR is only 2,000 acres. So when critics of our approach say the Senate bill does not do anything, then, why did we debate for 30 years over nothing? If we debated 30 years only 2,000 acres, why is it 8 million acres nothing? I do not think that is true. It is obviously incorrect. Eight million acres is a great many more than 2,000 acres. The reserves here are thought to be substantial.

Shown on this map is the oil discovery that was announced 3 weeks or 4 weeks ago announced: the Jack well, as it is commonly known, discovered 8 million acres. It is obviously incorrect. Eight million acres nothing? I do not think that is true. It is obviously incorrect. Eight million acres is a great many more than 2,000 acres. The reserves here are thought to be substantial.

Shown on this map is the oil discovery that was announced 3 weeks or 4 weeks ago announced: the Jack well, as it is commonly known, discovered 8 million acres. It is obviously incorrect. United States of America. This one little square, right here.

So when people in the House of Representatives say, opening up 8 million acres here will do nothing, they are dead wrong. We might find four or five "Jack" wells here, We could find something. How would we know? Because no one will let us go look. And if we do not pass this bill, which the Presiding Officer helped to pass and helped to craft, we will never know, and our industries will continue to lose jobs and lose their competitive edge. We are losing thousands of jobs.

Experts estimate that there is enough gas in this section alone to run 1,000 chemical plants for 40 years. That lessens the need to go drilling in ANWR. But this bill is not about ANWR. And the good news about this is, the States of Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas are all in agreement. Republicans and Democrats are in agreement. They understand the need. And this step up the Atlantic Ocean. This money generated by this bill will go to support these coastal communities and reduce the deficit.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 3 more minutes. I see my colleague from California.

Mrs. BOXER. No problem.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MS. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I appreciate that.

Instead, the House of Representatives has proposed a bill that is breathtaking in its reach, and then wonders why we cannot pass it. In the House bill, the House committee decided to open up drilling along the entire Atlantic seaboard, and they took it upon themselves to redraw state boundary lines. Very few people have seen these state boundary lines, so I decided I would go ahead and show this map so people can see it.

These lines have not been approved by the Commerce Department. They have not been approved by the Interior Department. They have not been seen by the Defense Department. And MMS does not certify these lines. There are 200 years of maritime law that went into developing the original lines that looked like this, as shown on this official Interior Department map. The lines shown on this Interior Department map are the lines that we are all governed by. The House committee decided to go into a room and redraw the lines without talking to the Governors of these States, the Senators from these States, and I am not even sure the House Members from these States ever saw these lines.

They ask me why I can't pass this bill on the floor of the Senate. What is wrong with Senator DOMENICI and Senator LANDRIEU. They can't get this bill passed. I would suggest it is going to take a few hearings, a few public meetings, a little bit of work over there before we can get something such as this passed. I will help them. I actually believe in what they want to do. I may be in the minority over here. I will help. But I do not think I can get this done this weekend. But what I can get done this weekend—what we can get done this weekend—is to open up 8 million acres filled with the natural gas and oil this country desperately needs.

A necessary signal to the marketplace that America is serious about finding more domestic reserves for oil and gas. And we can send a hopeful signal—as the Saints did when they carried that ball only 20 yards earlier this week several times; an extraordinary game—to the people of the gulf coast that we still know they are suffering, and we are going to pass a bill that helps to generate jobs in this region, saves their wetlands, builds their levees, and reduces the Federal deficit.

Our bill respects the coast of Florida, it reduces the deficit, it saves the wetlands, it builds levees, and it gives everybody in America natural gas—and there is a problem with this bill. I do not know what the problem is. We had 72 Senators who worked all year on it. I respect the House of Representatives. I understand what they want to do. But it is too broad of a reach.

The Senator from California is on the floor, and she has been very gracious, and I will only take one more minute. I did not have time to go get the model they have for the west coast, of which I have been working with the coast drilling. With all due respect to Congressman Pombo, he does not even have the support of his own Governor in his own party. And he wonders why Senator DOMENICI cannot get his bill passed? He cannot get it past his California legislature. How am I supposed to get it past the Senate?

So I am asking the House colleagues, please be reasonable. Take this a step at a time. Some people object to drilling off the coast. But it does not have to be one of them. I will help them, but we cannot get that done this weekend. And it may never happen because you have to get political support from these States.

But I will conclude with this: We have a great coalition in the gulf coast. The people of the gulf coast know how to drill for oil and gas. The technology is superb. We minimize the environmental footprint. We know where the gas is. Let us go get it. Then we can use that money to continue to help us restore our coast.

So I am pleading with my colleagues. I will work with you. I will continue to work with you. So will Senator DOMENICI. And this is what I can speak for the Senators from Florida, as well as the Senators from Mississippi, Alabama, and Texas. We will put our shoulders to the wheel to do what we can, but let us go forward.

In this debate, the Gulf Coast States came together and created a formula that is fair to all. Each coastal-producing State shares in the revenues received according to the length of their coastline, their proximity to oil and gas development—and the likely impacts from that development.

Also, the Senate formula recognizes that some of the Gulf States have provided oil and natural gas to the country for decades, receiving the brunt of the impacts, and few of the benefits. For that reason, States that have hosted the industry for the longest would have secured marginally more of the revenues by way of compensation.

The Senate bill also recognizes that the minerals of the Outer Continental Shelf are a national resource—belonging to the Nation as a whole. That is why every State receives the majority share of the revenues. The bill would go directly to the Federal Treasury; 12.5 percent would go into the Land and Water Conservation Fund—a conservation royalty that benefits all 50 States.

Arriving at a formula that was fair across the Senate from the four gulf-producing States met on a daily basis over a series of weeks.

Ultimately, the gulf coast was able to stand united: all 10 from the Gulf States voted in favor of the Senate bill. But it was not an easy feat. Agreement among neighboring States is critical—and difficult to achieve. What is at stake: billions of dollars and the Nation's energy security.

The House bill creates State boundary lines that would divide the Federal OCS into zones controlled by the closest State. Under the House proposal, States have the power to authorize or halt energy development activities within this zone. They also have claim to the lion's share of the revenues generated within this zone.

The Senate and the House take fundamentally different approaches to two key issues:

The Domenici-Landrieu bill would open 8.3 million acres in the Gulf of Mexico, an area that has continuously been one of the most productive oil and natural gas basins in North America.

Since the world's first offshore oil well was drilled near Creole, LA, in 1933, the Gulf of Mexico has provided the Nation with more than 15 billion barrels of oil and 165 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Each year, offshore production from the Gulf of Mexico offshore accounts for more than 50 percent of the Nation's oil and 4 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

If you add in the onshore production from the neighboring Gulf States, this region produces more than 1 billion barrels of oil each year. That is more than the imports from Saudi Arabia and Venezuela combined.

Conservative estimates show that the Senate bill will increase the Nation's supply of affordable, domestically produced energy by 1.3 billion barrels of oil and 5.8 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

That much crude oil will produce enough gasoline to drive 1.7 billion cars.
from DC to New York—with plenty left over to heat 1.2 million homes for more than a decade. These lines were drawn without any input from the coastal States, without input from the Minerals Management Service, the Department of the Interior, or other stewards of America’s oceans.

In fact, the Minerals Management Service had painstakingly crafted “State Administrative Boundaries” in an effort to clarify which State has the most interest in the area seaward of its coastline. The increasing number of commercial activities on the Federal OCS.

These boundary lines—which were crafted in consultation with the MMS, the National Ocean Service, the Department of State, as well as in accordance with past Federal and Supreme Court decisions—and significant public input—were disregarded in the House bill.

States that were deemed more likely to drill off their coasts seem to have been granted more territory. States that have made their opposition to OCS activity well known, seem to have had their territories trimmed down significantly.

Virginia’s gain was Maryland’s and North Carolina’s loss. Georgia’s gain was Florida’s loss.

I support increased access to the Nation’s offshore energy resources. I believe strongly that we need to make this Nation more energy independent and less reliant on foreign sources of oil.

But I am also a pragmatist and know that we cannot overturn 30 years of poor energy management policy overnight—without consulting the States, without consulting our Federal natural resource managers.

I encourage our neighbors on the east and west coasts to re-examine their failed policy on moratoria on developing energy resources from the Federal Outer Continental Shelf. But I cannot force them to do so. Instead, we need to have an open dialogue on this issue and work to improve U.S. policy in this critical area.

That much natural gas will sustain 1.000 chemical plants for 40 years—and those plants would provide jobs for about 400,000 Americans.

The potential of future drilling in the Gulf was recently underscored by a massive oil discovery miles of the coast of Louisiana.

Some analysts believe that this single find in the deepwater Gulf of Mexico could produce more than 15 billion barrels of oil. By 2020, daily production from this single prospect could total 800,000 barrels of oil per day of light, and more than 1 billion cubic feet per day of natural gas.

This discovery effectively increased the total proven oil reserves of the United States by 50 percent. The “Jack” discovery is not directly adjacent to the 181 and 181 South area, some geologists have speculated that these mineral-rich ridges could extend eastward into the 181 and 181 South area. This finding shows that the Gulf of Mexico remains one of the most promising oil and natural gas regions in North America.

It is likely that major finds such as the “Jack” prospect will spur an increase in exploration and production activity in the ultra-deep waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

It is highly likely that this discovery—and other major finds in the Gulf of Mexico—will cause bonus bids to escalate at future lease sales, and increase revenues flowing to the Federal Treasury.

In contrast to the bounty available in the Gulf of Mexico, the MMS anticipates that the total production off Virginia will be about 500 million barrels of oil and 327 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

Compare this to the resources opened by the Senate’s Domenici-Landrieu bill in the Gulf of Mexico which the MMS anticipates will total 1.3 billion barrels of oil and 5.7 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. The Virginia proposal has 4.7 million acres.

Domenici-Landrieu is adjacent to existing infrastructure—pipelines, ports, and refineries. The area off Virginia is not adjacent to industrial infrastructure.

Virgianians may want to open their shores to offshore oil and gas production—a goal that I share and support—but Virginia’s waters are quite close to the shores of North Carolina, Maryland, and Delaware.

Why is this a problem? In 1990, the State of North Carolina successfully forced several oil companies to cease all activity and relinquish their rights to drill more than 50 miles from shore, far out of sight from shore.

Similarly, California, Maine, and Florida have repeatedly proven that they can shut down production, even when it is far from their shores.

Today, the President has acquiesced to his brother’s request that new drilling be allowed within 100 miles of Florida. As a result, no new leases are allowed off Alabama—despite the fact that their oil and gas has been safely produced in that region for more than 30 years.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that excerpts of document from the Consumer Alliance for Energy Security and other relevant material be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(From Consumer Alliance for Energy Security)

VOTE ON AN OCS ENERGY BILL

WHY?

A vote for an Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) energy bill is a vote for clean, alternative energy. America must develop alternative energy sources. But it can’t happen without natural gas. Congress can make it happen by safely accessing the abundant supplies of American natural gas on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS).

Natural gas is used to make fertilizer for foods.

Natural gas is used as a substitute for diesel fuel in our buses and fleet vehicles.

Electric utilities use natural gas to generate clean power.

Natural gas is a raw material that goes into lightweight cars for fuel efficiency, wind power blades, solar panels, building insulation and other energy efficient materials.

Natural gas is used to make hydrogen fuel necessary for fuel cells.

If Congress is serious about pursuing alternative energy sources, then you get serious about safely accessing America’s own natural gas supplies. We urge you to send an OCS bill to President Bush this month. Doing so, Congress can reverse a more than 25-year ‘Just Say No’ energy policy. Congress holds the key to ending the current energy crisis in the U.S.

In the face of declining natural gas production, consumers are hungry for a solution to our energy crisis. Both H.R. 4761 and S. 3711 break new ground. Time is running out. We urge you to get the job done.

American consumers are counting on your action.

BUSINESS ROUNDTABLE,

Washington, DC, July 24, 2006.

To Members of the Senate... S. 3711 represents a crucial building block for our long-term vision of greater energy security and economic vitality. As you know, our country is blessed with abundant supplies of deep-water oil and natural gas in the Gulf of Mexico, much of which is currently off-limits to development. S. 3711, which reflects a strong bipartisan consensus, would open more than eight million acres of the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) to leasing within one year. Estimates suggest that such action would make nearly six trillion cubic feet of natural gas and 1.25 billion barrels of oil newly available for production. The availability of new supplies of natural gas, in particular, would be a boon for industrial companies who rely on natural gas as a critical raw material, and I consumers, who depend on natural gas for home heating and electricity. . . .

Sincerely,

MICHAEL G. MORRIS,
Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer, American Electric Power, Chairman, Energy Task Force, Business Roundtable,

ATLANTIC COAST GOVERNORS PLEDGE TO OPPOSE OFFSHORE DRILLING

“Energy independence is something we’re all after, but we think it makes more sense in the long run to pursue that goal through focusing on alternative forms of energy rather than fossil fuels. The State’s number one industry, and we don’t think it makes sense to undertake something that could potentially damage our coast.”—South Carolina Governor Mark Sanford (D).

“While it is clear that the United States must become more energy independent, such independence must not come at the cost of the fragile ecosystems and vital tourism economy of our coast.”—North Carolina Governor Mike Easley (D).

“Drilling in our ocean waters should be a last resort, not a first step toward achieving energy independence. Before we sanction further exploration and drilling off our shores, we need to aggressively pursue strategies to reduce our dependence on natural gas, regardless of where it is produced.”—Delaware Governor Ruth Ann Minner (D).
We urge the United States Congress not to take any action that would have the effect of undermining or undoing the legislative and administrative moratoria that have protected us from the risk of drilling for 25 years."—Connecticut Governor M. Jodi Rell (R).

"Any pollution associated with offshore drilling accidents could easily spread from one state to adjacent states that have chosen to ban exploration and production. This would expose Maine’s coastal ecosystem and economy to unacceptable levels of risk from potential drilling and associated accidents over which we would have no control."—Maine Governor John E. Baldacci (D).

"Need that, and its elected officials—at the federal, state, and local levels—have demonstrated their leadership on coastal protection, whether by enacting land use laws to preserve our shoreline, working for sustainable management of our fishery resources, protecting endangered marine and other species, or leading the fight to end ocean dumping of hundred of tons and others. We must, once again, stand united against this latest threat to our shore ecosystem."—New Jersey Governor Jon Corzine (D).

Ms. of our farm. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I wish to add 5 minutes to the time I was allocated. It would be 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I say to my colleague, Senator LANDRIEU—

Mr. President, if I could ask unanimous consent that following the Senator from Idaho—I believe right now the Senator from California is to be followed by the Senator from Idaho—I ask unanimous consent that following the Senator from Idaho, I be allowed 15 minutes, and that following me, the Senator from Massachusetts be allocated 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. BOXER. Thank you, Mr. President. I trust my 15 minutes will start at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mrs. BOXER. Thank you so much.

Mr. President, I say to my colleague Senator LANDRIEU, I think she made a very clear statement about where we stand on oil drilling in this country. And she is so right. A narrow bill passed in the Senate is going to help her State. It is going to help the country. It stays away from the hot-button issues. It stays away from the California coastline, which Republicans and Democrats in our State are united in saying that coastline is protected for our economy. It is quite different than my friend’s. We respect each other, and we understand it.

So what she is simply saying to the House is: We want to do nothing. We do not want to pass a do-nothing Congress. Let’s do something. Let’s do the bill the Senate crafted, which again, I say to the Presiding Officer, you were involved in.

Just before she left the Chamber, I wanted to say how strongly I appreciate her explanation of where we are.

AGRICULTURAL EMERGENCY

Mrs. BOXER. Well, Mr. President, we have a very narrow bill before us, the border fence bill, which we cannot broaden; and that is why I opposed closure on that bill. I do not oppose building a fence—where you need to do it, where the border is porous. I do not have a problem with that. What I have a problem with is this narrow approach to the immigration issue which precludes us from truly fixing our problems.

We are ignoring a lot of problems in this Congress, but I will tell you what is emerging as an enormous problem, and that is, the problem that farms are having all across this country because we do not want to take care of the issue of farm labor.

In California, our farm community is in serious trouble. I sit with my dairy folks, my ranchers, my farmers. We grow over 80 crops in our State. Senator FEINSTEIN was eloquent in laying out how huge an industry it is. These are folks who never come to me with fear in their eyes. They are frightened because their crops are dying on the vine and in the fields across the State of California, and from what I have heard, in other States as well.

This is tragic for us. We could lose these farmers. We could lose agriculture. And we have a chance—Senator CRAIG, Senator FEINSTEIN, and I, and others, have teamed up and said: Let’s use this opportunity to broaden our approach. Senator KENNEDY, of course, was the first to craft a comprehensive piece of legislation, which we voted out of order.

Now, I do not understand—I spoke with Senator FRIST, and he seemed to acknowledge there is a problem—why we cannot permit as part of this fence bill a very simple piece of legislation that will sunset but just says let’s make sure our agriculture community can survive, can continue.

Let me show you a photograph of one of my constituents looking at her crop of pears, which is rotting on the ground. You look at her face, and you see what this means to her.

Let me tell you what it means to the people of our Nation. We export these fruits and vegetables all throughout the Nation and, of course, throughout the world. It is going to mean higher prices, that decreased availability of products. But this Congress will not let us address this issue.

To the Republican leadership, I beg you one more time—and even some in your own party are begging you—we have to do more than one thing at a time. You have to take the problem and solve it. So this whole notion of we will take care of the fence first, and in a few years we will take care of something else—let me tell you, these farmers cannot last. They are facing economic disaster.

As I said before, this is not a Democratic or Republican issue. I can assure you that the people who have come to see me are part of the Republican base. They are perplexed. They do not understand it. They are the owners, entrepreneurs, the family farmers, the large and small, and they fight together with labor. It was intense to get the two sides together. It started in the late nineties.

I remember when Senators CRAIG and KENNEDY came with great excitement up and said that we had a solution between labor and management, everyone supports AgJobs. We went out to the floor and we have more than 60 votes for this. Yet because of the maneuvers on the floor by the Republican leadership, we cannot offer the AgJobs bill. No one can explain it to me.

Republicans are facing the charge of being a do-nothing Congress. We want to do something for our farmers. We want to help you. Let’s please take care of our farmers. Take care of this woman who is looking at her whole life disappear in front of her because she doesn’t have enough labor to pick these pears.

The United Fresh Produce Association wrote Senator FRIST a letter. It has a headline that I have never seen in a letter: Farmers to Congress: Support a Safe and Secure American Food Supply, Pass an Immigration Fix Before the Election of 2006.

These are people who don't really get that involved in politics, but they get it. They know an election is coming, and they are sending us a message to fix this. Further, they say: A safe and domestic food supply is a national priority at risk. With real labor shortages emerging, agriculture needs legislative relief now. The choice is simple: Import needed labor, or import our food.

What they are saying is, at the end of the day, we will not have a safe, secure, healthy food supply. This is not just at one time. It seems to me, that we want to lose that. With all of the talk about terrorism—and we all fear it—we want a safe food supply. We don’t want to have to depend on food coming in from other places. We want to depend on our farmers and their great history and their great legacy.

We also will lose three to four American jobs for every farm worker job. Mr. President, I will say that again. We will lose three to four American jobs for every farm worker job.

They say: Any solution must recognize agriculture’s uniqueness—perishable crops and products, rural nature, significant seasonality, and natural uniqueness—perishable crops and products, rural nature, significant seasonality, and natural

Building a fence is not going to help our people. I am not against it; I voted for it. It is not a problem to me to build a fence. But don’t come out here and say: Aren’t we great and doing something; we are building a fence and everything is fine. That is hogwash.

We must pass an AgJOBS bill, and we can do it today. Our farmers and our ranchers are begging us to do it. They need a solution. Our farm economy in some areas is becoming paralyzed. I showed you Toni Skully. They were unable to harvest 35 percent of their crop. This is what is happening all over California. I have been told it is also happening to my lemon growers in San Diego. They are experiencing a 15- to 20-percent harvest loss. Avocado farmers in Ventura County are worried about workers for the December planting season. Tree fruit growers in Fresno County have seen the labor force decrease by as much as 50 percent. In Sonoma, as many as 17,000 seasonal farm workers have not returned to work in the fields.

Again, I don’t have a problem with the fence. We need to build it where we have a porous border. But that doesn’t help our people.

Agriculture is a $239 billion-a-year industry, and if we refuse to provide a solution to labor shortages now, we are jeopardizing our domestic economy and our foreign export market. We are driving up production costs that get passed on to consumers. Our consumers are already having trouble with healthcare costs. We don’t have costs, with college tuition—oh, and now they are going to have problems putting food on the table.

This is not the time to turn away from our farmers. All of this is happening for absolutely no reason. There is no problem in allowing us to proceed with this amendment to offer AgJOBS.

I have been on the AgJOBS bill, probably since 2000, 2001, and we continue to have strong support for it. But, again, because this Republican Congress can, apparently, only do one thing at a time, when it comes to immigration, we are precluded from offering this amendment.

Mr. President, my farmers are proud, as are yours. My ranchers and my dairy families are proud. They don’t ask for much. But when they came to meet with me—and they have come several times—and I saw the look on their faces.

I said: What is it?

They finally said: You have to act.

I said: The fence bill is coming up.

They said: Maybe that is a chance to do it.

I said: The fence bill is coming up. Senator Frist just said—it is coming up. Senator Frist and Kennedy are going to do it together. All they need is for us to do it.

Mr. President, my farmers are proud, and they should come to Congress. If they cannot afford college, and the housing market is precarious, why would we not come together and take care of this important constituency?

In closing, a headline from last Friday’s New York Times reads:

Pickers Are Few, and Growers Blame Congress

And they should blame Congress. Pretty soon it will be consumers blaming Congress, and they should. So let’s get our act together. Let’s get it done. Thank you very much.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington is recognized.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, under the unanimous consent, the Senator from Idaho is next, but he is not on the Senate floor. I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed next in line.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

APPROPRIATIONS

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I rise this afternoon as we go into the last hours of this session, before we are apparently going to adjourn for an entire 5 or 6 weeks, until after the election, to join with my leader on the Appropriations Committee, Senator Byrd, who spoke earlier today, and explain how the Republicans’ failure to act on the annual funding bills is going to hurt all of our communities.

As Senators, we have a job to do in passing the annual spending bills that fund essentially all of our Government. It is one of the most basic responsibilities we have. On the Appropriations Committee, under the leadership of Chairwoman Cochran and Ranking Member Byrd, we have done our job. But on the Senate floor, the Senate Republican leadership has blocked our proposals.

American families are going to pay the price. When I go home and talk to constituents in my State of Washington, they tell me they want our country to be strong again. The way they see it, we can be strong again by investing in America.

American families are going to pay the price. The President, when he went to Europe, he told our European friends that the United States was going to be strong again. American families are going to pay the price. When I get home, they are going to say to me: Where is that $239 billion-a-year industry?”

the Republican leadership is hiding the true cost of their policies. Just as they have used supplemental spending bills to hide the true cost of the war, they are failing to act on the annual spending bills to hide the cost of their misplaced priorities. They prefer to mask the tough funding choices their policies will require.

They prefer to deny almost three-quarters of this Senate the opportunity to have any input on the appropriations bills by sending these bills direct from committee to a conference. They prefer to set up an end-of-the-year train wreck that will require a massive Omnibus appropriations bill that will shortchange America’s needs with a minimum amount of debate.

I personally thank Senator BYRD for taking the time this morning to call this issue to the attention of the entire Senate, as well as to the entire Nation. I thank our committee chairman, Senator COCHRAN himself. I only wish Senator COCHRAN was in power to control the floor schedule and not just the committee schedule.

Last year, Senator COCHRAN surprised all of us and earned the respect of all of us in doing what seemed impossible: he succeeded in sending 11 appropriations bills to the White House for signature. He showed us how it should be done.

This year, when it came to the management of our committee, Senator COCHRAN actually improved on last year’s record. Last year, the Appropriations Committee reported all but one appropriations bill to the Senate floor before the August recess. That involved a lot of very hard work and some very long markups. No one worked harder than Chairman COCHRAN himself.

Unfortunately, this year, the Senate Republican leadership didn’t share Chairman COCHRAN’s commitment. That is a change from last year. Last year, the Senate Republican leadership saw to it that all 12 appropriations bills were considered on the floor prior to adjournment. Today, we are just a few hours away from the beginning of a very long fall recess, and yet the Senate Republican leadership has sent us to call up only 2 of our 12 appropriations bills that the committee reported back in June and July. That record is shameful.

The Senate has only debated two funding bills this year—Defense and Homeland Security. They are certainly important, but they are just 2 of the 12 bills that we are charged with passing.

The others are critically important as well. Those bills ensure that the care of our veterans returning home from Iraq is met. They ensure that we educate our children, that we meet the housing needs of the people we represent, and that we deal with the health care of all of our families, particularly our seniors. Those bills support our efforts to fight crime and drug abuse, provide disaster assistance to struggling family farmers, and invest in our roads, our bridges, and our rail system.

It seems, as far as the Republican leadership is concerned, that those issues this year can rot on the vine. According to their plan, these functions of Government will be subjected to a continuing resolution that guarantees them only the lowest possible funding level.

I have had the privilege of serving on the Appropriations Committee for every one of my 14 years in the Senate, and I am certainly aware that Congress does not have a great track record when it comes to finishing all the appropriations work before the beginning of a fiscal year. But in my 14 years, I have seen the Appropriations Committee—Chairman COCHRAN has made so little progress in executing its most basic responsibilities. The new fiscal year starts this coming Saturday, tomorrow. I had my staff go back and check the record, and I can tell my colleagues that in the last 14 years, we have never begun a new fiscal year having passed as few as two of the appropriations bills out of the Senate. This year, we have a deplorable record.

Looking forward, we are now hearing rumors that the other 10 appropriations bills are never going to come to the Senate floor for debate. We are hearing rumors they are going to be sent straight to a conference with the House of Representatives to put together some kind of massive Omnibus appropriations bill. I hope that is not the case. That approach, frankly, is an insult to the 72 Members of this Senate who do not serve on the Appropriations Committee. As a member of that committee, it is an opportunity to review each of those bills the committee reported. I had an opportunity to offer amendments in committee and full committee markups, but 72 of my Senate colleagues never had that opportunity.

Those 72 Senators were elected by the people of their State to oversee and influence decisions regarding the way their tax dollars are spent. By denying these 72 Senators the opportunity to debate these important bills, the Senate Republican leadership is denying to those Senators’ constituents the right to be heard. That is not the way this Senate ought to be doing its business. Our country will pay a high price if we fail to act on these appropriations bills.

Some people are claiming it doesn’t matter when we get around to actually finalizing the appropriations process. Mr. President, as the ranking member on the Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation, Treasury, the Judiciary, and HUD, I want to tell my colleagues that it does matter. I will give a couple of examples.

Last month, we experienced a tragic plane crash in Lexington, KY. The NTSB has not yet reported to us on the actual cause of that crash, but it was revealed that the air traffic control tower at Lexington had only one controller on duty—contrary to the FAA’s own policy. When this incident occurred, it was discovered that several other towers were also operating with only one air traffic controller.

Everyone involved in aviation policy knows the FAA needs to hire more controllers. They have to fill the vacancies, and they have to replace a growing number of retirees. There is money in the FAA budget to hire more controllers. We put the money in the House and Senate appropriations bills to hire those controllers. But until the FAA Administrator gets a final budget, she won’t know how many controllers she can hire or how quickly she can hire them. This is a real issue of safety and people’s lives. But it is the safety issue that the Senate Republican leadership is now happy to have wait on the back burner for a few more months.

A similar situation existed in the hiring of more air traffic safety inspectors. We desperately need more safety inspectors to ensure that our financially strapped airlines are operating safely. An increasing amount of airline maintenance for U.S.-flagged airlines is now being conducted overseas. We need inspectors to visit those foreign repair stations to make sure all of the appropriate procedures are being followed.

Just this week, the National Academy of Sciences reported that the FAA needs to modernize its system for determining how many inspectors they need and whom to hire. But the FAA can’t address this basic issue of safety until it gets its final budget for the year. This is just another safety issue that the Senate Republican leadership is now happy to have wait on the back burner for a few more months.

The Republican leadership’s failure to act could also hurt our efforts to fight terrorism. The Treasury Department has a critical role in combating terrorist financing. They are on the job morning, noon, and night trying to interrupt the cashflow between the terrorists and those who fund them.

Ever since 9/11, the Treasury Department has been seeking increased resources from our subcommittee for the fight against terrorist financing. Our subcommittee has provided every dollar the Treasury Department has requested, including the funding for increased personnel and infrastructure for fiscal year 2007.

The Treasury Department is now being told that the increased funding they had asked for will have to wait a few more months. Why? Because the Senate Republican leadership doesn’t want us to debate the Transportation-Treasury bill before the election.

One of the issues being discussed in the closing days of this session is the security of our courts and our judges. An effort is being made to provide authorization for additional court security in the Department of Defense authorization bill. The brutal murder of a father and mother of a Federal judge in Chicago showed us the urgent need for better security.

The 'Transportation-Treasury appropriations bill, as passed by the House and Senate committees, included sizable increases for that court security. We are not talking about an authorization; we are talking about cold, hard cash that will go out to better protect our judges. But you know what. That money can’t go out until our appropriations bill is signed into law, and that can’t happen if the Senate Republican leadership slows this appropriations process to a crawl.

Finally, I want to talk about the critical need for improved safety on our highways. One month ago, our Nation received a wake-up call from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

For many years, our country was making steady progress in reducing the overall fatality rate. But last month, the fatality rate on our highways started to move back up. Deaths from motor vehicle crashes jumped up 1.4 percent over the level in 2004. We had 43,443 deaths on America’s highways in 2005. That is the highest number since 1990.

We also have begun to see a number of road fatalities involving large trucks head back up. We made progress between 1998 and 2002, but since that time, the number of large truck fatalities is moving in the wrong direction.

More and more people are dying on our highways, and Congress is working to respond. There are increased levels of funding, consistent with the SAFETEA-LU authorization law—both for highway safety and motor carrier safety in both the House and Senate appropriations bills. But those additional resources that save lives on our highways have to wait. Why? Because the Senate Republican leadership didn’t want to debate this Transportation appropriations bill before this election.

These decisions by the Senate Republican leadership to stall the appropriations process can and are having very real consequences.

I want to state today my deep disappointment that the Senate Republican leadership has done such an abysmal job in fulfilling its most basic responsibility to fund our Government.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator’s time has expired.

Mrs. MURRAY. I ask for 1 additional minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, it doesn’t have to be this way. Rather than spending the months of July and September debating bills for political reasons, we could have been debating these appropriations bills that are critically needed for the Nation’s safety and security. We could have been fighting for the people we represent. We could have been meeting their basic needs, protecting their livelihoods, and ensuring their safety. But our leadership said no, and now our families are paying the price of government failure.

I think the Senate deserves better, but more importantly, the people we represent deserve better.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho.

EXTENSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the period for the transaction of morning business be extended until 3:30 p.m. today, with time equally divided in the usual form, and the order of speakers remain in place.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AGJOBS

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I will be brief because I have already spoken on the issue with Senator FEINSTEIN of California earlier before the noon hour. I did want to come back and conclude my concerns.

My original cosponsor, Senator KENNEDY, is in the Chamber. He and I worked collectively on the issue of a guest worker program for this country that would create a legality, a transparency, and a reasonableness to the management of it in a reformed H-2A worker program that he and I worked on and shaped and which became known as AgJOBS, along with how we dealt with the issue of those in the country today who are illegal and who remain in the country, who remain part of the American workforce, and especially with agriculture, an industry that has become increasingly dependent upon migrant workers, guest workers and, in this instance, tragically enough, illegal workers.

Let me cite a couple of examples because I, like Senator FEINSTEIN and others, Senator BOXER; the State of California, the State of Idaho, the State of Oregon, the State of Washington; in fact, the State of the Nation where agriculture exists today—the President, Senator MARTINEZ, has just gone through a situation in the State of Florida where literally millions and millions of dollars’ worth of oranges have rotted simply because they couldn’t find the hands to pick them to put them through the process of packing and distribution.

America’s agriculture is dependent on hand labor. When we think of agriculture in the Midwest, we think of large machines doing all the work. It is simply not true. In the fruits and vegetables and nuts, many of the varieties of fruits we find abundant upon the supermarket shelves of America, we are dependent on hand labor, and that hand labor over the last many decades has become predominantly foreign labor and, tragically enough, it has become illegal foreign labor. But because of a failure of government—and it is important I say this: It is not American agriculture’s fault. It is a failure of government to adequately and necessarily police our borders and devise and cause to work a reasonable, flexible, transparent guest worker program that brings us to the crisis American agriculture is beginning to experience, we speak.

The Senator from California spoke earlier of the literally billions of dollars’ worth of crops that are going to be left in the fields of the greater San Joaquin Valley of California this year because there is no one to pick them.

I am always frustrated when it happens in my State that some of my citizens say: LARRY, we have all these people on welfare. Get them out and get them to work. Well, we reformed the welfare program dramatically, and literally millions of people who were once on welfare are working. We are at full employment in our country today. That means those who can and will are working. In my State of Idaho, we are working beyond full. Finally, finally, after fairly heavy criticism for what I was doing to lead an area of immigration reform that was critical to my State, and much of that criticism came from my State, now the agriculture industry is beginning to step up and say: My goodness, where are these workers we have grown to depend on?

We believe we are 18 to 20 percent underemployed in the State of Idaho. That means our packing sheds this fall and some of our produce, our fruits, and our vegetables have not and will not get harvested. Our potato industry is beginning to feel the impact of fewer people there to help them, and as a result, their timely packing simply will not occur. So whether it is Idaho or California or Florida or anywhere else in the Nation, American agriculture exists. Whether it is with the nursery industry or the landscaping industry, they too are now experiencing the great difficulty of this country doing what it should have done a long time ago; that is, control its borders.

The shortages today are a result of our failure to secure our borders, beginning to close. We have made a commitment to the American people that we will secure that border. Part of the debate which will occur this afternoon when we get back on the fence bill will be that kind of debate: how can we further secure our borders. But if you only secure your borders and you do not create a legal and transparent program by which foreign nationals can enter our country to enter our workforce legally, then we will create an economic schizophrenia in the country that the question, real. It is showing up in agriculture today because agriculture has historically been a threshold economy for a foreign worker. They come here, they work in agriculture for a couple years, they move out, and they move on to the service industry, the construction industry, the homebuilding industry.

In that, with our borders now tightening and the nearly $2 billion a year we are spending on that security and that increasing security, they have moved out of agriculture and there is no one to move in. Also, the displacement occurred after Katrina when many of that level of worker left the fields of agriculture and went south into Mississippi and Louisiana to help with the cleanup down there. In fact, many Mississippian and Louisianans will tell you that if it hadn’t been for migrant workers and, in this instance, illegal workers, we wouldn’t be as far along with the cleanup and the beginning of the rehabilitation of what has gone on in the tragic area affected by Katrina.

Mr. President, when we proceed to the fence bill, I am going to attempt to bring up AgJOBS. I am going to ask unanimous consent that the Senate allow us to do that. I don’t know that it will happen. It probably won’t. But I think it is important that for American agriculture to see we are trying. Because one of the quotes I handed in earlier when I asked unanimous consent for some material to go into the Record, along with the letter Senator Feinstein and I sent out to our colleagues, was, I thought, a necessary and appropriate headline from an article that talks about the impact of what is going on across agricultural America. It says: ‘Pickers are Few, and Growers Blame Congress.’ And the growers ought to blame Congress. They ought to blame a government that has been dysfunctional in the area of immigration for decades.

That is why I began to work on this issue back in 1999 when American agriculture came to me and said: Senator, we have a problem, and we know it is a problem. We don’t like it. We want to be legal. We want our workers to be legal, and we want to treat them justly. But they themselves want to get here, are being treated unjustly. We know they are not legal, and yet we are nearly wholly dependent upon them.

I had hopes that we could keep the cart and the horse connected appropriately. There is now a very real disconnect occurring—a disconnect between the security of the border, which is critical and necessary, and a legal process by which those workers can move through that secured border to the farms and fields of American agriculture. I don’t know what it is going to end up like at the end of the harvest season across America, but my guess is—and it is now being predicted—we could lose $3 billion or $4 billion or $6 billion in value to the land, and of course there is the multiplier then beyond the farm gate to the processing, to the distribution, and to the supermarket. We all know what happens when it gets to the supermarket and there is less of it: the American consumer is going to pay double the price for that produce that simply was left in the fields to rot.

Now, that is what is going on now. When we went to November, we will have accurate figures—this Congress isn’t going to deal with it—and we will know whether it was $3 billion or $4 billion or $5 billion or $6 billion, and shame on us, because the Senator from California and I dealt with it today. The bill has been well heard. The bill has been appropriately vetted. It has been around a long time. It has been accepted by 60 Members of this body. But we are now politically bound until after the American people speak in the election, and then we will find out how much further we can move on this issue.

So we will know in November about the harvest of September and October. What about the next months? What about the farmer who is now going to go out into the field in January to plant for a February or March fresh vegetable crop across Florida, parts of the South, certainly Arizona, the Imperial Valley. What about the year we left over $1 billion of fresh green vegetables in the field? I will tell my colleagues what the farmers are telling me, and it is a tragedy if it happens, but it probably is going to happen. Senator, they say, if we can’t plant that fresh vegetable crop that requires hand labor, we will plant winter grain. We will simply go to the fields and plant a crop of phenomenally less value to the American agricultural market, in the intensive sense, because we know it isn’t going to require hand labor. One farmer told me: If I can’t have the labor come to me, I will go where the labor is. So he is moving his operations, say, from California. He is headed to Brazil. He is headed to Argentina. There goes that economy, there goes those jobs, because this Congress could not understand and function in an appropriate fashion.

So be it. That is the tragedy of it. I had hoped we could think differently. We need a legal workforce. We need a reformed H-2A program. We need a guest worker program. We worked out those differences amongst ourselves. Some have agreed, some have not agreed, but we have attempted to resolve the problem.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator’s time has expired.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, in closing, I am going to give the Senate one more opportunity to say no because it is important that the Record show where we are because history and this month will dictate where we need to go in November.

I yield the floor. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

BIOTERRORISM

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, a short while ago on the floor of the U.S. Senate, my friends and colleagues on the Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee, our chairman, Senator ENZI, and Senator BURR brought to the Senate’s attention what we call the bioterrorism BARDA legislation. It demonstrates very clearly a problem that we are facing with the underlying bill, which is called the Secure Fence Act of 2006. Rather than focusing on comprehensive legislation to deal with the immigration ordeal with the AgJOBS bill, as the Senator has mentioned, which would be valuable and very important in terms of the agriculture industry and also providing important protections for the workers therein. I believe that was worked out over a period of years—we are effectively saying no, we are not going to deal with that. We are just not going to deal with it. The leadership has decided they won’t have an opportunity to deal with it, even though there are 60 Members. Republicans and Democrats alike, who would like to deal with it.

I join comments that have been made by the Senator from Idaho, but also by my friend Senator Boxer, Senator Feinstein, and others. We are going to have the time here this afternoon. As Senators pointed out, this is legislation which is understood and which is very important. One cannot pick up the newspapers without reading the adverse results of our failing to act. This is something we should be addressing as an amendment—I think it is much more valuable than the underlying legislation, but we certainly should have had the opportunity as an amendment.

On the Secure Fence Act, immigration reform is one of the most pressing issues we face today. It is a security issue, an economic issue, and a moral issue. President Bush told us that it was a top domestic priority. Many in the Senate understood the importance of the issue and devoted an unprecedented number of weeks to hearings, markups and extensive floor debate to this priority. In May, the Senate passed a historic bipartisan bill supported by 64 Senators. The House however passed a very different bill last December one that has been roundly condemned as cruel and ineffective by religious leaders, Latino leaders, and immigration and security experts. It focuses only on enforcement and makes it a felony for any Good Samaritan to help immigrants. As one religious leader described it this week, you could go to jail for giving an undocumented immigrant a cup of water in Jesus’ name.

What’s more, the bill does nothing about the 12 million undocumented immigrants who are here already, and it does nothing about the Nation’s future immigration needs both vital ingredients to an effective immigration policy.

Common sense tells us that enforcement alone is not the solution to today’s complex immigration challenges. We can build fences, but people will come around them. We can put high tech devices on our borders and they will deter some people, but we all know that many others will still find a way to come. We can make criminals of the pastors and priests who help immigrants, but that is not only contrary to our values, it will have little impact on immigration.

The logical next step would have been for Congress to appoint conference so we could begin negotiating a compromise. That is what we do—pass a Senate bill and pass a House bill. Then conferees are appointed from both Houses to reconcile their differences on the bill. That is what Congress does on critical issues.

But, instead of rolling up their sleeves and doing the work necessary to get legislation to the President’s desk that deals with the key elements of the immigration problem—that will bolster national security, ensure economic prosperity; and protect families—the Republican leadership in the House flitted away the summer, preferring to embark on a political road show—featuring 60 cynical one-sided hearings, and wasting millions of precious taxpayer dollars. And after the bunting came down and the klieg lights were removed, after all the political hoopla and hot rhetoric, what did they produce? A fence.

Did they do anything about the millions who come here on airplanes with visas, and stay here illegally after their visas expire? No. Just a fence.

Did they do anything to ensure that employers don’t hire people who are here illegally? No. Just a fence.

Did they do anything about the 12 million undocumented immigrants who are here already, living in the shadows while working hard to support their families? No. Just a fence.

Yes, Secretary Chertoff wasted time, opportunity, and your money. For a $9 billion fence that won’t do the job. That is just a bumper sticker solution for a complex problem. It’s a feel good plan that will have little effect in the real world.

We all know what this is about. It may be good politics, but it’s bad immigration policy.

That is not what Americans want. They deserve something better than a fence.

Over and over and over again, the American people have told us that they want our immigration system fixed, and fixed now. They have told us that this complex problem requires a comprehensive solution. The American people want tough but fair laws that will strengthen our borders and crack down on employers who hire undocumented workers, but at the same time provide a practical solution that will allow undocumented immigrants to become taxpaying members of our society who perform tasks needed by our economy.

Today or tomorrow, this Republican Congress will rerace for the elections, and leave this issue still unresolved.

I hope that we can use the next few weeks, productively to work together on compromises that can be adopted when we return in November.

What is the solution? How do we control our borders effectively? How do we restore the rule of law and make sure that immigrants come to this country with a visa, not with a smuggler?

The bipartisan bill passed by the Senate is the only practical way to cure what ails us. The only way we can truly bring illegal immigration under control and achieve border security is to combine enforcement and border protection with a realistic framework for legal immigration.

It is obvious that we have insufficient legal avenues for immigrant workers and families to come to this country, and no path to citizenship for the 12 million undocumented workers and families already here. The problem is fueling a black market of smugglers and facilitating the involvement of the peril of citizens and immigrants alike.

Rather than saber-rattling, chest-thumping, and ranting, the American people would like to see both parties and both Houses of Congress come together to negotiate a realistic and enforceable policy for immigration.

Piecemeal proposals won’t work. They will only make a bad situation worse. Those who are here illegally will not leave, but will go deeper underground and those who want to take even more dangerous routes and be less likely to survive. Employers will have an unstable workforce of men and women who are afraid to speak up when abused. The dysfunctions and pathologies of the current failed system will continue to worsen.

On this specific proposal for a fence, let’s consider the facts:

Never mind that months ago the Senate voted to approve a 730-mile fence exactly what Secretary Chertoff said he needed for targeted urban areas.

Never mind that the Senate has voted to fund the fence Secretary Chertoff requested. It is in the appropriations bill for the Department of Homeland Security that we will pass this afternoon.

Never mind that DHS has not requested additional fencing. Last week, in promoting his “Secure Border Initiative”, Secretary Chertoff said, “We are looking at building a virtual fence, a 21st century virtual fence—one that does not involve old-fashioned fencing.”

Never mind that fencing is manpower-intensive—you need border patrol agents to continuously monitor them to apprehend illegal crossers. But this bill will require DHS to construct up to 850 miles of fencing in remote, desolate areas, in desert and wilderness areas, and even across rivers—where it will serve no security purpose whatsoever.

Never mind that it will cost billions of dollars. The Congressional Budget Office estimate the cost at roughly $3 million a mile, which may be on the low end—the first 11 miles of the San Diego fence cost $3.8 million a mile and the final 3.5 miles section cost approximately $9 million a mile.

As the Congressional Research Service recently noted, the costs may be even higher. You need to take into account the terrain, land acquisition, environmental planning, private contractors, double layering, fence design, procurement costs and a number of other factors. We also can’t forget the annual Maintenance costs, which could be as high as $1 billion a year.

Never mind that fences don’t work. Undocumented immigrant entries have increased tenfold since the strategy of fencing was introduced in the mid-1990s. Since that time, the probability of apprehending an unauthorized immigrant border crosser fell from 20 percent to 5 percent. The United States now spends $1700 per border apprehension, up from $300 in 1992. San Diego’s wall has been a boon for the smuggling industry, and incinerated the cost of immigrant lives by shifting entry to the desert.

Never mind that fencing will do nothing to stop the 40–50 percent of the people currently in the United States who entered the country with legal visas and have now overstayed their visas.

Never mind that fences won’t keep out criminals or terrorists. The 9/11 terrorists didn’t come across the Mexican border illegally—they entered the U.S. with visas.

Never mind that fences won’t stop immigrants from coming here to work. As Governor Napolitano of Arizona recently said:

“You show me a 50-foot wall and I’ll show you a 51-foot ladder at the border to get over it.”

Narrow, shortsighted, enforcement-only proposals like a fence will never fix our broken immigration system.

We should listen to Tom Ridge, former Secretary of Homeland Security, who recently said:

“Trying to gain operational control of the border is impossible unless our enhanced enforcement efforts are coupled with a robust Temporary Guest Worker program and a means to entice those now working illegally out of the shadows into some type of legal status.

A group of former high-ranking government officials has said unequivocally:

“The reality is that stronger enforcement and a more sensible approach to the 10–12 million illegal aliens in the country today are inextricably interrelated. One cannot succeed without the other.”

President Bush agreed. In May, he got it right when he declared:

“An immigration reform bill needs to be comprehensive because all elements of this problem must be addressed together, or none of them will be solved at all.”

What the Republican leadership doesn’t seem to get, is that comprehensive immigration reform is all about security: Homeland security; economic security; family security.

That is what the vast majority of our people want. They want realistic solutions that effectively protect our Nation. They don’t want piecemeal, feel-good measures that will waste billions of precious taxpayer dollars and do nothing to correct the serious problems.

What can we expect in the next month?

The Republican leadership has two choices. They can bring us together to work out effective compromises for a comprehensive bill.

Or they can continue to use hard working immigrants as political pawns for November’s elections. I hope that they will not choose the politically expedient choice—to embark on another slanderous campaign, featuring more political stunts, misleading statements, and campaign ads about how tough they are on the border.

The Chicago Tribune editorial page understands this tactic. Earlier this week they wrote that “Immigrant bashing is much easier than immigration reform.”

Sacriﬁcing good immigration policy for political expediency and hateful rhetoric is not just shameful—it is cowardly.

We have the bill to solve this problem now.

We owe the American people a serious answer on the issue, and our Republican leadership should be held accountable for their inaction and their inability to address this pressing issue facing our Nation.

Let’s stop this farce. Let’s stop playing politics with immigration. We know they are wrong. Their scheme will leave us weaker and less secure. We can’t allow them to derail our strong bipartisan reforms.

I urge my colleagues to choose good policy over political expedience and oppose this bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record a document that reﬂects the 50 organizations that are in opposition to this particular proposal. They include the LUCAC, MALDEF, La Raza, a great number of the religious organizations and others that have expressed their views about it.

Mr. President, I further ask unanimous consent to have printed a document that includes a number of editorials in the newspapers, editorials about the fence from the Atlanta Journal Constitution, Idaho Statesman, LA Times, and Orlando Sentinel. Then the Tucson Citizen, the Waco Tribune—a number of editorials from around the country.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DEAR SENATOR: The Senate will soon consider H.R. 6061, the “Secure Fence Act of 2006,” which has erroneously been referred to as the “fence bill.” This bill goes far beyond the construction of border barriers. It provides unprecedented authorities to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) “to take all actions necessary and appropriate to prevent all unlawful entries into the U.S.”

The consequences of such an immense and vague mandate printed in the RECORD could result in policies and procedures that would adversely affect American communities at the Northern and Southern borders, and in the interior of the country. The mandatory deﬁnition of “border” might be deﬁned. United States citizens and lawful permanent residents would not be immune to the consequences of the extraordinary powers granted to DHS. We must remember that the border is not simply a line on a map; communities live along the border and their rights must be respected. Moreover, DHS must be held accountable for actions taken in these communities.

Finally, we question the wisdom of delegating such sweeping powers to a single government agency. Numerous GAO and CRS reports to Congress cite accountability and management problems at DHS, showing that this unprecedented congressional and legal oversight as other agencies of the government.

H.R. 6061 is a broad bill with potentially harmful consequences for American communities. We strongly urge the Senate to oppose H.R. 6061.

Signed by over 50 organizations.

EDITORIALS WARN: NO HIDING BEHIND WALLS AND FENCES VOTERS WANT LEADERS WITH SPINE, NOT SPOKESMEN

Atlanta Journal Constitution (Editorial): ‘Big fence’ blunder: Immigration bill won’t root out illegals, but it’ll fail voters. Put focus on jobs and legalization, as well as security. September 29, 2006

The only immigration proposal that stands a reasonable chance of clearing Congress this year is a sham aimed at deceiving voters in November.

The “big fence” bill—its centerpiece is 700 miles of real and virtual fences—is a law-enforcement-only approach that ignores the economic underpinnings that have led 12 million to 14 million illegal to live and work in this country illegally. The bill won’t fix anything.

Frist believes there is a chance for a lame-duck session that might pass some of the Senate’s ideas for more comprehensive reform. But his position, and that of the chamber he leads, have been irreparably harmed by using along with the Congress’ insistence that immigration is more about security than it is economics.

Tucson Citizen (Editorial): Our Opinion: Latest chapter in silly saga of border wall—A wall on the U.S.-Mexico border is meant to secure only one thing: the re-election of Members of Congress, September 28, 2006

The congressional pre-election ploy of pushing construction of a border fence to make voters believe something is being done about immigration reform is a farce.

“It’s not going to deter people from coming to this country looking for work,” said T.J. Bonner, president of the union that represents most Border Patrol agents.

Time, effort and money should instead be spent on something that will work—a comprehensive immigration reform plan that includes a guest worker program and a way to deal with the estimated 12 million people already in the country illegally.

Legislation passed by the Senate earlier this year deals with those issues. It’s the work to deal with this is what the Dallas Morning News (Editorial): Memo of Understanding Bush needs commitment on immigration, September 28, 2006

Before President Bush agrees to the border security measures Congress is rushing to put on his desk, he should make sure of one thing—that House and Senate leaders are committed to taking up the other critical parts of the immigration solution after the November elections.

Without that agreement, which can be struck in private if that’s the only way conservatives Republicans will sign it, Americans won’t get a better answer to what to do about the 12 million illegal immigrants living here and 400,000 coming annually.

Otherwise, Congress will build all of the fences in the world and place agent on top of agent, and still not stop illegal immigration.
The president is right: America can’t solve its immigration challenge without a comprehensive answer. He’s not going to get it unless he plays hardball.

Senate and House Republican leaders might as well forget about immigration legislation before adjourning for the November election. The Secure homeland is important, but illegal immigration doesn’t constitute an imminent national threat. The issue deserves dispassionate consideration that’s absent in this election season.

Chicago Tribune: Border bashing, September 27, 2006

Many of the bits and pieces are already included in the bill, but these need to be balanced by measures that address the country’s dependence on immigrant labor. Take that $2 billion border fence. Arizona Gov. Janet Napolitano has no confidence it would stop immigrants from crossing into her state illegally in search of jobs. “Show me a 50-foot wall, and I’ll show you a 51-foot ladder,” she has said.

The Senate’s comprehensive plan is rooted in reality. It would open channels through which people could arrive legally, and it would offer a way for many of the 12 million who are already here to stay.

The House is having none of that, at least until after the election. Immigration legislation is so much easier than immigration reform.

Orlando Sentinel: Barrier to success Our position: Building a fence along the Mexican border is not the answer to immigration reform, September 27, 2006

With the Senate considering a proposal to build a 700-mile fence along the southern border, the symbolism is obvious. Our leaders are playing to the passions instilled in Congress regarding serious immigration reform. The enforcement-only concept echoes the sentiments of the House, which passed a similar bill earlier this month. Bipartisan support is a good thing when addressing viable solutions. This isn’t one of them.

Several members of the Senate, including Mel Martinez of Florida, have concerns about the cost of fencing and mandating locations without consulting state and local governments. A fence along the border would give Congress the chance to address serious immigration reform because the House will not be motivated to move from its position. Meanwhile, the dicey issue of how to effectively get a handhold on immigration doesn’t even come with the spending commitment needed to back it up.

Santa Cruz (CA) Sentinel: As We See It: Getting tough not enough on immigration, September 25, 2006

After doing almost nothing, and as session’s end looms before an all-out sprint to Election Day, solons want to have “something to show” prospective voters. So they’re throwing up a wall—or at least the Secure Fence Act. They hope voters think it’s proof they’re doing something. It’s not. As mural art goes, this bill’s a white-wash, a smear, legal wallpaper. A leaky, look-nice wall just won’t substitute for real, hard work. To Congress: Cut the vague talk of “filling in the blanks” once you return. There are real gaps in the wall. If you don’t really address immigration, voters should brick you up and wall you out of Washington.

Republican leaders want you to think they are hard at work overhauling the broken immigration system in the last days before going home. But don’t be fooled by the noise and dust. These are piecemeal rehashes of legislation the House passed last December. . . . Once again it’s up to the Senate to resist the temptation to legislate by a piecemeal process. The Senate’s comprehensive plan is rooted in reality. It would open channels through which people could arrive legally, and it would offer a way for many of the 12 million who are already here to stay.

The Senate should vote down the fence bill, which it is expected to take up this week, and similar short-sighted House bills. If Congress doesn’t have the backbone to address the real issues and honestly negotiate the differences between a narrow House bill that addresses border security and a comprehensive Senate bill that also provides an avenue to citizenship for some of the illegal immigrants who are already here.

If Congress fails to pass meaningful and realistic immigration reform this session, voters should hold lawmakers accountable for their embarrassing performance. Voters should not be swayed by tough talk that doesn’t even come with the spending commitments needed to back it up.

Yet, as Congress gets ready to adjourn for the year—and return home for the November election—the centerpiece of immigration reform that arrived in the House will have no motivation to follow up with real reform. What appears to be Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist’s plan as he presses for a vote just weeks before a contentious election. He wants the Senate to vote on items common to the House’s enforcement-only approach and the broader Senate version. But that would leave out a critical element for meaningful immigration reform.

Judiciary Committee Chairman Arlen Specter is right to resist Frist’s approach and insist on a common-ground compromise. The Pennsylvania Republican has been a wise voice for a holistic approach to the dilemma that is immigration reform. The other senators who voted for the broader bill should hold lawmakers accountable for their embarrassing performance. Voters should not be swayed by tough talk that doesn’t even come with the spending commitments needed to back it up.

If Congress fails to pass meaningful and realistic immigration reform this session, voters should hold lawmakers accountable for their embarrassing performance. Voters should not be swayed by tough talk that doesn’t even come with the spending commitments needed to back it up.

Beware of members of Congress offering simplistic solutions to complex problems days before leaving town and just weeks before an election. That’s what’s happening on illegal immigration.

While a fence on certain stretches of border might be part of an overall security plan, to suggest that it solves any significant portion of illegal immigration may be wishful thinking. Fenced areas are often utilized by criminals and illegal immigrants. U.S. Rep. Marty Meehan was exactly right when he said the Secure Fence Act does nothing to protect our borders; instead it delays long-overdue, comprehensive immigration reform.

Regrettably, House Republicans this summer blocked a broader immigration overhaul spearheaded by U.S. Sens. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., and John McCain, R-Ariz. Their plan holds out the promise of fixing a broken system while bringing honor to the American people for trying to help those seeking a better quality of life. President Bush has said he would sign the House-backed bills as “an interim step.” And Senate majority leader Bill Frist has called the fence bill a “first step.” This is a tactical error. If enforcement-only bills pass now, the House will have no motivation to follow up with real reform. The Senate should vote down the fence bill, which is expected to take up this week, and similar short-sighted House bills.

President Bush, must start over on meaningful immigration reform in 2007. The real answer is to provide people who want to work a way to get to America, even to start jobs that need workers. Providing for such immigrants is an American value that should be a campaign issue.

San Diego Union-Tribune: Running scared GOP leadership seasaws voters' verdicts, September 25, 2006

Predictably, lawmakers are focused like lasers on getting over that hurdle and either keeping it or taking it. That's not what they should be concerned about. The public is furious and frustrated with the folks they hired to represent them. And, it seems to us, public opinion needs to be responsive to that and make it a point to do things differently from here. Not because it would spare them one fate or another in six weeks, but because the demands of leadership require it.

Above all, they should learn the real lesson in all this—that it's better to roll up your sleeves and do something and try to make it work than to do nothing and hope no one notices. Because someone always does.

Miami Herald: Wanted: effective, comprehensive reforms, Senate ponders Punitive Bills, Political Games, September 24, 2006

The resurgence of these measures only confirms that the bipartisan push for comprehensive reforms, led by the Senate, is dead this year. What's left is a misguided move by Republican House leaders trying to maintain their majority. Their goal: to gain political capital in November elections by passing punitive immigration laws. Yet both parties risk a voter backlash by not addressing the central immigration issue: that the U.S. economy creates more jobs than natives can fill. When Americans see unpicked crops rotting (as has happened with Florida oranges, California pears and Idaho potatoes), restaurants' stacked-up dirty dishes and unmanned construction sites, they should hold Congress accountable. These objectionable bills will make matters worse:

L.A. Daily News: Indefence-ible: Fixing immigration problems requires a lot more than a fence, September 24, 2006

While it's too late for comprehensive immigration reform before the midterm elections, a fence can't be the last word on immigration reform. U.S. lawmakers must not be allowed to let this issue fade because of its political difficulty.

Of course, the safety and security of Americans means that we must have some sort of control over the borders, and have a reasonable knowledge of who is in the country. But we also need a sane system of bringing workers to the United States for agriculture and other jobs traditionally held by immigrants, as well as a way to bring the illegal immigrants here out of the shadows.

The (Nashville) Tennessean: fence sign of failure on immigration issue, September 24, 2006

With no practical use, the fence will be a consternation of Congress' failure on immigration reform. And so this nation's lie will continue: As politicians vow to take measures to prevent illegal immigration, U.S. businesses and farms will keep hiring needed workers.

Senators seem to believe that a fence is better than no immigration legislation at all. But if we pass this bill, they give away all their leverage to the lawmakers—and there are plenty of them—who only want the fence because it allows them to brag about being tough on immigration without energizing the businesses that benefit from the dysfunctional system.

The other bill is called the Secure Fence Act; a better name would be the Whitewater Bill.

Palm Beach Post: A fence, but no solution, September 24, 2006

Arizona Gov. Janet Napolitano understands better than anyone in Washington the limits of fences. "You show me a 50-foot wall," she said, "and I'll show you a 51-foot ladder at the border." Last week, Boeing won a $67 million government contract to supplement the metal fence with a high-tech "virtual fence," sensors and unmanned planes. Eventually, someone is sure to invent the 51st-foot virtual ladder.

Voters won't buy any promises of an honest debate on comprehensive immigration reform until Congress reconvenes after the election, which is the time line House Republicans want for themselves.

Washington Post: Immigration Un完整性 without objection from the president, September 22, 2006

The cyclical immigration endgame of the 109th Congress isn't particularly surprising. But after a session in which the Senate actually managed to produce a bipartisan, comprehensive measure to overhaul the existing system, the latest, enforcement-only developments are nonetheless disappointing and dangerous...

Yesterday, the House passed another batch of immigration measures, the worst of which would deputize state and local law enforcement officers to enforce federal immigration laws. The measure would permit, but not require, federal agents to arrest and detain illegal immigrants for even civil violations of federal immigration law. This would undermine the ability of law enforcement officers to control violent crime. As New York Mayor Michael R. Bloomberg told the Senate Judiciary Committee in July, "Do we really want people who have committed violent crimes—and potential terrorists—to be afraid to go to the police?"

The 700-mile fence that the Republicans plan to build on the Mexican border at a cost of billions has a place on the immigration to-do list. But now they appear on their way to converting "enforcement first" reform into a policy of enforcement only. Some of their ideas are just plain awful.

True immigration reform—as President Bush proposed—would offer more opportunities for legal entry, even as the government gets tough with those who trespass. That means creating guest worker programs and granting visas already in the country the opportunity to come out of the shadows, pay a fine and eventually earn citizenship. Only by relieving the pressure for more legal immigration can we ever hope to regain control of our borders.

If Congress fails to revisit immigration after Election Day, we'll be stuck with the illusion of reform. Millions of hardworking immigrants will be treated as criminals rather than as future citizens. And millions more will join them, fence or no fence.

Arizona Republic: House funbles reforms, September 22, 2006

But lawmakers get no prize for resurrecting—piecemeal—some of the elements of the enforcement-only House passed late last year. That bill sparked national protests in the spring.

If House leadership believed that approach was the solution, the House should have joined in conference this summer to resolve differences with the Senate's comprehensive immigration reform bill. That's how Congress handles things.

Instead, the House rejected the hard and politically risky work of negotiation, and held a series of lopsided presentations around the country. In Arizona, the so-called hearings were highly staged, excluded real debate and relegated the public to the status of observers.

Now we get a flurry of enforcement-only bills that let House members crow about doing "something." It is the wrong "something.

Wall Street Journal: The Great Wall of America, Review & Outlook, September 21, 2006

The only real way to reduce the flow of illegal Mexican immigration is to provide a legal and orderly procedure for American jobs with workers who want to fill them. Mr. Bush is for that, and so is the Senate, but House Republicans have concluded instead there are plenty of them—who only want the bill, and make it a point to do things differently from here. Not because it would spare them one fate or another in six weeks, but because the demands of leadership require it.

Los Angeles Times: Year Down This Wall Bill, A 700-mile fence without comprehensive reform does nothing to address the root causes of illegal immigration, September 21, 2006

A wall is fine, but not by itself. Addressing border security alone won't fulfill the economy's need for a legal supply of labor, and it will leave millions of illegal immigrants already here hidden in the ground. And fence or no fence, the 45% of illegal immigrants who overstayed visas instead of returning across the border would continue to do so.

If the Senate passes piecemeal enforcement measures, it will erode its ability to negotiate a more comprehensive approach with House leaders who myopically insist on treating immigration solely as a law enforcement issue.

San Antonio Express-News: Fence along border or half a solution, September 20, 2006

But until the House is willing to work out its impasse with the Senate—and the White House—over a comprehensive immigration overhaul, any suggestion that a fence alone will stop the bleeding is merely wishful election-year thinking.

Real immigration security means separating the harmful from the hard-working. It means imposing the rule of law on the ad hoc immigrant economy. It means freeing up resources so that our enforcement agencies can restore order at the border and in the workplace. It means holding employers, not just workers, responsible for obeying the law. And it means tapping the energy of vast numbers of immigrants who dream of becoming citizens and who can make the country stronger.

These are huge issues, and the anti-immigrant forces have nothing to contribute. They are out of ideas, except about getting re-elected. Their calculated inaction and half-measures mocks the support for comprehensive reform, which has been repeatedly confirmed in opinion polls.

Tucson Citizen: Our Opinion: No remedy for im mi gration woes this year, September 19, 2006

Indeed, if U.S. representatives believe a 700-mile fence will shut down immigration along our 2,000-mile border, we have a swell bridge we'd like to sell them.

At least $2.2 billion—enough to add 2,500 Border Patrol agents for five years, or to increase salaries and training times U.S. spending on economic development in Mexico over the next five years.

The push for a fence is political, not pro ductive.

We urge House members to forget about appealing to voters and focus on a realistic, effective and comprehensive approach to reform our illegal immigration policy. Nothing will improve until they do.

The (Springfield, MA) Republican: With eye on elections, House votes on fence, September 19, 2006

There has been much nonsensical talk around the matter of illegal immigration. And now there's been an extraordinarily nonsensical nonstatement with all that blather.

Waco (TX) Tribune: Border fence more stunt than solution, September 18, 2006

On a vote of 283-138, the House passed a Republican-written bill authorizing the construction of 700 miles of fence along the 2,000-mile border with Mexico.

That's it. Shell out more than a billion tax dollars to build a partial fence along the U.S.-Mexico border. This legislation doesn't come within shouting distance of meaningful.

Voters should consider the unfunded partial-fence bill passed last week by the House as little more than an election-year stunt.

San Francisco Chronicle: Border fences—and fantasies, September 17, 2006

So when House Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-III., said informing a hush-shush “Republicans believe we can have a no-penetration border” and that “if we build a fence, they will no longer come illegally,” he was operating in the realm of politics, not reality.

What's needed is a far more sophisticated response to the immigration problem. A fence is likely to exacerbate the problem rather than resolve it.

Orlando Sentinel: Stall game, September 17, 2006

It's time the House and Senate tear down the partisan fencing that keeps America divided.

The fence strikes us as pre-election pandering so that lawmakers can go home to their districts and say they're cracking down on illegal immigration. But a wall won't cut it, if history is any guide.

East Valley Tribune (Scottsdale/Mesa, AZ): A border policies review welcome, but fence is not, September 17, 2006

The fence, a project that will cost $10 billion, is unlikely to do much. It's about as effective as a pithy campaign slogan. Easier to say “I voted in favor of a fence along the border. Twice.”

Inland Valley Daily Bulletin (Ontario, CA): Border policies review welcome, but fence is not, September 17, 2006

It's time the House and Senate tear down the partisan fencing that keeps America divided, and find a solution to a problem that is theirs—and theirs alone—to fix.

The fence policies review welcome, but fence is not, September 17, 2006

Voters should consider the unfunded partial-fence bill passed last week by the House as little more than an election-year stunt.

This nation needs immigration reform and secure borders, but it needs a law that makes sense. Building a new fence doesn't make sense, and will only line the pockets of fencing contractors, while having little or no effect on the flow of illegal immigrants.

The Tennesseean: Why no immigration bill?, September 12, 2006

Leaders from both parties vowed that 2006 would be the year for immigration reform. Yet by their inaction, members of Congress have made 2006 only as the year for immigration rhetoric.

The House and Senate have passed vastly different versions of immigration reform. Leaders now say the differences are too great to be reconciled.

That's not true. Both bills include serious provisions about border security. Those provisions create a common ground for Congress to reach compromise on other elements, including a guest worker program.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, could I ask for 2 minutes?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE ESTIMATE—IRAQ

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, to bring to the attention of the Senate, during the consideration of the Dodd appropriations, I offered an amendment which imposed restrictions limiting the use of NIEs in national security matters.

We have not had an NIE—National Intelligence Estimate—just for Iraq. The one that has been printed in the newspapers, or the reports in the newspapers have been an NIE about global terrorism, of which Iraq was a part, but we have not had an NIE on Iraq in the last 2½ years. This was accepted in the conference report.

Yesterday I sent a letter to Mr. Negroponte, with Senator ROCKEFLELLER, Senator LEVIN, Senator BURTON, Senator REED, and Senator REED, urging him to move forward. It outlines the areas to be covered in the assessment. I had that letter printed in the Record.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, we have four unanimous consent requests that I think have been cleared. I also want to reserve time for Senator LEAHY and Senator CORNYN, who have the unanimous consent request, to say whatever they wish to say.

WRIGHT AMENDMENT REFORM ACT OF 2006

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of Calendar No. 563, S. 3661.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The amendment as follows:

A bill (S. 3661) to amend section 29 of the International Air Transportation Competition Act of 1979 relating to air transportation to and from Love Field, Texas, which has been reported from the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, with an amendment to strike all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

SECTION 1. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds the following:

1. The Dallas-Fort Worth region is served by two large airports, Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and Love Field. American Airlines and Southwest Airlines each have their headquarters, respectively, at these two airports.

2. Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport ranks with national traffic and is 10th in total passengers and 16th in total enplanements in 2005. Love Field ranks fifty-sixth and had nearly 3 million enplanements in 2005.

3. The history of the development and creation of the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and the subsequent use of Love Field has been one of continuous disagreement, frequent litigation, and constant uncertainty within the local communities. As a result of these factors, this has been the only time that Congress has intervened, with the consent of the local communities, to promulgate specific rules relating to the scope of a locally owned airport.

4. In 1979, Congress intervened and passed legislation known as the Wright Amendment which limited the availability of commercial service from the airport to points within the State of Texas and States contiguous to Texas. Congress has since allowed service to the additional States of Alabama, Kansas, Mississippi, and Missouri.

5. The history is the basis for compelling consensus of the civic parties to resolve the dispute on a permanent basis, assure the end of litigation, and establish long-term stability.

6. In 1983, Congress intervened and passed legislation known as the Wright Amendment which limited the availability of commercial service from the airport to points within the State of Texas and States contiguous to Texas. Congress has since allowed service to the additional States of Alabama, Kansas, Mississippi, and Missouri.

7. The Congress finds the following:
two communities forced each carrier to respond, individually, to a host of options, which ultimately were included, as part of the agreement dated July 11, 2006.

(10) Chasing the agreement dated July 11, 2006, is intended to eliminate the jurisdiction of the U.S. Department of Transportation, the Federal Aviation Administration and the Transportation Department with respect to the aviation safety and security responsibilities of those agencies.

SEC. 2. MODIFICATION OF PROVISIONS REGARDING FLIGHTS TO AND FROM LOVE FIELD, TEXAS.

THE CALENDAR

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to an immediate en bloc consideration of the following bills: Calendar No. 393 to 400, 403 to 410, 420, 533, and 584.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, the Senate will proceed en bloc.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. I do not intend to object in the final analysis on this, but I think the American public needs to hear how this bill got here and the associated processes with it. I want to share my concerns over it. It will take me a few minutes to do that, but I think it is important that we do this.

Before I lift my objection to the authorization in this bill, I think it is important to know that this obligates the American people for $1.5 billion. The majority leader originally sought consent for this package in May and again in July. After carefully reviewing the package, considering the objections I took in January of 2005, I could not give that consent.

I immediately sat down with the chairman of the Energy Committee. I outlined in detail my concerns with him. And I am committed to bringing my objections in writing, as I did so.

I ask unanimous consent that the letter be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

United States Senate.

Hon. Pete DOMENICI,
Committee on Energy and Natural Resources U.S. Senate.

DEAR CHAIRMAN DOMENICI: I want to thank you for agreeing to meet with me late last week. As follow-up to our conversation and per my commitment to you, I am providing a more thorough review of the concerns that prompted me to place a hold on the companion package.

First and foremost, as we discussed during our meeting, I want to underscore my concern that the package gives very little consideration to the future impact on spending and the growing deficit. With rare exception, each bill in the package creates or expands' authorized spending levels, without any consideration for finding similarly authorized programs that have failed to meet Congressional intent or which have outlived their usefulness. In other words, in creating these authorizations—eventual recommendations for appropriations—we have given little or no thought to finding offsets or attempted to prioritize federal spending.

For example, S. 1913, "the Indiana Dunes Visitors Center" would authorize the National Park Service to lease space and construct a gift shop and theater at an estimated cost of $1.2 million. H.R. 318, "the Castle Nugent Farms study" would spend an estimated $40 million. I am very concerned about authorizing new spending on parks and associated buildings when our nation already is more than $8 trillion in debt and when we already have millions of acres of federal lands that we are already unable to maintain properly.

I specifically question why there has been no attempt to offset the new authorizations, or in any way review the priorities of agency spending. The Department of the Interior—where each of these new programs will be administered—is wasting our money on ineffective spending, and provides ample opportunity for this Congress to prioritize its spending. Consider the following: In addition to the above examples that it owns, the Department of the Interior and related land management agencies have spent over $1.1 billion on land acquisition since 2002, and an estimated $13 million last year alone. Additionally, the Administration estimates that the agency carries over $1.5 billion in unobligated balances. Surely, given the opportunity, we can find a way to prioritize spending in these agencies, and to ensure that these new authorizations do not add to the already crushing debt that our children will inherit.

Furthermore, I am concerned that many of the bills lack sufficient justification for federal involvement. For example, S. 1346 "the Michigan Lighthouse and Maritime Heritage Act" would authorize $500,000 for the Department of the Interior "to study and report on Michigan maritime heritage resource preservation and education, including societal economic and tourism benefits of preservation of these resources . . .". The tourism industry in Michigan already generates an estimated $6 billion in sales, and while I do not question the importance of these local preservation and promotion efforts, I fail to see a federal responsibility.

Finally, I am concerned that a bill (S 1970) that I offered to amend the Trail of Tears Historic Trail Act, was modified from its original version. In the bill that I introduced, I prohibited any new federal appropriations for the update of the trail study. First, the bulk of the study has already been completed by researchers, and simply needs updating. Second, I felt it was important that any expenditures for the trail come from existing trail funding, and not burden other NPS resources. In amending my bill, the committee undermined a basic condition of my support for the bill and opened up the possibility for new spending—something I determined to be the fear that underlies the opposition of the bill. I am prepared to drop my objections to the hotlined package if the committee is willing to consider other measures to offset the proposed new authorizations. In briefly reviewing offsetting measures within the Department of the Interior, I have identified several billion dollars in potential offsets. I am included everywhere below:

The President has proposed the elimination or reduction of several programs within the Department of the Interior. "Total savings are projected to be $260,000,000. http://www.whitehouse.gov/omb/budget/fy2007/pdf/savings.pdf. These savings will pay for all but one of the bills contained in the hotlined package."

The Department of the Interior spent $238.7 million on conferences and travel in FY 2004, up $12 million from FY 2000; Reducing these expenditures by 10% will entirely pay for 9 of the bills included in this package.

The Department of the Interior has over $4.5 billion in unobligated funds already appropriated by Congress. We can pay for the entire authorization package simply by requiring that all future appropriations be paid for from the agency's unobligated balances. These suggestions are by no means exhaustive, and I am certainly open to other alternative offsets. We can and we should find a way to prioritize spending in these areas, and I look forward to working with you to accomplish this goal.

Again, I want to thank you for taking the time to meet with me to hear my concerns, and for this opportunity to work with you to preserve and protect the great heritage of sacrifice that was given to us by our forefathers.

Sincerely,

Tom A. Coburn
U.S. Senator

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I will repeat today what I said in person and in writing. It authorizes $1.5 billion spending with not one offset and zero consideration for prioritization of how we spend money in this country.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, what is the regular order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is a unanimous-consent request pending before the Senate. Is there objection?

Mr. CONRAD. Is the Senator required to register an objection or not?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. CONRAD. Is the Senator required to register an objection or not?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. CONRAD. I will not object to that.

Mrs. Hutchison. Mr. President, I respectfully ask the Senator from Oklahoma if I could do the other two pending unanimous-consent requests and then allow the Senator from Oklahoma to speak for 15 minutes; and then, after that allow either Senator Cornyn or Senator Leahy, or both, along with myself, to speak on the previously agreed to bill for up to 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. CONRAD. I object to that, unless we can have a more comprehensive agreement. I was told that a number of us concerned about drought could come to the floor at 11:30 this morning. Then we were told 1:30. Now it is 1:45. It is fine with me if we can reach an agreement that extends to those of us who are from states suffering from a natural disaster. I understand that Senator Cornyn and Senator Leahy and myself be allowed to have 15 minutes following that to discuss legislation previously passed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mrs. Hutchison. Mr. President, I amend my unanimous-consent request to put Senator Dorgan following the Republicans.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. Dorgan. Mr. President, I reserve the right to object. I understand the recognition is Senator Conrad and then a Republican slot at which point I would be recognized.

Mrs. Hutchison. That is correct.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I think it is totally important here to have time specified for these names because that is the only way we can have an understanding here. I will object unless we have time associated with the names.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mrs. Hutchison. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.
The Senator from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous-consent that the two agreed-to energy en bloc requests be granted first; following that, Senator CORNYN for 15 minutes, Senator CHAMBLISS for 30 minutes, Senator CONRAD for up to 30 minutes, a Republican slot for 10 minutes, and Senator DORGAN for 20 minutes. I need to also have time reserved for Senator LEAHY, Senator CORNYN, and myself following that order for up to 30 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, reserving the right to object—and I shall not object—I believe the Senator from Texas is discussing time for a few minutes Senator CORNYN and I intend to do which will take about 5 to 10 minutes. When would we have our colloquy?

Mrs. HUTCHISON. It would be approximately an hour and half before that would occur unless there would be a unanimous consent agreement that the colloquy could be moved up.

Mr. LEAHY. I don’t want to interfere with others who are on the floor already—unanimous requests. I wonder if there would be a difficulty if Senator CORNYN and I did our colloquy. I can assure the Senate that I will keep my time to 2 minutes. I do not know how much time the Senator from Texas would want.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I amend my unanimous consent to allow us to do the two energy en banc requests that have been agreed to by both sides; Senator CORNYN and Senator LEAHY. Section 10

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I would like to enter into a colloquy with Senators DOMENICI, BOXER, and FEINSTEIN concerning a provision in H.R. 233, the Northern California Coastal Wilderness Act. Although I strongly supported the Senate companion measure, S. 128, which passed the Senate last year, I am concerned with some of the changes made by bill as passed by the House of Representatives. Of particular concern is section 10, dealing with commercial fishing permits in Redwood National and State Parks in California. The section directs the Secretary of the Interior to issue permits for authorized vehicle access for commercial fishing services at designated beaches within both the National and State Parks. The section provides that the number of permits... shall be limited to the number of valid permits that are held on the date of enactment of this Act, and that the permits ‘so issued shall be perpetual and subject to the same conditions as the permits held on the date of enactment of this Act.’

I understand from the National Park Service and the bill sponsors that presently 15 permits are issued for commercial surf fishing within the park. I was concerned that the language stating that the permits shall be perpetual might be construed as creating a right vesting in the permit holder, which would be contrary to the way permits are issued throughout the National Park System. However, I understand that the intent of this language is simply to ensure that the National Park Service not reduce the number of permits issued below the current level of valid permits, assuming there is sufficient demand for the remaining permits. Furthermore, I understand that there is no intent on the part of the bill sponsors to create any new right with respect to these permits.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I thank my colleagues for helping to clarify this issue. I ask unanimous consent that a letter from Congressman THOMPSON, the sponsor of H.R. 233, be printed in the RECORD. His letter indicates his agreement with the common understanding of the purpose and intent of section 10, I will support passage of the bill.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Hon. JEFF BINGAMAN,
Ranking Member, Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee,
Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.
Hon. DIANNE FEINSTEIN,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.
Hon. BARBARA BOXER,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR RANKING MEMBER BINGAMAN, SENATOR FEINSTEIN AND SENATOR BOXER:
I would like to take this opportunity to clarify my intent on a provision in H.R. 233, the Northern California Coastal Wild Heritage Wilderness Act.

Section 10, which deals with commercial fishing permits in National and State Parks in California, directs the Secretary of the Interior to issue permits for authorized vehicle access for commercial surf fishing at designated beaches within both the National and State Parks. The section provides that the number of permits shall be limited to the number of valid permits that are held on the date of enactment of this Act, and that the permits ‘so issued shall be perpetual and subject to the same conditions as the permits held on the date of enactment of this Act.’

I want to clarify that this language should not be construed as creating a right vesting in the permit holder, which would be contrary to the way permits are issued throughout the National Park System. The intent of this language is simply to ensure that the National Park Service not reduce the number of permits issued below the current level of valid permits.

Mr. BINGAMAN. I thank my colleague, Senator DOMENICI, for all of their great work on these bills. However, there is no intent for the requirements of Section 10 to be construed as an implied waiver of applicable laws, including the National Park Service Organic Act and the Endangered Species Act, but rather a directive to the Park Service to discontinue its plan to complete the review required under Section 10 of the Interim to issue permits for authorized vehicle access for commercial surf fishing at designated beaches within both the National and State Parks. The section provides that the number of permits shall be limited to the number of valid permits that are held on the date of enactment of this Act, and that the permits ‘so issued shall be perpetual and subject to the same conditions as the permits held on the date of enactment of this Act.’

I want to clarify that this language should not be construed as creating a right vesting in the permit holder, which would be contrary to the way permits are issued throughout the National Park System. The intent of this language is simply to ensure that the National Park Service not reduce the number of permits issued below the current level of valid permits.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a letter from Congressman THOMPSON, the sponsor of H.R. 233, be printed in the RECORD. His letter indicates his agreement with the common understanding of the purpose and intent of section 10, I will support passage of the bill.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

HON. DIANNE FEINSTEIN,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR RANKING MEMBER BINGAMAN,

I would like to take this opportunity to clarify my intent on a provision in H.R. 233, the Northern California Coastal Wild Heritage Wilderness Act.

Section 10, which deals with commercial fishing permits in National and State Parks in California, directs the Secretary of the Interior to issue permits for authorized vehicle access for commercial surf fishing at designated beaches within both the National and State Parks. The section provides that the number of permits shall be limited to the number of valid permits that are held on the date of enactment of this Act, and that the permits ‘so issued shall be perpetual and subject to the same conditions as the permits held on the date of enactment of this Act.’

I want to clarify that this language should not be construed as creating a right vesting in the permit holder, which would be contrary to the way permits are issued throughout the National Park System. The intent of this language is simply to ensure that the National Park Service not reduce the number of permits issued below the current level of valid permits.

Without your tireless support, we would not have gotten to this point.

Anyone who has ever visited California or been fortunate enough to live there is keenly aware of the State’s natural beauty, and more than most States, California’s wild beauty is an essential part of its identity. California’s natural beauty and way of life has enticed millions to come and live there but that very enticement is now threatened by exponential growth—35,900,000 people live in my State, according to the 2004 U.S. Census. That number is growing by leaps and bounds daily.

That is why so many Californians have come together to support this bill and protect some of the last great natural places in the State.

Thousands of average citizens and over 200 local businesses, outdoor groups, and other interests support the bill these include Harwood Industries, the Adventures Edge Mountain Bike Store, and K.B. Homes, the largest homebuilder in California.

There have been 23 supportive votes or resolutions from city councils, county boards of supervisors, tribal councils, and other boards since 2001.

Our Governor, Arnold Schwarzenegger, supports it, as do 40 former or current local elected officials of both parties in Lake, Mendocino, Napa, and Humboldt Counties.

When one considers what we are trying to preserve, it is easy to see why Congressman Thompson and I have such broad support for our legislation. I would like to share a few examples.

First and foremost is the spectacular King Range, the wildest portion of California’s coast—it boasts the longest stretch of undeveloped coastline in the lower 48 States. Next, I would like to share Cache Creek it is home to the second largest wintering bald eagle population in California and a herd of rare Tule elk, which is the world’s smallest elk. Cache Creek is popular with white water rafters for its rapids and scenery.

Next, the Middle Fork Eel River, which hosts 30 to 50 percent of the State’s summer-run steelhead trout population, an endangered species, and critical to California’s fishermen and tribes. It also has spectacular ancient forests of oak pine and fir. Our bill provides improved protections for this pristine area.

These are just three of the dozens of examples I could show you today. Californians want to protect the sanctity of these lands, and our bill does just that.
Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment at the desk be agreed to, the bills, as amended, if amended, be read a third time and passed, and the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 5113) was agreed to, as follows:

(Purpose: To clarify that additional funds are authorized to be appropriated to carry out the feasibility and suitability study)

On page 3, strike lines 1 through 3 and insert the following:

“(iv) The related campgrounds located along the routes and land components described in clauses (i) through (iii).

(3) No additional funds are authorized to be appropriated to carry out subparagraph (C). The Secretary may accept donations for the Trail from private, nonprofit, or tribal organizations.”.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time. The bill (H.R. 3085), as amended, was read the third time, and passed.

The bill (H.R. 4841) was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time and passed.

OJITO WILDERNESS ACT AMENDMENT

NATIONAL TRAILS SYSTEM ACT AMENDMENT

Before I conclude, there are some people I need to thank. First, I again thank Senator FEINSTEIN, my partner in the Senate on this bill. Her work on the Energy and Natural Resources Committee was invaluable, and John Watts of her staff helped greatly. Congressman TUBBS and his staff tirelessly championed this bill in the House, and Jonathan Birdsong, his legislative director, put in countless hours of work to accomplish this.

I also thank Senators BINGAMAN and DOMENICI of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee. They, along with Senators CRAIG and WYDEN, have proceeded to consider the bills en bloc.

God has given Americans an exceptionally beautiful treasure in its wild landscape, and my State is blessed with some of its best.

We must be good stewards of that gift and share it with future generations that is what Theodore Roosevelt, John Muir, John Wesley Powell, Ansel Adams, and other great Americans did, and we have places like Yosemite and Yellowstone to cherish because of their actions.

Mr. President, because the Congress passed this bill today, future generations will be thanking us for preserving places like the King Range and other parts of the stunning, wild, and unspoiled northern California coast.

We must be good stewards of that treasure. And my State is blessed with some of its best.

We must be good stewards of that gift and share it with future generations that is what Theodore Roosevelt, John Muir, John Wesley Powell, Ansel Adams, and other great Americans did, and we have places like Yosemite and Yellowstone to cherish because of their actions.

TITLe III—NATIONaL HERITaGE AREA STUDIES

Subtitle A—Western Reserve Heritage Area Study

SEC. 301. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the “Western Reserve Heritage Areas Study Act”.

SEC. 302. NATIONAL PARK SERVICE STUDY REGARDING THE WESTERN RESERVE, OHIO.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds the following:

(1) The area that encompasses the modern-day counties of Trumbull, Mahoning, Ashtabula, Portage, Geauga, Lake, Cuyahoga, Summit, Me county, Lorain, Erie, Ottawa, and Ashland in Ohio with the rich history in what was once the Western Reserve, has made a unique contribution to the cultural, political, and industrial development of the United States.

(2) The Western Reserve is distinctive as the land settled by the people of Connecticut after... the Revolutionary War. The Western Reserve holds a unique mark as the original wilderness land of the West that many settlers migrated to in order to begin life outside of the original 13 colonies.

(3) The Western Reserve played a significant role in providing land to the people of Connecticut and land was distributed during the Revolution. These settlers were descendants of the brave immigrants who came to the Americas in the 17th century.

(4) The Reserve offered a new destination for those who moved west in search of land and prosperity. The agricultural and industrial base that began in the Western Reserve still lives strong in these prosperous and historical counties.

(5) The heritage of the Western Reserve remains consistent with the counties of Cuyahoga, Summit, Medina, Huron, Lorain, Erie, Ottawa, and Ashland in Ohio. The people of these counties are proud of their heritage as shown through the unwavering attempts to preserve agricultural land and the industrial foundation that has been embedded in this region since the establishment of the Western Reserve. Throughout these counties, historical sites, and markers preserve the unique traditions and customs of its original heritage.

(6) The counties that encompass the Western Reserve continue to maintain a strong connection to its historic past as seen through its preservation of its local heritage, including historic homes, buildings, and centers of public gatherings.

(7) There is a need for assistance for the preservation and promotion of the significance of the Western Reserve as the natural, historic, and cultural heritage of the counties of Cuyahoga, Mahoning, Ashtabula, Portage, Geauga, Lake, Cuyahoga, Summit, Medina, Huron, Lorain, Erie, Ottawa, and Ashland in Ohio.

(8) The Department of the Interior is responsible for protecting the Nation’s cultural and historic resources. There are significant examples of such resources within these counties and what was once the Western Reserve to merit the involvement of the Federal Government in the development of programs and projects, in cooperation with the State of Ohio and other local governmental entities, to adequately conserve, protect, and interpret this heritage for future generations, while providing opportunities for education and revitalization.

(b) Study.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, acting through the National Park Service Rivers, Trails, and Conservation Assistance Program, Midwest Region, and in consultation with the State of Ohio and local governments of Cuyahoga, Mahoning, Ashtabula, Portage, Geauga, Lake, Cuyahoga, Summit, Medina, Huron, Lorain, Erie, Ottawa, and Ashland, and other appropriate organizations, shall carry out a study outlining the roles for all participants, including the Federal Government, in cooperation with the State of Ohio and other local governmental entities, to adequately conserve, protect, and interpret this heritage for future generations, while providing opportunities for education and revitalization.

(2) The Secretary shall include analysis and documentation regarding the suitability and feasibility of establishing the Western Reserve Heritage Area in these counties in Ohio.

(3) EXISTING SITES.—The study shall include analysis and documentation regarding whether the Study Area—

(A) has an assemblage of natural, historic, and cultural resources that together represent distinctive aspects of American heritage worthy of recognition, conservation, interpretation, and continuing use; and are best managed through partnerships among public and private entities; and by combining diverse and sometimes non-contiguous resources and active communities;

(B) reflects traditions, customs, beliefs, and folklife that are a valuable part of the national story;

(C) provides outstanding opportunities to conserve natural, historic, cultural, or scenic features;

(D) provides outstanding recreational and educational opportunities;

(E) contains resources important to the identified theme or themes of the study area that retain a degree of integrity capable of supporting interpretation; and

(F) contains resources important to the identified theme or themes of the study area that retain a degree of integrity capable of supporting interpretation.

(4) The Secretary shall submit to the Committee on Resources of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Natural Resources of the Senate a report on the findings, conclusions, and recommendations of the study.

(c) PRIVATE PROPERTY.—In conducting the study required by this section, the Secretary of the Interior shall analyze the potential impact that designation of the area as a national heritage area may have on the proposed area or bordering the proposed area that is privately owned at the time that the study is conducted.

Mr. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate consider the Senate amendment and the motion to reconsider be placed upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Thank you, Mr. President.
I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.
Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Vermont for being here so we can discuss briefly a bill that has just by unanimous consent been passed.

The reason we are here is to help clarify some concerns which I know he has with the legislation. I appreciate his willingness to work with Senator HUTCHISON and myself in expediting this passage.

The legislation will ultimately repeal the Wright amendment, a law designed to reflect the compromise with respects to flights coming into and out of Love Field in Dallas, TX and, therefore, operating just a few miles down the road from Dallas-Ft. Worth Airport but which has proved a hindrance to competition among airlines; and has resulted in increased fares to those who travel through DFW Airport.

The legislation before us recognizes that the city of Dallas is the entity responsible for operating Love Field, and will reduce the gates there to 20 and will allocate those gates with existing commitments and obligations, including commitments to accommodate potential new entrants.

I yield to the Senator from Vermont.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I appreciate what the Senator from Texas has said, I appreciate the colloquy as the days we spent trying to work through this issue. He and I talked about this before the break in August. I knew working with him we would work out a solution. I believe we have. It is a complicated solution for competition law and obviously important for Texas.

I yield to the Senator from Vermont.

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I appreciate what the Senator from Texas has said, I appreciate the colloquy as the days we spent trying to work through this issue. He and I talked about this before the break in August. I knew working with him we would work out a solution. I believe we have. It is a complicated solution for competition law and obviously important for Texas.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is responsible for ensuring competition— and thereby protecting consumers—through enactment and enforcement of antitrust laws. I support repeal of the Wright amendment, but the bill originally introduced by Senator HUTCHISON went well beyond a simple repeal. It would have explicitly insulated from competition review private agreements among competitors. Such insulation is inappropriate, unprecedented, and it is bad for consumers.

I am sensitive to the hard work that the cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, and the airport authority there, have put in to craft a solution to the complicated web of problems created by the Wright amendment. It is more than unfortunate that Congress permitted such a clearly anticompetitive situation to exist in the first place, and it is certainly our obligation to try to rectify that problem. Doing so in a way that preserves the anticompetitive issues—and the resulting harm to consumers—would only be to repeat the errors of the past.

I appreciate the changes we have been able to agree to, stripping the explicit antitrust exemption from the bill, and speaking only to the obligations of the city of Dallas, rather than blessing the agreement among the cities, the airport authority, and airlines. I am opposed, however, because while Congress is no longer explicitly deeming the contract in compliance with competition laws, an implicit protection from those important guardians of consumer welfare may remain.

The parties to the contract, both public and private, all assure me that the contract is not anticompetitive, and that the statute should not be read to create an exemption. I would prefer to be more precise in the statutory language, but I trust that they are correct. Senator CORNYN and I share a concern about providing antitrust immunity to agreements involving private parties. While I would prefer greater clarity on this point in the bill, I am pleased that Senator CORNYN and I agree that this is an entirely unique situation, which should not be repeated. I understand that in the view of the Senators from Texas, this unique situation is not anticompetitive and is elegant solution. I disagree and would have preferred a solution that more clearly preserves the antitrust laws. I have worked hard both with the affected parties and Senator CORNYN, to craft such a solution. The similar respect Senator CORNYN and I have for preserving competition laws has made our conversations productive and moved the legislative process forward. While my concerns remain about this legislation, I am prepared to accept it. We have come a long way from where this process started with an explicit antitrust exemption.

I expect that in the future, legislation that may have anticompetitive effects, will be referred to, and vetted by, the Senate Judiciary Committee so that concerns over competition can be handled in regular order and addressed early.

Mr. CORNYN. I know the Senior Senator from Vermont has genuine concerns about the legislation. And while I do not take a position about the creation of an antitrust exemption, implicit or otherwise, share his view that this is a unique situation. I join him in saying that the situation is not perfect. We do not agree on many issues, but on some important ones—including intellectual property legislation—we share a commitment to promoting free market principles—and the goal of any arrangement such as this should be to maximize those principles.

The legislation contemplated here should not be a model for any future arrangement. In no way can I imagine a situation arising with a set of facts remotely similar to that created in Dallas-Fort Worth airport— the Wright amendment. It is entirely unique and is precisely the reason for this legislation—legislation that moves the ball forward considerably with respect to increasing competition in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

In addition, the proposed legislation reflects a Congressional sanction for the city of Dallas to manage Love Field in a manner to the best interests of its citizens, and in accordance with a hard fought local compromise, a sanction made necessary only by the existence of the Wright amendment itself. By doing so, while perfect by any antitrust measure, we are certain that we will afford literally millions of citizens in north Texas and elsewhere the enormous benefits of enhanced airline competition that they have long been denied because of the Wright amendment.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I would like to talk a little bit about S. 3661 because I am the sponsor of the legislation and have worked for 12 years to try to explain the Wright amendment to every interested party in Congress. It is so important to North Texas, to DFW Airport, and Love Field that we have an agreement, a plan to move forward beyond the Wright amendment in a way that is going to increase competition immeasurably.

Most people do not realize the history of the Wright amendment. When DFW Airport was forced on the cities of Dallas and Ft. Worth by a Federal mandate, the cities made agreements with airlines that DFW Airport would be the only functioning major airport in the region. It was to be the international airport, and Love Field was to be closed. After litigation, Love Field was allowed to be an intrastate airport. The Wright amendment later opened Love Field to serve the contiguous States, but that became untenable as aviation traffic continued to grow. The Wright amendment was very confining and was not the best competitive situation.

There have been many attempts to expand the Wright amendment. There have also been attempts to repeal the Wright amendment. In Congress asked the mayors of the two cities to come up with a local solution, rather than have Congress once again pass legislation that may or may not take into consideration the interests of the people who live and work and pay taxes in the Dallas-Ft. Worth area. The mayors did just that.

Mayor Laura Miller and Mayor Mike Moncrief, the mayors of Dallas and Ft. Worth, did an incredible job. They came together and made an agreement. Cities can make agreements. Under State law, cities can make agreements and there is never an antitrust issue when cities make agreements.

An antitrust issue was raised because two airlines became part of the agreement. The cities brought them in because lease agreements that were in place with those air carriers were going to have to be compromised, they were going to have to be changed and broken.

Instead of pursuing condemnation, the parties were brought together to get a consensus of their willingness to give up some rights in order to settle this once and for all and open competition both at Love Field and at DFW Airport.

The cities did a great job. They made an agreement and they brought it to Congress. I have felt since the beginning, it was Congress’s responsibility to take that agreement, ratify it and mandate that the agreement be kept in its entirety because it is so balanced. And if you did away with the Wright amendment, but you did not have the 20 gate limit and the implementation of the 20 gates, it could have gone out of balance.

So this act, regardless of anything else that has been said, authorizes, mandates, and protects all aspects of performance of the legislation’s terms, including that the city of Dallas reduce and allocate gates according to this act, its contractual obligations as contemplated by the act, and the local compromise and the balance it has achieved.

This legislation will allow the DFW Metroplex to end decades of bitterness and infighting that have plagued the Wright amendment. It provides a solution that all parties affected have agreed to. And just about every party to this agreement has given something up for the good of the North Texas economy and the traveling public.

We can now move forward to allow immediate benefits to consumers and the traveling public because airline prices are going to go down when this bill is passed. Actually, the bill has already passed. I am very pleased to say it has passed the Senate. It is going to the House now. And you will see, when the bill becomes law, that the prices of tickets from Dallas Love Field are going to go down to every destination. That is going to increase competition and interest in flying, which is going to be good for everyone.

Mr. President, I have a letter that was sent to four of the ranking members and committee chairs on September 28, 2006. It is addressed to Senator SPECTER, Senator LEAHY, Congressman SENSENBRENNER, and Congressman CONYERS. And it is from the mayor of Dallas and the mayor of Fort Worth. I ask unanimous consent it be printed in the RECORD. It tells the history of the Wright amendment and how competition will be increased.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
Airline Competition Plan submitted by the City of Dallas for Love Field, “the operational main terminal gates at Love Field are all subject to scarce resource provisions that, under those gates differ-ential use gates.” Thus, the “scarce resource” provision allows the City of Dallas to require incumbent airlines to share gates that are under those gates differ-ential use gates. Such a provision is essentially the same as the procedures used at most other major U.S. airports to accommodate new entrant carriers. The accommodating an airline seeking space involves three stages, as outlined in the Love Field Airline Competition Plan. The City of Dallas would not be able to lease directly, it would do so. Second, in the absence of space available for direct lease, the City of Dallas would refer the request to parties known to have gates or gate capacity available. Finally, if neither of these approaches proves fruitful, the “scarce resource” provisions of the lease permit the City of Dallas to unilaterally require an incumbent airline to accommodate a requesting airline in its premises. Thus, the assertion that accommodation of new entrant airlines resides solely upon the good graces of the incumbent airlines is false.

In fact, the City of Dallas regularly offers its support to requesting carriers to assist in the negotiation of reasonable sublease terms. Significantly, there have been no cases in which a carrier that was ready and willing to begin or expand service to Love Field has been unable to do so due to inability to secure reasonable access to needed facilities. Moreover, as previously recognized in an unsuccessful antitrust case brought by the Department of Justice against American, “there are no structural barriers to entry at DFW. The ability to accommodate any new carrier that seeks to establish or expand service.” United States v. AMR Corp., 140 F. Supp. 2d 1141, 1210 (D. Kan. 2001), aff’d, 335 F. 3d 1109 (10th Cir. 2003). DFW has 15 gates that are currently available to be leased, and many other gates that are underutilized. In fact, DFW has one of the most aggressive Air Service Incentive Programs in the country.

A carrier that is willing to offer new domestic air service to one of DFW’s top 50 domestic markets is eligible to receive up to six months’ free landing fees, up to $100,000 in marketing support, and an additional $50,000 in marketing support if the carrier is new to DFW. See also United States v. AMR Corp., 140 F. Supp. 2d at 1210.

In sum, there is ready access to both Love Field and DFW, and the proposed Wright Amendment compromise would ensure continued access to the marketplace by carriers seeking to provide service. Contrary to the suggestions of others, the economic analyses conducted to date demonstrate that the proposed legislation would foster competition among carriers, enable consumers to save hundreds of millions of dollars in air fares each year, and enable the city of Dallas to construct a negotiated and sensible solution to a decades-old problem.

In essence, these critics apparently contend that Congress should simply repeal the Wright Amendment, while ignoring the other important issues resolved by the proposed legislation. That suggestion ignores the genesis and history of this local compromise, the practical reasons for its detailed terms, and the substantial tangible benefits this legislation would provide not only for the people of Dallas and Fort Worth, but for airline passengers nationwide. The proposed legislation is the result of a local government initiative to forge a solution to a series of pressing and inter-transp-ortation issues. The cities of Dallas and Fort Worth spear-headed this effort not only to repeal the Wright Amendment and thereby improve air competition, but simultaneously to improve the regional transportation infrastructure serving Dallas and Fort Worth, to stimulate to the greatest extent the local econ-omic growth, and to address community concerns about the noise, traffic, and air pol-lution associated with increased service at these airports. The Wright Amendment was an enormously difficult endeavor, requiring years of economic and environmental study, planning, negotiation, and compromise. After much study and consideration, we strongly believe the result is a compromise that is good for the region and good for air competition. In short, these detractors simply misunderstand the nature of the issues or the care with which local officials and various constituencies have addressed these important issues.

Again, thank you for your careful continu-ed consideration of the proposed legislation concerning the repeal of the Wright Amend-ment. We stand ready to respond to any questions you or members of your staff might have.

Sincerely,

LAURA MILLER, Mayor, City of Dallas.
THOMAS P. PERKINS, Jr., City Attorney, City of Dallas.
MIKE MONCREIF, Mayor, City of Fort Worth.
LAURA MILLER, Mayor, City of Dallas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. A lot of people—so many people—helped put this agree-ment together and hammer out the dif-fe-rences and views on the issues. We heard today that Senator LEAHY has one view. Senator CORNYN has a view. I have a view. Just about everybody in Congress who has dealt with this issue has a view.

But I think the law we are passing speaks for itself. The law is very clear in what it instructs the city of Dallas to do, as well as the FAA and the De-partment of Transportation in implemen-tating this agreement. I think it is a major piece of legislation that is abso-lutely right.

I agree with Senator LEAHY and Sen-ator CORNYN that this is not going to set a precedent. It is a unique situation that was brought on by a Federal mandate and then a Federal law. And the local community has had less input into its own aviation capabilities than maybe any other two major cities in America with major airports. I think today we have clarified the Wright amendment, and I do not think it is ever going to set a precedent because no other airport has a Wright amend-ment.

So as we phase it out gradually, in an orderly way, to protect the integrity of the DFW Airport, as well as increasing competition in both DFW and Love Field, this is, for the taxpayers and the consumers and the traveling public, a win win all the way around.

I want to thank a few people because no one could have passed this bill alone. It took much cooperation and so many things that were necessary to bring everyone together.

I thank Senator SPECTER and Sen-ator INOUYE, the chairman and ranking member of the committee of jurisdiction, the Commerce Committee. I could not have asked for more help. The bill passed out of the Commerce Com-mittee 21 to 1. Senator ROCKEFELLER was the only one who voted no, but he could not have been more accommo-dating and honorable in his objection. Once we passed the bill out of com-mittee, he would make sure he was a part of everything we did. He has been wonderful to work with.

I thank Senator BURNS, Senator FRIST, Senator REED, Senator ENSIGN, Senator MCCAIN, former Speaker Jim Wright, who also agrees the time has come to have an orderly repeal of the amendment that he put in place, and, of course, Senator CORNYN. I also want to say Senator SUNUNU was just a gentleman in these last couple of days to help us in the ultimate solution of this bill.

I want to say that staff people, who are pro-progress, who have innovation, and are willing to work so hard—which staff people in this Senate do on such a routine basis—I am so appreciative and so respectful of them. I want to men-tion a couple because without them we would never have had the support that we do support today.

I thank Lisa Sutherland, Christine Kurth, Ken Nahagian, Sam Whitehorn, Jarrod Thompson, Gael Sullivan, and James Reid on the Commerce Com-mittee. Every one of them had an im-pres-sive impact on me. I thank Harold Kim, Joe Jacquot, and Ivy Johnson, from Senator SPECTER’s staff; J.P. Dowd, Susan Davies, and Ed Pagano from Senator LEAHY’s staff—all who were incredible and so helpful.

I want to take a moment to say that Senator DURBIN and Senator SCHUMER also helped in many of the negotiations on this issue. Senator LOTT was there from the very beginning.

But I also want to take a moment of personal privilege to thank my staff. I have never seen such dedication on such a tough issue as James Christoferson, Matthew Acocik, Lindsey Dickinson, Dick Ribbentrop, and Marc Short made in contributing to this vic-tory for my constituents in Texas. These five people worked on this bill, this negotiation, on a daily basis for the last 6 months. There was never a day when we did not have some item that we were trying to move forward to make sure the bill to the Senate would pass it on the Senate floor. I think the people of Texas owe a great deal of gratitude to these dedicated members of my staff for never giving up, even when it was bleak from time to time, and being as dedicated as I was to mak-ing sure the right result for all parties to this agreement became a part of the solution.

When you work on something for so long, and you know how important it is, and how many people are counting on you, you just feel honorbound to do your best to make sure the people who have worked hard are rewarded. When Mayor Miller and Mayor Moncreif made this agreement, and when they got the support they needed from the DFW Airport, from American Airlines, and from Southwest Airlines—because their rights were affected—everybody gave a little in order to do good for the population.
I know in the coming years the traveling public in the North Texas area—is and out—are going to see the benefits of a great competitive atmosphere. The DFW Airport gives the greatest service.
and that really is the stopping off point for so many travelers going to the rest of the world. That is going to increase, and it is going to increase with lower fares and more convenience.
It is going to be more convenient even with the safety antiterrorism measures that are being taken, which we know can inconvenience the traveling public.
DFW Airport is going to be the long-haul service carrier that will be the window to the world for people to live in the middle part of our country. Love Field is going to be a dynamic, limited-use airport because it sits right in the middle of an area that is full of waterfront taxonomies, churches, schools, and businesses. The right of the city of Dallas to protect the citizens who live in the area is well recognized in the law, and they are invoking it. The city is doing a great job of making sure we have more competitive and better fares. Love Field, while a dynamic airport sitting in the middle of a neighborhood, also deserves the safety and the environmental protections of all of our citizens.
So, Mr. President, I thank you for the time. I am very pleased this bill has passed. I look forward to seeing the benefits.
I yield the floor.
Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, hopefully I am going to be able to get this bills wrapped into one, that we agreed to through unanimous consent, is going to cost the American taxpayer
$1.5 billion.
The real question is, in light of where we find ourselves—fighting the war, trying to help the people in Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama, and running in excess of a $300 billion real deficit this year—should we be spending money on these priorities? A real problem in Washington is getting Congress to make tough decisions about what is a priority.
I want to spend a few minutes outlining what is in the bill because the American people have no idea what was in the bill. The first thing is $500,000 to study lighthouses in Michigan for tourism. Tourism is already a $16 billion industry in Michigan. There is nothing in the Constitution that would say that is a Federal responsibility. We will do it anyway.
Indiana Dunes Visitor Center. $1.2 million to establish a building, construct a theater and a bookstore. Is that a priority right now when we are spending our grandkids’ money? We are going to build a bookstore and create a visitor center now when we cannot even afford to do some of the things we are fighting and we are charging that to our children?
There are new national heritage designations. We have a backlog of over $4 billion in repairs to the National Parks system. We even take too long to care of the parks we have today, and we are going to create 10 new national heritage centers, spending over $100 million to do so.
This bothers me on several fronts. Most important, it isn’t a priority. It isn’t something we ought to be spending money on right now. We are getting to ready to do it. We already have 30 national heritage centers. We are going to delete the resources that are going to those by a couple of billion.
Finally, the problem with national heritage areas is they undermine property rights because the money is used to change zoning laws to back the people who have property rights around the name. We are using Federal dollars to create national heritage areas that will undermine individual property rights. That is wrong.
The other thing that is in this bill is a study to assess creating four more national heritage centers.
The process is broken under which we bring bills such as this to the Senate, at a time when we cannot afford to pay what we are doing today. We spent a ton of our time on appropriations.
After what I was told through all this process, after having written a letter raising objections, meeting with the committee, meeting with our leadership, we had a leadership meeting meeting this week which basically said: if you don’t let all these packages of spending of low priority and no priority go through, the Senate will come to a standstill and we will see everything else blocked by the minority.
I believe we ought to be making choices about the right priorities for our country. It is not that heritage areas are wrong. It is that we cannot afford them. We are going to spend money on things we cannot afford and borrow the money from our children and our grandchildren to pay for things that we have to do.
It is cheating our children and our grandchildren. It also is beneath the dignity of this Senate.
This process has to be fixed. We cannot continue to authorize, authorize, and authorize more spending without doing the hard work, looking at what we have authorized that is not working, is inefficient, or is duplicated. But we continue to do it, and I will continue to stand up for the next 4 years and raise this issue every time.
This is not a Democratic or Republic-ian issue. This is an American issue that this Senate does not want to address. We seem to be blinded by the fact that we can just spend and authorize all the money we want and have no impact. We do not authorize unless we expect it to get spent.
With this bill, through the chairman
we have new spending with unapproven funds, to de-authorize over $150 million. That is a start. But other bills that come to the Senate that have new spending in the future ought to meet a test; that is, have we looked at everything else in the Senate? Is it working well? Well, are we spending the money wisely? Are we spending it efficiently? Are there programs that are not working that we ought to deauthorize so we can afford to authorize this as a better priority?
We are not doing that in this country. That is something the American people deserve to have done rather than to hang our children and grandchildren out to dry with debt.
Mr. President, I am pleased this year’s budget is for interest. In 2035, 29 years from now, 25 percent of our budget is going to be interest. That is $1 trillion. We spent $200 billion this year on interest because we will not be frugal with the American taxpayers’ money. There is over $200 billion worth of fraud, waste, and abuse in the Government programs we have today, and we will not go and fix it. Instead, we will spend another $1.5 million because that is easy to do. It sounds good at home, but we will not do what is necessary to secure the financial future of this country.
The notice I am placing today is there is a precedent established with this bill. If you want to authorize new programs and you want this Senator to object to or to debate them on the floor, there better be deauthorizations of programs of that committee’s jurisdiction before they can expect my vote on this year’s comprehensive agreement to spend into the future and to undermine the future of the next generation of Americans.
I yield the floor.
Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I
take a few minutes to respond to some of the comments made this afternoon
by my colleagues from Idaho, from California, and Massachusetts. First of all, they are correct in stating the H– immigrant worker program for agriculture, does not work in the way it should.

However, what Senator CRAIG, Senator PEYTON, Senator BOXER, and
Senator KENNEDY propose to do, rather than make many of the necessary changes to make the H-2A program viable nationwide is, first of all, to grant an amnesty to virtually everyone who has passed through agricultural occupations in the past 2 years.

H-2A PROGRAM

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I
take a few minutes to respond to some of the comments made this afternoon
by my colleagues from Idaho, from California, and Massachusetts. First of all, they are correct in stating the H– 2A program, which is the temporary non-immigrant worker program for agriculture, does not work in the way it should.
However, what Senator CRAIG, Senator PEYTON, Senator BOXER, and
Senator KENNEDY propose to do, rather than make many of the necessary changes to make the H-2A program viable
nationwide is, first of all, to grant an amnesty to virtually everyone who has passed through agricultural occupations in the past 2 years.
We all know that agriculture has been the traditional gateway occupation for illegal immigrants in the United States. I strongly disagree to large-scale adjustment of status for illegal aliens philosophically, particularly in the area of agriculture, but my objection has practical roots.

Agricultural work is the hardest, most backbreaking work in the United States today. As soon as we give illegal aliens who are currently working in agriculture lawful, permanent resident status, as the AgJOBS bill will do, they will no longer choose to work in the fields, packing sheds, groves, or processing canning fields, packing sheds, groves, or processing canning fields. They soon left the fields and moved into the private sector in so many other areas where we find them today.

My position as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee has provided me the opportunity to travel across the United States and talk with farmers and ranchers. Recently, I have concluded eight field hearings from one end of the country to the other, from the east coast to the west coast. In every single hearing we held with farmers and ranchers across America I had any number of farmers who came up to me during the process of those hearings to talk about immigration. It is an issue on the west coast. It is an issue on the east coast and all parts in between. And to a farmer, the one thing I heard from him was: Senator, whatever you do, don’t let the AgJOBS provision dealing with a temporary status—those illegal workers were given permanent status. They seek the fields and moved into the private sector in so many other areas where we find them today.

The immigration issue has the potential to be the answer if we do the right thing. We know these folks will leave agriculture and move into the private sector because this is what happened in 1986 after Congress passed the Immigration and Control Act. Included in that legislation was the special agricultural worker program that gave temporary legal status to illegal aliens who had worked a certain number of years in agriculture. Two years after obtaining a temporary status—and in some cases 1 year—those illegal workers were given permanent status. By and large, farmers in my part of the world are now using H-2A, and they are finding that exactly what we thought would happen is happening. They do not have to look over their shoulder every year to see if ICE—now it is ICE—is coming to check their workers. They know they are here legally. They know they are going to have to pay them a good wage. They know they are going to have to provide them with housing, with the ability to choose, and that we make sure our farmers with a quality pool of workers from which to choose, and that we make sure we provide our farmers with a quality pool of workers from which to choose. That is fair to farmers, that is fair to Americans—whether they are folks who are here looking for work in agriculture or who are farmers who are trying to become citizens of this country in a lawful way, in the way that is set forth in our Constitution—that we should make sure we provide our farmers with a quality pool of workers from which to choose, and that we make sure our farmers are required to pay those individuals a fair wage and are required to either provide them housing or provide them a housing allowance, so while they are here working on their farms we do not have to worry about where they are out in the communities, and that they are able to take care of themselves while they are here. All of these issues are critically important parts of any immigration reform package we take up. So I yield back.

Mr. President, I yield back.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from North Dakota is recognized for 30 minutes.

AGRICULTURE DISASTER RELIEF

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I rise today on behalf of myself, Senator NELSON of Nebraska, Senator HAGEL, Senator DORGAN, Senator SALAZAR, Senator COLEMAN, Senator BAUCCUS, Senator JOHNSON, Senator BURNS, Senator HARKIN, Senator CANTWELL, Senator CLINTON, Senator SCHUMER, Senator INOUYE, Senator THUNE, Senator DURBIN, Senator OBAMA, Senator REID of Nevada, Senator DAYTON, Senator MURRAY, Senator JEFFORDS, and Senator ENZI.

Mr. President, 21 Senators, on a fully bipartisan basis, have cosponsored this legislation to provide disaster relief for our Nation's farmers.

In North Dakota, last year, we faced what was then extraordinary flooding. As shown in the picture we have all across eastern North Dakota. We had a million acres that were prevented from even being planted, hundreds of thousands of additional acres that were planted and then drowned out. There was no disaster assistance for those people.

This year—the irony of ironies—we have now had extraordinary drought. This is a picture from my home county, Burleigh County, in the center of North Dakota. This is a corn crop with absolutely nothing growing. This drought is now the third worst drought in our Nation's history.

This chart shows the U.S. drought monitor. It shows the severity of the drought across the entire midsection of the country. This shows, in the darkest colors, exceptional drought. You can see the exceptional areas of drought are these. North Dakota and South Dakota are the epicenter of this drought. It has been devastating. If assistance is not granted, many farmers and families will be forced off the land. That is a fact.

I have had the independent bankers of my State say to the White House representative who was in my office: If assistance does not come, 5 to 10 percent of their clients in North Dakota will be forced out of business.

Thirty-four farm organizations—34 farm organizations—have now spoken and told the Congress of the United States: Take action now on disaster assistance and take it now.

In addition, we have this letter from the State Commissioners of Agriculture from all across the country, saying that emergency agricultural disaster assistance is a high priority requirement by Congress this year. It could not be more clear that assistance is needed, and it is needed now.

Last May, the Senate approved bipartisan emergency agricultural disaster assistance for the 2005 crop year. The President-approved the bill if the farm assistance provisions were included. During the conference with the House, the majority leadership demanded the assistance provisions be removed.

In June, the Senate Appropriations Committee once again approved emergency disaster assistance as part of the agriculture appropriations bill for 2007. Again, the majority leadership has failed to bring the bill to the Senate floor for debate and vote.

Since that time, much of rural America has suffered from what USDA meteorologists have described as the third worst drought records have been kept. Only the 1930s and 1950s exceed the severity of this drought.

In early September, I introduced a new bipartisan farm disaster relief bill to provide help for both 2005 and 2006. Senator NELSON and I offered that legislation as an amendment to include during the port security bill consideration. A vote on that amendment was denied by the Senate leadership.

Last week, I once again tried to get the Senate to adopt disaster relief legislation. All efforts were thwarted by the majority leadership.

Today, as we are about to recess the Senate, I will offer a revised version of the important disaster legislation. Let me make clear to my colleagues, these provisions have already been approved by the Senate, but we have made a modification because the administration has said there are two provisions they object to. Those provisions—the economic assistance for those who suffer the rising cost of energy, and the additional grants to the States to deal with the livestock losses—we have removed those two provisions the administration has objected to.

We retain the crop and livestock production loss provisions of the original legislation. Crop producers will still need to demonstrate a 35-percent loss before they get anything. Payments for the livestock compensation program will be made to producers whose operations are in counties designated as disaster areas by the Secretary, and who can demonstrate they suffered a material loss.

It also contains additional funding for conservation programs to help restore and rehabilitate drought and wildlife losses on grazing lands.

As I have indicated, my new legislation eliminates the emergency economic assistance for program crop and dairy insurance producers. It also eliminates the supplemental grants to the States to assist other livestock and specialty crop producers.

These provisions were included in the original bill, but because the administration has objected, we have removed them. By making these changes, the Secretary's opposition no longer has any basis.

The cost of providing emergency disaster assistance for losses in 2005 and 2006 is reduced from $6.7 billion in my original bill to $4.9 billion in this legislation.

Farmers and ranchers need assistance for 2005 and 2006 natural disasters, and they need it now. If these emergencies are not dealt with, tens of thousands of farm families and main street businesses will suffer, some of them irretrievably. It is time for Congress to act and to allow this legislation to be voted on. Let's give our colleagues a chance to vote. We have removed the reasons for the objection from the administration.

I urge my colleagues to act.

Mr. President, I ask the Presiding Officer: how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CHAMBLISS). The Senate has 22 minutes remaining.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask the Senator from South Dakota if he could take 4 minutes? I yield 4 minutes to the Senator from South Dakota; and to the Senator from North Dakota, if I could give 4 minutes; and the Senator from Montana 4 minutes; and then the Senator from Nebraska 4 minutes as well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, I am glad to join my colleague from North Dakota today and support him and the other Senators on this bill in moving disaster assistance through the Senate.

As the Senator from North Dakota has noted—you saw the drought chart he put up earlier—the Dakotas were the first State to declare a drought this year. We had the bull's-eye, the area where the most severe drought hit.

I visited in South Dakota in June. At that point, we had no wheat crop. In all of central South Dakota, both winter wheat and spring wheat were all wiped out.

I went back in July to central South Dakota and looked at other parts of the State. By then, we could tell we were not going to have a corn crop. I went to western South Dakota in August with my colleague Senator JOHN-SON. We traveled to areas west of the Missouri River and again to the central part of the State. We looked at corn that rivaled what the Senator from North Dakota showed that was about this tall—or about this tall—when it comes to drought this year.

The livestock producers in western South Dakota had no hay crop. As a result, many of them had to liquidate their herds. What that means is that effect is felt not only directly by them and those families, but by the entire rural area, the entire farm economy in my State and States such as North Dakota.

I would be one thing if it were a 1-year deal. But this is successive years of drought, 6 years in a row, 1999, 2000, on through 2005. We have had these types of weather conditions in our States. The month of July was the hottest month in many of these years, and they would normally get precipitation. We had less precipitation than the average during the years of the Great Depression—the biggest disaster to ever hit farm country. We respond as a country, as a Congress, when other areas of the country are impacted. We do it when we have hurricanes. Many stepped up and supported the assistance for areas in the gulf. This is the same sort of disaster. It has the same sort of effect. It may not have the immediate aftermath you see when a hurricane strikes. It is a slow-motion disaster, but the effect on the economy in places in the Midwest is just asastrous and devastating.

Mr. President, we need action. We need the Senate to do what it has done in the past; that is, step forward and provide relief for these hard-hit farmers and ranchers in the Midwest. It was noted by my colleague from North Dakota that the Senate has, on a couple occasions, passed drought disaster relief. We need to get it passed. I am happy to support this.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THUNE). The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, my colleague said it well. This is a picture of Frank Barnick walking in a creekbed that used to provide water for his cattle. One day this summer, it was 112 degrees in North Dakota. You can see the devastating drought that has occurred. The land looks like a moonscape.

Frank Barnick said this: It is the worst drought I have ever seen. You do a lot of praying and wondering how you are going to get through it.

One way you get through these things is when Congress decides to reach out with a helping hand and say: We want to help you, you are not alone. We have always done that. Somehow, this year it hasn’t been quite as urgent to do it. I don’t understand that.

Senator BURNS and I have twice moved legislation through the Appropriations Committee. The Senate has twice passed agricultural disaster aid. It has moved through the Appropriations Committee a third time. My colleague, Senator CONRAD, taking the lead in drafting, with many of us assisting, created the disaster legislation now pending that we should, by consent, move through the Senate. Yet somehow it remains blocked. It is not urgent for some. This isn’t about the major industries—the pharmaceutical industry, the oil industry, or about another big industry—this is about individual families living a hard life, trying to make a living during tough times.

Will Congress help? We have helped endangered species. We can deal with them—birds, bats, butterflies, black-footed ferrets, and prairie dogs. When they are endangered, we say: Let’s help. There is a species called family farmers and family ranchers who are out on the land living alone, trying to make do by themselves. When tough times come, when weather-related disasters come, they need help.

With the Katrina victims, when those who live on farms in the gulf were devastated by Hurricane Katrina, this Congress said yes. This Congress said yes to all the rest of you in the country out there on the farm or ranch who got hit by an agricultural disaster, a weather-related disaster. You got out of luck, we don’t support you. That was the message from the President. So he blocked it.

These are Republicans and Democrats on the floor of the Senate today working together to say this needs to get done. This is a priority. I hear the President and others go all around the world when there is trouble to say: Let us help. We are there to help you. What about here at home? Do we need to help here? You need your life back. We need to do it now.

The question of whether these folks will farm and ranch next year depends on whether we do what we are required and responsible for over the last year now, and recent months, is that somehow we don’t have time or the urgency and that we cannot quite get this done. That is the wrong priority for this country. This country has a responsibility to move out to help its own, reach out to help people who are in trouble.

These are American all-stars, the people who live on the farms. They produce food for a hungry world. They don’t ask for very much. When a weather disaster strikes—a hurricane, a drought, or a flood—and their entire income is washed away, they would hope, I would hope, and I think the values of our country would expect, that we would reach out a helping hand and say: We want to do this now. It is a time-honored tradition.

We are not asking for something strange or different. We have always helped farming. Let’s make this an urgent priority this afternoon; we can do this. Let’s make this a priority and decide we are going to do the right thing for America’s family farmers and ranchers.

I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized.

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I don’t know anything more frustrating to all of us who come from farm and ranch country than to try to get this taken care of. We tried to take care of it last year and didn’t get it done. There was no urgency. We had a fairly good crop this year. We were not the epicenter of the drought. We have been in that bull’s-eye now for 6, going on 7 years. It takes its toll not only on wells but reservoirs and streams.

I am here in support of this because I will tell you that the Dakotas were devastated by the drought. We were hit hard. We were hit hard. We were hit hard. We have been in that bull’s-eye now for 6, going on 7 years. It takes its toll not only on wells but reservoirs and streams.

Mr. President, I heartily support this, and I know the man in the chair right now, who probably knows his State about as good as anybody—he was raised “west of the river,” as we call it, in South Dakota. I have never seen an area as devastated by drought as this area was. You could not raise a fence. You couldn’t even move a well. I would call on the leadership to take a look at this, pass it this afternoon, and get them some money before next spring rolls around.

I thank my good friends from North Dakota for their leadership.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senators DAYTON, MURRAY, JEFFORDS, ENZI, and THOMAS be added as original cosponsors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senators DAYTON, MURRAY, JEFFORDS, ENZI, and THOMAS be added as original cosponsors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from South Dakota be given 4 minutes, and the Senator from Minnesota, Mr. DAYTON, be given 4 minutes at the conclusion of Senator NELSON’s remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is that from the Senator’s time?

Mr. CONRAD. Yes, out of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. NELSON of Nebraska. Mr. President, I rise to speak in support of S. 3991, the Emergency Farm Relief Act of 2006. I thank my colleague, Senator Conrad, for his leadership in trying to get this bill passed. We have all been working together on a bipartisan basis.
The Presiding Officer spoke eloquently about the need for this relief. Today is the last day for this Congress to consider providing relief for our Nation’s farmers and ranchers who have suffered through multiple years of drought and other natural disasters. This is the relief we can do it, before we adjourn for the elections.

I am frustrated with our refusal to provide relief to farmers and ranchers suffering from this particular natural disaster even though we seem to have no problem providing some relief for other natural disasters, such as hurricanes. I accept the fact that we do that, but I don’t accept the fact that we do that and fail to do this.

Mr. President, I have a chart here which shows the extent of the drought in the Midwest and down into Texas. You can see where the hotspots are. I will tell you that this only tracks it most recently. It doesn’t show the extent of the damage that has happened over several years. If you just overlaid 5 or 7 years on this, you would see where the drought has continued.

I decided that maybe to get parity here for this kind of disaster it might be helpful to give the drought some identification. I have decided to name it “Drought David,” the same way we name hurricanes.

The unfortunate fact is that Drought David has, in some instances and in some locations, experienced its fifth birthday and in some other areas, its seventh birthday.

Failure to provide this needed relief threatens many small rural businesses and communities as well as farmers and ranchers. It threatens our Nation’s food and fuel security efforts. So today I join my colleagues and thank Senator CONRAD for his final push because this is, in fact, a bipartisan effort to try to take care of those who are experiencing losses that are far beyond their ability to sustain and, certainly, far beyond their control.

Over the last few years, I think we have begun to understand that a drought has devastating impacts in much the same way hurricanes do in other locations. The difference is that a hurricane or a flood is a fast-moving disaster; this is a slow-moving disaster that can go over the course of years, as I have indicated. Giving it a name, I hope, will somehow have the impact of our country understanding that this is an incident which goes over a long period of time; nevertheless, the devastation can be considerable, and in some cases the economic losses can be the same as those who have other disasters.

We cannot prevent a drought, but Congress can help when a drought devastates large portions of our country. Some said maybe what we need to do is make sure the crop insurance program takes care of it. Well, the crop insurance program is, for an occasional loss, not a continuing and sustained loss such as this. To give some sort of an analogy, you could not have insurance that would cover your house if it burned down every year, but occasional loss can be covered by insurance. This is just not coverable by insurance the way that it is right now. We cannot prevent it, but we can help. That is what we are all about today.

I am happy to report that we have taken some action that I think will be helpful. Just the other day, the Commerce Committee passed my NIDIS—National Integrated Drought Information System—legislation. That will help us create a system that will give us early warning so we will know how long droughts continue, give us better ideas about what drought conditions are predicted. This early warning system will give farmers and ranchers a better idea of what to expect. They can make planning decisions or livestock decisions based on the kind of information that will be available.

Unfortunately, at the present time, we are where we are not where we would like to be. We hope we will have the opportunity today with unanimous consent to move this bill forward. We can do it before we break, whether it’s Monday or next week or some other time. We need to get this done. There is no justification. We can ask the question: If not now, when? If not now, why?

I thank the Presiding Officer, and I thank Senator CONRAD for this time. THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I thank the Senators from North Dakota, Mr. CONRAD and Mr. DORGAN, for their extraordinary leadership on this issue.

We have a crisis of enormous proportions across a large swath of America, from the Canadian border all the way to Mexico. My home State of South Dakota, as has been noted, is virtually the epicenter of what has been a drought, not just a catastrophic drought this year but the previous year and some of it going back to the year 2000. It has been devastating to our agricultural economy, but then as well to our Main Streets, to the economy of that entire region.

Recently, I joined with my colleague, Senator THUNE, in a joint drought tour around portions of South Dakota that have been worst hit. It was evident that the needs were urgent.

We saw herds being sold off entirely, calves being born thinned. We saw the factory, in effect, being sold off from the livestock sector of our State.

In the crop areas, we saw areas where there was corn that was perhaps 6 inches high with no ears. In other areas, we saw corn that was cut out of the field, knocked down, picked up, and kiss the dust to tell what had been planted, whether it was soybeans, corn, whatever. It was entirely lost.

There are stock dams without water. Farming operations—good operations—those that have been sustained and any that are happening to American farmers and ranchers and American Main Streets, and it needs an American response.

We attempted to pass agriculture relief on the Agriculture appropriations bill, but that has now been delayed until after the election. Whether we get anything on to that funding remains to be seen.

Clearly, we will have progress if we continue the bipartisan support we have up to now exhibited in the Senate where there has been pretty good support from Republicans as well as Democrats.

Senator from all regions behind us on this issue. We need to have support from the White House as well.

It is my hope that the White House will recognize that this drought has only grown worse, the needs more urgent. Senator CONRAD, to his good credit, has worked very closely with the White House and with others to reduce the cost of this effort, to meet some of the objections that have been raised by the White House and by USDA.

So what we have here is a drought bill that would cost about the equivalent of 2 weeks’ expenditure in Iraq for the entire Nation, for the entire year, for multiple drought years.

It is important we recognize droughts are disasters, just as much as earthquakes, hurricanes, and tornadoes. They are less dramatic because they happen through a drawn-out period of time, but they are just as devastating. Just as Americans come together to deal with disasters that occur in other parts of the country, we need to come together on this disaster as well. Americans looking after Americans.

We are now at the final shred of time left in this Congress. This is our last remaining hope to get this done. It is my hope we can set aside partisan politics and appreciate the losses that are being sustained and some of the things that are happening to American farmers and ranchers and American Main Streets, and it needs an American response.

If we pull together in this body, I am confident that we will, in fact, make some progress. There is still time, but we have to act now.

Again, Mr. President, I urge my colleagues, I urge USDA, the White House, and our friends in the other body to recognize the critical need, the urgent need for attention to this catastrophic string of drought years that our farmers and ranchers and Main Streets are facing.
I yield the floor.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Ten minutes.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I yield 4 minutes to the Senator from Minnesota. If he uses less, he can yield time back.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, I thank my distinguished colleague from North Dakota, Mr. CONRAD, who championed this cause of disaster relief for not only his farmers in North Dakota but across the affected areas, which certainly includes my State of Minnesota.

As others noted, this is a bipartisan effort. I see my friend and colleague, Senator COLEMAN from Minnesota, is here also. We stand together to make this a bipartisan effort on behalf of the farmers throughout our State who have been devastated by these natural disasters over the last few years and particularly the last 2 years to which this bill applies.

I regret that this has been passed by the Senate before. I commend this body for doing so, again, on a very strong bipartisan basis. Unfortunately, the administration has not been willing to allow this funding to go forward or even some part of it. This is long overdue.

It is unfortunate that we are now at the 11th hour, the 59th minute of this session in this year, and we haven’t even addressed the disaster relief necessary for the last calendar year. This legislation would deal with that and also this year’s relief.

This disaster has afflicted our State, and some of our counties have lost three-fourths of our crops. In fact, almost half the counties in Minnesota have already been declared disaster areas.

The crisis is real. The suffering is acute. As others said, we have a magnitude of disaster in New Orleans after Hurricane Katrina, but a disaster is a disaster. A complete disaster is as devastating to a family in northwestern Minnesota as it is to a family in New Orleans.

I urge my colleagues, once again, to support this measure, and I plead with the House and the administration to work out these differences so that these farmers and their farms can be saved. And I believe that families can be saved. It is only simple justice and humanity.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and yield back the remainder of my time.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I can yield 3 minutes to the Senator from Minnesota. We have now run down the clock.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I thank my colleagues from North Dakota for yielding me time.

I stand with my colleague from Minnesota, Senator DAYTON, in bipartisanship agreement. This is not a partisan issue, and it should not be a partisan issue. I consider this one of the most important pieces of legislation that has been left undone this year, agricultural disaster assistance.

While this body has come to the aid of producers who were affected by hurricanes which need agricultural disaster assistance, Minnesota’s farmers and families have been left to fend for themselves in the face of natural disasters—the flooding of 2005 and the record drought in 2006.

In the sugarbeet alone, revenue was reduced by $60 million in Minnesota in 2005 thanks to this natural disaster. In one county, crop loss exceeded $52 million, and farmers were prevented from planting over 90,000 acres thanks to saturated fields. These are not just numbers; these are people’s lives. These are their livelihoods. There is a sense of history and connection to the land, and the future is now at risk.

I was up at Lake Bronson, MN, in northwest Minnesota, and met with over 100 farmers. It is their lives. The farmers are calling my office desperate to save the family farm. Farmers are losing operations, pure and simple.

Something in Washington cited the overall success of agriculture in 2006, the aggregate numbers, as justification for withholding assistance. Congress didn’t look at the overall economy in determining what sort of assistance to give those affected by the great disaster in the gulf. We didn’t cite the Nation’s robust GDP growth and low unemployment rate as a reason not to assist Gulf communities whose local economies were devastated by natural disaster.

Nor should we propose such a false standard for comprehensive agricultural disaster assistance.

It is true that the suffering in the gulf is great. I have seen the tremendous damage myself. I have come to this body again and again to extend my hand to fellow Americans. I can’t help but think of the 100-year flood in the Red River Valley. Senator DAYTON knows; he was there. We saw neighbors fighting a flood together one sand bag at a time, regardless of whose house was closest to the water.

Your State might not be the closest to the flooding that occurred in my State last year or the drought this year, but as a neighbor of mine, a fellow American, I just ask you to help my fight for the natural disaster being endured in Minnesota, the Dakotas, and other parts of this country. None in this body can build a dike on our own. Please allow this assistance to go forward.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I have been advised that an objection will be raised when we make the request to go to this bill. I deeply regret that. I cannot tell colleagues how deeply I regret that because we have tried to meet now every objection that has been raised.

We were told that the only objection left to this legislation was that there were provisions that could conceivably help someone not damaged by natural disaster, even though they had been damaged by the sharp runup of energy costs.

The legislation as previously passed by the Senate could aid those who were not hurt by natural disaster. So we took out those provisions, with a savings of $1.9 billion. What is left are the most basic disaster provisions that have been provided by Congress in disaster after disaster. This is national legislation; it is not regional. It is national. Nobody gets any assistance unless they have had at least a 35-percent loss. And if they have had at least a 35-percent loss, they get no help for that first 35-percent loss. They get nothing. Zero. It is only if they have had a loss of more than 35 percent that they get any help, and the assistance only then applies to what they have had the loss of 35 percent. Once you get beyond that, then assistance begins.

No one is made whole. No one is enriched. What people are given is a chance to make it to next year. That is what we are doing.

The bankers of my State have told me that if there is a failure to provide this kind of assistance, 5 to 10 percent of the producers in my State will be forced off the land. That is the reality of what we are combating.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending business be set aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I object. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I regret very much an objection has been raised. We have done everything we could be asked to do to alter this legislation to meet the objections previously raised.

So I ask one more time, Mr. President: I ask unanimous consent that the pending business be set aside.

Mr. GREGG. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, the Senator has that right. I regret that he has exercised that right. What we have done on a bipartisan basis now, 23 Senators have come endorsing this legislation on a fully bipartisan basis asking for help of the most basic sort. I must say, as one Senator, if we can’t get assistance in this kind of circumstance, we are going to have to think long and hard when other colleagues come to us about assistance for their areas when they suffer disaster. Always before we have responded in kind. We have helped those who have had disaster, whether it is flood or hurricane or whatever disaster they have had, and I don’t think that a drought somehow is not worthy of assistance. I must say, I think it is shameful.
The people are about to lose their livelihoods. We have done everything we have been asked to do to reduce the cost of this bill, and now we are told: Sorry, there is no help. We won't even consider it. We won't even allow a vote to occur because we know what would happen if there was a vote. It would be overwhelmingly passed, as it has been in the past when it was far more expensive than the bill we come with today.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CONRAD. I am happy to yield.

Mr. ROBERTS. I ask unanimous consent that I be added as a cosponsor to this legislation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, the reason we know it would pass, I would say to the gentleman, and I thank him for introducing this—and I am a little out of breath because I didn't realize we were debating this, so I ran over here. But at any rate, I thank my colleague for introducing this bill.

The reason we know it would pass is it has passed the Senate as part of the supplemental. It is about $4 billion. Everybody understood at that particular time we had an urgent need in farm country. Everybody understood at that particular time we had a lot of problems with disasters, but as others have pointed out, if you have a hurricane, you get in the headlines. If you have a forest fire, you are getting headlines. If you have those kinds of tragedies, like a flood or even a mudslide in a State where people build houses perhaps where they shouldn't build them—obviously it attracts attention.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman's time has expired.

Mr. ROBERTS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be granted an additional 5 minutes. I know there are other Members waiting, but I would like to at least proceed with the Senator, my friend, for another 5 minutes, if that would be all right.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that—I was to be the next speaker for 15 minutes, so I ask that I be granted 20 minutes on my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GREGG. I wish to thank Senator GREGG for his generosity in regard to allowing me, with the gentleman yielding to me, to make some additional comments.

I was saying that all of these tragedies occur because we know what would happen if there was a vote. It would be overwhelmingly passed, as it has been in the past when it was far more expensive than the bill we come with today. We won't even allow a vote to occur because we know what would happen if there was a vote. It would be overwhelmingly passed, as it has been in the past when it was far more expensive than the bill we come with today.

We also know, although people may not want to talk about it right now, that the current farm bill doesn't work in this circumstance. I voted against the current farm bill. It is not my intention to come down here and discuss the merits of the bill, but I want to point out some real problems. First, it is the counter-cyclical program. It means when a farmer doesn't have a crop, he gets no payment. It also means he has no real crop insurance because the average production of crop insurance in some cases has gone down. So no crop insurance, no payment. High and dry. This is the only way we are going to provide assistance to farmers.

Now, I regret it is the 11th hour and 59th minute. I fully expect an objection. I hope that would not take place. But at any rate, we are building a case that if we have to come back here during what is called a lameduck session, something can be done. I credit the Senator for his leadership in this regard.

A drought is a drought and it doesn't get much attention, but the people affected suffer just as much as people who suffer from other tragedies. I again credit the Senator for bringing this up. I am a cosponsor. Whatever we get done, I look forward to working with him. We have done it in the past. We did it with the supplemental. It was taken out in the House by the way. We need this relief, and we need it now.

As I said before, I will vote for the bill, and I will speak for it, as I have done. And quite frankly, if this is headed for a Presidential veto, I will vote to override it.

I thank the Senator.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I thank very much the Senator from Kansas, the former chairman of the House Agriculture Committee and a real leader on the Senate Agriculture Committee and my friend. I would advise him that an objection has already been raised, so we are going to be denied the chance to vote. I regret that and I regret that deeply because I know what it means, after having been all across my State and having farmers tell me—some farmers who have been in the business for more than 30 years who have told me this will be their last year; to have the people affected suffer just as much as people who suffer from other tragedies.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, reservation objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, let me just follow up on the point that this would be a bipartisan vote here in the Senate today. I want to point out that the piece of legislation Senator CONRAD has worked on and that I have added as an appropriations measure twice has passed the Senate. Twice I was in conference with the Senate and defeated in conference. I wish to make that point because the implication was the Department of Agriculture didn't have much to do with that. The fact is the House conferences defeated this because the President threatened to veto it, and the House conferences were listening to the Department of Agriculture, which also opposed it.

Look, it seems to me we need the administration to understand what is going on here. This is urgent. We are building a case on the floor of the Senate. We need some help downtown as well from the Department of Agriculture as well as the White House to get this done.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I have been asked to ask unanimous consent that Senator CLINTON be given 15 minutes at the end of the current queue.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. GREGG. Yes, I have a unanimous consent request that following Senator HUTCHISON, who will follow me, the following Senators be recognized in order: Senator CLINTON for 15 minutes, Senator CHAFEE for 5 minutes, Senator KYL for 15 minutes, and Senator BYRD for up to 45 minutes at the point that this is the PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, the Senate from New Hampshire is recognized for 20 minutes.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 1 minute 20 seconds remaining.

warfare. That is what we hear day in and day out.

Well, the facts are in. The facts are in on the President’s tax cuts, and they are very good for this country.

To begin with, let’s put in context when the tax cuts occurred. At the end of the Clinton administration, we had seen the largest economic bubble in the history of America. The stock market went up dramatically, way past real values, based on basically paper, as a speculation around the Internet. That bubble collapsed, forcing us into a recession. That was followed by the attack of 9/11, which was not only a traumatic cultural event for us, involving a horrific loss of life, it was also a huge economic attack on the American economy. Those two things together should have thrown us into almost a depression or certainly an extraordinarily severe recession.

But what happened in the middle of this was that the President suggested cutting the tax rates on all Americans. That tax cut came at just the right time because it softened the blow of those two huge economic events, those two extraordinarily recessionary events, and allowed the economy to bottom out in a shallower and less harmful way and start to move back up dramatically. In fact, the practical effect of those tax cuts is the following because after 5 years, we know the facts, very interesting facts.

No. 1, low-income Americans, those people who are in the bottom 20 percent who don’t pay any income tax to begin with, are actually getting back from the Government in the form of direct subsidy through something called the earned-income tax credit more money than they received in the Clinton years.

So you have the situation where the Federal Government has increased dramatically as a result of the tax cuts.

No. 2, interestingly enough, high-income Americans, the top 20 percent of Americans in income are paying a higher share—a higher share of American income—of the income tax burden of America than they did under the Clinton years.

No. 3, low-income Americans, those people who are in the bottom 20 percent who don’t pay any income tax to begin with, are actually getting back from the Government in the form of direct subsidy through something called the earned-income tax credit more money than they received in the Clinton years.

You have the situation where the Federal share of revenue taken out of the economy is back to its historic level: 18.2 percent. So we have a situation where the Government is getting more revenue, where the tax laws are becoming more progressive, and where the economy recovered, creating 5.7 million jobs.

Now, how did that happen, one might ask. How can we get more tax revenues if we cut taxes? How can the high-income people in this country be paying a higher burden of the taxes if we cut taxes? The other side of the aisle rejects that concept. They say: You just have to keep raising taxes. Raise taxes, raise taxes; you always get more revenue.

Well, it doesn’t work that way. Something that—if you just think for a moment, it is pretty obvious—is called human nature intervenes. If you raise taxes to a level that people perceive is unfair, and especially if they are high-income individuals, they can afford to, and they do, figure out ways to avoid paying those taxes which give them deductions. So tax revenues don’t go up dramatically if you raise revenues. In fact, the way you raise revenues is by making the tax burden fair. You make it fair so a high-income person is paying the fair share of the taxes and are willing to go out and invest in activity which generates income, which is productive and actually creates jobs, which in turn generates more revenue to the Federal Government.

That is exactly what has happened as a result of the President’s tax cuts. We are now at a fair tax burden, so people, rather than avoiding taxes, are willing to pay taxes. People are now willing to invest in taxable activity, and the Federal Government is benefiting from a robust recovery, there is job creation, and more people are paying more taxes, and the high-income people are paying even more in taxes.

I brought along a few charts to explain this more precisely. This chart reflects the fact that in the last 2 years—these are the revenues to the Federal Government, and these are the increases in revenues over the last 2 years—we started this period when we had the the Internet bubble and we had the 9/11 attacks, when the war began. This is where the tax cuts came into place. There was a dip in revenue as a result of the recession, the Internet bubble, and the 9/11 attacks, and then those tax cuts started to work, and people started to produce more economic activity, make investments, create jobs. As a result, in the last 2 years, we have the 2 highest years of increase in revenues of the history of our Government—the 2 highest years. So there has been a big jump in revenues to the Federal Government, another result of which is that our deficit has dropped precipitously. It has gone from a $450 billion estimate down to $270 billion this year.

This chart reflects the fact that we are now back, after the recessionary event—well, the blue line reflects the historical level of the percent of gross national product which go to Federal taxes: 18.1 percent. That is the blue line here. The black line represents how much we are spending as a government. The red line represents how much we are receiving as a government. You can see how up and down. What happened was, in the Internet bubble, when people were manufacturing money basically through paper, there was a huge amount of revenue generated as a result of mostly capital gains. But when that bubble collapsed and we went into recession, the economy dropped, and the incomes dropped. Down here is where we made the tax cuts, and then the economy started to come back. So now we are back at a historical level of revenues for the Federal Government. We are actually above the historical level right now. We are getting 18.2 percent of gross national product into the Federal Government.

A very interesting fact is that the high-income individuals in America today—are these the different quadrants, the different groups, people who make $15,000, people who make about $40,000, $70,000, and then people making over $184,000—that is the high-end income earner in America. Those folks are now paying almost 85 percent, essentially 85 percent of the Federal income tax burden; the high-income Americans. That is a pretty progressive system when you have the low-income people, those with $34,000 or less, actually getting money back, and the high-income individuals paying the top 20 percent paying 84 percent of the tax burden. That is called progressive taxation. That is after the tax cuts.

In fact, prior to the tax cuts, during the Clinton years—this is a chart of that top 20 percent—the high-income individuals during the Clinton years were getting 21 percent of the Federal income taxes, whereas now, under the Bush tax cut, they are paying 85 percent of the taxes. Again, I point out, if you think about it, this actually is just common sense. If you have a fair tax law, people who spend in the high income, who have the knowledge, the ability, and accountants to invest their money in a way that either pays taxes or doesn’t pay taxes—if they believe the tax burden is unfair, they are going to invest in a way that avoids taxes. They are going to buy interest-free bonds or buy highly depreciating assets. So they reduce their tax burden. But if you give them a fair tax burden, they are going to do things that are taxable, and that is good, because it means the Government is getting more in direct payments as a result of the earned-income tax credit and other credits which they receive than they ever received before.

You can compare this to the Clinton years. Low-income people, the bottom 40 percent of earners in America, basically received about 1.5 percent back in payments to them. They weren’t paying any taxes. Under President Bush’s tax plan they are getting almost 3 percent back. So we have created a tax system that is backwards, holding everything right in that it is generating a historical level of Federal taxes—how much we should take out of the economy for Federal taxes; it is generating huge revenue for the Federal Government; the highest income people in America are paying by far the greatest share of it, 85 percent, much more than they paid in the Clinton years and America are getting a benefit from the tax rebates which we give them at the highest level in history and about twice what they got under the Clinton years. Probably as important, if not more important, it has generated 18 consecutive quarters of economic growth. This has led to almost 5.7 million new jobs—and having a good job is the key to economic prosperity.

What we have accomplished is pretty impressive with these tax cuts. Yet we continue to hear them be vilified by the Democratic Party and our liberal colleagues. They just want to keep raising rates. They want to go back to the Clinton years when they would raise rates to reduce the amount of taxes that the high-income individuals would pay because they would invest in shelters or find ways to generate income that were not as taxable. As a result, it also impacted low-income people because under the Clinton years, in reality they had low-income people getting less benefit. It probably significantly reduces this economic recovery which is a direct result of the fact that there is a tax burden today which creates an incentive for the person who is willing to take a risk, an entrepreneur, that person who has a great idea, that man or woman who says: I want to go start a restaurant. I have an idea I want to try out to build and sell. That individual who is a risk-taker and a job creator has a tax climate which says: If you are successful, we are going to give you a benefit. That would be curtailed.

The other side of the aisle, my liberal colleagues, they want to raise the tax on capital. They want to raise the tax on dividends. They want to raise the tax on income. All of those things are going to have the practical effect of stifling economic growth, stifling revenues to the Federal Treasury, and undermining the entrepreneurial spirit of America and the effective use of capital, which is a bit of an economic argument, but it should be pointed out.

When you maintain a low tax burden on capital—capital being savings and things you would be willing to invest with, money people are willing to invest—that money flows to its most efficient use. But if you put a high tax on capital and savings, people put it in places where it is not efficiently used. They put it into tax shelters to put it in hard examples. If you are an entrepreneur and you are going to go out and start something and you have a 15-percent tax rate on capital, you are going to take a risk. You are going to invest in building that new restaurant, or you’re going to be in a new computer technology system or starting that new restaurant with that money. You are going to invest. But if you have a 30-percent tax—which is what the Democratic Party and our liberal colleagues want to return to, on capital—you are going to say to yourself: I don’t want to pay that much in taxes, so I am going to invest in a tax shelter. I am going to invest in something that is going to make a lot of money, but at least it saves me taxes. It is not an efficient way to use money, and it is not an efficient way for an economy to run and it skews investment arbitrarily, which is totally inappropriate and ineffective. I would tell them and would certainly not lead to these types of numbers where you have economic growth for 18 quarters, where you have 5.7 million jobs created.

We have the Federal Treasury with the two largest tax revenue years, two largest years of revenue in the last 2 years, where you have the highest income people in this country paying the largest share of Federal taxes in the history of the country, 85 percent; where we are having some people paying no taxes and actually getting more back as a result of credits and benefits under the tax law than at any time in history. And where you have an incentive, most important, for the entrepreneur, who is the essence of America’s economic strength, to go out and take risks, invest, and create jobs. The numbers are in. This hyperbole we hear from the other side of the aisle—which is a function of 1950s-Galbraith-Harvard University economics, which says, if you just keep raising taxes on people you are going to get more revenue—a stake was put in that by John Kennedy when he cut taxes. Another stake was put in that concept by Ronald Reagan when he cut taxes and got economic growth. And certainly the final stake has been put in it by the fact that we have cut taxes, we have a fair tax system now which incentivizes people to go out and be productive and causes them to be willing to invest in things that generate revenue, thus creating jobs. So that idea doesn’t work.

It only makes sense probably if you are a former theater critic who happens to be an editorial writer for the New York Times. There is no economic theory that can stand up any longer because it doesn’t work. The tax burdens, as are shown by the numbers in this country, are pretty close to where they should be because we are generating huge growth, huge revenues and we have an extraordinarily progressive system of taxation where the highest earners pay the most.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I didn’t come to the floor to speak about our economic situation, but I get so inspired by my colleague from New Hampshire that it is hard not to respond to at least a portion of it. Let me just make a comment about where we are with this economy of ours because the implication in the presentation was, boy, these tax cuts for wealthy Americans really did help this country. In 2004 the economy grew at 4.2 percent. Yet the median family income in this country fell and poverty increased. This is not the sustained period of economic growth since World War II that fails to provide real income growth for the average working family in this country. The fact is, wages and salaries are now at a lower percent of the GDP in this country than they have been since they started keeping score in 1947; some progress for working people.

I admit, the folks at the top of the ladder are doing really well because the economic program provided by the majority and by this President says ‘‘let’s provide the largest tax cuts to the wealthiest Americans because we believe it will all trickle down someday to the rest of the American people.’’ But, as we hear from the other side of the aisle, not only regrettably, now we have a dramatic increase in indebtedness. We are going to borrow close to $600 billion in the coming year in budget policy and $800 billion in trade deficits. That is a total of $1.4 trillion in a $13 trillion economy. So, that puts us over 10 percent of red ink in a single year.

This is working real well? I’m sorry, that doesn’t even pass remedial economics. That is not why I came to the floor to speak, but it is hard to ignore cheerleading for an economic policy that has put this country up to its neck in debt, hurt working families, and enriched the most wealthy Americans.

I came to the floor today and asked for some time because I wanted to talk about what I have been seeing in the newspapers and what I read this morning in the newspaper. The President, yesterday, went on another political trip to the President, suggesting that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that his party is the party that is muscular and the other party is weak. Winston Churchill once said: The farther back you look, the farther forward you see.

Let’s look back, August 6 in 2001. On August 6, 2001, President Bush was told, what is called a Presidential Daily Briefing which said that “Osama bin Laden was determined to strike in the United States.” That was the heading of the briefing received by the President: “bin Laden determined to strike in U.S.”

Here is what the 9/11 Commission report said, and I will give you the page numbers. After that briefing to the President on August 6 of 2001, “bin Laden Determined to Strike in the United States,” here is what the 9/11 Commission said they found, on page 260: The President, “did not recall discussing the August 6 report with the Attorney General, nor did he recall whether his National Security Adviser, Condoleezza Rice, had done so.”

On page 261, the 9/11 Commission found that the President’s National Security Council never met to discuss the possible threat of a strike in the United States as a result of the PDB that said “bin Laden Determined to Strike in U.S.” Imagine that, the President was told, on August 6, 2001, that “bin Laden determined to strike in the United States” and nothing was done.

In fact, the 9/11 Commission found, on page 262, no indication of any further discussion before September 11 among the President and his top advisers regarding the threat of an al-Qaida strike in the United States.

The Director of Central Intelligence, George Tenet, page 262, did not recall any discussions with the President of the domestic threat in the weeks prior to 9/11.

Finally, it says this, page 265 of the 9/11 Commission report:

In sum, the domestic agencies never mobilized in response to the threat. They did not have direction, and did not have a plan to implement the FBI’s effort. The public was not warned.

Those are the facts of what was and was not done by the President and his advisers after the President was warned on August 6, 2001 that “bin Laden was determined to strike in the United States.” Those are not my facts, but the facts on the record from a bipartisan commission that investigated following the specific warning of August 6.

Now the President is saying, “Cut and run.” Let me describe a bit more history. The President and his advisers also said there were weapons of mass destruction in Iraq. We now know they were not. There were no weapons of mass destruction in Iraq.

He said the aluminum tubes were being purchased to reconstitute nuclear capability in Iraq. We now know those who told us those were facts knew there were other facts at hand inside the administration that disagreed with their conclusion, but they never saw fit to offer that to the Congress or the American people.

On Mobile Chemical Weapons Labs, we were told, were a significant threat. The development of mobile chemical weapons labs in Iraq, we now know, came from a fellow code-named “Curve Ball.” He was the only source. One source, a man named “Curve Ball,” appeared to be probingly doing the same thing. A single source tells this country there are mobile chemical weapons labs in Iraq, and this country, through the Secretary of State, tells the world that it’s a fact. Yet, it turns out to be a fabrication.

One source, a drinker and a fabricator, told someone about it and it becomes part of this country’s national dialog. “Yellowcake. I don’t need to go much further about yellowcake from Niger which turns out not to have been true either, with forged documents, mind you.

And Mohammed Atta, one of the hijackers, in Prague, turns out not to have been true. As a result of all of that, the war on terrorism took a detour and we went to Iraq. We are now in Iraq. Saddam Hussein was found in a rat hole. He is now on trial. Is that good? Sure, it is good. He was a repressive, brutal dictator who murdered people. Sure, that is good that he’s out of power.

We are now in the middle of a civil war. Yes, we can describe it that way, probably a low-grade civil war, but a civil war in Iraq. That is where we have American troops stationed at present. And the President just says, stay the course. If anyone suggests, maybe we ought to have a discussion about being smarter and tougher in winning that war, the President says you believe in cutting and running. Being at war deserves thoughtful debate, thoughtful debate about how to win that war, about the detour from the war on terror. Just saying cutting and running, that is thoughtless debate, in my judgment.

Stay the course? Stay the course? How? Where? When? For what? The fact is, it is a mess. We have ourselves in a mess. We cannot pull American troops out of Iraq. None of my colleagues, I believe, have suggested we should. None that I am aware of have suggested we should.

But stay the course? Shouldn’t we be smarter, tougher, more effective, and make course corrections when necessary? Course corrections that will give this country a chance to succeed rather than fail? We have debates about wiretapping in the context of all of this because the President has decided he is going to speak about Iraq in the same context as the war on terrorism. It is different. They are related somewhat now because we went to Iraq, but they were different. So the President talks about wiretapping. I am for wiretapping conversations between al-Qaeda and the United States.

I say, wiretap, eavesdrop, find out what terroists are saying. But no President, no Republican and no Democratic President, ought to have the right to indiscriminate eavesdrop and wiretap on all Americans.

We do not even know what this has been about. We do not know how extensively it has been used. We are not even sure how many Americans have been listened to, how many records have been looked at. Yes, let’s wiretap and find out what al-Qaida operatives are saying in telephone calls. Let’s also protect the basic liberties of this country as we do so.

Last week, we had three people testify before a policy committee hearing, with a combined service to this country of over 100 years. They were all combat veterans said we repeatedly led our troops. Two generals, two-star generals and a colonel. One of the two star generals was offered a promotion to a third star and had a bright promising future, but he turned it down and retired. He did the right thing and no longer serve under the Secretary of Defense and follow a flawed strategy and policy.

Here is just one example of what they said. They repeatedly asked for more troops in Iraq. As commanders of their units they repeatedly asked for more troops and repeatedly were turned down.

That is at odds with what we all of America, we were told all along the way by GEN. Tommy Franks and General Myers. That is also at odds with what General Pace has stated standing next to Secretary Rumsfeld and standing next to President Bush. These Iraq commanders have been told. That is at odds with everything the American people have been told.

That’s not all. Body armor? A young man told me he signed up to go to Iraq, felt it was his duty after 9/11, quit school to do it, and when he gets there his mother, an elementary school-teacher, had to go online on the Internet to purchase body armor to send to her son in Iraq.

Colonel Hammas said, we know we have better armored vehicles to protect our soldiers than the up-armored Humvees. We know we have better armored vehicles. We have already produced 1,000 of them. Why are we not mass producing those vehicles? At the end of World War II we were producing planes a year to support that war. This country mobilized and said, we are in a war, we are going to win it, we are going to produce what is necessary to support our troops, to protect our troops. Right now, we have better armored vehicles, but we are not producing them. We have mobilized this country to fight this war, to protect our troops, to win. We have not mobilized this country.
Don’t believe me, talk to the generals who have been there, who now are risking their reputations by being willing to speak out now on behalf of the troops who can’t speak, who can’t tell us these facts.

There is a saying, ‘A lie travels halfway around the world before the truth gets its shoes on.’ But finally the truth is getting fully dressed. We need the truth and the facts to understand what this country confronts. This country has great capabilities. We should be one nation indivisible. We are not these days. There is too much shouting. There are too many slogans like cut and run.

We should be one nation as we confront this terrorism that threatens our country. We should be one nation as we search for ways to deal with the conflict in Iraq and to protect American soldiers who are there on behalf of their country.

Most importantly, we need to be tough, not soft as we take on these challenges. This is a new war, a different war, the war against terrorism and the circumstances that our troops find themselves in, in Iraq, fighting a war against an insurgency that doesn’t wear uniforms, requires us to be smart and tough, requires us to change tactics and strategy when necessary and to have a national discussion about how we succeed as a country.

Yet this President will hear none of it. He will not listen. He will not do what needs to be done. He is content to go to Alabama and say that those who openly question anything he does are people who suggest we should cut and run. I regret that.

What we need to do, it seems to me, is to accept advice from some of the best minds in this country. Bring people together, Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and liberals, academics and others, bring them together and let’s get the best of what everyone has to offer instead of the worst of each.

Let’s bring people together in this country. Let’s stop this nonsense, one side is coddling terrorists, one side is refusing a third star and resigned instead, who commanded the first infantry division in Iraq, had his commitment to his country questioned. Why? Because he had the tenacity to speak out, to say, ‘I was there, I was leading my troops. I was asking for more troops and I was turned down.’ People need to know that.

We shouldn’t be questioning the motives or patriotism of people who have committed themselves to their country. They have put their lives to their country, our country.

Let’s elevate this debate. Let’s come together. Let’s act as one America. And let’s fight these terrorist groups.

Let’s succeed and prevail, together.

Yes, let’s find a way to accomplish our objectives in Iraq. Let’s do that. If it takes more troops, let’s do that. If it takes a different strategy, if it takes changing the course, let’s do that.

But let’s do it together. Let’s not get on Air Force One and go to a State six or eight States away and suggest that your political adversaries want to cut and run. That hardly serves thoughtful debate in this country. This country deserves better. Democrats and Republicans need to come together and speak out and speak up for the interests of this country.

But, to do that, we have to listen to each other. We have to listen to people like the generals. We have to listen to people who might disagree with us. We can’t be stubborn. That’s the only way, together, we will win against the terrorists.

I yield the floor.

RYAN WHITE CARE ACT

Mrs. CLINTON. In 1990, Congress enacted a law that has been a vital part of our national strategy to fight AIDS and HIV, the Ryan White CARE Act, which directs support and resources to the people and communities most in need throughout our Nation.

It was an incredible act of compassion, smart decisionmaking, and bipartisanship. Members in this Chamber put aside politics, recognized the seriousness of the crisis, and took action.

How far we have come. Unfortunately, though, the recent debate around the Ryan White CARE Act has been marred by misconceptions and required us to change tactics and strategy when necessary and to have a national discussion about how we succeed as a country.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized, under the previous order, for 15 minutes.

Mrs. CLINTON. Thank you, Mr. President.

RYAN WHITE CARE ACT

Mrs. CLINTON. In 1990, Congress enacted a law that has been a vital part of our national strategy to fight AIDS and HIV, the Ryan White CARE Act, which directs support and resources to the people and communities most in need throughout our Nation.

It was an incredible act of compassion, smart decisionmaking, and bipartisanship. Members in this Chamber put aside politics, recognized the seriousness of the crisis, and took action.

How far we have come. Unfortunately, though, the recent debate around the Ryan White CARE Act has been marred by misconceptions and required us to change tactics and strategy when necessary and to have a national discussion about how we succeed as a country.

First, some of my colleagues have alleged that New York receives more funding per case than the national average, suggesting that New York is somehow getting more than its fair share. But the numbers I heard being used on the Senate floor yesterday only represented part of the funding under the Ryan White CARE Act, skewing the data to make a political point.

When you look at the whole picture and see the funding under the whole bill, the story is very different.

According to an analysis prepared by the Communities Advocating for Emergent Ryan White CARE Coalition, the CAEAR Coalition—as seen on this chart—the national per case allocation for people with AIDS is $475.

Here is the State-by-State breakdown. New York is by no means at the top of this analysis, with a national analysis that accounts for the cost of living and treatment in my State.

Some of my colleagues have cried foul saying they get far less per person with AIDS than New York. I heard my friends and colleagues from Wyoming and Alabama making that point. But here are the facts, and they say otherwise.

When you look at all of the titles under the Ryan White CARE Act, Wyoming and Alabama actually receive more per person with AIDS than New York and more than the national average. The difference between Oklahoma and New York is about $100 per person living with AIDS. And, again, these numbers do not account for differences in costs.

Second, there are those making misleading statements about my State, that we misuse funding, or do not use the funding we receive, claims that are simply not true. Some have even asserted that New York has allowed dog walkers to count under the CARE Act.

Well, let me set the record straight. New York is not using Federal dollars for such services. And to point fingers and suggest such allocations impugns my State and is profoundly unfair to the thousands of New Yorkers who rely each and every day on the CARE Act for treatment and needed services.

New York has been audited by the HHS—the Health and Human Servic—inspector general. They said New York complies with all requirements and is not misspending or mismanaging its funds.

Another specific claim is that New York somehow not even using the funds we receive, that we retain surpluses every year. Well, being fiscally responsible is good management.
In New York, a tiny percentage of unspent funds is carried from one year to the next. This year, New York carried about $3 million over, representing about 3 days’ worth of expenses. That is exactly what I want States to do—manage their funds and avoid interruptions in care or create waiting lists. I don’t believe sound fiscal management is something to denigrate.

Third, we are having a debate now over a shrinking pot of funding, at a time when I absolutely agree that more States and more States have greater and greater needs. But to argue about the formula instead of arguing about the program and what it needs to be funded appropriately seems like a diversion. We are having a formula fight when we should be focused on fixing our strategy and strengthening our funding to meet the growing challenge and crisis of HIV/AIDS in America. That is the real debate we should be having on the floor of the Senate.

Here is a chart that shows the increase of people living with HIV/AIDS in the United States. That is this red line here. It shows the decline in funding for title I of the CARE Act. So you can see the disparity. I have a great deal of sympathy for my friends from States that are just realizing the full extent of the AIDS crisis in their communities, who are deeply concerned by the fast-growing number of such cases among poor women and among our African-American and Hispanic populations. But here is part of the reason we are in this dilemma. Here is the number of AIDS cases, and here is the amount of funding available to deal with them.

Instead of honoring our moral obligation, instead of strengthening our efforts as the epidemic continues to grow, State and local agencies and community groups have been forced to do more with less. This is especially true in the States that have been hardest hit by the AIDS epidemic. Back in the 1980s and 1990s, people were moving from other States to be able to come to New York, where they thought somebody would care enough to try to take care of them. And New York still leads the Nation in both the number of overall HIV/AIDS cases as well as the number of new HIV infections each year.

What is this fight about? Well, I will tell you: It amounts to lose more than $78 million in funding over the next 5 years. We would see New York City alone lose $17 million next year. But we know who would really lose— the patients whose health and lives are on the line.

With the exception of the AIDS Drug Assistance Program—which still doesn’t go nearly far enough, given the long waiting list for the poorest and sickest of those who cannot afford the drugs they need to stay healthy and alive—the CARE Act has been cut over the past 3 years, even as costs and the number of people with the virus have risen, adding to the pressure on New York, New Jersey, and other States with higher costs of living and the largest numbers of people living with HIV/AIDS.

In addition, the Ryan White CARE Act is the payer of last resort; it is the safety net for those who fail to qualify for Medicaid or Medicare. And this year, Congress and the administration have spent years trying to cut big holes in both. In fact, the CARE Act is only part of the strategy against this terrible disease. The Medicaid Program serves nearly half of those living with HIV/AIDS in America. This Republican Congress and the Republican administration have tried time and time again to cut Medicaid and have succeeded in passing drastic reductions. I have introduced bipartisan legislation with my colleague, Senator Gordon Smith, the Early Treatment for HIV Act. This legislation would provide Federal funding to extend Medicaid eligibility to low-income Americans living with HIV before they develop symptoms, allowing them to access life-extending medical services.

There are those suggesting that somehow the epidemic has changed, trying to pit one part of the country against another, trying once again to divide and conquer. My colleagues have told me there is not enough money to prevent cutbacks for New York and other States that lose under this proposed formula. Nine States, plus Puerto Rico, lose, and every other State gains. So, in effect, you want to take money away from my 100,000 people living with HIV/AIDS and give it to worthy people in other parts of the country because this administration and this Congress won’t put more money into funding treatment programs for HIV/AIDS.

My colleagues on the other side still refuse to provide us with a guarantee— at a time when the epidemic continues to grow—that New York and other States that are hard hit, that need to stay prepared to deal with the epidemic, that need a guarantee meant to make sure people dying with AIDS have the treatment they need.

The White House and Republican leadership in the Congress are cynically pressuring many of my colleagues that if they don’t reauthorize the bill this year, they will face cuts in funding next year. But approving a fundamentally flawed bill, under pressure, that will end up hurting people living with HIV/AIDS, is not the way to do. We should be working to strengthen the CARE Act for everyone.

I will also address the question of the expanding epidemic. There is no doubt that it is growing—40,000 new HIV infections occur every year in the United States, and they have a disproportionate impact on people of color. In my State, African Americans account for 45 percent of the total population living with HIV/AIDS, while Hispanics account for an additional 29 percent of the population. But this bill cuts funding for both of them. Groups such as the National Minority AIDS Council, the Hispanic Federation, and the Latino Commission on HIV/AIDS have expressed concern over these cuts which would limit access to care for far too many people of color and people of modest, limited means.

We are also seeing the infection rate rising among women. In New York alone, over 30,000 women are living with HIV/AIDS. Women would also be shortchanged under the latest version of the CARE Act. Indeed, the version of the bill my colleagues are looking up would flat-fund what is called title IV—the very program designed to address the needs of women, infants, and children, the populations so many have come to this floor and spoken about so eloquently.

Let’s put our money where our mouth is. Let’s put money into this program so we are not picking between a poor African American in New York City and a poor African-American who is Alabamian and deserves help.

The epidemic is spreading. When people talk about the South, they are talking not only about Alabama and North Carolina but Washington, DC, Texas, Florida, and Maryland, which are the places that have been the hardest hit by this epidemic. Texas and Florida alone account for about 30 percent of people living with AIDS. Yet Florida, too, would lose money under this proposal.

If we decide to meet the growing AIDS epidemic in our Nation, I hope we can look at the facts about how the program works now and try to come to a bipartisan solution that covers the entire country’s needs and leads to a real solution, not a political one. We know there are solutions. Those of us who are going to be giving up money so some can be shifted to take care of other people who are worthy and deserve help have proposed solutions.

This is not about politics. This is about how we help people. My colleagues from New York, New Jersey, Illinois, and Florida have proposed a 1-year extension for the Ryan White CARE Act. So let’s extend it for a year and figure out how we can fix it. I think we could raise the authorization levels across the titles by 3.7 percent and set up a grant program to address unmet needs of States that do not receive title I funding in order to address the challenge in rural areas where HIV incidence has also increased. Our proposal would delay penalties for those who fail to file the HIV reporting requirements and give them time to come into compliance with the CDC.

As a Senator from New York, which has experienced the heaviest burden of the AIDS epidemic, I don’t think anyone cares more about this legislation. I understand completely the profound importance of the Ryan White CARE Act. I am committed to the reauthorization of a good bill that strengthens and improves the ability of all Americans to access HIV/AIDS care, support, and treatment. But a bill that destabilizes existing systems of care and devastates, even destroys, the ability of high-prevalence communities to address needs is unacceptable.

I stand ready to work with my colleagues on a fair, openminded, non-partisan, practical solution— in the spirit of the original bill that brought people together to develop a strategy to combat this horrible epidemic that has caused so much death and destruction, destroyed so many lives, created such a challenge to our health care system and our budget.

Mr. President, we can do this if we really want to. All it takes is narrowing the gap between these two lines on the chart—HIV/AIDS cases and the amount of funding available. Some of the priorities on which we are asked to vote in this Chamber certainly don’t reflect the pressing needs I have heard described in this Chamber. I hope we can come up with a real solution for the White House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island is recognized.

BREAST CANCER AND ENVIRONMENTAL RESEARCH ACT

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about a disease that has touched many American families. Breast cancer is the second leading cause of death among American women. More women are living with breast cancer than any other cancer.

Three million women are living with breast cancer in the United States, 2 million of which have been diagnosed and 1 million who don’t know they have the disease. Over 40,000 women will have died from breast cancer this year alone. It is the leading cause of cancer deaths among women between the ages of 20 and 59.

What is the Senate doing about breast cancer? Some of you may know that I have a bill, S. 757, the Breast Cancer and Environmental Research Act. The bill was first introduced on March 23, 2000, in the 106th Congress. Since that time, the bill has been introduced in the 107th Congress, where it passed unanimously by the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island, with unanimous consent, is recognized.

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, will the Senate from Rhode Island, with whom I agree 100 percent, join me in a unanimous-consent request to pass this bill right now?

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate pass the Breast Cancer Environmental Research Act of 2006.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On behalf of another Senator, in my personal capacity as a Senator from the State of Louisiana, I object.

There is objection heard.

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, I join my colleague in expressing great regret that once again the women of America have been blocked from having the additional help that this bill would provide. I applaud those of us who have tried on a bipartisan basis to pass this very important bill to increase research between the possible links of breast cancer and the environment and to include peer review grant programs within the National Institutes of Health and make sure that consumers and researchers and victims of breast cancer are part of determining how we spend money in order to try to prevent, treat, and ultimately abolish the horrible disease of breast cancer.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? The Senator from Arizona is recognized.

Under the previous agreement, the Senator is recognized for 15 minutes.

BORDER SECURITY

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I shall not take that much time, but I do think it is important to speak to the issue before us, which is adoption of the House bill which takes another step toward securing our border. This is something that the American people have been wanting us to do for a long time.

What we will also be doing today, in fact, some of our actions in the past weeks have also supplemented, is to ensure the money, the appropriations bills that we need to fund all of the things that we need to be doing to secure the borders. I will speak to both of those items.

The key to the House bill is to state a commitment that we are going to put the kind of infrastructure on the border that we need to secure the border. It starts with fencing, but it doesn’t end with fencing. It includes vehicle barriers because much of the illegal entry into the United States now is accomplished by vehicles. It includes technology, such as cameras and sensors and other means of identifying people who are crossing our border illegally.

Some people say that we don’t need a fence or these infrastructure barriers because someday we are going to adopt comprehensive immigration reform, and when we take away the magnet of illegal employment, then we are not going to have the problem anymore.

That is my fervent hope with respect to the people who cross the border to gain employment here. But the sad reality is that even if we solve that problem—and we haven’t gotten very far down that road because we haven’t adopted comprehensive immigration reform yet—even if we were to accomplish that in the future, we still have a very high percentage of people coming across the border whom we don’t want here, no matter what.

What am I speaking of? I am speaking of drug dealers, drug cartel members, gang members, and criminals, people wanted for crime, people who have committed crime, much of it very serious crime. As a matter of fact, before the subcommittee I chair on terrorism and homeland security, the head of the Border Patrol testified a few months ago that over 10 percent of the people apprehended for crossing our border illegally have criminal records, and many of these are serious criminal records.

In fact, the statistics for this fiscal year, which is almost over, show that the percentage is closer to about 13 to 14 percent, and of those a significant number have committed serious crimes.

Here are the statistics year to date: Over 1 million illegal immigrants have been apprehended on the southwest border. Of that number, almost half have come through Arizona, the Yuma and Tucson sectors, so far about 475,000. And of the illegal immigrants apprehended crossing our border to date in this fiscal year, 141,000—plus serious crimes. As a matter of fact, half of that number, well over 20,000 are considered to have committed major crimes such as homicide, kidnapping, sexual assault, robbery, assault, dealing in dangerous drugs, and the like.

Illegal borders to illegal entry into this country are important not just to ensure that we enforce our laws with respect to employment but to keep out people who would do our citizens harm. The papers in my State are full of stories every week of people who came to this country illegally and then committed crimes on citizens of the United States and on other illegal immigrants.

It is not at all uncommon to see stories... of crimes committed against people who just came here for a better way of life but who were assaulted, who were robbed, who were kidnapped for more ransom so their families back home would have to pay money to these coyotes, and all manner of heinous crime that we have to stop, we have to prevent. And the best way to do that is to have barriers to illegal entry into this country.

I mentioned vehicle barriers. Fencing is important and this legislation from the House requires the Department of Homeland Security to begin building fences. I talked with the Secretary this morning. That project has already started. That's well on their way. We are constructing fencing, and we will be appropriating the money for even more of that construction in the future.

But we also have to put up vehicle barriers because more and more now with the territory contested, the illegal entry into this country either to bring drugs in or the human smugglers to bring their cargo, as they call it, requires the use of vehicles.

Here is the problem from the Border Patrol perspective. When they see a vehicle, they know they have trouble because it is a more valuable cargo. One can carry more in a vehicle than in a backpack and, therefore, it is more valuable and they are probably going to protect it. If they are going to protect it, it is probably going to be with weapons.

The number of assaults on the border are up dramatically—108 percent last year according to the U.S. attorney for the District of Arizona. The reason for that is that the Border Patrol is finally beginning to gain control of parts of the border. They are contesting the territory of the drug cartels and the coyotes and dangerous gangs from places such as El Salvador. As a result, there is much more violence, and it is causing real problems for the Border Patrol.

That is the bad news with the good news. We are gaining more territory, more control, but with that comes more crime. Eventually, or course, the control will be consolidated and the violence will go down. But the point is that it is important we demonstrate to the American people that we are serious about gaining control of the border, and the sooner we get about it the better.

So we have to have Border Patrol along with fencing, and that means we also have to increase Border Patrol. What are we doing in that regard? We are appropriating the money for another 1,500 Border Patrol this year, which will take us up to well over 14,000, approaching 15,000, and that is another critical component of this legislation.

Vehicle barriers, fencing, sensors, Border Patrol units, and in those places where it doesn't make sense to have a physical fence, we can have a video camera—onision in a control room which can monitor maybe 20 different cameras, and at any time they see people massing on the other side of the border, they can simply call up the Border Patrol in the area closest, making sure they get to that site in time to apprehend the individuals crossing illegally or to prevent the crossing.

All of this can be done. We simply need to appropriate the money and to grant the authority and the direction to the Department of Homeland Security to get the job done.

I am advised by the Secretary that this fencing is already under construction and that he can move to a much more aggressive schedule. Obviously, we need to do it in a cost-effective way, and he needs to have the discretion of sequencing what fencing goes where when, whether vehicle barriers are better than fencing, or cameras would do the job, and so forth.

With the direction of Congress to get this done, and his commitment to get it done, I am persuaded we can make a big dent in getting control of our borders. That is what we committed to the American people we are going to do.

The key point I want to say today is that I am going to be very pleased when we are able to adopt this legislation. No one should think that it is the end; rather, it is the end of the beginning. The beginning step is to secure the border and by extension, with this bill, we will have nailed in place the direction to the Department of Homeland Security. If we continue to adopt the appropriations that we have begun to adopt to spend the money on all the different items I talked about, if we put our money where our mouth is—and we are doing that—then we will be able to demonstrate to the American people that we care.

The basic question that they always ask me, which is: Why should we adopt some new legislation when the Federal Government isn't enforcing the laws we have? This demonstrates to them that we are enforcing the laws we have, that we are committed to that enforcement. Then we can go to the American people and ask for their support and their consensus on the next step, which would be comprehensive immigration reform to deal with the problem of illegal hiring, to have electronic verification of employment, to have a temporary worker program that really works because it is for temporary employment only, not permanent employment, and finally, to deal with the illegal immigrants who are here already.

All of those items need to be done, and the sooner we get about it the better. But the place to start is by securing the border, and the place to start with is that the construction of fencing and other barriers to prevent illegal entry.

I am pleased the House has passed the bill. I am pleased that we are going to be passing the bill tonight. I urge my colleagues to support this measure whenever the hour comes that we actually get to vote on it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma is recognized.

BYAN WHITE CARE ACT

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, it is my understanding this is the minority's time. Senator BYRD is coming to the floor, and they graciously granted me time to talk.

I wish to address a couple of issues that were raised by the Senator from New York as to the accuracies of the claims that have been made. I think it is important.

I don't doubt for a minute that she genuinely cares for everybody who has HIV in this country. I think she does. I think her perspective on the challenges that face us as a nation in terms of finances is different from mine, and I want her to know that some of the claims made are not really accurate.

I ask unanimous consent to print in the RECORD an article from the New York Times stating specifically money was spent on walking dogs for HIV/AIDS patients, art classes, tickets to Broadway shows, free legal services, haircuts, things that other people can’t do in any other place other than New York and California.

The White House's objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NEW CHALLENGE TO IDEA THAT ‘AIDS IS SPECIAL’

(By Sheryl Gay Stolberg)

Behind the swinging glass doors that welcome visitors to the Whitman-Walker Clinic in Washington, a counterpart to Gay Men's Health Crisis has become the nation's oldest and largest AIDS social-service agency. Almost everything is free: hot lunches, haircuts, art classes and even tickets to Broadway shows. Lawyers dispense advice free. Social workers guide patients through a Byzantine array of Government programs for people with H.I.V., and on Friday nights dinner is served by candlelight.

The philosophy underlying the niceties and necessities is “AIDS exceptionalism.” The idea, in the words of Mark Robinson, executive director of the organization, is that “AIDS is special and it requires special status.” That is a concept that has become so much the battle of advocates for people with other diseases.

Now some advocates for people with AIDS are quietly questioning it themselves.

With death rates from the disease dropping for the first time in the history of the 16-year-old epidemic, the advocates suggest, it is time to re-examine the vast network of highly specialized support services for people with H.I.V. Some people are growing increasingly uncomfortable with the fact that the Government sets aside money for doctors' visits, shelter and drugs for people with AIDS but that it does not have comparable programs for other diseases.

"Why do people with AIDS get funding for primary care?" asked Martin Delaney, founder of Project Inform, a group in San Francisco, asked in an interview. "There are certainly other life-threatening diseases out there, but still a lot more money to be spent on AIDS does. So in one sense it is almost an advantage to be H.I.V. positive. It makes sense.

Mr. Delaney, a prominent voice in AIDS affairs since the onset of the epidemic, is calling on advocates to band with people working on other diseases in demanding that programs for AIDS be replaced with a national health care system.

He complained that organizations like the Gay Men's Health Crisis had been "bought off" because they give to the Government's AIDS Drug Assistance Program. "A lot of us are saying that the AIDS network or AIDS Inc. or whatever you want to call it, this whole notion of spending $12.5 million to renovate its new headquarters in a simple but expansive 12-story brick building on Wisconsin Avenue in Washington, a counterpart to Gay Men's Health Crisis has become the nation's oldest and largest AIDS social-service agency. Almost everything is free: hot lunches, haircuts, art classes and even tickets to Broadway shows. Lawyers dispense advice free. If Congress enact the plan, AIDS spending would increase 4 percent over last year, and 70 percent over 1993, when Mr. Clinton took office.

In a paradox, some doctors see the array of social services as a source of problems. Some advocates for people whose behavior puts them at risk for AIDS, but who are not yet infected.

"We're trying to figure out how to provide services to a lot more H.I.V.-negative people," Mr. Delaney said. "That's a lot of people impacted. So now you have a critical mass.

That mass has translated into a political force—and significant Federal money. In his budget proposal for 1998, President Clinton has asked Congress to allocate more than $1.5 billion for AIDS research programs, including $1.5 billion for AIDS research at the National Institutes of Health and $1.04 billion for the Ryan White Care Act, which provides medical care, counseling, prescription drugs and dental visits for people with H.I.V.

health care. “We’ve got to form an alliance with these other diseases,” Dr. Annam said, “and say, None of us is going to get adequate health care the way the system is going.”

But others call Mr. Delaney naive. “It’s interesting to muse about what he says,” said Charles Epstein, the New York City comptroller’s office. “But it’s both undesirable and impossible. So what’s the point of talking about it?”

Naire or not, in challenging exceptionalism Mr. Delaney has clearly broken a taboo.

“We sort of question it among ourselves behind closed doors,” said Mark Hannay, a member of the New York chapter of Act Up, the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power. “Like, isn’t this nice, but we’re the only ones getting it.”

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, another key fact: New York State alone spends $25 million a year just on administration of their Ryan White Title I funds. That is more money on administration than 38 other States combined, 38 other States spend total on all of it.

The Senator from New York showed a chart on AIDS cases and spending. Well, she was right. It was about AIDS cases, but it wasn’t about AIDS and HIV deaths. Individual. When you look at it in terms of those infected with HIV rather than AIDS cases and when you look at AIDS cases, AIDS cases are based on those who have had AIDS in the past and those who have AIDS today but does not reflect the epidemic.

I also ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record an article on the housing and rooming in New York for people who are no longer alive but for which they paid for a number of months, a large number of people, where money was wasted.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

HIV/AIDS Shelter Costs Challenged

BY ELLEN YAN

July 5, 2005.—The [New York] city agency that secures temporary shelter for indigent people with HIV/AIDS shelled out $2.2 million in the previous Ryan White Act to provide money for overnight stays on or after July 2002 for 91 units that were erroneously listed as dead in Social Security records.

In addition, the agency wrote, weekly registration logs are not final proof of whether a person with AIDS may have been too sick to sign.

The agency also accused Thompson’s office of giving up “over-the-counter” housing conditions by concluding the 91 units checked were “generally in satisfactory condition” but then rating 25 of them “unsuitable and unsanitary.”

The housing agency agreed with most of the audit’s recommendations, including checking vendors’ bills against client and Social Security records.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, it is disingenuous to use AIDS cases alone to make comparisons. The reason for that is because this is an epidemic. And thanks to the wonderful presence of modern-day medicines, medicines are preventing people who have HIV from ever contracting the full blown AIDS syndrome.

The whole idea behind the bill that Senators EINZI and KENNEDY have offered and that has passed the House with over 300 votes is to have the money follow the epidemic. That is what this bill does. There are small declines in the amount of money per person in New York, and increases in funds are available for those in the nonmetropolitan areas throughout the South.

We know the face of the epidemic is changing. That epidemic says that we ought to be caring for them. The Senator’s answer is just spend more money. But last year, when I offered an amendment to add $60 million to the ADAP by cutting pork projects, she voted against it. So I am coming to the floor and that is not the thought you are for spending more money, but if you don’t want to cut out a Japanese garden which is for a Federal Government building which was $60 million so you can put $60 million into lifesaving drugs, some would claim that is not real support for more money.

The final point I wish to make is that last year, New York received over $1.4 billion in earmarks, earmarks that were not necessary. That is not necessary in a time of war.

There was no offer to cut back on the earmarks for the State of New York to pay for greater care for AIDS patients. Some want to have it both ways: earmark a bill that doesn’t work in terms of the Ryan White Act and pay for greater care for AIDS patients.

Maryland, where he worked his way—yes, he worked his way through school by waiting on tables, washing dishes, and mopping floors in the Mayflower Grill in downtown Salisbury. From there, it was on to Princeton, that great university, for an undergraduate degree at Oxford University as a Rhodes scholar—as a Rhodes scholar—and then on to Harvard Law School.

Paul Sarbanes began his career in public service in 1966. I had just begun my service as a Member of the U.S. Senate 2 years before when Paul Sarbanes was elected to the Maryland State Legislature in 1966. In 1970, Paul Sarbanes was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives where, as a member of the House Judiciary Committee, he introduced the first article of impeachment against President Nixon.

That was Paul Sarbanes. After three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives, in 1976 he was elected to the U.S. Senate, and in this body—where his career became even more fascinating and extraordinary.

In the U.S. Senate, Paul Sarbanes has served as chairman of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee and chairman of the Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs Committee. And he was chairman of the very impressive and influential Maryland Congressional Delegation, which includes Senator Barbara Mikulski and the House Democratic Whip. Mr. President, Paul Sarbanes has also been a very effective member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the Senate Budget Committee.

Senator Sarbanes has authored and sponsored important legislation, including the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, which has been called the most far-reaching reforms of American business practices since the time of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

I have always admired the quiet but effective way in which this unassuming, brilliant—I mean brilliant—and most reasonable lawmaker has performed the Nation’s business. Paul Sarbanes, the Greeks taught the world to think. I don’t know whether that is original or not, but that is the way I feel about it, in any event. The Greeks taught the world to think. I have always thought of Paul Sarbanes as a thinker—a thinker—a thinker. On the other hand, when you dissect his brain, you are sure to find the most powerful and most arrogant wit—let it be a Senator, he is the most powerful and most arrogant wit—he can dissect even the most controversial debate on matters, I could always count on Paul Sarbanes being there—with his friendship, his assistance, and his advice. I always called on Paul Sarbanes as I gathered the chairmen of the committees where I was the majority leader of the Senate and when I was the minority leader. I would call my Democratic chairmen around me. They were my board of directors, the chairmen of the various committees which I was in charge of, always called Paul Sarbanes—he and some others, like Wendell Ford—but I am talking about Paul Sarbanes. I cannot begin to describe how important his support was and how much I appreciated it.

As I have said before, every leader would be fortunate to have a Paul Sarbanes, this Greek—and I say that with great pride—this Greek thinker. When I see the statue of “The Thinker,” with his fist under his chin, I think of Paul Sarbanes. Yes, I think of Paul Sarbanes. If I am so fortunate myself to have Paul Sarbanes as a colleague to whom I could go and seek advice and counsel.

Senator Sarbanes was one of just 23 Members of this Chamber who was willing to defy the popular opinion—yes, to stand up to the President of the United States and to throw himself against the forces of war in voting against the resolution to launch an unprecedented preemptive assault, military assault, military invasion of a country that had never attacked us, never attacked our country: a country that did not pose a preeminent threat to our national security—Iraq. If only there had been more Senators like Paul Sarbanes, one of the 23 immortals. I like to think of it in that way.

I am in my 48th year in the Senate, and I was 6 years in the other body, making more than half a century in the Congress of the United States. I have always, since that vote, felt that I cast the greatest vote that I have ever cast. I have cast more than 17,000 roll-call votes in the Senate. I will always look upon that vote as the greatest vote, the vote in which I take the most pride, during my 54 years in the Congress of the United States—the greatest vote I ever cast. I cast that vote with 22 other Senators, one of whom is now gone. He died in a plane crash.

When Senator Sarbanes announced his retirement in March 2005, I remarked that he “will be missed” and that he “will not be replaced.” While Paul Sarbanes will be missed, I might have to qualify the latter portion of that statement. Just a few weeks ago his son, Paul Sarbanes’ son John—John, what a name—won the Democratic primary in the 3rd district in Maryland to become a Democratic nominee for the U.S. House of Representatives. Therefore, come January, we might have another Sarbanes serving in Congress—praise be to God. If so, it will be fascinating to watch that son follow in his father’s footsteps.

As the old saying goes: A Sarbanes goes and a Sarbanes comes, and Congress, like Tennyson’s brook, goes on forever. That is not really an old saying. I probably just made it up. But I like it: yes, I like it. It is close by a simply saying thank you. Thank you Senator Paul Sarbanes, I thank you.

I remember Paul Sarbanes years ago when we were thinking and talking about and debating the Panama Canal treaty. I was against that treaty in the beginning, and then I read “The Path Between The Seas” and I changed my mind. I studied the matter. I did what Paul Sarbanes did, I studied the matter. I thought about the matter. I changed my viewpoints.

Paul Sarbanes, I thank you. I thank you for being a true friend. I thank you for being a truly esteemed colleague. I don’t say these words lightly. I have been here a long time. I know a good man or woman, a good Senator when I see a good Senator. And I know this man is one of the finest of all Senators and a great American.

Thank you, Paul Sarbanes, for everything that you have done for your State and your people and country our people. I wish you and your lovely wife Christine nothing but ambrosia and nectar as you enter the next phase of your lives.

God, give us men.

A time like this demands strong minds, Great hearts, true faith, and ready hands.

provided over his service, both in the House of Representatives and, for the last 48 years, in the Senate. I have been here three decades and there is no one during that time who has spoken more eloquently, more perceptively about our Constitution and the role of the Senate within the Constitution, who has sought to strengthen the Senate as an institution and to have it play its role in the checks and balances arrangements which our Founding Fathers established in Philadelphia in the summer of 1787.

Senator BYRD again and again has called us to a higher standard. He has urged us over and over to do the right thing, to understand what our roles are as Senators, and, as he said, I know of no issue, certainly in recent times, where he has more pointedly expressed our role than when we considered the issue of giving the President authority to go to war in Iraq. It was Senator BYRD who sounded a clarion call that was heard all across the country, as he raised the basic questions that needed to be raised with respect to an issue of such gravity and significance. I have been honored to serve with the Senator. I early recognized that the wisdom and the leadership that he has brought to the Senate, which I would be to follow his leadership. Again and again I have been privileged to have the opportunity to do that. I thank him very much for what he just said. I want him to know that as long as he stands on the floor of the Senate, I have confidence that our Constitution and this body as an institution are in good hands.

That is a magnificent service that he renders to the Republic. I thank him very much.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank my dear friend. I shall always cherish the words thus spoken and always reflect upon this Senator, PAUL SARABANES, with great pride.

MARK DAYTON

Mr. President, I say farewell to Senator DAYTON. Seldom has a freshman Senator made more of an impression on me than has Senator MARK DAYTON of Minnesota who has announced that he will be leaving us at the end of this session of the Congress.

From the start of his service in this Chamber, I have been struck by Senator DAYTON's determination to learn the rules, to learn the traditions, to learn the customs of the Senate.

When Senator DAYTON presented over the cameraman, who was one of the responsibilities of freshman Senators, he always did so with attention and dignity. His demeanor was inspiring. It restored my belief in the future of this great institution.

When I meet with new Senators, as I often do, about the duties of the Presiding Officer, I urge them to use that gavel on that desk vigorously to bring the U.S. Senate to order. I recall one instance when Senator DAYTON handled the gavel so hard that he nearly fell out of his chair. That is the way it should be. I thought to myself: Bang that gavel, bring the Senate to order so that the Senate can conduct the Nation's business.

I am also impressed about the reverence that Senator DAYTON shows for our Nation's most basic, most important document, the Constitution of the United States of America.

Many people who have served in this Chamber will have to answer to history for the way they have ignored and trampled upon our Constitution. As President Lincoln once reminded the Members of Congress: "We cannot escape history."

I am confident that history will hold Senator DAYTON in high regard.

Time after time, this freshman Senator has stood with me and the Constitution of the United States on the important issues before us. Senator DAYTON was one of the lonely 23 Senators who voted not to go to war with Iraq. I have been, as I say, 48 years in this body, and it is the greatest vote I ever cast, the vote of which I am most proud of—17,000 and more votes that I have cast.

Senator DAYTON was willing to defy public opinion and the forces of war because he, Senator DAYTON, was determined not to hand over to President Bush, Democrat or Republican, any President, the power to declare war. No. Why? Because the Constitution says Congress shall have the power to declare war.

With firm belief in our constitutional doctrine of separation of powers and checks and balances, Senator DAYTON was the only person on the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee who voted against the flawed Department of Homeland Security bill that this White House pushed.

How I have admired the courage and the fortitude of this man, Senator DAYTON, this Senator and his firm belief in our constitutional system.

I am also impressed about the wisdom and the leadership that he, Senator MARK DAYTON, probably considered a badge of honor—and on the staff of Senator Walter Mondale, one of our fine Vice Presidents.

Senator DAYTON brought his concerns for the less fortunate and the powerless with him to the Senate. As a freshman Senator, he proposed a new farm bill to help struggling family farms. He proposed a prescription tax credit plan to help Medicare beneficiaries offset the costs of their medications. He established a health care help line to assist working families in his State in getting health coverage from their insurance companies that they had paid for.

He proposed a global trade agreement to protect our nation's jobs and to negotiate trade deals by giving the Congress the power to reject parts of negotiated trade deals if they violated existing laws.

I expected great things from this Senator. He had been living in this Chamber for only 2 years. When on March 13, 2003, I predicted that Senator DAYTON would have a "long career, if he wishes to make it a long one."

I was surprised, I was disappointed, I was saddened to learn that he has chosen instead to make a short career in the Senate. I hope he does not retire from public life because our country—especially our less fortunate—will always need public servants like Mark Dayton.

But whatever he chooses to do, I wish him happiness and success. And I will always be grateful for my friendship with Mark Dayton and the work—yes, the work—that we have done together.

Mr. DAYTON, Mr. President, will the Senator yield briefly?

Mr. BYRD. Do I yield.

Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 6 minutes remaining.

Mr. BYRD. I yield to the Senator 2 minutes. Is that sufficient?

Mr. DAYTON. I will be very brief.

I thank the Senator from West Virginia for those gracious words. I am deeply honored because they come from the mouth of one of the greatest Senators in the history of this country. And whatever I have learned to apply with my understanding of the traditions of the Senate, the integrity of the Senate, the dignity of the Senate, I have learned first and foremost from the great Senator from West Virginia, who has been a mentor, a guide, a leader, for whom I have the utmost respect. And when I did preside and listen to the Senator speak about such subjects as the United States Constitution, I learned more from his wisdom than I have learned in the previous 55 years of my life.

I was honored to stand with him, really behind him, when he led the public outcry against the war resolution. And I was honored to be 1 of those 23 Senators, and history has proven us also correct. For his incredible service to his State for which he was cited as the Greatest Virginian of this century, and I expect will be cited as the Greatest West Virginian of this century as well, and for that same quality of devotion to our country and incredible leadership to our entire Nation, we are all—all of the country men and women—in great debt to him. I am, again, deeply honored by his words.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator, and I will always cherish, as long as I live, his words.

JIM JEFFORDS

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, unfortunately, when Congress meets again in January of 2007, this Chamber and our Nation will be without the services of our esteemed colleague, Senator JIM JEFFORDS.

Senator JEFFORDS has announced that he is retiring so he may spend more time with his lovely wife Elizabeth. May I make clear that Elizabeth's gain is the Senate's loss.

For 32 years, JIM JEFFORDS has proudly and superbly represented his beautiful State of Vermont and our great country in the U.S. Congress.

From 1975 to 1988, he was Vermont's lone Member in the United States House of Representatives. Now having served three terms in the Senate, he has decided to retire. I regret his departure. He is a Senator I have admired. He is a Senator I respected since he first came to this Chamber.

Through his hard work and his dedication to this institution, he has helped to make the Senate a better place. For that I have been grateful and thankful. He is a polite, friendly, mild-mannered man whom it is always pleasant to be around. He is a U.S. Navy veteran who has never failed to demonstrate his love for our great country.

This Senator is a great American who possesses a passion to do the right thing no matter what the consequence. He is a U.S. Senator who has always displayed a reverence for this institution, the Senate of the United States.

While he has a natural, easy-going manner, he is a Senator who will work feverishly, who will work tirelessly for the causes in which he believes. Sel-dom has the Senate seen a stronger or more avid defender of the environment. He was one of the founders of the Congressional Solar Coalition. He has chaired the House Environment Study Conference and the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee. In Congress, he has constantly sought to broaden and to strengthen the power of the Environmental Protection Agency, and he has worked to ensure that important agency does its job.

His efforts to protect our environment have earned him recognition and awards from a number of environmental organizations, including the prestigious Sierra Club.

Senator JEFFORDS has been one of the Senate's foremost promoters of the rights of disabled Americans. Senator JEFFORDS has worked to open opportunities for them. He is coauthor of the Individuals With Disabilities Education Act, IDEA. For his efforts on behalf of disabled Americans, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, NMSS, honored him as its "Senator of the year."

Senator JEFFORDS has been a promoter of the arts. He was a cofounder of the Congressional Arts Caucus, and serving on that, al as the Senate committee that oversees the National Endowment for the Arts, Senator JEFFORDS—yes, Senator JEFFORDS—was able to block a House effort to abolish the NEA.

Senator JEFFORDS has been one of the Senate's biggest and best promoters of education. I have read some criticisms of Senator JEFFORDS for his continuous efforts to seek more and more funding for educational programs for America's youth. America's young people, especially special educational programs. He has even been accused of "bartering his vote" on legislation for his own pet educational projects. I think this was probably meant as a criticism. If it were, I am sure that it is a criticism that Senator JEFFORDS wears with pride.

I don't think there is anything more important to Senator JEFFORDS than his education. He believes that every child should have every opportunity to fulfill their educational pursuits. For this, he certainly has my respect and my admiration. I applaud him. Yes, I applaud Senator JEFFORDS.

Throughout his congressional career, Senator JEFFORDS, son of a Chief Justice of the Vermont Supreme Court and graduate of Yale University and Harvard Law School, has always displayed an independence of spirit, an independence of spirit of which he has been labeled a loose cannon. Knowing Senator JEFFORDS as I do, I know that his independence stems from an unrelenting determination to place doing the right thing above political or personal interest.

While in the House of Representatives, Senator JEFFORDS was the only Republican to vote against President Reagan's tax cut bill because he charged it would increase the national deficit. And it did. In the Senate, he was one of two Republicans who voted against President Bush's first round of tax cuts because those cuts were irresponsible and favored the wealthy. Senator JEFFORDS was the only Republican Senator to cosponsor President Clinton's effort to overhaul our national health care system.

I remember Senator JEFFORDS for being one of only 23 Senators who voted against going to war in Iraq. I have been in this Senate 48 years this year. I have cast 17,752 rollcall votes. I will say it again, 17,752 rollcall votes. We have heard those words before—I am most proud of that particular vote, the vote against that arrogant and reckless charge to war in Iraq.

The Constitution says Congress shall have the power to declare war. It does not say that the President of the United States, be he Republican or Democrat, shall have the power to declare war.

So, 23 Senators, including ROBERT BYRD and Jim JEFFORDS, voted to uphold the Constitution of the United States. That was the greatest vote ever cast in my 48 years in the Senate. If we only had more Senators with the courage, the determination and the character of Jim JEFFORDS, we might have avoided the wretched bloody mess in which we now find ourselves in Iraq—with no end in sight.

The Senate needs more Jim JEFFORDS.

In September 2000, Congressional Quarterly included a nice profile of Jim JEFFORDS. It also discussed his willingness to take independent positions even on the most partisan issues. It also discussed his black belt in the martial arts and how he would use it to provide a needed voice in the bloody mess in which we now find ourselves in Iraq—with no end in sight. The Senate needs more Jim JEFFORDS.

Eight months later, CQ proved prophetic. In May 2001 came an event for which Senator JEFFORDS will often be remembered in his 32 years in Congress, the event that he has called his "declaration of independence." He followed his conscience and followed the path best for him. As I said before, we need more Senators like Jim JEFFORDS.

I am sorry to have to say goodbye to this unassuming, fiercely independent man. As much as I would prefer that he stay, I understand and I respect his wishes.

I wish Senator JEFFORDS and his lovely wife Elizabeth the blessing of Almighty God as they begin the next chapter of their lives.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

MARK DAYTON

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I see my colleague from Minnesota, Senator MARK DAYTON. He will not be here in January, and I come to the Senate to associate myself with the praise of my distinguished colleague from West Virginia for Senator DAYTON.

We live in very partisan times. We live in times where there is great cynicism about politics. We come from opposite sides of the political aisle, and there are moments we are butting heads on issues and press releases, but I have to say my colleague’s heart is pure. On issue after issue, when MARK DAYTON, the Senator from Minnesota, says something, he says it because he believes it and he is passionate about it.

We worked together to try to make sure our troops, when they were on leave from Iraq, came home at no cost. We came together.

Earlier today, we were in the Senate talking about agricultural disaster assistance for Minnesota farmers. The public does not see all the times we work together, but it does not look into a man’s heart. I have been here 4 years, and what I call the pureness of the heart, the commitment to public service, a lifelong commitment to public service, of the process again at a level after level on the State and now in the U.S. Congress is something to be celebrated.

I express to my colleague and my friend—and we use that word rather loosely here, but he is my colleague and my friend—thanks for your service. Thank you for giving me the opportunity to work with you on behalf of the people of the State of Minnesota and the people of this country.

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent I might have 1 minute to respond.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection it is so ordered.

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, I thank my friend, and I mean that sincerely, and my very distinguished colleague from Minnesota for those very kind words.

The Senator said we don’t agree on everything, but we are not meant to agree on everything. That is part of the wisdom of the process of the Senate. I have endless respect for the Senator from Minnesota. He was elected to the Senate by the people of our State under very difficult circumstances in the immediate aftermath of the tragic death of his predecessor. He handled that situation with great dignity and class, and he has continued to do so.

He represents our State with effectiveness beyond his young years. That is demonstrated by the high regard he is held in by most of the citizens in our State. I thank him for his friendship. I thank him for the opportunity to work with him. I wish him continued success after I leave the Senate.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. ENZI. Parliamentary inquiry: I think I have the next 45 minutes under the unanimous consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is authorized to proceed.

BILL FRIST Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, soon the last remaining items of business on the legislative calendar for the 106th Congress will be taken up and the current session of Congress will end. When it does, several of our colleagues will be returning home and leaving public service. We will miss them and we will especially miss the good ideas and creative spirit they brought with them to add to our work here in the Senate.

One of our colleagues we will all miss is BILL FRIST, our good friend from Tennessee. In his two terms of service he has compiled quite a remarkable record of accomplishments as one of Tennessee’s Senators and as majority leader here in the Senate.

BILL’s interest in serving in the Senate began while he was attending Princeton as an undergraduate. He was an intern in the House when Represent-ative Jim Cooper of Tennessee encour-aged him to run. But, before you do, he said, do something else for 20 years or so. Then you will be ready to run for office.

He knew that was good advice so he began a career that interested him and challenged him as much as politics did. BILL FRIST became a surgeon and established a reputation as one of the best transplant surgeons in the Nation. We were fortunate that he chose that path in life, because his in-depth knowledge of the practice of medicine and our Nation’s health care system has been an invaluable addition to the debates we have had about those issues.

His familiarity with health care from the perspective of the physician and his concern about rising costs as a member of the Senate helped to guide our efforts as we took up these and other matters in committee and on the Senate floor.

In the years he has served in the Senate, he has put his medical skills to practical use several times. When a gun battle took the lives of two Capitol Police officers, he went to the scene to help. Although he was unable to save the lives of either officer, he was ultimately successful in saving the life of their assailant. On another occasion, we were fortunate to have him with us when Strom Thurmond collapsed on the Senate floor and needed assistance. Finally, he was able to revive and save the life of one of his own constituents who had been the victim of a heart attack.

Many of our constituents remember BILL FRIST the days in 2001, when the Senate was attacked with anthrax. Once again, he was there to provide support and encouragement, and in that calm, reassuring manner of his, let the Nation know that we were doing everything we could to minimize the present danger and return the Senate to the important work of the future of our Nation’s school system, partial birth abortion, stem cell research and so many more controversial issues.

He also has been instrumental in helping seniors to pay for their prescription drugs. The new addition to the Medicare program is helping seniors to pay for their prescription drugs and it is having a great impact on the quality of the health care we provide our Nation’s seniors. Although it is still going through its initial stages as it is introduced to the public, and we are working to ensure people understand the benefits it provides, there is no doubt that we would not have had this prescription drug benefit program enacted into law at all—if not for the role BILL FRIST played in the effort. Working with program opponents and organizations in the public sector that opposed the new program, BILL was able to resolve many of the doubts and uncertainties that surrounded it, and ultimately, get it enacted by the Congress and signed into law.

In addition, and in what was perhaps his biggest achievement, BILL led a successful effort to pass an initiative to fight AIDS in Africa and the Caribbean. He had a heartfelt interest in the legislation and firsthand knowledge of the problem it was designed to address because he had done under medical work for many years in Africa. His witness of the impact of the disease on the population of that country inspired him to do everything he could to address and try to put an end to the suffering it caused. BILL can be very proud of the great result he achieved in that effort. That initiative is his legacy and it will save more lives over the years than we will ever be able to count.

The record is clear. During BILL FRIST’s service in the Senate, especially his years as majority leader, the Senate and the Nation have faced challenges and addressed issues we had never had to deal with before. The war on terror, the detention of terrorists, the quality and definition of life, the future of our Nation’s school system, partial birth abortion, stem cell research and so many more controversial issues have found their way onto the Senate floor for our consideration.

Through it all, BILL FRIST’s knowledge, deep understanding of the issues involved, and determination to develop a consensus on them, so typical of his leadership style, enabled the Senate to be a pro-active and fully involved deliberative body. The results he achieved during his years of service in the Senate will be his legacy and help us forge the work we will do together during the 110th Session of Congress.

Now BILL and his wife Karyn will have the time they have always wanted to spend with their children as BILL considers his next opportunity for public service. BILL FRIST has been a major part of our day to day work in the Senate for 12 years and we will miss his presence, his influence on our Legislative routine, and his expertise on the issues we have considered on the floor.
Mr. President, there is always an element of sadness that touches us all when we come to the end of a session of Congress. As the clock winds down on the final hours of our legislative activities, the time when several of our colleagues will be retiring and ending their years of service in the U.S. Senate. One of our colleagues who will be leaving at the end of this session is my good friend Paul Sarbanes of Maryland.

I remember when I first came to Washington years ago. I wanted my constituents to appreciate his workhorse style. He has a great ability to solve complicated problems by piecing together workable solutions and then reaching out to his colleagues on both sides of the aisle to forge an agreement that could be passed and signed into law.

As I came to know him, I came to greatly respect him, the hard work he puts into his job every day of the year, and his commitment to serve his constituents which directed his every effort on the Senate floor.

A few years ago I had the chance to work with him one on one as we crafted the provisions of what came to be known as the Sarbanes-Oxley legislation. He was good friends during the process and developed a mutual respect for each other's positions on the issues.

That was back during the days when several scandals had rocked the accounting and financial industries of our country. Determined to find a solution, Paul rolled up his sleeves and went to work. I don't think anyone gave him much of a chance to succeed, but those were people who didn't know him and his determination to find a way to solve a problem once it had captured his attention.

As he began to work on his bill, he knew he wouldn't be able to pass it without the help of some Senate Republicans. On the other side of the aisle, we knew we couldn't get anything through the Senate without the support of several Senate Democrats. So Paul reached across the aisle and got us all to work together to bring his bill to the Senate floor where it was ultimately passed and signed into law.

As he worked for the people of Maryland and I worked for the people of my State, we found, despite our political and philosophical differences, we were always able to find common ground on the 80 percent of every issue that unites us. That is why Paul has a well earned reputation here in the Senate for his willingness to work out problems and find a way for the greater good. He is known for his ability to work through partisan waters and arrive at solutions which are appreciated by the thoughtful majorities of both sides of the Senate.

If you ask me, those are the abilities that have proven to be the secret of his success.

Back home, his constituents appreciate his workhorse style. He has served Maryland in the Senate for almost three decades and through it all he has earned the support of the people back home for his hard work and determined effort to make their lives better. The issues that were important to the people who sent him here always led Paul to the Senate floor to take up the cause and do everything he possibly could to help. That was what inspired those of those who were counting on him to get results. Needed to say—more often than not—he did.

Now three decades of service in the Senate have come to an end and Paul is retiring. It is a well known adage that all politics is local and that is a lesson that Paul learned and practiced as a master craftsman.

Now he and Christine will have time to enjoy their families together, and be a part of all that Maryland has to offer. I have a hunch he will not be slowing down much as changing direction. I also expect I will continue to hear from him time to time on matters that will still draw his interest.

It is a phone call expect and look forward to receiving in the years to come.

Mr. President, as the session draws to a close and we complete the consideration of the bills before us by casting our final votes of the session, I rise to express my gratitude and best wishes to a colleague who will be retiring when the final gavel brings to a close the current session of Congress.

Jim Jeffords, my good friend from Vermont, has decided to return home so that he can spend more time with his family and his grandchildren. For his departure there is nothing more important than family and the bonds between us and our children—grandchildren—are stronger than any other in our life. As the Chairman of the Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee, I will miss Jim’s ‘good ideas, his commitment to making a difference, and his strong determination to make our education and health care systems operate more effectively and efficiently. He was an important presence on the Committee and he and his staff were always willing to work long and hard on the initiatives they proposed to help make our Nation a better place for us all to live.

Looking back, 1974 was a good year for both Jim and me. I was elected to my first term as Mayor of Gillette, WY, and Jim was elected to his first term in the House of Representatives. We both took office full of great hopes and dreams as we looked forward to doing everything we could to make a difference in the lives of the people we were elected to serve.

From the beginning, Jim was very clear on his mission in Congress. He had come here to make sure that our most precious resource—our children—were well taken care of. For Jim, the issue of education was not something he took lightly. It was a commitment that came from his heart. He took the problems of our schools personally and he was determined to do something about them. He wanted everyone to have the same advantages in life that he had. That was Jim’s goal and it inspired him and drove his active involvement in the consideration of the education issues that would come before the House and the Senate.

Jim’s passion for education not only drove him to work on issues in Congress, but it also led him in the years to come to serve as a tutor at a public school on Capitol Hill each week as part of a literacy program he created. That program reaches out to involve us in supporting our schools. Its philosophy is simple. Anyone can make a difference in our schools. All it takes is a little investment of our time and a willingness to share our talents with the students of a local school.

Not long after Jim had taken his oath of office in the House, he began working on what was to be one of his greatest successes, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, or IDEA as it has come to be known. Over the years IDEA has ensured that students with disabilities have equal access to a good education—and a promising future. Thanks to this landmark legislation those living with disabilities will receive the education, support and encouragement we all need to help us become all we can be and reach our full potential in our lives.

As he served in the House, Jim’s commitment to working today to make things better for all of us tomorrow led him to support the most important environmental protections, a more effective and responsive health care system, and a sound fiscal budget that didn’t overspend our present resources and leave a bill behind for future generations to pay.

That is the philosophy that directed and guided Jim when he ran for and won a seat in the Senate in 1988. It wasn’t long after he had taken the oath of office for his new position that he began working on the reauthorization of the Clean Air Act—another part of his legislative passion that will continue to be a key part of his legacy in the Senate. Even though he had just begun his service in the Senate at the time, his good ideas and commitment to the protection and preservation of our natural resources made him an important part of the team that would write and promote this important bill.

No one was surprised that Jim was a key Member who was involved in so many difficult and important projects as soon as he arrived in the Senate. He preceded me as Chairman of the Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee and, under his leadership the committee took a close look at our schools and the quality of the education we provide our children. It considered how we might improve the training we provide our Nation's workers so that they might find and keep better and better jobs. And, it continued to look for ways that we might provide support and empower those living with disabilities so that all Americans are able to maximize their potential and live their own version of the American dream.

Back home, Jim has deep roots in his State that date back for generations. His father was a Chief Justice of the Vermont Supreme Court and I am sure he learned a great deal about politics, life and the law from his Dad.

In addition, coming from Vermont, Jim has a great understanding of the challenges faced by small and rural States and the local industries they depend on to keep local and State economies healthy and strong. It has been said that Jim knows as much about the dairy industry as anyone directly involved in it in his State. He knows firsthand that one size fits all solutions that work well for the big States, all too often penalize the smaller ones and leave them without the support they need to address the same problems the large states face.

In the years to come, when I think of Jim I will remember how he shared his dream of a better America with us. By daring us to dream, too, he encouraged us to work together so that the future would be a brighter one for us, our children and our grandchildren.

There is an old saying the Native Americans in Wyoming know well. We have not inherited the earth from our ancestors, we are borrowing it from our children. It's a philosophy that Jim took to heart and put into practice every day during his many years of public service.

Mr. Enzi. I ask unanimous consent following my remarks and Senator Dayton for 20 minutes, Senator Hatch be recognized to speak for up to 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HIV/AIDS TREATMENT

Mr. Enzi. Earlier this afternoon, there were comments made in the Senate by the Senator from New York, Mrs. Clinton. Some of those comments distressed me a little bit. We have been trying to get the Ryan White Care Act, which passed out of committee and passed on the House floor, to pass in the Senate. This is one of those rare bipartisan, bicameral bills. We worked it out in advance with the House so the bill the House passed is essentially the bill we passed out of committee. It is a modernization act that would ensure equitable distribution of funds for HIV/AIDS treatment in the United States.

I am compelled to discuss some of the points that the Senator from New York made today about the Ryan White Care Act and our bipartisan bicameral legislation. I will talk about each of her claims in turn.

Senator Clinton claimed that when you look at the funding for the whole bill, New York is not receiving the most funds per case. I don't doubt those figures. However, those are deceptive numbers. As an accountant, I have to point that out. They are deceptive for two reasons. First, her statement dealt only with funds per AIDS case. We have been talking about including HIV cases as well. Why would she neglect to include HIV? I assume it is because 25 States have 50 percent of their HIV/AIDS cases not being counted today because those individuals have HIV, which has not progressed to AIDS.

Please note that all of my numbers have included both HIV and AIDS. We must include HIV in the funding formulas. Before, including only AIDS made sense because we were just waiting for people to die. Now, we have lifesaving treatment for those with HIV; therefore, we must count each person who can receive lifesaving care.

Additionally, Senator Clinton is looking at more than just the formula funding. Her figures include funding for community health centers, health care providers, providers who reach out to women and children. Thus, her figures include a lot of extra funding that is not at the heart of the debate.

If Senator Clinton wants to rely on these numbers, numbers outside of the formulas, then she can do so under the current bill. She can trust that the other portions of the CARE Act will assist those who she is saying are being harmed by the bill.

As for her claim that her State has not spent Ryan White funds for things such as dog-walking, I will note that the Senator from Oklahoma provided information for the record regarding that.

Now, Senator Clinton further claims that New York only carried over $3 million. Well, I find that surprising, given that New York, on the average, has carried over $29 million.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a document from the Health Resources and Services Administration documenting the funds carried over for New York.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. ENZI. Now, the Senator from New York mentions her 1-year extension bill. I will also discuss the Senator's 1-year extension, her resolution for Ryan White, her solution that would simply delay the reauthorization for another year. It simply says to those States now at the expense of the other States. We do not care about you, and you are not going to get adequate funds. We are going to re-debate all of this again next year. We are not even going to move toward making it fair.

The underlying bipartisan, bicameral bill has a provision providing 3 years of hold harmless funds for New York. For 3 years, New York will not have to follow the formula. They would like to have 5 years. The 3 years already in the bill is at the expense of the other States. The 5 years would be at the expense of the other States, although I will cover a question that was asked yesterday in a little while.

This is a time to act. We absolutely cannot delay the much needed updates to current formulas that ensure that all Americans with HIV and AIDS are treated fairly and have access to lifesaving treatments, no matter their race, their gender, or where they live.

I want to get a vote on the bill that would more equitably distribute funding across the Nation. This bill has a provision providing 3 years of hold harmless funds for New York. For 3 years, New York will not have to follow the current law. The 3 years would be at the expense of the other States, although I will cover a question that was asked yesterday in a little while.

This is a time to act. We absolutely cannot delay the much needed updates to current formulas that ensure that all Americans with HIV and AIDS are treated fairly and have access to lifesaving treatments, no matter their race, their gender, or where they live.

The House has passed this critical legislation, and now five Senators must decide if they will stand in the way of bipartisan legislation with broad support—a bill that will ensure equitable treatment for all Americans living with HIV and AIDS. I would say, I believe that is down to four Senators now.

Now, my second problem with the bill of the Senator from New York is that it shuts out Americans infected with HIV and does not provide them with equal access to treatment. Rather, it focuses on outdated funding formulas that only examine AIDS, not the full spectrum of the disease. Just like her numbers on funding per person, the Senator from New York refuses to acknowledge those with HIV.

This chart shows that today, in over 25 States, half of the cases in those States are not counted because those Americans only have HIV, not AIDS. These States receive funding for less than half their total HIV/AIDS cases because of the current, outdated, failed formula. They do not receive enough funds to provide the most basic care to their residents. Now, my third problem with the bill of the Senator from New York or the Senator from New Jersey is that it ducks the key issue. Rather than more equitable distribution for funding and more equitable access to treatment for all Americans, my colleagues supporting this bill are simply throwing more money at the problem, assuming it will ensure more equitable access to lifesaving treatments. We know this is simply not the case because it does not solve the inherent flaws in the funding formulas.

Now, this chart shows that under the current law, more than 3 percent of Ryan White funding is returned to the Treasury each year. That is more than 3 percent—much of this coming from New York and New Jersey, the very States that objected to the passage of the bill that would more equitably distribute funding across the Nation. Again, you will see here that under the current law, New York is receiving $509 per case more than the national average. Under the new bill, they would still get $504 more than the average per case. The driver is the variance of the United States. And they have an average $29 million unspent. New Jersey, the other State, is receiving $310 above the national average. They would still get $38 above the national average. This bill does not get to equity. This bill moves toward equity. And it does not move there until 3 years from now. Other bills we have done start transitioning immediately.

Now, I am surprised that the Senator from New York and New Jersey would offer a bill to increase funding, ignoring the outdated formula issues, only to increase the inequity of the program and allow more funds that could save lives to be returned to the Treasury each year. Why would we offer more money to States that are already grossly overpaid and unable to spend their money and increase the disparities of outdated funding formulas, further harming those States with an emerging crisis?

This amendment would have us give a few States even more money than they are receiving now, while the majority of the States will receive significantly less funding over the next year. The Senators from New York and New Jersey want to exacerbate this inequity rather than fixing the formula, fixing the formula now, fixing it before the tomorrow-night deadline, to allow fair and equitable treatment and access to care for Americans who have none now.

This amendment does not even provide a quick fix for 1 more year, because it keeps the flawed formulas that will cause tremendous funding shortfalls in place. They will come back in another year the way they did for 5 more years of being held harmless.

I want to get a vote on the bill that includes HIV and follows the patient.
We need to do that. We need to do it today, not tomorrow, not next month. Tomorrow night, a bunch of States will be in crisis—and their residents with HIV/AIDS will begin losing access to care. I would imagine in their amendment they have slipped in a little thing to prevent that which will be a trap tomorrow. But let’s not just throw money at the problem, let’s do the right thing for the long-term, for the entire Nation. Let’s solve the formula. Let’s do what we have done on a number of other bills that goes through my committee, which is to look at the formula and say: What is fair to all the States?

I have to say, there are some people on my committee and others in this body who have said: If I look at the charts and I see what is happening to my State, yes, I may lose some money, but we are trying to come up with a solution that solves a problem across this country. And that is what we are here for, to solve problems across the country. I can tell you that the HIV/AIDS families and community want it to be fair and want the bill we have been asking unanimous consent on for several days now.

So I am asking for unanimous consent. I will throw in this opportunity to have a vote on the other bill, to see if people want to do more of the same or if they want to fix this over a period of time, again, holding all States harmless for 3 years before we move into a transition to full fairness.

Just last night the House passed this critical, bipartisan, bicameral legislation by an overwhelming bipartisan vote, 325 to 98, and sent it to us to act upon it immediately. The House understood the critical, time-sensitive nature of this legislation. Now the Senate must act quickly to reauthorize this critical program by September 30; otherwise, hundreds of thousands of individuals and the District of Columbia will lose access to lifesaving services. The only thing standing between us and the President’s signature to enact this bill is a Senate vote on the House bill—or perhaps a Senate vote on the possible substitute amendment and then a vote on the House bill.

Now, I have asked the Senate to move this critical legislation two other times. Currently, four Senators from two States are blocking a vote and thus the problems across the country. I appreciate the number of my colleagues who have been on the floor to talk about the people in their States who are dying because they are on a waiting list and cannot get the treatment, because they have had huge influxes of population, huge increases in the number of people who have been infected by HIV and AIDS. We cannot let the States we represent suffer because the Senate continues to delay. We cannot continue to say: Well, if we have been shipping money to one part of the country, we are going to continue to ship money to that part of the country even though the problem has shifted. So four Senators are blocking us.

Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the hard work of the Democrats from California who have legislation that involves their willingness to continue to talk to us to address their concerns. They have indicated they are no longer objecting to this legislation. I thank them. However, this bill, due to other objections, is still not moving forward. This legislation ensures that Federal moneys are distributed more fairly and the dollars will follow the person. This is something our outdated funding formula failed to do. Hundreds of thousands of people living with HIV and AIDS, who live in these States, will be needlessly harmed if a few Senators continue obstructing good policy.

What is more, these four Senators will not come to defend their objection to this critical legislation at a time when we are talking about it. So today I will ask again for the Senators from New York and New Jersey to come to the floor themselves, lodge their objections, listen to the concerns of committee—the bill that is bicameral and bipartisan.

Now, any and all unanimous consent request, I am also allowing those Senators to offer that amendment, of course, the opportunity for them to put forward their best solution for dealing with the concerns they have. We have run hundreds of programs trying to come up with the most equitable way to do this. The one we are presenting is the one we found that had the most people to support it. I was told this is identical to the bill introduced by the New York and New Jersey delegations this week. That is the amendment we would be voting on. This bill and/or amendment is not a solution; rather, it is a harmful delay, putting off what we should and must do today.

These States simply raise objections about what funds are received this year compared to last year. These States were grossly overpaid last year and will continue to be overpaid next year. However, they will no longer be grossly overpaid when they are moving forward. These few Senators keep saying they will lose money under the reauthorization. No matter the dollar formula they say they may lose on a given day, it doesn’t add up to the amount of dollars they would stand to carry over from the current flawed formula. The State of New York would carry over an average of $150 million over 5 years. According to GAO data, even with the formula adjustment that will allow for more equitable funding, New York would still carry over about $115 million based on their past spending. In the past, New York and New Jersey have been able to under-spend hundreds of millions of leftover dollars. At the same time, 25 other States are struggling to provide even the most basic life-sparing medications to their residents living with HIV/AIDS. Because of the current flawed formula, this will mean the Federal government will be providing 170 million dollars of leftover money to their HIV/AIDS residents because of a lack of appropriate funding. While New York offers a range of elective drugs, many other States are unable to provide the basic life-sparing treatments that every American should have access to. This is indefensible.

New York, in 2005, spent an astonishing $25 million on administration costs for just two titles of this law. That is more than the entire amount of money received by 38 States in 2005 for those two titles to provide care to their residents with HIV/AIDS. This inequity must be addressed, and it is addressed in this reauthorization. Stalling now because a couple States stand to lose a fraction of the money they already cannot spend is indefensible. Lives are at risk and a solution is on the table today. A solution has been passed by the House and is before us now.

I hope those four Senators will defend their obstruction and allow a vote on their amendment. The continued expansion of the AIDS epidemic in this country is a certainty. While the epidemic continues in the urban areas in the country, the number of new cases diagnosed in small towns, suburbs, and rural areas are reaching alarming levels. As the epidemic expands in all these areas, local health care systems have often been unable to meet the growing demands for medical and support services. The problems created in rural areas are often similar to those experienced in large cities. However, these problems are exacerbated by poor health care infrastructure and limited experience with HIV/AIDS care. The lack of trained primary care providers, the absence of long-term care facilities, the scarcity of resources, and a scattered population are additional obstacles that may be faced in a developing, coordinated outpatient service program.

If New York thinks it is more expensive to handle a new problem, they ought to deal with the distances these people have to travel in some of the rural areas to get care for some of the most basic ailments. Small areas are also often not able to provide the specialized services required by some persons with HIV. When primary services are unavailable, individuals and families must travel long distances to receive the necessary care. Furthermore, rural and minority communities may not only the epidemic but also other conditions, including substance abuse, mental illness, and sexually transmitted diseases which they may be poorly equipped to deal with.

Think of the problem today in its expansion into rural areas, we must provide the same effort to those areas we did for urban areas in the early 1990s. We must target resources to those in need and assure that these infected with HIV are able to receive care. The funding can address the epidemic of other conditions.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I thank the Senator. Chairman Enzi has done a fine job, and he is known for his fairness and hard work. Under his leadership, State after State has agreed to this new and fairer formula. Unfortunately, we have a few privileged States who want to maintain an extraordinary funding stream and are denying funding to the other States that are in crisis today.

I have spoken with the director of AIDS Alabama, who is very articulate on these issues, Mary Elizabeth Marr, who runs the AIDS center in Huntsville, and Jane Cheeks, the State AIDS director, and they have explained to me how unfair the current system is.

Mr. President, I could not be prouder to serve on the committee with Senator Enzi, and I greatly appreciate his leadership to help those of us whose States are facing a national crisis.

As I said last night, a bill that can save more than 100,000 lives must travel long distances to receive the necessary care. Furthermore, to ensure that everybody receives as much money per person with HIV that New York is currently receiving, it would cost over $3 billion—if we went to equity, it would cost $3 billion, or a 30 percent increase on New York White funding level that are grossly overpaid and unable to spend the money they do receive.

Our obligation as Senators is to the people of the United States. We still have four Senators who continue to obstruct the Senate from passing a bill because of the September 30 deadline—a bill which the House 325-to-98, a bill that can save more than 100,000 lives of the growing number of women and minorities who are afflicted by this devastating disease, and provides the money to where it is needed most.

As I said last night, this is not an economic development project. The bottom line is simply, where States have more people with HIV/AIDS, they should get more money. Where States have less people with HIV/AIDS, they should get less money. As we all know, the Ryan White program provides critical health care services for people infected with HIV and AIDS. These individuals rely on this vital program for drugs and other services. We need to pass this legislation so we can provide them with the treatment they desperately need.

I urge the Senators who are holding up the bill to stop playing the numbers game so the Ryan White CARE Act funding can address the epidemic of today, not yesterday.

I ask the Chair how much time remains.
be held up at the eleventh hour by Members representing only two States—three at one time, but at least the two Senators from California backed off and now realize that they are not doing what is right here.

Given some of the bipartisan, bicameral effort was to craft something that would help even out the playing field for all U.S. States and territories, it makes even less sense for these holds to be placed on behalf of States that already enjoy substantially generous funding. In some areas of these States, the funding is so generous that we have heard reports of Ryan White dollars being spent on dog-walking services, haircuts, candlelight dinners, and four-star hotels. I, for one, am pretty fed up with it, and to have four liberal Senators on this floor holding up this issue is just outrageous.

Furthermore, some States carry over millions of unspent dollars every year, and some continue to receive funding for projects that no longer exist. This is happening while people die in areas where the epidemic is never before perceived. Under the current Ryan White structure, their location dictates that they should receive less money for care, regardless of how well their program is functioning. I am the author of three of the AIDS bills. I remember when we brought the first one to the floor. It was a big battle. I was the conservative who stood up for it. We finally won, and we won on all three of them. Like I say, I named this bill the Ryan White bill right here on the floor of the Senate.

As I mentioned, the House passed its bill last night with overwhelming bipartisan support. I implore my colleagues in the Senate to do the same, to work in the best interest of the entire Nation and pass this reauthorization.

I am really upset about it, and I think everybody ought to be upset about it. Sometimes we get extreme in our concern about the money, and who gets this and who gets that. New York and New Jersey are not being mistreated here. Some States will always think they are not getting enough money no matter what we do here. We have to work to fix that broken program structure.

Let me make it clear that my home State of Utah does not stand to gain large increases in funding. Our State AIDS director understands and supports the need for equity within the program. Due to efficient administration of the Ryan White program, Utah is able to manage its funding so that it is able to—just barely—avoid an ADAP waiting list for pharmaceuticals. Utah can do this even though it receives an average of $1,315 less per patient in Ryan White funding than does New York, $1,330 per patient less than New Jersey, and $843 per patient less than California, just to mention three States. The growing number of New Jersey Senators are holding up this bill. I could go on and on about this because there are really only about five States that receive less funding per patient than Utah. But I am not going to do that, and that is precisely my point. My point is that this should not be about who gets the most money. I find it disconcerting that I have to point out, once again, that this program assists people who could die if it is not reapportioned. It is as simple as that. I have received numerous letters from the HIV/AIDS community urging that the Senate reauthorize this program before it adjourns this week. I also remind my colleagues that President Bush has charged Congress with reauthorizing this program.

Last night, the House passed H.R. 6143, the Ryan White HIV/AIDS Treatment Modernization Act of 2006, by a vote of 325 to 98. The vote total includes a supermajority vote in support of the House-passed bill. The Number was 378 to 16. The Senate has not yet acted.

Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I thank my colleagues for their forbearance.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, it is my understanding that I have 9 minutes remaining.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ENZI). The Senator from North Carolina is recognized.
CARE Act, then they shouldn’t be eligible and the State doesn’t need the money. The fact is we are counting the people who are getting services. They don’t exceed the amount of money that they get, but they would like to keep the extra. In fact, today, the reason that they aren’t getting services is they would like to keep on counting to see if they can get their numbers up to match the amount of money that they get.

The Senators from New York don’t care about the fact that in 2006 the national funding per AIDS case was $1,613. Yet in New York, the average was $2,122 per case. In North Carolina, it is a little over $1,200 a year. The other States that get a disproportionate share of money per case exist, but they acknowledge that that disproportionate share is unfair. They realize it is unequal, and so they are willing to support this bill. Let me tell my colleagues that Connecticut gets $2,887 per AIDS case; while South Carolina gets $1,364; Minnesota, $2,903, while Arkansas gets $1,239; Louisiana, $2,069, while North Carolina gets $1,166.

Mr. President, I thank those Members who are willing to support this legislation. They are willing to let their numbers help others who will die without this funding.

I yield the floor.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, for the last few seconds I am going to just mention that the Senators from New York and New Jersey are introduced on Tuesday. Surely they have had time to think about having that amendment debated and voted on in that amount of time. I am really disappointed that they won’t give some kind of an answer that will allow a vote on that amendment. If that is what they need for cover, that is OK with me. I just need to get this done.

New York and New Jersey are stealing from those with HIV and that just cannot happen in the U.S. Senate. We have to worry about all the people from all of the United States, and that is what the reauthorization would do. That is why it is important to do it. I have asked those questions numerous times now trying to find a way to bring this bill up for a vote, and am being denied in every way—I am not being denied—those with HIV, those with AIDS, their families are being denied the right to have a vote on this bill in the U.S. Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The order is for the Senator from Minnesota to be recognized for 20 minutes.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, will the Senator from Minnesota yield to me?

Mr. DAYTON. For the purpose of asking a question.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, under regular order, after the Senator from Minnesota speaks, are there other speakers lined up?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas then has 15 minutes.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that following the statement by the Senator from Texas, the Senator from Iowa, Mr. GRASSLEY, be allowed to speak for 20 minutes; following Senator Grassley, myself for 15 minutes, and following Senator Grassley, Senator MURRAY for 15, Senator HARKIN for 10, and Senator MENENDEZ for 15.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. GREGG. Reserving the right to object, with the understanding, Mr. President, that if a Republican Member wishes to be allowed to speak, he will be allotted in between the times of the Democratic Members.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Montana so modify his request?

Mr. BAUCUS. First of all, I would like that not to be the case—well, that automatically would be the case because Senator Grassley and myself would follow Senator Hutchinson. Following the Senator from Texas, then the Senator from Iowa, and then myself, and then I am asking following myself, that Senator Murray and Senator Harkin be recognized. There will be three Republicans right in a row there already, at least two, so I am just suggesting that as least Senators Murray and Harkin be allowed to follow myself.

Mr. GREGG. Maybe we can reserve this and discuss it for a second.

Mr. BAUCUS. I would like to lock in the Senator from New York, Mr. Grassley, and the Senator from Iowa, myself, that Senator MURRAY and Senator HARKIN will be recognized. There will be three Republicans right in a row there already, at least two, so I am just suggesting that as least Senators Murray and Harkin be allowed to follow myself.

Mr. GREGG. I would like to have the opportunity to make sure the Republicans would have an equal amount of time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I would modify the request to suggest that following myself and a Republican Member be recognized, and a Republican Senator between Senator Harkin and Senator Menendez if they so request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Minnesota is recognized for 20 minutes.

SECURE FENCE ACT

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, I rise tonight to address the legislation that is before the Senate, the legislation that would establish a fence along the southern United States border. I intend to support this legislation, despite its serious flaws. I agree that a physical barrier is necessary along some parts of our country’s southern border.

Last month I visited southern border communities in Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona, and I recognize the very serious need for additional security measures there. In El Paso, TX, for example, there is a fence along the U.S.-Mexican border for about half the city. But then that fence abruptly ends because, I was told, of lack of funding to extend it. That is nonsensical: A security fence that only covers about half of the city that it is supposed to secure.

The day before I toured this area, that one Border Patrol station in El Paso apprehended people trying to enter our country illegally. That is unacceptable, and that is the reason I will support this legislation. But it is only part of the solution. I asked Border Patrol agents across the southern border, our experts about what is effective and what is not to protect our border and our citizens, whether a fence is a good idea. They replied that in some places it was and in other places it was not. They said it was one of several additional actions necessary for effective border control.

Yet this is the only measure contained in this legislation. It bears little resemblance to a comprehensive bill that the Senate previously passed to strengthen border security and stop illegal immigration. Its effectiveness, the border control experts told me last month, would be severely reduced by the absence of a comprehensive approach. It will further waste taxpayer dollars by mandating a fence where a less effective approach would not be effective. In short, it suffers from the defects of being the hastily drafted, last-minute election ploy that it is, rather than the comprehensive, intelligent, and effective border security bill that our country needs and our citizens deserve.

Previous attempts to secure our Nation’s southern border have failed for precisely this reason. They were only partial steps where only a complete solution will be successful. It is stupid for Congress to pass something that will fail, and shameful for Congress to do it for short-term political benefits rather than the long-term national interest. I have no doubt this legislation will pass and that it will be used by Congress and the American people between now and the November 7th election.

So I plead with my colleagues and with the House to finish this job when we return after the elections. Let’s have the Homeland Security Committee on which I serve and other committees claiming jurisdiction to ask the border security experts themselves what else must be done to make this fence effective. Let’s get the House to drop their political pre-election posturing and deal with our country’s current and future realities of our illegal immigration problem by passing key parts of the Senate bill.

It is necessary to be tough on illegal immigration, but being tough and stupid is stupid. Let’s challenge the House to get tough and smart about protecting our southern border, as President Bush has proposed and as the Senate has enacted. But let’s not fool ourselves and let’s not try to fool the American people that this legislation will substantially reduce the very serious flood of illegal aliens crossing our southern border.
This bill is also incomplete and inadequate because it does nothing to strengthen our national security along our country’s northern border, even though that border spans 5,500 miles and is over three times longer than our 1,800-mile southern border. Our northern border has not, as yet, experienced the same volume of illegal traffic as the southern border. Yet it is even more unguarded and thus unprotected. There are over 11,000 Border Patrol agents stationed along our 1,800-mile southern border. We have fewer than 2,000 northern border agents, which is most of what my Senator from Minnesota voted for. The appropriations bill directs 10 percent of its over $38 billion to our northern border and no training facility is devoted to that specialized training.

Our northern border is just as much a target of those most dangerous criminals, and many of them are smart and sophisticated enough to know that their chances of illegal entry are increasingly better along our northern border than along our southern border. Border security for our Nation is not one border or the other—it is both. Yet until now most of the attention, most of the policy, and most of the funding has gone only to southern border security. As I mentioned before, there are over 11,000 Border Patrol agents stationed along our southern border, and the major training facility for all of them is located in New Mexico. But there are fewer than 1,400 agents along our entire northern border and no training facility is devoted to that specialized training.

So I am very pleased that the fiscal year 2007 Homeland Security appropriations bill directs 10 percent of its funding and 10 percent of the new agents hired to be committed to our northern border. That is almost $38 million and over 150 new Border Patrol agents, which is most of what my amendment to the Appropriations Bill that the Senate would accomplish. It is a 15-percent increase in the number of northern Border Patrol agents. It is an essential first step in the right direction. However, it is only a first step. Much more must be done, and hopefully will start to be done when we return in November.

I also want to comment briefly on the military tribunal bill passed by the Senate last night, a bill that I voted against. I want to comment against the tribunal bill, as that legislation claims to be. But I also want to be smart about it, and that bill is not. Its worst provisions would be applied not only to known al-Qaida members, but also to almost 500 other detainees at Guantanamo who have been imprisoned without trials for over 4 years, and to over 1,400 Iraqi citizens who are now imprisoned indefinitely in that country. Many of them are eventually found innocent of anti-American activities and will be released. However, most of them, their families, and their friends, will hate the United States for the rest of their lives after being imprisoned for months or years, denied any possibility of them tortured or abused, and most of their families refused information about their whereabouts or even whether they are still alive.

The recently unclassified National Intelligence Estimate concluded that the war in Iraq has greatly increased anti-American feelings throughout the Arab world and has created a new generation of terrorists. The barbaric treatment of thousands of Muslims who have been used as some of that growing hatred toward Americans and has added to the increased threat of terrorist attacks against us.

This legislation allows the continued torture of detainees denies them the basic right to challenge their indefinite incarcerations and even strips from U.S. courts their constitutional authority to review this legislation and the treatment of detainees under it. It is absolutely untrue that providing detainees with those rights would require their release from military prisons. Under the rules of the Geneva Conventions, even if an enemy combatant could not be prosecuted, or even if he were acquitted in a trial, he could still be held indefinitely as a prisoner of war until the President of the United States declared that the war against terrorism was concluded. Finally, providing humane and just treatment to detainees protects our own service men and women and our intelligence operatives around the world. A great Republican Senator, Mr. McCain from Arizona, who was held prisoner in North Vietnam for 5.5 years and who was tortured by his captors, has said repeatedly that we cannot insist other countries abide by the Geneva Conventions and treat our citizens humanely if we do not do so ourselves. In other words, we must follow the Golden Rule. Do unto others as you would have others do unto you.

I believe that legislation which we passed last night, which I opposed, will ultimately be considered one of the darker acts in our Nation’s history, one that has been enacted only a handful of times and, in every one of those instances, was regretted and repudiated later because it violates the values and the principles of this great Nation.

It is the attempt of terrorists and their desire to drive us away from those values and principles within our own country, and as we treat others around the world, so we then become perceived by others around the world.

We are the greatest Nation on this Earth. We are the most powerful Nation on this Earth. We are looked to by other countries around the world as the leader of the free world. We have to be true to that requirement, and we need to be true to our own values and our history. I believe we failed to do so, tragically and regrettably, last night.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. President, may I ask how much time I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 8 1/2 minutes.

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, I yield the remainder of my time to the Senator from New Jersey.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the Senator yielding his time to the Senator from New Jersey? Mr. GRASSLEY. He wasn’t going to come in between us anyway. He wants the 8 1/2 minutes but not right now.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Is there objection to the Senator from Minnesota yielding his 8 minutes to the Senator from New Jersey?

Mr. GRASSLEY. Reserving the right to object, the only objection is about what Senator BAUCUS set up; that we were going to come in line afterwards. I don’t object to him having the time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota yielding his 8 minutes to the Senator from New Jersey?

Mr. GRASSLEY. It is better to let it go rather than argue about it and use it up.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I thank the Senator from Iowa. I thank my colleague for yielding time, his time. I do not want to take too much time, aside from my response to what comments I heard here, but I do want to say that I regret this is among the last opportunities we will have to meet on the floor with our distinguished colleague from Minnesota, who has always been forthright on the issues, sticking up for what he believes, no matter what the penalty.

Mr. President, I want to talk to another issue. I want to respond to these charges that I was wrong in my position about where are the—essentially, and I will inject the word; they don’t use it, but they say—cowards who won’t come down on the floor to defend their position? Who are they? Challenge me on one occasion? You have to look at my record before they start that stuff.

I was an original cosponsor of the Ryan White CARE Act. That was back in 1990. I have been an active supporter of this legislation for many years now. So I do appreciate some of the lecture I have been hearing from people who claim that this is a principled issue with them and that we are being cruel and unfair and all kinds of things. It is nonsense. Let’s discuss the issue rationally and see where they have been all these years when we have had practically flat funding on this critical issue for some 4 years now, not even meeting the growth in inflation.

I have heard about the effect on minorities. I will tell you something. The National Minority AIDS Council opposes this bill and supports our objection.

I ask unanimous consent that a communication from them be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The Ryan White HIV/AIDS Treatment Modernization Act of 2006

DEAR MEMBERS OF CONGRESS: On behalf of the National Minority AIDS Council (NMAC) and our national constituency of more than 3,000 community based organizations on the front lines of the fight against HIV/AIDS in their communities, we would like to take this opportunity to support reauthorization of the Ryan White Comprehensive AIDS Resources Emergency Act (CARE Act).

NMAC supports the legislation’s goal to retain the current structure of the CARE Act while seeking to protect care infrastructures and responding to demographic shifts in the HIV epidemic.

However, we are concerned that the legislation, as drafted, does not address the need of all minority populations infected and affected by HIV/AIDS nationwide, and believe it needs several improvements before passage in order to gain our support.

As the nation’s largest discretionary spending agency, the CARE Act supports the myriad needs of individuals and families affected by HIV/AIDS who would not otherwise receive access to these services, full funding for the CARE Act is essential and the appropriate authorized funding levels should be a high priority of the Congress in the reauthorization of this law.

Unfortunately, the CARE Act has been flat-funded for a number of years, even as the rate of new infections is consistently reported at approximately 40,000 per year.

Full funding for the CARE Act is critically important to protect the lives of color that have been devastated by the epidemic. Without a fully funded CARE Act, at $2.6 billion, many men, women, and children of color will not have access to care and gaps in health disparities will grow exponentially.

NMAC supports the direction of additional funding to areas with high HIV incidence, however, with the absence of additional funding states like New York, California, Florida, Texas, New Jersey and those that have historically been epicenters of the epidemic may be left destitute as a result of the lack of care.

We believe regions of the country may be faced with the destabilization of systems of care. We believe that from the Senators who were so critical in their accusations.

The majority is not willing to do that. So they are trying to steal the funds away from States that have the need and already have the population to serve.

It is less than amusing for me to hear people say we are not going to fund for this program suddenly act like this is the primary concern to them, that everybody else who doesn’t agree with them is cowardly. And these four Senators keep identifying—I am one of the four, proud to be one of those four. If there is a new emerging problem in rural areas, then there is one answer—add money, add funding. But instead of funding AIDS treatment, the Senators on the other side of the aisle who are not here to defend the tax giveaways or the cost of the war—they voted to give away AIDS funding money to wealthy Americans, the wealthiest among us, in massive tax cuts. That’s OK. Give that money to the rich is not the point of this, is not the point, but is the point of this is that from States that have the need and already inadequate Ryan White money, and urban areas against rural areas. That is not the way to do it, if you really care. We need to fully fund the Ryan White CARE Act. But the reality is they are trying to do that. So, they are trying to steal and effectively fund from States that have the need and already have the population to serve.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator’s time has expired.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I thank you. I will continue to object to get the record and with this on that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, would you signal to me when I have used 15 minutes of my 20 minutes?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will do so.

SORRY FATE OF TAX EXTENDERS IN “TRAILER” PACKAGE

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, we’ve hit the end of the road on trying to pass the trailer bill separately. It is pretty clear we won’t get a bill to the President’s desk before we recess for the upcoming mid-term elections.

From my perspective the right thing to do is to pass legislation that resolves two important tax policy issues. The issues are a permanent death tax relief package and the trailer bill which contains a retroactive extension of individual tax rate provisions. Those provisions expired on December 31, 2005. That is the right date—December 31, 2005. Taxpayers have lived with uncertainty on these bipartisan, widely supported provisions for almost 9 months or three-quarters of a year.

How did we get here? How come we can’t get a permanent death tax relief deal when it is clear that more than 60 Senators are on record in support of repeal or significant relief? How come we can’t get a resolution of expired tax provisions that are overwhelmingly supported in both the House and Senate?

This uncertainty is solely the responsibility of the leadership of both to be resolved. I’m referring to items other than the basic 2-year extension of provisions that expired on December 31, 2005. Let me go through a few of those items.

First, there is the abandoned miner’s reclamation—AML—fund proposal. Senators SANTORUM, BYRD, and ROCKEFELLER took the lead in this plan. Chairman ENZI led the heavy lifting.

Second, there is a package of added incentives to enhance Hurricane Katrina rebuilding efforts. Senator LOTT took the lead on this package, along with the support of Senators VITTER, and LANDRIEU.

Third, there are tax relief incentives for mine safety. Senators BYRD, SANTORUM, and ROCKEFELLER argued for these important provisions.

Fourth, there is an expansion of the veterans mortgage bonds program. This is a program that the states use to provide veterans who return from combat with low-interest loans so that they can buy their families a home. Senators DEWINE and SMITH advanced these provisions.

Fifth, there is a proposal to provide a deduction for private mortgage insurance—PMI—to first-time home purchasers. Senators LINCOLN and SMITH worked hard to secure these provisions.

Sixth, there is a proposal to level the playing field between individual and corporate capital gains tax treatments. This means insuring that timber-growing areas and related mill towns will not be disadvantaged if the timber company is a corporation. Most, not all, of the Senators from the timber-growing states in the Pacific Northwest and southeast had an interest in this provision.

These are a few of the proposals that were negotiated and resolved in the trailer package. In my role as Finance Committee chairman, I protected these Senate responsibilities. I expect our Senate Leadership to back me as we proceed. I am protecting Senators and Senate positions, so you would think they would automatically back me. To reiterate, a deal is a deal. The House has affirmed the deal with its vote on the trifecta. There should be no backsliding on the deal.

Now, we haven’t been able to move a separate trailer bill because the Republican Leadership wants to use the trailer bill as a way to avoid dealing with the death tax relief at some future point. I have been pushing for a separate bill for a lot of reasons. Some Republican colleagues have complained about my efforts, using terms like “whining” to describe my persistence.

Why push so hard for a separate bill, some have asked. There are three key reasons. The first is the 19 million taxpayers who may face compliance problems because of incomplete IRS forms. The second reason is the hundreds of thousands of business taxpayers who have been in limbo waiting for final approval of measures like the research and development tax credit. Third, I’m virtually certain that the leadership’s strategy of trying to use unrelated “sweeteners” to turn Democratic votes for a death tax deal will continue to fail.

Let’s go through these reasons, one-by-one.

First, take a look at the Finance Committee website. On September 13, and 26, 2006, you will find press releases that explain Finance Committee tax staff research. At my request, the tax staff looked into the effects of delaying action on the three widely-applicable expired middle-income tax relief provisions. I am talking about the deductions for college tuition, teacher’s out-of-pocket classroom expenses, and State sales tax. You will see that we are talking about a group of up to 19 million tax filers being affected. Tax filers means families filing jointly and individuals filing as singles. In other words, we are talking about a lot more than the 19 million taxpayers we repeat that. More than 19 million taxpayers. The professional staff, all experienced tax practitioners who discussed this problem with the IRS, came to the conclusion that delaying action on extensions of the laws into the lame-duck would have adverse consequences for that group of 19 million taxpayers. I won’t go into details, you will find them on the website.

Let me say that serving as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee is a privilege and a responsibility. I thank the people of Iowa and my colleagues in the Senate Republican Caucus for that privilege. I enjoy every day I serve as chairman, but it brings responsibilities as well. One of those responsibilities is tax policy. Now, whether an individual Senator agrees or disagrees with a particular extension or repeal of tax relief matters is debatable. We all have opinions on these things. Probably no two Finance Committee members, let alone two U.S. Senators not on the committee, agree on all expiring tax provision measures that we have to agree on, is that we should not deliberately, and I underline the word deliberately, take actions to unnecessarily complicate taxpayers’ efforts to comply with our admittedly complex tax system. That’s what delaying action on these provisions means. There’s no ifs, ands, or buts. If we do not act before the 2006 IRS forms are finalized we’re going to lose millions of taxpayers. Some have called it whining. Some might call it annoying. Others could call it persistence. I call it doing my job. When you are talking about up to 19 million middle-income taxpayers who are trying to get along with our complex tax system, I will whine until I run out of breath. I tried to remedy this problem by persuading my leadership to change its mind. I did it in a way that is respectful of the rights and responsibilities of the leadership. I'm disappointed and frustrated that leadership has failed to act. The second reason I pressed for a separate trailer bill was to deal with the expiration of expired businesses-related tax incentives. These matters, like the research and development tax credit, are overwhelmingly popular in the House and Senate. Businesses have been in limbo on extender issues. We are talking about almost 9 months of limbo now and at least another month of limbo. A lot of businesses, in good faith, relied on my assurances. They relied on assurances of the Congressional leadership, made in May of this year. These businesses were assured that these extenders would be done. In my State, Rockwell-Collins, of Cedar Rapids, is taking a financial hit because of our dilly-dallying. And it is not just management that cares. Iowa is a manufacturing state and we are proud of our "R & D." Thousands of Iowa employees of these companies have the right to ask why this popular provision is being delayed. Some of them could ask why something this popular is a "hostage" to be used? They could ask me if political "credibility" of threats is more important than a job-based incentive?

When they ask me these questions, I could blame the Democratic leadership for their inactivity to get death tax relief. Certainly, there's truth to that defense. But, the Iowa workers, as most Midwesterners, want to know the bottom-line. Blaming the other side is fair political discourse and everyone does it. But it is not a satisfactory answer if the matter is not taken care of. We owe these companies and workers a ticket out of limbo.

I come to the third reason I pushed for a separate trailer bill. Almost 2 months ago, the Republicans on the Senate Finance Committee rejected my advice and decided to place the bet. I advised them publicly and privately that it would not work. I won't repeat all of that. It is in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of August 3. The bottom line is that the horses didn't come in on the trifecta. After the vote, being worried about the endless delay on extenders, I suggested a course of action that would "keep the hope of death tax relief alive." Under the plan, the leadership would push for an early vote on the trailer bill. In other words, the form in which it failed or in a revised form, if it were to fail, I suggested we pass a separate trailer bill.

This plan would have worked, for a fourth time, whether sweeteners for the trailer bill would turn their votes to favor a death tax relief package. I was convinced months ago that sweeteners wouldn't turn Democrat votes.

On this point about turning votes with sweeteners, let's step back for a second and look at the big picture. Death tax is a passionate issue. There is a moral dimension to it. Liberals tend to define any death tax relief as immoral because they argue the benefit of the relief will go to wealthy people. The political ads they produce use the actress Paris Hilton as an example. Conservatives also look at the death tax as a moral issue. They see the destruction of the fruits of labor and saving. It's a penalty on the rewards of hard work. From our perspective, the death tax is about small business and family farms. It's about providing one generation with a chance to pass on the fruits of their thrift and work to the next generation. The political ads we produce use family farm and small business examples.

So, this is an issue where folks have strong feelings. Ironically, from a process standpoint, Republicans and Democrats think alike. Here is what I mean by that comment. Republicans and Democrats want permanent relief. Most, not all, of my caucus wants permanent repeal. A few Democrats agree with that view. Because of the political inflexibility, you simply cannot find a definitive Democratic Caucus position on death tax relief. The Democratic Caucus is divided into three groups. Some want repeal. Some want significant relief short of repeal. One group has the basic mindset that cares. The liberal core, wants symbolic permanent relief and don't want to lose much revenue in doing it. There is a huge irony in all of this. The irony is the Republican leadership's sweeteners strategy ignores this basic mindset on the death tax. Republicans will not compromise their principles on the death tax with unrelated sweeteners. Neither will the middle group of Democrats.

The evidence is overwhelming. As a former Majority Leader Bob Dole once said, it's all about the votes. The evidence that sweeteners don't matter is on the record. Take a look at it. Timber capital gains were added as a sweetener on the first trailer bill. It did not change any votes. There was an effort to add the pension bill to a death tax relief package. That didn't change votes and was aborted. Then, we had the third sweetener effort, the trifecta. A minimum wage hike, the ultimate sweetener, was added along with the trailer bill. It changed one vote in gross. We are not certain, that if all Democratic Senators were here that day, that, on net, the vote count would have changed.

As the old saying goes about some places, there is no there, there. The sweeteners strategy is like the places the old saying refers to. If our goal is 60 votes and permanent death tax relief, there is no there, there. Rest assured, another trifecta run will carry extra political baggage. Don't listen to me. Listen to the Democrats who have resisted the iron hand of their leadership on this issue. Senator Lincoln has taken more heat than any single Senator in trying to get permanent death tax relief. Ask her for her opinion on this "sweetener" strategy. She says forcing the political votes on the trifecta set us back on getting permanent death tax relief.

Why, with the pressure of elections off, and a new session coming up, would any targeted Democrat Senator switch their vote on a bill that was designed to be a hostage? Why would Republican friends in the same position react any differently? Think about it.

Add to this futility another factor. Taking another run at a revised trailer bill would start an endless negotiation. How can we get the trailer bill with the idea of adding even more sweeteners, where do we stop? How would that endless negotiation help close a deal on permanent death tax relief? The truth is trying to play trailer bill issues for more votes on death tax relief only complicates resolution of the death tax.

So, the third reason I continued to try to clear the trailer bill is that I want a clear path to a death tax deal. Combining death tax relief with other extenders only complicates our ability to get a death tax relief package. There is little or no utility in continuing the failed strategy of trying to "turn" death tax deal votes.

Now, where do go from here? As I said a few minutes ago, I want to resolve two important tax relief issues—permanent death tax relief and the trailer bill. One package is done—it's the trailer bill. The other package needs some work, but can get done. We might even have a shot at permanent death tax relief in lame duck. If we are going to move the ball forward, we are going to have to recognize that we have two separate tax relief products. I hope all of us have finally learned that lesson. If we have learned our lessons, and, key Democrats are finally freed to do what they want to do, they will vote their conscience and their constituents' interests. If those two critical steps occur, we will get a permanent death tax relief deal.

I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I thank my friend, my colleague, and chairman of the Committee on Finance, Senator GRASSLEY, for trying to do what is right, and that is to get the extenders package passed tonight. He has done an excellent job of explaining why the so-called trifecta bill—that is the standard trailer, melded in with the estate tax reform, melded in with a minimum wage reduction—just is not going to work.

Three times I have tried to urge this Senate to pass the so-called extenders. Three times the Senate disagreed; that is, I have asked for unanimous consent three times and each time the Senate said no. The objection was from the other side of the aisle. It came from a Democrat friend from Iowa. I think it is important to realize how vitally important it is we get these so-called extenders passed. What are they?
They are basic provisions in the Tax Code which expired at the end of last year. They expired. There is a deduction for teachers' classroom expenses, a deduction for education tuition, there is a deduction for State sales tax revenue, there is a deduction for research and development. They are all extenders. These are all provisions that many Americans have relied on and hope to rely on when they file their tax returns next year. They are not in the law. It is already September 29. We have not acted to extend these. They are extremely important to an awful lot of people. Let's just take teachers, for example. Teachers desperately want to help teach their kids. Some of them buy classroom supplies. They go down to Wal-Mart and buy supplies and they get a deduction for the classroom supplies they buy. It is important for the teachers. It is important for the kids. It is a good thing to do. It has been in the tax law for so much in the past. It was a law through 2005.

What about tuition deduction? We all know how important that is and how much people depend on that for their education expense, particularly when tuition is so much up. A lot of people want to deduct their tuition, and 3.6 million people did last year. We have not acted to extend this. These are all provisions that many taxpayers—it looks like. This is the basic Form 1040 that shows everyone what the 1040 form looks like. This is the basic Form 1040 that applies to taxpayers who paid taxes in the year 2005. The two provisions at issue are highlighted here. Line 23 is "educator expenses," and line 34 is "tuition and fees deduction." Line 23, for educator expenses, is for teachers and other individuals who pay money for classroom supplies. There are 3.3 million exercising this deduction. They want to help their kids and, obviously, lower their taxes, so they took the deduction. Line 34 on Form 1040 is "tuition and fees deduction." About 3.6 million Americans took advantage of that deduction when filling out their tax returns for the tax return for 2005. What will happen if we do not pass this extenders provision tonight or tomorrow? First, the IRS has said their drop-dead date is mid-October. They need to know what the law is by mid-October. We will not be here mid-October. If we do not pass these extenders, these provisions in the next couple of hours. We are not going to be here. If we come back in a lame duck session—November 13 we are coming back—who knows how soon it will be before we finally take up the extenders? And I suspect there are so popular that this is going to attract an awful lot of other legislation. Maybe it is the estate tax change, wages—I don't know what it will be, but it will attract a lot of attention at the lame duck session. So that means it will probably delay.

I don't know how long this lame duck session will last. I have been here for—this is a session that had already been in the past. It was a law through 2005.

What happens if we pass the extenders late? Here is what will happen. These lines I told you about, lines 23 and 34, are going to change. If this is not done before Christmas, we are going to change these deductions than this that taxpayers can take, but these are the basic deductions and the most important deductions—line 23 is no longer a deduction for teachers classroom supplies. In the past, it was a deduction for "educator expenses." That now becomes a deduction—"educator expenses." That now becomes a deduction. Line 34 was a deduction for the employee's wages for jury duty pay you pay to your employer. How many people take a deduction because their employer pays them for jury duty? My point is, very important provisions are no longer going to be in the law. They will not be available. You might ask, gee, what happens if Congress passes these very important provisions—who knows when? It could just be before Thanksgiving; it could be December. What would be the first part of December? That is the first part of December—the IRS will have a mailing out the wrong forms. The forms are going to be wrong because presumably, hopefully, sometime in November or December we do what is right, we continue these provisions which means to say we do not raise taxes. Let's not forget if we do not pass this we are raising taxes, first, on 3.3 million teachers; we are raising taxes on another 3.6 million people who file for the tuition deduction. These 7 million people will find their taxes increased if we do not pass this provision. Again, say we do pass the provisions later in the year, say, in November or December, and the wrong forms go out. Then what will happen? People will have the wrong forms. Then what will happen? Gee, the IRS, will have to figure out what to do about this. Maybe they will send out a postcard. Who do you send postcards to? They send postcards to people who file federal income returns. There are 100 million people who file federal income returns. They are not going to get a postcard. They are not going to know. They are not going to know that Congress corrected the mistake it made by passing these extensions.

What about people who file electronically? What about people who buy their software, their Turbo Tax software sometime around Thanksgiving or the first week of December ready for Christmas, with Christmas presents. They are not going to know. They are going to buy the wrong software. The software is not going to have the right information. And they have the wrong information because the IRS has given... them the best information they could at the time, but Congress was derelict. Congress was not responsible. Congress did not do what it should do for the American people.

I am very concerned. And, frankly, I am very disappointed. I am saddened that this Congress is, in effect, playing games. I hope very much, and I ask, I plead with the other side, at least let's hold off just a little bit. Don't immediately object. Let's figure out a way to work this out.

We have a few hours here tonight. It is very simple. These are provisions everyone has agreed on. There is no disagreement. The only problem the other side of the aisle has raised is how to do it. I indicated that the drop-dead date for the IRS is October 15, so now is the time to do it—not later. We cannot couple this with estate tax repeal. We cannot couple this with the minimum wage increases. We have voted that up twice, three times. It did not work.

The dye is cast. Senators have cast their votes. So let's get on with it. Let's get on with it. Let's put those issues to rest. We do not have to deal with minimum wage or estate tax tonight, but we do have to do the extenders tonight. This is very timely.

I very much hope that nobody objects right away. Maybe we could put this off for a few minutes, maybe a half an hour or something, and plead with those who are sane, who want to do this right, to just get this package of extenders passed. So I am going to ask consent, we get it, as my understanding that under the consent agreement, following me directly, we get it.

Two hours from Washington is recognized for 10 minutes, Senator MENENDEZ, with Republicans in between.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I would like the same insertion, following the Senator from Georgia, in the appropriate order, for no more than 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator so modify her request?

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I modify the current request that following myself, Senator CORNYN be recognized for 10 minutes, Senator HARKIN for 10 minutes, Senator CRAIG for 10 minutes, Senator MENENDEZ for 10 minutes, a Republican Senator as designated for 10 minutes, Senator LANDRIEU for 15 minutes, Senator BACHMANN for 10 minutes, Senator SALAZAR for 15 minutes, a Republican Senator for 15 minutes, and Senator LUTENBERG for 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, again reserving the right to object, I will tell Senator CORNYN you paid him a great compliment, but that it be Senator CHAMBLISS instead of Senator CORNYN.

Mrs. MURRAY. I apologize. It is Senator CHAMBLISS. And I apologize. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

VETERANS HEALTHCARE

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I rise to discuss how we are doing in caring for America's veterans. With our country at war, with 1.5 million Americans who have lost their jobs in the global war on terror, and with many of them coming home in need of care—it is a critical question.

Last week, we got a shocking report from the Government Accountability Office, which found that the VA has misled Congress about its failure to plan for our veterans.

Based on that report and other research, I came here to the Senate floor 2 days ago and shared my concerns with the full Senate. I said that the Bush Administration has not been honest with us about its failures to plan for the needs of our veterans, and that we still have a lot of work to do to get back on track. And I warned that—½ years into this war—the Bush Administration still does not have a plan to meet the needs of all the veterans who will be coming home.

In my speech on Tuesday, I said that Congress needs to provide real oversight of the Bush Administration so that we can ensure our veterans get the care they have earned. For those who want to see my full remarks and all the evidence I cited, you can watch or read my speech on my Web site at http://murray.senate.gov.

This morning, the Senator from Idaho came here to the Senate floor and spoke with great passion about our veterans. The distinguished chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs Committee took issue with some of the things I said in my remarks here on Tuesday.

I respect the Senator from Idaho. I applaud his leadership of our committee, and I am pleased to provide more information before the full Senate. I want everyone to know that the Senator from Idaho and I have worked together on veterans issues. We both agree that when the VA finally admitted that it was facing a $3 billion shortfall—the chairman was first to stand beside me and find the funding to fix the problem. And I thank him for that.

I am proud to say that the Senator from Idaho and I agree on many points. We both agree that the VA provides excellent healthcare. When I was in college during the Vietnam War, I remembered the VA hospital in Seattle. I saw firsthand how dedicated and talented VA employees are.

Today, that ethic of service and commitment to quality beats in the heart of every VA employee. I am proud of the Congress we have made helping the VA become a model for effective, high quality healthcare.

The Senator from Idaho and I also both agree that we have increased VA funding. It has been an uphill battle—and the facts tell me that we are not prepared for the many veterans coming home—but we both agree that we have increased veterans funding. I might point out that we in Congress provided those increases in spite of years of inadequate budget requests from the White House.

We agree that the Senate Veterans' Affairs Committee works in a bipartisan fashion under the leadership of Senator CRAIG and member AKAKA. As I have said many times on this floor—taking care of our veterans is not a Democratic issue or a Republican issue. It is an American issue, and we all need to be part of the solution.

And finally, I couldn't agree more with the Senator from Idaho that we should focus on the facts. Those facts should guide our budgets and our policy decisions. If the facts say everything is fine, that's great. But when the facts say there are problems, we need to hear those facts, and we need to respond based on the facts.
That’s why the GAO report is such a bombshell. Professional, independent government investigators found that the Bush administration has not told us the facts about its budget and planning problems.

Think about that—if the people we rely on for the facts are not telling us the truth, we’ve got a real problem. If they’re hiding the truth, we won’t be able to provide veterans with the services they need. And one of the answers has to be more oversight and more accountability, so we can get to the truth.

Let me turn to the three main points that are relevant here:

First, the Bush administration does not have a real plan to meet the needs of our Iraqi War veterans—and that failure is impacting the care we provide all veterans.

Second, the Bush administration misled Congress and it is still not providing us with up-to-date, timely information.

And third, we in Congress need to provide real oversight and demand real accountability—or our veterans are gonna fall behind.

Mr. President, I am very concerned that the Bush administration still does not have a plan to meet the needs of our returning servicemembers. And to prove that I want to point to three sets of figures that come from the VA itself.

The first piece of evidence concerns the number of veterans the VA expected to treat this year.

For fiscal year 2006, the VA planned to take care of about 110,000 veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan. 110,000. How many are they actually treating? 185,000. So in this fiscal year—that is just about to end—the VA underestimated demand by 68 percent. And that is just for those veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan. If the VA had an accurate plan, they wouldn’t have been so far.

Let’s go to the second piece of evidence that shows the VA has no plan. As I said, this year we are treating 185,000 veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan. How many will we treat next year? The VA estimates that it will only be 109,000 Iraq and Afghanistan veterans. We are treating 185,000 today, but the VA thinks that number is going to go down dramatically next year.

Given what we know about our continued involvement in Iraq and Afghanistan, that simply defies logic. And you have to wonder how the VA ever came up with those figures in the first place. Its projection for next year is even lower than its projection for this year. Where are they getting these numbers? Why are they so wrong?

Those are the questions we in Congress need to be asking. If the VA really thinks that next year we will have fewer veterans seeking care, it clearly has no plan to deal with those who will be coming home.

Let me turn to the third piece of evidence that shows the VA has no plan to deal with Iraq war veterans. In July, the VA told us it will need $1 billion each year for the next 10 years to care for veterans from Iraq.

But the fact is—for this year alone—we are already spending more than $1 billion. They have given us a 10-year estimate, and they are already wrong in the very first year. And the lion’s share of veterans have not separated from the Pentagon yet, so it is a safe bet that demand for VA services will go up and that will require more funding.

So the VA is wrong. So the figures in the figures it provided us just a few months ago. That’s because they don’t have a plan.

The fact that they predicted 110,000 enrolled Iraq War veterans this year—and they are already serving 185,000 shows they don’t have a plan.

The fact that they think demand for care will drop next year shows that they don’t have a plan.

And the fact that we are already spending more than they said we would need for Iraq war vets shows they don’t have a plan.

This is unacceptable. If we tolerate it, then we are not doing our jobs here in Congress. They don’t have a plan. And without real oversight and accountability for veterans end up getting hurt.

Next Mr. President, I want to turn to the facts of the GAO report that I requested. This report—prepared by independent, credible government investigators—tells us what is really happening. All of us care about the facts and we all care about getting this right, and that’s why we should all take this report to heart. Unless we learn from our mistakes, we are never going to do any better for America’s veterans.

In that spirit, I want to focus on four findings. First, the GAO found that the VA knew it had serious problems with its budget, but failed to notify us in Congress. Even worse, it misled us.

The report suggests that the VA could still be sending us inaccurate information in its quarterly reports.

Second, the GAO found that the VA was basing its budgets on “unrealistic assumptions, errors in estimation, and insufficient data.”

Third, the Pentagon failed to give the VA up-to-date information about how many servicemembers would be coming down the pipeline into the VA.

Finally, the GAO found that the VA did not adequately plan for the impact of servicemembers from Iraq and Afghanistan.

For me, I think one of the most disturbing findings is that the VA kept assuring us in Congress that everything was fine—while inside the VA it was clear that shortfalls were growing.

The VA became aware it would have problems in October 2004—but didn’t admit those problems until June of 2005. Veterans were telling me of long lines and delays in care.

For months, I tried to give the VA more money, but the administration fought me every step of the way. And who paid the price for the VA’s deceptions? America’s veterans, and that’s just wrong.

Let me walk through some of the deceptions found in the report. It shows a very troubling gap between what the VA said and what the VA told the GAO.

According to the GAO report, starting back in October 2004, the VA knew money was tight. It anticipated serious budget challenges, and created a “Budget Challenges” working group. Two months later, in December 2004, the budget group made internal recommendations to deal with the shortfall. It suggested delaying new initiatives and shifting around funding.

Two months later, in February 2005, the Bush administration released its budget proposal for 2006.

The GAO found that budget was based on “unrealistic assumptions, errors in estimation and insufficient data.”

A week later at a hearing—on February 15, 2005, I asked the VA Secretary if the President’s budget was sufficient. He told me:

I have many of the same concerns, and I end up being satisfied that we can get the job done with this budget.

Let’s remember what was happening back at that time. I was hearing from veterans that they were facing delays in care and that the VA system was stretched to capacity. But the VA continued to say everything was fine.

On March 8, Secretary Nicholson told a House committee that the president’s fiscal year 2006 budget gives VA what it needs.

I was hearing a much different story as I spoke with veterans around the country. That is why on March 10, I offered an amendment in the Senate Budget Committee to increase veterans funding by 3 percent so we could hire more doctors and provide faster care to veterans. Unfortunately, Republicans said no.

That same month, the VA’s internal monthly reports showed that demand for healthcare was exceeding projections. That was another warning sign that the VA should have shared with us, but it didn’t.

On March 16, Senator AKAKA and I offered an amendment here on the Senate floor to increase veterans funding by $2.85 billion. Once again, Republicans said no.

The next month, on April 5, Secretary Nicholson wrote to Senator HUTCHISON saying:

I can assure you that the VA does not need emergency supplemental funds in FY 2005.

A week later, on April 12, I offered two amendments on the Senate floor to boost veterans funding. First, I asked the Senate to agree that the lack of veterans funding was an emergency and that we had to fix. Republicans said no.

Then I asked the Senate to agree that supporting our veterans was a priority. Again, Republican said no. As a result, veterans didn't get the funding they needed, and the deception continued.

On June 9, I asked Secretary Nicholson at a hearing if he had enough funding to deal with the mental health challenges faced by veterans returning from Iraq and Afghanistan. He assured me the VA was fine.

So for 6 months we had happy talk that everything was fine with the VA. Then, in June—just two weeks after the announcement of the latest assurance—the truth finally came out. On June 23, the VA revealed a massive shortfall of $3 billion.

I went to work my colleagues, and we came up with the funding. But we could have solved that problem much earlier and saved veterans the delays they experienced.

By misleading us, the Bush administration hurt America's veterans. We could have provided the money when it was needed. We could have been hiring the doctors and nurses we needed. We could have been buying the medical equipment that was needed. And we could have helped keep thousands of veterans off waiting lists for care.

Here's the bottom line: The Bush administration failed to deal with a problem back in October 2004. They saw it getting worse, but they kept assuring us everything was fine. They worked to defeat my amendments to provide funding, and they didn't come up clean until June 2005. That is unacceptable.

I think America's veterans deserve real answers. This report shows that the VA was not telling Congress the truth and was fighting those of us who were trying to help. We need to bring Secretary Nicholson before the Veterans Affairs Committee so we can get some real answers. We need to ensure the VA does not repeat the same mistakes of the past 2 years. We owe that to our future veterans who sacrifice so much for us.

We need an explanation of why the VA misled us about so-called management efficiencies. The GAO found those alleged savings were nothing but hot air. This report clearly shows the Bush administration misrepresented the truth to us for 4 fiscal years, through 4 budgets, and 4 appropriations cycles about these bogus savings. And when they could not make these efficiencies a reality, they took the funds from veterans healthcare. That is unacceptable.

The report also suggests that even in its latest quarterly reports to us—the VA is slow to report and does not provide key information we required—such as the time required for veterans to get their first appointment.

The GAO report also says that the Department of Defense failed to provide the VA up-to-date information on how many servicemembers would be separating from service and seeking care at the VA. That is really frustrating to me because I have been asking every general who comes up here if they're doing enough to ensure a smooth transition from the Pentagon to the VA.

In fact, on February 16 of last year, I questioned Secretary Rumsfeld directly. I got him to agree that caring for every veteran cost of war, but he had no real answer when I asked why his request for the war did not include funding for veterans.

Finally, the GAO report verifies that the VA failed to plan for the impact of the veterans coming back from Iraq and Afghanistan.

Mr. President, I would like to take a moment to respond in detail to some of the points my colleague from Idaho raised. He is a very dedicated and hardworking advocate for America's veterans.

At times, we may disagree on policy, but it is never personal. And it is my highest hope that whatever policy disagreements we have result in better service for America's veterans.

The Senator from Idaho said that VA healthcare is the best care in the world. And I certainly agree as I said earlier. But veterans are being barred from receiving that care and are put on waiting lists.

For example, in the VA Service Network that covers Alaska, Oregon, my home State of Washington and Senator Chabot's home State of Ohio, the VA states that there are over 10,000 veterans on waiting lists for their initial appointments. There are thousands more waiting for specialty care. Veterans in need are told to wait months before the VA can provide the care they need. And that's unacceptable. Ensuring that veterans get timely care—especially for mental health services—is a dire need.

The question is this: Can veterans who need help get it when they need it? That is unacceptable. Ensuring that veterans get timely care—especially for mental health services—is a dire need.

Again, don't take my word for it. Remember what a VA undersecretary said about veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan who were being "virtually inaccessible" because of long waiting lines. So when we use a reasonable standard, it is clear we are failing short of what our veterans deserve.

Secretary Nicholson said that during the last 6 years, the administration and Congress has increased VA funding by 70 percent. But let me remind him that every step of the way Congress had to fight the administration for those increases. I know that we are putting more funding into the VA than we have historically. I have worked with my colleagues to fight for that funding. But let me remind my colleagues from Idaho that even before this administration, we still have thousands of veterans waiting for primary and secondary care—or not being allowed to access care at all.

The funding that this Congress has provided for the VA still does not provide every veteran who is eligible can access care. The VA takes what Congress appropriates and then limits which veterans can access care to make the care the VA provides within the budget box Congress provides.

Time and again, proposals for increased fees and copays are presented to discourage veterans from accessing VA care. I am happy to say we have fought off this administration's efforts to put those increased fees and copays in place. But—at the same time—the administration has limited access to the VA for Priority 7 and 8 veterans.

The VA admitted that fees and copays within its fiscal year 2009 budget would discourage 200,000 enrolled veterans from accessing care, and another 1.1 million from enrolling at all. This is wrong. We need a real budget based on the real needs. Not one based on limited access care. We need to ensure that veterans from seeking the care they were promised.

The Senator from Idaho wanted to be very clear that he had called hearings and exercised oversight. I agree. He was one of my colleagues who pushed hard to get those hearings. I was at those hearings. I asked questions at those hearings.
And one thing is clear—those efforts were not enough. We are still not getting straight answers from the VA. We are still getting out-of-date information. We still do not have a plan from the VA to care for our veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan. So we had the Senate hearings—I think we'd all agree that after a $3 billion error that hurt our veterans there better be hearings—but they were not enough. And we need more oversight and more accountability if we're going to make sure veterans do not get hurt again.

The Senator from Idaho asked—why now? Why am I calling for more oversight now? Because the GAO just released its report. I didn't tell the GAO how long to take in its investigation. When it had the facts, it released them, and I spoke up immediately. In fact, I think the Senator from Idaho will remember the morning the GAO released its report I shared the results with our Veterans Affairs Committee at a public hearing.

I thought everyone on the committee needed to know immediately that government investigators found the VA had not told us about the problems it knew that the VA is providing quarterly reports that are late and based on old information. Simply put, I spoke out when we got the facts.

I would add that if anyone believes that my remarks here on Tuesday to the Appropriations Committee, I convened eight farm bill hearings across the country this summer. I will have to say that in traveling to those regions and visiting with the producers, I can report that there has been severe disasters occurring in each and every section of our country from an agricultural standpoint. Rural America is hurting.

While the Senate did not have the opportunity today to proceed with the full debate on this important issue, I want to be clear that I do support disaster assistance. Earlier this year, the Senate passed disaster assistance in the fiscal year 2006 supplemental appropriations bill. Unfortunately, that provision was dropped in conference. Since then, the situation has greatly worsened. Fortunately, we currently have a disaster package in the Senate agriculture appropriations bill, which we expect to complete after the November elections.

The appropriate place to address agriculture disaster is in the agriculture appropriations bill. However, we will need to refine and improve this disaster package based upon current circumstances. For example, the current disaster package provides assistance only for losses for the 2005 crop-year. Unfortunately, the losses in 2006 appear to be more extensive, more widespread, and more severe than the 2005 losses. The University of Georgia Center for Agricultural and Economic Development estimates that at this point agriculture production losses may total over $819 million in Georgia alone.

At the current time, we may not know the full extent of the 2006 crop damage, but it is evident in looking across the country that crop and livestock assistance is needed.

The Secretary of Agriculture has agreed with us on this point. Earlier this summer he announced in North Dakota that a disaster indeed had taken place across America. However, he provided what I thought, frankly, was a fairly nominal response to the issue.

America's farmers provide this country the safest, most affordable food and fiber supply of any country in the world. It is our duty to stand by them in this time of need.

With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

READING FIRST

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, the Education Department's inspector general released a blistering report last week about a program called Reading First. The inspector general reported that Education Department officials, one, mismanaged the program; two, steered contracts away from publishers they favor and away from others; three, flagrantly ignored Federal laws on maintaining local and State control of school curricula.

These are serious findings by the inspector general. Reading First is one of the largest programs in the Education Department. Congress has appropriated about $5 billion, or about a billion dollars for each of the past 5 years. So when we learn that a program of this size is being mismanaged, that laws are being broken, we need to take pause and investigate further.

Soon after Reading First was created, a number of publishers, researchers, and local school officials complained that the Department pressured States and local school districts to adopt favored certain reading programs over others. They claimed that the Department pressured States and local school districts—sometimes subtly and sometimes bluntly—to purchase its preferred programs and reject others.

These kinds of activities are illegal. The law that established the Education Department states:

No provision of a program administered by the Secretary or by any other officer of the Department shall be construed to authorize the Secretary or any such officer to exercise any direction, supervision, or control over the curriculum, program of instruction, administration, or personnel of any educational institution, school, or school system . . . . over the selection or consent of . . . . textbooks, or other instructional materials by any educational institution or school system, except to the extent authorized by law.

Now, when we established the Department of Education—and I happened to be here at that time; I was in the House of Representatives at that time—the hope and cry went out to those who were opposed to establishing the Department of Education that the Department of Education would begin telling local school districts what to teach, what books to use. Well, none of us wanted that. We wanted the Department of Education to do certain things but not to control local schools. We wanted to leave the control of school curricula, textbooks, what they taught, in the hands of local school boards. So we put this in the law expressly forbidding the Secretary of Education, or anyone in that Department, to exercise any direction, supervision, or control over textbooks, and things that is about as clear as night is from day in the law.

Later, when we passed the No Child Left Behind Act, we further elaborated on that, and No Child Left Behind established the Reading First Program. It reiterates this point.

No funds provided to the Department under this act may be used by the Department to endorse, approve, or sanction any curriculum.

The Department officials repeatedly denied that they showed any favoritism. However, the inspector general’s report shows that, in fact, they went to great lengths to influence exactly which instructional materials school districts would buy. They accomplished this in several ways.

First they—I mean the Department of Education officials—stocked their grant review panels with members who shared their own philosophy, directly contradicting the No Child Left Behind Act which laid out specific rules denying the Department officials—stacked their panels with members who shared their own philosophy, directly contradicting the No Child Left Behind Act which laid out specific rules designing to endorse, approve, or sanction any curriculum.

Next, they designed the grant applications in such a way as to discourage the States from using certain reading programs—reading programs that had been approved at the State level and had been approved at the State level. So the Department designed the applications in such a way as to discourage the States from using these reading programs, even to the point of selectively eliminating phrases from the No Child Left Behind Act that didn’t like. The No Child Left Behind Act put in certain must-vote on them that they had to use in terms of getting grants. Guess what. They just left those out of the grant application—just left them out totally.

Third, they leaned heavily on school districts to drop reading programs that didn’t meet the Department’s approval. For example, the Reading First Director opposed a whole-language reading program sold by a company called the Wright Group. In an e-mail, he urged a staff member to leave clear that the Wright Group didn’t have his approval. Here is an excerpt from his e-mail. This is an e-mail from the Reading First Director Christopher Doherty. He said:

They—

This is the group that wanted to come in and mandate an application.

They are trying to crash our party and we need to beat the [expulsive deleted] out of them in front of all the other would-be party crashers who are standing on the front lawn waiting to see how we welcome these dirtbags.

What does all that mean? That means: Look, we have our programs, we have what we want; others want in and, guess what, we are going to keep them out. “They are trying to crash our party”—“our party.” What did Mr. Doherty mean by “crash our party”? They have selected publishers, selected materials that local schools were going to make an application—“Party”? What does that mean?

Here is how it played out in Massachusetts for one State. The Reading First Director, this same guy, Christopher Doherty, called a State official to say that certain reading programs that four school districts were using. All of these programs had gone through the appropriate approval process at the local and State levels. Nevertheless, the State official was given an order: They are saying basically it doesn’t matter what the law says about local control of schools. If we like a particular program we are going to make sure a school uses it, and if we don’t like it, we are going to make sure they don’t use it; we know best, and we will decide. That seems to be the attitude of the Department of Education.

We live in a nation of law. We have laws—laws—laws. We have offices such as the inspector general to investigate whether agencies such as the Education Department are really following the laws we pass. Guess what. The inspector general found that they are not following the law at the Education Department. They are basically thumbing their nose at it.

So far, the person who has borne most of the blame has been the Reading First Director, Christopher Doherty, but I think we need to look a little higher.

Secretary Spellings responded to the report by blaming other Department officials and saying that the events occurred before she took over the Department. However, as President Bush’s domestic policy adviser, she exerted enormous control from the White House over the Department of Education activities.

Michael Petrilli, a former Department official who worked in the Department from 2001 to 2005, wrote a column this week in which he said that Mrs. Spellings knew exactly what was going on. Here is what Mr. Petrilli wrote:

As the President’s first-term domestic policy advisor, she micromanaged the implementation of Reading First from her West Wing office. She put one of her most trusted friends inside the Department of Education to make sure that Doherty and his colleagues didn’t go soft and allow just any reading program to receive funds. She was the leading cheerleader for an aggressive approach. And now she bobs and weaves: “After the events that occurred, I became Secretary of Education, I am concerned about these actions and committed to addressing and resolving them.”

A quote from Secretary Spellings.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. COTTON). The Senator’s time has expired.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I didn’t realize I had a time limit. I ask for 2 more minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, if this description is accurate, it is hard to imagine that Secretary Spellings didn’t know anything about the abuses described in the inspector general’s report. Instead of making others take the fall for what happened, she needs to stand up and say whether she had any knowledge of or involvement in these activities when she worked in the White House.

A few weeks ago, the Senate Veterans’ Affairs Committee, I rise this evening to pay tribute to two men who were bookends of what has been termed the “greatest generation,” those Americans who served in World War II. One stood behind the lens and took that famous photo on Iwo Jima that became the iconic picture of the war in the Pacific. The other gave up his life in front of the lens and laid his life on the line in the cause for freedom in Europe. I speak of course, of photographer Joe Rosenthal and the famed actor Glenn Ford. Both men died a few weeks ago, and it is fitting that this body, the Senate of the United States, recognize these great men for their contributions.

Most Americans instantly know that image Joe Rosenthal captured: the photo of five marines and one Navy corpsman raising the flag—the American flag—over Iwo Jima. That image became the basis for the Iwo Jima Memorial which rises above Arlington National Cemetery and a copy of which greets those who enter Quantico Marine Base in Virginia. That image was also made into a postage stamp, not once but twice, and inspired the creation of at least two major pictures: “The Sands of Iwo Jima,” starring John Wayne and the new movie, “The Flags of Our Fathers,” produced by Clint Eastwood, which will debut in a few weeks.

It has been said that Joe Rosenthal’s famous photograph not only gave Americans back home an image of what was happening on the front lines, it persuasively argued that America was winning that war.

The impact of that image cannot be overstated. In fact, former President George Herbert Walker Bush, who served as a Navy pilot during World War II, recently recalled seeing the flag-raising photo in the newspaper during the war with Japan and said that without Joe Rosenthal’s picture, the war might have dragged on even longer:

I wonder if Joe fully appreciated what this photograph meant and what it still means to the American people.

That is what the elder President Bush wrote.

The President’s comments were shared recently at a public presentation held in the American Sniper’s honor. Joe Rosenthal was posthumously awarded a Navy medal for distinguished public service. It was an honor long overdue but one I am proud has finally been awarded.

But while many know the story of Joe Rosenthal and his famous photograph, few Americans, however, really know the real life story of the famous actor Glenn Ford.

Glenn Ford was born in Canada. He emigrated to the United States when he was 5 years old. He was a descendant of U.S. President Martin Van Buren. But Glenn Ford made his own way in his life. He went on to become a Hollywood movie star who appeared in over 100 movies and television shows. But his real military actions are worthy of a film all its own.

Before the beginning of World War II, Glenn Ford served in the Coast Guard Auxiliary. In 1942, he enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps. In the aftermath of the war in Europe, Glenn Ford came upon a displaced persons camp several miles outside of Munich, Germany. An estimated 12,000 to 15,000 homeless Jews were living at the Fernwald camp, which appeared to have been overlooked in the post-war confusion.

According to the Simon Wiesenthal Center, which in 1985 presented Glenn Ford with the Liberator’s Award:

The survivors were astonished and wept with gratitude to see an American who really cared, and for seven weeks Ford brought food, books and medical supplies. The supply sergeants looked the other way as Ford loaded up his jeep day after day, and headed up to Fernwald.

Ford alone was responsible for giving hope and life to approximately half of these 12,000 to 15,000 inmates in an over 7-week period. Many of their newborn sons were named after him in recognition and in gratitude.

Committed to service in the Armed Forces, Glenn Ford also served a tour of duty in Vietnam in the Mekong Delta during Operation Deckhouse V and twice came under fire—intense enemy fire—and narrowly escaped death from a sniper’s bullet, a bullet which wounded the attache standing next to him.

Among his numerous medals and accommodations are the Medal of Honor presented by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Medal de France Libre for the liberation of France, two commendation medals from the U.S. Navy, and the French Medal of Merit. He received the rank of captain with the U.S. Naval Reserves in 1968.

Today, as we battle terrorists wherever they are, I think we should all reflect on the words of Glenn Ford penned in 1960. Here is what that honored and decorated movie star said:

I’m proud to be an American. Let me say again. I’m proud to be an American. And I believe it’s time for every one of us to stand up and show our great country. There are faults and occasional inequities in America. But the proof of how good things really are here is the lines at our borders and at our doors over the world of people wanting to come here to live.

He went on to say:

In the last 200 years, we have built a wonderful dream that other countries can only hope to achieve. So let us not hurt that dream by our own selfishness. If we think only of ourselves and do nothing but complain about this magnificent country—in stead of supporting her—we will lose everything that makes America great. We must all pull together and elect good officials. And we must save energy and help our neighbors—especially the young of America—understand the real meaning of the free enterprise system.

But let’s never forget that to remain free we must always be strong. That is an important lesson I—

Meaning Glenn Ford—learned in my navy career in World War II. National defense must be the top priority for any country. If you are not strong, you are not safe. Now is the time for every American to make sure the free and the home of the brave. But only as long as we are brave. If we are not brave, we will not be free.

So penned by the actor Glenn Ford.

As I said at the beginning of my comments this evening, Joe Rosenthal and Glenn Ford were bookends of World War II. Joe Rosenthal was behind the lens and took that seminal picture of the war in the Pacific, the Iwo Jima flag-raising. Glenn Ford, who had spent his time in front of the lens in motion pictures and in business, left behind the youngest of America—understand the real meaning of the free enterprise system.

Families with and without resources are worthy of a film all its own. The Nation is losing more and more of its veterans day after day, and headed up to Fernwald.

Forces, Glenn Ford also served a tour give up that privilege, or the people of color who account for 75 percent of all HIV/AIDS cases, or the women who make up more than a third of all people living with HIV/AIDS. I am sure they would gladly give up that privilege as well.

These same experts have argued that New Jersey is receiving more than its fair share of Ryan White funding. But what we are hearing is just another numbers game to try to avoid the real issue, which is the completely inadequate funding in this reauthorization bill.

When you look at the full picture, without just zooming in on the piece that happens to fit your argument, New Jersey is one of the most expensive States in which to live in this country. Yet it spends less per person—less per person—than 15 other States, including Alabama, Wyoming, South Dakota, Montana, Alaska, Idaho, Massachusetts, Vermont, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Pennsylvania, Louisiana, and Michigan.

So just to put things in perspective, according to the Care Coalition, Alabama spends about $5,778 per HIV/AIDS patient, and Wyoming spends $5,984 per patient. New Jersey, $800 less than Alabama and $1,000 less than Wyoming per patient on HIV/AIDS care. So I cannot accept the numbers as those would have it constructed for the purposes of pursuing their argument.

There are more than 2,130 new HIV/AIDS infections each year in New Jersey, and in 2004 New Jersey reported almost 2,400 new HIV and AIDS cases, more than all but 4 other States. Ryan White funding is being put to good use saving lives and helping individuals avoid disability and lead productive, successful lives. In New Jersey, we are giving 32,000 people with HIV/AIDS a new lease on life. We have one of the most effective ADAP programs in the Nation, as well as comprehensive services, including primary medical care, mental health service, substance abuse services, oral health, case management, nutritional services. So thanks to the success of New Jersey’s network of care, we have seen a sustained drop in the number of HIV/AIDS deaths each year. However, with this growing population, there is a growing need for services. It is blatantly unfair that any cut to our State is a destructive blow to the very network of care that countless men, women, children, and babies are counting on.

Now, I would be happy to have a straight, one-year reauthorization in which all would be made whole if the majority is willing to accept it. I am also willing to find a solution to the real problem, which is a severe shortage of funding—a severe shortage of funding. As I said, I am happy to give up the red shirt, to give up what would be the lives of those individuals who find themselves struggling day in and day out, they would be happy to give up the privilege that we heard about on the floor. But I cannot stand by and watch the hopes and dreams of New Jerseyans living with HIV/AIDS be extinguished by this misguided proposal.

How can I go back to constituents in New Jersey living with HIV or AIDS and tell them it is a fair deal to have them put their lives at risk? I can’t and I won’t, and we can’t have an appropriate reauthorization.

Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time and yield the floor. Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, it is my understanding that the Republicans have an extra 15-minute slot.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. ENZI. I have been allocated in that slot.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized for 15 minutes.

Mr. ENZI. I would assume that the Senator from New Jersey has had adequate time to look at the unanimous consent request that I presented earlier, and I will be making that unanimous consent request again. He must be ready to debate the AIDS bill that New York and New Jersey have proposed. Instead of losing 15 minutes to have a vote on that bill as well as the bipartisan, bicameral bill passed by the House last night, I have no fear of that. This Nation has a lot of problems with HIV and AIDS that need to be taken care of. There is one bill that does that fairly—a bill that the House overwhelmingly passed. A bill with a comprehensive, fair and equitable solution. There is another one that merely extends the time where we keep doing the same thing that we have been doing. A quick fix that would give us the same results that we have been getting—people across the country are dying because of not getting treatment, because of unfair, inequitable funding formulas that ignore the new, emerging epidemic of HIV in rural areas and the Southeast.

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. President, parliamentary inquiry: Mr. President, would the Senator from Wyoming yield for a question?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who?

Mr. ENZI. I am happy to yield for a question.

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. President, just a пару вопросов, you yield to the order of speakers and where we are, based on the last unanimous consent order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Enzi has 15 minutes, then Senator Landrieu has 15 minutes, and then another Republican has 15 minutes, and then the Senator from Colorado, Mr. Salazar, has the fourth 15 minutes.

Mr. SALAZAR. I thank the Presiding Officer, and I thank my friend from Wyoming.

Mr. ENZI. I thank my neighbor from Colorado. As we set it up earlier, we have been alternating times. I am glad that I have the opportunity to speak right after the Senator from New Jersey, I know he turned down the unanimous consent request earlier. I am hoping that he will accept the unanimous consent this time.

Tomorrow is a very critical time for people in the United States. These are the red states in particular. That will critically important at midnight tomorrow night if the current failed formula is not fixed. California loses $18.78 million; Connecticut, $3.2 million; the District of Columbia, $6.93 million; Georgia, $9.68 million; Illinois, $12.48 million; Oregon, $1.38 million; Pennsylvania, $9.25 million; Washington, $2.42 million; Maryland, $11.64 million. We can fix this formula tonight. A solution, passed overwhelmingly in the House, is before us now.

I appreciate the letter that I got from the Senator from Maryland, Ms. Mikulski, reminding me that this goes into effect tomorrow and asking me to get the Ryan White bill done.

Now, not only did we pick the fairest way to transition, by holding those States harmless for 3 years, but we did it in a manner that would show the indulgence for a number of States. All the ones that I mentioned would have gains instead of losses. So this is a critical piece of legislation to all of these States.

We are talking about unfairness and inequity. This isn’t the only bill on which we are changing formulas so they more accurately address the problems they were meant to address. The reason we have reauthorizations is so that on a regular basis we can review these formulas. See how it is working. As we lose.$18.78 million, they will gain $15.36 million because the money is going to follow the cases, and they are not going to get the penalty that they would have under current law. I have the letter that shows the number of States. All the ones that I mentioned would have gains instead of losses. So this is a critical piece of legislation to all of these States.

that long? We said we are going to try to protect these States so they have a time to transition, so they prepare their systems for the change in the funding.

One of the things that was raised earlier this afternoon was that it is more expensive to live in New York. It is more expensive to live in New York.

It is pretty expensive to live in DC, too, and DC is going to lose $6.93 million, if we don’t pass this legislation. If we pass this bill, they are going to gain $4.35 million. It is true there is a lot of States, but it is a change to fairness based on the number of people with HIV/AIDS, not the number of institutions that we have been funding in these States. This program is not for economic development. It is not a way to keep jobs. It is a program to keep patients alive.

On these other bills I have been working on—the Older Americans Act—includes a 5-year transition. Some of the States said, By golly, we have been cheated for years. We ought to get our money faster, but they have agreed to a 5-year transition.

The ones who are losing money have said: Okay, we understand, that is fair. You give us a time to transition. We have 9 or 10 bills that my committee has to do that deal with formulas. I can tell you the first reaction of every Senator, including myself, is to say: Print the chart out, see what happened to the State. Naturally, you get upset if your State is not going to get as much money as they got before. But, fortunately, the majority of the Members around here look and say, Is the amount I am getting fair?

Higher costs—I want to go back to that again. What we are providing are the AIDS drugs, and the AIDS drugs cost the same all over this country. It doesn’t cost more for an AIDS drug in New York than it does in Wyoming. As for equity, we only have a couple of big cities in Wyoming—Cheyenne is 52,700-and-some people, that is our biggest city; Casper is next with a little over 50,000, and then it drops off significantly.

If a third of your towns have less than 250 people in them, how many of those do you think have a hospital? How many of those even have a doctor to look at somebody with HIV/AIDS? They have to travel a long way at great inconvenience and great cost. We don’t cover that. We cover the treatment.

When we crafted the current funding proposal, we ran dozens of these various formula options to see which was the fairest way to do it, which one created the least amount of disruption. That is how we came up with the current funding formulas in this bill. We are being asked, of course, to consider another bill, introduced on Tuesday of this week, by the Senators from New York, New Jersey, and Florida. I believe we should debate this bill. However, I have problems with this bill because what that other bill does is delay this argument over funding formulas for 1 year. It doesn’t do the equity for sure at any time. So in our bipartisan, bicameral bill, what we said is we will delay equity for 3 years. Three years is better than 1 year, so I really don’t understand why anybody is holding this bill up.

I understand that they lose money. I understand that. However, they are grossly overpaid. As I have shown before, under the current law, the State of New York gets $504 more than the rest of the Nation. New Jersey gets $310 more per person than the average across the rest of the Nation.

Under the reauthorization, New York will still get $304 per person more; New Jersey will still get $88 per person more. As I have mentioned, all of the funds have not been spent every year. So we are saying New York does not want to share even what did not spend.

I can understand Senators being concerned about losing money. What I am just asking is we take a look at the whole national picture, just like we are taking the whole national picture in some other bills pending before the HELP Committee. For all of those who are saying things this next year we will have hearings where we look at the formulas in these other bills and see how we can transition more quickly than we have been doing, to move toward equity.

If you know people who are dying of AIDS and you have people who cannot be treated for HIV, you have a real problem. We are not talking about parks or things that might be considered luxuries. We are talking about life and death. The earlier we start treating people, the more chance they have for survival.

Fortunately, very fortunately, there have been a lot of drugs that have been developed for the market that make a big difference for those infected with HIV; these drugs will extend their lives. We don’t have to wait until they are in the AIDS category to do that. We don’t have to do that to give them as good a life as possible. We can start providing life-saving treatment when we know they have HIV. We can positively extend their lives.

That is what we are trying to do with this bill. Under the other bill, introduced on Tuesday of this week, the states are complicating, again, the count of HIV, the ability to treat those with HIV. As far as fairness, don’t you think we ought to treat as early as we can with the capability that we have instead of just waiting until they have AIDS and then counting them and pay for them?

The other bill doesn’t take into account the HIV folks at all. If I were one of the Senators from those two States, and I have been holding out this long, I would have to explain why I was doing what I’m doing—and not just to the people in my State. I would have to be explaining why I was being an obstructionist for life-saving care to the whole Nation. Of course, those outside my State don’t get to vote for me, but we do have an obligation to all of those folks across the Nation.

When we have equitable funding formulas, if States come up with a higher HIV/AIDS population than we thought they would have, we may have to put more money into it. But the additional money ought to come with the additional cases. We ought to have some numbers to back up what is happening, and not everyone has the numbers to back up their current funding. We have some waiting lists, waiting lists of people who are waiting for life-saving treatment. But if they look at the waiting list they may say, I am not going to gain treatment anyway, so why would I even get on a waiting list? Thus, there may be thousands more, not seeking treatment because, where they live, we are not treating them equitably. I do know there are some difficulties out there.

I know the time to vote on Ryan White is now or never because as soon as the clock strikes midnight tomorrow night thousands of Americans will start losing access to the life-saving treatment unless we pass the bill now. I can’t understand why four Senators are denying people suffering from HIV/AIDS to vote on this critical legislation to create a more equitable program.

Earlier today, the Senators from New Jersey and New York suggested that the answer to the inequities in Ryan White is more money. I say we can talk about more money in Ryan White as soon as the States that are hoarding funds allow current dollars to focus on those in need, individuals on waiting lists throughout the country. We have to address the current discrepancy, not compound them by just adding more dollars to a failed funding formula. We don’t want to continue to have the rich States get richer while the poor States get poorer.

The Senator from New Jersey also suggested this bipartisan bicameral bill was not supported by minorities because the National Minority AIDS Council did not support the bill. One council does not capture all the minorities. In fact, over seven minority organizations, including the Alaska Native Tribal Health Consortium, Brother 2 Brother, Latino Coalition, League of United Latin American Citizens, the National Black Chamber of Commerce, the National Minority HIV/AIDS population than we thought the New Black Leadership Coalition support this bipartisan bicameral product. In addition, 34 other organizations support this key legislation, including key national advocate organizations such as AIDS Action, AIDS Healthcare Foundation and the Southern AIDS Coalition.

I ask unanimous consent the full list of supporting organizations be printed in the Record.
ROYALTY RELIEF BILL
Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I come to the floor to speak about an issue that, of course, many of us have been involved in now for years, and I want to try to provide a revenue stream for the Gulf of Mexico—not just Louisiana, but Mississippi, Alabama, and Texas as well. And, of course, they have contributed more oil and gas to this Nation than Saudi Arabia and Venezuela combined. In the minds of many along the gulf coast, particularly post-Katrina and Rita, two of the largest events in the history of the Northern American continent, people along the gulf coast are feeling, on this issue, that perhaps the gulf coast has been forgotten.

I want to say to my colleagues here, Republicans and Democrats, the people of the gulf coast are grateful, extremely grateful for all the support given this year for hurricane relief—not one, not two, not three, but four supplements.

Mr. President, you yourself have been down there personally, walking the neighborhoods that were destroyed and being a strong advocate for us on the Appropriations Committee. So we are very grateful.

But there are two extremely important bills and issues that we must have to complete this package of initial recovery and lay a foundation so that the gulf coast can build securely. We know we can rebuild, but the question, from Pascagoula to Beaumont is, Can we rebuild safely?

We have counties in east Texas and parishes in west Louisiana, western Louisiana and southeastern Louisiana, and counties in Mississippi, that have literally been 100 percent destroyed. I mean, in Saint Bernard Parish there was not a house left standing out of 75,000 people.

It is so tragic because this particular parishes and areas flooded like this last ones, but twice. Saint Bernard Parish has flooded, not once but twice. It flooded in 1965, when Hurricane Betsy poured about 10 feet to 12 feet of water, sort of in the same way—a storm surge, added and abetted by this channel that the Corps of Engineers dredged to help the port and help navigation on the Mississippi River, which helps the whole country. But it really didn’t help the people of Saint Bernard because they lost their homes. President Johnson came down and pledged, “Never again.”

Here we are, 35 or 40 years later, and they have lost everything again. Some of these families who built back from Betsy, they are 70, 80 years old, to have it washed out again. It is just too much for this Senator to bear. It is too much for our delegation to bear.

There are two major pieces of legislation that the Louisiana delegation can’t go home without this Congress, and that is the WRDA bill, because it is the share in a very fair and reasonable way of the oil and gas produced in the gulf. Everyplace else is taking it drift into the gulf, we would not have an independent stream of revenue to secure our wetlands, to restore them. We have lost more wetlands than the State of Delaware. We lose a football field every 30 minutes. We lost the size of the District of Columbia. I don’t know how much more we can lose. If an enemy came to our shores to take our land away, the way we are letting it drift into the gulf, we would have declared war.

Our delegation put in a bill for OCS revenue sharing. We said we have a deal for the country. We will open even more in the gulf. Everyplace else is shut down. Nobody wants to drill, so let us drill more. We will open up the water. We can share the revenues with Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. The country gets enough natural gas to fuel 1,000 chemical plants for 40 years. That is a lot of gas. The Southern States would share in a very fair and reasonable way these revenues. We think that would be a good thing for America.

This is the Jack well that Chevron just found. It is one well, 28,000 feet deep, and it has doubled the reserves in the United States of America.

When I hear some critics of the Senate approach saying to me—to the Senators from Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, and Texas—that our bill doesn’t do anything, it is just a wonder of what it might do if we could maybe find five more Jack wells here or 10 more. Who knows. There is a lot of land.

The great beauty of our arrangement is we protected the coast of Florida, as the Florida Senators and the Governor of Florida, Governor Jeb Bush, have asked us to, and we still found enough territory to open.

We are leaving here without this bill that makes a tremendous amount of sense because we just couldn’t finish negotiations with the House.

But I am very hopeful that when we return in the lame duck that it is a lame duck and not a dead duck because I could get a lame duck hollering out of here, and I can’t take a dead duck home.

We need to take something home that is alive and flapping to give these people homes, to restore these wetlands, and for heavens’ sake, send some oil and gas to the industries in America that are really on the edge right now of whether to expand these refiners or not because China looks more promising every day.

If we don’t give them hope, they are going to leave and jobs are going to be lost.

I see my good friend from Idaho who knows this issue well. He might want to take one of my minutes and add a thought about this because he has been a good partner on this issue. I would appreciate his words on this chart or anything he wants to talk about.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I thank the Senator for yielding. I will be very brief.

This is very important for all of us to listen to. Just because gas prices are falling, we should not walk away from an opportunity to continue to build reserves and known reserves in the Gulf and other areas, for the U.S. Geological Survey says it is phenomenally plentiful. The well Senator Landrieu just talked about at the 28,000-foot level has contributed mightily to an unbelievable drop in gas prices over the last month and a half, coupled with the lack of storms. Yes, other things are going on. But the reality is that the American producer now knows less of their potential is not at risk because it is under the control of the United States. It has taken that $20 risk figure off the top of a barrel of oil, dropping it into the low sixties range, high sixties range. That is what is reducing the price at the pump.

I thank the Senator from Louisiana for her continued effort. I hope this Senate and the House will recognize the potential of building U.S. domestic reserves that are safe, out of harm’s way, out of the way of the political, fragile nature of other countries of the world.

I thank the Senator for her steadfastness. I and others will help her with this goal.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I thank the Senator.

Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator has 5 minutes remaining.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I want to call my colleagues’ attention to this chart which I had my office put together today. I thought it would be a good chart to leave with because maybe it will put a little energy underneath our efforts to get something done when we get back.

Production from the gulf coast is over 1 billion barrels of oil. The total production from Saudi Arabia and Venezuela together is 973 million barrels of oil.

I do not know if the Governors of Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama want to shut down production. But if they do, there would be a real chance for a court case pending which might say that couldn’t be done because you don’t have jurisdiction over pipelines, and the Federal Government could operate that. I would hate to see the court battles that would ensue. We actually have a court case pending which was filed by the State of Louisiana alleging that the appropriate environmental standards have not been attended to. And the judge will rule on that in November.

No Governor other than Governor Blanco has taken that step, and no Governor has suggested it. I am not giving testimony that I have heard them even privately say it. But I can promise you that the people in the Gulf of Mexico care. Everywhere I go, people in Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, and Louisiana say to me: Senator, why are we the only ones producing? And why when you go to Washington and ask them to just share they reverse they say no? Don’t they know that we don’t have any houses to live in? Don’t they know our churches have been ruined? Don’t they know our children don’t have schools? What is wrong with Congress? I am having a hard time explaining that.

For people who say the Senate bill doesn’t do anything, I think 1 billion barrels of oil—almost equivalent to 80 percent of what OPEC contributes on a yearly basis—is a lot of oil.

Considering things aren’t going real well in Venezuela these days, we might want to get this bill passed and help our industry and help our people.

In the last 4 minutes, I want to say in the spirit of cooperation that I filed a bill today on the issue of royalty recovery. This is an issue with the House of Representatives. One is an issue with us. There is an issue with the other House, and it is an issue with us. I thought maybe this would help everybody to see.

We can talk about it when we come back, of course. These are the wells that were issued in 1998 and 1999 that did not have thresholds. There were over 1,000 of them. I am sorry I can’t identify the 15 that are producing, but out of these there are only 15 that are producing. These are the ones which are producing and royalties are being generated because there was a mixup in the contract. When we get back we should resolve this issue. That is what my bill says, and it suggests how to do it. Some of these wells could go to Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama in the earlier years. Some could go to the Land and Water Conservation Fund, and a lot of it could go to deficit reduction. We could reduce the debt on people and get a little head start on our coastal restoration, as well as do something for the Nation on land and water.

We could debate how the revenue should be shared, but I laid a bill down today to give us maybe a starting point for people who discuss how we might do that.

I will conclude with this: The Louisiana delegation wants to spend Christmas without the WRDA bill and without the OCS bill. We are going to be here a long time until those bills are passed. We want to work with people, we want to be cooperative, and I filed a bill to solve this problem and meet the House halfway. It is a Christmas present to give them.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The next 15 minutes is allocated to the Republican Senators.

Who yields time?

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I yield back the Republican time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from New Jersey is recognized for 15 minutes.

IMMIGRATION REFORM

Mr. SALAZAR. Thank you, Mr. President.

I rise tonight to speak to the so-called fence bill and ask my colleagues and urge them to oppose the construction of this fence in the way it has been proposed to the Senate.

I oppose the construction of this fence because at the end of the day this is not going to fix our borders. It is not going to deal with the lawlessness that we currently are having to deal with in the respect to immigration, and it is not in the long-term interests of the United States of America.

For me, I may be the No. 100 U.S. Senator, but I have heroes on both sides of the aisle.

I remember Ronald Reagan when he went to the Berlin Wall and he told Mr. Gorbachev that he should take down walls and bringing communities together.

I remember John Fitzgerald Kennedy, a person who inspired my whole life in politics and our country. I remember him working on creating the Alliance for Progress with the notion being that the Western Hemisphere would be a much more successful hemisphere if we were able to work with nations that were all a part of this hemisphere. That Alliance for Progress by President Kennedy is still celebrated throughout the United States and throughout Latin America because of how they brought communities together. Yet what we are doing today on this national security issue of immigration reform is abandoning... principles and allowing politics to triumph. This body tonight, by voting for what I expect will be successful passage of this bill, has allowed politics to triumph over what is in the best long-term interests of this country and over the problems that we worked together to try to bring about comprehensive immigration reform. I stood with a number of my colleagues on the Republican side putting together what was a comprehensive immigration reform package. We had leaders on the Democratic side who have inspired me for ages, such as Senator Kennedy, Senator Durbin, and Senator Reid standing with people such as Senator Craig and Senator McCain and Senator Graham and others to try to pull together comprehensive immigration reform. At the end of the day, we were able to get that comprehensive immigration reform. The President lauded it because it was a good piece of legislation that dealt with creating a system of law and order, that would have taken us out of the lawlessness we currently have in our country with respect to immigration and have created a comprehensive system to deal with this major issue of national security, economic security and moral values.

Our legislation dealt with border security. Our legislation dealt with the enforcement of our immigration laws. Our legislation dealt in a realistic way with the Border Patrol and the registration that would apply to the 12 million or so people who are here in this country undocumented today. It was legislation that was comprehensive in nature.

Yes, we were proud we had Senators such as Graham, McCain, Specter, Reid, Kennedy and a whole lot of other Members who stood behind this comprehensive approach to immigration reform.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SALAZAR. I yield.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I support, as did the Senator from Colorado, tough border security. I voted, as did the Senator, for an amendment in the context of an immigration reform bill that would have authorized for Homeland Security Secretary Chertoff 370 miles of fence based on what he told the Senate he needed. Building some fencing as part of a comprehensive reform bill makes sense.

Would the Senator agree, we cannot take a piecemeal approach to fixing our borders?

Mr. SALAZAR. I agree with my friend from Nevada that, indeed, Secretary Chertoff and others have said that a fence by itself will not deal with the problems we are facing in immigration.

Secretary Chertoff’s statement was, in his words:

In fact, building a fence in the desert would have the somewhat ironic result of requiring more bodies right up against the border because it would be a less efficient way to deal with it.

So, yes, the Secretary of Homeland Security himself, along with the Attorney General of the United States, has taken a position that this is the wrong way to go.

Mr. President, as we put together this legislation, I wanted to quickly review what it is we did as we went through the legislation.

First of all, with respect to border security, we were tough on our border, but we were substance. We said we would add 12,000 new Border Patrol agents.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I say my friend from Colorado, we have an important agreement we would like to put before the Senate. I ask the Senator from Colorado allow me to interrupt him.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator’s time remains.

Mr. REID. Yes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator object?

Mr. SALAZAR. No.

ORDER OF PROCEDURE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent at 9:10 this evening, the pending amendment, No. 5036, be withdrawn, the bill be read the third time, and Senator Salazar be recognized for 5 minutes, Senator Bingaman for 5 minutes, Senator Craig for 5 minutes, Senator Durbin for 3 minutes, Senator Frist for 3 minutes, and the Senate proceed immediately to a vote on passage, with no intervening action or debate; and I further ask consent that following that vote, the Senate proceed as under the rule to the vote on the motion to invoke cloture on the motion to concur on S. 403; I further ask consent if cloture is not invoked, the Senate proceed immediately to the conference report to accompany H.R. 5441, the Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report, and there be 5 minutes equally divided for debate prior to a vote on adoption of the conference report.

I further ask consent that if cloture is invoked on the motion to concur to S. 403, the pending amendments be withdrawn and the Senate vote on the motion, with no intervening action or debate; and further, the Senate proceed as above to the Homeland Security conference report.

I also ask following the vote on the Homeland Security conference report, Senator Lautenberg be in control of 10 minutes, Senator Collins for 5 minutes, Senator Stevens for 5 minutes; the Senate proceed to a vote on the conference report to accompany H.R. 4954, the port security conference report, if the papers are received from the House and they are identical to those at the desk currently, with no intervening action or debate; and I further ask consent that following that vote, the Senate proceed as under the rule to the vote on the motion to invoke cloture on the motion to concur on S. 403; I further ask consent if cloture is not invoked, the Senate proceed immediately to the conference report to accompany H.R. 5441, the Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report, and there be 5 minutes equally divided for debate prior to a vote on adoption of the conference report.

I further ask consent that if cloture is invoked on the motion to concur to S. 403, the pending amendments be withdrawn and the Senate vote on the motion, with no intervening action or debate; and further, the Senate proceed as above to the Homeland Security conference report.

I also ask following the vote on the Homeland Security conference report, Senator Lautenberg be in control of 10 minutes, Senator Collins for 5 minutes, Senator Stevens for 5 minutes; the Senate proceed to a vote on the conference report to accompany H.R. 4954, the port security conference report, if the papers are received from the House and they are identical to those at the desk currently, with no intervening action or debate; and further, I ask that if the papers have not arrived from the House, then upon receipt of those papers the Senate proceed to its consideration, again, only if those papers are identical to those at the desk currently, then the conference report be agreed to, with the motion to reconsider laid upon the table.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The President’s time remains.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I say my friend from Colorado, we have an important agreement we would like to put before the Senate. I ask the Senator from Colorado allow me to interrupt him.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator’s time remains.

Mr. REID. Yes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator object?

Mr. SALAZAR. No.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator’s time remains.

Mr. REID. Yes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator object?

Mr. SALAZAR. No.

Mr. REID. It took 2 minutes to read this but it took a lot longer than that to get the 2 minutes in writing. I appreciate the courtesy.

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, let me briefly outline—because that wording was very complicated—what that means. At approximately 9:30 we will begin voting and we will have a vote on the border fence. Following that, we have a cloture motion to concur with the House on child custody. That also would be a rollcall vote. Following that, there is a short period of debate on Homeland Security, and we have a third rollcall vote on Homeland Security. Following that, port security will be dealt with, which should not require a rollcall vote, and the adjournment resolution, which should not require a rollcall vote.

Thus, we would have three rollcall votes in this unanimous consent request.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Democratic leader.

Mr. REID. It took 2 minutes to read this but it took a lot longer than that to get the 2 minutes in writing. I appreciate everyone’s cooperation, Democrats and Republicans. This is not a perfect end of this session. However, I think it shows there has been tremendous cooperation today, and we will have more to say at a later time.

Thanks, everyone.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Colorado is recognized. The Senator 9 minutes and 19 seconds.

IMMIGRATION REFORM

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. President, before the unanimous consent request from my colleagues, I was talking about what we had done together in the bipartisan spirit of moving forward with a comprehensive immigration reform package that the President had requested us to work on together and on which there was a great deal of leadership on the part of the Members in this Chamber to establish a task which the Nation needed.

That was a piece of legislation which was the law and order bill. It dealt with border security. It dealt with the enforcement of our immigration laws. It dealt with the system of penalties and registration that would have brought the 12 million people who now live within the shadows of America out of the shadows. It is an important piece of legislation.

Yes, there was disagreement in the Senate as we debated that bill for almost a month. At the end of the day, Democrats and Republicans came together to pass a comprehensive immigration reform.

I would quickly review a few of the components of that bill. First, with respect to border security, we said we would add 12,000 new Border Patrol agents. We would create additional border fences. We would provide new criminal penalties for the construction of border tunnels, the legislation pushed by my colleague, Senator Feinstein from California. We would add new checkpoints and points of entry so we could control our borders. And we would expand the exit-entry security systems at all land borders and airports.

We took some significant steps forward in the legislation, including a 370-mile fence, which was an amendment. We took significant steps forward on legislation that was tough on border security. It included legislation that was an amendment proposed by the Senator from Alabama which would have constructed a 370-mile fence. That was a comprehensive piece of legislation.

In addition, we said we would be a nation of laws and we would enforce our laws. We did that with a number of different provisions which included an additional 5,000 new investigators. It included 20 new detention facilities. It included provisions to reimburse the States their costs for detaining and imprisoning criminal aliens. The list goes on. It was a tough bill that said, we are going to enforce the immigration laws of our country.

We did not stop there because we have the reality of an elephant in this room, in this country: the 12 million people who live here. Under the leadership of Senator McCain and Senator Kennedy, we came up with a program that would have brought these 12 million people out of the shadows through a system of penalties and registrations that would have applied to them. We would have required they pay a fine of $1,000 initially. It would require they register with the U.S. Government, that they pay an additional $1,000 fee. They go to the end of the line, the back of the line, they learn English, and a whole host of other steps.

Our bill was a comprehensive bill. One of the finest moments of this Senate was that there were a number of Republicans and Democrats who came together to pass this legislation.

Tonight, unfortunately, we are in a position where the politics of the day and the politics of the Senate have triumphed over the national security interests which we addressed in this legislation.

The values that drove at least my participation in that debate, along with my colleagues including Senator Martinez from Florida, were simple values. They were the values that said we are a nation of laws. That means we have to have a law that is going to work, that is going to secure our borders, that is going to get rid of the lawlessness we currently face.

The other value that drove me is something which Senator McCain, my friend from Arizona, often talked about when he talked about the hundreds of people who are dying in the deserts of his particular State. To me, those values are values that we should keep at the forefront, the value of us being a nation of laws and also the moral values we have to the rest of humanity.

I do not believe that this political gimmick of a fence that is arbitrarily dictated by Washington to Arizona, California, and Texas is the right way to go. It doesn't make sense. It is not practical. That was on June 20 of this year. The Attorney General of the United States, Gonzales, said, "I think that's contrary to our traditions." Secretary Chertoff said that, in fact, building a fence in the desert might be problematic and unrealistic.

There are a number of people in the Bush administration who raised an objection to this particular proposal that we are considering tonight.

Mr. DURBIN. Will the Senator yield? Mr. SALAZAR. May I keep going for a couple of minutes and I will be happy to yield for a question from my friend from Illinois.

I say to my friends who are listening tonight, I do have some personal history on this issue because my family came to this country from Jemez- town, some 12 generations ago. We have been around a long time.

My own history is one where I know I am the first Mexican American to serve in this Senate in 30 years—the first Mexican American in 30 years and the only one elected to the Senate outside of the State of New Mexico. When I look at this issue of the border, I approach it from the point of view that we as a nation have a sovereign responsibility to protect our borders. We have a responsibility to make sure we have a systematic law in place that deals with the immigration issues of our country. But I also believe, just as Ronald Reagan asked Mr. Gorbachev to take the wall down between East Germany and West Germany in order to end the cold war, there will come a time when, hopefully, this Senate is part of taking down this wall between Mexico and the United States.

Before I conclude, I yield to my friend from Illinois for a question.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Senator from Colorado. I thank him for his leadership on comprehensive immigration reform which includes real border enforcement, workplace enforcement, dealing with the needs in our country for immigration—legitimate legal immigration—and also dealing with those who are here who should be given a chance to earn their way toward legal status.

I also agree with my colleague from Colorado about this notion of a 700-mile security fence where I go in the State of Illinois, I ask people, Do you see the weakness in the logic and the weakness in the argument of a 700-mile fence on a 2,000-mile border? It is obvious. It is pretty clear to me that this political bidding war on a fence has more to do with the security of those who are up for reelection in just a few weeks than the security of America.

You do not have to be a law enforcement expert or an engineering expert to know that this fence, as it has been defined in this bill, is so expensive—$6 billion—and that we are now passing a homeland security bill that has $1.2 billion, not nearly enough to even start and build half of this fence.

So the realistic thing to do, as the Senator from Colorado and I have tried to do, is to work for sensible fences, sensible barriers, the best technology, the best security for those processes and technologies that will truly make sure the illegal immigrants stop coming across our border.

I thank the Senator from Colorado for his leadership.

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. President, I thank the leader and great Senator from Illinois for his leadership in putting together the comprehensive immigration reform package.

Parliamentary inquiry: How much time do I have, Mr. President?

Mr. SALAZAR. Fifty-four seconds.

Mr. DURBIN. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ISAKSON). Fifty-four seconds.

Mr. SALAZAR. Fifty-four seconds. Last but not least, Mr. President, I hope as we move forward as a Senate we can find the courage in this body tonight to turn down this political gimmick; that in this body there are statesmen and people of principle who believe we ought to put our national security interests ahead of politics; that there are people in this body who believe we ought to address the economic realities of America's farmers and ranchers and construction workers, construction companies, and others. And there are people in this body who can look at the future of the Western Hemisphere, including our relationship with Latin America, and recognize that at the end of the day the fence that is being proposed today is going to be inimical to the long-term interests of the United States of America as we unite as a global community to deal with the issues of terrorism around the world; that this fence is going to be something that is going to hurt us in building those alliances.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to vote against this fence bill. And I urge we do it in a bipartisan way.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Under the previous order, there is now time for a speaker from the majority side until 9:10.

The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I yield back the 10 minutes to the majority.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator yields back 10 minutes to the majority, the majority's time until 9:10.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have 3 minutes, and for the benefit of everybody here, I might as well use it now. There is nobody else to speak, is there?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair sees no one else. The Senator from Illinois appears to be trying to do that.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I would like to speak briefly, if I might.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I have time under the order. Please go ahead.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I thank the Democratic leader. I ask unanimous consent to be recognized as in morning business to speak for 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—S. RES. 594

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, just 2 days ago I came to the floor and introduced a bipartisan resolution, the resolution cosponsored by myself, Senator MARK DAYTON, Senator NORM COLEMAN, Senator Tom HARKIN, and others. What did the resolution say? It said that we would recognize that we are about to observe the fourth anniversary of the death of our former colleague, Paul Wellstone, who died in an airplane crash during his campaign for re-election to the U.S. Senate for Minnesota.

It speaks of his service to Minnesota, the fact that he was a loving father and husband, that he dedicated his life to public service and to education, and that he worked tirelessly to advance mental health parity for all citizens of the United States.

This, of course, goes on to explain, in the course of this resolution, that Paul Wellstone died before he could pass the most important bill on this subject, the mental health parity bill. So I resolved that:

On the fourth anniversary of his passing, Senator Paul Wellstone should be remembered for his compassion and leadership on social issues throughout his career; Congress should act to help citizens of the United States who live with a mental illness by enacting legislation to provide for coverage of mental health benefits with respect to health insurance coverage unless comparable limits are imposed on medical or surgical benefits.

That language in this resolution is directly from the Domenici-Wellstone bill on mental health parity. I go on to say:

[mental health parity legislation should be a priority for consideration in the 110th Congress.

The next Congress.

Mr. President, I never dreamed that anyone in this Senate would object to this resolution, this resolution acknowledging the death of our former colleague and asking that the great cause he dedicated most of his public life to continue, and that we pass this bipartisan bill which has been pending on the floor:

That was the reason I brought this to the floor. I thought it would pass without controversy. I was shocked to learn that someone has put a hold on this resolution. I cannot understand that.

I would now ask the clerk if it is necessary— I would like to make sure that this resolution has been filed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator please restate his inquiry?

Mr. DURBIN. My question to the clerk is whether this resolution has been filed.

So as to expedite this, what I would like to do is send this resolution to the desk that I have in my hand and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration and adoption of the resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I am happy to yield.

Mr. SESSIONS. The Senator has asked that this body, through the adoption of this resolution, endorse a piece of legislation. One way it is not prepared to endorse the concepts contained in the resolution. And I think that has been communicated to you. I do not see how you could expect—unless you expect unanimous support for the piece of legislation as written—then you could ask everybody to accept it.

I think you are overreaching, Senator DURBIN, in all due respect. And could we work on that? I would be glad to talk to you about it.

Mr. DURBIN. I am happy to yield.

Mr. SESSIONS. The Senator has asked that this body, through the adoption of this resolution, endorse a piece of legislation. One way it is not prepared to endorse the concepts contained in the resolution. And I think that has been communicated to you. I do not see how you could expect—unless you expect unanimous support for the piece of legislation as written—then you could ask everybody to accept it.

I think you are overreaching, Senator DURBIN, in all due respect. And could we work on that? I would be glad to talk to you about it.

Mr. DURBIN. I am happy to yield.

Mr. SESSIONS. Well, I am prepared to—

Mr. DURBIN. Excuse me. I have the floor. If the Senator would like to vote against the resolution, that is his right. But to say that we are not even going to consider this resolution, I think, is regrettable.

SECURE FENCE ACT OF 2006—Resumed

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The hour of 9:10 has arrived. Under the previous order, the clerk will report the unfinished business.
The legislative clerk read as follows:

Pending:

Prist amendment No. 5036, to establish military commissions.

Prist amendment No. 5037 (to amendment No. 5036), to establish the effective date.

Motion to commit the bill to the Committee on the Judiciary, with instructions to report back forthwith, with an amendment.

Prist amendment No. 5038 (to the instructions of the motion to commit H.R. 6061 to the Committee on the Judiciary), to establish military commissions.

Prist amendment No. 5039 (to the instructions of the motion to commit H.R. 6061 to the Committee on the Judiciary), to establish the effective date.

Prist amendment No. 5040 (to amendment No. 5039), to amend the effective date.

Motion to Commit

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending motion to commit is inconsistent with the invocation of cloture. The motion falls.

Amendment No. 5036 Withdrawn

Under the previous order, amendment No. 5036 is withdrawn.

The bill was ordered to a third reading at the third time.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, since all of our efforts to go to conference with the House and to secure comprehensive immigration reform were unsuccessful, I am reluctantly voting in favor of the H.R. 6061, the Secure Fence Act of 2006. After many hearings and a laborious markup, the Judiciary Committee produced a comprehensive bill providing for border security, employee verification, guest workers and a sensible plan to handle the 11 million undocumented immigrants.

Despite repeated efforts, we were unable to secure a conference with the House to reconcile differences between the bills the House passed and the Senate legislation.

There was successful opposition to piecemeal legislation by the House that would have, for example, enabled state and local police to enforce immigration laws. During a field hearing I held at the Philadelphia Constitution Center on July 5, 2006, Philadelphia Police Commissioner Sylvester Johnson testified that making local enforcement of immigration law would undermine the basic function of local police.

He further testified that “once we start enforcing immigration law, then we are going to lose . . . that response from the immigrant community because they are not going to contact us. Nor will they contact us if they have information about other people, about other violations of the law.”

The one major issue which has reached the Senate for a vote despite our efforts to avoid piecemeal legislation is the fence issue. As to the substance of the construction of the fence, I have long supported this facet of border security, our bill includes 370 miles of fencing through major urban areas and adds 500 miles of vehicle barriers along the U.S.-Mexico border.

On this state of the record, since I do support the construction of the fence and since we have succeeded in avoiding any substantial piecemeal legislation, I am casting my vote in favor of H.R. 6061.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, this year the Senate passed a comprehensive immigration bill. Senators and staff worked tirelessly to negotiate and pass that bill, which was a comprehensive, fair solution that respected human dignity and recognized the need for stronger border security. The response we got from the majority in the House of Representatives was obstruction. Rather than proceed to a conference to try to hammer out a meaningful solution, the House leadership ignored our calls to proceed and spent the month of August holding sham hearings on the Senate’s bill meant only to undermine the work we completed and inflame anti-immigrant passions. Now the House leadership, enabled by the majority leader, forget all about the efforts we made and take up and pass a narrow, unbalanced bill to help their election chances.

If there is any doubt that this effort by the majority leader is political, consider the timing.

On September 21st of this year, just as the majority leader brought this bill to the floor, the Department of Homeland Security announced the beginning of its Secure Border Initiative with the award of a multi-year, billion-dollar contract to the Boeing Corporation to begin work on a state-of-the-art border security system. Yet, at the same time the Department of Homeland Security tries to secure the border with 21st Century technology, the Senate majority seeks to duplicate and confuse those efforts with a plan straight out of the 18th century. Despite the numerous problems in that agency, it is still a better idea to let them proceed with the Senate’s Secure Borders Initiative than it is to throw even more taxpayer money at a redundant and inferior project.

The majority leader seeks to pass this legislation—with little debate and no amendments—to pander to the anti-immigration crowd. I understand that the Republican majority wants to leave this session with something they can take with them and hold up as a Republican victory for national security, but true security means more than hiding behind walls. We should be unwilling to sacrifice our chances at comprehensive reform to appease the isolationist faction in this country. Voting against this bill is not a vote against national security; it is a vote in favor of the comprehensive bill the Senate already passed.

Regrettably, this bill also contains a requirement for a study to be conducted on the necessity and feasibility of a barrier on the Canadian-American border. I have filed an amendment to strike this study, but the majority leader, as is his practice when bringing up controversial bills to score political points, has obstructed Democratic Senators from offering amendments to improve this bill. To think that we would even consider engaging in this type of unilateral behavior is mind-boggling.

Have we learned nothing from the Bush-Cheney administration’s go-it-alone strategy? As a Senator from a northern border state, I cannot emphasize enough how important it is for us to engage our neighbors in a cooperative manner when it comes to security. If we were to pass this legislation, we would send a message to our Canadian allies that we don’t trust their ability to achieve security and we would ignore the fact that border security is in both of our best interests. We will achieve much more by working respectfully and cooperatively with the Canadian government than we will by conducting studies as to whether we should wall off one of our most valuable allies.

Another deeply troubling aspect of this bill is the virtually unlimited grant of authority to the Department of Homeland Security to “take all actions . . . necessary and appropriate” to secure the country’s border. The bill’s grant of authority to the Secretary of Homeland Security lacks any boundary that the Secretary does not also define. Such authority ends. It would abrogate congressional authority and delegate, with no intelligible principle, unlimited power to an executive agency to achieve broad goals, for which the method of achievement is left undefined. Recall that this is the same agency that was responsible for the utter failure in responding to Hurricane Katrina. We are still coming to grips with the fallout from that disaster, which was made worse by the administration’s incompetence during the storm, and its continuing failures to curb contracting abuses that have slowed the reconstruction.

People along the Gulf coast continue to suffer as a result of the administration’s incompetence, and we are here debating whether to embark on yet another billion-dollar contracting folly. This is a disgrace.

This week, the U.S. inspector general for Iraq reconstruction released a report on a $75 million project to build the Baghdad Police College, which the inspector general called “the most essential civil security project in the country.” In his report, the inspector general “called the project a billion-dollar contracting folly” and said “the truth needs to be told about what we didn’t get for our dollar from Parsons,” the contractor responsible for the debacle. For $75 million in taxpayer funds, the American people and the Iraqi police forces got a building that is currently uninhabitable due to substandard workmanship, and which may have to be demolished.

When the Bush administration proves that it cannot even ensure that one of the most critical aspects of Iraqi reconstruction is being done competently, I wonder to think about the potential abuses that could come along with the building of 700 miles of fence. At the rate that this administration’s crony contractors are performing. I have to wonder if a fence ever could get built that didn’t have gaping holes in it. Before we hand over even more authority to the Bush-Cheney administration to create our own little ‘no man’s land’ for their crony contractors to rip off the American people, maybe we should actually conduct some oversight and demand some sorely needed accountability.

Groups from all over this country, from all sectors of our society have weighed in against the building of this fence. From religious leaders to immigration advocates, from environmental organizations to trade associations, from women’s rights organizations to academic opposition to this bill is widespread. It is clear to me that the idea of turning our country into a fortress is an idea that many Americans view as contrary to our values and our heritage. I will stand with them in opposition to this bill.

The proposed footprint of this fence will trench through the sovereign territory of the Tohono O’odham Nation in Arizona, who will be precluded from being members of Congress urging legislators to rethink this proposal before we decide to significantly impair a fragile environment and long developed working relationship between the O’odham Nation and the United States government to improve border security. We would do well to listen to the concerns of those whom this bill will affect most.

Secretary Chertoff has said the border fencing provisions contained in the Senate’s comprehensive immigration bill are what the department needs to secure our borders. During our debate on comprehensive immigration reform, Republican Senators held out Secretary Chertoff’s desire for the 370 miles of fence as justification for supporting that amendment. Those same Senators who spoke so forcefully about the need for 370 miles of fencing now are saying we need more, nearly twice as much. It seems clear now that the arguments from those Senators meant very little.

For those who fear that voting against this bill will allow them to be viewed as ‘anti-national’ remember that this body already passed a bill that contained provisions for a border fence, along with many other significant security measures. The American people are smart enough to understand what is going on here, and I am confident that the American people are sick and tired of being scared into swallowing every irresponsible proposal put forth by this Republican Congress under the guise of national security. Yesterday, a majority of the Senate went against our promise to our constituents to ensure that we look beyond the elements of our Constitution beyond recognition, and passed a bill that I am certain we will come to regret. If we pass this fence legislation, we will continue this downward spiral of reactionary, fear-driven legislating. It is time for us to stand up against those who seek to corrupt the underpinnings of our democracy. I have had enough, and I suspect that the majority of the American people have had enough.

We need to stop and think about the mark a fence like this will make on our character as a nation. Once this fence is built, it will be very difficult to go back. We could have taken a step down a road that I do not think a civilized and enlightened nation should travel. In a country on the cutting-edge of technology, with a history of legendary ingenuity, and driven by innovators of the highest caliber, we can do better: we can secure our borders through human innovation, technology, and vigilance. When we approach our immigration situation in a comprehensive manner, we will see how unnecessary this wall is. When we work in concert, rather than piecemeal false solutions, we will realize the security we need. Long after the political and cultural storms over immigration pass, this cobbled-together fence will remain an ugly scar, and will serve as a reminder of a very poor decision made out of fear rather than reason. Rather than strength, this fence will symbolize weakness and a lack of confidence in ourselves. I will vote against this bill, and I hope other Senators join me in rejecting this blatant and costly political stunt.

Mr. SANTORÚM. Mr. President, as I traveled across all 67 counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, almost to a person my constituents understand that America is not controlling our borders. From Berks to Butler, from Wayne to Westmoreland and Erie to Philadelphia, and across all income bracket and regardless of race, thousands of people tell me everywhere I go that the time has come to address our border security now. More than that, they tell me we must not reward or give preferential treatment to illegal aliens whose first step on our soil was a violation of our laws. They are clear, they do not want amnesty.

And I hear from all the talking heads and think tank wonks about how our Nation is a nation of immigrants. Well, obviously, except for the Native Americans, we are all immigrants from somewhere, or somewhere else.

My grandfather made so many sacrifices to give my family the opportunities we have all had. He left his family back in Riva de la Garda, Italy, to come to America and make a better life for them. He worked in the Pennsylvania coal mines and met the legal requirements to bring over my grandmother and my dad to Pennsylvania, but that meant 5 years away from his family to earn the right to bring them over. Yes, immigrants are more than illegal aliens, and we have made great incredible contributions to our society—but they have done so legally.

My family and millions of others have lived the American dream of finding good paying jobs, better education and safe environments for our children. The key is that it can and must be done legally. The foundation for the American dream must be built on the facts: that the Bush administration, not the leaky sieve that characterizes our current borders.

This immigration crisis has been caused by decades of flawed amnesty proposals that have been porous and dangerously undermanned. The public is understandably frustrated that in the post-9/11 world we live in where our national security depends on our border security—we still do not know who is coming into our country, where they are from, and what they are doing here. I share their frustration and cannot for the life of me understand why my colleagues continue to put partisanship and posturing over our national security.

The 9/11 Commission stated in the preface of its report that “[i]t is perhaps obvious to state that terrorists cannot plan and carry out attacks in the United States if they are unable to enter the country.” Unfortunately, my Senate colleagues do not think this is so obvious. Well, it is obvious to U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania who, in applying for an antigang grant, said that with the influx of illegal immigrants to the 222 Corridor that “the Latin Kings, Bloods, NETA and lately MS–13, are recruiting or fighting with local gangs for control of the drug markets. Violence is a daily by-product.”

The evidence is clear that the current immigration crisis poses an immediate threat to our communities—gang violence, drug trafficking, murders, rapes, and the burdensome costs shoudered by our public education, health, and housing systems. Just last week the Immigration and Customs Enforcement arrested more than 100 criminals, fugitive aliens, and other immigration status violators living throughout Pennsylvania—from Philadelphia to York to Pittsburgh. Among those arrested were individuals convicted of sex offenses, burglary, larceny, robbery, criminal trespass, weapons violations, narcotics violations, aggravated assault, shoplifting, fraud, and resisting arrest.

I believe—well, frankly it is well past time—that we put first things first—we must secure our Nation’s borders now.

Our friends in the House passed an immigration bill that understands the urgency of securing our borders, but it is impractical—both in enforcement practice and in politics. And then the “comprehensive” Senate bill did exactly the wrong thing—offering illegal immigrants amnesty, providing them Social Security benefits, relieving the threat of hard working Americans and giving them better worksite employment rights than American citizens enjoy. It was the wrong bill at the wrong time and failed to pass the one real test of securing our borders.

Yet as I travel the State, it is clear to me that many people do not know what all is in the Senate bill. That lack of information is dangerous for our national security. It is even more dangerous to our Pennsylvania jobs, tax revenue, education system and social welfare costs.

So let me start by reminding you what is wrong with S. 2611. It does not protect American workers. In fact, Americans—U.S. citizens—can be put out of work—or their wages reduced—by the employment of the guest foreign workers.

It gives social security benefits for illegal work or stolen identities. Why does this matter? Ask my constituent—Laurie Beers—who had her Social Security number stolen by an illegal immigrant. Laurie is a hard-working hospice nurse who is constantly traveling. Recently, Laurie learned that her information had been stolen and misused she did all of the right things—contacted the Federal Trade Commission to report the identity theft, called the identity theft hotline, contacted the three credit bureaus to obtain copies of her credit report, contacted the FBI and the Secret Service to report this breach of trust. In response, Laurie received letters to reauire her or to stop the theft of her identification number but did nothing to notify her Social Security number is an illegal immigrant. After talking to the FBI and the Secret Service, they confirmed that the person is an illegal immigrant. And this illegal immigrant has been working for an employer in New York and has even been filing income tax returns on Laurie’s Social Security number.

Laurie is understandably upset that the IRS has known for 3 years that someone has been using her Social Security number but did nothing to notify her or to stop the theft of her identity. Unfortunately, the employer—Adecco—will not cooperate with Laurie. In fact, Laurie reports that they have been downright nasty. Laurie is lucky in that her credit has not been destroyed, but she has been damaged. The person who stole her identity wrote a bad check to J. C. Penneys and now Wal-Mart will not accept Laurie’s checks—something that will show up on her credit report.

That bill forgets the “guest” part of the “guest worker” as the “guest worker program” is neither temporary nor based on the need for non-American workers.

It requires Mexican “cooperation” to protect our own borders.

This bill provides amnesty, but tries to call it “earned legalization.” Proponents of the bill say that this is not amnesty, and that an alien has to meet certain conditions; but do they really? Illegal aliens in the amnesty program are supposed to pay a fine of $2,000. However, that $2,000 fine only has to be paid “prior to adjudication,” or up to 8 years from now. And they get a benefit Americans would love to have. Under the bill, illegal aliens only have to pay 3 of their last 5 years in back taxes. They get an option of which years, while Americans do not get that choice.

It gives employers a free pass for hiring illegal aliens. The bill says that employers of aliens applying for adjustment of status will be subject to civil and criminal liability for employing such unauthorized aliens.” Unbelievable.

The bill will dramatically raise spending and increase welfare costs. The Congressional Budget Office and the Joint Committee on Taxation (JCT), estimate that this bill would increase direct spending by $16 billion over the 5 years and $48 billion over 10 years. But what about all of the entitlement programs such as welfare? Illegal immigrants are currently ineligible for most federal welfare benefits, but if you give citizenship as this bill does those currently here illegally will be eligible for programs. If just 60 percent of those currently here illegally get citizenship—the ballpark figure of the number that have been here more than 5 years—Robert Rector at the Heritage Foundation estimates that welfare costs will increase by more than $11 billion per year.

However it may be even more important to note what the Senate bill did not do. We know that we must secure our borders, so my colleagues and I tried to add a provision to require a certification that the borders are secure before granting legal status to any alien who entered the United States illegally. I was not only surprised but extremely disappointed that our efforts to do this right—to secure our borders first before dealing with the 11 million illegal aliens in our country—failed. So that bill continues to put the cart before the horse—and continues to hold our national security hostage to a comprehensive solution.

For this reason, in June I introduced my own bill—the Border Security First Act, S. 3564. My bill takes a first-things-first approach. This first step cannot, and should not, wait for a “comprehensive” solution. When we secure our borders—and only then—we can address the remaining illegal immigration-related challenges with the appropriate remedies.

Despite consensus on all of the border security provisions in my bill, my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have not allowed us to move forward that legislation. Nonetheless, this week the Senate is working to send the President a bill to secure our southern border with 700 miles of at least double-layer fencing. I am glad we are here today to take a real first step—admittedly a modest step but at least a first step—toward demonstrating to the American public that we have heard you, that we understand we need to address border security first.

And the American public has been clear, but let me focus on my State for a minute. In Pennsylvania, my constituents have been clear—80 percent oppose amnesty for illegal immigrants, and 84 percent support building a fence on the southern border. Stop the food aid and stop giving us the message, colleagues. It cannot be plainer. We must listen and put America’s border security first, reject amnesty, and pass this bill.

Border security cannot wait for more hearings, debate, and discussion; it must be done right or it must start now. This bill is a good first step.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, on May 17 of this year, the Senate passed a comprehensive immigration reform bill that contains a real solution to the immigration crisis in this country. S. 2611 was passed with strong bipartisan support. In a Congress that has been marred by partisan politics, the success of this bill—this truly bipartisan compromise—was a breath of fresh air: an achievement to be proud of.

What has happened now, however, is something to be ashamed of. Once again, politics has hijacked policy. Knowing they cannot go home without taking some action to address immigration, Republicans in Congress have decided that saving their seats is more important than securing the borders.

You might wonder how we got here—when the Senate passed comprehensive immigration reform back in May and the House passed an enforcement only bill in December 2005. Once again, the answer is politics. Rather than moving to conference to work out some sort of compromise on these bills, Republicans in the House traveled around the country holding 60 one-sided hearings under the guise of gathering evidence.

This was not a good-faith effort to come to a comprehensive solution. It was a stalling tactic used to run out the clock on comprehensive reform. That kind of political gamesmanship will not work on me.

Everyone under the sun is for fencing on the border. A fence is an important part of comprehensive reform. I supported an amendment to the comprehensive reform bill that authorized 370 miles of triple-layered fencing and 500 miles of vehicle barriers along the southwest border. And I supported $1.6 billion funding for the construction of that fencing and 461 miles of vehicle barriers. I supported construction of this fence because I believe that it is a critical part of comprehensive immigration reform.

But no one in a million years thinks this is the answer. No one in the world thinks Congress should pass this fig leaf and call it a day. If you address the reasons why immigrants come into our country—their ability to find work with a relatively small chance of getting caught as well as how they come in, then increased fencing makes much sense. Fencing alone simply cannot work.
You don’t have to take my word for it. Governor Janet Napolitano of Arizona, a border State where much of the illegal border crossings occur, said this about the fence proposal:

You show me a 50-foot wall and I’ll show you a 51-foot ladder . . . That’s the way the border works.

Consider the words of the former Secretary of Homeland Security, Tom Ridge. He said:

Trying to gain operational control of the borders is impossible unless our enhanced enforcement is coupled with a robust Temporary Guest Worker program and a means to entice those now working illegally out of the shadows into some type of legal status. [...] Even a well-designed, generously-funded enforcement regimen will not work if we don’t change the immigration and labor laws that regulate how would-be workers can come to the United States.

What he is saying is that only comprehensive immigration reform, such as S. 2661, will actually fix our immigration problem.

And, you know what? His former boss, the President of the United States, would agree. Speaking in the Oval Office just days before the Senate passed S. 2611, the President said:

An immigration reform bill needs to be comprehensive because all elements of this problem must be addressed together, or none of them will be addressed at all.

Current Secretary of Homeland Security, Michael Chertoff, also endorses comprehensive immigration reform:

For [our] Secure Border initiative to be fully effective, Congress will need to change our immigration laws to address the laws of supply and demand that fuel most illegal migration and find mechanisms to bring legal workers into a regulated, legal Temporary Guest Worker Program, while still preserving national security.

Perhaps most importantly, the people on the ground in the front lines of the immigration struggle tell us that only comprehensive immigration reform can work. As Jeffrey Calhoun, deputy chief patrol agent for the Yuma sector of the Border Patrol said:

We need a comprehensive immigration reform that provides additional resources for border security, establishes a robust interior enforcement program and creates a temporary worker program.

A vote cast in favor of this fence—in the absence of comprehensive reform— is a vote cast in favor of a piecemeal approach that we know will fail, is a vote cast against comprehensive immigration reform. That is what this vote is about. As my friend Senator Specter, said, voting for the Secure Fence Act will undermine our chance to enact comprehensive reform. He should know. He is the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The Secretary of Homeland Security has not asked for the amount of fencing provided for in this bill. Although the bill does not authorize a specific amount of fencing, it does dictate exactly how fencing should be put up. Some people believe the bill authorizes 730 miles of fencing, but Customs and Border Protection, CBP, however, estimates that it will require 849 miles of fencing to get the job done.

We can’t even estimate the amount of fencing based on funding levels because the bill contains no specific funding authorization. We do know, however, that it will be expensive. The Department of Homeland Security estimates the cost of a single layer of fencing to be $4.4 million a mile and vehicle barriers to $2.2 million. Because double fencing requires extra money for building all-weather roads, the total estimated cost of Homeland Security is $6.6 billion, $9 million a mile.

There are many other things that we could do with that kind of money. We could hire, train, and equip more Border Patrol agents. We could purchase more detention beds to end our unfortunate “catch and release” policy. We could place more port-of-entry inspectors and canine detection teams in the field. We could invest in new technologies for border patrol in an interoperable communications system for the Nation’s first responders. But no, Congress would rather punt on the tough decisions and dodge the real debate. What a disgrace.

I opposed the vote of the Senate to do its job and live up to its responsibility. I sincerely hope that this vote does not signify the beginning of the end of comprehensive immigration reform as I fear it does.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, for an immigration measure to be effective, two aspects are necessary. One aspect is enforcement and the other is addressing the status of millions of undocumented immigrants who are living in the United States.

The Senate spent several weeks earlier this year debating a comprehensive immigration bill which struck an acceptable balance between enforcement and legalization. We passed that bill by a large margin but Republicans, including myself, have been unable, despite months of negotiations, to come up with a final bill. This is irresponsible at best.

The secure fence bill only addresses enforcement but worse, it only addresses a small part of enforcement. This bill builds a wall. A wall that will cost as much as $9 billion. And a wall that will be ineffective. As Governor Napolitano of Arizona said, “You show me a 50-foot wall and I’ll show you a 51-foot ladder at the border. That’s the way the border works.”

Apprehending individuals illegally crossing the border only partially solves the problem. First, half of the undocumented immigrants in this country came here legally and then overstayed their visas. A fence will not solve that problem.

Second, the reason so many try to enter this country is the search for jobs. We must work to cut off the supply of jobs by making it too costly for employers to hire the undocumented. There are laws on the books that do this, but these laws have rarely been enforced by this administration.

Furthermore, no immigration law that we pass will be effective if we do not negotiate and sign bilateral agreements with other countries on numerous issues including taking back aliens removed from the United States, document forgery, smuggling, human trafficking, and certain other types of border security measures. It would have asked for local community input on the placement and construction of immigration reform package designed to secure our borders as well as address the economic need for workers in our Nation. In passing this legislation, the Senate rejected the argument for an “enforcement only” strategy, instead focusing on border security only, an ineffective and ill-advised approach. Congress cannot take a piecemeal approach to a national security crisis. I believe the only way to truly secure our border and protect our Nation and its workers is through a comprehensive immigration reform. As long as there is a need for workers in the United States and people are willing to cross the desert to make a better life for their families, our border will never be secure.

The Secure Fence bill authorizes 700 miles of fencing along our southern border. To many in Congress, this sounds like a “quick fix” to our border security problems. However, in a briefing before the Senate Judiciary Committee last spring, Secretary of Homeland Security Chertoff clearly stated that only 370 miles of fencing along the southern border is necessary. I find it interesting that this bill would mandate 700 miles of fencing in light of the Secretary’s statement. In fact, it is my understanding that the Secretary feels that the additional 330 miles of fencing is not only unnecessary but also imprudent because it will force DHS to reevaluate other border security initiatives.

Because of the clear wishes of the Secretary and the concerns of border communities over the disruption the construction will cause to commerce along the border, a group of Senators, including myself, had hoped to offer and vote on an amendment that would allow the Secretary of Homeland Security, the true expert on securing our border, to decide where fencing was necessary along the border and where they were better off using other types of border security measures. It would have asked for local community input on the placement and construction of immigration bill.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

this wall. My understanding is that this amendment had been circulated in both Chambers and no objections had been raised by the leadership in the House or the Senate or the committees of jurisdiction. Unfortunately, because of the solicitations of a single legislator, the House and Senate leadership decided to change procedures to block Senators from offering amendments to the immigration bill. This amendment would have given a reasonable and achievable meaning to the term “operation control” as it relates to the Secretary’s duties in this bill. However, again, the same Senator raised an objection to the clarification of this definition. I believe that this bill, and more importantly, our Nation’s security, will be worse off for this objection to making common sense improvements to this bill.

I believe struggled and debated over how I should vote on this bill. I truly believe that we must have comprehensive immigration reform and will continue to propose myself to achieving a thorough response to our Nation’s struggles with illegal immigration. However, since I am forced to choose between nothing and a fraction of the border security that our country needs, I must support providing some form of border security. As a Senator from a border State, I recognize that we are facing a crisis in our border region and infrastructure improvements to our border security are desperately needed.

If Congress thinks that it can continue this piecemeal approach to border security and achieve any real results for our national security, it is sadly mistaken. Mr. President, I hope that we can return in either a lame-duck session or in the 110th Congress to not only correct the problems in the bill before us but also make a serious effort to effectively reform our Nation’s immigration system.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I would like to take a few moments to explain why I voted against limiting debate on the Secure Fence Act of 2006 when that vote occurred last night.

In large measure my decision to vote against cloture was procedural. This Senate has had no opportunity to debate and amend the bill before us today. There are some very important amendments that our colleagues would have liked to offer which now they cannot.

Those who do not understand Senate procedure might ask, how could that be possible? After all, hasn’t this bill been the pending business of the Senate off and on for 6 days?

Let me explain. The Senate majority leader has, as is his right, used Senate procedures to block Senators from offering or voting on amendments. He has done what is called filling the amendment tree. Until the Senate voted last night to limit debate on this legislation, no vote was taken on any amendment to this bill. Now that closure has been invoked, many otherwise pertinent and important amendments are no longer in order for this bill.

Unfortunately, that has been the pattern of conduct with respect to this legislation in both chambers. This bill was rushed through the House of Representatives on September 14. There were no Senate hearings on the matter, no committee input into the content of this bill. That is not the way the Senate ordinarily does business, and it is certainly not the best way to address legislation that is supposed to be improving our Nation’s security.

The Senate already had a very serious and responsible debate on the subject of border security in the context of its deliberations of comprehensive immigration reform. We spent 9 days debating many amendments on that bill, including amendments related to the construction of fences along the U.S.-Mexican border. The amendment ultimately adopted by the Senate provides for 370 miles of fencing in the most vulnerable high-traffic areas along the U.S.-Mexican border. That is what the administration requested and recommended. It also addressed a very important requirement that Federal authorities first consult with those who will be most affected by construction of such a fence—relevant local, State, and Federal agencies on both sides of the border. I supported that amendment.

Why is it that the Senate is now being asked to consider a far less comprehensive approach to securing our country? Does anyone really believe that by simply building a fence, adding physical barriers, lights, cameras, and sensors along 730 miles of our southern border, we are somehow going to make our Nation secure? Do we really believe we can be secure without the cooperation of other governments, most especially our immediate neighbors, Canada and Mexico? And do we really believe that by unilaterally putting up barriers on our southern border and contemplating doing the same on the northern border, we are strengthening the will of Canada or Mexico to give us that cooperation?

Is the next step going to be building fences along the remaining 1,300 miles of our southern border and the more than 3,000 miles of our northern border? At what cost? The Congressional Budget Office puts the cost of the current fence proposal at $3.2 billion per mile of fence. Other estimates are even higher—$10 billion per mile for some stretches of the fence. When you add in annual maintenance, the cost of the fence could exceed $1 billion. So are we prepared to spend another $5 billion to $6 billion or so to construct an additional 4,300 miles of fencing to complete the job?

In that scant time our immigration system is broken. More than 10 million undocumented aliens live among us but at the same time outside the legal structures of our Government creating additional economic and national security challenges which the comprehensive immigration bill passed by the Senate responsibly sought to address. The pending bill does not.

The House and Senate passed very different legislation related to comprehensive immigration reform and enhanced border security. The President endorsed the Senate-passed measure. What would usually be the next step in the legislative process would be for the House and Senate conferences to meet to reconcile the differences between the two bills. But that is not what has happened in this case.

Rather, the Republican leadership, in an effort to score political points, has rushed through this very minor bill authorizing the construction of fences on the southern border and mandating a study of the advisability of doing so on our northern border. They have blocked any serious debate or amendments to the pending matter, and once that final passage occurs they will declare that our Nation is now secure.

That is why I felt strongly last night that we ought to have a real debate on the challenges to our Nation’s security and consider relevant amendments that could address those challenges rather than rushing to judgment on the very simplistic and costly approach called for in this bill.

Mr. President, do we do our citizens a real disservice when we let election year politics get in the way of the people’s business?

Unfortunately, it will have to be left to a later date to do what would really enhance our Nation’s security; namely, enact legislation to fix our broken immigration system.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, what is the following order within the unanimous consent that deals with this legislation?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are five Senators to whom time is allotted. Prior to the vote, the time is limited to Senator SALAZAR, 5 minutes; Senator BINGAMAN, 5 minutes; Senator CRAIG, 5 minutes; Senator REID, 3 minutes; Senator Feinstein, 3 minutes.

Who seeks time?

The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent I be allowed the first 5 minutes and then Senator SALAZAR from Colorado take the second 5 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Hearing none, it is so ordered.

The Senator from New Mexico is recognized for 5 minutes, to be followed by the Senator from Colorado.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about H.R. 6061, the Secure Fence Act, and to express my disappointment that the majority leader has called for a vote on that legislation before we have addressed relevant Senate Amendments. I have an amendment, which is germane postclause, which simply provides the Department of Homeland Security with discretion regarding the use and placement of fencing along our border.

As a Senator who represents a border State, I understand the frustration communities are facing due to the inability of Federal Government to secure our Nation’s borders. Illegal immigration is a serious problem and we do need to do a better job of addressing this issue.

The Senate has passed a comprehensive immigration bill aimed at improving security along our borders and at reforming our immigration laws. Although this bill isn’t perfect, it is a step in the right direction. I was very disappointed that the leadership in the House refused to appoint conferees, and instead decided to hold hearings around the country to stir up discontent rather than to seek solutions.

The Senate has passed a bipartisan bill. The House has passed a bill. We should have convened a conference committee and worked out the differences between these bills. The failure to at least make a good-faith effort at coming to an agreement is unacceptable.

With regard to the specifics of the Secure Fence Act, I do believe that there are locations along our border where fencing makes sense. For example, I support the $1.2 billion that is in the 2007 Homeland Security Appropriations bill for fencing, infrastructure, and technology. I voted today for $1.8 billion for the Army National Guard to build fencing and vehicle barriers along the southwest border as part of the Defense Appropriations bill. In addition, over the last several years I have secured millions of dollars of funding for fencing and vehicle barriers specifically for New Mexico.

However, we need to be smart about security. Walls may make good sound bites in political ads, but the reality is that illegal immigration is a very complex issue. Securing our borders have consistently stated that they are only part of the solution and that there are better and more cost-effective ways to provide for border security.

As Ralph Basham, the Commissioner of Customs and Border Protection, stated earlier this year in a response to a question about the proposal to build 700 miles of double-layered fencing: “It doesn’t make sense, it’s not practical.” He went on to say that what we need is an adaptive mix of technology, infrastructure, and personnel.

Secretary Chertoff has voiced similar concerns, and has consistently maintained that securing our borders will require a much more comprehensive approach than simply building to provide legal authority to build the fences that it needs, and I do not think we should be mandating over 700 miles of fencing in specific locations at a cost of millions of dollars per mile unless we know that this is something that DHS believes it is the best way to enhance security.

This bill micromanages and mandates specifically where DHS must build fencing. For example, with regard to New Mexico, the bill states that a fence must be constructed extending from 5 miles west of the Columbus, NM, port of entry to 10 miles east of El Paso, TX. “There hasn’t been any local input regarding this specific location and I haven’t received any indication from DHS that they believe that this is the best place to build a fence.

To the contrary, in discussions during one of the southwest New Mexico Border Security Task Force meetings, the point was raised by local security officials that the location of the proposed double layer of fencing in the bill is in the wrong place.

The bill also mandates fencing in some areas where we just spent millions of dollars per mile to build vehicle barriers. According to DHS, it costs approximately $6.6 billion for the 730 miles of fencing required under the bill. If we are going to spend billions of dollars to place a fence along one-third of our southern border, we should at least ensure that it is in the right location and that DHS can make necessary adjustments in the interest of securing our borders.

To this end, I hoped to offer an amendment that would ensure that the Secretary of Homeland Security has the ability to modify the placement and use of the fencing mandated under this bill, if the Secretary determines that the placement of the fence is not the best way to achieve and maintain operational control over the border. I strongly believe that this is a reasonable amendment that ensures that DHS has the flexibility it needs to alter this proposal if it doesn’t advance our overall security strategy.

Let me be clear, I believe we should do what it takes to secure our borders. I have consistently worked to secure increased funding for vehicle barriers, and I voted here today in support of the Border Patrol to build and provide $6.6 billion for the 730 miles of fencing required under the bill. If we are going to build a fence along one-third of our southern border, we should at least ensure that it is in the right location and that DHS can make necessary adjustments in the interest of securing our borders.

in the United States. So putting a fence on the border as proposed in this legislation all by itself will not resolve the comprehensive immigration issues we are facing in our country today.

It wasn’t so long ago that this Chamber was engaged in a vigorous debate over a bill, comprehensive immigration reform. I agree with Attorney General Gonzales, Homeland Security Secretary Chertoff, and others: a fence that is not the most appropriate or effective way to secure our 2,000-mile southern border. As Secretary Chertoff said: “Fencing has its place in some areas, but as a total solution, I don’t think it’s a good total solution.”

The Department of Homeland Security already has the authority to build fences along our border. This amendment is unnecessary. I believe it is not about securing our border but about election-year politics.

A majority of the Republicans have made very clear that they are not serious about doing anything to get control of the broken immigration system. Where is President Bush? He said he wanted comprehensive immigration reform, and he has been silent. The President and the Republicans in Congress have made it clear that they have no interest in going into a conference to enact legislation this year.

I believe we can only secure our border through comprehensive reform, as I have outlined. No amount of Republican grandstanding on this issue will change that. The Senate has offered a practical, workable, fair solution to fix our immigration system, and he has been silent. I believe that we as a Senate can do much better.

I urge my colleagues to oppose the fence bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we can build the tallest fence in the world, and it won’t fix our broken immigration system. Nor will it strengthen security on the borders. To do that, we need the comprehensive reform that the Senate passed earlier this year. We have been waiting for months for the majority to appoint conferees so we could complete this important legislation, but they have refused to do so.

I support tough border security. I voted for the fence amendment, in the context of our comprehensive immigration reform bill, that would have authorized Homeland Security Secretary Chertoff’s Department to build 370 miles of fencing—based on what he told us in the Senate he needed. Building some fencing as part of the comprehensive reform bill makes sense. As I have said before, we cannot take a piece-meal approach to fixing our borders.

We need to do more. We passed a comprehensive border security bill. It had temporary worker program, which is so important with agriculture and the resort industry. We also said that we had to do something to take care of the 12 million people who are living in the shadows. What would they do to get out of the shadows? They would have to pay taxes, get a job, learn English, and stay out of trouble. And we had employer sanctions. Only a combination of all of these elements will work to get our broken immigration system under control.

Nearly half of the undocumented immigrants in this country came here legally and overstayed their visas. A fence or a wall, no matter how high and mighty, will not solve this problem.

I agree with Attorney General Gonzales, Homeland Security Secretary Chertoff, and others: a fence that is not the most appropriate or effective way to secure our 2,000-mile southern border. As Secretary Chertoff said: “Fencing has its place in some areas, but as a total solution, I don’t think it’s a good total solution.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader is recognized.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we immediately consider Senate amendment No. 5022, known as AgJOBS, offered by myself, Senator FEINSTEIN of California, and 53 cosponsors. The amendment is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. SESSIONS, I object.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, we recognize the need for a fence. We recognize the need for border security. But as we speak, American agriculture is losing somewhere between $1 billion and $5 billion at the farm gate because our southern border is closing. We have troops at the border. We are investing now nearly $2 billion a year at the border. This Congress, this Government, this White House—that is, to the American people that we mean it when we say we are going to secure our southern border. But I have said for 2 years that, in doing that, we had to tie the cart and the horse together; that is, we needed to provide for the American economy a legal guestworker program. We have not done that. We are not doing that.

In my State of Idaho now, there is an 18 to 20 percent reduction in the employment base in agriculture as we speak. In the State of Kentucky, the tobacco growers cooperative is now losing their tobacco crop because they have nobody to pick. In Illinois, in the orchards at this time, apples are rotting on the trees. In Florida, it is estimated that we have already lost nearly a billion dollars worth of oranges. Is this the fault of American agriculture or is this the fault of a Congress that would not take an obligation and function of law and fix it, so that we could have a legal workforce, one that comes and works and goes fast. That is what a guestworker program is all about. In Oregon, an apple orchard picking 25 tons a day is now picking 6 tons a day, and the apples are rotting.

The Senators from California, Senators FEINSTEIN and BOXER, talked about the produce in the great San Juquin Valley that rots as we speak. Some will say those farmers should have known better. Maybe they should have. That is why they came to me several years ago and said: We have a problem; help us fix it; help us get a legal workforce.

We did not do that. We tried mightily—some of us—but we are now refusing to do that at a time of crisis. So if it is not us to blame, who is it?

So let the consumer go to the fresh produce shelf this fall and winter and pay double the price for some of the fruits and vegetables that are normally so cheap—some of our production move offshore to Argentina and Brazil, because it will go where the workforce is if the workforce cannot come to it.

None of us want an illegal system. We want a legal immigration system. We will return in November, and we will be able to add up the losses, and that will be a tragedy.

I hope that in November, with those losses calculated—and I hope I am wrong; I hope it is not $5 billion or $6 billion or $7 billion. But if it is, Senators, roll up your sleeves; we have a problem to solve, and it is a very big problem. We cannot afford to lose the fruit and vegetable industry of this country. For the sake of American agriculture, it is a labor-intensive industry of the kind that requires a viable legal guestworker program.

Tonight, in a moment of crisis—and we now know it—the Senate of the United States has refused to deal with the problem.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is currently under a unanimous consent agreement to proceed to the bill S 1295, the Farm Workforce Reform Act of 2006. The majority leader is recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, last week, immigration agents arrested 120 illegal workers at a tomato facility in Colorado within 1 mile of global surveillance and a missile early-warning facility. Most likely, they came to America to find jobs. But if any had sinister intentions, only a fence separated them from a critical military facility.

Most immigrants come to America with good intentions, but not all of them. Intelligence reports show that... al-Qaida considers our borders a vulnerability. Imagine how terrorists might exploit a 1,951-mile border with Mexico.

We are a Nation of immigrants, but we are also a Nation of laws and principles. Any attempt to hate the influx of illegal immigrants must respect that fact. The comprehensive immigration reform legislation the Senate passed in May struck a careful balance. We took a three-pronged approach: fortify our borders, strengthen worksite enforcement, and find a fair and realistic way to address the 12 million people already in our country illegally, without offering amnesty.

Clearly, we won’t reach an agreement on comprehensive immigration reform before we leave for the recess, but fortifying our borders is an integral component of national security. We cannot afford to wait until November to do that. We know what works. We built a 14-mile fence near San Diego and saw illegal immigration in the area drop dramatically. We deployed 6,000 National Guard troops to our southwest border and saw a 45 percent drop in border apprehension.

The comprehensive solution to immigration reform is ideal, yes, but we have always said we need an enforcement-first approach to reform—not enforcement-only but enforcement-first.

The Secure Fence Act of 2006 let’s us get a head start on the first prong of comprehensive reform. It requires the Department of Homeland Security to achieve complete operational control over our border with Mexico. With this bill, we will have better control over who enters the country, how they enter it, and what they bring with them.

Without the critical security measures included in the bill, we leave ourselves open to attack. We place our natures included in the bill, we leave ourselves open to attack. We place our natures included in the bill, we leave to others open to attack. We place our natures included in the bill, we leave ourselves open to attack. We place our natures included in the bill, we leave ourselves open to attack. We place our natures included in the bill, we leave ourselves open to attack. We place our natures included in the bill, we leave ourselves open to attack. We place our natures included in the bill, we leave ourselves open to attack. We place our natures included in the bill, we leave ourselves open to attack. We place our natures included in the bill, we leave ourselves open to attack. We place.

The bill (H.R. 6061) was passed. Mr. FRIST, Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote and I move to lay that motion on the table. The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

CHILD CUSTODY PROTECTION ACT

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent that the mandatory quorum under rule XXII be waived.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—H.R. 5122

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, under the unanimous consent agreement, I have been allocated 10 minutes, at the end of which I am going to make a unanimous consent request that we proceed immediately to the Defense Authorization bill, the John Warner Authorization bill conference report, which has come over from the House. I do not know of any opposition to this bill. We have worked on it for 5 months. It has provisions in it which are critically important to our troops.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will suspend. The Senator from Michigan has the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. I think it is critically important before we leave—Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, let’s have regular order.

Mr. LEVIN. I ask unanimous consent at this point that the conference report to accompany H.R. 5122, the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act of Fiscal Year 2007, be deemed adopted by the Senate with a motion to reconsider laid on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. FRIST, Mr. President, reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. FRIST. We are in discussion now and I believe we are making real progress on addressing this bill. I will object here shortly because we have to talk to a number of colleagues. But I think we are making real progress on the bill.

Mr. LEVIN. So we could adopt it tonight?

Mr. FRIST. Thus, I object.

CHILD INTERSTATE ABORTION NOTIFICATION ACT

Mr. SPECTER, Mr. President, I oppose cloture on the Child Custody Protection Act, S. 403, because there are not adequate safeguards for young women seeking abortions, particularly in cases of rape, incest, or health of the minor.

Those bills, like the one now pending, made it a crime to take a minor across state lines for purposes of obtaining an abortion without parental consent or notification. I opposed that legislation because of my concern for minor girls who have an abusive or bad relationship with their parents, including circumstances of incest. Such a relationship makes it difficult, if not impossible, for the girl to admit to being pregnant or to express her desire to obtain an abortion. Additionally I am concerned with the delay this bill poses on young girls seeking abortions in the case of rape or health risks.

Proponents of this legislation have urged me to support it on the ground that the state judicial bypass laws provide sufficient means for young girls who have such a bad relationship with their parents, to receive judicial authorization to secure an abortion without their parents’ knowledge or consent. It has been suggested to me that there may be compelling data that the judicial bypass procedures provide a sufficient means for such girls’ interests to be protected. On the current state of the record, however, I believe that the judicial bypass procedures are not adequate, so I do not believe that a Federal crime should be legislated for those who take minor girls across state lines to secure an abortion.

To those who have urged me to support the legislation and have asked me to review such data, I have replied that I would be willing to study any such information. As noted, on this date of the record, I could not support legislating a Federal crime on this issue.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I cannot support the Child Custody Abortion Notification Act, CIANA. First, I object to the decision to bring this bill directly to the floor, circumventing the
Mr. ENSIGN. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the Child Custody Protection Act, which will protect the rights of our Nation's parents and their children's well-being.

I was very pleased with the work of this Congress with the Child Custody Protection Act came before the Senate in July. Through the hard work of my colleagues, I believe we were able to come up with an even stronger bill designed to protect our young daughters. The only successful amendment offered to the Protection Act contained two important clarifying provisions dealing with parents who commit incest.

Senator BOXER and I worked together to ensure that parents who have committed the heinous act of incest are unable to sue, and therefore profit from, someone else who has transported their minor across State lines for an abortion.

The Ensign-Boxer amendment also added a new provision making it Federal crime for someone who has committed incest to transport their victim across State lines for an abortion.

Recognizing the importance of preserving parent's rights, the Senate passed the Child Custody Protection Act by a vote of 65 to 34.

The support of 14 Democrats reflects the reality that this not an issue divided on pro-life or pro-choice lines.

There is broad and consistent support to preserve the rights of parents.

There is an overwhelming number of States have recognized that a young girl's parents are the best source of guidance and knowledge when making decisions regarding serious surgical or medical procedures, like abortion.

Forty-five States have adopted some form of parental notification or consent law, proving their widespread support for protecting the rights of parents.

The people that care the most for the child should be involved in these kinds of health care decisions and, if there is aftercare needed, be fully informed in order to care for their young daughter.

Additionally, a huge majority support parental consent laws. In fact, most polls show that consent is favored by almost 80 percent of Americans.

These numbers do not lie; the American people agree that parents deserve the right to be involved in their minor children's decisions.

The bill before us today makes it a Federal offense to knowingly transport a minor across a State line, for the purposes of an abortion, in order to circumvent a State's parental consent or notification law.

It specifies that neither the minor transported nor her parent may be prosecuted for a violation of this act.

The purpose of the Child Custody Protection Act is to prevent people, including abusive boyfriends and predatory older men, who may have committed rape, from pressuring young girls into having secret abortions without their parents consent.

The bill also requires an abortionist to give 24 hours’ notice to a parent of the minor from another State before performing the abortion. Several exceptions are made, including exceptions related to parental abuse and the life and bodily health of the mother.

Should the abortionist fail to do so, they could face a fine or jail time.

We are reminded how important parental notification is when we hear the story of Marcia Carroll and her daughter, from Pennsylvania.

Ms. Carroll’s daughter was, without her mother’s knowledge, pressured by her boyfriend's stepfather to take a train and cross State lines and have an abortion she didn’t want to have and which she now regrets and seeks continual counseling for.

The abortion provider who performed an abortion on Mrs. Carroll’s daughter had a long history of abusing his patients.

Mrs. Carroll should have been given an opportunity to learn about the history of her child’s doctor, who had been professionally disciplined multiple times for having sexual contact with a patient in his office, for performing improper rectal and breast exams on two others, and for indiscriminately prescribing controlled dangerous substances.

The parents of America should be given the chance to make sure their children’s doctors are not potential sexual abusers and controlled substance pushers, and this legislation would give them that chance.

As Mrs. Carroll testified, ‘‘I felt safe when the police told me my daughter had to be . . . of age in the State of Pennsylvania to have an abortion without parental consent . . . It never occurred to me that I would need to check the laws of other States around mine.

I thought as a resident of the State of Pennsylvania that she was protected by Pennsylvania State laws. Boy, was I ever wrong.

Dr. Bruce A. Lucero, an abortion provider, has supported this legislation because ‘‘patients who receive abortions at out-of-state clinics frequently do not return for follow-up care, which can lead to dangerous complications.’’

Sure enough, the abortion provider who performed an abortion on Mrs. Carroll’s daughter failed to schedule a follow-up visit with her to help ensure there were no postabortion complications.

Speaking as the father of three young children, including a daughter, I understand how difficult the challenges of raising children can be.

In most schools across the country, our children cannot go on a field trip, take part in school activities, or participate in sex education without a signed permission slip. An underage child cannot even receive mild medication, such as aspirin, unless the school nurse has a signed release form. Some states even require parental permission to use indoor tanning beds.

Nothing, however, prevents this same child from being taken across State lines, in direct disobedience of State laws, for the purpose of undergoing a life-altering abortion.

In many cases, only a girl’s parents know her prior medical and psychological history, including allergies to medications and anesthesia.

The harsh reality is our current law allows for parents to be left uninformed about their underage daughter’s abortion, which can be devastating to the physical and mental health of the child.

Parental notification serves another vital purpose—ensuring increased protection against sexual exploitation of minors by adult men.

All too often, our young girls are the victims of the predatory practices of men who are older, more experienced, and in a unique position to influence the minor’s decisions.

According to the American Academy of Pediatrics, “almost two-thirds of adolescent mothers have partners older than they are.”

Rather than face a statutory rape charge, these men or their families use the vulnerability of the young girl against her, exerting pressure on the girl to agree to an abortion without talking to her parents.

In fact, in a survey of 1500 unmarried minors having abortions without their parents’ knowledge, 89 percent said that a boyfriend was involved in the decision.

The number goes even higher the younger the age of the minor.

Allowing secret abortions do nothing to expose these men and their heinous conduct.

In the unfortunate instance of abuse or where there is rape or incest involved within a family, minors may be afraid to go to one of the parents. In response, judicial bypass laws have been written across the country to protect the minor.

The legislation is a commonsense solution to defeat the legal loophole that currently results in parents being denied the right to know about the health decisions of their minor daughters—a fact which the Supreme Court upheld in Planned Parenthood v. Casey, which states, that it is the State’s right to declare that an abortion should not be performed on a minor unless a parent is consulted.

This is not an argument on the merits of abortion; rather, this is a debate about preserving the fundamental right of parents to have knowledge about the health decisions of their minor daughters.

Parental permission is so important because parents are the most intimately involved people in their children’s lives.

We cannot allow another young girl’s life to be irreparably damaged because of a legal loophole that keeps parents from being involved in one of the most major decisions their daughter may make in her life.

It is time for Congress to step up and commit to protecting our daughters by assuring that a parent’s right to be involved is protected.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I am a proud cosponsor of S. 403, the Child Custody Protection Act. This bill has strong bipartisan support as illustrated by its introduction in July. Unfortunately, due to political maneuvers by its opponents, the enactment of this critical legislation is being blocked.

This is one of the most important pieces of legislation to be considered during the 109th Congress. Why is this legislation so important? Because despite the fact that 23 States require a minor to receive parental consent prior to obtaining an abortion, these important laws are being violated. Today, minors, with the assistance of adults who are not their parents, are being transported across State lines to receive abortions without obtaining parental consent. We must end this circumvention of State laws and, more importantly, the consequences such actions have on life.

S. 403 would make it a Federal offense to help a minor cross lines for the purpose of obtaining an abortion, unless it is needed to save the life of the minor. Its enactment is critical, and we cannot allow its opponents to continue to stall needlessly its progress.

Earlier this month, I joined with 40 of my colleagues in urging the majority leader to take action to enable this legislation to continue through the legislative process. The leader has now taken such action. On Wednesday, a cloture motion was filed to break the opponents’ logjam, and I applaud and support this action. We must do all that we can to move this critical legislation to the President’s desk.

CLOTURE MOTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, under rule XXII, the clerk will report the motion to invoke cloture.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

CLOTURE MOTION

We the undersigned Senators, in accordance with the provisions of rule XXII of the Standing Rules of the Senate, do hereby move to bring to a close debate on the motion to concur in the House amendment to S. 403: a bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to prohibit taking minors across State lines in circumvention of laws requiring the involvement of parents in abortion decisions.

The PRESIDENTIAL OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the mandatory quorum call has been waived.

The question is, Is it the sense of the Senate that debate on the motion to concur in the amendment of the House to S. 403, the Child Custody Protection Act, shall be closed?

The yeas and nays are necessary under the rule. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY) is necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY) would vote “no.”

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 57, nays 42, as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2007—CONFERENCE REPORT

The PRESIDENTIAL OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of the conference report to accompany H.R. 5441, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 5441), “making appropriations for the Department of Homeland Security for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2007, and for other purposes”, having met, have agreed that the House resolve from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate, and agree to the same with an amendment, and the
Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I rise to engage in a colloquy with my good friends, Senator PRYOR, Senator DOMENICI, and Senator WARNER. To my colleagues, it is my understanding that a question as to the intent of the chemical facility security provision has arisen. Senator PRYOR, in your view, is the meaning of section 550 with respect to its effect on State laws or rules?

Mr. PRYOR. I thank the Senator from Ohio for raising this important question. Section 550 does not contain any language regarding its preemptive effect. In State laws, it has been the other House who believe that this silence means the legislation would have no effect on State or local attempts to regulate chemical security— in other words, that it gives them a green light to go farther. I want to state clearly my belief to the contrary. As we all know, under well-established Supreme Court precedent, a Federal law that is silent in this way can still occupy the field and impliedly preempt any State legislation on the same topic. Historically, Congress has done so in the security area, whether it be nuclear security or aviation security.

Mr. VOINOVICH. I thank Senator PRYOR for his statement because I agree with it. I know my good friend from Virginia, Senator WARNER, also has views on this. Senator WARNER, in your view, is the meaning of section 550 with respect to its effect on State laws or rules?

Mr. WARNER. I also thank the Senator from Ohio for raising this important question. I concur with the assessment of my good friend from Arkansas regarding the preemptive effect of this chemical facility provision. As the Senator noted, there is strong Supreme Court precedent regarding the implied preemption of State laws, especially as it relates to homeland security, homeland defense, and national security. There are several examples of statutes that remain silent with regard to the effect of State laws have been in the other House who believe that this silence means the legislation would have no effect on State laws or rules. As we all know, under well-established Supreme Court precedent, a Federal law that is silent in this way can still occupy the field and impliedly preempt any State legislation on the same topic. New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Washington will agree it is imperative that the travel requirements between Canada and the United States be implemented in a manner that does not adversely affect Americans. To date, the construction and implementation of the passcards have not been established. Passcards are essential to ensure the flow of travel and business activities between the United States and other countries is not hindered.

I am also concerned with the looming date of implementation for WHTI. The administration’s current plan is to implement the air and sea portion of the initiative by January 2007, this coming January. This means that in just 3 months all U.S. citizens traveling by air and sea from Canada and Mexico or the Caribbean will need a passport to enter this country.

The intent of language included in the Homeland bill is in no way meant to improperly delay the implementation of this initiative. Securing our borders is important, and I support these efforts. I want to make sure the State Department is prepared to adjudicate the large number of requests for passports and passcards this initiative will produce.

Our language also creates a single implementation date for land and sea crossings. Families often take a cruise to Alaska, and continue their vacations by driving across the border. In order to avoid confusion to these travelers, we must have one date in which they are expected to have new documentation, rather than the current plan to implement sea this January and land in January 2008. Further, they should be able to use the passcard for both land and sea crossings, rather than requiring a passport for the sea portion of a vacation.

I believe DHS and the State Department are operating under an unrealistic schedule. While the agencies must ensure they have enough time to properly test and implement this system, which includes biometrics and new border security equipment. We must also clearly set out guidelines we expect to be met before this initiative can be implemented. This is what we hope to achieve with the language we included in the Homeland bill.

Mr. LEAHY. Like Alaskans, Vermonters have strong economic ties to Canada. Many Vermonters are employed in the movement of products across international borders. Many Vermont families, including mine, frequently travel to Canada to visit family members living there or to spend a weekend in the beautiful cities of Montreal or Quebec City. Similarly, our Canadian friends enjoy many Vermont treasures, including our ski resorts and our own “great lake,” Lake Champlain. In 2003, more than 2 million Canadians visited Vermont, spending $188 million while here.

Additionally, Vermont has a number of small towns along the border that depend on access to neighboring Canadian towns. In some cases, these towns share emergency assistance, grocery stores, and other basic services. Residents sometimes cross the border on foot several times a day just to conduct routine business. Other northern border States enjoy trade and tourism benefits with Canada and could face significant downturns in their economies if this law is not implemented properly.

At a cost of about $100, passports are an expensive hardship for many, especially families who would otherwise travel abroad. The proposed PASS Card is a less costly alternative but also raises a number of new concerns, including issues of privacy and efficiency. On top of that, DHS and State are still arguing over what technology to embed in the card. I find it highly unlikely that the State Department will be able to process the flood of requests for the PASS cards that will come from this initiative by the deadline when key decisions have still not been made.

Mr. STEVENS. These are just some of the issues which must be considered before implementing this plan. In addition, the lack of public outreach to inform citizens of the new requirements concerns me.

I see the potential for a disaster at our borders if regulations are hastily imposed. There is just too much at stake to implement a travel system that has not been properly tested, and this is why Senators LEAHY, GREGG, BYRD, I worked together with House Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee Chairman ROGERS to draft bipartisan language to extend the WHTI implementation date. Our language simply gives the State Department and DHS more time to make sure this is done right.

Mr. GREGG. I believe the proper implementation of WHTI is imperative. I wish to emphasize that the Departments of Homeland Security and State can more effectively fulfill implementation of WHTI before June 1, 2009—but to do so they must comply with all legislated criteria. These legislated criteria are designed to ensure that the PASS Card protects the privacy of our citizens, that readers have been installed at all ports of entry, that all employees have been properly trained—in short, that the system works, before it is used by millions of Americans.

Mr. BYRD. I, for one, will definitely be interested in the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of State are progressing on WHTI implementation. And we will be able to do so because we mandate that the Departments provide quarterly briefings on the progress being made on WHTI implementation and that the first briefing should be no later than December 1, 2006. Mr. LEAHY. My colleagues are both correct. While hasty implementation could result in avoidable problems for all those who will be affected by this initiative, we also want to make sure that it is done on a reasonable timetable. Our amendment requires a modification to the Homeland Security Act that has been shared with the Canadian and Mexican authorities. These are just a few of the steps we have taken in this amendment to make sure that the transition to an increased security environment is done without creating unnecessary obstacles.

And the Senate and House Appropriations Committees will most certainly share the Homeland Security Department and the State Department report to us on how they are progressing in meeting the program criteria and moving toward implementation.

I thank my colleagues for all their hard work on reaching an agreement on this language. With it, we greatly increase our chances for the successful implementation of the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, one of the most important parts of this Department of Homeland Security Appropriations bill is a section that should not be in it at all. It is a perfect example of how the majority has decided to legislate: make back room deals and pass phony protections instead of real ones.

I am speaking about the section that purports to adopt chemical security protections for our country.

To illustrate what chemical security means, and why it is so important, let me tell you what happened on Tuesday, September 11, 2001, in Elizabeth, N.J. A worker at a trucking company accidentally ruptured a small pressurized gas tank and released a cloud of sulfur dioxide into the air. Workers at nearby storage and shipping facilities became ill. Truck drivers in the area abandoned their vehicles as their lungs burned and they couldn’t breathe. People on the side of the road were vomiting. Fifty-eight people—including a first responder—were taken to the hospital. That was a tragic incident. In April of 2002, a terrorist blew up a large chemical facility.

To understand the impact, all you have to do is drive 9 miles down the road from Elizabeth to Kearny, N.J., home to the Nation’s most dangerous chemical plant. Kearny is a blue-collar, working-class town. Forty-thousand residents—men, women and children—make Kearny home. An act of terror at the Kuehne chemical facility could put Kearney behind closed doors. Americans who live within fourteen miles of the plant at risk. No wonder that facilities storing large amounts of chemicals have been called “pre-positioned weapons of mass destruction” by homeland security experts.

One would think that the majority and the administration would do all it can to stop an attack in Kearny—or at any of America’s nearly 15,000 chemical facilities. Republican leaders have put together a counterfeit bill that they are trying to pawn off as “chemical security,” but we are not buying it, and neither should the American people.

Recognizing that this was a problem even before 9/11, I introduced the Nation’s first chemical plant security bill in 1999. And earlier this year, Senator Obama and I introduced a new comprehensive chemical security bill that seeks to protect the American people—not the chemical industry. The Republican leadership has brushed aside our strong bill, and other legislation that has come out of the Homeland Security committees in the Senate and the House.

Instead, the Republican leaders borrowed a page from the “Dick Cheney Energy Task Force” playbook: lock the windows, bolt the doors and meet with industry lobbyists. And what did the Republicans and chemical industry lobbyists come up with? A fraudulent bill. The chemical industry bill put forward by the Republicans fails to require the safest practices at the highest-risk facilities. It is a bill that fails to secure the nearly 15,000 facilities that store dangerous chemicals. A bill that fails to provide adequate protection for water and waste water facilities. And a bill that fails to make clear that states can adopt stronger chemical security laws than the federal government.

So will this chemical security bill authored by the chemical industry, the majority, and the administration make the Nation safer? No. The public should not be fooled. Because this fake chemical security bill has been attached to the Homeland Security appropriations bill, most Senators will vote for it. But make no mistake, it is not what we want or need.

We need a bill that requires all chemical plant owners to improve the security of their sites, and when possible, replace toxic chemicals with safer ones. We need a bill that makes perfectly clear that states can adopt stronger laws than the toothless version the majority are doing here. We don’t need the majority, the White House, and the chemical industry deciding the fate of towns like Kearny or Elizabeth behind closed doors.

All of this is more reason we need a new direction in Washington.

Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to speak to the Department of Homeland Security Appropriations Act of 2007.

Since 9/11, we have made significant progress in bolstering the defense of our Nation against terrorism. Today, Americans are safer than they were just 5 years ago. However, as we learned from the recently released National Security Estimate, the threat of terrorism continues.

As a border State and a major thoroughfare, Washington State faces incredible security challenges. Along our northern border, official checkpoints are separated by miles of vast, rural and rugged terrain.

The Ports of Seattle and Tacoma make up the Nation’s third largest container center. Puget Sound is home to America’s largest ferry system, transporting more than 26 million passengers and 11 million vehicles annually throughout the area.

The Homeland Security Appropriations Act of 2007 provides vital resources to build on the progress we have made to make our Nation more secure and citizens safer.

It contains specific provisions that I am very proud to have worked on prior to bill. This includes $2 billion to add 1,500 agents to monitor and apprehend criminals—criminal or people crossing the border. The Homeland Security Appropriations Act of 2007 provides vital resources to build on the progress we have made to make our Nation more secure and citizens safer.

It contains specific provisions that I am very proud to have worked on prior to passing legislation. This bill recognizes that as a Nation,

It is time to get serious, smart and practical by using the best proven resources out there.

I have also sponsored a provision included in this legislation directing the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of Transportation and the White House to identify border security challenges—including interoperable communications—in preparation for the 2010 Olympics.

Last year, I was proud to join Senator Feinstein to secure a provision criminalizing the construction of smuggling tunnels under our borders and putting into law stiff penalties for anyone building or using such tunnels.

In July 2005, we discovered a smuggling tunnel between Canada and Washington State. It had been used to traffic drugs, but it’s all too clear that tunnels could just as easily be expanded by terrorists to enter undetected into our country.

The legislation before us also provides more than $4.3 billion to improve the security of our ports and the global supply chain.

This includes: More than $2 billion to the Coast Guard; $210 million in port security grants; $420 million for radiation and gamma ray inspection equipment for scanning cargo containers; and nearly $200 million to screen cargo containers at foreign ports and collaborate with private entities to enhance supply chain security.

Focusing on security where cargo is loaded abroad, at the point of origin, is vital to achieving security for our ports here at home.

I am proud to have cosponsored a provision with Senators Coleman and Schumer, included in this legislation, which directs the Department of Homeland Security to test new integrated container inspection system at three foreign ports.

This technology has already shown promise at the Port of Hong Kong.

As we all know, a network of terrorist cells planned to down as many as 10 U.S. airliners by smuggling liquid explosives onto flights.

The foiled plot provides a stark reminder of the serious gaps which continue to impede our efforts to secure the commercial airline industry.

In 1995, we learned the dangers of our inability to screen passengers for liquid chemicals that could be combined to create an improvised explosive device. In August 2006, Ramzi Yousef successfully bombed Philippines Airline flight 434. In 1995 they uncovered the infamous “Bojinka” plot in Manila.
Yet more than 10 years later, we still have not developed a technology that can be deployed in airports to screen passengers for these substances.

To fix this, we need to make a strong investment in research and development of explosive countermeasures under the Science and Technology directorate at the Department of Homeland Security.

The Senate version of this legislation—which passed before the August U.K. terrorist threat—had only $5 million slated for research and development of explosive countermeasures under the Science and Technology directorate.

The conference report before us today includes nearly $57 million in explosives research funding and I want to thank Senator Gregg for working in conference to increase funding for explosive detection research under the Science and Technology directorate.

The conference report before us today includes nearly $57 million in explosives research funding and I want to thank Senator Gregg for working in conference to increase funding for explosive detection research under the Science and Technology directorate.

The latest threats make it clear that we need to accelerate our work to find innovative solutions to evolving challenges.

We must be smart and tough in our fight against global terrorism. Our first priority must be ensuring that Americans are safe.

We have come a long way since 9/11. We have worked hard and made progress and we are safer today.

But it is clear: We need to do more to stop terrorists and their schemes.

We can’t let down our guard—at our borders, at our ports, on our passenger planes.

The legislation before us today builds on progress we have made and delivers strong and serious investments so we can do even more.

Americans deserve to know that we are doing everything we can to secure our country and keep them safe.

Again, I want to thank the managers of this bill for their efforts. I look forward to working with them as we continue fighting to secure our Nation.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I wish to voice my strong support for efforts to secure our Nation’s borders, which we must do immediately. We must address this threat to our national security and make certain that we allow local officials greater involvement as they work with the Secretary of Homeland Security regarding the location of border fencing.

I have consistently supported and voted in favor of border security efforts—such as the installation of reinforced fencing in strategic areas where high trafficking of narcotics, unlawful border crossings, and other criminal activity occur. I have also supported installing physical barriers, roads, lighting, cameras, and sensors where necessary.

Throughout our debate on comprehensive immigration reform, I have stressed the need to secure our Nation’s borders—not only our southwest border with Mexico, but also our northern border with Canada, our maritime borders, coastlines and ports of entry.

We must secure our borders first, but we must also work toward a comprehensive solution that addresses the needs of commerce and our economy.

The Secure Fence Act of 2006 is needed, and serves local, our downpayment with the American people on what we must do to address border security—so that we can then move forward to address comprehensive immigration reform.

To this date, we have hired, trained, deployed 11,300 Border Patrol agents, ended catch and release, accelerated the deportation process, and expanded the number of beds in detention centers to almost 23,000.

We have also provided an additional $1.9 billion in immediate funding for border security to cover the first 1,000 of 6,000 new Border Patrol agents who will be deployed in the next 2 years. These funds will assist with the temporary deployment of up to 6,000 National Guardsmen aiding the Border Patrol with surveillance and logistics.

I will continue to champion border security measures and strongly support the efforts of my colleagues to strengthen our southwest border—protecting our citizens from threats of terrorism, narcotic trafficking, and other unlawful entries. However, I am concerned about Congress making decisions about the location of the border fencing without the participation of State and local law enforcement officials working with the Secretary of Homeland Security. These locations should not be dictated by Congress.

Our border States have borne a heavy financial burden from illegal immigration and they are on the front lines. Their knowledge and experience should not be ignored. Texas shares approximately one-half of the land border between the United States of America and the Republic of Mexico. As such, State and local officials in California, Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas should not be excluded from decisions about how to best protect our borders with their varying topography, population, and geography.

Local officials in my home State of Texas—particularly in the areas of El Paso, Del Rio to Eagle Pass, and Laredo to Brownsville—cited in the underlying bill, will not have an opportunity to participate in decisions regarding the exact location of fencing and other physical infrastructure near their communities. Because the time constraints imposed by the pending adjournment will not permit a resolution of this very important issue at this time, I asked for, and received, a commitment from my Majority Leader and the Speaker of the House of Representatives promising to address these concerns.

U.S. SENATE,
OFFICE OF THE MAJORITY LEADER,

HON. KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON,
Russell Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR HUTCHISON: I am enclosing a copy of a letter signed today by myself and Speaker Hastert in which we outline a number of important additional border security measures that we plan to take prior to adjournment.

In this letter, the Speaker and I have pledged to respond to the concerns raised regarding the lack of opportunity for local officials, such as those in the areas of El Paso, Del Rio through Eagle Pass, and Laredo to Brownsville, to participate in decisions related to location of border fencing.

Thank you for taking the time to bring this important issue to my attention and to that of our colleagues.

I look forward to working with you upon our return to complete this action.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM H. FRIST,
Majority Leader.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,

HON. PETER KING,
Chairman, House Homeland Security Committee, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

HON. JAMES SENSENBRENNER,
Chairman, House Committee on the Judiciary, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

HON. SUSAN COLLINS,
Chairman, Senate Homeland Security and Government Affairs Committee, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

HON. ARLEN SPECTER,
Chairman, Senate Judiciary Committee, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMEN: Following passage of the Secure Fence Act of 2006, the following actions will be taken before adjournment of the 109th Congress:

First, we will work with the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to ensure they consult with representatives of U.S. state and local governments and Native American tribes, regarding the exact placement of fencing and other physical infrastructure along the southwest border of the United States.

Second, legislation should require the Secretary of Homeland Security to put fencing and physical barriers in areas of high illegal entry into the United States, yet allow flexibility to use alternative physical infrastructure and technology when fencing is ineffective or impractical.

Third, the legislation should clarify the definition of operational control of the border to ensure accountability and a workable standard of compliance.

We have spoken to the Administration and know that they fully support these proposals and expect that they will actively support our efforts to make these changes before the end of the year.

Sincerely,

J. DENNIS HASTERT
Speaker, House of Representatives
WILLIAM H. Frist
Majority Leader, U.S. Senate

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, for years, homeland security experts have been warning that chemical facilities are one of our most glaring homeland security vulnerabilities. Yet Congressional efforts to empower the Department of Homeland Security to regulate such facilities have founded in the face of administration inaction and opposition from some industry groups and their allies. That is why I am pleased that Congress has at last authorized DHS to begin regulating some of the most risky chemical facilities.

Specifically, the Department of Homeland Security appropriations conference report directs the Secretary of Homeland Security to begin regulating high risk chemical facilities, that is, DHS must complete its rulemaking process and issue regulations 6 months to develop interim regulations for chemical site security and specifies that the program should require chemical facilities to develop vulnerability assessments and site security plans. DHS would have to review such documents and approve or disapprove the security plans based on whether they address the vulnerabilities identified for that facility and meet security performance standards determined by the Department. The Secretary would have authority to audit and inspect facilities in the program and to seek civil penalties against those who do not comply. The Secretary could also order the shutdown of a facility that does not meet the standards until it comes into compliance.

This is undoubtedly progress, and I hope DHS will fulfill its responsibility to promptly and vigorously exercise this new authority to address an extremely dangerous homeland security weakness.

But while this provision is an improvement on the status quo, it falls well short of what we need to fully address this threat. That is particularly disappointing because both the House and Senate Homeland Security Committees have approved bipartisan, comprehensive chemical security bills that could have and should have received floor debate and become the basis for final legislation this year. I deeply regret that we were not able to advance the bipartisan committee bills or to retain many of their provisions.

On the Senate side, Senator Collins and I introduced the Senate chemical security bill, S. 2145, after holding four hearings on chemical security this session and consulting with many interested parties. Our legislation was marked up by the Senate Security and Governmental Affairs Committee in mid-June, and reported out on a 15 to 0 vote. While that bill did not include everything I wished, it was a balanced and comprehensive program for chemical security that was able to garner broad support on the Committee. I wish to address a few specific issues that were part of S. 2145 but which have been lost or distorted in this chemical security provision.

First, let me speak to the issue of inherently safer technology or IST. The bipartisan chemical security bill approved by the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee recognizes that sometimes the best security will come not from adding guards and locks but from reexamining the way chemical operations are carried out in order to reduce the amount of hazardous substances on site, improve the way they are stored or processed, or find safer substitutes for the substances. These changes limit the loss of life or other damage in the event of an attack and therefore make a facility a less inviting target for terrorists to begin with.

They also have the added benefit of reducing the environmental footprint of chemical facilities. These changes have the potential to do two things: preserve the nation’s chemical capabilities while also harming the environment. But if enforcement is not adequate, these provisions may be ineffective. Therefore, I believe S. 2145 clearly requires facilities to look at the risks and consequences related to the dangerous chemicals on site and address those specific vulnerabilities in their security plan. And it includes these process changes among the menu of security measures that chemical facilities should examine when designing their security plans.

The House chemical security bill, H.R. 5204, also does not require high risk chemical facilities to implement safer technologies under certain conditions. That requirement is similar to an amendment I offered at markup which, had it been adopted, would have required the riskiest chemical facilities to consider such technologies and implement them if feasible.

This is not a question of forcing industry to conduct its operations off a government-issued play book. Companies would analyze for themselves whether there are less dangerous ways to conduct their business and would not be required to implement any changes that were not feasible or merely shifted risk elsewhere. But given the extraordinary risks involved, it is imperative that companies be required to at least take a long hard look at some of the commonsense solutions that have been advocated or already adopted by others within the industry.

Unfortunately, the IST provision included in the DHS appropriations conference report has no language to encourage safer technologies, and actually includes language aimed at preventing the Secretary from even urging a facility to consider such options.

Second, I regret that this chemical security provision includes flawed language regarding information and judicial review. Of course, none of us would want to release sensitive information about a chemical plant that would be useful to a terrorist. However, excessive secrecy in a Government security program can actually make us less, not more safe. This is because some degree of transparency is necessary to help us make Government programs more accountable and effective. Also, local communities and their elected officials deserve to know whether local facilities are being kept safe against a terrorist attack, and the community’s vigilance can help make us all safer.

I believe S. 2145 as introduced appreciates the right balance of protecting real security information, while allowing enough disclosure to create accountability. Unfortunately, those carefully drafted provisions have been replaced, in this measure, by a mechanism that will impose undue secrecy on information and developing it was developed in relation to this program and could deny the ability of Congress and affected communities to ensure that the program operates effectively. This measure also puts cumbersome restrictions on the only community involvement in court enforcement proceedings and includes an ill-considered provision that would limit court review of a chemical facility’s conduct.

Finally, I am extremely disappointed that this measure does not include the provision from S. 2145 guaranteeing States and localities the right to enact stronger chemical security measures. S. 2145 explicitly recognizes that Congress is not the only body that can and should help ensure the safety and security of the Nation’s chemical facilities. States and localities have long regulated such facilities for various safety and environmental concerns. Since 9/11, some States have also moved to require security improvements at these facilities. These State and local protections are critical companions to our effort at the Federal level and should not be displaced unless there is an absolute conflict, such that it is impossible for a facility to comply with Federal, State and local law and a State or local law or regulation on chemical security. S. 2145 also specifies that it does not disrupt State and local safety and environmental law regarding chemical facilities, and it does not seek to dislodge or alter the operation of State chemical common law with respect to such facilities.

Contrary to calls by industry, the chemical security language Congress is approving does not affirmatively preempt State and local chemical security rules and I do not believe it should or will have the effect of preempting such laws. Nevertheless, it is preferable that Congress speak clearly and decisively on such an important security matter, and it is unfortunate that the conference report does not retain the strong antipreemption language of our bipartisan Senate bill.

These are only a few of the issues that must be addressed, however, in a complete authorization bill. This chemical security provision is clearly a stopgap measure, one which will expire as soon as we can replace it with a permanent authorization or, at the latest, three years after enactment. So while we had the authority immediately to begin regulating chemical facilities, we must not let up in our efforts to reach agreement on a permanent and comprehensive chemical security bill as soon as possible.

Mr. President, I rise today in support of the fiscal year 2007 Department of Homeland Security Appropriations Act, which will direct nearly $35 billion toward strengthening the homeland security of this great Nation. The measure, which I addressed last week, adds my top priorities, particularly the recreation of our ineffectual Federal emergency management system into an organization capable of preparing for and effectively responding to disasters, whether caused by nature or terrorists.

This month, we observed the fifth anniversary of September 11—a day that changed the course of history for this Nation. We are all united in our desire to defeat this threat of global terrorism and to prevent any more families from having to experience the unfathomable sense of loss that the survivors of 9/11 have experienced.

I believe we have made real progress in strengthening our homeland security since 9/11, and I am privileged to have had a role in bringing about that progress. I must add, however, that we are still a ways off from assuring the American people they are as safe as they could be. We will continue to work toward that goal, and each day we get a little bit closer.

This appropriations bill moves us in the right direction in large part because of its provisions to refashion the Federal Emergency Management Agency in the wake of its disastrous preparations for and response to Hurricane Katrina, the worst natural disaster in our country’s history which took the lives of over 1,500 citizens and permanently altered the lives of millions more.

Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee Chairman Susan Collins and I conducted an 8-month-long investigation into the government’s disgraceful response to Hurricane Katrina. We found negligence, lack of resources, lack of capability, and lack of leadership at all levels of government, which, as we know too well, resulted in the failure to relieve the massive suffering that occurred along the gulf coast.

To guarantee more effective planning and a more successful response in the future, Chairman Collins and I made a number of recommendations in our final report, entitled “A Nation Still Unprepared.” The most prominent of these recommendations, a FEMA redesign, is in this legislation before us today. With these changes, which add strength and commonsense restructurings, the Government will be better prepared to protect its citizens in times of disaster.

Let me briefly describe the most important provisions. First, we elevate FEMA’s status in the Homeland Security Department. The legislation will make a start. In addition, we authorize FEMA’s appropriations for its regional offices, taking the focus away from Washington and putting it where the real work of preparedness is performed: on the front lines, in the States, towns, and cities most affected by a disaster. The goal is to familiarize Federal officials with regional and local threats, vulnerabilities, and capabilities and ensure that they are familiar with each of them and their State and local counterparts before disaster strikes.

The legislation also creates a new Office for Emergency Communications dedicated to achieving the operability and interoperability of emergency communications among first responders that is fundamental to any disaster response. These mission changes will begin to be put into place by authorizing a 10 percent increase in FEMA’s operations budget in each of the next 3 years—above the much-needed increase in FEMA’s fiscal year 2007 appropriations that is included in this bill. Of course, more is needed, but this legislation makes a start. In addition, we authorize additional funds for States to carry out plans that they have developed, including doubling funding for critical emergency management performance grants.

This bill also provides additional assistance to people and communities struck by disaster. It will, for example, allow FEMA more flexibility in the type of housing it can provide disaster victims to find more cost-effective alternatives to the widely criticized FEMA trailers. It establishes measures to assist victims with reunification. It also requires FEMA to have contingency plans to meet the needs of those with disabilities in disaster preparedness training and an actual disaster.

As is inevitably the case, there are things missing from this bill that would have made it better—provisions that were included in the bill that Senator Collins and I introduced and that was passed out of the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee. We looked to the conference. These include funding for a dedicated grant program to support and promote communications interoperability among first responders and additional assistance for individuals affected by terrorist attacks on communities that fall victim to catastrophic disasters.

This appropriations bill advances the safety of all Americans in other important ways. For the first time ever, the Department of Homeland Security would have the authority to regulate high risk chemical facilities. I am disappointed; however, that the bill does not preserve more of the comprehensive and bipartisan legislation passed out of both House and Senate homeland security committees. The Senate bill, for example, guaranteed the rights of states to enact stronger chemical security provisions. And both bills encouraged the use of safer chemicals and methods to lessen the vulnerability of chemical facilities.

These provisions are vital because, as we most recently observed with the breech of security here at our own heavily guarded Capitol complex, guards and gates alone are always subterfuge. The American people will not be safe from attacks on these facilities until we provide comprehensive security.

September 11 showed us the flaws in our ability to detect and avert terrorist attacks. Hurricane Katrina showed we still haven’t grasped many of the lessons of 9/11 and so we remain unprepared. This spending bill moves us toward better preparedness and response to the catastrophes we know are in our future.

But, unfortunately, there is no cheap way to be better prepared. It takes money—more money than this budget offers. Too few dollars have been set aside to secure our ports, our transit systems, our railways. Our first responders—who need equipment, training, interoperable communications—continue to be critically underfunded. The cuts this bill makes in State homeland security funding are far less than those proposed by the President in his budget this year, but they are cuts nonetheless, and they continue what has been a disturbing downward trend over the last few years. Since 2004, for example, the state homeland security grant program—which funds the central preparedness assistance to states throughout the country—has been slashed by 69 percent.

Additional resources are needed, and I will continue to advocate for them as long as we can make a wise investment in the greater protection it will provide the American people. But overall, I think this bill is a significant step toward ensuring that
The bill also provides a $602.2 million for the U.S. Customs and Border Patrol to procure and maintain air assets. I thank the chairman for supporting my request for $20 in funding for unmanned aerial vehicles, UAV’s, and related support systems. The conference report also provides $232.98 million for a border construction program. Funds from this program will be used to construct and maintain border facilities, and $7.46 million will be used to build vehicle barriers along the international border with Mexico. We have heard a great deal from Immigrations and Customs Enforcement, ICE, about the need for additional bed space for apprehended illegal immigrants. The committee provides a total of $3.89 billion for ICE, of which $135.4 million is to be used for additional detention bed space.

Mr. President, it is no easy task to prioritize funding of programs related to homeland security. I am proud of Chairman Gregg’s leadership in ensuring that our Government has provided the resources and moneys necessary to secure our borders and strengthen our enforcement systems. Under the chairman’s leadership, we have increased funding for the Border Patrol every year, and I am proud that we have done so again this year.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise today to express frustration and disappointment with a provision included in the fiscal year 2007 Homeland Security appropriations bill. I also want to congratulate my friend from New Hampshire, Chairman Gregg, for his leadership in putting together a package of funding that will secure our country’s ports and airports, land, and customs enforcement. During this session of the 109th Congress, we have spent a good deal of time considering measures that would strengthen our borders and reform our immigration system. This spending bill is a testament to the administration’s commitment to these issues.

In this bill, the conference agreed to provide a total of $34.8 billion to secure our Nation’s borders and infrastructure. This marks an overall increase of $2.3 billion over the fiscal year 2006 enacted level, including supplemental funding, and includes a $1.8 billion emergency in expedited provision for border security.

This bill specifically sets aside over $8 billion for Customs and Border Protection, I represent a State that is directly impacted by its southern border with Mexico and therefore understand the need for funding for 1,500 new Border Patrol agents. My home State of New Mexico is also home to the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center, FLETC, and the addition of extra Border Patrol agents. My home State of New Mexico is also home to the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center—FLETC—at Glynco. Since the terror attacks of 9/11, counterterrorism has become a core function for Federal law enforcement agencies, and the CTOTF will provide practical hands-on training in this new state-of-the-art facility. The CTOTF will recreate various setscenarios in this new state-of-the-art facility.

I applaud the committee’s continued reaffirmation of Public Law 106–246, stipulating that any new Federal law enforcement training shall be configured in a manner so that it does not duplicate or displace any Federal law enforcement program of FLETC.

This conference report contains $2 million for the Practical Applications/Counterterrorism Operations Training Facility—CTOTF—of the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center—FLETC—at Glynco. Since the terror attacks of 9/11, counterterrorism has become a core function for Federal law enforcement agencies, and the CTOTF will provide practical hands-on training in this new state-of-the-art facility. The CTOTF will recreate various scenarios, both foreign and domestic, that agents might encounter out in the field, including rural and urban neighborhoods, subway stations, buildings, and roadways. Part of the training site is own functioning, already making use of donated buses, railway cars, and an airplane.

All 82 law enforcement agencies that train at FLETC will have access to the new facility. We are preparing our Federal law enforcement agencies to meet their agencies’ mission and I am pleased to provide the most important recognizes the need to provide them with a realistic training environment. This practical training, in addition to other tactics they learn at FLETC, will also save lives. The students’ level of awareness of potential dangers will be raised so that when they encounter similar situations in the real world, they react correctly.

I also applaud the inclusion of an extension of the Rehired Authority. Without the renewal of this authority, FLETC would have been unable to schedule the full training requirements
at Glynco and Artesia to meet the initiative for Border Patrol at Artesia, and the Immigration and Customs Enforcement and Detention Officer Training at FLETC has demonstrated the need for the authority to be continued.

There were many strong reasons to justify this needed authority, but perhaps the most compelling is that by using existing contracts, we would schedule the full training requirements
at Glynco and Artesia to meet the initiative for Border Patrol at Artesia, and the Immigration and Customs Enforcement and Detention Officer Training at FLETC has demonstrated the need for the authority to be continued.

FLETC is the Federal Government’s primary source of law enforcement training. Eighty-two partner organizations subscribe to FLETC for their law enforcement training at the basic—entry level—and advanced training levels. During basic and advanced training, trainees and newly commissioned law enforcement officers are molded into the culture of law enforcement, much like basic trainees and young soldiers in the military. FTEs gain experience as well as the ability to provide realistic instruction to gain the respect of their students as they immerse students into their law enforcement careers. These instructors can come only from the ranks of Federal employees with many years of current and relevant law enforcement experience. Subject areas taught by these instructors include law enforcement techniques and topical areas, such as counterterrorism prevention and detection and border training procedures.

It is in the best interest of the Government to have Federal Government employees with state-of-the-art knowledge and experience regarding tactics, policies, and practices of the law enforcement community to provide instruction to trainees, agents, and officers that are beginning their careers.

Outsourcing training for law enforcement functions, even in a partial or counterproductive to the overall security and enforcement of the laws of the United States.

The conference report contains a provision that authorizes the full training of the staff of FLETC inherently governmental. And while the words “and hereafter” would have provided the desired result of keeping this from becoming an annual issuance issue, I thank the conferees for the inclusion of this language and look forward to working with them to strengthen it in the future.

Finally, I commend Chairman GREGG for his commitment to the CBP P-3 program by providing $70 million to expend on assets for another 15,000 to 20,000 hours. These aircraft are an important component to our national law enforcement and homeland security efforts. In addition, they have been critical for FEMA disaster response.

Specifically modified for use in drug interdiction, these aircraft have been invaluable for the homeland security mission as well. P-3 AEW and P-3 Long-Range Tracker aircraft have a high success rate in the detection and tracking of drug smugglers throughout the U.S., Canada, Mexico, Caribbean basin, and Central and South America. In fact, in fiscal year 2005, CBP P-3s were instrumental in the seizure and destruction of a record, breaking $1.7 billion worth of illegal drugs and recognized by the U.S. Inter-agency Coordinator for this feat.

For years, the CBP P-3 AEW has provided surveillance of significant national importance in support of the Presidential and Vice Presidential domestic travel; large, terrorism-vulnerable sporting events—the Super Bowl, 2002 Winter Olympics, the Masters—and large city and regional air surveilance during “high level” threat sta-teus—AWACS surveillance and anti-air coordination of the DC area during State of the Union addresses.

The CBP P-3s have been unspoken heroes in providing FEMA disaster suppport. It was the CBP P-3s that were the first aircraft to use the P-3s to provide post-disaster assessment and monitoring. In addition, the CBP P-3s were very active in hurricane relief efforts for Hurricanes Katrina and Rita last year. For nearly 2 weeks, they were flying 20 hours a day providing coordination of search and rescue missions, real-time communications links and real-time video to the Homeland Security Operations Center, the CBP Operations Center, and NORTHCOM. These images also were aired on CNN.

These versatile aircraft and their crews have met, and continue to meet, the needs of our country to address a variety of missions. I thank Chairman
GREGG for recognizing their important role by extending their service life in a cost effective manner.

I also note the inclusion of funds for a CBP training facility in Harper’s Ferry,
WV. Given my interest in border secu-safety, I look forward to visiting that facility to see firsthand the training that goes on there.

Mr. President, again, Chairman GREGG and his staff are to be com-praised for their hard work and leadership during a very tough conference negotiation. I appreciate the hard work of my friend, the Senator from New Hampshire, and look forward to working with him in the future on these and other issues.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I applaud the progress we will soon make in the Homeland Security appropriations bill to lower the cost of prescription drugs for all Americans. While the prescription drug reimprovement proviened in this bill is certainly not a complete solution to the ever-increasing cost of pharmaceuticals, it is part of the answer.

This legislation includes a provision to allow Americans to bring a 90-day supply of prescription drugs approved by the Food and Drug Administration, for which they have a valid doctor’s prescription, into the country from Canada.

I applaud Senators DAVID VITTER and BILL NELSON, who introduced this amendment to the Homeland Security appropriations bill during the Senate debate, for their dedication to lowering prescription drug prices.

We must reduce prescription drug prices so that Americans are not forced to cut their pills in half or to choose between medicine and groceries. Virtually all democracies in the world, ex-cpt the United States, negotiate drug prices for their citizens.

The pharmaceutical industry currently sells its Food and Drug Administration, FDA, approved drugs to virtually every other industrialized democracy in the world at prices that are typically 50 percent less than prices in the United States. Ours is an “open checkbook” strategy, and the result is massive profits for the drug companies but catastrophe for ordinary Americans.

The growth of prescription drug spending in recent years has outpaced every other category of health care spending. According to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, prescription drug costs grew at an inflation-adjusted average annual rate of 14.5 percent from 1997 to 2002, reaching $162 billion in 2002. That amount is four times larger than prescription drug costs were in 1990.

An analysis by the Congressional Budget Office found that average prices for patented drugs in other industriized nations are 35 to 55 percent lower than in the United States. In its 2002 annual report, the Canadian Patented Medicine Prices Review Board found that U.S.-patented drug prices were 67 percent higher, on average, than those in Canada.

South Dakotans are painfully aware that their neighbors just a few hundred miles to the north, in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, Canada, are paying much lower prices for the same prescription medication. One of my constituents recently wrote me with his concerns about the huge discrepancy between drug prices in Canada and the United States. The generic version of his medication is not available in the United States, but because he could obtain the generic from Canada, his physician prescribed it and this man successfully used it for many years.

He writes that in Canada, the price of his generic medication is $0.46 per tablet, and the brand-name drug is $0.77 per tablet. After enrolling in Medicare Part D, he was required to use the brand-name drug, available in the United States for $1.19 per tablet—a 16 percent increase over the lower generic, brand-name price, and a 62-percent price increase over the generic drug, which got the job done just fine.

This constituent writes:

It appears to me that the Medicare D plan is a "gold mine" for the drug makers, ... at least for this one drug. It is true that I probably should NOT complain because under the Medicare D I only pay my co-payment. However, I do not think I am getting nearly so much for my drug cost but the fact that the American taxpayer is being cheated because of the much higher cost per tablet that is paid to the drug producer over the generic price is almost $0.30 if the drugs were purchased on a competitive bid procedure. ... After all, I am also an American taxpayer so it does concern me.

Ehile reimportation is an important step forward, it is only a start in our effort to improve access to necessary medications at affordable prices. We need to go further and allow Americans access to Canadian prices at their local pharmacy. They should not have to take buses to Canada to access these savings.

To that end, I remain dedicated to enacting the provisions of legislation I introduced with a bipartisan group of colleagues, the Pharmaceutical Market Access and Drug Safety Act of 2005, S. 334. This bill would provide for the safe importation of prescription drugs from Canada that are both approved by the FDA and manufactured in an FDA-approved plant. Eventually, once the FDA establishes the appropriate safety protocols, included in the legislation, this bill would allow individuals to purchase drugs directly from Canadian and U.S. wholesalers, and pharmacies could import drugs from facilities in several countries that are registered, fully inspected, and approved by the FDA.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I rise in support of the chemical security provisions included in the DHS appropriations conference bill. I have worked on this issue since 2002 and have always supported reasonable chemical security legislation that provides DHS with the authority it needs to protect chemical facilities from terrorist attack. After 9/11, I believe this compromise language achieves that balance.

I am pleased that this language specifically excludes water utilities from coverage and focuses the efforts of DHS on private chemical companies. The nation’s drinking water and wastewater systems are arms of local government, not for profit industries. We in Congress recognized the fundamental difference between the for-profit private sector and local government entities when we passed the Unfunded Mandates Act. To have included water utilities in this language would have imposed an enormous unfunded mandate on our local partners in violation of that act.

Many here in Washington assume that local governments need to be forced to protect their citizens. As a former mayor, I can tell you that is simply not true. Local water utilities have been making investments in security for decades. It would continue to do so. I have offered a bill on wastewater facility security that provides tools, incentives, and rewards, not mandates, for local governments to continue to upgrade security. My legislation, the Safe Water Security Act, was introduced and Public Works last Congress with a bipartisan vote and again this Congress by voice vote. However, this week, for the second straight Congress, when I tried to bring the measure before the full Senate, the minority objected even to its consideration. My colleagues on the other side of the aisle are holding this legislation up because it does not impose needless mandates and does not include extraneous environmental provisions.

For these same reasons, many will rise in opposition to the chemical security compromise language included in the conference report. They will argue that the bill needs to allow the Federal Government to tell companies how to manufacture their products by requiring facilities to switch the chemicals they use or change their operating practices. This concept, known as "inherently safer technology," is not, nor has it ever been, about security. IST is not a security measure; it is inherently safer technology, not inherently safer technology. It is being used by governments and corporations around the world to protect their citizens from the dangers of their own products and facilities. It is being used by governments and corporations around the world to protect their citizens from the dangers of their own products and facilities.

We all know that disasters—both natural and manmade—continue to threaten our Nation’s domestic security and prosperity. As Hurricane Katrina tragically demonstrated last year and as the recent terrorist plot uncovered by British authorities to destroy U.S.-bound aircraft demonstrated last month, our domestic security—particularly our critical infrastructure—remains dangerously prone to exploitation by those who would take advantage of this unpleasant reality, one would think that the Congress of the United States would do everything it could to shore... up the foundation of our domestic security—to make it as impregnable as possible against the destructive forces of nature and man. Yet, as we look at the measure adopted by the Senate, I do not believe it does enough to protect America from natural disasters or acts of terrorism.

I believe that the most important activities for ensuring our domestic security include assisting local and regional emergency preparedness activities, supporting first responders, and protecting critical infrastructure. Taken together, these activities represent the backbone of our efforts to plan for, respond to, and prevent disasters from occurring. Our airport security; supporting firefighters, police officers, emergency medical technicians; they encompass fully protecting all of our ports and transit systems; and they encompass quickly and effectively responding to real or perceived threats in all parts of our country.

Over the past several years, experts in the national security and public health issues relevant to our first responders have been vocal in their concern that our emergency preparedness have reported their domestic security needs. I would like to remind my colleagues that these are present needs—not future projected needs. For example, our firefighters have identified more than $1 billion needed each year for performing their critical duties safely and efficiently; our port authorities have identified $8.4 billion required for meeting increased security requirements; and our transit systems have identified $6 billion needed for making our trains and buses safer for passengers.

Regrettably, the conference report adopted by the Senate continues a pattern of failure on the part of the present administration and leadership of Congress to adequately meet these needs. Under this measure, States receive less money from the $8.4 billion Homeland Security Grant Program—a $350 million increase over the fiscal year 2006 level but $250 million below the fiscal year 2005 level. Our firefighters receive $602 million from the FIRE and SAFER grant initiatives—vital firefighter assistance grants that I was pleased to author with Senators DeWINE, WARNER, and LEVIN. This level of funding is $7 million above last year’s level but $1.338 billion below the most recent authority level. Our ports receive $210 million—just over half of the amount authorized in the recently passed SAFE Ports Act, which I was pleased to support. Finally, our transit systems receive $175 million—a $25 million increase above last year’s level. As I previously noted, we have taken steps to boost our domestic security since the attacks of September 11, 2001, our State and local governments largely remain inadequately prepared, our first responders spread too thin, and our critical infrastructure inadequately protected.

I would also like to discuss briefly another aspect of this conference report. In addition to funding the Department of Homeland Security for the upcoming fiscal year, the conference report makes significant administrative changes to the Federal Emergency Management Agency, FEMA. Many of these changes codify recommendations made both in previous and various reports issued in the wake of the Federal response to Hurricane Katrina.

I would like to commend particularly the efforts of Senator COLLINS and my fellow colleague from Connecticut, Senator LIEBERMAN, in working with conferences to incorporate these reforms to FEMA into the conference report. In my view, these reforms promise ultimately to return FEMA to being better empowered to manage mitigation, preparedness, response, and recovery activities with respect to natural and man-made disasters.

Nevertheless, I would be remiss if I did not mention some concerns I hold with respect to these reforms. More specifically, these reforms open the possibility for, but do not guarantee, input from all stakeholders involved with local, regional, and national emergency preparedness efforts. I am also concerned that these reforms do not establish, explicit guidelines with respect to resource sharing, capability standards, and compliance benchmarks. I believe that it is essential for FEMA, as it works to incorporate these reforms, to develop and implement proper regulations that ensure equal input from all local, regional, and national stakeholders, clear guidance on adequate local, regional, and national levels of investment, and clear direction on what activities need to be performed by local, regional, and national preparedness systems.

Mr. President, we continue to live in an age when the threat of harm to Americans on their own soil remains dangerously high. As we continue to recognize the threat, we must remain vigilant about our domestic security. We must proactively assess our weaknesses and proactively work to do all we can to eliminate those weaknesses. Put simply, the lives and the safety of all Americans hang in the balance.

On balance, I supported this legislation because the funding it appropriates does take important steps toward meeting some of our crucial domestic security needs. However, I look forward to working with my colleagues in the coming years to find and provide the resources necessary to make our Nation as safe and strong as it can possibly be.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I will support final passage of the Homeland Security appropriations bill today because it includes vital funding for our first responders and our Nation’s borders. Unfortunately, the bill still does not go far enough.

In particular, I am disappointed that the Senate has again included the small State funding formula for our largest first responder grant program.

We need to change our approach to allocating these scarce resources by reducing the amount of funds allocated to States regardless of need and increasing the funds available to States facing the greatest threats and greatest need. I will continue to work with my colleagues in coming months to make the allocation of these scarce resources more equitable.

I am also disappointed that this bill does not take steps to establish a Northern Border Air Wing in Detroit, MI, as the Senate bill did. The Northern Border Air Wing, NBAW, initiative was launched by the Department of Homeland Security, DHS, in 2004 to provide air and marine interdiction and law enforcement capabilities along the northern border. Original plans called for DHS to open five NBAW sites in New York, Washington, North Dakota, Montana, and Michigan. Michigan was carefully scheduled to be the third facility opened.

The New York and Washington NBAW sites have been operational since 2004. Unfortunately, not all of the necessary funds were available to enable large portions of our northern border unpatrolled from the air and, in the case of my home State, the water. In the conference report accompanying the fiscal year 2006 DHS appropriations bill, the conference avoided the remaining gaps in our air patrol coverage of the northern border should be closed as quickly as possible. This bill does not accomplish the goals set by Congress last year.

In testimony before the House Armed Services Committee, John Bates, the Chief CBP official in the Detroit Sector said the Detroit area’s international border is “an attractive site for criminal organizations that traffic human cargos, contraband, and narcotics across our border.” Chief Bates also noted in his testimony that the “natural terrain and geographical nexus to the waterways” presents a tremendous challenge to border interdiction and Law Enforcement efforts, the failure of which “could have major national security implications.”

During Senate floor consideration, with the help of Senators BYRD and GEEGO, the Senate accepted my amendment related to establishing the fifth Northern Border Wing. Unfortunately, this funding was taken out in conference, and the gap along the northern border will remain open for your lifetime.

Given the serious threat from terrorists, drug traffickers, and others who seek to enter our country illegally, I would hope the Department uses its operating funds to open the Michigan site in its Department’s plan to open the Michigan site during the 2007 fiscal year. I hope he will follow through on that promise.
Although I wish the bill did more to make first responder funding risk-based and to establish a Northern Border Wing in Michigan, there are many provisions in the bill that I support.

I was pleased to learn of the appropriate agencies retaining the Stevens Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative deadline extension. According to the Detroit Regional Chamber of Commerce, businesses in Michigan are already being negatively impacted by concerns about crossing land borders from Canada into the United States. Extension of the implementation deadline will allow DHS and the State Department to work through a variety of issues associated with REAL ID and the proposed pass cards, as well as allow for a more effective public information campaign.

I am also pleased that the final bill includes funding for 1,500 new Border Patrol agents. I hope the Department will turnover these agents in a manner that considers the threat along the northern border, particularly in the areas around the northern border’s busiest crossings. I was pleased the conferees noted the lack of experienced border agents on the northern border and the agreed to the Secretary’s feet to the fire on this issue. As a member of the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee, I look forward to discussing this matter with Secretary Chertoff.

The conferees retained a provision regarding a pilot project for unmanned aerial vehicles on the northern border. The Great Lakes are almost completed unguarded at present, and UAVs are the perfect technology for surveillance along these water borders. The Great Lakes offer a unique opportunity for the Department, and I look forward to working with the Department in the coming year on this issue.

I also appreciate that the bill includes language that will strengthen the Federal Emergency Management Agency, FEMA. The Federal Government’s bungled response to Hurricane Katrina demonstrated incompetence at the highest levels of DHS and also demonstrated the need to strengthen our Nation’s emergency response capabilities. The FEMA provision will restore the vital connection between emergency preparedness and response that Secretary Chertoff had previously eroded. The bill also includes a provision for keeping families together during mass evacuations and requires DHS to establish a National Emergency Child Locator Center that will help families reunite more quickly in the event they get separated during a disaster. I hope these provisions will help prevent the recurrence of one of the most tragic consequences of the Katrina disaster—the thousands of children who were reported as missing in its aftermath. However, I am disappointed that the bill did not include a $3.3 billion authorization for a dedicated communications interoperability grant program.

This provision had previously been included in an emergency management reform bill that we passed in the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee.

The bill also includes a provision that the Secretary of Homeland Security to issue interim regulations for high-risk chemical facilities. Although this authorization is long past due, I am disappointed that such an important provision was drafted by the staff of being vetted with full transparency, as was the case with the comprehensive chemical plant security legislation that passed out of Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee unanimously on June 15, 2006. I am glad that a 3-year sunset provision was included in the bill so that the authorizing committees can make any needed improvements to ensure that the threats from chemical plants are fully addressed.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the fiscal year 2007 Homeland Security conference report. It is important for me to begin by thanking Senator Judd Gregg for his hard work and for his dedication to this important issue. I commend the Senator Gregg for his leadership and for working with me to secure several important initiatives that are so important for the State of Georgia and for America’s security.

The Federal Law Enforcement Training Center, FLETC, is located in Glyco, GA. We have outstanding law enforcement training which takes place at this fine facility. The conference report restored $2 million to FLETC’s Counterterrorism Operations and Training Facility, COTF. I am profoundly grateful for this funding and know that the men and women of law enforcement who operate and train at FLETC are grateful, also. Since the attack of September 11th, our law enforcement receive the most up to date counterterrorism training that is available, and FLETC provides it.

I would also like to commend Chairman Gregg for including language to ensure that the training and programs being developed at the Advanced Training Center at Harper’s Ferry, WV, will not be duplicate or displace any Federal law enforcement program at FLETC. As a strong supporter of Senator Gregg referenced the language in Public Law 106-246 in order to reaffirm Congress’s longstanding commitment to protect the programs and training at the FLETC. I look forward to continuing to work with him to ensure that this language continues to be included in the future.

Senator Gregg honored my request to protect and ensure the FLETC to renew the Rehired Authority. Without the renewal of this authority, FLETC will not be able to schedule the full training requirements at Glyno and Artesia, NM, to meet the initiative for Border Patrol at Artesia, and the Immigration and Customs Enforcement and Detention Officer Training at Glyno. The FLETC has demonstrated the need for the authority.

There are many strong reasons to justify this needed authority, but perhaps the most compelling is that by using annuitants, FLETC can save dollars, versus hiring permanent full-time employees, gain demonstrated experience—the current average is 26 years of law enforcement experience—and free some of the instructors now provided to FLETC by its partner agencies on a temporary basis to be used instead in front line law enforcement operational functions.

The Federal Law Enforcement Training Center is the Federal Government’s primary source of law enforcement training. Eighty-two partner organizations subscribe to FLETC for their law enforcement training at the basic—entry level—and advanced training levels. During basic and advanced training programs, instructors and cadets are molded into law enforcement officers are molded into the culture of law enforcement, much like basic trainees and young soldiers in the Armed Forces. It takes instructors that have the ability to provide at the back of instruction, and with respect of their students as they immerse students into their law enforcement careers. These instructors can come only from the ranks of Federal employees with many years of very relevant law enforcement experience. Subject areas taught by these instructors include law enforcement techniques and topical areas, such as counterterrorism prevention and detection and border tracking procedures. It is in the best interest of the Government to have Federal Government employees with state-of-the-art knowledge and experience regarding tactics, policies, and practices of the law enforcement community to provide instruction to trainees, agents, and officers who are beginning their careers. To outsource training for law enforcement functions, even in a partial or fragmented manner, is counterproductive to the overall security and enforcement of the laws of the United States.

The conference report contains language making the activities of the staff of the FLETC inherently governmental. While it was my hope that the provision would have been strengthened by the use of the words “and herein” hereafter, to avoid the requirement of a renewal each year, I look forward to working with the chairman to achieve this goal in the future.

I am very proud of our employees at FLETC Glyco and the work that is done there and I am a very strong supporter of the FLETC. I look forward to continuing to help strengthen the operations that are conducted there so that we can offer the best possible training and protection to our homeland.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. Mr. President, let me express my appreciation for the hard work of the conferees in approving the legislation we will vote on.
shortly that contains an important provision addressing the security of our Nation’s chemical infrastructure.

I believe it is very important that our chemical infrastructure have safeguards for the use and storage of chemical manufacturing and distribution. There is no doubt that it is vital to make efforts to ensure national security and the safety of the public. However, we should remind ourselves that many in the regulated community have already taken proactive actions, especially since September 11, to assess and manage threats to their facilities and operations, and have adopted a number of safeguards.

It is my hope that Congress in its oversight role, and the Department of Homeland Security in its administrative and regulatory role, takes those efforts into account and ensures that any new protections and regulations are workable and appropriate.

I am concerned that while the intent of the industry’s “compromise” in this conference report is to address security concerns associated with high-risk industrial chemical use, the bill may also affect many low-risk facilities at a disproportionate level. One of those areas that will certainly be affected is our domestic dairy industry.

My State of Idaho is a leader in milk production and processing, and our dairy industry is a major economic force in the State. It employs the latest technologies to provide high quality products to our consumers and trading partners. What most people do not know is that dairy farmers, dairy cooperatives, and milk processors use anhydrous ammonia as a cooling agent to safely store milk and milk products as they make their way from farm to grocery store shelf.

Many in the food industry consider anhydrous ammonia to be one of the most secure storage systems available and in a relatively low-risk process. In accordance with Government regulations and guidelines, many dairy facilities now use anhydrous ammonia as a cooling agent to safely store milk and milk products as it makes its way from farm to grocery store shelf.

The dairy industry in Idaho and nationwide has been extremely diligent in taking actions to enhance the safety and security of their facilities. Those actions include regularly working with the Department of Homeland Security under Presidential Directives 7 and 9 along with regularly conducted vulnerability assessments with the Food and Drug Administration, FDA, the Department of Homeland Security, DHS, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, FBI, and State and local officials.

Food facilities were some of the first industries we focused on in our fight against terrorism. This sector of our economy is currently regulated by the Public Health Security and Bioterrorism Preparedness and Response Act of 2002 under the jurisdiction of the FDA. The anhydrous ammonia in the refrigeration systems at these facilities is already regulated by the Environmental Protection Agency, EPA, under its Risk Management Program, RMP, regulations and by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, OSHA, under its Process Safety Management, PSM, regulations and by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, OSHA, under its Process Safety Management, PSM, regulations.

I believe, that the intent of including language in this conference report to strengthen the safety of our chemical production infrastructure was to focus on high-risk chemical plants. However, the language imposes serious burdens on what would normally be considered low-risk operations like dairy farms, cooperatives, and milk processors.

Clearly, there is substantial interest in ensuring the security of our Nation’s chemical infrastructure while not forcing onerous and duplicative regulations on one of our most important food industries. I hope some common sense will prevail on this issue, and I plan to continue working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle and the administration to see that happen.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, on the 5 year anniversary of the terrorist attacks of 9/11, many our Nation’s commentators asked the same question: Are we safer today than we were on 9/11? Well, I must say to my colleagues, that is the wrong question. America was not safe on 9/11. So in my book, being safer than we were on 9/11 is not saying much. We must set a higher standard.

Regrettably, the President has set a very low standard. The President is comfortable with cutting grants to first responders 3 years in a row at the same time that our police, fire, and emergency medical personnel still cannot talk to each other on their radio systems. The President is comfortable with cutting grants to equip and train our heroic firefighters by 46 percent and with failing to eliminate the program to hire more firefighters. The President is comfortable with a Homeland Security Department that is so bureaucratically lethargic that $173 million approved by Congress to secure our ports sat in the Treasury here in Washington for 11½ months.

This President is comfortable with a rob-Peter-to-pay-Paul approach to homeland security. When the Department was faced with a shortfall in funding to maintain our chemical manufacturing facilities under its Risk Management Program, the administration proposed to cut funding for developing effective countermeasures for explosives. A month later, Britain arrested potential terrorists who wanted to blow up planes over the Atlantic with liquid explosive. What an embarrassing, short-sighted proposal from the administration. I was pleased to join Chairman Grass in rejecting the proposal.

This administration was comfortable with freezing off federal funding for the FEMA program that provides long-term healthcare to the brave first responders who tried to save lives and look for survivors at the World Trade Center on 9/11. It was the Congress that came forward with funds to continue providing healthcare to our first responders.

Well, I am not comfortable with the state of our homeland security. It has been 5 years since the 9/11 terrorist attacks. It has been nearly 5 years since Richard tried to blow up a plane bound for Miami. It has been 2½ years since hundreds were killed in the London train bombs and been over 1 year since 752 were killed or wounded in the London train bombings. Just this summer, potential terrorists were arrested in Britain, who were planning to blow up planes over the Atlantic. Our aviation sector remains on high alert. There is no question about a continuing risk of attack.

So, 5 years after 9/11, has the Department of Homeland Security taken the steps that it needs to take to help make Americans safe?

Five years after the 9/11 attacks, 11 million cargo containers arrive in the United States each year. Any one of them could carry a nuclear bomb, or nuclear material to make a bomb. Yet 96 percent of these containers are opened and inspected. Only 17–19 percent are examined with imaging equipment. Only 73 percent are screened for nuclear material.

Five years after the 9/11 attacks, many of our first responders still cannot communicate with each other on their radio systems.

Five years after the 9/11 terrorist attacks, we still have no system for vetting the identities and backgrounds of the thousands of workers who have access to our ports, boats, cargo containers, or air cargo.

Five years after the 9/11 terrorist attacks, we still do not have a reliable system for inspecting the 23 billion pounds of air cargo that is placed on passenger aircraft every year.

Annually, 500 million people cross U.S. borders via ports of entry—more than 50 millionare our citizens. One of the key findings of the 9/11 Commission is that we do not have a system in this country for tracking aliens who pose a risk and remain in this country undetected. Five years after the terrorist attacks of 9/11, we still do not have a system for knowing when, or if, aliens have left the country. Nor do we have a 10-fingerprint system to reliably verify the identity, or the criminal or terrorist background, of aliens coming into this country.

The EPA has estimated that there are 123 chemical plants across the country that could each endanger more than 1 million people if attacked. Yet 5 years after the terrorist attacks of 9/11, we have no regulations directing the chemical industry to improve security.

Five years after the terrorist attacks of 9/11, we have a Department of Homeland Security, but it is a department rife with management problems. The Department has become a contractor’s dream. Over $11.5 billion of the Department’s budget was executed through contracts, a 60-percent increase over 2004. Yet only 18 of the 115 major DHS contracts are managed by certified program managers. What an incredible opportunity for waste. It is no wonder that the GAO found $1.4 billion of waste in the agency’s spending.

The Department has had the dubious distinction of being investigated 525 times by the GAO since its inception. The vast majority of the GAO reports cited poor management and leadership practices.

According to the Rand Corporation, between 1998 and 2003, there were approximately 181 terrorist attacks on rail targets worldwide. Five years after the terrorist attacks of 9/11, the Department has no plan for helping State and local governments to secure rail and transit systems. $150 million that Congress appropriated for rail and transit security sat at the Department for 11½ months. Since 2001, I have offered eight different amendments to fund rail and transit security, and all of them were opposed by the administration and defeated.

The recent terrorist plot to blow up commercial airplanes crossing the Atlantic Ocean has highlighted a known vulnerability. Five years after the terrorist attacks of 9/11, we do not have technologies that can detect liquid explosives.

The Department recently published a Nationwide Plan Review that found that the majority of State and local emergency operations plans are not fully adequate, feasible, or acceptable. Can you imagine? Five years after 9/11, the Department’s own data indicates that State and local governments are not ready to deal with a catastrophic event. The Department has not even published a congressionally mandated National Preparedness Goal.

The terrorist attacks of 9/11 should have been a wake-up call; but, apparently, the Department of Homeland Security, which was created in response to 9/11, somehow did not get the message.

Given these continuing vulnerabilities, I am pleased to say that the conferences have set a higher standard than the White House or the Department.

The conference agreement contains many improvements to the President’s request, particularly, with regard to border port security. The conferences are steadily increasing funding for Emergency Management Preparedness Grants, despite the President’s proposed cuts each year. We have restored proposed cuts in grants to fire departments for needed equipment, and for hiring firefighters. The conferences have also mandated that grants be awarded within certain timeframes so that dollars intended to make Americans safer do not sit in the Treasury for an entire year.

The conference agreement also includes important reforms in the organization of FEMA. Hurricane Katrina proved that the Administration’s approach to breaking FEMA into pieces was a failure. This legislation will help put FEMA on sound footing.

In addition, the conference report contains many provisions that provide clear guidance to the Department about living up to its operations. I am particularly pleased with the improvements in funding for border security. Over the past 2 years, starting with an amendment I offered with Senator LARRY LAGE this Congress, and especially this Senate, has added 4,000 new Border Patrol agents and 1,500 new detention beds to the fight for border security. And, as a result of our efforts, there are 1,373 new detention personnel and 526 new Customs and Border Protection officers at our ports of entry.

With Congress leading the way in a bipartisan manner, this administration has finally awakened and realized that this country faces a true illegal immigration crisis. There are 12 million illegal aliens currently living in this country—none of them new illegal entering each year. And, as of this past January, there were an estimated 558,000 alien absconders—illegal aliens who have been ordered to be removed from this country, but who have thus far escaped detection. These individuals must be found and removed.

I am pleased that the conference report before us makes great strides at achieving that goal. We are ending the short-stay detention and release and replacing it with “catch and remove.” This conference report supports 27,500 detention beds.

We have increased the number of Fugitive Operations teams from 16 in fiscal year 2005 to 75 teams in fiscal year 2007. In fiscal year 2005, these teams apprehended over 15,000 illegal aliens including 270 sexual predators and 11,200 fugitive aliens with judicial orders of removal against them. Adding an additional 526 new teams will make a real difference in removing from this country those individuals who have been ordered removed and who are here illegally.

We are also increasing funding for the criminal alien program, which identifies illegal aliens currently serving time in U.S. prisons and begins removal proceedings against them while they are in jail. There are an estimated 630,000 convicted illegal aliens in the Federal, State, and local prisons—of whom 551,000 have not yet been identified for removal from the country. Of these, 275,000 are here illegally. Additional attention is also focused on worksite enforcement.

I commend my excellent Chairman, Senator JUDD GREY, for his outstanding knowledge of this bill and for his leadership. I thank him and his able staff, and I thank my staff, for their work on this legislation. This is a good agreement.

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, every year, millions of Americans who cannot otherwise afford their prescriptions at pharmacies in the United States seek the same FDA-approved prescriptions from Canada at significantly lower prices. However, on November 17, 2005, U.S. Customs quietly implemented a new, stricter policy on importing prescription drugs. This new policy has resulted in over 37,000 prescription drug shipments being detained by Federal officials. The new policy has limited the ability of American consumers to purchase these life-saving medications from FDA-approved facilities in Canada.

Mr. President, I can tell you that my constituents are extremely disturbed by the actions being taken by our Federal Government. Silently implementing a stricter policy without adequately informing the public puts the health of those who have relied on the prompt delivery of these medications at risk.

That is why I offered an amendment with Senator VITTER in the Senate version of the Department of Homeland Security Appropriations bill. Our amendment prohibits Customs from stopping the importation of FDA-approved prescription drugs by American citizens. The amendment received overwhelming bipartisan support when it was added to the Senate bill.

Unfortunately, the language agreed to by a House-Senate conference committee will only allow Americans to buy and carry home Canadian prescription drugs for personal use, while continuing to prohibit consumers from ordering their prescriptions from Canada by mail.

Although the original Nelson-Vitter provision would have given all Americans greater access to affordable prescription drugs through the mail, the diluted version that emerged from conference committee will help only a few Americans from one part of the country. This language helps almost no Floridians who live hundreds of miles from the Canadian border. While I am pleased that Americans living near the border will now have greater access to low-cost prescription medications, I believe that this provision discriminates against Floridians and others who do not live near Canada.

However, this provision is a small step in the right direction. I believe that its passage will open the door to expanding access to lower-cost medications from Canada for all Americans, regardless of where they live. We have made progress but I intend to keep pushing the issue until all Americans can get the medications they need at an affordable price.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 5 minutes remaining equally divided prior to the vote.

The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREY. On behalf of myself and Senator BYRD, we yield back the time. I object to the PRESIDENT’S assertion of the point of order. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The conference report was agreed to.
Mr. GREGG. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mrs. MURRAY. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I will speak on the port security conference report we are just passing. I am a co-sponsor of this bill and this conference has been a sham. It is shameful because the Democratic members of the conference committee have not been allowed to offer amendments to the conference report. We were sitting on our hands virtually an hour while the chairman of the conference committee was absent, without a piece of paper in front of us about what was in the port security bill. Nothing. There was no indication of what was there. No guide, nothing—just sitting there willing away the time.

Why, we asked, did the Republican leadership in the House and the Senate allow this perversion of the democratic process! Why make promises we would have a chance to offer amendments but never be able to do so?

They wanted this conference to be a plain backroom deal. Their agenda is to strip from this bill important provisions on rail security, transit security and aviation security and replace them with legislation that has nothing to do with our homeland security at all, our port security.

I would like to understand from the majority what it is they were trying to tell the American people. What was so objectionable about the provisions Democratic conferees wanted to offer to bolster aviation, transit, rail, truck, bus, and pipeline security?

The Senate has agreed to the rail security legislation and twice the Senate has approved transit security legislation. Twice the Senate agreed to my amendment to remove the arbitrary cap on the number of airport screeners that can be hired, but each time these measures died due to the inaction by the House of Representatives. Now Republican leaders, once again, want to kill them.

Last night, the Republican chairman assured the Democratic conferees that they could offer amendments to the conference report, but they put obstacles in the way to permit it from happening. Republicans were fearful of showing votes against common sense for rail, transit and aviation security measures. This challenges logic beyond belief.

Last night, the House had actually approved, had voted 261–140, to instruct their counterparts in the Senate on provisions on rail, transit and aviation security. Transit systems have always been terrorist targets. They are open, accessible and teeming with innocent people. Since we have not done what we needed to to protect them, they are vulnerable.

Recent attacks in Madrid, London and Mumbai have shown just how devastating these attacks can be. Hundreds of people have been killed just commuting to and from their jobs in those cities.

The Senate rail security provision mandated measures to help protect 25 million Amtrak passengers this year, but the House leadership dismissed recent attacks on the rail systems as not significant enough to guard against. It would protect millions more who live near rail tracks where trains carrying hazardous materials pass by, with some very close to this facility, on nearby tracks. Once again, logic failed.

The aviation security provision dealing with airport screeners was approved in the Senate by a vote of 85–12. It would have removed the arbitrary caps on hiring TSA airport screeners. I repeat, the Senate, by a vote of 85–12, would have removed the arbitrary cap on hiring TSA airport screeners even though burgeoning numbers of passengers are airports. Lifting the cap could have made air travel safer. And it would have reduced the amount of time passengers have to wait in line at terminals to pass through security lines.

It is important for the American people to understand the enormous opportunity taken away from them to protect themselves. It is important for our people to understand the leadership in the Congress is solidarity against rail security, transit security or shorter airport-airline passenger security.

We did not finish the conference on the port security bill. We finished a sham. The majority ought to be embarrassed by their thoughtless abandonment of essential security protection for the American people as they travel. The leadership stripped out—in the conference that never took place—rail transit and aviation security but made sure that Web games that Toronto goes are illegal to play on your computer.

I regret this took place. I hope America does not see in its near future that they were foolishly careless in not protecting our citizens as much as they could.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized for 3 minutes.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent since the Senator from Alaska yields back his 5 minutes that I be permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SAFE PORT ACT

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, shortly this evening, the Senate will adopt the conference report on the SAFE Port Act. This conference report includes all of the major port security improvements that were included in the Port Security Improvement Act of 2006 that passed the Senate just this evening. It has been strengthened by including some of the provisions in the companion House bill.

This is a major accomplishment for this Congress that will help to strengthen our Homeland Security in ways that really matter. The original template for the SAFE Port Act was the GreenLane Maritime Cargo Security Act. I introduced with Senator MURRAY, Senator COLEMAN and Senator LIEBERMAN almost a year ago.

I commend Senator MURRAY for her steadfast commitment to strengthening port security. I also thank the Presiding Officer, Senator COLEMAN, for his leadership. It is not uncommon to have three hearings on cargo security that helped identify the vulnerabilities and shortfalls in the current systems. That investigation by the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, in fact, helped inform our legislation and, indeed, all of the problems that the Presiding Officer identified in his hearings have been addressed in this landmark legislation.

America's 361 seaports are vital elements in our Nation's transportation network. Last year, some 11 million shipping containers came into this country. Now, when we look at the shipping containers, we hope they simply contain consumer goods or parts or other useful objects. But, in fact, every one of these 11 million shipping containers has the potential to be the Trojan horse of the 21st century.

The vulnerability of our cargo is perhaps best illustrated by an incident that happened in Seattle earlier this year. In April, 22 Chinese nationals were caught as they attempted to leave the country via a shipping container. Aliens transited in a shipping container that happened in Seattle earlier this year. I regret this took place. I hope America does not see in its near future that they were foolishly careless in not protecting our citizens as much as they could.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine is recognized for 3 minutes.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent since the Senator from Alaska yields back his 5 minutes that I be permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
economic loss that would ensue. We are aware that many plants and retailers now rely on just-in-time inventories that bring goods to their stores. I think we should look back at 9/11 and look at what happened to our system in aircraft when we had the attacks on our airplanes. In fact, commercial aircraft were grounded for a number of days. And just as that happened 5 years ago, an attack on any one of our ports would most likely lead to the closure of our ports, and the economic consequences would be devastating. It would affect the farmers in the Midwest, who would be unable to ship their crops. It would affect retailers across the country, who would have empty shelves. It would affect factories that would be forced to shut down and lay off workers because of the loss of vital parts.

The best example I can give you of what the economic impact would be is to look back at the west coast dock strike of 2002. Unlike any terror attack, that was both peaceful and anticipated, and yet it cost the economy $1 billion a day for each of the 10 days it lasted.

Since the attacks on our country 5 years ago, there have been some actions taken to improve security at our seaports. For example, the Department of Homeland Security instituted several important port security programs such as the Container Security Initiative and what is known as C-TPAT, the Customs-Trade Partnership Against Terrorism Program. Unfortunately, the investigation led by the Senator from Minnesota demonstrated that those programs have been very unevenly implemented. Some have lagged, and some have not been effective because there has not been the proper verification that has been needed.

What our legislation would do is provide the structures and the resources to strengthen those programs. The legislation before us is a comprehensive approach that addresses all levels and all major aspects of maritime cargo security. It will require the Department of Homeland Security to develop a comprehensive strategic plan for all transportation modes by which cargo moves into, within, and out of U.S. ports. It requires the Department of Homeland Security to develop protocols for restarting our ports if there were an incident. I certainly hope this legislation will prevent or help prevent any attack on our seaports, but if one does occur, it is essential the Federal Government have a plan for reopening the ports and releasing cargo as soon as possible. And, most importantly, and in my opinion amazingly, we do not have such a plan today. So we will require the Department of Homeland Security to develop such a plan.

We authorize $8 billion for each of the next 5 years in risk-based port security grants. We also authorize training and exercises that we know are key to preparedness and effective response.

We improve and expand several security programs, such as the Container Security Initiative, the C-TPAT Program, and we establish deadlines for action on these programs.

We provide additional incentives for shippers and importers to meet the highest level of cargo-security standards. We also make sure the Department is meeting deadlines for such essential programs as the TWIC Program.

Another critical provision in this bill is the requirement that all containers at our 22 largest ports be scanned for radiation by the end of next year. All the 22 largest ports, which handle 90 percent of our cargo, would be required to have radiation detection devices in place by the end of next year. We also expand the radiation scanning that is done at foreign ports through the CSI program and the Megaports program. Obviously, our goal is to push off our shores and keep the danger from ever getting to our shores in the first place.

Another security measure is the vital transportation worker identification credential, or the so-called TWIC Program. It has languished for years, and it should not have because the TWIC Program is necessary to control access to port facilities and vessels, and it is a vital program.

We also—I know this has been of great interest to the Presiding Officer—establish a pilot program with the Container Security Initiative and the CSIS program. That is going to allow us, eventually, to get to the goal, once the technology is there, of a 100 percent integrated scanning program.

That is going to allow us, eventually, to get to the goal, once the technology is there, of a 100 percent integrated scanning program. There is still work to be done to address security for other modes of transportation, such as rail and mass transit. But tonight we should take great pride in the great progress we have made in strengthening the security of our seaports.

Thank you, Mr. President.

The Senator from Michigan, Mr. Levin. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I yield 2 minutes to our friend from Delaware. The Presiding Officer. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. CARPER. Mr. President, I thank my friend for yielding to me. While Senator Collins is still on the floor, I want to take a moment to say, Mr. President, if you go back 5 years ago and consider the tragedies that befell our Nation on September 11, it opened our eyes to the kind of threats we face with respect to the security of our air travel. It served to open our eyes, subsequently, with respect to the security of our ports, with the security of our chemical plants and the communities that are located around them. I think we have had reason to be concerned about security threats that maybe face people who travel on our trains and our commuter rail systems.

We have seen all too well how inadequately—in fact, really—FEMA responded to the Katrina and the gulf coast part of our country. I think most of us agree today we are better equipped now to fend off threats to the security of our air travel. And I think with respect to the security of our ports, with this legislation is we will have made real progress; some would say maybe not enough, but I think everybody would say measurable, palpable progress.

I know there are folks who have been critical of the fact that we have not included the rail and transit provisions in this final conference report, which were included in our Senate-passed version. I wish they were there. We have a lot of people who travel on the rail and transit systems, with, I think, about 9 billion trips this year, and there is a threat to many of them—not all of them but to many of them.

But there is good work that has been done with respect to chemical security. FEMA has been overhauled, and I think maybe not transformed but in my opinion significantly improved.

One of the constant threads within all of that has been Senator Collins, as chairman of the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs. I just want to stand here tonight and say that this is yet another conference she has helped to direct and steer, as it comes to a conclusion. I commend her, and certainly Senator Murray, who has worked closely with her, I commend them and the Presiding Officer and others for the good work they have done.

I acknowledge we have some more work to do with rail and transit security. My hope is we will do that when we return next January.

Thank you very much. And I again thank my friend for yielding.
Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, every year since 1961, there has been an annual Defense authorization bill enacted. This year—

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I wonder if the Senator would yield to me for a moment?

Mr. LEVIN. I would be happy to.

Mr. WARNER. For the purpose of putting in a quorum call.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, every year since 1961 there has been an annual Defense authorization bill enacted. This year, like the previous 44 years, our members and staff have worked extraordinarily hard and cooperated on a bi-partisan basis to get us to this point in our deliberations on this bill that means so much to our country. The fact that we are keeping up our decadelong tradition is reason enough to be proud, but what I am even prouder of is the leadership that our chairman and my friend, Senator WARNER, has invested in getting us to this point.

This bill is essential to the men and women of our Armed Forces.

I am pleased that the conference report reflects Senate’s longstanding commitment to a larger Army and Marine Corps. We authorized an increase of 1000 active duty marines for an administrative and strength of 189,000, 5,000 more than the administration requested. We also authorized an active duty end strength for the Army of 512,400; 30,000 more than requested.

I am delighted that, after several years of fighting for it, we have finally been able to authorize the TRICARE health care benefit for all members of the Selected Reserve and their families for a reasonable premium that is 28 percent of the cost of the program. I am also pleased that the conference report prohibits the Department of Defense from increasing enrollment premiums for military retirees and cost shares for prescriptions filled through retail pharmacies while the GAO conducts an audit of the health care program and a Task Force completes a comprehensive assessment of the future of military health care.

The conference report also contains numerous other provisions to enhance the quality of life of our service members and their families, including providing full replacement value for household goods lost or damaged in military moves; authorizing a total of $50 million in aid to local civilian schools, including $35 million in supplemental impact aid for schools with large numbers of military dependents, $5 million children with severe disabilities, and $10 million for schools affected by significant concentration of dependent students as a result of force structure changes, creation of new military units, and BRAC; and placing restrictions on payday loans to service members and their families.

The conferees’ report also does not include a provision contained in the House Bill that would have provided that “each [military] chaplain shall have the prerogative to pray according to the dictates of the chaplain’s own religious conscience, except as may be limited by military necessity, with any such limitation being imposed in the least restrictive manner feasible.”

This is a lot more complicated issue than it seems at the surface. Military chaplains not only minister to members of their own faith group, they also minister to the needs of a diverse group of military members and their families, including other faith groups and those who claim no religious faith.

The military services respect the rights of military chaplains to adhere to the tenets of their respective faiths and give them virtually unrestricted discretion as to the content of their religious message when performing core ecclesiastical functions, including worship services, teaching, bible study, counseling, hearing confessions, preaching, and performing religious ceremonies. However, when performing functions at mandatory military events with multi-faith audiences, there is a longstanding military tradition of chaplains offering a prayer that demonstrates sensitivity, respect, and tolerance for all faiths present. Military chaplains are trained and expected to use good judgment when addressing pluralistic audiences at public, non-worship ceremonies, and they are never required to participate in religious activities inconsistent with their beliefs.

The Chiefs of Chaplains from each of the military services have advised us that, if enacted, the House provision would limit chaplain effectiveness and erode unit cohesion. They are concerned that commanders would no longer invite chaplains to pray at ceremonies where faith specific prayers might be offensive to members of other faiths who do not participate.

We have also heard from the National Conference on Ministry to the Armed Forces, an organization that represents the vast majority of military chaplains, and numerous other denominational and religious organizations that support military chaplaincy and respect religious freedom, who oppose the House provision.

Of course, we were not able to get everything we wanted in this conference. For example, I am very disappointed that we were not able to authorize federal pricing for prescriptions filled through the military’s TRICARE retail pharmacy program.

My objections, the conferees agreed to a House provision regarding an existing settlement agreement between the Federal Government and two private parties regarding the removal of invasive animal species from a national park on Santa Rosa Island, CA. This language is also strongly opposed by the two California Senators and by the Energy Committee, which has jurisdiction over this matter. This provision directs the Secretary of Interior not to take certain actions which were not the responsibility of the Secretary in the first place. Therefore, while I do not believe this conference agreement changes the legal obligations of the two private parties to this settlement, I believe this provision is unnecessary and misguided and that it should not have been included.

I am also disappointed that the conference report does not include the Akaka-Collins-Levin amendment on whistleblower protection. This amendment would have addressed gaps that have developed in the protection of federal employee whistleblowers since the enactment of the Whistleblower Protection Act of 1989.

However, the conferees did agree to a number of provisions designed to address wasteful practices and short-comings in DoD management. These include: a provision prohibiting contractors who perform little or no work on a project from charging excessive “pass-through” fees to the Government; a provision prohibiting the “parking” of funds in a particular part of the Defense budget when the money is not really intended to be used for the purpose; a provision requiring contract oversight mechanisms for the acquisition of major computer systems, similar to the mechanisms already in place for the acquisition of major weapon systems; a provision limiting the use of cost-type contracts for the acquisition of major weapon systems; and a provision requiring that DOD hire and train government employees, in lieu of contractor employees, to perform critical acquisition functions.

I am also pleased that the conferees included a provision that would require a new comprehensive National Intelligence Estimate, NIE, on Iran. This provision also includes a requirement for the President to submit a report to Congress that would fully describe the U.S. policy on Iran.

The conference report also authorizes a responsible budget that tries to balance the need to support current military operations while continuing the modernization and transformation of our armed forces.

To support continuing operations in Iraq and the global war on terrorism, the conference report authorizes a $70 billion bridge supplemental for fiscal year 2007. Of this amount, $23 billion is devoted to "reset", that is, repair or replacement of Army and Marine Corps equipment, based on detailed requests provided by the services. The supplemental also includes a separate $2.1 billion account for the Joint Improvised Explosive Device Defeat Organization, JIEDDO, that is dedicated to countering improvised explosive devices.

The conferees agreed to an important provision that was sponsored by Senators MCCAIN and BYRD, with the unanimous support of the Senate, that would require the President to request funds for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan in the regular budget beginning with the fiscal year 2008 budget that will be submitted next February. I strongly supported this provision. This administration has misled the American people far too often with respect to involvement in Iraq. I am pleased that we have taken a major step in this bill to at least make our budgets more honest in the future by including the substantial costs we know we are going to incur in Iraq and Afghanistan. In fiscal year 2008, costs reached a staggering $10 billion per month. It is irresponsible to make decisions on spending and taxation without including these costs in our budgets, and in this conference report we are putting an end to that practice.

With the respect to the F-22 multiyear procurement authority, the conferees agreed to provide authority for the Air Force to enter a multiyear contract, subject to certification by the Secretary of Defense that the savings are "substantial" in view of historical multiyear contracts.

The conferees also adopted Senate legislation that requires the Secretary of Defense to initiate an independent assessment of available foreign and domestic active protection systems to assess the feasibility of their near term and long term development and deployment. A certification system should be placed on vehicles like Bradleys, Strykers, and tanks to shoot down incoming threats including rocket propelled grenades, RPGs, and mortars. These type of weapons represent a real and growing threat to our deployed forces.

In the area of nonproliferation programs, I am disappointed that the conference report does not include a Senate provision, supported by my colleague LUGAR, to repeal all of the annual Cooperative Threat Reduction, CTR, certification requirements. These certifications have long outlived their usefulness and now only needlessly delay the CTR program. The costs required to support this program do include, however, a provision that would extend certain annual waiver authorities associated with destruction of Russian chemical weapons and fully funds the CTR programs at the Department of Defense at the budget request of $372.1 million.

Finally, the conferees authorized $11.7 billion for science and technology programs that will develop technologies to transform our military. This is an increase of $575 million over the budget request. This represents 2.7 percent of the DOD budget, still unfortunately falling short of the congressional and QDR goal of a 3-percent investment level.

On five other occasions, Senator WARNER has led us as chairman in producing an annual defense authorization bill for the President to sign. Unfortunately, because of the 6-year term limitation on the chairmen of the Senate Armed Services Committee, this is the sixth and last defense authorization bill that Chairman WARNER will shepherd through the process. He will have to step down as our chairman next year, but thankfully for the Nation and the Senate and for me personally, he will continue serving as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

This year's process to produce a bill has been particularly difficult as people outside our conference sought to inject extraneous items into the conference. Throughout it all, Senator WARNER refused to allow such matters to be added—in the face of enormous pressure.

We all know that Senator WARNER has led a distinguished life of public service. He and I came to the Senate by the grace of our respective parties, and I think Senator WARNER can be proud to know that many of his efforts passed our conference. I will make sure that Senator WARNER's imprint is on every piece of legislation that we do for the military.

Historically, our committee's chairmen—men such as Richard Russell and John Stennis and Sam Nunn—have been guided by one principle: Do what is right for our Nation and its military members. JOHN WARNER has followed in that fine tradition and we cannot thank him enough for it. It is very fitting that the name of a friend and my esteemed colleague, Senator JOHN WARNER. He is truly a man worthy of such a great honor.

I was keenly disappointed when the majority leader earlier tonight objected to this vital bill being acted upon. I'm hopeful that he will withdraw his objection before we adjourn, for the sake of the men and women in uniform and their families.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THUNE). Without objection, it is so ordered.

BORDER FENCING

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I want to make a few comments on the vote we had earlier tonight. To 80 to 19 on a bill on border fencing along our southern border, where 1.1 million people were apprehended last year crossing that border. We have had a few comments, pro and con today, but there had been a lot of discussion. I think it represents the fourth time we voted on this issue. So we know pretty much what the debate is. I saw no reason to delay our departure tonight. Other matters are being settled as I speak and we want to adjourn until 2 p.m. on Thursday. I think it will take a few moments to comment on it.

No. 1, of course, the fence is not the answer. There is no one answer to reestablishing a legal system of immigration in America, but that must be our goal. If we aspire to be a great nation, a lawful nation, it is absolutely critical that we have a legal system of immigration. We should not reward those who come illegally, but we should be generous to those who choose to come legally and comply with our rules.

We are a Nation of immigrants. We will remain a Nation of immigrants.
We will continue to allow people to come here legally and stay here.

I want to say that no one thinks that building barriers at the border is going to solve, by itself, our immigration problem. But it is an important step. If we have to take 10 steps to cross the goal, this probably two of the steps necessary to get there. There is no need to delay. We need to get start-
It takes some time to accomplish
It. Fences multiply the ability of our Border Patrol agents to be successful.
We have seen that on the San Diego border. We have seen just how well it has helped bring down crime, how well the property values have surged on both sides of the border—an area that was lawless, crime ridden, and drug infested is moving forward with commercial participation in a healthy way. That is just the way it is. There is not anything wrong, hateful, or mean-spirted to say that we integrated a lawful border system in America. The American people understand that.

Indicating my colleagues that
The American people have understo-ded fundamentally and correctly the immigration question for 40 years. They have asked Congress and they have repeatedly asked Presidents to make sure they set the right rules. But that has not been accomplished. We have not responded to those requests.

Now we have reached an extraordinary point in our history where we have over a million people apprehended annually coming in illegally, and probably, according to many experts, just as many getting by who are not apprehended. So it is time for us to confront and fix this problem.

And the important step in enforcement—absolutely critical—and it is one that we can accomplish with far more ease than a lot of people think, is to create a lawful system at the workplace. It is not difficult, once we set up the effective rules, to send a message to all American businesses that they need a certain kind of identification to hire someone who has come into our country. If they don’t have this legal document, they are not entitled to be hired. This will work. Most businesses will comply immediately when they are told precisely what is expected of them. But that has not been the case.

They have not been told what is expected of them. They, in fact, have been told if they ask too many questions or hire an illegal, they can be in violation of the applicant’s civil rights.

So lawyers tell them don’t ask too many questions.

Then you complain that they have hired illegals, and they say: They gave me this document, and I didn’t feel like
I could inquire behind it.

So it can work. If we tell our business community what is reasonably expected of them, they will comply with
It. That will represent a major leap forward in enforcement. Then we have to ask ourselves what do we do about people who only want to come here to work, and we need their labor? I believe we can do as Canada and many other countries have done. We can create a genuine temporary worker program, a genuine program.

The Senate bill passed in this body that had a section called temporary worker program. More recently, a machine temporary about them. They could come for 3 years and bring their families and their minor children, bring their wives, stay for 3 years, and then extend for 3 years, and then do it again. After 6 years or 7 years, I believe, they could apply for permanent resident status, apply for a green card.

Then a few years after that, they become a citizen. How temporary is that?
What Canada says is you come and work for 8 months. A television show interviewed some people in Canada, and they said: I may stay 4 months or 6 months. They may come and and go in the interim many times because they have an identifying card that allows them to come and go for a period of time that could allow us to have the surge in seasonal labor that we need in agriculture and in some other areas. But the agricultural community and other areas that say they need temporary labor have to understand that they do not get to unilaterally set the Nation’s immigration policies, and that will not have violated the law and that will not have a corrosive effect on respect for law in our country. Granting an amnesty is a great deal different. You can just do it because you just feel like it, or you feel that is the right thing to do. We must think that through.

My personal view is that for people who have been here a long time and had a good record and have done well but came illegally, we ought to be able to figure out a way that they can stay here and live here. They should not be given every single benefit that we give American citizens, or people who come here legally. But if you are someone who was a Federal prosecutor for many years, do not ever think that you can just grant amnesty to someone who violated the law and that will not have a corrosive effect on respect for law in our country. Granting an amnesty is a great deal different. You can just do it because you just feel like it, or you feel that is the right thing to do. We must think that through.

The Senate speaks for the national interest. We must set the policy. Yes, we have a large number of people who are here illegally. How many of those would want to stay permanently? I don’t know. I have asked them, but of them would. So I think we will reach the point—hopefully, we can do this next year—where we confront as a Congress that dilemma.

I say to my colleagues as a person who was a Federal prosecutor for many years, do not ever think that you can just grant amnesty to someone who violated the law and that will not have a corrosive effect on respect for law in our country. Granting an amnesty is a great deal different. You can just do it because you just feel like it, or you feel that is the right thing to do. We must think that through.

My personal view is that for people who have been here a long time and had a good record and have done well
but came illegally, we ought to be able to figure out a way that they can stay here and live here. They should not be given every single benefit that we give
American citizens, or people who come

The concept is this: Immigration should serve the national interest. How simple is that? In my committee of Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, and in my Committee on the Judiciary, we have had a few hearings on this at my request in both cases. Very few Senators attended, frankly.

Repeatedly the witnesses would say:
The first question you people in the United States, you policymakers need to decide is: Is the immigration policy you wish to establish one that furthers the national interest? If you want to further the national interest, then I can give you good advice. If your goal is to help poor people all over the world and to take the national welfare approach, then we can tell you how to do that. You have to decide what your best goals are. If your goal is simply to allow everyone who is a part of a family, even distant relatives, to come, if that is your No. 1 goal, we can create a system that does that. But fundamentally they tell us, when pressed, that an immigration system should serve the national interest.

Professor Borjas at Harvard wrote a book, probably the most authoritative book on immigration that has been written. The name of it is “Heaven’s Door.” He testified at our committee hearing. He made reference to the fact that we have within our immigration system a lottery. This lottery lets 50,000 people apply to come into our country from various countries all over the world. We draw 50,000 names out, and they get to come into the country, not on merit but just pure random choice. It makes sense under the idea when it was originally created, which was we needed more diversity, we needed people from different countries, and this would give people from different countries a chance to apply.

Professor Borjas at the Kennedy School at Harvard, himself a Cuban refugee, came here at age 12, said 5 million people apply to be in that lot from which we would choose 50,000—5 million. So if we have 5 million applicants, I ask my colleagues, and we are attempting to serve the national interest, how would we choose from that 5 million if we could only select and allow in 50,000? How would we choose if we are serving the national interest?

I submit we would do what Canada does. We would say: Do you already speak English? How well? Do you have education? How much? Do you have job skills? Are they skills that we need in Canada? Do you have a spouse? Does he or she think Australia also—believes that the national interest is served by having younger people come because they will work longer and they will pay more taxes before they go on to the Medicare and health care systems in their older age.

Are those evil concepts? Isn’t it true that we would want to have people come into our country who have the best chance to succeed? Or do we believe the purpose of immigration is simply to allow certain businesses that use a lot of low-skilled labor to have all the low-skilled labor they choose to have? A willing employer and a willing worker.

Professor Borjas says there are millions and millions of people all over the world who would be delighted to come here for $7 an hour, would love to and would come immediately if they could. I was in South America recently. They said if it was not for immigration and if 60 percent of the people in Nicaragua said they would come to the United States if they could. I heard there was one in Peru where 70 percent of the people said they would come here if they could. What about all the other countries, many of them poorer? Many of them would have an even greater economic advantage to come to America than those people coming from Peru.

Obviously, more people desire to come than can come. They would ask: I am sure you guys have talked about this as you dealt with comprehensive immigration reform; what did you all decide?

My colleagues, we never discuss this issue. We simply expand the existing program that this Government has that has failed and only 20 percent are given preference. We did add a program to give a certain number of higher educated people the right to come, but our calculation is that still only about 20 percent of the people who will be coming under the bill we passed will come on under a merit-based system.

Canada has over 60 percent come based on merit. New Zealand I think is even higher than that.

What we want to do, of course, is select people who have a chance to be productive, who are going to be successful, who speak the American dream. It is so within our grasp. I actually have come to believe and am excited about the concept that we actually could do comprehensive reform. We can fix our borders. We absolutely can. We have already made huge improvements there. We are where we could create a lawful system at our borders.

In addition to that, we can confront the very tough choices about how to deal with people who are here illegally. And finally, we need to develop a system for the future flow of immigrants into America.

I believe the columnist Charles Krauthammer said we should do like the National Football League does. We ought to have a very, very, very high draft—like we do in the United States if they would like to come to the United States and pick the very best draft choices we can pick, pick the ones who will help America be a winning team. It will allow people to come into this country who are most likely to be successful, who speak our language, who want to be a part of this Nation and contribute to it, who have proven capabilities that means they can take jobs and be successful at them and can assimilate themselves easily into the structure of our Government.

It is exciting to think that possibility is out there. Yes, we have been talking about the fence and yes, the fence can be seen as sort of a grim enforcement question, but it is one part of the overall effort that we are participating in at this point to create a new system of immigration, comprehensively different than we have ever had before, one that serves our national interest, that selects the people who want to come here based on their ability to succeed in our country and be successful and be harmonious and be able to take advantage of the great opportunities this Nation provides.

It is so exciting to me, but we are going to have to let go of the bill that got through this Senate and that the House of Representatives would not even look at. The bill was nothing more than a rehash of current law, plus on top of it was a very, very bad piece of legislation. A lot of people voted against it, but it passed in this body. The House would not talk about it.

If we would take our blinders off and if we would go back and think clearly about how our Nation should do immigration and talk to one another, I believe we can make more progress than people realize, and the American people could be proud of our system.

I asked the people in Canada, and I asked the people in Australia: How do people feel about this? Are they happy with it? Yes, they are proud of it.

I said: What do you think about us talking about your program?

They said: We are proud you are looking at our program. We think it works. It is a compliment to us that you think there may be some value in it.

I don’t know why we never talked about that. We never had a single hearing in which the Canadians or Australians were asked to testify. These are countries that believe in the rule of law. Both of them say they have a high degree of enforcement. There are people who abuse the law, but they have a legal system and it works.

Canada has workers who come and work for 8 months, and they go back home to their families. They can work 6 months; they can work 4 months. That is a temporary guest worker program. Then they have an asylum program where they take a certain number of people, like we have always done, who have been persecuted and oppression. We will continue to do that. That is not a merit-based system. That is a system where we do it for humanitarian reasons.

Fundamentally, the principle of our Nation, as we develop a new immigration policy, should be to serve our national interests. I believe we have that within our grasp.

This step of building border barriers is important for two reasons: One, it is critical to creating a lawful system. No. 2, it is critical to establishing connectivity with the American people because they rightly doubt our commitment, based on history, to do the right thing about immigration. They doubt that we are committed to doing the right thing. This is a good step to show them that we are, and then I think as we talk about some of these more difficult issues, we can have some credibility with our people when we ask them to make some tough decisions about how to handle immigration in the future.

Mr. President, I thank you for the opportunity to share these thoughts.

A LESSON IN CHERRY-PICKING AND POLITICIZING OUR NATION’S INTELLIGENCE: THE TERRORISM NIE DECLASSIFIED

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, with the President’s recent declassification of the Key Judgments of the April National Intelligence Estimate, NIE, on Terrorism, the American public can get from the Democrats an object lesson in perfect irony.

For years, the Democrats have accused the Bush administration of cherry-picking intelligence to lead the country to war in Iraq. Yet here they are cherry-picking intelligence out of this report to make a media circus right before the upcoming election.

The very tough choices about how to handle immigration in the future.

This refers to a selective use of intelligence to make a politically persuasive argument. It is a deliberate misrepresentation of a larger, often ambiguous body of intelligence reporting.

From my perspective, the Democrats’ politicization of our Nation’s intelligence is not a pretty picture. NIEs are the top-line product of the entire intelligence community.

They are supposed to be regarded as serious, substantive, consensus analysis for top policymakers. NIEs are one of thousands of intelligence products we review on the Intelligence Committee. I am on that committee and the Republican ranking on that committee on the Republican side.

Please recall that the Democrats accused the Republicans and the Bush administration of cherry-picking intelligence prior to the Iraq war.

The Senate Select Intelligence Committee’s comprehensive review of the prewar Iraq intelligence was concluded in July 2004 and made available to the public in a detailed 500-page report. It was conducted, therefore, by Democrats and Republicans of the committee. It was thorough. It pulled no punches. It was highly critical of the systematic failure of our intelligence on Iraq. Our faulty intelligence, as the world knows, was similar to the faulty intelligence of all of our allied partners.

The committee’s report clearly shows, however, that there was no cherry-picking of intelligence because nearly all of the intelligence was bad, and that the finished intelligence that contradicted the faulty conclusions our intelligence community reached before the war.

Recall also that the Democrats have regularly charged the Bush administration with politicizing intelligence, implying that intelligence was manipulated for political reasons. For example, they suggested that Vice President Cheney’s visit to the Central Intelligence Agency prior to the Iraq war presided over by the Democratic majority of that committee, that constitutes the last four sentences of the previous paragraph, related to the Bush administration, to the Bush administration, certainly raised the questions of whether the Iraq war made us safer—a point I will address shortly—the Democrats claimed over the weekend and earlier this week that the NIE proved their point that the Iraq war had made the terrorists stronger and that, therefore, the United States more vulnerable.

Here are the sentences they quoted as proof:

We assess that the Iraq jihad is shaping a new generation of terrorist leaders and operatives: a new and more motivated, more decentralized, and more likely to be more flexible than the Americans after the withdrawal from Somalia in 1993 gave the jihad movement another Somalia. Our intelligence prior to the Iraq war has failed to recognize how the terrorist organizations on notice. Iraq is now fighting a war that is a far cry from any in our Nation’s history. One of the unique aspects of this war is that global terrorism is the unprecedented reality on our intelligence community.

As a member of the Intelligence Committee, I am dedicated to supporting this function of our foreign policy, even when that includes criticizing systematic failures in collection and analysis, as we did with our phase report released in July 2004. Every day, we see examples that the intelligence community’s capabilities have improved as a result of the lesson learned in Iraq. But we also see that we must continue to improve our intelligence community with the focus on improving it and have done our best to support it in its vital function in this war in which we are engaged today.

As we have just said, the Democrats cook this Nation’s intelligence, callously undermining its importance and function. To win a war, you need will, but you also need function.

‘Is the U.S. safer as a result of our invasion of Iraq?’ is a central policy question that we have revisited in the past. We have been more honestly addressed without an exercise in cherry-picking and cooking intelligence.

I always thought that if you have to address an argument dishonestly, your position must be weak.

As we are safer as a result of our invasion of Iraq? There is the assessment of the war situation and the strategic answer. The Senate Select Intelligence Committee has reported that the Iraq war has opened the battlefield for the global jihadists in Iraq. We knew this before the NIE was published last April, of course. And we read that last April. I have seen no Bush administration official deny this. In fact, General Abizaid last week was blunt about this: We are battling these jihadists in Iraq today. And when we defeat them, that defeat will be felt throughout the global jihadist movement.

If we follow some Democrats’ advice to withdraw, we will give the global jihad movement another Somalia. Our withdrawal from Somalia in 1993 gave bin Laden his first propaganda point. He concluded that the Americans were weak, vulnerable, and defeated.

As far as strategic assessment, I believe the Iraq war has made us safer.

On September 20, 2001, the President addressed the Congress, the Nation, and the world in his first major policy address after the attack of September 11. He articulated a new antiterrorism policy, one that had not existed up to that point, one that had not been put in place under the previous administration.

From that point on, President Bush said we would go after all terror groups within global reach: we would no longer wait for them to attack us. The President put all nations that harbor terrorist organizations on notice. Iraq was one of these nations. Iraq did not support al-Qaida and was not involved in 9/11, but it had a decades’ long history of supporting terrorists, a view no one in Congress disputed.

The rationale for Iraq has been criticized and exposed, but one fact remains clear: When we took down the Saddam regime, from that day on, no regime in the world could conclude that they could harbor terrorists without risking consequences. By invading and depos-
Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, today I recognize the accomplishments and efforts of Bill Woolf, a longtime Senate staffer and tireless advocate for Alaska’s interests. Bill will retire at the conclusion of this Congress and move to his family home on Marrowstone Island in Washington State.

For nearly 30 years, Bill has been an advocate for and friend to Alaska’s fishermen. A former resident of Juneau, he began work in 1977 at the Alaska Department of Fish and Game. In 1983, Bill moved on to the Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute, where he became familiar with our State’s fishing industry. Bill quickly established a far-reaching bond with those affected by and working in this important industry.

For the past 20 years, Bill has worked in the U.S. Senate as a legislative aide—serving on the staffs of both Frank Murkowski and Senator Lisa Murkowski. Staff members like Bill are the backbone of this institution. They meet and work with the administration, State officials, and constituents, and they help those elected to Congress pursue initiatives which will serve their State and our Nation well.

During the two decades that he has worked in the Senate, Bill has been a vigorous advocate for the people and communities of Alaska. Those who have worked with him have the deepest respect for his commitment and contributions.

On behalf of our Alaska congressional delegation and all Alaskans, I extend our appreciation to Bill for his service. We wish him the best in his future endeavors.

NATIONAL COMPETITIVENESS INVESTMENT ACT

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I come to the floor to join more than 35 of our colleagues in support of the National Competitiveness Investment Act.

Our country’s success is the direct result of our advancements in science and technology. Throughout our history, our scientists and engineers have created new industries—and their efforts have ensured our country’s competitiveness in the global economy. Two key reports now raise serious concerns about our ability to continue this tradition.

The “Innovate America” report by the Council on Competitiveness and the National Academies’ “Rising Above the Gathering Storm” report, also known as the “Augustine Report,” both conclude advancements in science and technology are our country’s best hope for the future. They identify serious problems with our efforts in these areas. Sadly, this week the World Economic Forum announced our country has dropped from first to sixth place in its “global competitiveness index.”

Our comprehensive legislation addresses several of these issues, and all of us owe a great debt to Senator Ensign, who has shown tremendous leadership in the drafting of this bill. As the new chairman of the Commerce Committee, I asked Senator Ensign to chair our Subcommittee on Technology, Innovation, and Competitiveness. Our committee has held a series of hearings on this issue. He also introduced S. 2802, the American Innovation and Competitiveness Act, which the Commerce Committee passed without opposition in May. Senator Ensign, a true partisan, was the backbone of this legislation.

This act is the culmination of these efforts. It will help our country remain competitive by increasing Federal investment in basic research and improving student opportunities in science, technology, engineering, and math. This bill also develops the infrastructure we need to foster innovation in the 21st century.

While this bill alone will not solve all of our challenges, it is an important first step.

I urge each of our colleagues to co-sponsor this legislation and vote in favor of its passage.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, the Child Custody Protection Act prohibits taking a minor child across State lines for an abortion in circumvention of a State law requiring parental notification or consent in that child’s abortion. And it gives the victims of our imperfect legal system a means of restitution.

This legislation also protects the integrity of State parental notification laws, and helps ensure that they are honored. Without it, State laws regarding parental notification and consent for a minor’s abortion can be flouted with impunity.

Right now, some abortion clinics even advertise to minors living in neighboring States, bypassing parental notice and consent laws.

Right now, we are increasing our pregnant minors’ vulnerability to health complications. Patients receiving abortions at out-of-state clinics are less likely to return for followup care. And a teenager who has an out-of-state abortion without her parents’ knowledge or consent is even more unlikely to tell them she is having complications.

At its core, this bill is about protecting a minor’s health and protecting her from exploitation. It is about respecting and honoring State laws. And it is about ensuring parental involvement in the life-or-death decisions of their child. And it prevents the violation of State laws. It should not be allowed to be blocked. I hope my colleagues will join me in voting for S. 403, the Child Custody Protection Act, and passing this long-obstructed, overwhelmingly supported, commonsense legislation.

NATO FREEDOM CONSOLIDATION ACT OF 2006

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, for more than 50 years, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has served as a force for stability, security, and peace in Europe. It remains the foundation of security on the Continent and the cornerstone of U.S. engagement in Europe.

Today it is the key institution helping to secure a Europe that is whole, free, and at peace. Not only is it the most successful alliance in history, but NATO has also contributed to the democratic transition of our former adversaries in Central and Eastern Europe by fostering the development of new, strong, and democratic allies capable of contributing to our common security goals.

NATO’s enlargement over the past decade has strengthened the strongest alliance in history and helped spread democracy and liberty. For this reason, it is essential that we keep the door to NATO accession open for others.

Today, I am proud to introduce the NATO Freedom Consolidation Act of 2006, along with Senators Lugar,
I welcome the progress made by these countries in implementing the National Programs under NATO’s Membership Action Plan. The Map remains the key vehicle for NATO to review and assess the readiness of each aspirant for full membership. I am confident that these three countries will continue to progress toward the goals pursued through the Map, and I look forward to future reports of each country’s progress.

Georgia is also coordinating its reform efforts with NATO members to meet the criteria for eventual membership in the Alliance. NATO recently announced the launch of an intensified dialogue with the Georgian Government. The United States stands ready to assist the Georgian people as they continue their reform efforts.

In addition to expressing the Congress’s support for their eventual NATO membership, this legislation also designates Albania, Croatia, Georgia, and Macedonia as eligible to receive assistance under the NATO Participation Act of 1994. To underscore this commitment, it authorizes security assistance in the amount of $3.2 million for Albania, $3 million for Croatia, $10 million for Georgia, and $3.6 million for Macedonia.

Previous rounds of NATO enlargement have shown that the expansion of this alliance benefits not only the new members but the alliance itself. Albania, Croatia, Georgia, and Macedonia stand to gain as much from NATO membership as the current Allies do from their accession.

The United States cannot build a safer and more stable world alone. The support of our NATO allies and the strengthening of the alliance are essential in the global war on terrorism. The alliance will be critical in successfully dealing with the mutual challenges we will face in the years ahead.

The United States will continue to work with these countries to institute the reforms necessary for NATO membership. I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan legislation. And I look forward to the day when Albania, Croatia, Georgia, and Macedonia become America’s NATO allies and the most successful alliance in history becomes even stronger.

TRIBUTE TO MR. THOMAS KUSTER

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to a dedicated first responder. Mr. Thomas Kuster. A former Louisville fire chief, Mr. Kuster made Kentucky his home after being stationed with the Army at Fort Knox. He began his service to the Commonwealth of Kentucky by joining the Louisville Fire Department in 1957; he quickly rose through its ranks and was appointed fire chief in 1976.

While serving as Jefferson County judge-executive, I was pleased to name Mr. Kuster to head the county’s fire protection program. Two years later, he would finish his long career of public service as Louisville’s public safety director, supervising the city’s fire and police departments, EMS, and health programs.

Earlier this month, Mr. Kuster passed away, and the Commonwealth of Kentucky lost a loyal public servant. The Louisville Courier-Journal published an article highlighting Mr. Kuster’s career and dedication to the safety of his community. I ask that the full article be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD and that the entire Senate join me in paying respect to this honored Kentuckian.

TRIBUTE TO LAJUANA WILCHER

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I rise today to honor LaJuana Wilcher, a Kentuckian who nobly served the Bluegrass State as secretary for the State’s Environmental and Public Protection Cabinet, EPPC.

Appointed by the Governor in 2003, Ms. Wilcher will step down as Kentucky’s top environmental regulator at the end of this month. As secretary for the EPPC, Ms. Wilcher oversaw many of Kentucky’s regulatory agencies, including those that regulate the environment, coal mining, horse racing, banking, insurance, occupational safety and health, workers’ compensation, housing, alcoholic beverage control, charitable gambling, and professional boxing and wrestling.

Before serving in the Governor’s cabinet, Ms. Wilcher had over three decades of experience in environmental and natural-resources issues. She served in President Ronald Reagan’s administration as a biologist and environmental lawyer with the U.S. National Park Service. And under President George H.W. Bush, she served as the Environmental Protection Agency’s Assistant Administrator of Water.

Known for being a straight shooter who “gets things done,” Ms. Wilcher dealt with the worst mine disaster in Kentucky in the past 16 years and pushed for tougher mine-safety legislation that was passed by the Kentucky General Assembly. She also spearheaded changes to Kentucky’s horse racing industry when she instituted drug testing for horses.

Mr. President, I wish Ms. Wilcher well as she returns to her law practice in Bowling Green, KY. I ask my colleagues to join me in thanking her for her dedicated service to the Commonwealth of Kentucky and her Nation. She is a true steward of our environment.

“Wy you look at (photos of) all the other chiefs,” Winstead said, “they all look like your grandfather. Except there’s Tom with sidesburns and long hair.” He was also the first chief to allow firefighters to wear T-shirts instead of uniform shirts inside the firehouse, Winstead said.

Kuster resigned as fire chief in 1979 after successfully resisting several efforts, according to newspaper stories, by Mayor William Stansbury’s administration to demote several assistant chiefs for what he saw as political reasons.

Kuster worked in administration at the Louisville Water Co. until then County Judge Mitch McConnell chose him to head the county’s fire protection in 1990.

In 1983, Kuster accepted a job as fire chief in Raleigh, N.C., where he served until 1985. He returned to Louisville as the first department head named by Mayor-elect Abramson in 1985. He was appointed Louisville’s public safety director, overseeing the police and fire departments, EMS and health programs. He held that position until 1993.

“Louisville will always be grateful for Tom’s public service,” Abramson said.

Mr. President, I wish Ms. Wilcher well as she returns to her law practice in Bowling Green, KY. I ask my colleagues to join me in thanking her for her dedicated service to the Commonwealth of Kentucky and her Nation. She is a true steward of our environment.
DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AWARENESS MONTH

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month. By bringing attention to this serious issue, I hope that we can make progress to break the cycle of violence.

Not long ago, in communities across Nevada and our Nation, domestic violence was a problem that was kept silent. Fortunately, by raising awareness of this issue, we are making great progress towards that silence.

Today, we can see notable progress in recognizing this problem as an epidemic that affects every community. Still, there is much work to do to heal the wounds and end the violence.

Each year, more than 32 million Americans are affected by physical, sexual, or psychological harm. Sadly, much of this harm occurs at the hands of those they should be able to trust—current and former partners and family members. Nineteen percent of women and 22 percent of men will directly experience harm from domestic violence during their lifetime.

Many experts think that these numbers are drastically underrepresentative as well because many victims do not report these crimes.

That is why we must do more. We can address the problem by supporting shelters and organizations with our financial resources and our time. In Nevada, for instance, domestic violence centers report lengthy waiting lists—for space in the shelter, for treatment programs for batters, and for victim counseling. Many shelters lack sufficient provisions like personal care products, clothing, and children’s and medical supplies.

We must also dispel the myths surrounding domestic violence. It does not discriminate. Its perpetrators hide behind many different faces. Its victims answer to different names. Domestic violence crosses all racial, economic, and societal barriers. It affects the strong as well as the weak.

Of course, my home State of Nevada is not immune from the tragic effects of domestic violence. I would relate the story of Ana Outcalt, who was murdered at the hands of her boyfriend, even after she had obtained a restraining order against him. Ana’s sister, Maria, tells this story whenever she gets the chance in the hope that she may be able to help others.

I am proud to report that many other individuals and organizations in Nevada are working passionately this month to increase understanding of this devastating problem. In Las Vegas to celebrate survivors of domestic violence and remember its victims like Ana Outcalt. On October 23, 2006, the Family Development Foundation for the Community United for Healthy Families event, which is open to the public free of charge. On October 23, 2006, S.A.F.E. House in Henderson, NV, is holding its annual golf tournament with all proceeds benefitting the organization.

I have been a longtime supporter of legislation aimed at eradicating violence from our Nation’s homes, including the Violence Against Women Act. But I recognize that this body and Americans nationwide to do more. We should all view Domestic Violence Month as an opportunity to help prevent this problem.

Today, I am pleased to recognize Domestic Violence Month and the efforts of many organizations across Nevada who work to stop the violence in our communities. Together, we can make a difference on this important issue and break the cycle of violence.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE NEVADA NORTHERN RAILWAY

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the centennial of the Nevada Northern Railway. September 29 marks the 100-year anniversary of the completion of the railway from Cobre to Ely, NV. Numerous events are planned at the Nevada Northern Railway Museum this month to commemorate this special day, including a reenactment of the driving of the Copper spike, which originally signaled the completion of the Nevada Northern Railway to Ely, NV.

Nevada’s early growth as a State would not have been possible without our Nation’s mighty railroads. Towns like Ely changed from sparse camps to real towns when tracks were laid into areas that were previously accessible only by horse or on foot. In 1904, the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company brought Nevada Northern Railway to life in order to move valuable copper ore that had been discovered in the region. And with that new connection to the outside world, a new chapter began in the life of Ely and of all the communities in eastern Nevada.

During its 77 years of service the Nevada Northern Railway carried ore, passengers and express deliveries between Ely, Cobre and McGill, but in 1983 the operation was closed and the railroad stood still. Since that time, the people of Ely have worked to preserve this unique part of their history.

Through the efforts of countless volunteers and staff they have turned this once idle line into a unique enterprise and popular destination for railroad enthusiasts and history buffs alike.

One of the most distinct aspects of the Nevada Northern Railway is that the original buildings, equipment, rolling stock and the majority of the company’s early paper records still survive today. Walking through the Machine Shop and Engine House one can still find safety signs and employee notices that were posted on the wall during the presidency of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

I was so pleased, Mr. President, to see the Nevada Northern Railway designated as a National Historic Landmark this week—just in time for the centennial celebration. This designation is the highest such recognition accorded by our Nation to historic sites and will place the Nevada Northern Railway in distinguished company.

The Northern Nevada Railway is an incredible asset for Nevada and the Nation. Hundreds of people will gather in Ely this weekend to talk about the past of this great site and to lay plans for the future. I wish them well, and I share their appreciation for this incredible piece of Nevada’s history.

COMMENDING CHIEF JUSTICE ROBERT E. ROSE

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize an exceptional member of our legal community and a past Nevada Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert E. Rose. Justice Rose has been a tremendous asset to Nevada as a long-standing member of our legal community and, for the past 18 years, a Justice of the Nevada Supreme Court.

Justice Rose was recently recognized for his outstanding commitment to civil liberties. The American Civil Liberties Union of Nevada presented Chief Justice Rose with the Emilie Wanderer Civil Libertarian of the Year Award. The award, named after one of the first women admitted to the Nevada Bar Association, is given in honor of career achievement in the area of civil liberties and reflects the collective decision of representatives of Nevada’s criminal defense, civil rights attorneys, and civil rights activists.

Chief Justice Rose is a worthy recipient of this award, and it is fitting that he should be recognized for his accomplishments to promote justice in Nevada. Serving three times as Chief Justice of the Nevada Supreme Court, he has a reputation in the legal community and on the Court as a reformer. Among the ways Justice Rose promoted the rule of law and freedom, are the Nevada Jury Improvement Commission and the Blue Ribbon Judicial Assessment Commission. The Assessment Commission conducted a broad study of the judicial system and recommended improvements, many of those improvements have greatly advanced the Nevada justice system.

During his legal career in Nevada, spanning from his days as a law clerk for the Nevada Supreme Court to his present position as a three-term chief justice of the Court, Justice Rose has had a profound impact on Nevada. He was my successor as Nevada’s lieutenant governor, and his work presiding... over the Nevada Senate was outstanding. His efforts as a judge to improve our legal system and his pursuit of fairness and justice have benefited every individual in my State.

In closing, I feel privileged to have Bob in the State. I know all that he has done for Nevada, and know that he will continue working to protect the rights of the citizens of our State.

RECOGNIZING THE NEVADA NEWSPAPER HALL OF FAME

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I rise to recognize the newest members of the Nevada Newspaper Hall of Fame. This month, the Nevada Press Association inducted Frank, Tony, and Ted Hughes into the Hall of Fame for their contributions to journalism in Nevada.

For more than 75 years, the Mineral County Independent News has provided the small town of Hawthorne with valuable news and information about their community. For more than 50 of those 75 years, the Hughes brothers have used their skill for journalism and hometown pride to make the Independent News thrive.

Each of the Hughes brothers started at the Independent News at an early age. Tony Hughes was a paperboy. He would later sweep floors and fold papers on the weekends. Soon after his graduation from high school, Tony was hired full time.

While Tony was the first member of the Hughes family to join the paper, his brothers would soon follow. Frank and Ted Hughes joined Tony to help run the printing presses, sell advertisements and shoot photographs. Today, the brothers manage the day-to-day operations of the Independent News, and each is responsible for writing stories and reporting on the Community.

As I have expressed, the Independent News is a true family business. The paper has a total of four employees. Frank, Tony, and Ted are helped by Heidi Bunch, a receptionist who manages the office.

In an age of large media conglomerates and corporate news, it is refreshing to get the local community angle from the Independent News. Every Thursday, the residents of Hawthorne look to the Independent News to read about community events at local churches, schools and other locations, as well as direct quotes. Subscribers can also read about the local Serpents’ football or basketball game as well as view important announcements about the Mineral County school system.

One of the most interesting features to me, though, is the paper’s “Reflections on the Past.” There you can view a summary of the events in Hawthorne from 20.50, and even 70 years ago. It is an amazing collection of Northern Nevada’s rich culture and history.

All of this is a direct result of the Hughes family. Without their hard work and dedication, this local paper might not be in existence today. I am pleased that Tony, Frank, and Ted Hughes have been recognized for their excellence in journalism, and I am proud to have the opportunity to pay tribute to them before the Senate today. I look forward to continuing to read the Independent News for years to come.

DARFUR PEACE AND ACCOUNTABILITY ACT

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, for over 3 years, genocide has been the order of the day in Darfur. For nearly as long, from puplits, from street corners, from the world’s editorial pages, from the floor of Congress, from the rostrum of the United Nations, and from the White House, people have decried the killing. But we haven’t stopped it.

Today Darfur is on the edge of an abyss, teetering on the rim of even greater catastrophe. Unknown numbers have been killed, raped, and butchered. Millions of people have been driven from their homes. An estimated half a million people are beyond the reach of humanitarian aid today.

Humanitarian provisions themselves are under attack and many are pulling back.

The Khartoum Government is reportedly engaging in indiscriminate bombing and massing forces in the region. The U.N. Security Council has passed a resolution authorizing a 20,000 person peacekeeping force, but the Khartoum Government continues to reject it and to deny the deaths of hundreds of thousands of its citizens and endanger and threaten hundreds of thousands of others.

Now all of us who have spoken out have an obligation to do what we can to make that peacekeeping mission a reality, to help bring an end to genocide.

For the third time now, the Senate has passed a Darfur Peace and Accountability Act. I was an original cosponsor of this legislation and continue to support and work toward its enactment.

This bill will impose sanctions against individuals responsible for genocide, war crimes, and crimes against humanity; will support measures for the protection of civilians and humanitarian operations; and will support peace efforts in the Darfur region.

Those efforts are in grave jeopardy. The heads of the House and Senate have agreed to a Peace Agreement between the Khartoum Government and one of the opposition groups implemented, enforced, and expanded have not been fulfilled.

We must do all that we can to ensure that the peace agreement signed last year by the Khartoum Government and the Sudanese Liberation Movement/Army and the Justice and Equality Movement is realized. We should be searching for effective tools to help end this violence and bloodshed. While not the only answer, I believe that divestment by individual States can be a part of the solution—certainly was so during the fight to end apartheid in South Africa.

I strongly support the provision in the House-passed bill on this issue. My sense is that there was bipartisan, bicameral support for this provision. But because of the objections of a few key members, the provision was dropped in the interest of passing the Darfur Peace and Accountability Act, which I believe has some important provisions, before the Congress recesses at the end of this month.

I am wondering if the senior Senator from Illinois, who is also the Assistant Democratic Leader, shares this view and if he could comment on this issue.

Mr. DURBIN. I agree with the junior Senator from Illinois. There is a very powerful commitment in both Houses to take a meaningful stand against the genocide in Sudan. State governments, universities, and other institutions from coast to coast have passed divestment measures. Those voices have been heard in Congress, and I agree there is strong bicameral, bipartisan support for divestment, but that no single provision could be allowed to jeopardize passage of this important legislation, given the situation on the ground in Darfur.

Mr. OBAMA. I thank the senior Senator from Illinois. As Senator DURBIN outlined, the State of Illinois has a long and proud history on the issue of divestment. I know that we will both continue to engage to push our government and the international community to do all it can to halt the violence in Darfur and, as part of our efforts, search for a permanent large scale solution into law. I hope to draw upon the support, just mentioned by Senator Durbin, in pushing this measure forward over the coming months. I yield the floor.

CONGRATULATIONS, TERRY SAUVAIN, THE ‘MAN FROM NOTRE DAME’

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, every year, the University of Notre Dame presents its annual Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., Award to one of its alumni for extraordinary accomplishment in the field of public service. This prestigious award, established in 1985, is named in honor of the University’s 14th president, the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh.

I am most pleased and proud to announce that the 2006 Cavanaugh Award is being presented to one of the Senate’s very own. Mr. Terrence E. Sauvain, the minority staff director of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Terry graduated from Notre Dame in 1963. He is tremendously proud to be a graduate of that great university. In fact, I have often referred to him as ‘‘the man from Notre Dame’’ because Notre Dame is the university that has given us such American legends as Knute Rockne, George Gipp, and the Four Horsemen. Now, up there with them on Notre Dame’s roll of honor will be Terry Sauvain.

After graduating from Notre Dame, and earning a master’s degree from George Washington University, Terry worked for several Federal agencies, including the National Institutes of Health and the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

In 1973, Terry worked as a clerk on the DC Appropriations Subcommittee in the service of Senator Birch Bayh, and that launched his remarkable career on this important Senate committee. He has performed in a number of capacities on the Appropriations Committee, including serving as the majority staff director, when I was chairman between 2001-2003. Terry is only proud that he holds that position since the creation of the Appropriations Committee in 1867.

I have been indeed fortunate to have Terry on my staff for so many years. In every task I have asked him to undertake, including 2 years of service as the Secretary to the minority leader, Terry has performed his duties with courtesy, dedication, efficiency, and diligence. In every position, he has gone above and beyond the call of duty in performing the work of the Senate, and I am truly grateful.

His outstanding service to the Senate has earned him a variety of honors and recognitions. A few years ago, he was awarded an honorary doctorate of humane letters from Wheeling Jesuit University in West Virginia. Last year, he received the Nyumbant Medal of Hope for his work in assisting me in the humanitarian fight to bring relief to children with HIV/AIDS in Africa. He was also recently selected to Roll Call’s ‘‘Fabulous Fifty’’ list of top congressional staffers.

In addition to his work in the Senate, Terry served our country for more than 30 years—1963-1994—in the U.S Coast Guard, and a 15-year tour of active duty as captain. Once again, he has been the recipient of various honors. He has earned the National Guard’s Eagle Award for his role in the U.S. Coast Guard-U.S. National Guard CounterDrug Program, and the Coast Guard’s Meritorious Service Medal.

I have always maintained that, ‘‘there are three things that drive Terry Sauvain: his family, his service to our country . . . and Notre Dame.’’ Now Terry is truly deserved, this prestigious award from his beloved alma mater. I know he is thrilled. I am thrilled for him for his lovely wife of 38 years, Veronica, and their three children, Marie Robertson, Catherine, and Terry, Jr.

Mr. President, I sincerely thank the University of Notre Dame for honoring Terry for his years of dedicated public service to the Senate and to our country. And I congratulate him for being the recipient of this distinguished award.

TRIBUTE TO GENERAL MICHAEL HAGEE

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to GEN Michael W. Hagee, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, as he prepares to relinquish the helm of the Corps and retire to private life after more than 38 years of selfless service to our Nation as a U.S. Marine.

Mike Hagee was well prepared for leadership. Raised in Fredericksburg, TX, as the son of a Navy veteran, General Hagee received an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy. After graduating with distinction, he was commissioned as a second lieutenant in 1968. General Hagee also holds a master of science degree in electrical engineering from the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School, a master of arts degree in National Security and Strategic Studies from the Naval War College, and is a graduate of the Marine Corps Command and Staff College.

General Hagee is a Marine’s marine. As a battle-tested infantry officer, he served as an infantry platoon and company commander in Vietnam, a battalion commander, Marine expeditionary unit commander, and as the commanding general of the First Marine Division and the First Marine Expeditionary Force. From the fire-swept provinces of Cambodia and Laos to the First Marine Expeditionary Force. From the fire-swept provinces of Cambodia and Laos to the First Marine Division. General Hagee’s professional career has included a wide variety of other command and staff assignments including two tours of duty instructing at the U.S. Naval Academy and a tour in the Office of the Director of Central Intelligence.

General Hagee’s impeccable service and brave leadership are also reflected in the awards he has received throughout his career. His personal decorations include the Defense Distinguished Service Medal with palm, Defense Superior Service Medal, Legion of Merit with two Gold Stars, Bronze Star with Combat ‘‘V,’’ Defense Meritorious Service Medal, Meritorious Service Medal with one Gold Star, Navy Achievement Medal with one Gold Star, the Combat Action Ribbon, and the National Intelligence Distinguished Service Medal.

In early 2003, General Hagee became the 36th Commandant of a Marine Corps that was fully engaged in the global war on terror. Since then, many of us in these Chambers have had the privilege to work with General Hagee on matters of great importance to our Nation. Their professionalism, adaptability, and excellence as they operate across the full spectrum of conflict are a testament to his vision and exemplary leadership.

I know that a grateful Nation shares my admiration for the general—our country needs a leader of unquestioned wisdom and deep sense of duty have been a linchpin to the security of this Nation during a truly challenging time— we have been fortunate in having him as the Commandant of our Corps of Marines. I am confident that my colleagues join me in expressing the gratefulness of the U.S. Senate, as well as thanking his wife Silke and their children for the years they have shared him with his country. Godspeed, General Hagee we wish you well.

THE STATE OF THE ECONOMY

Mr. REED. Mr. President, most American families have lost ground in the Bush economy and are working harder than ever to keep up with rising living expenses.

The administration is trying to paint a rosy picture of the economy, but the American people know better. They know that the President’s policies are not working for them.

Despite 4 years of economic expansion, job growth has been modest, wages are falling to keep pace with inflation, real incomes are falling, house prices are rising, employer-provided health insurance coverage is declining, and private pensions are in jeopardy.

Low job growth and stagnant wages during the Bush administration have depressed families’ incomes. Adjusted for inflation, the median household income in 2005 was 2.7 percent lower than it was in 2000 a loss of nearly $1,300 during President Bush’s time in office.
Strong productivity growth has translated into higher profits for businesses, but not more take-home pay for average workers. Wages, the most important source of income for most families, have not kept pace with skyrocketing costs for many living expenses. For many households, this means finding more family members to work in order to maintain their current living standards. This trend is likely to continue, since workers may find it even harder to get pay raises now that economic growth and job creation have begun to slow.

Indeed, as a recent Washington Post editorial observed: "[T]he recent phenomenon of wages falling even during good times is disturbing and exceptional." Mr. President, I would like to enter the entire Washington Post editorial from September 4, 2006, into the Record, and note that the editorial goes on to say: "So whereas past presidents could declare that a rising tide lifted all boats, Mr. Bush cannot honestly do so."

Higher prices for gasoline, college education, and medical care are squeezing the take-home pay of workers. College tuition is up 44 percent; health insurance premiums are up 77 percent, and the price of gasoline was only $1.45 per gallon when the President took office. A recent survey by Lake Research found that 3 out of 10 workers have taken on debt for necessities like food, housing, and gasoline. Fewer workers have to live in poverty, but the current minimum wage isn't enough to bring even a single parent with one child over the poverty line—even if the parent works 40 hours a week, 52 weeks a year. Low-wage workers, many of whom bring home more than half of their family's weekly earnings, and 80 percent of those who would benefit from an increase in the minimum wage are adult workers.

The policy priorities of the administration and the majority in Congress are truly misplaced. The ranks of those without health insurance have also grown by nearly 7 million on President Bush's watch. The number of uninsured rose from 44 million in 1993 to 46.6 million in 2005—1.3 million more than in 2004. More Americans are now without health insurance than at any point since the Census Bureau began collecting comparable data nearly 20 years ago.

Soaring health care costs have contributed to the decline of employer-sponsored health insurance, which is the largest component of the U.S. health insurance system. The percentage of workers with employer-based health insurance fell to 57.5 percent in 2005, which is the lowest it has been since 1993. If you are lucky enough to have health insurance, you are paying a lot more for it. Health insurance premiums for the average worker have soared by 87 percent—a stunning $5,325 jump, from $6,155 in 2000 to $11,480 in 2006.

At the same time that earnings are stagnating and costs are rising, the average worker's retirement prospects are more uncertain than ever. The number of workers employed by firms that sponsored some type of retirement plan fell by 3.7 million since President Bush took office—from 56 million in 2000 to 53 million in 2005. This reversed a trend of positive growth in employer-sponsored retirement plans in the previous 5 years.

Twenty years ago, most workers with a pension plan could expect to receive a defined benefit based on years of service and salary. Today, defined contribution plans—which shift most of the investment risk and responsibility onto workers—have become the dominant form of pension coverage. As a result of this increased risk and responsibility, average workers may end up with inadequate retirement savings.

In fact, the weakness of traditional pensions underscores the importance of the current Social Security Program. For over 60 years, Social Security has provided a dependable and predictable stream of income to retired or disabled workers, their dependents, and their survivors. Forty-eight million men, women, and children depend on Social Security benefits each month to help them live with dignity.

Social Security benefits are protected from inflation and you can't outlive them. Yet the President supports privatizing Social Security, putting the guaranteed benefits of retirees, survivors, and the disabled at risk.

We need to strengthen Social Security and improve our pensions system to ensure that Americans who work hard and save can count on the financial security they deserve and worked so hard for when they retire. And although we recently enacted a pension bill, this should not be viewed as mission accomplished.

The President's deficits will only exacerbate the economic problems of middle- and low-income families. A $5.6 trillion 10-year projected surplus from 2002 to 2011 has turned into a deficit of $2.7 trillion, based on actual deficits so far and optimistic baseline projections for the remaining years. Realistically, the 10-year deficit is probably much higher than that because this administration has a history of leaving out big-ticket items such as war costs or fixing the alternative minimum tax in its projection of future budget deficits.

Irresponsible budget policies pursued over the past 5 years by the Bush administration and the Republican Congress have mortgaged our future to foreign investors and foreign governments and damaged our international competitiveness. A little over a decade ago, the Clinton administration stepped in to stabilize the Mexican economy in the midst of a currency crisis, and today Mexico is the 10th largest holder of U.S. Treasury debt.

In this year's global competitiveness report from the World Economic Forum, the United States fell from first place last year to sixth place as the largest net lender and creditor. While our trade imbalances have begun to seriously erode this country's international competitiveness.
Instead of sound budget policies aimed at preparing for the imminent retirement of the baby-boom generation, the Bush administration and the majority in Congress have refused to adopt the kinds of budget enforcement rules that helped achieve fiscal discipline under the Republican leadership. Instead, we have an open-ended commitment to rebuilding Iraq that relies on supplemental appropriations rather than the normal budget process; and have remained committed to extending irresponsible tax cuts rather than using funds they already have to cut the budget deficit. All of this comes at the cost of destroying greater economic opportunities for most American families.

That, of course, is not what we are hearing from the administration and its supporters, who tell us that the economy is doing well, that their tax cuts are an important reason why, and that everyone is benefiting. It should not be surprising that this is not a message that resonates with the American public. After all, the current economic recovery has been weaker than the typical business-cycle recovery since the end of World War II, and large numbers of Americans are still waiting to benefit from any economic growth.

This administration touts its tax cuts, but these cuts haven’t made a dent in the pocket books of most American families.

The nonpartisan Tax Policy Center estimates that this year’s tax cut will only save middle-income families about $55—about what it now costs to fill the gas tank of their minivan. But taxpayers making over $1 million will receive a cut of nearly $38,000—enough to buy a new Mercedes.

Middle and lower income families are paying the price for the President’s tax cuts for the wealthiest, as investments in programs that promote greater economic prosperity for ordinary Americans have become candidates for budget cutting.

Regrettably, it is not surprising how under the Republican leadership, low-income families have been abandoned but what is surprising is how the administration and Republican majority in Congress have also squeezed the middle class.

The President has proposed cuts to elementary and secondary education, student aid and loan assistance for higher education, work training for displaced workers, childcare assistance so that parents can go to work, and community development grants aimed at expanding small businesses. The President is also shortchanging investments in research and technologies that will create the high-wage jobs of the future. Unfortunately, the rising tide is no longer lifting all boats. The benefits of this economic recovery are simply not going to ordinary Americans. Most Americans are concerned that this is as good as economic conditions will get under the Bush economic policies. Our focus should be on strengthening the safety net for American families—whether it is raising the minimum wage or preserving Social Security, pensions, and health insurance coverage.

That is why we need a new direction for America—one that focuses on creating greater economic opportunities for all families.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the Washington Post editorial dated September 4, 2006.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD as follows:

MR. BUSH AND LABOR DAY—WORKERS AREN’T BENEFITING FROM GROWTH

Emerging from a meeting with his economic team at Camp David on Aug. 18, President Bush declared that “solid economic growth is creating real benefits for American workers and families.” This assertion was false. Mr. Bush should use this Labor Day to rethink his rhetoric and adjust his policies.

The latest evidence on what the economy is doing for workers comes from last week’s Census Bureau report. This showed that the growth cycle that began at the end of 2001 has in fact created new benefits for most Americans. Between 2001 and 2005 the income of the typical, or median, household actually rose 2.6 percent after adjusting for inflation, even as workers’ productivity grew by 14 percent. The picture is hardly any better if you consider 2005 alone. Workers’ pay usually takes a while to pick up after a recession: In the first stage of a recovery, unemployment falls; in the second stage, a tight labor market pushes up wages. But this second stage is taking an awfully long time to arrive. In 2005, the fourth year of the expansion, the median income did rise slightly, but that reflected a gain of 0.7 percent after adjusting for inflation, even as workers’ productivity grew by 14 percent.

The stagnation, which contrasted with rapid gains for workers at the top, was bad enough. But the persistence of wage falling even during good times is disturbing and exceptional. In the first four years of the last expansion, from 1991 to 1995, median income rose by 2.9 percent. Before that, the first four years delivered gains of more than 8 percent. So whereas past presidents could declare that a rising tide lifted all boats, Mr. Bush cannot honestly do so.

The current growth cycle has also failed to dent poverty. In fact, between 2001 and 2005, the poverty rate rose from 12.7 percent to 12.6 percent. Again, this is exceptional: In the previous five economic cycles, the poverty rate fell during the first four years of the expansion. About 25 percent of the population now occupies the ranks of the extremely poor, with incomes less than half the poverty line. That’s the highest rate of deep poverty since 1997.

In a speech at Columbia University on Aug. 1, Treasury Secretary Henry M. Paulson, Jr. rightly acknowledged that “the economic expansion, many Americans simply aren’t feeling the benefits.” Mr. Paulson needs to explain this point to Mr. Bush, who appears to see things differently: By changing the language, the president needs to understand that his tax and spending policies must do more than target growth. If policies do not take into account the reality that the majority of Americans won’t benefit from economic expansion—and popular support for free trade and other pro-growth ideas will continue to deteriorate.

VERMONT LAKE MONSTERS

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, today I wish to applaud the Washington Nationals and the Vermont Lake Monsters for extending their player development contract for the next 2 years. That 2-year agreement will help keep Vermont as the New York-Penn League affiliate for Washington through at least the 2008 season.

Vermont has been the New York-Penn League affiliate of the Montreal Expos/Washington Nationals since the league in 1994, and the Vermont-Montreal/Washington affiliation is now the longest current partnership in the league. The Vermont team’s on-field success is highlighted by winning the New York-Penn League championship in 1996. Since beginning the partnership in 1994, Vermont has seen 46 of its players reach the Major Leagues. Eighteen of those 46 players have been part of World Series championship teams—Geoff Blum for the Chicago White Sox in 2005, and Orlando Cabrera for the Boston Red Sox in 2004.

While the teams have struggled on the field of late, I am confident that the new Washington ownership will make a firm commitment to bolstering their player development program. The Lake Monsters’ owner Ray Pecor and general manager C.J. Knudsen also should be commended for their hard work and dedication in running a top-notch franchise in Vermont. In short order, the Lake Monsters should get back to its winning ways and fans in Vermont and Washington will benefit.

TRIBUTE TO KEN CUNNINGHAM

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I want to take this opportunity at the end of a Congress to express my gratitude and best wishes to Ken Cunningham, a long-time friend and staffer who has been like family to my wife Barbara and me for more than 25 years and left my staff a few months ago.

He served me in a number of positions during those years, including as an assistant to staff general counsel, legislative director, and legislative assistant. But sometimes jobs have multiple positions at once. I used to joke with him about all the titles that he had accumulated.

But now faced with growing family obligations, he has left my staff to set up his own government relations firm.

After 2 years working for former Congressman Tom Tauke, Ken joined my new Senate staff in 1981 to handle several legislative and regulatory areas initially focusing on commerce, telecommunications, agriculture, and other pro-growth ideas will continue to deteriorate.
Ken and his wife Sherry lived near Barbara and me, so he and I would drive to and from work together. We got to know each other well during those commutes and quickly became good friends. It was clear that my new staff possessed sound judgment, integrity, a strong work ethic, and a passion for serving our constituents.

He worked many years in the Senate before it became popular around here to talk about the need for a “family friendly” schedule. And yet Ken found the time and energy to earn his law degree at the Georgetown Law Center. But I knew that I could always count on him to make the necessary sacrifices to get the job done here in the Senate no matter how long the hours. He probably set an office record in the early eighties during the crunch time of an ending Congress. As he juggled several pending legislative issues, he took only 7 hours of sleep for the entire week.

As some know, the devastation of the farm crisis of the middle eighties so discouraged me that I almost did not run for reelection. But Ken, like me, grew up farming. He, too, had friends back home and was likewise crushed by their suffering. He worked tirelessly to help me fight for every bit of relief and assistance possible to help rural Americans through that tragic time.

As partial testament to his effectiveness, when I did decide to run again, and when I did some polling, my highest approval ratings came from farmers and their families. And while the farm crisis led to the defeat of many Midwest legislators, I was reelected by a wide margin.

My good friend, former Senate majority leader, Bob Dole, has called Ken Cunningham the smartest staff man on Capitol Hill, and said that I am lucky to have him. Given the number of staffers Senator Dole has known over the decades, that is indeed a remarkable compliment. But Ken has proven time and again that he deserves that reputation.

Ken has always been quick to grasp the complex. He possesses incredible discernment and political instincts. He has an intense competitive spirit. And he is tenacious—almost as tenacious as me. He probably learned that from me.

Given these positive traits, combined with his understanding of Senate legislative rules and procedure, Ken can be either a great ally, or a most formidable opponent.

Let me give you an example.

Ken’s expertise and qualities proved crucial in reversing a devastating tax legislation defeat handed to us by the House of Representatives, led by then-Ways and Means Chairman Bill Archer, during consideration of the 1997 reconciliation bill.

Chairman Archer and big oil had long despised tax incentives for ethanol, one of America’s few energy independence success stories, and the source of billions of dollars of income and thousands of jobs for rural Americans and farmers.

By using reconciliation to kill these tax incentives and thus creating tax savings that protected other popular programs, Chairman Archer had devised and executed a plan to kill these tax initiatives that were procedurally and politically virtually impossible to stop. He rammed it through his committee and then rammed it through the full House of Representatives.

Pro-ethanol allies in both the House and the Senate faced what seemed like one of those “deer-in-the-headlights” moments.

As the Senate Finance Committee prepared to take up the reconciliation package, farm and renewable fuels groups looked to me to lead the fight. But cracking reconciliation’s procedural nut at this point was a daunting challenge at best.

Ken, however, formulated a legislative response that overcame these obstacles. The committee’s tax counsel wryly characterized it as “clever.”

The amendment was designed not only to stop Chairman Archer’s handwork, but also to extend the ethanol tax incentive for several years. This was a bold move for a number of reasons, not the least of which was the fact that it drew opposition from both the Finance Committee’s chairman and ranking Democrat.

The policy obstacles were even more challenging than the legislative and procedural.

Many Democrats were outright giddy with the prospects of taking back control of Congress by blaming Republicans for the loss of the ethanol program and the resulting harm to rural America.

In recognition of this temptation, Ken recommended a particular Democratic cosponsor who, though not recognized as the most experienced in these battles, we felt would fight hard against political gamesmanship. He also devised a plan that did not depend upon the Clinton administration’s help to ensure success.

I will never forget how quickly the loud chortling of the big oil lobbyists fell silent as they were stunned the night my amendment passed the Senate Finance Committee by a vote of 16 to 4.

And to the amazement of many, we fought to a draw during the 1997 reconciliation battle. Both Chairman Archer’s and my provisions were dropped in conference. We then braced for Chairman Archer’s next attack that came with the 1996 highway bill. This time, however, Speaker Gingrich quietly assured me that if we could get my tax amendment passed once again in the Senate, he would find a way to help me in conference.

As the time came close for the House/Senate conference, the Speaker had not yet said what he would do to help. Ken explored a number of ideas. It was common practice for House committee chairmen to designate members of their party and committee to attend conferences. But researching House rules, and seeking confirmation from the House Parliamentarian, Ken determined that the actual power of appointment resides with the Speaker.

We approached the Speaker to suggest that he consider exercising this power. And indeed, that is ultimately what the Speaker did: he appointed pro-ethanol House conferees, and my legislation extending the ethanol tax incentive prevailed, while the Ways and Means chairman’s language to kill the program was dropped.

When I became the new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Mark Prater, the committee’s chief tax counsel, told me that this was by far the biggest victory he had witnessed of me. It was unheard of and astounding for a mid-level member of the Finance Committee to defeat, as I did, a Ways and Means chairman on one of his top priorities.

Mr. President, even House Speaker Gingrich was amazed as the dust settled and we emerged victorious. Addressing a group of constituents, the Speaker characterized legislative battle as, and I quote, “the substance about which great novels are written.”

I will be first to acknowledge and express gratitude for all the help that many, many people provided in this fight, but I am convinced that we would have lost and there would be no ethanol program today had Ken Cunningham not come up with the right analyses and solutions at each and every critical juncture.

Over the years, Ken helped me at one time or another in just about every area of legislation and committee assignment, but he also contributed greatly to my office as a manager—first as legislative director and then as chief of staff.

He is very good with people—tactful and empathetic. He is firm, but always fair and even-handed. He has a way of bringing calm and resolution to tension and conflict among staff. He is a good problem solver, teacher, and coach.

It is said that actions speak louder than words. And although I am not at a loss for words of praise for Ken, I think one of my last acts before he left speaks volumes about my confidence in Ken’s judgment, loyalty, friendship.

I asked him to find and hire his own replacement—someone who was just as good with the same experience. I knew he would not let me down, and I think he did a pretty good job on that last assignment.

Ken has a wonderful wife and four great grandchildren, and Barbara and I extend our blessings and best wishes for Ken and his family. And we have absolute confidence that he will be successful in his new business.

We miss seeing him at the office every day but know we will always be close friends.

So, Ken, to a valued public servant and a trusted friend, Barbara and I say... thank you for your long-standing service to Iowa and the U.S. Senate.

BANKRUPTCY REFORM

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the impact of Public Law 109-8, the bankruptcy reform legislation of which I was the lead sponsor here in the U.S. Senate. On October 17, 2006, we will see the one-year anniversary of the new law. This law was the result of many years of comprehensive study and intense debate in Congress. There was much give and take among all interested parties over several Congresses, and the final bill that was signed into law was the result of compromise, upon compromise, upon compromise. In fact, people tend to forget that this law passed both the House and Senate by wide bipartisan margins. It is a law that was sorely needed. It is a law whose central premise—if an individual can afford to pay back some of his debt, then he should do just that, repay some of that debt—is supported by almost everyone. The law’s central premise is about fairness. It is about good old common sense.

The bankruptcy reform legislation was driven by a desire to restore balance to a system that had become too easy: a system where clever lawyers gained the integrity of the bankruptcy system for the benefit of those who wanted to get out of their debts scot-free and to the detriment of those who played by the rules. In fact, bankruptcy rates in the 1990s and early 2000 timeframe exceeded bankruptcy rates during the Great Depression, despite the fact that the economy was going strong during much of this time. So with this law we closed some loopholes, made upper-income Americans repay more of their debts if they were going to seek bankruptcy, and enacted important protections so people could be more knowledgeable about their finances. The law retained bankruptcy for those who truly are in need of that relief, while injecting more integrity and fairness in the bankruptcy system.

So how has the new bankruptcy law worked? So far, I think it is too soon to make firm judgments. But early reports indicate the new law has been working very well. We have seen bankruptcy rates fall dramatically—from about 2 million bankruptcies in 2005 to the point where I doubt there will be over 1 million bankruptcies in 2006, if current trends continue. In my mind, this is bound to help the American economy. Fewer bankruptcy filings lead me to believe that only those individuals who truly are in need of a fresh start are filing for relief. Furthermore, a natural outgrowth of fewer bankruptcy filings is a much lower cost to the American consumer and the U.S. economy.

As my colleagues may recall, the Clinton administration’s Treasury Secretary, Larry Summers, told Congress that high levels of bankruptcies tend to push up interest rates. I have called that the “bankruptcy drag” on the economy. It is just common sense. When a business loses money because a customer files for bankruptcy instead of paying, it has a couple of options: Either the business can absorb the loss and spend less on growth and expansion or the business can increase what it charges other customers to offset the loss, imposing higher prices and further degradation of the bankruptcy system. It follows that businesses can weather the storm when the occasions where customers don’t pay their bills are relatively rare, but when you have a scenario where filing bankruptcy is easy and customers are filing bankruptcy on a regular basis—whether they really need it or not, no questions asked—and they aren’t paying their bills, well, then businesses get into trouble. Unfortunately, businesses that don’t get paid aren’t the only ones impacted by the reality of the system.

The reality is, either way, ultimately it is the consumers and the economy that suffer the most when bankruptcies spiral out of control. People who play by the rules and pay their way are the ones who end up picking up the tab. I would rather see the “bankruptcy drag” reduced, freeing up businesses to grow, add jobs, and contribute to the Nation’s economy and the people’s prosperity. I would rather see the $400 billion in credit losses many American families each year reduced so they can spend their money in a more productive way. And based merely on the bankruptcy filing numbers available from the Federal courts, I think that it is fair to say that Public Law 109-8 has been a success for our economy. Public Law 109-8 has driven a stake through the heart of this bankruptcy drag.

I have struggled with how to put a dollar figure on how much bankruptcy reform has benefited our economy since it became the law of the land. During Congressional debate, we received testimony that the average amount discharged in bankruptcy is $41,000 per filing. If one does some simple math, taking the total number of consumer bankruptcies filed in the first half of this year and doubling that number, it seems we could see about 550,000 consumer bankruptcies in 2006—perhaps a little more, perhaps a little less.

As I said, the Federal courts reported that we had just over 2 million consumer bankruptcies filed in 2005. So using the $41,000 figure, bankruptcy losses cost our economy $82 billion in 2005. On the other hand, it looks as if, because of the new law, bankruptcy losses for 2006 will only be about $22.5 billion. Let me repeat: $22.5 billion in 2005 and $22.5 billion in 2006 after the law was put in effect.

We are not talking peanuts. That is a substantial savings for our economy. This is good news, and it is good news that would have been lost, that would have put a drag on our economy. And I am confident that at least some of that money has been or will be redirected to economic growth. If this isn’t success, I don’t know what is.

It is also important to remember the unprecedented new consumer protections included in the new bankruptcy law that were mentioned. Retirement savings receive more protections from the reach of creditors. Likewise, education savings also receive enhanced protections under the new law. And lenders who won’t compromise financially-troubled borrowers can be penalized for not negotiating out-of-court settlements.

People considering filing for bankruptcy now have access to no-cost or low-cost credit counseling and financial education. We want people who make bad financial choices to learn how to deal with their finances and quit the spending cycle. After all, better educated consumers are a benefit to everyone. The law even encourages education of young people on how to manage their money. And credit card companies are required by the new law to warn consumers about the dangers of making only minimum payments and to clearly identify payment amounts.

Moreover, bankruptcy mills that deceived people into filing for bankruptcy when they had other options available are now subject to new regulations. People should be aware that bankruptcy is not the only way out in times of financial trouble. Even a Federal Trade Commission Alert warned against bankruptcy mills and advised the American consumer that filing for bankruptcy adversely affects an individual’s credit rating. Bankruptcy should be a last resort, rather than the first stop in regaining one’s financial bearings.

So, all in all, Public Law 109-8 contains some of the most sweeping consumer protections enacted by Congress in a long time.

Of course, as I said earlier, it is too early to gauge the full impact of Public Law 109-8. Bankruptcy mills are so frightened consumers by exaggerating the impact of bankruptcy reform that many consumers rushed to file prior to enactment of the law. And after the law was enacted, many consumers who truly need bankruptcy were scared away.

Some of the consumer protections contained in the law—such as minimum-payment warnings for credit card companies—have not yet been implemented by the Federal Reserve.

Also, the debtor attorneys who want to operate bankruptcy mills are seeking to get out from under the new regulations by claiming in court to have a license to go back to their old ways of making a quick buck by shuffling unsuspecting consumers into bankruptcy without advising them of the downsides of bankruptcy or their alternatives. These lawyers also are dragging down our economy. Bankruptcy should be reserved for those persons who have no other options, not for people who use clever legal advice to make big purchases at the eve of bankruptcy with the intention of ever repaying the debt because they can wipe away their debts clean, no questions asked.

So I will keep a watchful eye on developments in the future. But for now, almost one year later, bankruptcy reform seems to have been a success.

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF ANTHRAX ATTACKS

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, In the autumn of 2001, while the Nation was still reelsoming from the reality of our airplanes being turned into weapons of terror, someone, somewhere, launched another deadly terrorist attack using our nation's postal system to deliver their weapon of choice—anthrax. Those anthrax-laced letters targeting several journalists and public officials, among them Senator Daschle and myself, jarring an already fearful Nation.

Robert Stevens, a photo editor at the art journal the New York Times, was the first to die from anthrax. On October 5, 2001, he died at the age of 63. Thomas Morris, Jr., a Washington, DC, postal worker, died on October 31 at the age of 47. Kathy T. Nguyen, a New York City hospital worker, died on October 21 at the age of 55. Joseph Curseen, also a Washington, DC, postal worker, died on October 22 at the age of 85. The attack on the Pentagon resulted in the death of 126 people, most of them military personnel, and the attacks in the World Trade Center resulted in the deaths of nearly 3,000 others. Many of those who survived anthrax exposure were disabled, suffering from chronic cough, fatigue, joint swelling and pain, and memory loss. Several victims have been diagnosed with depression and anxiety and are still tormented by nightmares. Many cannot return to work, and some of those who are able to do so are on leave, unable to do even routine tasks without difficulty. Victims say they communicate very little with one another, mostly fighting their battles alone.

On October 16, 2003, I introduced a bill to amend the September 11th Victim Compensation Fund of 2001 to provide compensation for anthrax victims on the same basis as compensation is provided to victims of September 11. The bill never made it out of the Judiciary Committee, but the appropriate help, the surviving victims struggle to pay their medical bills and get by on worker's compensation, and many report feeling like they have borne the brunt of the anthrax attacks alone. This misses the emotional and psychological difficulties that many anthrax victims experience. Congress should act to help these people, who are victims of the national experience of these terrorist attacks, and they should be treated accordingly.

Congressmen and women hope for answers and for a resolution of this case. We hope that lessons have been learned from it that will help prevent or minimize future biological attacks. In the meantime, let us remember the loss and the suffering of those who fell victim to this deadly episode of terrorism on our soil.

IRAQ AND U.S. NATIONAL SECURITY

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I have listened intently over the past few weeks as the President, members of his Cabinet, and Members of this Chamber have discussed Iraq, the war on terror, and ways to strengthen our national security.

For years, now, I have opposed this administration's policies in Iraq as a diversion from the fight against terrorism. I remain so sure of the fact that this administration misunderstands the nature of the threats that face our country. I am also more sure than ever and it gives me no pleasure to say this—that this President is incapable of developing and executing a national security strategy that will make our country safer.

As we marked the fifth anniversary of 9/11 this month, we recalled that tragic day and the lives that were lost in the towers and on American soil. And in Pennsylvania and Great Britain, and elsewhere. The administration has failed to adequately address the terrorist safe haven that has
This second choice will require replacing our current self-defeating national security strategy with a comprehensive one to defeat the terrorist networks that attacked us on 9/11. It will require a realignment of our finite resources and may also require a change in the way we view and discuss the threat to our country. We must reject phrases like “Islamic fascism,” which are inaccurate and potentially offensive to peace-loving Muslims around the world. And we need to understand that there is no "central front" in this war, as the President argues.

The threats to our country are global, unlike any we have encountered in the past. Our enemy is not a state with clearly defined borders. We must respond instead to what is a loose network of terrorist organizations that do not function according to a strict hierarchy. Our enemy isn’t one organization, it is a series of highly mobile, diffuse entities that operate largely beyond the reach of our conventional warfare techniques. The only way to defeat them is to adapt our strategy and our capabilities and to engage the enemy on our terms and by using our advantages.

We have proven that we can not do that with our current approach in Iraq. This choice—this new strategy—would require us to withdraw from Iraq and recalibrating our military posture overseas. It would require finishing the job in Afghanistan with increased resources, troops, and equipment. It would require a new form of diplomacy. The current "transformational diplomacy" this administration has used to offend, push away, and ultimately alienate so many of our friends and allies, and replacing it with an aggressive, multilateral approach that would leverage the goodwill of our friends to defeat our common enemies.

It would also require the infusion of new capabilities and strength for our Armed Forces. By freeing up our special forces and redeploying our military power from Iraq, we would be better positioned to handle global threats and future contingencies. Our current state of readiness is unacceptable and must be repaired. Our National Guard, too, must be capable of responding to natural disasters and future contingencies.

Finally, this new approach would make our country safer. It would enable our Government to spend time addressing the wide range of threats our country faces. It would free up strategic capacity to deal with Iran, North Korea, and the Middle East, and to provide real leadership internationally against adversities to all face, like poverty, HIV/AIDS, and corruption. In sum, it would help return the United States to a place of pre-eminence in the world and would give us the opportunity to address the very real threats we face in the 21st century.

The bottom line is that we cannot afford to continue down the path the President has set forth. We face real threats from al-Qaida and other terrorist organizations. Accordingly, we need to strengthen our military, diplomatic, and intelligence capabilities. And we need clear-minded leaders with policies aimed at confronting those threats and with the credibility to mobilize the support of the American people and the world.

This isn’t a choice, it is a necessity.
Lance Corporal Johnson, a member of the weapons company of the 3rd Battalion, Second Marine Division based at Camp Lejeune, NC, was killed along with one other marine when a roadside bomb detonated as their unit was traveling from Ramadi to Baghdad.

Philip Johnson was the consummate American patriot. He dedicated his life to the U.S. Marine Corps and took immense pride in serving his country. As a little boy, Philip dreamed of being a marine and wasted no time in pursuing his goal. He joined a youth educational and service organization named the Westover Young Marines at the age of 11, where he attained the rank of staff sergeant and served as a role model for younger members. Many who knew him remember his lifelong love of the Marine Corps, but they also remember him as a focused and thoughtful young man with a drive to help people. Philip was active in his church and committed to his faith.

A few years later, Philip was eager to serve his country, so shortly after graduating from Enfield High School in 2005 he fulfilled his childhood dream by enlisting in the Marine Corps. As a marine, he continued to exhibit the exceptional determination and focus that defined his youth. Philip attained the rank of lance corporal in less than a year, an impressive feat that speaks volumes about his dedication to the Marine Corps.

Philip Johnson was a model marine, prepared to fight America's worst enemies and deeply committed to both the Corps and our Nation. Lance Corporal Johnson and others like him have made the ultimate sacrifice so that their fellow Americans can live in peace and security, and for that, we should be eternally grateful.

So today I salute Philip Johnson for his unwavering commitment to our Nation and the principles for which it stands. He was a young man of exceptional determination and focus that defined his youth. Philip attained the rank of lance corporal in less than a year, an impressive feat that speaks volumes about his dedication to the Marine Corps.

Nicholas enlisted in the Army shortly before graduation and arrived in Iraq in February of this year. He was proud to be a soldier and approached his assignment as a driver of a Humvee in a security escort with the same leadership and integrity that he brought to the soccer field. Despite the unimaginable hardships of war, Nicholas never lost his generous spirit. He persuaded his father to mail dozens of used soccer balls to his base because he could not stand to see the local children kicking tin cans. The sense of cruelty and chaos clearly demonstrated the character of this exemplary young man.

PFC Nicholas Madaras was a patriot in the best sense of the word. He and others like him have given their lives in defense of our Nation’s principles, and for that, all of us in Connecticut and across America owe them a deep debt of gratitude.

I salute Private Madaras for his tremendous service to our country, and wish to offer my deepest sympathies to his parents, William and Shalini, his sister Marie, his brother Christopher, and to everyone who knew and loved him.

ARMY PFC NICHOLAS MADARAS

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, today I wish to speak in honor of U.S. Army PFC Nicholas Madaras, of Wilton, CT, who was killed in Iraq on September 3, 2006. He was 19 years old.

Private Madaras, a member of the 1st Battalion, 68th Armor Regiment, 3rd Brigade Combat Team, 4th Infantry Division, was fatally wounded when a bomb detonated near his dismounted patrol in Khubba, Iraq. A 2005 graduate of Wilton High School, Nicholas excelled both in the classroom and on the soccer field, where he started for 3 years and served as the team manager. Among the student coaches, he was known as a genuine person, one who led by example and cared about the people around him.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, this legislation, the National Capital Transportation Amendments Act of 2006, authorizes a total of $1,500,000,000 in matching Federal funds over the next 10 years to help sustain the Federal Government’s longstanding commitment to the Washington Metropolitan area’s Metrorail system.

In March, 2006, the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority celebrated the 30th anniversary of passenger service on the Metrorail system. Since service first began in 1976, Metrorail has grown from a 4.6-mile, five-station, 22,000-passenger system into the Nation’s second busiest rapid transit rail has grown from a 4.6-mile, five-station, 22,000-passenger system into the Nation’s second busiest rapid transit system.

The system is aging and has been experiencing increasing incidents of equipment breakdowns, delays in service, and increased crowding on trains. In 2004, WMATA released a “Metro Matters” report which found a $1.5 billion shortfall in funding over 6 years to meet WMATA’s capital and operating needs. A blue-ribbon panel, sponsored by the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments, the Greater Washington Board of Trade and the Federal City Council, published a report a year later which concluded that WMATA faces an average annual operating and capital shortfall of approximately $300 million between fiscal year 2006 and fiscal year 2015.

This legislation seeks to provide additional Federal funds to help close this gap. To be eligible for any Federal funds that may be appropriated annually under this legislation, the District of Columbia, the State of Maryland, and the Commonwealth of Virginia must first enact the required Compact amendments and either establish or use an existing dedicated funding source, such as Maryland’s transportation trust fund, to provide the local matching funds. The legislation is still subject to the annual appropriation process, and it is my hope that Federal funding and aid to WMATA under this act will be forthcoming in future years. I urge adoption of the legislation.

PREVENTING CIVILIAN CASUALTIES IN IRAQ

Mr. LEAHY. The heart wrenching reports of civilian casualties in Iraq, each one of whom represents a mother, father, son or daughter who has been injured or killed in the crossfire or as a result of deliberate attacks, should deeply concern us. Thousands of innocent Iraqi men, women and children have died as a result of suicide bombs, shootings at military checkpoints or convoys, or tragic mistakes at U.S. military checkpoints.

There is not enough time today to discuss this issue in depth. There are too many incidents, and too many issues yet to be addressed. But there are some appropriate use of cluster munitions in populated areas which indiscriminately and disproportionately injure and kill civilians, to the despicable acts of terrorism that are designed to cause the maximum amount of suffering among innocent people.

I do want to mention that both the Department of Defense and the U.S. Agency for International Development have programs in both Iraq and Afghanistan to provide condolence payments or assistance to civilians who have been injured or the families of those killed as a result of U.S. military operations. The USAID program is named after Marla Ruzicka who died in a car bombing in Baghdad on April 16, 2005, at the age of 28. Marla devoted the last years of her life getting assistance to innocent victims of the military operations in Afghanistan and Iraq, and the organization she founded, Campaign for Innocent Victims in Conflict, continue to work on these issues in both countries.

The Pentagon’s condolence program, which is administered by Judge Advocate General officers in the field, provides limited amounts of compensation depending on the nature of the loss. The program has suffered from some administrative weaknesses which I will speak about at greater length at another time. However, it does represent an acknowledgement by U.S. military commanders that, whether right or not, it is in our interest, to turn our backs on innocent people who have been harmed as a result of our mistakes.

I also want to mention a June 6, 2006, Wall Street Journal article entitled “U.S. Curbs Iraqi Civilian Deaths In Checkpoint, Convoy Incidents,” and I ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the Record at the conclusion of my remarks.

The Pentagon’s refinements to its procedures to prevent such mistakes in the future are laudable efforts by the Department of Defense to reduce civilian casualties that have so often resulted from mistakes that could have been avoided with relatively simple precautions at checkpoints.

For years, I and others urged the Pentagon to do just that U.S. military checkpoints were clearly marked and that soldiers at checkpoints in Iraq are trained to warn drivers in ways that avoid confusion, not simply with lights or by firing their guns into the air which a driver might not see or that could cause a driver to panic. For years, we were ignored, with horrific incident after horrific incident, whole families gunned down, or only young children left alive after their parents in the front seat were riddled with bullets.

Iraq is an extraordinarily dangerous place and attacks against our troops, often happen without a moment’s notice. Split second decisions are sometimes necessary. No guarantees that our troops should not be able to defend themselves or that they should be penalized for unavoidable mistakes. But Pentagon officials stubbornly refused to heed the most reasonable, constructive suggestions, always insisting that they were acting according to procedures.

Those procedures were woefully inadequate and they devalued innocent Iraqis lives. It is inexusable, because it was avoidable. Those civilian casualties could have been avoided with the changes that field commanders have recently made. All it took was caring enough to do it.

The article also mentions that the Pentagon has been busy investigating and reporting on civilian casualties. It is not an exact science, since sometimes a person dressed like a civilian is actually an enemy combatant, but it is vitally important that we do our best to determine the cause of civilian casualties that result from our actions.

Section 1223 of H.R. 1815, the fiscal year 2006 Defense Authorization Act, requires a report on the Pentagon’s procedures for recording civilian casualties in Iraq and Afghanistan. That report, a copy of which I only just received, is an embarrassment. It totals just two pages and it makes clear that the Pentagon does very little to determine the cause of civilian casualties or to keep a record of civilian victims.

No one expects our troops to be forensic investigators, but we do expect the Pentagon to take this issue seriously and to do its best to document and maintain a record of civilian casualties. By doing so we can make clear that we value innocent lives, we are better able to know when and how to assist the families of those injured or killed, and we can make changes to procedures to prevent such mistakes in the future.

(From the Wall Street Journal, June 6, 2006)
more on keeping soldiers in one place, where they provide daily security for the population. ‘They are getting into small towns more and staying for a longer period of time. That’s a no-brainer,' says Maj. Gen. Brian Krepinevich, executive director of the Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments, a Washington defense think tank.

BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I am grateful for the opportunity to discuss the importance of breast cancer awareness and to highlight Breast Cancer Awareness Month, which takes place this October.

We celebrate Breast Cancer Awareness Month every October in order to raise awareness of the disease and to stress the importance of early detection through an annual mammogram for women over 40, or earlier for women with increased risk factors. I say that we celebrate Breast Cancer Awareness Month every October because we truly do celebrate. Were it not for the efforts of so many fine individuals and organizations to raise awareness of this disease, my wife Barbara might not have sought early treatment and won two battles with breast cancer. Barbara’s triumphs truly give our family reason to celebrate.

Yet the numbers remind us that we have more work to do. Breast cancer is the most common nonskin cancer and the second leading cause of cancer-related death among women. We know we are making strides against this disease because while the breast cancer diagnosis rate has increased, the overall breast cancer death rate has decreased. Simply put, although more women are personally fighting breast cancer, more women are winning.

One of the most effective ways for women to win their battle against breast cancer is through early detection and treatment. And highlighting this fact is a fundamental goal of Breast Cancer Awareness Month. In this spirit, Barbara and I sponsor a mammogram van every year at the South Dakota State Fair in Huron, SD. The van, which our generous sponsors help us provide free of charge, offers 2 days of free mammograms for uninsured women. We are so proud to have the opportunity to offer this important screening to so many women.

I am grateful that the President’s budget request for fiscal year 2007 does not prioritize funding for cancer programs in a way that allows us to move quickly forward in the fight against breast cancer. The President requested level funding for the National Institutes of Health, NIH, the world’s largest and most distinguished organization dedicated to maintaining and improving health through medical science. This proposed budget would cut funding for 18 of the 19 Institutes at NIH, including a $40 million cut for the National Cancer Institute.

I am pleased that the Labor, Health and Human Services and Education appropriations bill approved by the Appropriations Committee, on which I serve, in July not only restored funding for the National Cancer Institute, but also included a $9 million increase over the fiscal year 2006 level. While we must still travel a long path to passing this appropriation bill, I am committed to maintaining and, if possible, increasing this funding level.

Earlier this year, I joined 73 Senators in voting to add $7 billion to the Labor, Health and Human Services and Education Appropriations bill. Unfortunately, the fiscal year 2006 emergency supplemental bill contained a “deeming resolution” that forced the Senate to make significant spending cuts in domestic programs. As a result, on July 20, the Senate Appropriations Committee reported out a bill that is $2 billion short of the fiscal year 2005 level. I am committed to securing the rest of the funds that so many of my colleagues and I support and to ensuring that the funds necessary for breast cancer research and screening and treatment programs receive the benefit of these additional funds. We can only expect to conquer breast cancer and other forms of cancer if we commit the funds necessary to researching, understanding, and preventing this disease.

During the month of October, I urge my Senate colleagues, my constituents in South Dakota, and all Americans to join me in celebrating Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

BI-NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I appreciate this opportunity to join my friends from across the United States, Mexico, Canada, Guatemala, and El Salvador in celebrating the 6th Annual Bi-National Health Week.

Bi-National Health Week affords us an opportunity to reflect upon the many successful efforts made here in the United States in cooperation with Mexican, Canadian, Guatemalan, and Salvadoran consulates in order to promote healthy lifestyles and well-being amongst those who might otherwise lack access to important health care services.

Bi-National Health Week originated as an effort by Mexico’s Secretary of Health to direct health care services to the underserved migrant populations currently living and working in the United States. Since its inception in October 2001, the network of Mexican consulates throughout the country has partnered with U.S. Federal, State and local agencies, the Institute for Mexican Border Health Commission, the California-Mexico Health Initiative, and various Mexican and United States colleges and universities. These partnerships have resulted in celebrations throughout the country to empower local health clinics and community organizations to provide services to the Hispanic/Latino population.

The agencies involved with the Bi-National Health week are working diligently to educate and encourage people to pursue healthy lifestyles. HIV, cholesterol, blood sugar, blood pressure, and oral screenings will be offered as examples of first-rate preventative care in order to care hospitalization and reduce future costs to the taxpayer. We must continue to work together at the Federal, State and local levels with our friends throughout the world in order to ensure every opportunity to pursue healthy lifestyles.

TRIBUTE TO FRANK IPPOLITO

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my good friend from Iowa, the ranking minority member of the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry, to salute a dedicated public servant, Mr. Frank Ippolito, who is retiring after more than two decades of service to the U.S. Government, including 24 years at the Department of Agriculture, USDA.

As the Director of the Governmental Affairs Office at USDA’s Food and Nutrition Service, USDA is the career civil servant responsible for communications between FNS and Congress and for coordinating logistics for hearings, briefings, and legislative policy for the Under Secretary of Food, Nutrition, and Consumer Services and FNS staff.

FNS accounts for over half of USDA’s annual budget. It serves a monthly average of over 25.9 million people in the Food Stamp Program, 8.22 million people in the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children, WIC, and provides daily meal service to over 30.9 million students through the National School Lunch Program and 10.3 million students in the National School Breakfast Program. Mr. Ippolito is the bridge between this important agency and the Congress.

Mr. Ippolito was born and raised in Birmingham, AL. He graduated from the Birmingham Public School System in 1965, earned a B.S. in chemistry from the University of Alabama in 1969 and a law degree from the University of Alabama School of Law in 1973.

Mr. Ippolito first worked as general counsel of the Alabama Pollution Commission in the State capital. In 1975, he came to Washington to work for the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, now known as the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, and worked for the Social Security Administration and the U.S. Defense Investigative Agency.

In 1982, Mr. Ippolito came to FNS in the Office of Governmental Affairs as a legislative specialist. In 1988, he was named Director of Governmental Affairs, the position he has held for the past 18 years. As Director, he has provided invaluable guidance on FNS programs and activities both to the Under Secretary and Secretary of Agriculture and to Members of Congress for five farm bills and five child nutrition and WIC reauthorizations.

Over the course of his career, Mr. Ippolito served under six Presidents and six Secretaries of Agriculture, five Chairmen of the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture, and six Chairmen of the U.S. Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

In the Senate Agriculture Committee, in exercising our jurisdiction over FNS we not only work in a bipartisan fashion, we also work closely with the administration. When writing a farm bill or child nutrition and WIC reauthorization, we often call upon FNS staff, including Mr. Ippolito, for expertise. He put in many Saturday afternoons and late nights past 2:00 a.m. during legislative discussions and negotiations because of his dedication to providing Representatives, Senators, and our staff access to the information we need to serve the American people.

I commend Mr. Frank Ippolito for his many years of dedicated service to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, for the outstanding work he has done throughout his distinguished career. I congratulate him on the occasion of his retirement and extend my best wishes to him and his wife Donna, in the years ahead.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I too wish to pay tribute to the accomplishments of Mr. Frank Ippolito and thank him for his many years of dedicated service to the American people and especially to the Department of Agriculture, Food and Nutrition Service, FNS. Mr. Ippolito has done an outstanding job as the career civil servant responsible for communications between FNS and Congress. During his long tenure, he has treated each and every one of us with dignity, respect, and a helpful attitude that allows the work of Government to be performed efficiently and effectively. And in addition to his professionalism and competence, he has always carried out his work with a generous spirit and a cheerful personality.

In sum, Mr. Ippolito exemplifies the very model of a public servant. Frank Ippolito has crossed many a path with countless elected officials and staff over the years, and without regard to party affiliation, he has treated each and every one of us with dignity, respect, and a helpful attitude that allows the work of Government to be performed efficiently and effectively. age, this mature workforce is breaking down the negative stereotypes that cast older workers as frail, unproductive, and resistant to technological advances. Today’s older generation of Americans has persevered through economic hard times and flourished in prosperous war and enjoyed peace, and embraced more dramatic technological advances in science, medicine, transportation and communications than any other generation in our history. This breadth of experience should be viewed as a valuable asset bridging this country’s past and future.

National Employ Older Workers Week is our opportunity to recognize the wealth of experience older Americans have acquired and can contribute to the 21st century workplace, as well as the importance of work in helping seniors maintain their independence, health, and well-being.

Mr. President, I encourage my colleagues to join me in recognition of National Employ Older Workers Week. As chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Aging, I look forward to working with my colleagues to encourage the hiring and retention of older workers. We honor these workers for their experience and the contributions they have made throughout their lifetimes, and look forward to their continued contributions to our country’s prosperity.

IMPROVING ELECTION PRACTICES FOR NOVEMBER 7TH

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, there has been much discussion and debate over the last 6 years on the best way to modernize the way we run Federal elections. As a result of the Help America Vote Act of 2002, HAVA, the Election Assistance Commission, EAC, a bipartisan independent agency, was created. One of the EAC’s duties is to serve as a clearinghouse of election administration information for the use of election officials, the information of voters, and the good of our democracy.

The Election Assistance Commission has recently released four documents that serve as an overview on good election administration practices in preparation for the November 7 Federal elections. States are making the final push to implement the new election administration requirements enacted in HAVA, which must be in place by November 7. As with any new Federal requirements, it is anticipated that there may be problems with new technologies, administrative failures, or human error. In light of some of the challenges faced by election officials in primaries over the last few weeks, the best practices guidelines are both timely and instructive for those who are responsible for conducting our Federal elections this fall.

The first document, “Quick Start Management Guide for New Voting Systems,” covers basic polling place planning and management operations for those jurisdictions that have recently purchased new voting equipment. This document includes recommendations on contingency plans, testing procedures, and security.

The second document, “Quick Start Management Guide for Poll Workers,” discusses best practices for recruiting, training, and retaining poll workers. These recommendations include election nation day recommendations for establishing a dedicated phone line for poll workers and creating a troubleshooting guide for problems at the polls.

A third guide, “Quick Start Management Guide for Voting System Security,” discusses methods of assessing technological or procedural flaws in election security, and suggests protocols on how to improve the secure functioning of the election process. These protocols include installing only certified software, implementing procedures for ballot preparation and logic and accuracy testing of systems. These best practices include testing all components of the system prior to election day, replacing all batteries before each election, and ensuring that all state laws and procedures and accuracy testing have been followed.

These guides have been developed based on best practices used successfully by election officials across this Nation. While many jurisdictions may already be considering these procedures, I wanted to bring these guides to the attention of both to ensure physical access to voting systems, and maintaining an inventory of all election materials.

Finally, the fourth guide, “Quick Start Management Guide for Ballot Preparation/Printing and Pre-election Testing,” provides recommendations for ballot preparation and logic and accuracy testing of systems. These best practices include testing all components of the system prior to election day, replacing all batteries before each election, and ensuring that all state laws and procedures and accuracy testing have been followed.

These recommendations may not cover every potential election problem faced by poll workers in the fall elections. State law in some jurisdictions may even preclude election officials from implementing some of these best practices. However, these documents raise potential issues for every election, and offer concrete solutions to the challenging administrative problems that impact state and local election officials. Most importantly, these procedures can help ensure that every eligible American will have an equal opportunity to cast a vote and have that vote counted in the November Federal elections.

THE KYOTO DECLARATION OF RELIGIONS FOR PEACE

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, the organization known as Religions for Peace constitutes a global network of inter-religious councils and affiliated groups, harnessed to encourage cooperation among the world’s religious communities to transform conflict, build peace and advance sustainable development.

Founded in 1970 as an international, nonsectarian organization, Religions for Peace is now the largest coalition of the world’s religious faiths.

President of Religions for Peace is His Royal Highness Prince El Hassan bin Talal of Jordan.

Secretary General of WCRP, as the organization is known, is Dr. William F. Vendley, of the United States.

Our former colleague and my fellow Hoosier, John Brademas, who served in the House of Representatives from Indiana for 22 years and then became president of New York University, has now served as President Emeritus, is an International Trustee of Religions for Peace.

Last month, in Kyoto, Japan, more than 800 religious leaders, from all major traditions and over 100 countries, met at the Eighth World Assembly of the World Conference of Religions for Peace.

The theme of this assembly was Confronting Violence and Advancing Shared Security. At the request of our former colleague Representative Brademas, I ask unanimous consent to have the final statement issued by the Kyoto Assembly printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE KYOTO DECLARATION ON CONFRONTING VIOLENCE AND ADVANCING SHARED SECURITY—RELIGIONS FOR PEACE EIGHTH WORLD ASSEMBLY

PREAMBLE

Representing all major religious traditions and every region of the world, more than eight hundred religious leaders from over one hundred countries convened in Kyoto, Japan as the Eighth World Assembly of the World Conference of Religions for Peace to address the theme, “Confronting Violence and Advancing Shared Security.” We, the Assembly Delegates, come from the global Religions for Peace network of local, national, regional, and international inter-religious councils and groups, as well as the Religions for Peace network of youth and women of faith. We recognize and build on the significant contributions and statements of youth and women of faith made in their respective assemblies.

The first Religions for Peace World Assembly that convened in Kyoto in 1970, and every Assembly since, affirmed deeply held and widely shared religious principles that still inspire our search for peace with justice today. We share a conviction of the fundamental unity of the human family, and the equality and dignity of human beings. We affirm the sacredness of the individual person and the importance of his or her freedom of conscience. We are committed to the ethical values and attributes shared by our religious traditions. We uphold the value of life manifest in human community and in all creation. We acknowledge the importance of the environment to sustain life for the human family. We realize that human power is neither self-sufficient nor absolute, and that the forces of destruction, the root cause of selflessness, and the force of inner truthfulness ultimately have greater power than prejudice, hate, enmity or violence. Meeting in Japan, the delegates to the International原子 weapon conferences, we commit ourselves to continue to struggle toward comprehensive nuclear disarmament and against the proliferation of nuclear arms.

The First Assembly of Religions for Peace declared: “As men and women of religions, we confess in humility and penitence that we have used our religious ideas and our commitment to peace. It is not religion that has failed the cause of peace, but religious people. This betrayal of religion can and must be corrected.” It is crucial now to engrave the reflection of our respected predecessors in our hearts.

Today, we live in a world in the grip of many forms of violence, both direct and structural. Violent conflicts—within states and across borders, carried out by both state and non-state actors—take lives and destroy communities. There are more civilian than military casualties and their disproportionate impact is on vulnerable populations. Religions play an in particular role identifying and confronting violence in all its forms and manifestations. The world’s religions have experienced threats in the past, who seek to misappropriate religion for their own purposes. In ongoing violent conflicts around the world, religion is being used as a justification or excuse for violence. Politicians often exploit and manipulate religious differences to serve their own ends, frequently dragging religion into social, economic and political disputes. The media also contribute to the scapegoating of religions in conflict situations through disrespectful representations. They also too easily identify entire communities with the actions of a few individuals and present religion as a source of conflict without reporting the diversity within religious traditions and the many ways that religious communities can prevent violence and working for peace.

A MULTI-RELIGIOUS RESPONSE

As people of religious conviction, we hold the responsibility to effectively confront violence within our own communities whenever religion is misused as a justification or excuse for violence. Religious communities need to express their opposition whenever religious leaders are distorted in the service of violence. They should take appropriate steps to exercise their moral authority to oppose attempts to misuse religion.

There are religious and ethical imperatives for multi-religious cooperation to resist and reject violence, prevent it when possible, as well as promote reconciliation and healing. Our religious traditions call us to care for one another and to treat the problems faced as our own. We believe that any individual is an attack against all and should prompt our concern. Religious communities know that they are especially called to stand up for the side of the most vulnerable, including the poor, the marginalized, and the defenseless. Our religious traditions acknowledge the fundamental vulnerability of human life. The vulnerability of each person should make us recognize the need to respond to the vulnerability of all persons.

There are also practical grounds for cooperation. No group is immune to violence or its consequences. War, poverty, disease, and the destruction of the environment have direct or indirect impacts on all of us. Individual and communities deceive themselves if they believe they are secure while others are struggling. The danger we face is high enough to insulate us from the impacts of the genuine needs and vulnerabilities of others. No nation can be secure while other nations are threatened. We are safer than the most vulnerable among us.

The efforts of individual religious communities are made vastly more effective when we work collectively. Religious communities working together can be powerful actors to prevent violence before it erupts, diffuse conflict, mediate among enmity and violence and mobilize their communities to rebuild war-torn societies.

A MULTI-RELIGIOUS RESPONSE

As people of religious conviction, we hold the responsibility to effectively confront violence within our own communities whenever religion is misused as a justification or excuse for violence. Religious communities need to express their opposition whenever religious leaders are distorted in the service of violence. They should take appropriate steps to exercise their moral authority to oppose attempts to misuse religion.

There are religious and ethical imperatives for multi-religious cooperation to resist and reject violence, prevent it when possible, as well as promote reconciliation and healing. Our religious traditions call us to care for one another and to treat the problems faced as our own. We believe that any individual is an attack against all and should prompt our concern. Religious communities know that they are especially called to stand up for the side of the most vulnerable, including the poor, the marginalized, and the defenseless. Our religious traditions acknowledge the fundamental vulnerability of human life. The vulnerability of each person should make us recognize the need to respond to the vulnerability of all persons.

There are also practical grounds for cooperation. No group is immune to violence or its consequences. War, poverty, disease, and the destruction of the environment have direct or indirect impacts on all of us. Individual and communities deceive themselves if they believe they are secure while others are struggling. The danger we face is high enough to insulate us from the impacts of the genuine needs and vulnerabilities of others. No nation can be secure while other nations are threatened. We are safer than the most vulnerable among us.

The efforts of individual religious communities are made vastly more effective when we work collectively. Religious communities working together can be powerful actors to prevent violence before it erupts, diffuse conflict, mediate among enmity and violence and mobilize their communities to rebuild war-torn societies.

RELIGIONS FOR PEACE

Religions for Peace has become a major global multi-religious voice and agent for peace. Guided by respect for religious differences, the global Religions for Peace network fosters multi-religious collaboration harnessing the power of religious communities to transform conflict, build peace, and advance sustainable development. We, the delegates of the Eighth World Assembly of Religions for Peace, are firmly committed to using our common voice to confront violence in all its forms and confident in the power of multi-religious cooperation to advance a common vision of the future. We call upon our religious communities to work together and with all sectors of society to stop war, struggle to build more just communities, foster education for justice and peace, eliminate poverty and advance sustainable development for future generations.

A MULTI-RELIGIOUS CALL TO ACTION

As religious leaders, we commit ourselves to advance shared security through advocacy, education, and other forms of multi-religious action, and to share this Kyoto Declaration within our religious communities.

We call on all sectors of society—public and private, religious and secular—to work together to achieve shared security for the human family.

Specifically, the Religions for Peace World Assembly calls on:

1. Religious communities to:
   - Resist and confront any misuse of religion for violent purposes;
   - Become effective educators, advocates and actors for conflict transformation, fostering justice, peacebuilding, and sustainable development;
   - Draw upon their individual spiritual traditions, and together with their partners and allies on our shared responsibilities to advance shared security;
   - Strengthen peace education on all levels;
   - Hold governments accountable for the commitments they make on behalf of their peoples;
   - Network locally, nationally and regionally to foster multi-religious cooperation among the world’s religious bodies; and
   - Partner with governments, international organizations and other sectors of society to confront violence and advance a new notion of shared security.

2. The global network of Religions for Peace to:
   - Foster high-level multi-religious cooperation around the issue of shared security;
   - Build, equip and network inter-religious councils locally, nationally, and regionally;
   - Strengthen the global Religions for Peace network as a platform for collaboration to advance shared security;
   - Further commit to actions for women’s empowerment and women’s human rights within all religious traditions;
   - Embrace the central position of religious women and place gender concerns at the center of the shared security agenda;
   - Keep abreast of and their concerns at the center of its agenda and promote their full involvement in advancing shared security;
   - Support and collaborate with the Peacebuilding Commission of the United Nations;
   - Advocate practices that advance sustainable development and environmental protection; and
   - Partner with all sectors of society, especially in the fight against HIV/AIDS.

3. Governments, International Organizations, and the Business Sector to:
   - Support the efforts of religious leaders to address violence within and beyond their communities, and include them as appropriate in political negotiations surrounding conflict situations;
   - Foster partnerships with religious communities to achieve the Millennium Development Goals to eradicate extreme poverty and hunger, combat disease, and advance sustainable development;
   - Harness advances in science and technology toward peaceful purposes and to eliminate poverty and advance sustainable development; and
   - Seek out religious networks for their ability to reach vast numbers of people and their capacity to effect change.

We ask all people of goodwill to support and collaborate with religious communities as we work toward shared security for all.

These commitments and the calls to action that arise from them express our most deeply held and widely shared religious beliefs.—Kyoto, Japan, August 29, 2006.

TELECOM REFORM

Mr. VITTER. Mr. President, I rise today to highlight the critical need we have in the area of broadband deployment. We are currently ranked 12th in the world in broadband deployment, and we must improve on this meager standing to be competitive in the world market.

The Telecom legislation that has been reported by the Senate Commerce Committee is the right step in encouraging more broadband. I applaud Chairman STEVENS and the rest of the committee for reporting this important legislation. I urge the Senate to pass H.R. 5232, The Advanced Telecommunications and Opportunity Reform Act of 2006, expeditiously.

Telecom reform has hit the national stage, and I was proud to support the Advanced Telecommunications and Opportunity Reform Act of 2006 when the Commerce Committee carefully considered the legislation. Our committee voted on this bill over 10 weeks ago, so it’s time for the Senate to act. This is our chance to get it right on telecom reform and save cable consumers money on their bills. Despite the hard work of the Commerce Committee, some of our colleagues are holding up this important bill. I believe it is past time to bring this bill to the floor for a debate and a vote.

This legislation will usher video competition into communities across the U.S., and it will catapult rural areas into the 21st century digital era. By setting national franchise standards, negotiations between video service providers and local authorities will change from a years-long struggle to a maximum of 90 days. Accelerating the entrance of new companies into our communities will increase television choices, which ultimately lead providers to lower their rates and improve their service.

By doing away with the unnecessarily long local franchise process, current and new companies can quickly reach rural communities, where we need it most. Small companies that can’t possibly break through the existing red tape will be able to quickly roll out quality service to cable- and high-speed-deprived areas. At the same time, larger companies will have opportunities to increase their investments—leading to the reach of hundreds of millions of even more customers. This is a win-win situation for my State and the country.

Also, this bill has numerous other critical components—one of which being the assistance it provides to our Nation’s first responders. The First Responder Coalition, a group consisting of tens of thousands of concerned citizens and first responders, strongly supports this legislation as key assistance for interoperability. “Interoperability” is a term that refers to local, State, and Federal agencies being able to communicate effectively during the time of a crisis. This legislation will allocate up to $1 billion in much-needed funds to first responders specifically for interoperable communications, and my amendment adopted in committee will speed up the delivery of that important funding. As we witnessed in last year’s devastating hurricane season, local governments need dedicated and easily accessible technology so they can communicate with each other, as well as State and Federal authorities in the event of similar circumstances that require critical early responses. Nothing could be more important for us.

I am asking us today to heed the call for the entire country deserving for the great benefits of this bill. We have an opportunity to get the job done right—first and for all—the consumers. We need choices in television providers, more broadband deployment, vital interoperability funding, and more technology to rural areas. The Advanced Telecommunications Opportunity Reform Act of 2006 is the right next step for us.

HISPANIC HERITAGE MONTH

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, today and throughout Hispanic Heritage Month, we honor the proud history of our Nation’s Hispanic community, and we pay tribute to the extraordinary contributions that people of Hispanic heritage have made and continue to make to the United States.

In 1968, Congress authorized President Lyndon Johnson to proclaim a week in September as National Hispanic Heritage Week. The observance was expanded in 1988 to a month-long celebration. During this month, America celebrates the culture and traditions of Spain, Mexico and the Spanish-speaking nations of Central America, South America and the Caribbean. The celebration begins on September 15 because that is the anniversary of independence of five Latin American countries—Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua. In addition, Mexico and Chile celebrate their independence days on September 16 and September 18, respectively.

National Hispanic Heritage Month celebrates people whose roots extend back to more than 20 different nations around the world and who are an integral part of America’s communities. Currently, there are more than 43 million Hispanic Americans, the fastest growing ethnic group in the United States. Hispanic Americans are the most decorated ethnic group in the history of our military, and we are deeply grateful for their contributions to our Nation’s defense.

Hispanic Americans have made invaluable contributions to every part of American society, from the arts, to medicine, to our military. We are a richer nation in every sense because of those contributions, and because of what they represent—a country that draws strength from its great diversity.

But as we celebrate Hispanic Heritage Month, it is also time to address the challenges that face the Hispanic community, such as lack of access to education and health care, inadequate working conditions, racial profiling and, for many, the difficulty of keeping their families together while working to become legal, permanent residents of this great country.

This celebration should serve as a call to action for Congress. We must ensure that Hispanic Americans have access to educational and economic opportunities as they pursue the American dream. We must also long fight attempts to cut funding for important programs such as Pell grants, the High School Equivalency Program, and College Assistance Migrant Program. I have cosponsored the DREAM Act—the Development, Relief, and Education for Alien Minors Act—which would provide higher education opportunities for children who are long-term U.S. residents of good moral character, and who came to this country illegally as children through no fault of their own.

Another crucial piece of legislation is AgJOBS—the Agricultural Job Opportunities, Benefits, and Security Act. This proposal would enable undocumented agricultural workers to legalize their status, and would reform the H2-A agricultural worker visa program so that growers and workers will not continue to rely on illegal paths to employment in the future.

Congress must also continue working toward establishing a realistic immigration system that has adequate opportunities for people to come to the United States legally. In Wisconsin, business owners have come to rely on foreign workers for their economic success. Simply imposing new border security measures alone, which some have advocated, is not enough.

In closing, I want to express my hope that Congress will work to address these issues and other urgent matters for Hispanic Americans across the country. We should not limit our celebration of Hispanic Heritage to one month but rather work all year long to ensure that all Hispanic Americans can equally participate in, and contribute to, the progress of our great Nation.

TRAGEDY STRIKES AGAIN

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, it is unfortunate that it sometimes seems to require high profile tragic school shootings to focus the Nation’s attention on the easy access to guns by young adults and children. Sadly, we find ourselves once again examining the subject in the aftermath of not one, but two shootings.

On April 27, 1999, we paused in the Senate to address a moment of silence in tribute to those who died at Columbine High School and to express our sympathy for their loved ones. Since that tragedy, tens of thousands of people have been killed by guns and, according to the Brady Campaign, there is an American in one of every eight family homes.

On September 13, 2006, a 25-year-old man opened fire in the cafeteria at Dawson College in Montreal, Canada. He began firing randomly at students killing one and injuring 19 others. Five of those injured are in critical condition. One player, reeling from the rapid-fire rifle in addition to two other weapons, the shooter walked through the halls of the college shooting indiscriminately. Prior to the incident, the shooter had openly expressed his fondness for the events surrounding the Bruno Bettelheim Columbine High School. While this episode took place in Canada, similar incidences have occurred all too frequently in the United States.

On September 17, 2006, five Duquesne University basketball players were shot while leaving a school dance. So far, two-year-old children have been silhouetted in charges of attempted homicide, aggravated assault, criminal conspiracy and weapons-related offenses. A 19-year-old woman has been arrested on charges of reckless endangerment, carrying a firearm without a license and, of course, of criminal conspiracy and weapons-related offenses. A 19-year-old woman has been arrested on charges of attempted homicide, aggravated assault, criminal conspiracy and weapons-related offenses. A 19-year-old woman has been arrested on charges of reckless endangerment, carrying a firearm without a license and, of course, of criminal conspiracy and weapons-related offenses. A 19-year-old woman has been arrested on charges of reckless endangerment, carrying a firearm without a license and, of course, of criminal conspiracy and weapons-related offenses. A 19-year-old woman has been arrested on charges of reckless endangerment, carrying a firearm without a license and, of course, of criminal conspiracy and weapons-related offenses.

It is impossible to come to terms with these or any of the other shooting tragedies that have claimed the lives of far too many young people. Yet after such tragedies, we ask ourselves if they might have been prevented. The answer, of course, at least in part is yes. Congress can and must work to keep guns out of the hands of young people.

What will it take to pass legislation that requires firearms to be sold or transferred with storage or safety devices? What will it take to pass child access prevention legislation, which would require adults to store firearms safely and securely in places that are reasonably inaccessible to children? Congress and the President should work to enact these and other common-sense gun safety reforms that will keep our young people alive and safe.

PHYSICIAN REIMBURSEMENT

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to speak about an issue that would greatly impact this country’s physicians and our constituents’ ability to access care. The issue of physician reimbursements under Medicare is important to me and my Colorado constituents. Congress was able to take steps to address the reimbursements for 2006, but once again physicians are faced with the possibility of a decreased reimbursement for 2007. Many physicians and physician groups have contacted Congress, requesting that the problem be addressed.

Ellice Zirinski, who works in Family Practice in Arvada, CO, wanted Congress to know that she would strongly urge them to take action and increase Medicare reimbursement to physicians. Should reimbursement decline as legislated, she could no longer afford to give care to her patients and stay in practice. She does not want to jeopardize her patients’ access to care. We need to find a way to provide physicians with a positive reimbursement before January 2007. For some time, physicians in Colorado have been concerned with the possibility of a reduction in their reimbursement schedule.

I am greatly concerned with the fact that long-term care homes, and other Medicare providers continue to receive positive updates, while private physicians are forced to no longer accept Medicare patients, or, even worse, forced out of practice. Tom Mino, a Doctor of Osteopathy in Broomfield, CO, told me, “I may have to consider a change in occupation—or at least move away from solo practice.” This trend could result in more physicians practicing in an institutional setting instead of private practice. This concerns me greatly.

I have heard time and time again that Colorado’s rural physicians will have no other choice than to stop accepting Medicare patients. Mark Laitos, an M.D. in Longmont, CO, said, “I live in a small town. My patients are my friends and my friends are my patients. We go to church together. I won’t abandon them, but my biggest worry is that my practice will be overrun with new Medicare patients as more and more of my colleagues make the decision to stop seeing Medicare patients.” That means that my rural constituents will no longer have access to care.

The final conference agreement on the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005, S. 1932, approved February 1, 2006, overrode the mandatory 4.4 percent decrease for 2006 by freezing payments at the 2005 levels. A freeze in the physician reimbursement rate for 2007 is not enough. We need to take steps to ensure that physicians receive a positive reimbursement update.

The issue of physician reimbursement affects the entire United States and all of our constituents. In light of this, I urge my colleagues to take the necessary action to ensure that physicians receive a positive reimbursement update for 2007.
Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the Religious Liberty and Charitable Donation Clarification Act of 2006. My distinguished colleague from Illinois, Senator Obama, and I have worked diligently and quickly to clarify the treatment of charitable contributions in chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Code. As many of my colleagues know, a bankruptcy court in the Northern District of New York recently upheld an objection to the confirmation of a chapter 13 plan due to the inclusion of a charitable contribution in the disposable income calculation. Shortly after learning of the decision, along with Senators Grassley and Sessions, sent a letter to the Department of Justice expressing my concern about the treatment of charitable contributions in the Chapter 13 context, and while I believe the Department of Justice will affirm its policy of allowing charitable contributions that are consistent with the Religious Liberty and Charitable Contribution Protection Act of 1998, I do not want the religious practices and beliefs of individuals subject to the vagaries of judicial interpretation.

As a whole, the Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005, BAPCPA, was—and still is—a good bill. However, like many large bills, it was not perfect. As a key architect of the recent bankruptcy reforms, I can say without equivocation that Congress intended to preserve the Religious Liberty and Charitable Contribution Protection Act of 1998 in BAPCPA. Unfortunately, the Northern District of New York thought differently.

I do not like impromptu legislative responses to judicial decisions, particularly ones with limited precedential value; however, I believe that Senator Obama and I have put together a narrowly-tailored clarification that leaves little doubt about Congress’ intent when they passed BAPCPA. I want to make it very clear that this bill does not, in any way, affirm the Northern District of New York Bankruptcy Court’s reasoning in In re Diagostino. I agree with the Department of Justice’s position that charitable contributions consistent with the requirements of the 1998 Religious Liberty and Charitable Contribution Protection Act should be allowed under the Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005. The bill that Senator Obama and I introduced is meant to simply clarify existing law in furtherance of the Department’s interpretation and Congress’s intent.

HONORING AMERICAN INDIAN CODE TALKERS

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I wish to speak today of the Code Talkers Recognition Act, which passed the Senate last week with 79 cosponsors. This bill would present commemorative medals to Sioux, Comanche, Choctaw, Sac and Fox, and any other Native American code talkers that served during World War I and World War II in recognition of the contributions of their service in the military.

Earlier this summer, I, along with Senator John Thune, were able to present Clarence Wolf Guts, our last remaining Lakota code talker, with a star quilt on behalf of the National Indigenous Veterans Caucus. Mr. Wolf Guts is now 83 years old and is of Oglala and Rosebud descent. Mr. Wolf Guts attended St. Francis Indian School in Marty, SD, and spent most of his life living on the Pine Ridge Reservation. He now lives in a state veteran’s home in Hot Springs, SD.

In his late teens, Mr. Wolf Guts enlisted in the Marines and served as a radio operator during World War II. He has become a spokesman among tribal leaders and traditional leaders about the importance of keeping native languages alive for future generations. He is very proud to be a veteran, a full-blooded Lakota, and a Lakota speaker.

Earlier this year, another Lakota code talker turned 100. Mr. Whitepipe, a Sicangu Lakota from the Rosebud tribe, valiantly served in the Army as a Code Talker in World War II. He served as a “Forward Observer” on Japanese-held islands in the South Pacific. Communicating by radio with a ship-based partner, using the Lakota language to direct artillery fire from ships at sea onto the islands. Other Lakota code talkers that will also be recognized in this legislation include Eddie Eagle Boy, Simon Brokenleg, Iver Crow Eagle, Sr., Edmond St. John, Walter C. John, John Bear King, Phillip “Stoney” LaBlanc, Baptiste Pumpkinsdew, and Guy Rondell.

During World War II, these men were Army radio operators who used their native Lakota, Nakota, and Dakota dialects to transmit strategic messages to foil enemy surveillance in both the Pacific and European theaters. There is no doubt that the bravery and the courage of Mr. Whitepipe and Mr. Wolf Guts, as well as the other code talkers, helped to make the United States the free and proud place it is today. While Navajos have received the most recognition, it is important to remember that members of at least 17 other tribes also served as code talkers in World War I and World War II.

The syntax and tonal qualities of the native languages were so complex that no message transmitted by any code talker was ever decoded by the enemy. However, for the code talkers who returned home, there were no parades or special recognition, as they were sworn to secrecy, an oath they kept and honored but one that robbed them of the accolades and place in history that they rightfully deserved.

The accomplishments of the code talkers were even more heroic, given the cultural context in which they were operating. Subjected to alienation in their homeland and discouraged from speaking their native languages, they still stepped forward and developed the most significant and successful military code of their time. That code still continues today. Native Americans make up a higher percentage of servicemen and servicewomen in the Armed Forces than any other ethnic group in America. They have served with honor in all of America’s wars, from the Revolutionary War and on through our current operations in Iraq.

I commend the work of Senators Inhofe, Grassley, Harkin and Thune for their work in moving this bill forward, as well as the leadership of the Banking Committee, Senators Shelby and SARBANES. It is now time to honor all of our native code talkers that have contributed to the safety of our Nation.

TELEPHONE RECORDS AND PRIVACY PROTECTION ACT OF 2006

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, we have recently been reminded of the tremendous threat to confidentiality posed by what is known as phone pretexting—the use of fraud and deception to acquire consumer phone records. The investigation into pretexting at Hewlett-Packard is just the latest example of why there is a need to enact legislation to safeguard the privacy and security of Americans’ sensitive personal data.

Consumer telephone records have become a hot commodity and this information is being collected, stored and disseminated without our knowledge or consent.

Last Spring, the Senate Judiciary Committee unanimously reported a bipartisan bill that would protect the privacy interests of millions of American consumers who use cell phones, by making the act of pretexting illegal. The Telephone Records and Privacy Protection Act—TRAPP Act—S. 2178, clarifies that it is illegal to use deception and fraud to obtain and sell confidential phone records. The bill essentially supports the position that the Department of Justice has the legal authority to seek criminal penalties and up to 10 years imprisonment for anyone who engages in pretexting. The legislation also preserves the rights of State and local governments to enforce their own privacy laws, to best protect the privacy rights of consumers.

In April, the House unanimously passed an essentially identical phone pretexting bill, H.R. 4709. The language used in that bill was worked out with Senators from both sides of the aisle before it was considered by the House, so that when adopted by the Senate it could be sent directly to the President.
September 29, 2006

for his signature. I have worked for months now to make progress on that bill and it has been cleared for passage twice by all Democratic Senators. First, we cleared it with an amendment that would have also passed the Second Chance Act and consensus court-security programs. When Senate Republicans refused to clear that measure, Senate Democrats also cleared the bill for passage in the identical form that it passed the House and without any amendments. An anonymous Republican holding up the measure is preventing its passage.

I know of no legitimate reason for this delay. The Senate could pass this bill today and send it to the President to be signed into law. Instead of passing this bipartisan privacy legislation, it appears this Republican-led Congress will recess without acting on this bill—forcing millions of Americans to continue to play Russian roulette with their sensitive personal information.

This week the former chair of Hewlett Packard, Patricia Dunn, called on Congress to pass bright-line laws regarding phone pretexting to avoid a repeat of the fiasco at HP. The TRAPP Act would do exactly that. This bill would help shut down the growing practice of phone pretexting. The TRAPP Act would do exactly that.

For far too long, however, Cyprus has existed as an island divided. An invasion by Turkey in 1974 needlessly separated the island’s ethnically Greek and Turkish citizenry, two communities that had successfully coexisted for centuries. A generation has now grown to adulthood on either side of a Green Line that segregates Cypriots from both their peaceful shared history and their promising shared destiny. Mr. President, I believe we must correct this wrong before another generation endures a similar fate.

In 2004, United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan presented a plan to re-unify the Cypriot communities. The Annan plan certainly wasn’t perfect, but it brought the island closer to reunification than any peace initiative in the past three decades. After the plan failed to gain the support of the Greek Cypriot community in an April 2004 referendum, the drive to unify the island largely stagnated, and the U.N. closed its “good offices” mission in Nicosia that had worked to facilitate peace negotiations.

Over the summer, I have been encouraged by the first real signs of movement toward a settlement since the Annan plan was rejected. Ibrahim Gambari, the United Nations Under Secretary General for Political Affairs, visited Cyprus in July and presided over a joint meeting between the President of the Republic of Cyprus, Tassos Papadopoulos, and the head of the Turkish Cypriot community, Mehmet Ali Talat. The two leaders reaffirmed their commitment to a political settlement in an agreement signed on July 8. They are now poised to begin a new round of technical talks that I hope will move the peace process forward.

Mr. President, others have rightly stated that Cypriot problems need Cypriot solutions, but I am convinced that those solutions won’t be forthcoming without the forceful support of the international community. For years, the United Nations has been a critical role in Cyprus, maintaining a ceasefire and facilitating a political settlement. Under Secretary Gambari will report to the U.N. Security Council in the beginning of December, and the Security Council and Secretary General will subsequently decide whether to renew the mandate of UNFICYP, the U.N. Peacekeeping mission in Cyprus, and reopen the Secretary General’s good offices mission in Nicosia.

Greek and Turkish Cypriot leaders should take advantage of this window of opportunity and launch the technical talks they committed to as part of the July 8 agreement. Once they do, the international community should be ready to support them. I am convinced that given the right conditions and adequate international backing, a solution in Cyprus is both possible and attainable. I hope that members of the international community will make the same conclusion and act accordingly when the issue is before them, and that the new U.N. Secretary General will build on Secretary General Annan’s leadership to facilitate a peaceful resolution on this long-running conflict.

When it finally happens, the reunification of Cyprus will have significance far beyond the shores of the Mediterranean. A united Cyprus will stand as an example to the world of how different ethnic groups can overcome past wrongs, bridge differences, and live together as neighbors. At a time when too many countries are beset by demons of ethnic and sectarian hatred, it is more important than ever to find an answer to the Cyprus question. If the United States and other members of the international community are willing to act as catalysts for a political settlement, I am confident that future generations of Cypriots can enjoy the peace they rightly deserve.

PROSTATE CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, September is Prostate Cancer Awareness Month, and I would like to take advantage of this opportunity to remind men and the women who love them that early detection saves lives.

Prostate cancer is the most commonly diagnosed non-skin cancer in American men and it is one of the leading causes of cancer-related death among men. Approximately one out of every six men will develop it at some point in their lives. In fact, according to the American Cancer Society, more than 230,000 new cases of prostate cancer are diagnosed each year in the United States and, sadly, about 27,000 sons, fathers, brothers and husbands will die of the disease. Fortunately, through early detection and treatment, fewer men are dying and more men are living long and healthy lives following their diagnosis.

A simple blood test, the prostate-specific antigen, or PSA, test can detect prostate cancer, and is usually administered by your regular doctor. Health experts recommend that doctors offer men yearly screening beginning at age 50. However, men with one or more high risk factors should consider starting yearly testing at age 45 or earlier and some may choose to take a PSA test at age 40, to establish a baseline level for future comparison.

Each year my wife Barbara and I sponsor a cancer booth at the South Dakota State Fair in Huron, SD. For many years, we have been able to provide free PSA tests to hundreds of men, and several people have returned to the booth to tell us that the PSA test they... took at the fair detected their cancer, and they are on the road to a full recovery. Barb and I are grateful that we are able to offer this service, and that it is making a difference for South Dakotans.

Many individuals have had their own lives or the lives of family and friends touched by cancer; I am so grateful that my own battle with this disease has had a successful outcome. Prostate cancer is often not an easy subject to discuss, but uncomfortable though the topic may be, we must remember that early detection saves lives. My wife Barbara is a two-time cancer survivor, and her experience taught me that early detection and swift treatment is the best defense in fighting any form of cancer.

I am proud to add my voice to those who are working to fight prostate cancer, and to commend them on their indefatigable efforts to raise awareness of the risks, to promote early detection and treatment, and to further efforts to understand and eliminate this disease. I urge men to discuss their risks and screening options with their doctor, and I urge women to raise this important topic with the men in their lives. Through screening and early detection, we truly can save lives.

HEARING CANCELLATION

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was supposed to hold its third hearing on Darfur in as many years this week, but it was postponed because the administration couldn’t field the appropriate witnesses. In a region where each day means hundreds of innocent lives lost and thousands more terrorized and displaced, time is not on our side.

I want to begin my statement today by acknowledging that there have been some deplorables in the past month relating to the international community’s response to the violence in Darfur. I welcomed the passage of United Nations Resolution 1706, a U.S.-backed initiative authorizing a 22,000-strong U.N. peacekeeping force for Darfur. The President’s appointment of Andrew Natsios as his Special Envoy to Sudan was long overdue. And, while it isn’t perfect, the recently passed bipartisan Darfur Peace and Accountability Act is a first step that reaffirms the United States’ determination to lead the way on the long path ahead to achieving a sustainable peace in Sudan.

Unfortunately, none of these developments have changed conditions on the ground. Nor have the strong words that our Government or the international community used to condemn the perpetrators of violence in Darfur over the past few years. In December 2003, the administration issued a statement expressing ‘‘great concern about the humanitarian and security situation in Darfur and calling “on the Government of Sudan to take concrete steps to connot on our side; we cannot afford to delay any longer or defer to the obstructionist tactics of brutal regimes. The people of Sudan deserve more than our outrage; they deserve our action. And the time to act is now.

THE NEED FOR REAUTHORIZATION OF PUBLIC LAW 106-393

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I rise to make a few comments regarding the Secure Rural Schools and Community Self-Determination Act, or County Payments Act as it has been nicknamed.

Today is a sad day for the 780 counties that benefit from the County Payment Act because with the last day of this fiscal year, the act expires.

In 2000, the Congress passed Public Law 106-393 to address the needs of the forest counties of America and to focus on creating a new cooperative partnership between counties in forest counties and our Federal land management to develop forest health improvement projects on public lands and simultaneously stimulate job development and community economic stability.

The act has been an enormous success in achieving and even surpassing the goals of Congress. This act has restored programs for students in rural schools and prevented the closure of numerous isolated rural schools. It has been a primary funding mechanism to provide students with educational opportunities comparable to suburban and urban students. Over 4,400 rural schools receive funds because of this act.

Next, the act has allowed rural county road districts and county road departments to address the severe maintenance backlog. Snow removal has been restored for citizens, tourists, and school buses. Bridges have been upgraded and replaced and culverts that are hazardous to traffic passage have been upgraded and replaced.

In addition, over 70 Resource Advisory Committees, or RACs have been formed. These RACs cover our largest 150 forest counties. Nationally these 15-person diverse RAC stakeholder committees have studied and approved over 2,500 projects on Federal forestlands and adjacent public and private lands. These projects have addressed a wide variety of improvements drastically needed on our national forests. Projects have included fuel reduction, habitat improvement, watershed rehabilitation, road maintenance and reclamation, reforestation, campground and trail improvement, and noxious weed eradication.

RACs are a new and powerful partnership between county governments and the land management agencies. They are rapidly building the capacity for collaborative public land management decisionmaking in over 150 of our largest forest counties in America and are reducing the gridlock over public land management, community by community.

The legacy of this act over the last few years is positive and substantial. This law should be extended so it can continue to benefit the forest counties, their schools, and continue to contribute to improving the health of our national forests.

If we do not work to reauthorize this act, all of the progress of the last 6 years will be lost. Schools in timberdependent communities will lose a substantial part of their funding. These school districts will have to start making tough budget decisions such as keeping or canceling after school programs, sports programs, music programs, and trying to determine what is the best educational needs of our children. Next, counties will have to reprioritize road maintenance so that only the essential services of the county are met because that is all they will be able to afford.

Thrice, my colleagues have joined Mr. WYDEN and myself in recognizing the importance of the reauthorization of this act by cosponsoring S. 267. And while we have run out of time in this fiscal year, I look forward to working with my colleagues in the lameduck session to address this issue.

REMEMBERING NATIONAL PUBLIC LANDS DAY

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, on September 30, will once again observe National Public Lands Day. For the 13th straight year, thousands of citizens across the country help clean up public parks, rivers, rangelands, and beaches. These volunteers will hit the ground running and spurn up trails, build bridges, plant trees, and much more. I commend each and everyone of them for their important public service. This work inspires us to step back and consider just what our public lands mean to us.

Almost 100 years ago, the great conservationist President Teddy Roosevelt addressed Congress on the subject of our natural resources and spoke words that should be listened to carefully by everyone who has an interest in keeping the United States the most prosperous and dynamic nation on the face of the Earth. “These resources, which form the common basis of our welfare, can be wisely developed, rightly used, and prudently conserved only by the common action of all the people . . . .” Listen to those words and the approach of a president who considered one of our most radical conservationists, a President who put 234 million acres into the public trust. This is not a man who lived on the ideological extremes. He did not advocate roping off all the land and allowing no admittance. Nor would he stand by and let the land be ransacked and misused. Let me speak again his words: “. . . wisely developed, rightly used, and prudently conserved . . . .” That approach was correct in 1909, and it is the right one now.

Today’s younger generation understands that our natural resources are not limitless, that we can not endlessly exploit them. They are more environmentally savvy perhaps than their parents. And I believe they also grasp the need for smart conservation, for devising collaborative policies that ensure our access to public land now and in the future.

Some lands ought to have restrictions on use. I do not dispute that, and I do not advocate any careless “roll back” of environmental regulations. But we must be flexible and devise ways to utilize them while responsibly mitigating our ingenuity and devise ways to utilize them while responsibly mitigating our impact on the land. We must be flexible with the different types of recreation and access to public land that people want.

Mr. President, in closing, let me add that Americans have always had a strong relationship with public lands and have always understood the need to preserve them for posterity. Sometimes we hear it said that people only care for what they themselves privately owned that what is held in common will often fall into disrepair. That is an insurmountable challenge; Americans have accomplished more difficult tasks in our history.

Lastly, I would like to emphasize the issue of public ownership. These lands are owned by the people. We policymakers need to always keep that in mind and not just pay this fact lip service. National Public Lands Day is a perfect time to remind ourselves who owns this land. We must be flexible with the different types of recreation and access to public land that people want.

NOMINATION OF RICHARD HOAGLAND

Mr. ENSIGN. Mr. President, I rise to speak today about an issue of great importance to the Armenian community, the nomination of Richard Hoagland to be the next U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of Armenia.

I respect the office of the President and the powers that are granted to appoint individuals that are in support of the administration’s agenda; however, there is justifiable concern about the recall of our Ambassador to a regionally important country and the subsequent nomination of his replacement. The reported reason for the recall of Ambassador Evans revolves around the failure of our Government to officially recognize the Armenian genocide. That is unacceptable.

Once again, I want to go on record as being opposed to the continued denial of the Armenian genocide. The bigger issue is not that of an appointment of this or any official who recognizes his duties and will be diligent in carrying them out but of acknowledging the genocide as part of an appropriate foreign policy.
I have long sought to bring recognition to the crimes perpetrated against the Armenian people as genocide. In fact, I have introduced S. Res. 320, which affirms the Armenian genocide. The resolution calls on the President to state that the slaughter of Armenians by the Ottoman Empire was genocide and to recall the proud history of U.S. intervention in opposition to the Armenian genocide. It is important that the U.S. once and for all reaffirm the irrefutable facts of history and allow our representatives to speak out about the crimes perpetrated against the Armenian people from 1915 to 1923. It is my sincere hope that this legislation comes before the full Senate soon.

As we fight to ensure freedom around the globe, we must ensure that our future reflects the lessons of the past. In this case the facts are incontestable. Armenians were subjected to deportation, abduction, expropriation, massacre, and starvation. Yes, the Armenian people were victims of genocide. Genocide at any time, at any place, is wrong and needs to be confronted and remembered.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, as the Republican leadership gavels this session to a close, I am disappointed by the inaction and missed opportunities on America's most crucial priorities.

First, although we did finally pass a long overdue port security bill, we still have a long way to go to protect our infrastructure. We knew before 9/11 that our ports are soft targets, and since that terrible day, many experts have continued to warn us that they are vulnerable to attack.

Second, although we passed border fence legislation, we failed to act on the AgJOBS bill, which would provide a much-needed solution to the farm labor shortage crisis that is threatening our economy. In California and across America, fruit and vegetables are dying on the vine and rotting in the fields because there are no workers to harvest the crops.

Earlier today, my friend from Georgia, Senator Chambliss, came to the floor to speak against the AgJOBS bill. He said that as he has traveled the country this year holding farm bill hearings, every farmer he met told him to oppose AgJOBS.

Yet, if the Senator from Georgia had come to California, our Nation's largest agricultural State, he would have heard from farmers who desperately need and want the AgJobs bill passed now. And they are not alone. Farmers in States experiencing labor shortages in Idaho, Washington, New York and Florida, among others, want this bill, as do a broad coalition of pro-agriculture groups.

The H-2A program is badly in need of reform, and the AgJOBS bill, which the Senate has already passed with more than 60 votes, enacts those meaningful reforms. These AgJobs will save users more than $5 million or a little more than the price of 5 hours in Iraq. The American people deserve to know that we are doing everything we can to keep them safe. We cannot allow terrorists to exploit holes in our aviation security system.

On the AgJOBS bill, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting long overdue legislation for the security of our infrastructure, to aid our farmers, and to ensure our right to fair and accountable elections.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

The Senate bill also does not consider aviation security. Yes, aviation security has improved greatly in the last five years. But five years after 9/11, we are still not screening cargo loaded on board passenger planes. I am pleased that DHS will launch a pilot program at San Francisco Airport, SFO, this October to check all commercial cargo for explosives on passenger flights, but we should be doing this at every airport in America to ensure the safety of passengers and the solvency of the airline industry.

But until that time, at the very least, we need to use at least one blast resistant cargo container on passenger planes that carry cargo. This was one of the major recommendations of the 9/11 Commission. When I tried to offer an amendment to do just that, the Republican managers of the bill blocked my amendment.

Cost is not the problem here. The price to place one blast-resistant container on board is $75 million or a little more than the price of 5 hours in Iraq. The American people deserve to know that we are doing everything we can to keep them safe. We cannot allow terrorists to exploit holes in our aviation security system.

Second, we face great challenges that will determine our safety and prosperity for years to come. I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting long overdue legislation for the security of our infrastructure, to aid our farmers, and to ensure our right to fair and accountable elections.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE SURVIVOR BENEFITS PLAN

Mr. NELSON of Florida. Mr. President, although we have accomplished much to be proud of in this Defense authorization bill, I am profoundly disappointed that once again we have failed to eliminate the SBP-DIC offset.

For the last 5 years I have been talking about the unfair and painful offset of the Defense Department's survivors benefits plan against Veterans Affairs' dependency and indemnity compensation, or DIC. This offset mistreats the survivors of our servicemembers who die on active duty now and our 10 percent disabled military retirees who have served this country and paid a high price for their careers. It is wrong, we know it, and the Senate has tried to fix it—but we have fallen short again.

I have reminded the Senate of the Good Book's words, that in God's eyes the true measure of our faith is how we look after orphans and widows in their distress. And they are in distress. We are in a violent struggle around the world with brutal and vicious enemies. Sadly, Americans are lost every day.

We must never forget that the families left behind by our courageous men and women in uniform bear the greatest pain. Their survivors' lives are forever altered; their futures left unclear. They suffer the enduring cost of the ultimate sacrifice and that asked for that sacrifice must honor it. We are the ones who must recognize that the Nation has an obligation to those who give their lives for our country.

This conference report does not include the Senate's provision to eliminate this offset. In the Senate, we included the funds necessary to support...
Mr. President, I have felt honored over the years to champion this important change in our survivor benefits system. And, although disappointed, I am not resolved to continue this fight. I thank my many Senate colleagues who have felt as strongly as I about taking care of our military widows and orphans. I look forward to working with them again when we bring this to the Senate again in our next session. Our military men and women, and their survivors would never give up; neither will we.

GLOBAL WARMING REDUCTION ACT OF 2006

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today as the lead cosponsor for the Kerry-Snowe Global Warming Reduction Act of 2006. Six years into the 21st century, we should be on a trajectory toward solutions... international and domestic policies confronting climate change should already be in place. We believe that our bill will ultimately lead to decisive action to minimize the many dangers posed by global warming by calling for an 85 percent reduction of greenhouse gas emissions no later than 2050. Thankfully, Senator KERRY and I are not working in a policy vacuum as the United States is a party to the 1992 United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change, which has the objective of stabilizing greenhouse gas concentrations in the atmosphere at a level that would prevent "dangerous anthropogenic interference" with the climate system.

The risks associated with a temperature increase above two degrees centigrade are grave, including the disintegration of the Greenland ice sheet, which, if it were to melt completely, would raise global average sea level by approximately 23 feet, devastating many of the world's coastal areas and population centers. The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change projects that temperatures will rise between 1.4 to 5.8 degrees centigrade, or 2.5 to 10.4 degrees Fahrenheit, by the end of the century, under a range of expected emissions trends.

The Kerry-Snowe bill will map out the way to stabilization through a cap and trade system for major sectors of our society and establish the climate reinvestment fund consisting of amounts collected from carbon auctions of allowances and civil penalties. The fund will be used for investment in clean energy research and technology. The bill also provides for a research and development program on global climate change and abrupt climate change research. We also call for a renewable portfolio standard requiring 20 percent of electricity from renewable energy by 2020, and an updated Renewable Fuel Standard and E85 infrastructure requirements of 10 percent by 2020.

The act also contains vehicle greenhouse gas emission standards for cars and light-duty vehicles as well as medium and heavy-duty vehicles. Importantly, our bill includes a resolution expressing the urgent need for the administration to reengage in international action on global warming. I do not come lightly nor lately to the climate change issue. That is why, this past year, when asked by three major independent think tanks—the Center for American Progress in the United States, the Institute for Public Policy Research in the U.K. and the Australia Institute—I accepted the co-chairmanship of the high level International Climate Change Taskforce—the ICCT—to chart a way forward on climate change and reveal a parallel track with the Kyoto Protocol process. This led me to meetings both in Washington and London with my Cochair, the Rt. Honorable Stephen Byers of the U.K. for the international, cross-party, cross-sector collaboration of leaders from public service, science, business, and civil society from both developed and developing countries.

We set out a pathway to solve climate change issues in tandem collaboratively based on the ICCT report and through recommendations that are both ambitious and realistic to engage all countries, and, critically, including those not bound by the Kyoto Protocol and major developing countries. Our ICCT report, "Meeting the Climate Challenge," recommends ways to involve the world's largest economies in the effort, including the U.S. and major developing nations, focusing on creating new agreements to achieve the deployment of clean energy technologies and policy frameworks that is both inclusive and fair. Like the Kerry-Snowe legislation, the ICCT Report calls for the establishment of a long-term objective of preventing global average temperature from rising more than 2 degrees centigrade.

The taskforce arrived at the 2 degrees centigrade temperature increase goal on the basis of an extensive review of the relevant scientific literature that shows that, as the ICCT Report states:

Beyond the 2 degrees centigrade level, the risks to human societies and ecosystems grow significantly. It is likely, for example, that average temperature increases larger than this will entail substantial agricultural losses, will greatly increase the numbers of people at risk of water shortages, and widespread adverse health impacts.

Our ICCT Report goes on to say that:

Climate science is not yet able to specify the trajectory of atmospheric concentrations of greenhouse gases that corresponds precisely to any temperature rise. Based on current knowledge, however, it appears that achieving a high probability of limiting global average temperature rise to 2 degrees centigrade will require that the increase in greenhouse-gas concentrations as well as all the other warming and cooling influences on global climate in the year 2100, as compared with 1750, should add up to a net warming no greater than what would be associated with a CO2 concentration of about 450 parts per million.

The Kerry-Snowe bill reverses the growth of greenhouse gas emissions starting in 2010 and then progresses to more rapid reductions over time, out to 2050, meant to protect against a temperature rise above 2 degrees centigrade, which is predicted to mean that global atmospheric concentrations of carbon dioxide will not exceed 450 parts per million. The bill gets the US on the right track, but at the same time avoiding any negative impact on our economy.

Achieving success for our policy imperatives means disinabusing skeptics and opponents alike of cherished mythologies that environmental protection and economic growth are mutually exclusive. The irony is that both are actually increasingly interdependent and will only become more so as the 21st century progresses. Robust companies dedicated to reducing emissions are "going green" because this represents a burgeoning sector of our economy, not the drain and hindrance we've been led to believe for so many years.

And to their credit the most progressive U.S. companies have reduced emissions even further than required in climate bills offered in the Congress to date. In an act of economic acumen, they are hedging their bets by adopting internal targets—and, these companies are saving money by reducing their energy consumption and positioning themselves to compete in the growing global market for climate-friendly technologies. Any cost-conscious CFO or forward-thinking CEO for that matter will admit that protecting against prevention pollution now will most certainly cost less than cleaning it up later.

And the economics of prevention and stewardship resonate more when you consider property that erodes because of rising sea levels, farm land that fails to yield crops and becomes barren and arid, and revenue opportunities squandered because of dwindling fishing stocks caused by hotter temperatures. These represent real costs to the bottom line not to mention irreparable damage to our health and quality of life.

Mr. President, temperatures are rising to levels the earth has not experienced for more than a thousand years. The snows of Kilimanjaro are melting so fast that they may completely vanish in 15 years. Alaska's average temperature has increased nearly five and a half degrees over the past 30 years and explains melting permafrost, sagging roads, and drying forests. A Peru- vian fisher said to me recently, as reported by The Washington Post, is receding at a rate of 360 yards per year, up from a recession rate of just four yards per year for most of the 1960s and 70s. There is the massive decline in coral reefs critical to sea life worldwide. And in my state of Maine, softwood trees—the heart of our papermaking industry—and sugar maple trees that tourists value are in danger of moving northward over the next 50 years, along with our annual potato crop worth approximately $110 million.

We obviously do not have time in this Congress to debate the Kerry-Snowe bill, but we plan to use our bill as a marker to start the debate in the 110th Congress. The United States Congress is fully capable of enacting policies that change our climate for the better and guarantee a better quality of life for the generations to follow.

EXTENSION OF THE HIGHER EDUCATION ACT

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise today to encourage my colleagues to pass H.R. 6136, which would provide for a temporary extension of the Higher Education Act of 1965 by extending its provisions through June 30, 2007.

This extension, unfortunately, is the sixth time the Higher Education Act has temporarily been extended. It is now critical to move forward with the Higher Education Act and reauthorize the remaining discretionary programs. As my colleagues know, the mandatory provisions of the higher education law were extended in February under the Deficit Reduction Act of 2006.

We have the bill out of the Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, but haven’t had the floor time to debate it. I am making the Higher Education Act a top priority for 2007 because postsecondary education is the key to the future successes of our students, our communities, and the economy.

DISASTER ASSISTANCE REFORMS

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, like many in Congress, I am disappointed that the Senate is adjourning for the October recess without enacting comprehensive U.S. Small Business Administration disaster assistance reforms. As our small businesses impacted by Hurricanes Katrina and Rita last year can attest, this is an agency that is in woeful need of substantive reforms to its Disaster Assistance Program. Our businesses had to wait 4 to 6 months for SBA disaster loans to be approved, and some are still waiting to this day, for loan amounts to be disbursed.

For my part, I have worked for the past year to enact substantive SBA disaster reforms to ensure that ‘lessons learned’ from Katrina and Rita are incorporated and that businesses nationwide could count on a better prepared and more efficient SBA should a disaster strike their community. Under the leadership of the chair and ranking member of the Senate Small Business Committee, Senators OLYMPIA SNOWE and JOHN KERRY, we sent to the Senate floor bipartisan legislation, S. 3778, which along with reauthorizing SBA programs, also enacts comprehensive SBA disaster reforms. Instead of working with us to take up and pass this important bill, the administration has frustrated this legislation so just this week, I sent a letter to the new SBA Administrator Steve Preston. In this letter, I requested his cooperation with our committee to pass this important legislation before Congress adjourns at the end of the year.

I will ask that a copy of this September 27, 2006, letter be printed in the RECORD.

As we adjourn tonight, I note that we are set to pass legislation which temporarily extends programs under the Small Business Act until February 2, 2007. Although I do believe it is essential to extend these SBA programs, I also believe it important that this year’s Congress enact comprehensive legislation re-authorizes SBA programs, also of great importance to me and my constituents, makes essential reforms to SBA’s Disaster Assistance Program. Since S. 3778 was introduced on August 2, 2006, almost nine weeks ago, it has been blocked from consideration and the Committee is still working on budget issues that may file its report on the bill. It is my understanding that the administration and SBA has several concerns about this bill in its current form.

I am very concerned at this apparent deadlock, a deadlock which threatens our bipartisan efforts to implement comprehensive SBA Disaster Assistance reforms before the end of the year. In particular, I believe that there must be SBA reforms in the following areas:

- Short-Term Assistance: Following Katrina and Rita small businesses have lost on average, four to six months for approvals and disbursements on SBA Disaster Loans. In order to ensure the long-term survival of small businesses impacted by the disaster, SBA needs to be in the business of short-term recovery—by providing either emergency bridge loans or grants.

- Disaster Loan Process for Homeowners: With SBA’s mission is to “aid, counsel, assist and protect, insofar as is possible, the interests of small business concerns” it also has the added responsibility of helping affected homeowners rebuild their housing post-disaster. Katrina and Rita resulted in record numbers of SBA Disaster Loan applications from homeowners, which strained existing resources and model. If the SBA must bear this responsibility, the agency should improve the process as well as possibly seek greater coordination and cooperation with the Department of Housing and Urban Development on disaster housing assistance.

- Expedited Disaster Loans to Businesses: This year SBA’s mission is to “aid, counsel, assist and protect, insofar as is possible, the interests of small business concerns” it also has the added responsibility of helping affected businesses rebuild their housing post-disaster. Katrina and Rita resulted in record numbers of SBA Disaster Loan applications from homeowners, which strained existing resources and model. If the SBA must bear this responsibility, the agency should improve the process as well as possibly seek greater coordination and cooperation with the Department of Housing and Urban Development on disaster housing assistance.

Economic Injury Disaster Loans: Although Katrina and Rita directly affected businesses along the Gulf Coast, additional businesses in the region, as well as the rest of the country, were also impacted by the storms. The SBA must have the ability to provide nationwide, or perhaps regional, economic injury disaster loans to businesses which suffered financial distress or disruption from a future major disaster.

Loss Verification and Loan Processing: Following the Gulf Coast hurricanes, the SBA was months to hire enough staff to inspect losses and process loan applications. Although SBA now has trained personnel to handle such crises in demand, the SBA must retain permanent authority to enter into agreements with qualified private lenders and credit unions to process Disaster Loans and provide loss verification services.

Administrator Preston, I was impressed by your expressed willingness to be a bridge between Congress and the White House. For the SBA to truly bring its disaster capabilities to the next level, I believe that it must work in concert with the Congress. Together, we must remove layers of bureaucracy and red tape, which, following Katrina and Rita, both overwhelmed and frustrated dedicated SBA employees and those affected by the hurricane must also give the SBA new tools to ensure that our efforts post-Katrina and Rita never happen again.

Last month we marked the one-year anniversary of Hurricane Katrina, and now mark the one-year anniversary of Hurricane Rita. It is essential that we take action now to make substantive reforms to the SBA Disaster Assistance Program. We owe nothing less to our small businesses. I ask that you continue working with my office on this important issue and respond to our approach in writing no later than October 31, 2006. This will be proposed legislation which can address the concerns of the SBA as well as provide a better and more responsive SBA Disaster Assistance Program for our small businesses.

Thank you in advance for your assistance with this request.

Sincerely,

MARY L. LANDREI,
U.S. Senator.

INDIAN GAMING REGULATORY ACT

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I have filed an amendment to S. 2078, the proposed Indian Gaming Regulatory Act Amendments of 2006. The amendment would require the National Indian Gaming Commission, the NIGC, to utilize the well-accepted negotiated rulemaking process in promulgating any regulations required to implement the provisions contained in S. 2078. Let me take a moment to explain the amendment.

Congress adopted the Negotiated Rulemaking Act in 1990. It appears at 5 USC, sections 561 and following. Congress permanently reauthorized the act in 1996. It provides an alternative to adversarial rulemaking. It saves time and reduces litigation. The Negotiated Rulemaking Act allows interested stakeholders and the Federal agency to be a part of the process. Negotiated rulemaking is a process by which tribes and Government agencies enter into negotiations in good faith and reach consensus on proposed rules. All the legal requirements of notice, such as publication in the Federal Register, are employed. A negotiated rulemaking committee is employed. Thus there is transparency and accountability. If the negotiated rulemaking succeeds, it culminates in proposed rules that the Federal agency formally proposes. The Federal agency retains the ultimate authority. However, on any such proposed rule, as the agency retains responsibility in making final decisions and publishing the rule in the Federal Register.

A variety of Federal agencies have successfully utilized the Negotiated Rulemaking Act in developing regulations. Among them are the Environmental Protection Agency, the Federal Aviation Administration, the National Park Service, the Department of Transportation, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the United States Forest Service.

As well, Federal agencies that have worked directly with Indian country have successfully used the negotiated rulemaking process. Among those are the Indian Health Service, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and the Department of Housing and Urban Development when HUD developed the regulations under the Native American Housing and Self Determination Act.

Some argue that it is not appropriate to require the NIGC to bring in tribes as a part of the negotiated rulemaking process because they are the entity being regulated. But we are dealing with sovereign Indian Nations that already have significant regulatory regimes in effect. The original Indian Gaming Regulatory Act already was a major intrusion into the status of tribes as units of government fully capable of managing their own affairs. To suggest that it is somehow problematic for tribal governments to have an institutionalized role in developing regulations is totally contrary to the very concept of our government-to-government relationship with tribes. That is a philosophy subscribed to by the chairman of the Indian Affairs Committee on many occasions.

I urge my colleagues to support my amendment.

TRIBUTE TO THE LATE SENATOR PAUL WELLSTONE

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, I have been asked by a Capitol employee, Mr. Albert Cary Caswell, to have printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD a poem he wrote in memory of the late, great Minnesota Senator, Paul Wellstone.

Mr. Wellstone was my friend of 22 years and Minnesota’s senior Senator and my mentor during my first 2 years here. I have missed his conscience, his courage, and his eloquence in the Senate every day since his tragic death in an airplane crash nearly 4 years ago.

There being no objection, the poem was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

WALKING WITH GIANTS

(By Albert Cary Caswell)

We who here, who have walked upon life’s just bare . . .
A question asked, “What of the full measure of one’s footprints cast . . . as to this our world as bestowed?”

Are ours but just mere footprints, or with giant gaits have we here now stride? As all within these our short lifetimes show!

Do we walk with giants, or but there with just mere men?

Do we dare to grow, do we dare to be great . . . as time and time again? As these our lifetimes begin!

Will we become giants, or will we forever remain but just mere men? As in this, our shortest of times our lives as then . . .

Shine!

For in our lives and in our times, will we fade or will we shine?

Are we that bright beacon of light and hope so brightly shined? That bright beam of light which so flows through time?

One Paul Wellstone, whose title as a giant as now so belongs!

For in his life and in his deeds, for in this his courageous quest to succeed . . . his bright legend as a giant so lives on . . .

A small man of girth, but within his great heart and his soul . . . and all within his mind, so lies his true worth as he has gone!

For from this his most humble of beginnings, as had he so come!

As to a professor, who with his great burning passion so taught our future . . . had so led our young!

Until, on a little green school bus . . . his dreams were so to be cast! As well into a future where his greatness was to be so sung!

A man, who among his classrooms would so spread his dreams . . .

Talking of all those giants, who so upon a Senate floor as throughout the decades had convened . . .

As one day too, Paul . . . would also walk upon those most hallowed of halls where . . . too, his greatness would be seen!

Walking with giants . . . such as Dole, Glenn, Thurmond, Byrd, Simpson, Inouye and Kennedy . . .

A proud liberal . . . a man of great passion . . . for in him we were all but “Left With The Best” oh so very splendidly! A Great American Patriot . . . a most courageous candidate . . . a Great Crusader and A True Fine Champion of Democracy!

A man with a huge heart.

A man with such a warm smile, which so placed him high above all the others . . . while, setting him apart!

A fighter and a champion . . . a true winner among just mere men . . . the little guy’s best friend . . . a true fine work of art!

In this the arena of life . . . he was but a sheer delight!

A Great Father . . . A Great Husband . . . A Wonderful Human Being . . . who to all so brought his light!

For the steps that he made, clearly so portrayed the stuff of which giants are made . . . as we so ponder here this night!

An American Tale . . . as was his, The True Great American Dream . . .
So happy and so blessed, as he stood so boldly debating near Webster's desk.... as ever so he was seen!

Like a modern day Webster, Clay, or Calhoun, history's heart so soon... where, and whenever he convened!

For within his life and within his times, there are many great truths about him of which we find.

As he's left us with such great lessons, with such bright lights... to touch all of our hearts and minds!

All about being warm and kind, all about passion within hearts & within strong minds, and that no mountain cannot be climbed!

As he was a shining voice!

As he was a Liberal's Liberal, as he was truly his people's choice!

A battler no doubt, while reaching out.... ever speaking out... for all of those others, who so surely had no voice!

If only but as Paul...we too.... in our lives.... and our times.... could all so live.

Oh what great gifts we could shine, to these our children and this our world in our time, Oh such warm blessings we would give!

For in this our lives and in these our times, will we such the courage find, To Walk With Giants, touching the lives of all who live!

In Memory of a great American Patriot—Paul Wellstone—his wife Sheila, and his precious daughter Marcia, and all those aboard the plane. May our Lord bless the families and help them to find peace. (This was read in Minnesota, on television for his memorial.)

COMMENDING STAFF OF PEnROSE-ST. FRANCIS HOSPITAL

• Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, today I pay tribute to those individuals from Penrose-St. Francis Hospital in Colorado Springs, CO, who graciously agreed to provide medical attention to retired Air Force veteran Mr. Richard McCrea after suffering a critical injury in April, 2006, while working in Amman, Jordan.

The staff of Penrose-St. Francis worked quickly and tirelessly to arrange for the appropriate procedures in order to best help Mr. McC Whorter given the urgency and unfortunate exculminating circumstances. Most notably, Penrose-St. Francis was willing to absorb all costs for any treatment performed. Tragically, Mr. Mc Whorter passed away prior to his return to the United States for treatment.

Nonetheless, the honorable intentions of those at Penrose-St. Francis are worthy of acknowledgment and their demonstration of compassion should serve as an example for others in the health care industry.

I would like to thank the following indivduals for their kindness and generosity in attempting to save Mr. McC Whorter following his accident. I would also like to issue my sincere condolences to the Mc Whorter family for their loss.

RECOgnizing the Shockey Companies

• Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I am pleased to acknowledge the Shockey Companies for over 100 years of service. When the company began in 1896, its founder, Mr. Howard Shockey, developed a reputation in Winchester, VA, for his superior craftsmanship and hard working attitude. Today, more than three generations later, the Shockey Companies have remained true to their commitment to serve the Winchester and mid-Atlantic region with the craftsmanship, quality, and old-fashioned values that the company was first built upon.

Over the past three generations, the Shockey Companies expanded even further, working on transportation projects for interstate bridges and interchanges on the highways of Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia. Their early adoption of improved concrete methods and materials was instrumental in the company efforts to save time and reduce costs.

Their continual commitment to provide Virginians with the highest level of expertise and technology speaks to the company integrity and consistent standard of excellence. On behalf of the many Virginian families and communities who have benefited from the Shockey Companies services over the last century, I would like to express my sincere appreciation.

RECOgnizing the Shockey Companies

• Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I am pleased to acknowledge Winchester Medical Center for over 100 years of service. Over the past century, Winchester Medical Center has worked tirelessly to build a hospital committed to providing quality and sophisticated medical services using the most advanced technology and science. Its success today can be attributed to its long-term vision and dedicated staff, which both the local community of Winchester and I are immensely proud of.

In 1903 the Winchester Medical Center had just 35 beds, four employees, and one patient. Since then, it has evolved into one of the premier regional medical centers in the United States, now boasting 405 beds, 2,483 full-time employees, a team of devoted volunteers who worked 76,000 hours last year alone, and numerous renovations. The center specializes in heart care and open heart surgery, cancer care, orthopedic surgery, 24-hour emergency services, including a helipad and neonatal intensive care transport, neurosciences, rehabilitation services, behavioral health, and women and children services. With such a highly qualified staff, it is no surprise that patients are referred from a 17-county area in Virginia, Maryland, and West Virginia to the center for medical treatment.

Any institution committed to giving back to the local community from which it was founded and grew is commendable. One dedicated to saving and improving the lives of Virginians for the last 100 years, and with as much care and expertise as Winchester Medical Center, is an accomplishment I respect and admire.

RECOGNIZING HEDGE BROOK FARM

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I am pleased to acknowledge Hedgebrook Farm, in Bartonville, VA. Hedgebrook Farm has been owned and operated by the same family since its establishment over 100 years ago.

For the past half century, the 110-acre farm has offered amusing attractions such as a pumpkin patch, as well as a beautiful log home, Hedgebrook Farm also provides educational school tours and a young farmers’ camp.

I would like to acknowledge the current managers of Hedgebrook Farm, Kitty Hockman Nicolas and her daughter, Shannon N. Triplett, for their exceptional work in upholding their family’s original commitment to preserve the environment, educate local youth, and maintain a pesticide-free, hormone- and antibiotic-free farm.

The Hedgebrook Farm continues to perform outstanding work in serving its local community. I congratulate its owners on over a century of success and thank them for the work they are doing to make Virginia a better place to live, work, and raise a family.

RECOGNIZING THE WINCHESTER STAR

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I am pleased to acknowledge the Winchester Star which has proudly served the community with dedication and distinction since the Fourth of July, 1896. Started by 23-year-old John I. Sloat, the first edition of the Winchester Star consisted of only four pages and sold for a penny. By the end of its first year, circulation had already reached 400. Today, circulation exceeds 22,000 daily.

For the past century, the journalists and employees of the Winchester Star have worked tirelessly to provide accurate, quick, and reliable news service. As a reader of the Winchester Star, I sincerely respect their curious approach and objective presentation of the news, and I admire their consistent pledge to keep Virginians intelligently informed of international, national, and local news every day.

Their success can be attributed not only to a hard working staff but also to their swift implementation of modern technology to expedite the printing process and meet the demands of a new customer demand. Whether it was the adoption of Goss Urbanite off-set press printing in 1964, which permitted a 64-page edition of the paper, or the addition of a Saturday edition and morning newspaper in 1980, the Winchester Star has consistently proved itself as one of Virginia’s leading newspapers. I am proud to acknowledge the Winchester Star’s accomplishments over the past century, and I am confident that they will continue to serve their customers with the expertise, quality, and dependability that they are known for.

RECOGNIZING HILL HIGH FARM

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I am pleased to acknowledge over 100 years of service by Hill High Farm of Winchester, VA. The farm has been owned and operated by the Wright family since its establishment in scenic Shenandoah Valley over 100 years ago. Hill High Farm has been recognized by the Commonwealth of Virginia as a “Century Farm”.

While the farm continues to grow apples, raising cattle, and maintain a dairy herd as it did a century ago, today they offer other exciting attractions such as a straw maze, corn maze, hay rides, and farm animals. Their expansion from a fourth of an acre of pumpkins to 20 acres and the promotion of new special events has captured the public interest. In the fall during harvest time Hill High Farm opens their farm to over 1,000 visitors, including school groups. This April, the farm will be featured on the Discovery Channel by Pilot Productions, an independent television production company based in England.

To express their appreciation for the continual support of local patrons, the Wright family gives back to their community through annual charity events such as the Youth Development Center’s Annual Punkin’ Chuckin’ Contest. I would like to recognize Hill High Farm as an historical trademark of Shenandoah Valley, loved and cherished by so many in the Virginia community.

RECOGNIZING GLAIZE COMPONENTS

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I am pleased to acknowledge Glaize Components, an internationally recognized lumber company founded in Winchester, VA, more than 150 years ago. The company first started in Northern Shenandoah Valley as a charcoal production business, but quickly evolved as a lumber company.

When Glaize Components was founded in 1854, they made a commitment to providing the highest level of quality to their customers, employees, and industry. To meet increasing market demand and expand their geographic reach, Glaize Components has opened two new plant locations in Shelby, NC, and LaCross, WI.

Throughout its history, Glaize Components products have included a complete line of building components for residential and commercial uses, such as roof trusses, wall panels, and floor trusses. Their use of software systems specifically designed for truss systems and their incorporation of laser-guided truss building processes has gained them international recognition by manufacturers from Africa, Russia, China, and Japan.

The immense respect Glaize Components receives for its superior manufacturing processes—both at home and abroad—is a testament to their success and leadership in the industry. I am honored to acknowledge Glaize Components accomplishments over the past century, and I am confident that they will continue to serve their customers with the expertise, quality, and dependability for which they are known.

RECOGNIZING THE INSURANCE CENTER OF WINCHESTER

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I am pleased to acknowledge the Insurance Center of Winchester, the oldest and largest independently owned insurance agency in the Northern Shenandoah Valley in Virginia. Over the past century, and particularly in the last decade, the insurance industry has undergone radical transformations from technological advancements to expanding competition. I would like to recognize the Insurance Center of Winchester for their exceptional ability to adapt to these changes while maintaining their original commitment to excellent service and expertise.

The Insurance Center of Winchester provides service to thousands of home-owners, renters, autos, RVs and motorcycles, and provides comprehensive group benefit plans to many of the region’s top businesses and industries. In addition to those services, the Insurance Center of Winchester also provides health, disability, and life insurance to individuals. Over the years, the Insurance Center of Winchester has expanded to three departments, Personal Lines Insurance, Commercial Lines Insurance, and Financial Services. But what distinguishes them as the leading insurance company of Northern Shenandoah Valley is their employees’ ability to solve complex issues and their commitment to personal customer service.

Since 1902, the Insurance Center of Winchester has put an emphasis on maintaining a relationship-based business, helping them gain the respect and trust from the Virginia community which they have worked so hard to develop. I would like to acknowledge the Insurance Center of Winchester’s accomplishments over the last century, and I am confident that they will continue to flourish in the future.

RECOGNIZING THE ENDERS AND SHIRLEY FUNERAL HOME

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I am pleased to acknowledge the 114th anniversary of the Enders and Shirley Funeral Home which has had a fruitful working relationship with Winchester
Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, earlier this year, Dr. David Roselle, a personal friend and longtime president of my alma mater, the University of Delaware, announced that he will retire in May. I have the greatest respect for Dr. Roselle and the tremendous job he has done at the institution I love.

The average tenure of a university president, I am told, is a little over 6 years, about the term of a U.S. Senator. When Dr. Roselle leaves, he will have served 17 years, equivalent to almost a three-term Senator. That is staying power that has let him turn the University of Delaware from a very good regional school into a university, known nationally for its academic excellence.

When constituents ask me: “My child has gotten into this university or that university. Where should she go?” I say go to that university they can get into now and are quite certain 10 years from now they would never be admitted. That certainly would have been my story at the University of Delaware.

Back when I was a student in the early 1960s, we had 4,000 undergraduates, maybe 400 graduate students. Today, there are 15,000 undergraduates and 3,000 graduate students. They come from all over the country and world. But what is really different between then, and now, is not the quantity, but that even the highest caliber students must now worry about their ability to get in. During Dr. Roselle’s tenure, the SAT scores of entering freshmen has risen significantly.

All of us in public service have the goal to leave the place better than how we found it, and Dr. Roselle has clearly done that, on many fronts.

Physically, under his leadership, he oversaw the building of about two dozen structures, including a new sports/convoation center, a new center for the arts that opened recently, new laboratories, new residencies, and new academic buildings. He brought technology into the infrastructure, so all campus buildings are 21st century ready.

Financially, he has nearly quadrupled the university’s endowment, to $1.2 billion, far exceeding anyone’s expectations. The number of endowed faculty positions has increased from 20 some 10 years ago to more than 100 today, allowing the university to attract excellent faculty members.

Since he arrived, he increased student aid from $19 million to $56 million and started scholarship support so more students can study abroad. The University of Delaware started the first Study Abroad Program in the world 80 years ago, and today, 40 percent of undergraduates spend some time learning abroad, increasingly important preparation for a job in today’s global economy.

All of us in this Chamber should feel good about helping expand the university’s scientific programs. During Dr. Roselle’s tenure, Congress appropriated almost $90 million for defense work, primarily at the University’s Center for Advanced Composite Materials. It has been put to good use. They have developed critical basic composite materials and production techniques to produce the lighter, more capable vehicles, guns, armor, and ships our military needs.

We also should feel good about the millions of dollars Congress has directed to the university to help fight avian influenza, develop clean energy technologies, and for biotechnology research, among other activities.

I also note that Dr. Roselle presided over Blue Hen football teams that combined had a 135-54-1 record and brought to Newark a national championship, a proud day for all of our alumni.

The list of his accomplishments is long, and I could go on. But it is not so much what he has built, as what the 70,000 students who graduated during his tenure will accomplish with the quality education he had such a strong hand in giving them.

Our alma mater has a wonderful line, “We give thee thanks for glorious days beneath thy guiding hand,” and it is certainly his hand as well as his head and heart that has guided the university into the wonderful institution it is today.

I know I speak for all of my colleagues in extending Dr. Roselle our heartfelt congratulations.

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I would like to recognize the outstanding military service and contributions to our country by MAJ Richard “Rickie” N. Hagan of Tompkinsville, KY.

Major Hagan has served his country in the Army for 27 years. He is a graduate of the Kentucky Military Academy at Fort Knox, KY and the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, KS. He was deployed to Iraq in July of 2004 and again in 2005 with the 377th Theater Support Command, TSC, of New Orleans, LA.

His overseas assignment included the 1st Corp Support Command, 82nd Airborne Division in Balad, Iraq. He worked as a Theater LNO—liaison officer—in Balad and in Baghdad to Multi National Forces-Iraq. As an OIC—officer in charge—of an LNO team, he... served with distinction by gathering and analyzing key intelligence information. For this service, he has been awarded the Bronze Star, The Combat Action Badge, the Meritorious Service Medal, The Iraq Campaign, the Global War on Terrorism Medal and the Global War on Terrorism Service Medal.

Outside of his military service, Major Hagan has continuously been an active member of his local church and community. He taught military history and the art of war to ROTC Cadets at Middle Tennessee State University in Murfreesboro, TN. For 6 years he served as a city councilman in Tompkinsville, KY, was President of the Monroe County Wellness Board, and served on the YMCA and Chamber of Commerce Boards. After returning from Iraq, Major Hagan lent his services to the people of the Gulf Coast following Hurricane Katrina.

Currently Major Hagan owns a small business and serves as an S2 intelligence officer for the 5/515 Cavalry Squadron in Fort Knox, KY.

The citizens of the State of Kentucky are proud of MAJ Hickie N. Hagan’s service. They join me in thanking him for his contributions to the Army and the United States, and in wishing him all the best both now and in the future.

BILL ZADICK

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, today I wish to honor a man that has worked his way to and excelled in the highest level of athletic competition, Mr. Bill Zadick. Bill competed in the wrestling world championships in Chongqing, China, where he won the gold medal in the 66 kilogram weight class. The wrestling world championships brings together the top wrestlers from around the world, and to win a gold medal is evidence of determination, dedication, and elite talent. The semifinal match that Bill won exemplified these characteristics as he fought for every point in a weight class deemed to be the most difficult of all. Not to be overlooked was the silver medal victory achieved by Mr. Mike Zadick, brother to Bill, in the 60 kilogram weight class. As did Bill, Mike represented the fine qualities of a champion and the honor in his achievement will be long celebrated.

Growing up in Great Falls, Bill excelled in wrestling during high school and later at the University of Iowa. His hard work ethic, adopted from his father, helped shape Bill into a world-class wrestler. After the 2001 world championships where Bill placed seventh, his desire for perfection landed him in Colorado Springs where he developed a training program that would eventually earn him a gold medal. Not only has Bill set an example for athletic excellence, but he has acted as a role model for fellow Montanans. Montana is a state with a long tradition of producing world champions and it is because of men like Bill that we have the opportunity to continue this great honor.

Considered to be a part of the greatest wrestling family in Montana, Bill and Mike Zadick deserve the praise and recognition given to them. We are proud as well as fortunate to have men such as Bill and Mike Zadick from Montana, demonstrating their amiable talent and acting as role models to younger generations of athletes and students alike.

INAUGURATION OF DR. WILLIAM CLARK, III

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. President, I congratulate Dr. Spurgeon William Clark, III on the occasion of his inauguration as The Medical Association of Georgia’s 152nd President this weekend. I have had the privilege of knowing Dr. Clark for many years. He is an esteemed physician, community leader, devoted father and son, and dear friend.

Dr. Clark graduated from Waycross High School and received a bachelor’s degree cum laude in 1975 from Davidson College in North Carolina. He received his medical degree from the Medical College of Georgia and interned at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk. He performed his residency at Bascom Palmer Eye Institute at the University of Miami.

Dr. Clark operates the Clark Eye Clinic in Waycross, GA, and attends patients of all ages. There is no question that he is a leader in his field. He has been included in “The Best Doctors in the South” in 1996, 1998, 2002, 2004 and 2006. He has performed groundbreaking surgeries involving the perfecting of new refractive surgeries, cataract surgery, and the refining of implanting lenses. His ophthalmology career includes time and work spent as an active member of Satilla Regional Medical Center, Emory Eye Care Center, the Atlanta VA Medical Center, where he has been a clinical assistant professor since 1997, and the Medical College of Georgia, where he has been a clinical assistant professor since 1998.

He has previously served the Medical Association of Georgia as a member, delegate and as a member of the Board of Directors. He has also served the Georgia AMA delegation as Vice Chair and as President-elect, the Okefenokee Medical Association as President, as Secretary as well as Director of the Eighth District Medical Society, and asPresident of the Board of the Okefenokee Physicians Network, Inc., and as Vice President of the Satilla Regional Medical Center Staff Executive Committee.

Dr. Clark’s accomplishments are indeed endless. Not only is he a leader in the medical field, he is an active citizen and parent in the Waycross community. He has received awards on numerous occasions for his service. He is the recipient of the 1987 Jack Williams Community Service Award, the 1986 Waycross Pogo Good Citizenship Award, the 1989 Waycross Pogo Good Citizenship Award, the 1989 Waycross Pogo Good Citizenship Award, the 1986 Waycross Pogo Good Citizenship Award, the 2000 Excellency in Education Award, and the 1990 Rotarian of the Year Award.

He has served as Vice President and President of the Williams Heights Elementary School PTA, as President of the Waycross Middle School PTA, and as Board member of the Okefenokee Heritage Center. Additionally, he has served in leadership positions with the United Way, the Waycross-Ware County Chamber of Commerce, the Downtown Waycross Development Authority, the First United Methodist Church, the Waycross-Ware County Board of Education, and the Waycross-Ware County Board of Education.

Dr. Clark and his wife, Jill, have three daughters Victoria, Evelyn, and Alora. I know that this is a special time in particular for Dr. Clark and his family, because this inauguration continues a tradition of family service within the medical community. Dr. Clark’s father previously served as the Medical Association of Georgia’s 130th President in 1984.

I would like to extend my congratulations to Dr. Clark on his inauguration this weekend and commend him for all of his accomplishments. I know he will serve The Medical Association of Georgia well as their 152nd President.

A DEDICATED AND PASSIONATE IDAHO EDUCATOR

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, today I wish to honor a dedicated teacher in my home State of Idaho. In the late summer of 1963 J. Kent Marlor first stepped onto the campus of Ricks College in Rexburg, ID, as a brand new 26-year-old teacher. During that first year, he taught American history and political science and took the role of debate coach. When asked of his years at Ricks, he said, “I don’t know how I did it the first year I came here. I’ve had chances to go to a number of different places over the years, but the smallness of the school . . . you know all the students [and] the faculty [and] the spirit that has always been here is a great thing for me.” On August 24, 2006, he retired after 43 years teaching thousands of students in the political science department. He retired as the longest serving instructor in the 118-year history of the institution.

Kent is a man well loved by those with whom he has come in contact. He has touched the lives of many of his students and has been able to help them gain confidence and direction in their fields of study. He is a mentor to many and will be loved by faculty and students alike at Ricks College, which became Brigham Young University-Idaho in 2000.

During an interview with the Rexburg Standard Journal, Marlor said, “Success of a teacher is really measured in the lives of the students.” The newspaper reported that Marlor’s students are now judges, doctors, attorneys, legislators and editors.
I have had firsthand experience with the fruits of Kent Marlor’s educational efforts. Over the years, at least 10 of my Senate interns have been his students as well as several current and former members of my staff. When talking about Kent, former interns, Marlor said, “My reward for being a teacher comes when I see what my students have accomplished.”

Before his long and distinguished teaching career, Marlor served his count in Naval Intelligence and at the National Security Agency. He also served as president of the Idaho Wildlife Federation and the chairman of the Idaho Fish and Game Advisory Committee. At his side in many of these meetings was his wife of over 50 years, Sharon. Together they raised six children who have also been very active in education and in their communities.

Even though he has served in our Nation’s Armed Forces, intelligence service, and in various community organizations, his most gratifying service has come with the Teton Peaks Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Over the years, Kent and Sharon earned their spot in the Boy Scout Hall of Fame by organizing countless camps, merit badge camps, Eagle Scout projects and Courts of Honor. In recognition of his efforts, Kent was honored with the Silver Beaver Award in 1982. Sharon was honored with the same award in 1989.

Kent loves the outdoors. His love of fishing is in the Upper Snake River Valley. There isn’t a lake, reservoir, river, stream, creek, ditch, or puddle that hasn’t been explored with his beloved rod and reel at least once in the last 40 years. It is my understanding that Scout troops who go on extended camping trips with Kent don’t take much food with them. Wherever they go, Kent is sure to provide plenty of fresh trout for breakfast, lunch, and dinner. Kent taught his Scouts to appreciate the beauty around them as well as how to conserve it for future generations.

I wish Kent and Sharon Marlor many happy years in retirement and thank them both for the contribution to education and the youth of Idaho.

TRIBUTE TO MARY BOURDETTE

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I wish to pay tribute to Mary Bourdette, who passing away earlier this month after a 15-month struggle with ALS. My condolences go to Mary’s family and the many friends and colleagues with whom she shared her spirit and commitment to social justice and making our country stronger through our families.

Mary is missed by me and so many others who had the honor to work with her as she championed the needs of those who have no voice in the political process. Our nation is truly better for the work on behalf of children and families.

Mary, who keenly understood the legislative process, combined her passion for good policy with a political pragmatism that yielded real results. She never lost sight of the important issues and built effective coalitions to guide important legislation to passage. Most notably, her focus on the children never let me tell you the dedication of professionals at the community health centers of Southern Iowa have answered that question in powerful ways. They have committed themselves to providing high-quality health care to all comers, regardless of ability to pay. It is a lesson we can learn from her.

Her commitment, talent, and leadership improved the lives of countless Americans. I had the honor to have worked with her over the past 20 years on behalf of those among us with the greatest needs. Mary had an ability to cut to the heart of an issue and move it forward. She was a driving force during the 3½ years we worked to win enactment of the child care and development block grant. She played a critical role in expanding the earned-income tax credit to help even more low-income families. She also helped to move forward important bills related to foster care and adoption. Her keen understanding of the technical Federal budget process benefited innumerable children and their families.

I am especially grateful for Mary’s tireless work related to Head Start. During reauthorization of this important legislation in 1993, she was instrumental in the creation of Early Head Start that provided comprehensive assistance to parents and their infants and toddlers. When the law was again reauthorized in 1998, Mary was there to ensure that it was further strengthened.

I applaud Mary’s many accomplishments throughout her distinguished career. From the Legal Services Corporation to the Children’s Defense Fund to the Child Welfare League of America to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, her dedication to helping the most vulnerable among us never wavered.

Mary Bourdette made enormous contributions and left all of us with much to protect and to build on in the future. With so many lives are so grateful to Mary for her dedication and work to better the lives of our Nation’s children.

EXTRAORDINARY PUBLIC SERVICE STAFF

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, over the August recess, I had the opportunity to visit the newly opened community health centers of Southern Iowa, located in Leon, IA. I daresay that nobody in the health care profession faces greater challenges than those who choose to work in community health centers—challenges including chronic illness, cultural and linguistic differences, geographical barriers, homelessness, and on and on. Nothing stops these super professionals.

I am deeply grateful to executive director Gary Rees, to medical director, Dr. Patricia Magle, and to all the wonderful staff and board members at these community health centers of Southern Iowa. They work their hearts out to provide the very best health care in a part of my State that has been neglected for too long. I deeply appreciate their passion, their compassion, and their dedication to public service.

Mr. President, in late August, I had the pleasure of attending a ceremonial ribbon-cutting ceremony at the new United Community Health Center in Storm Lake, IA. Having secured funding for the center, which actually opened its doors last March, I was eager to meet with the staff and assess their progress.

I was incredibly impressed by all that this facility has been able to accomplish with relatively modest resources. I call it “the little community health center that could.” The facility is welcoming, modern, and well equipped. And the staff members are truly an inspiration. They have a special passion for their work, and they take pride in the fact that they are providing first-rate health care in one of the most underserved areas of my State.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., used to say that “Life’s most persistent and urgent question is: What are you doing for others?” Let me tell you, the dedicated professionals at the community health centers of Southern Iowa have answered that question in powerful ways. They have committed themselves to providing high-quality health care to all comers, regardless of ability to pay. It is a lesson we can learn from her.

This is why, as ranking member on the education and health appropriations subcommittee, I am 100 percent committed to securing appropriate funding for community health centers. One thing I know for certain: Every dollar Congress appropriates for centers like the one in Leon is a dollar spent wisely and frugally. It never ceases to amaze me how their staffs are able to do so much—and to serve so many people—with such modest resources.

They have committed themselves to providing high-quality health care to all comers, regardless of ability to pay. All are welcomed equally. All are served with excellence.

This is why, as ranking member on the subcommittee on health appropriations, I am 100 percent committed to securing appropriate funding for community health centers all across America. One thing I know for certain: Every dollar Congress appropriates for centers like the one in Storm Lake is a dollar spent wisely and frugally. It never ceases to amaze me how their staff members are able to do so much—and to serve so many people—with such limited resources.

I daresay that nobody in the health care profession faces greater challenges than those who choose to work in community health centers—challenges including chronic illness, cultural and linguistic differences, geographical barriers, homelessness, and on and on. Nothing stops these superb professionals.

And one more thing: community health centers have a well-deserved reputation for caring and kindness. In some ways, their physicians and nurses are a throwback to another era. They offer a direct and personal style of health care. They follow up. They care about prevention and wellness.

So I am deeply grateful to executive director Renea Seagren, to board chair Mark Prosser, and all the other members of the staff and board at the United Community Health Center. And also to founding board member Larry Rohret, whose dedication to improving the lives of those in greatest need was instrumental in establishing the health center. I was saddened that Larry did not live to see the health center open its doors.

These devoted people work their hearts out to provide the very best health care to some of our most needy citizens. I deeply appreciate their passion, their compassion, and their dedication to public service.

Mr. President, earlier this year, I had the opportunity to visit the newly opened Community Health Center of Fort Dodge in north-central Iowa. I had been fortunate to secure $280,000 for planning and equipment at the facility, and I was eager to see how these resources were being put to use.

As I toured the facility and talked with staff, I was freshly reminded of the extraordinary public service rendered by community health centers all across the United States. But the center in Fort Dodge is truly exceptional. Thanks to the new community health center designation, the folks, there, were able to transition from two free clinics operating very much part time, to a full-time, comprehensive primary care center serving all of Webster County.

And the staff members—from physicians to nurses to custodians—are truly an inspiration. They clearly have a special passion for their work, and they take pride in the fact that they are providing first-rate health care to some of the most underserved people in my state.

Mr. President, several years ago, I encouraged the Fort Dodge community to apply to for community health center designation. I remember visiting a free clinic being operated by St. Mark’s Episcopal Church back in 2003 and meeting a woman who was in such pain from a toothache that she had removed her own tooth with a hammer and screwdriver. No human being should have to resort to such a crude remedy—certainly not in the United States of America. And thanks to the new center in Fort Dodge, those kinds of desperate measures are a thing of the past.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., used to say that “Life’s most persistent and urgent question is: What are you doing for others?” Let me tell you, the dedicated professionals at the Community Health Center of Fort Dodge have answered that question in powerful ways. They have committed themselves to providing high-quality health care to all comers, regardless of ability to pay. All are welcomed equally. All are served with excellence.

So I am deeply grateful to executive director Kathy Wilkes to Randy Kuhlman and Father Steve Hall, who spearheaded the CHC designation effort; to board chair Craig Johnsen and the other board members; and to all the wonderful staff members at the Community Health Center of Fort Dodge. They work their hearts out to provide the very best health care to all who pass through their doors. I deeply appreciate their passion, their compassion, and their dedication to public service.

- Mr. MARTINEZ. Mr. President, today I congratulate Ms. Conchy Breto of Miami, FL, recipient of the 2006 Purpose Prize. This new national award was initiated this year by Civic Ventures, a nonprofit organization dedicated to generating ideas and programs to help society achieve the greatest return on the experience of older Americans.

After a varied career in housing, marketing, health, women’s issues and government, Conchy Breto became committed to doing something about the thousands of low-income elders and disabled adults who were not getting the service they needed to stay in their homes.

She became the driving force behind the Helen Sawyer building in Miami, the Nation’s first public housing project to offer assisted-living service. Her efforts have resulted in the creation of similar services in 40 public housing projects in a dozen States, allowing many older adults to maintain their independence while they receive the medical care they need.

I want to recognize the role of the Purpose Prize itself in changing our society’s view of aging. America’s growing older population is one of our greatest untapped resources, and we need to do everything possible as a society to recognize the great contributions they can make.

By Mr. DE MINT (for himself and Mr. OBAMA):

S. 3995. A bill to provide education opportunity grants to low-income secondary school students; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. DE MINT. Mr. President, I rise to speak about legislation that I am introducing today along with the Senator from Illinois, Mr. OBAMA. At this time of year, with much bitter partisanship, I really am pleased to work with Senator OBAMA for something that we think is important to the country.

The Education Opportunity Act is a bill that would significantly expand college-level opportunities for low-income high school graduates and teach these students that success in school can mean success in life.

In the fast-paced, technologically advanced global economy of the 21st century, old distinctions between high school and college are becoming obsolete. For our students to succeed in tomorrow's workplace, we must be innovative and allow more choices of study today.

As we look toward reauthorizing No Child Left Behind, I believe it is important to examine what has worked and where students are still falling between the cracks. While we have expanded advanced placement classes, what we call AP classes, through the President's Advanced Placement Incentives Program, I believe we are missing another vital avenue to increase college-level opportunities for low-income students. That is why I am proud to work together with Senator OBAMA to establish education opportunity grants for high school students.

Our bill is similar to the Federal Pell grant program, which funds need-based aid that does not have to be repaid by the students. These grants could be made available for classes at community colleges or universities that would admit a high school student to enroll in classes. These grant scholarships will help keep our high school students in school by raising their expectations and showing them that they can do college work. They could also accumulate college-level credits while still in high school.

Our national dropout rate is at record highs, and it is on the rise. In my own home State of South Carolina, high school students drop out at an alarming rate, with half of all students failing to complete high school in 4 years. It is no secret that most of these at-risk students are from low-income families.

Currently, there are only two ways high school students can gain college credit. They either take the AP classes at high school or participate in dual enrollment programs. Some high schools, particularly those with a high percentage of low-income students, are not able to offer advanced placement classes, and students are required to forgo college classes that they might want to take because their families can't afford to foot the bill. The result is that students with great promise who happen to come from disadvantaged families lose interest in a school that does not offer classes tailored to their talents and interests.

Senator OBAMA and I believe if we expose students to the hundreds of classes available at their local colleges, some of which are listed on the chart behind me, many students who are not excited about high school world history classes will, instead, discover that they are interested in computer science or marketing and can learn a skill that they can see directly apply to their future job.

Make no mistake, traditional classes in biology, English, and history are important. But if a student drops out because they don't have the flexibility to also pursue more nontraditional avenues, those classes do not do them any good.

Education opportunity grants are a cost-effective way to educate students by utilizing the preexisting infrastructure already available at local colleges. I believe this will show many students that a college degree is attainable and that they will be better prepared to start college or enter the workforce with marketable skills as a high school graduate.

As I mentioned before, I believe it is critical that we do a better job accommodating the needs of all our students and continue to create opportunities for each young person to learn in ways that make sense to them and have direct application to their goals in life.

This legislation is one more valuable option for our educational system to empower students and parents with choices and the ability to follow an educational path that meets their individual needs.
It is time we stopped forcing our kids to fit our educational system and, instead, force our educational system to fit our kids. That is the only way that success in school will mean success in life.

I thank Senator Obama and his great staff for working with my office on this important legislation, and I look forward to working with the Senator from Wyoming, Mr. Enzi, and the Senator from Massachusetts, Ranking Member Kennedy, to make this legislation a reality.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, today I rise to join my colleague from South Carolina, Senator Jim DeMint, in introducing the Education Opportunity Act.

We often hear that many students who graduate from high school are not ready for the academic rigors of college. This is especially problematic for students from low-income families. For these students to succeed in the transition to college, they must have opportunity and a continuity of classroom experiences that prepare them for success. Academic rigor in a high school curriculum is essential in establishing the momentum necessary for a student to progress toward a bachelor’s degree.

The unfortunate fact is that not all students have access to a challenging high school curriculum. Low-income students are often disadvantaged by a lack of rigorous courses in their high school, especially in subjects such as the advanced mathematics courses that are important for college success. Universities and community colleges have increasingly provided such courses to high school students. But the cost of such classes can be a barrier to low-income students, who are the very students most likely to be enrolled in high schools that provide the most limited access to challenging college preparatory curricula.

This legislation will provide a program for grant support to allow thousands of students with limited exposure to college-level programs in their high schools to earn college credit at their local university or community college. I urge my colleagues to join us in extending opportunities for college success, to deserving low-income high school students.

By Mr. FEINGOLD:

S. 3998. A bill to amend the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act to provide relief for servicemembers with respect to contracts for cellular phone service, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, today I introduce a bill that seeks to make life a little easier for our servicemembers and their families when they are called up to duty or transferred. We all recognize the heroic sacrifices of our servicemen and women in our armed services provide the Nation each day. So when I heard stories about servicemembers and their families in Wisconsin having trouble canceling their cell phone contracts after being called up, I looked for a way to help. With the advent of combat assignment, the last thing our men and women in uniform should have to worry about are early termination fees or being forced to pay for a service they cannot use. I tried to have this provision adopted as an amendment to the Defense authorization bill in June and, while I was unsuccessful, I will continue to push for the adoption of this commonsense measure.

These problems with canceling cellular phone service are not just isolated incidents. In fact, the issue has been raised by the Wisconsin National Guard. I ask unanimous consent that the full testimony of First Lieutenant Melissa Inlow of the Wisconsin Army National Guard be printed in the RECORD on a Wisconsin State assembly bill in April be printed in the RECORD.

I just want to highlight one part of that testimony which makes the point that this is a real issue facing our servicemembers: “It is becoming increasingly difficult to get cell phone service providers to suspend the contract. Even with suspension the soldiers are still paying up to $25 a month for a service they cannot reap the benefits of. These fees can accumulate to more than the termination fee which on average is $200.” First Lieutenant Inlow went on to specifically recommend that the Servicemembers’ Civil Relief Act be amended to include a section on phone service.

First Lieutenant Inlow and the Wisconsin National Guard are not alone in this opinion either. The National Guard Association of the United States, the Enlisted Association of the National Guard of the United States, and the Military Officers Association of America have all expressed support for my amendment—which is virtually identical to the legislation I introduce today.

It is common now for cellular phone contracts to require a contract term of up to two years. Along with these long contracts, there are often early termination fees of several hundred dollars. When a National Guard member is called up to active duty or a soldier is transferred overseas or to a base that isn’t covered by their current provider, they often face the prospect of either paying these significant fees or paying monthly fees for the remainder of the contract for a service they cannot use. While many families and their families have been able to work with telecommunications companies to eventually get the early termination fee canceled, the account suspended, or the fees reduced, they have enough to deal with after being called up that they should not have this added burden as well.

My legislation proposes that we bring these cellular phone contracts in line with what we have already done for reservists and automotive leases in the Servicemembers’ Civil Relief Act—let the servicemembers cancel the contract. Under my proposal, if servicemembers are called up for more than 90 days, transferred overseas, or transferred to a location where they could not continue their service at the same rate, they could cancel their contract without a termination fee.

While my legislation helps to prevent servicemembers from being financially punished for volunteering to protect this country, I have also tried to make sure that the telecommunications providers are treated fairly as well. That is why I have included a provision that would allow the providers to request the return of cell phones provided as part of the contract. If the company requests the return under this provision, it would also have to give the servicemember the option of paying a prorated amount for the cell phone should he or she wish to keep it. Moreover, if the provider and servicemember mutually agree to suspend instead of terminate the contract, the bill makes sure that the reactivation fee is waived.

While this is a modest addition to the rights of servicemembers, it is important that we remove as many unfair burdens facing this country’s men and women in uniform as we can. I hope my colleagues will share this view and quickly adopt this nonpartisan proposal.

TESTIMONY FOR THE RECORD OF FIRST LIEUTENANT MELISSA INLOW AT A HEARING ON WISCONSIN ASSEMBLY BILL 1174 ON APRIL 17, 2006

Thank you, chairman and members of the committee, for the opportunity to speak. The Department of Military Affairs and the Wisconsin National Guard is in support of senate bill 1174. I am First Lieutenant Melissa Inlow, a Judge Advocate General Officer with the Wisconsin Army National Guard. By granting servicemembers the right to terminate their cell phone contracts upon mobilization, you are ensuring further protections and peace of mind for our servicemembers. In Wisconsin, I was brought on to provide legal assistance to our deployed servicemembers and their families. Since that time, about 3-5 percent of my time has been dedicated to assisting servicemembers in resolving issues with their cell phone service contracts. It’s becoming increasingly difficult to get cell phone service providers to suspend the contract. Even with suspension the soldiers are still paying up to $25 a month for a service they cannot reap the benefits of. These fees can accumulate to more than the termination fee which on average is $200. I’ve found it very difficult and sometimes impossible to reach a live person and very difficult to get a person with authority. Each time I have had to call a cellular phone service provider, I have talked to... a different customer service representative, and each has given me a different resolution to the cell phone issue. The companies are lacking significantly in internal consistency when it comes to resolving cell phone contract issues. It has been my experience that the customer service representatives of cell phone companies experience high turn over rate and do not have adequate training. This creates confusion among our servicemembers allowing them to focus on their mission. I hope that the Federal Government will follow suit and amend the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act to incorporate a section on cell phone contracts.

By Mr. LUGAR:
S. 4000. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to modify the alcohol credit and the alternative fuel credit, to amend the Clean Air Act to promote the installation of fuel pumps for E-85 fuel, to amend title 49 of the United States Code to require the manufacture of dual fueled automobiles, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the National Fuels Initiative Act of 2006. This act presents to this Congress a plan to bring meaningful reductions in the amount of oil we consume in the United States and reduce our dependency on oil imports. Dependence on imported oil has put the United States in a position that no great power should tolerate. Our economic health is subject to forces far beyond our control, including the decisions of hostile countries. We maintain a massive military presence overseas, partly to preserve our oil lifeline. We have lost leverage on the international stage and are daily exacerbating the problem by participating in an enormous wealth transfer to authoritarian nations that happen to control the remainder of the oil we buy. It is time for the leaders of this great country to commit to a strong effort to reduce our dependency on oil imports.

In the absence of revolutionary changes in energy policy, we are risking multiple disasters for our country that will constrain living standards, undermine our foreign policy goals, and leave us highly vulnerable to the machinations of rogue states. There are at least six threats posed by oil dependence. First oil is vulnerable to supply disruption as a result of natural disasters, wars, and terrorist attacks. Price shocks resulting from a major supply loss can put the U.S. economy into recession. Second, global oil reserves are becoming more limited as easy supply is depleted, global demand rapidly increases, and governments exert more control over reserves. This makes oil more expensive in the short term, and creates the prospect that oil supplies may not be accessible in the future. Third, some oil-rich nations are using energy as an overt weapon. Adversarial regimes from Venezuela, to Iran, to Russia are using energy supplies as leverage against their neighbors. Fourth, hundreds of billions of dollars in oil export revenues flowing to authoritarian regimes increase corruption and buttress democratic reform. In addition, oil dependence means we are channeling this money into the hands of the worst of the worst. This vixen's policy on military suspension. It is extremely frustrating for me; I can only imagine the undue stress and strain it causes our deploying servicemembers and their families that are left behind to deal with these issues. This change will likely help ease the stress machinations of rogue states. There are some oil-rich nations are using this money to invest in terrorism, instability, or demagogic appeals to populism. Fifth, the threat of global climate change has been made worse by inefficient and unclean use of non-renewable energy like oil. This could bring about drought, famine, disease, and mass migration. And finally, dependence on oil increases instability and undermines development in much of the developing world. Rising energy costs can undermine our foreign assistance and hurt stability, development, disease eradication, and efforts to combat the root causes of terrorism.

The new geo-political reality emerging from the global energy situation today serves as a stark reminder of America's vulnerability as a crisis. The heart of America's geostrategic situation is the immutable nature of oil's domination of our economy. The United States has no choice but to seek a major realignment of the way we get and use energy. We cannot keep reducing our reliance on imported oil over the course of the next few decades via the slow progress of market forces. Our energy security situation, then tailor national security policies to achieve that goal. The energy plan presented in this bill is a package of proposals that would dramatically improve America's security posture. It would achieve the replacement of 6.5 million barrels of oil per day by volume—the rough equivalent of one third of the oil used in America and one half of our oil imports. It would provide more jobs for Americans instead of sending American dollars to hostile countries, support our farmers instead of foreign terrorists, and promote green fuels over fossil fuels.

I ask unanimous consent that the full text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

produced fuel, ethanol contributes to our national energy security. As a gasoline additive, ethanol provides air quality benefits by reducing auto tailpipe emissions of air pollutants. Because ethanol is biodegradable, its use poses no threat to surface water or groundwater. Finally, the production of ethanol provides national and regional economic and job-growth benefits by using local resources and labor to contribute to critical national energy needs.

My Congressional colleagues and I have recognized the benefits and potential of ethanol and have promoted its expanded production and use in numerous bills, including most recently in the 2005 energy bill. A key provision in that legislation is the renewable fuels standard under which motor vehicle fuel sold in the United States is required to contain increasing levels of renewable fuel. Several other provisions promote the production and use of ethanol from cellulose, which is an especially attractive approach because it enables the use of a broad variety of feedstocks, including corn stover, wheat straw, forest industry wastes and woody municipal wastes.

The benefits of ethanol are reflected in the rapid expansion of its production and use, which has increased by more than 20 percent annually for the past several years. Moreover, ethanol's longer-term potential to become a very significant energy source for transportation also is gaining attention. A number of studies have concluded that ethanol can contribute 20 to 30 percent or more of our transportation fuel in the future. Several of my Senate colleagues joined me to introduce S. 2817, the Biofuels Security Act of 2006 which includes provisions calling for a systematic analysis of the current state of knowledge regarding ethanol pipeline feasibility studies. It calls for analyses of the technological, economic, regulatory, financial and siting issues related to transporting ethanol via pipelines. A systematic analysis of these ethanol pipeline studies will provide the substantive information necessary for assessing the costs and benefits of this transport alternative. DOE would begin now to develop a better understanding of this ethanol transport option.

This bill initiates that process by directing the Department of Energy to conduct ethanol pipeline feasibility studies. It calls for analyses of the technological, economic, regulatory, financial and siting issues related to transporting ethanol via pipelines. A systematic analysis of these ethanol pipeline studies will provide the substantive information necessary for assessing the costs and benefits of this transport alternative. DOE would begin now to develop a better understanding of this ethanol transport option.

By Mr. Domenici: S. 4004. A bill to suspend temporarily in the duty on certain structures, parts, and components for use in an isotopic separation facility in southern Ohio; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, here fund private sector studies or conduct the studies on its own. The results of these studies will provide a clearer picture of the benefits and challenges of pipeline transport of ethanol. They will provide critical information, both for the ethanol industry as it contemplates the future pipeline transport alternatives, and for policy-makers seeking to understand what federal policies or programs might be appropriate to promote the most cost-effective and environmentally sound ethanol transportation.

We have broad agreement on the need to do all that we can to reduce our dependence on oil. We are promoting expanding production and use of renewable fuels in many ways, but we need to consider the full range of infrastructure issues that broader ethanol use entails. Because of the rapid growth of ethanol production and use, these studies of pipeline transport of ethanol should be undertaken in the very near future. I urge my Senate colleagues to join me in passing this important and timely legislation.

By Mr. Domenici: S. 4004. A bill to suspend temporarily in the duty on certain structures, parts, and components for use in an isotopic separation facility in southern Ohio; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. Domenici. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

S. 4004

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. CERTAIN STRUCTURES, PARTS, AND COMPONENTS FOR USE IN AN ISO-TOPIC SEPARATION FACILITY IN SOUTHERN OHIO.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter II of chapter 99 of the Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States is amended by inserting in numerical sequence the following new heading:

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) applies to goods entered, or withdrawn from warehouse for consumption, on or after the 15th day after the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Mr. DOMENICI:

S. 4007. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to conduct feasibility studies to identify opportunities to increase the surface flows of the Rio Grande, Canadian, and Pecos Rivers in the State of New Mexico, and for other purposes.

Mr. Domenici. Mr. President, monsoons this summer provided New Mexico with a brief reprieve from drought conditions that have persisted in some areas of New Mexico since 2000. We would be remiss to let our recent good fortune influence our long-term water planning. This year were the wettest July and August in the past 112 years. Clearly, we cannot assume these events will become commonplace. For this reason, we must take steps to ensure we are prepared for future drought and increasing competition for our limited water supplies. Despite summer rains, many reservoirs are still far below historical averages. According to recent reservoir data, Heron and El Vado Reservoirs on the Chama River are 71 percent and 56 percent of average, respectively; Conchas Reservoir on the Canadian River is 50 percent of average; and Elephant Butte Reservoir on the Rio Grande is 27 percent of average. Moreover, because storage in Elephant Butte Reservoir has not reached 400,000 acre feet, the Rio Grande Compact imposes restrictions on New Mexico's ability to store water in reservoirs on the Rio Grande and Chama Rivers. As such, recent rains have not contributed significantly to storage on those rivers.
The water crisis we were facing prior to the summer rains led many to question how we will allocate this finite resource among numerous and competing needs. As witnessed on the Klamath River and the Rio Grande in New Mexico, water shortages often result in litigation that plagues municipalities, agricultural producers, industry, Indians, and the environmental community against one another. In order to avoid such crises in New Mexico, the United States Congress has appropriated enormous sums in an effort to ensure that existing uses are not curtailed. However, unless new sources of water are found, future conflict over water is inevitable.

Recent conditions illustrate the need for us to look for ways to supplement flows of the most severely impacted regions in order to stave off the hardships and conflict that result from lean water years. It is my sincere hope that record-breaking rains this summer will not breed complacency. The bill I introduce today would authorize the United States Bureau of Reclamation to investigate ways to increase the flows of the Rio Grande, Pecos and Canadian Rivers, the three rivers that have been most devastated by long-term drought. While little can be done to increase rainfall, it is my belief that this bill will help us begin to better understand ways to increase the flows of these rivers to help mitigate the damaging effects that drought imposes on the municipalities, agricultural producers, and endangered species that depend on the water these rivers provide.

I thank Representative HEATHER WILSON for introducing a companion measure in the House of Representatives.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “New Mexico Rivers Feasibility Studies Act of 2006”.

SEC. 2. RIO GRANDE, CANADIAN, AND PECOS RIVERS FEASIBILITY STUDY.

(a) In General.—The Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Commissioner of Reclamation (referred to in this Act as the Secretary), shall, in coordination with the State of New Mexico, shall, in accordance with this Act and any other applicable law, conduct feasibility studies to identify opportunities to increase the surface flows of the Rio Grande, Canadian, and Pecos Rivers in the State of New Mexico.

(b) Duration.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the Senate and the Committee on Resources of the House of Representatives a report that describes the results of the feasibility studies conducted under subsection (a).

(c) Authorization.—There is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary to carry out this Act $3,000,000.

By Mr. DOMENICI (for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN):

S. 4008. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to provide financial assistance to the Eastern New Mexico Rural Water Authority for the purposes of planning, financing, constructing, and operating a system to increase the flows of the Rio Grande and Canadian Rivers in New Mexico, and for other purposes; and to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President. I would like to bring to the attention of the Senate a problem faced by communities in eastern New Mexico illustrative of a greater problem that will ultimately be encountered by all who depend on the Ogallala Aquifer for their water. This includes communities in New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming and South Dakota. At one time, the Aquifer contained roughly the same amount of water as Lake Huron. After 65 years of mining, we are now faced with the realization that the Ogallala Aquifer in the Panhandle of Texas and the Ogallala Aquifer have been significantly depleted and continues to be drawn down at an alarming rate.

Many on the periphery of the Aquifer, including much of eastern New Mexico, parts of Kansas and Oklahoma, have been forced to drill new wells in order to supplement existing wells that are producing water at a fraction of the volume of several decades ago. This problem is not limited to those communities dependent on the Ogallala Aquifer. Many other regions entirely reliant on groundwater face a similar problem. As is the case with the communities in eastern New Mexico, when the wells run dry, the only alternative for many is to ship water from long distances. In many instances, this is a very expensive proposition that exceeds the capacity of rural communities’ ability to pay.

In order to address the want of a sustainable water supply in eastern New Mexico, I introduce today the Eastern New Mexico Rural Water System Act of 2006. The bill would authorize the United States Bureau of Reclamation to provide financial assistance to the Eastern New Mexico Rural Water Authority, at a 75 percent Federal cost-share, to construct a pipeline from Ute Reservoir to communities in eastern New Mexico. This project would provide them with a renewable source of water and move water that, currently, is unclear how many years the groundwater resources on which they rely will be available.

The communities which make up the Eastern New Mexico Rural Water Authority are due a great deal of credit for initiating engineering studies, project financing studies, and seeking support for the project from local, Federal and State governments. However, it would be misleading to suggest that securing appropriations for this or similar types of easy tasks that the funds will be available any time soon. The current budget of the United States Bureau of Reclamation simply cannot accommodate the large sums of money that this or other water supply projects would require. As Chairman of the Energy and Water Development Appropriations Subcommittee, I am acutely aware of this fact and I have made this clear to the communities that would benefit from the pipeline authorized by the bill that I introduce today. However, I remain committed to advocate for the need to dedicate substantially more of the national budget to this and other western water issues on the floor of this Congress and this Nation.

In the interim, it is my hope that we can begin the long and difficult process of moving this bill through the Federal legislature. The members of the Eastern New Mexico Rural Water Authority fully appreciate the difficulties that lie ahead.

The problem faced by eastern New Mexico communities will become commonplace as groundwater supplies are exhausted. Approximately half of the people of the United States depend on aquifers for their domestic water needs. In the coming years, the United States Congress will have to provide succor to similar communities who have no alternative than to seek assistance from the Federal Government. Congressman with this need for assistance, Congress will also have to make budgetary decisions that take into account this widespread problem. We would be remiss in our duties to let these communities simply dry up.

I thank Senator BINGAMAN a very friend and colleague for the past 23 years and ranking member of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee for cosponsoring this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, as follows:

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to co-sponsoring a bill which Senator DOMENICI and I are introducing today, that would authorize the Bureau of Reclamation to help communities in eastern New Mexico as well as financial support for the ENMRWS.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation designed to protect the most vulnerable members of our society, our children, from environmental pollution. We are well aware that children are especially vulnerable to the contaminants they spend a good deal of time playing outside, and frequently put foreign objects into their mouths. In proportion to their body weight, they eat, drink, and breathe more than adults, meaning concentrations of pollutants that might not affect adults could have serious consequences for children.

By Mr. MENENDEZ:

S. 4009. A bill to restore, reaffirm, and reconcile legal rights and remedies under civil rights statutes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

I hope my colleagues will support this legislation, thereby helping to address pressing water needs in the rural West.
systems are still developing, making them particularly sensitive to pollutants.

I believe that our environmental laws need to first and foremost protect the most vulnerable members of our society. Unfortunately, many of these pollutants are invisible to adults in mind, and may not adequately protect children. In addition, there have been a number of recent reports in New Jersey about schools and day care centers being built on contaminated sites. One site, in particular, the Kiddie Kollege day care center in Franklin Township, NJ, was operating at the site of a former thermometer factory, exposing the children and employees to dangerous levels of mercury. Sadly, there was no requirement for the property to be tested for environmental contamination prior to opening as a day care center. Subsequently, we have learned about a number of day care centers either built on or adjacent to sites contaminated with volatile organic chemicals and other toxins.

That is why I am introducing this legislation today. The Environmental Protection for Children Act would create a grant program that encourages states to enact laws ensuring that properties are tested for pollution before a new day care center or school is allowed to open. The grants could be used for the testing and cleanup of existing schools and day care centers as well. Furthermore, this bill tightens the Federal programs that regulate hazardous chemicals and environmental pollutants—the Toxic Substances Control Act, Superfund law, Toxic Release Inventory, and Federal Hazardous Substances Act—so that the vulnerability of children to toxins and pollutants is taken into account when public health standards are being developed. It also provides for more research into the specific vulnerabilities of children to environmental pollutants, and in many cases we don’t know how much additional risk children are under.

As a Nation have assiduously acted to protect our children from many of the dangers that they face every day, but we have dropped the ball when it comes to making sure that the places where they spend their days are free from contamination. The Environmental Protection for Children Act will help fix that, and I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this important piece of legislation.

By Mr. SMITH (for himself and Mr. WYDEN):

S. 4013. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to expand the resources eligible for the renewable energy credit to kinetic hydropower, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the bill that will further our Nation’s energy independence, and provide for sustainable electricity generation. This bill, which is cosponsored by my colleague from Oregon Senator WYDEN, will make facilities that generate electricity using kinetic hydropower eligible for a production tax credit.

Under this bill, kinetic hydropower is defined as: "kinetic flowing water derived flows from tidal currents, ocean currents, waves, or estuary currents; ocean thermal energy; or free flowing water in rivers, lakes, man-made channels, or streams.

These innovative technologies are renewable energy resources that can help meet our Nation’s growing demand for electricity. In Oregon, it would be possible to produce and transmit over two hundred megawatts of wave energy without any upgrades to the existing transmission system on the coast. Already a number of preliminary permits have been filed at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for wave energy facilities off the Oregon coast.

These facilities would be virtually invisible from shore, and could provide predictable generation that could be easily integrated with other electricity resources. In addition, according to a January 2005 report issued by the Electric Energy Research Institute, "with proper siting, converting ocean wave energy to electricity is believed to be one of the most environmentally benign ways to generate electricity.”

As with many emerging renewable technologies, wave and tidal energy are more costly than traditional generation using fossil fuels. Yet, for our environment and our energy security, we must provide incentives that will encourage the development and commercialization of these resources.

I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation, and to provide this production tax credit.

S. 4014. A bill to endorse further enlargement of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and to facilitate the timely admission of Albania, Croatia, Georgia, and Macedonia to NATO, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the "NATO Freedom Consolidation Act of 2006. I am pleased that the Majority Leader, Senator FRIST, Senator BIDEN, and Senator SMITH have joined me in proposing this important legislation.

The goal of this bill is to reaffirm United States support for continued enlargement of democracies that are able and willing to meet the responsibilities of membership. In particular, the legislation calls for the timely admission of Albania, Croatia, Georgia, and Macedonia to NATO and authorizes security assistance for these countries, under Section 907. Each of these countries has clearly stated its desire to join NATO and is working hard to meet the specified require-timely admission of Albania, Croatia, Georgia, and Macedonia to NATO.

By Mr. SPECTER (for himself and Mr. SANTORUM):
S. 4017, the bill to provide for an appeals process for hospital wage index classification under the Medicare program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition today to introduce with Senator SANTORUM the Hospital Payment Improvement and Equity Act, which will provide an increased reimbursement for acute care hospitals and inpatient rehabilitation facilities that are disadvantaged by Medicare payments under the Medicare area wage index reclassification system.

For a considerable period of time, there have been a number of counties in Pennsylvania that have been suffering from low Medicare reimbursement rates, which have caused them great disadvantage because their nurses, and other medical personnel are moving to surrounding areas. I refer specifically to Luzerne County, Lackawanna County, Wyoming County, Lycoming County, and Columbia County in northeastern Pennsylvania. Those counties are surrounded by MSAs, metropolitan statistical areas, in Newport, NY, to the north; in Allentown to the southeast; and the Harrisburg MSA to the southwest. All these counties are surrounded by MSAs with higher Medicare reimbursements, a flight of very necessary medical personnel has occurred.

More recently, western Pennsylvania has been faced with Medicare reimbursement that has not kept pace with the rising cost of healthcare placing a tremendous burden on these facilities to provide good jobs at competitive wages.

It has also come to my attention that inpatient rehabilitation facilities are not currently able to maintain equitable Medicare reimbursement. Inpatient rehabilitation facilities receive adjustments in their Medicare reimbursement due to geographic disadvantages within the Medicare inpatient prospective payment system. This is based on information gathered from other acute care facilities in the MSA, not from their own wage information. Inpatient Rehabilitation Facilities, further, cannot apply for reclassification to another MSA that reflects their labor costs. This has prevented those facilities from being eligible for increased funding to assist with wages like acute care facilities, while being forced to compete for employees with those facilities that have had access to increased funding.

I have worked to find a solution to this problem for a number of years. During the conference for the fiscal year 2002 Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education Appropriations bill, I provided $69 million for inpatient rehabilitation facilities in that MSA continued to be disadvantaged by the Medicare area wage index reclassification. This was provided as temporary assistance for those facilities.

During the consideration of the Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement, and Modernization Act of 2003, I met with Finance Chairman GRASSLEY and Ranking Member BAUCUS about the bill provisions, including the need for a solution to the wage index reclassification problem in Pennsylvania. As a result, Section 508 was included in the bill, which provides increased funding for hospitals nationally to be reclassified to locations with higher Medicare reimbursement rates for three years at $300 million per year. The temporary program, which began in April 2004 and will expire April 2007, has and will provide Pennsylvania hospitals $69 million over that time, $23 million per year.

Most recently, as part of the Senate Fiscal Year 2007 Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education Appropriations bill, I provided $4.3 million for hospitals in the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre and Williamsport areas that have been harmed by the ongoing wage index problem. Further, on June 14, 2006, 20 other Senators joined me in sending a letter to Finance Chairman GRASSLEY and Ranking Member BAUCUS in support of Senate action to extend Section 508.

As the Section 508 program is scheduled to expire on March 31, 2007, and the low Medicare area wage index reimbursement is still being unfairly placed on many Pennsylvania hospitals, the legislation I am introducing would extend the current Section 508 benefit to those who are currently receiving funding and to those who deserve funds under the previous competition for this funding.

The legislation builds on the Section 508 Medicare Prescription Drug, Improvement, and Modernization Act of 2003, by providing hospitals who continued to receive Medicare reimbursement an increase in funding. The bill would allow both acute care hospitals and not-for-profit inpatient rehabilitation facilities apply for funding in a similar manner as set forth in Section 508. Facilities that meet specific wage and geographic criteria will receive a three year reclassification.

Under the Section 508, program a number of hospitals meet the necessary criteria to receive reclassification, however, inadequate funding of $300 million per year for the program was provided. As a result, 151 additional hospitals did not receive vital funding. Under this legislation, sufficient funds would be provided to allow all facilities that meet wage and geographic criteria to receive reclassification funding.

To remedy the under-funding of impatent rehabilitation facilities, not for profit facilities will be eligible for funding through this program. If all acute care hospitals in an MSA apply for and receive funding through this program, or have sole community hospital status, or have reclassified to another MSA through another mechanism, then non-profit inpatient rehabilitation facilities in that MSA are eligible. Those rehabilitation facilities will be reclassified to the MSA where a majority of other hospitals from the same MSA have been reclassified.

For those hospitals who received funding under the current Section 508; they will have received the benefit of a higher wage index for three years, April 2004-March 2007. Higher wages will be included in the hospitals’ cost reports and be reflected in the data used to calculate a future wage index. It has always been the hope that this increased funding would enable these hospitals to pay higher wages and subsequently see an increase in the area wage index.

The problem with the wage index system is the use of three-year-old audited cost report data for the calculation of the wage index. Therefore, a full year of Section 508 money from fiscal year 2004 will first be seen in the fiscal year 2008 wage index calculation. For hospitals that end their fiscal year on June 30, that wage data will not be included in their wage index until fiscal year 2009. To reclassify, three years of data is needed to show the proper evidence for eligibility. Thus, the full effect of the Section 508 funding will flow through the wage index system by fiscal year 2011. For this reason, additional funding is needed for the next three years in order for these disadvantaged hospitals to continue paying competitive salaries to their employees.

Under the Section 508, 121 hospitals have and will receive $900 million in assistance, while this is a significant amount of funding, it did not fix the problem of low Medicare wage reimbursement. A long term solution to this problem is needed, however the current Section 508 funding will expire on March 31, 2007 and additional funding is needed for these facilities while we work to find that solution. The loss of hospitals and jobs due to unfair CMS reimbursement is unacceptable.

The hospitals which face this low Medicare reimbursement are in great financial distress. These are hospitals which are serving an aging population in northeastern Pennsylvania and across the nation. This legislation provides Medicare reimbursement assistance for those facilities and ensures Medicare beneficiaries’ access to care. I encourage my colleagues to work with Senator SANTORUM and me to move this legislation forward promptly.

By Mr. WYDEN (for himself, Mr. KERRY, and Mr. OBAMA):

S. 4018. A bill to establish a Vote by Mail grant program; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, when many Americans think of voting, they think of long lines, malfunctioning equipment, closed polls, or even worse, fraud. That’s why so many Americans don’t bother to vote. But in my home State of Oregon, folks vote by mail and these sorts of problems are a thing of the past.

So today I come to the floor to talk about the sorry state of the Nation’s election system and discuss my bill, the Vote by Mail Act of 2006.

There is nothing more fundamental than the right to vote. It is the foundation on which our democracy rests. Weakens the right to vote and you weaken America.

It’s been almost 6 years since the 2000 Florida hanging chad debacle. And yet, problems with America’s election system—and waning confidence in that system—continue to exist.

This year’s primary elections were no exception to the rule:

In Montgomery County, MD, polling places opened late because election officials forgot to distribute the access cards necessary to run the voting machines. Voters resorted to filling out provisional ballots and when those ran out, they used photocopied ballots and even scraps of paper.

Next door, in Prince George’s County, MD, a handful of errors—computers incorrectly incorporating voters’ party affiliation, electronic voter registration lists freezing up, and voting machines failing to transmit data—delayed results of a hotly contested election and may result in a lawsuit.

Long lines, a lack of machines at certain polling places, and other irregularities cast a black mark on Ohio’s 2004 Presidential election results. Unfortunately, this year’s primary elections were also plagued by problems. In Cuyahoga County, Ohio’s largest county, thousands of absentee ballots were incorrectly formatted for electronic scanners and had to be counted by hand. And problems with about 10 percent of the paper ballots cast meant that they couldn’t be counted at all.

In Cook County, IL, new voting technology created headaches at hundreds of voting sites around the county, which delayed results in a decisive county board race.

And in Tarrant County, TX, voting machines rejected ballots as many as six times, which meant that 100,000 more votes were recorded than were actually cast.

These are just a few recent examples of election system snafus that have raised concerns about voting system accuracy and reliability, concerns that have led some states to reconsider their election plans.

Last week, Maryland Governor Robert Ehrlich suggested that the state scrap its new electronic voting system and return to paper ballots. Earlier this year, Governor Bill Richardson of New Mexico got rid of his touch-screen voting machines. Connecticut’s Secretary of State did the same. Both states have decided to use paper ballots and optical scanners instead of electronic machines.

But as Florida reminds us, paper isn’t perfect either and right now—electronic or paper—you can expect there to be lot of problems come November 7th.

Hopefully, these problems won’t affect the outcome of any election. I sure hope they don’t. But whether they do or not, the Election Day problems that I expect will plague states and counties around the nation will push voter confidence in our election system further into the basement.

It’s too late for Congress to do much of anything to fix the problem before the 2006 elections. But we can do something to make sure these problems don’t arise ever again.

So today, along with my esteemed colleagues, Senator JOHN KERRY of Massachusetts and Senator BARACK OBAMA of Illinois, I am introducing the Vote by Mail Act of 2006, a bill that will make Election Day problems a thing of the past and quickly and effectively reinvigorate Americans’ confidence in their election system and in their democracy.

The bill creates a three year, $310 million grant program to help interested states adopt vote by mail election systems like the one that Oregon voters have been successfully using for some time now.

It’s a pretty simple system. Voters get their ballots in the mail. Wherever and whenever they like, right up to Election Day, voters complete their ballots and return them.

With vote by mail, polls don’t open late.

With vote by mail, there aren’t any long lines at the polls.

With vote by mail, there’s no more confusion about where you are supposed to vote.

There’s no more debate about whether you are on the voting rolls—either you get the ballot in the mail, or you don’t. If you don’t, you have time to contact your election officials to sort it out.

Vote by mail means almost no chance of voter fraud because trained election officials match the signature on each ballot against the signature on each voter’s registration card.

No ballot is processed or counted until everyone is satisfied that the two signatures match.

With vote by mail, you’ve got a paper trail. Each voter marks up his ballot and sends it in. That ballot is counted and then becomes the paper record used in the event of a recount.

With vote by mail, there’s much less risk of voter intimidation. That’s why a 2003 study of Oregon voters showed that the groups that would likely be most vulnerable to coercion actually prefer vote by mail.

Vote by mail results in more informed voters. Because folks get their ballots weeks before the election, they have the time they need to get educated about the candidates and the issues, and deliberate in a way not possible at a polling place.

Vote by mail leads to huge election costs savings because it gets rid of the need to transport equipment to polling stations and to hire and train poll workers. Oregon has reduced its election-related costs by 30 percent since implementing vote by mail. I expect that other states that adopt vote by mail will see the same results.

Vote by mail can fix the problems of recent elections a thing of the past. In doing so, it will make our elections fairer and help reinvigorate faith in our democracy.

Vote by mail works. And that’s why Senator KERRY and Senator OBAMA and I are introducing the Vote by Mail Act of 2006 today.

It gives States funds that they can use to make the transition away from traditional voting methods that have led to so many irregularities, so many concerns, and so little confidence in the American election system.

It gives States funds that they can use to adopt Oregon-style vote by mail with the technical assistance and the guidance of the Election Assistance Commission.

I believe that the Vote by Mail Act of 2006 can fix our election system once and for all.

One final point: the Help Americans Vote Act, also known as HAVA, takes important steps to ensure equal access to voting for all Americans. HAVA’s protections are particularly important to voters with disabilities, and it is our responsibility to keep building on that foundation. Nothing in this bill undermines or changes those aspects of HAVA that require vote by mail systems to be just as accessible as any other voting method.

While I think Oregon has proven that people with disabilities can benefit from vote by mail, it is important to keep working with the people who know these issues best to make sure the right to vote is protected. And Senator KERRY, Senator OBAMA, and I look forward to working with disabled and other civil rights organizations, election reform groups, community organizations and the voters themselves to ensure that the Vote by Mail Act of 2006 further promotes access to the American election system.

I am sure that this bill and others like it will provide the technical assistance and the protections for all voters, and for all.

And in Tarrant County, TX, voting machines rejected ballots as many as six times, which meant that 100,000 more votes were recorded than were actually cast.
other States that adopt it will see the same benefits. This bill helps ensure that States have that opportunity. I asked for unanimous consent that my statement be printed into the RECORD and I ask for unanimous consent that the text of the Vote by Mail Act of 2006 be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 4018

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be called as the “Vote by Mail Act of 2006”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The Supreme Court declared in Reynolds v. Sims that “[i]t has been repeatedly recognized that all qualified voters have a constitutionally protected right to vote ... and to have their votes counted.”.

(2) In the 2000 and 2004 presidential elections, voting technology failures and procedural irregularities deprived some Americans of their fundamental right to vote.

(3) In 2000, faulty punch card ballots and other voting irregularities deprived 619,000 registered voters nationwide. A report by the Caltech/MIT Voting Technology Project estimates that approximately 1,600,000 votes for president were intended to be cast but were not counted in the 2000 election because of equipment failures.

(4) In 2004, software errors, malfunctioning electronic voting systems, and long lines at the polls prevented accurate vote counts and prevented some people from voting. For instance, voters at Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio voted for up to 12 hours because there were only 2 machines available for 1,300 voters.

(5) Under the Oregon Vote by Mail system, election officials mail ballots to all registered voters at least 2 weeks before election day. Voters mark their ballots, seal the ballots in both unmarked secrecy envelopes and sealed envelopes, and return the ballots by mail or to secure drop boxes. Once a ballot is received, election officials scan the bar code on the ballot envelope, which brings up the signature on a computer screen. The election official compares the signature on the screen and the signature on the ballot envelope. Only if the signature on the ballot envelope is determined to be authentic is the ballot forwarded on to be counted.

(6) Oregon’s Vote by Mail system has resulted in an extremely low rate of voter fraud because the system includes numerous security measures such as the signature authentication system. Potential misconduct is also easier to punish because the State has the power to punish those who engage in voter fraud with up to five years in prison, $100,000 in fines, and the loss of their vote.

(7) Vote by Mail is one factor making voter turnout in Oregon consistently higher than the average national voter turnout. For example, Oregon experienced a record voting-age-electorate turnout of 58.4 percent in the 2004 presidential election, compared to 58.4 percent nationally. Oregon’s turnout of registered voters for that election was 86.48 percent.

(8) Women, younger voters, and home-makers also report that they vote more often using Vote by Mail.

(9) Vote by Mail reduces election costs by eliminating the need to transport equipment to polling stations and to hire and train poll workers. Oregon has reduced its election-related costs by 30 percent since implementing Vote by Mail.

(10) Vote by Mail allows voters to educate themselves before election day, which provides them with ample time to research issues, study ballots, and deliberate in a way that is not possible at the polling place.

(11) Vote by Mail is accurate—at least 2 studies comparing voting technologies show that absentee voting methods, including Vote by Mail systems, result in a more accurate vote count.

(12) Vote by Mail results in more up-to-date voter rolls, since election officials use forwarding information from the post office to update voter registration.

(13) Vote by Mail allows voters to visually verify that their votes were cast correctly and verifies a ballot for all traditional voting.

(14) In a survey taken 5 years after Oregon implemented the Vote by Mail system, more than 8 in 10 Oregon voters said they preferred voting by mail to traditional voting.

By Mr. INHOFE:

S. 4023. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to convey to the McGee Creek Authority certain facilities of the McGee Creek Project, Oklahoma, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, today I introduce legislation to authorize the title transfer of the McGee Creek Reservoir dam and its associated facilities, which are located approximately 20 miles southeast of Atoka, OK.

My bill transfers title from the Bureau of Reclamation to the McGee Creek Authority. The McGee Creek Authority is a trust of the State of Oklahoma. This Oklahoma entity was established to develop, finance, operate, and maintain the water supply in the McGee Creek Reservoir. Thus, the primary purpose is to provide a dependable "municipal and industrial" water supply for Oklahoma City, the City of Atoka, Atoka County, and the area represented by the Southern Oklahoma Development Trust. The McGee Creek Authority currently operates the dam and associated facilities.

This title transfer under this bill will allow Oklahoma City to make the necessary capital improvements and upgrades needed to assure the continued efficient operation of the Reservoir. This bill is responsible legislation that will result in needed federal funds and will protect the federal government from legal liabilities that could be incurred in their operation.

The intent of this bi-partisan bill is two-fold: to understand the root causes of health disparities, and through better understanding them, wipe them away.

To help foster that fuller comprehension of the challenge we face, this legislation will direct the Secretary of Health and Human Services to collect and report healthcare data by race and ethnicity, as well as geographic location, socioeconomic status and health literacy to identify and address health care disparities.

This legislation outlines mechanisms to research the problem, to conduct educational outreach to minorities, to increase diversity among healthcare professionals, to enhance communication between patients and doctors, and to improve the delivery of healthcare to minorities.

Through educational outreach we can work to change patient behavior.

The top three causes of death among African-Americans are heart disease, cancer, and stroke. This indicates that the adult African-American population has diabetes. And the risks of each of these can be minimized through healthier diet and tobacco cessation.

The bill before us establishes grants for programs that will reach out to health disparity populations, and teach healthier habits. Emphasizing the importance of preventative care is a fundamental step in the road to reducing disparities.

Fostering better communication between healthcare providers and health disparity populations can be achieved in part by encouraging more minorities to enter the healthcare profession. To that end, the bill before us authorizes the Secretary of Health and Human Services to collect and report healthcare data by race and ethnicity. This directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services to collect and report healthcare data by race and ethnicity, as well as geographic location, socioeconomic status and health literacy to identify and address health care disparities.

The bill before us establishes grants for programs that will reach out to health disparity populations, and teach healthier habits. Emphasizing the importance of preventative care is a fundamental step in the road to reducing disparities.

We have a long history in this country of working to eliminate the inequities driven by race, ethnicity, and socioeconomic status. I believe that the bill before us today will go a long way in helping us realize a day when we are truly a Nation of equals.
Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(3) COLLABORATION.—To the extent practicable, the Deputy Assistant Secretary may encourage and facilitate collaboration between State offices of minority health and State offices addressing the needs of other health disparity or disadvantaged populations, including offices of rural health.

(4) DEFINITION.—For the purpose of this subsection, ‘State offices of minority health’ include offices, councils, commissions, or agencies of the States that are designated to address the health needs of minority populations.
Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, unfortunately, serious and unjustified health disparities continue to exist in our Nation today. Over 45 million Americans have no health insurance and often don’t get the health care they need, or else they receive it too late. We know that persons who are uninsured are more likely to delay doctor visits and needed screenings like mammograms and other early detection tests that can help prevent serious illness and death. The Institute of Medicine estimates that at least 18,000 Americans die prematurely each year solely because they lack health coverage.

Some of the most shameful health disparities involve racial and ethnic minorities, and typically they are more likely to be uninsured. African Americans and other minorities are one-third more likely than all other Americans to die from cancer, and according to the Institute of Medicine, minorities are more likely to receive poor care for those with limited English proficiency or low health literacy. The legislation recognizes the importance of this issue for the quality of our health care system and provides funds for activities to improve and encourage services for such patients.

The Minority Health and Health Disparities Research and Education Act of 2006 reauthorizes the Title VII healthcare workforce diversity programs, and supports the Centers of Excellence at Historically Black Colleges and Universities and institutions that educate Hispanic and Native American students.

A diverse health care workforce is essential for a healthy country. Emphasizing workforce diversity does not mean that health care workers of all races should not be prepared to work with diverse patients. We must also train health care professionals to care for culturally competent health care professionals and work towards creating a health care system that is accessible for the more than 46 million Americans who speak a language other than English at home. The bill creates an Internet clearinghouse to help increase cultural competency and improve communication between health care providers and patients. It also supports the development of curricula on cultural competence in health professions schools.

Language barriers in health care obviously contribute to reduced access and poorer care for those who have limited English proficiency or low health literacy. The legislation recognizes the importance of this issue for the quality of our health care system and provides funds for activities to improve and encourage services for such patients.

The Minority Health and Health Disparities Research and Education Act of 2006 reauthorizes the National Center for Minority Health and Health Disparities. The legislation I am introducing today reauthorizes this important Center and strengthens its role in coordinating and planning research that focuses on minority health and health disparities. It further strengthens research in health care quality by establishing a grant program for healthcare delivery sites and community organizations to develop, identify the best practices in disease management strategies and interventions.

In addition, the bill promotes the prevention of racial and ethnic minorities and other health disparity populations in clinical trials and intensifies efforts throughout the Department of Health and Human Services to increase and apply knowledge about the interaction of racial, genetic, and environmental factors that affect people’s health.

Finally, the bill reinforces and clarifies the duties of the Office of Minority Health and Health Disparity Elimination under section 1707 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300u–6) as in effect the day before the enactment of this Act is deemed to be a reference to the Office of Minority Health and Health Disparity Elimination under such section 1707 as amended by subsection (a).
The Institute of Medicine’s 2002 historic report, Unequal Treatment: Confronting Racial and Ethnic Disparities in Healthcare, documented persistent and pervasive disparities in health care for minority groups, even after adjusting for insurance status and socioeconomic factors. The American Journal of Public Health has reported that more than 886,000 deaths could have been prevented from 1991 to 2000 if African Americans had received the same health care as whites. In contrast, the same study estimates that technological improvements in medicine—including better drugs, devices and procedures—prevented only 176,633 deaths during the same period.

African Americans are not the only minorities getting worse care. Data has shown, for example, that compared to white Americans, Mexican Americans receive 38 percent fewer heart medications, and American Indians get recommended care for only 40 percent of quality-of-life measures. The bottom line is that although the level of health care quality is mediocre at best for all Americans, it is much worse for minority groups. And this is unacceptable.

For these reasons, I am joining my colleagues Senator Finkenauer and Senator Kennedy in introducing the Minority Health Improvement and Health Disparity Elimination Act. This critical legislation has a number of important provisions to help address the dismally poor state of health among many underserved populations. First, this bill strengthens education and training in cultural competence and communication, which is the cornerstone of quality health care for all patients. It also reauthorizes the pipeline programs in Title VII of the Public Health Service Act, which seek to increase diversity in the health professions. We all know that the door to opportunity is only half open for minority students in the health professions. The percentage of minority health professionals is shockingly low—African Americans, Hispanics and American Indians account for one-third of the Nation’s population but less than 10 percent of the Nation’s doctors, less than 6 percent of dentists and only 12 percent of nurses. We can do better, and we must.

Lack of workforce diversity has serious implications for both access and quality of health care. Minority physicians are significantly more likely to treat low-income patients, and their patients are disproportionately minority. Studies have also shown that minority physicians provide higher quality of care to minority patients, who are more satisfied with their care and more likely to follow their doctor’s recommendations.

Second, this bill expands and supports a number of initiatives to increase access to quality care. Specifically, the legislation authorizes demonstration projects to help address health disparities in the U.S.-Mexico border region, increase health coverage and continuity of coverage, identify and implement effective disease management strategies, train community health workers, and increase enrollment of minorities in clinical trials. The REACH program at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and several of the University Collaboratives at the Bureau of Primary Health Care are authorized in statute. And I am pleased that the Community Health Initiative has also been authorized. This new environmental public health program is modeled after the Health Action Zones in the Healthy Communities Act, S. 2047, that I introduced a year ago, and guides and strengthens community efforts to improve health in comprehensive and sustained fashion.

A third area of focus is expansion and acceleration of data collection and research across the agencies, including the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality and the National Institutes of Health, with special emphasis on translational research. The tremendous advances in science and health technology, which have benefited millions of Americans, have remained out of reach for too many minorities, and translational research will help to remedy this problem. The National Institutes of Health and Health and Disparities has a leadership role in establishing the disparities research strategic plan at the National Institutes of Health, is reauthorized, and a new advisory committee established at the Food and Drug Administration, to focus on pharmacogenomics and its safe and appropriate application in minority populations.

Last but not least, I want to highlight that the bill reauthorizes the Office of Minority Health and Health Disparity Elimination. This Office has been critical in providing the leadership, expertise and guidance for health improvement activities within the Department of Health and Human Services, and has helped to ensure coordination, collaboration and integration of such efforts as well.

In conclusion, I want to note that this is the first bipartisan effort on minority health and health disparities since 2000, when the Congress passed the last minority health bill. That bill accelerated the research that documented the full scope and magnitude of disparities in health and health care in the United States. The Department of Health and Human Services, and the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, helped us understand why these disparities occur. But it is time for the next step. We’ve got to translate the knowledge we have gained into practical and effective interventions that will improve minority health and eliminate disparities, and this bill will help us do just that.

I urge my colleagues to join me in cosponsoring and passing this critical legislation. Regardless of how you measure it—whether by needless suffering, lost productivity, financial costs, or lives lost—disparities in health and health care are a tremendous problem and moral imperative for our Nation, and one that is within our power to address right now. On behalf of the millions of Americans who continue to be sick and tired of being sick and tired, I ask you to join me in voting yes to pass this bill.

By Mr. SPECTER (for himself, Mr. LOTT, Mr. LEAHY, and Ms. LANDRIEU):

S. 4025. A bill to strengthen antitrust enforcement in the insurance industry; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I seek recognition today to introduce the Insurance Industry Antitrust Enforcement Act of 2006. This legislation would subject the insurance industry to the antitrust laws, which apply to almost every other industry in America.

Congress enacted the McCarran-Ferguson Act in 1945. It did so in response to a controversial Supreme Court case involving the Court's refusal to regulate the business of insurance constituted interstate commerce. The ruling opened the door to federal regulation of insurance, a business that had historically been regulated by the States. Reacting to concern from the insurance industry that they would no longer have authority to collect taxes on insurance premiums, Congress passed McCarran-Ferguson, which reaffirmed the power of the States to regulate insurance and collect taxes.

In doing so, Congress exempted insurance industry practices from the antitrust laws to the extent that such practices are “regulated by state law.” Since then, the courts have liberally interpreted the phrase “regulated by state law.” They have held that insurance industry practices are exempt from the antitrust laws so long as regulators have been given jurisdiction over the challenged practices—regardless of whether the regulators ever exercised that jurisdiction.

Over the years, State regulators have either chosen not to regulate, or failed to regulate, practices that would have violated the antitrust laws absent McCarran-Ferguson. With McCarran-Ferguson, such practices escape both regulatory and federal antitrust oversight. The most notable practices to come to light involved bid-rigging and customer allocation by insurance broker, Marsh & McLennan, and several of the nation’s largest insurers, including AIG and Zurich American Insurance Company. Under the scheme, Marsh steered unsuspecting clients to insurers with which it had lucrative payoff agreements. To make the scheme work, Marsh solicited fictitious bids from other complicit insurers to make the bid submitted by the selected insurer—the one that offered Marsh the highest payoff—appear competitive.

Even though the scheme eliminated competition among the insurance companies that were involved, those companies could not be prosecuted under Federal antitrust law. Several States prosecuted the insurance companies under a variety of State laws, including antitrust laws, but federal prosecutors could not bring their significant resources to bear. There simply is no justification for that. Federal law enforcement should have the power to prosecute such blatant violations of the antitrust laws.

This is not the first attempt to subject the insurance industry to Federal antitrust law. In the wake of numerous insolventcies, mismanagement and other misconduct by insurers in the late 1980s, legislation was introduced repealing the exemption. That legislation, introduced by Congressman Brooks, faced opposition from insurers who claimed that many industry practices engaged in jointly by insurance companies were pro-competitive and necessary for smaller insurers. The legislation provided a safe harbor, specifically listing the practices of insurance companies that would be exempt from the antitrust laws. However, it proved impossible to craft a list of safe harbors for all the information that competing insurers claimed they needed to share with one another. This bill has avoided that problem.

More recently, some have argued that because insurance is a business for the Gulf Coast and beyond, the McCarran-Ferguson Act is no longer necessary for smaller insurers. The legislation provided a safe harbor, specifically listing the practices of insurance companies that would be exempt from the antitrust laws. However, it proved impossible to craft a list of safe harbors for all the information that competing insurers claimed they needed to share with one another. This bill has avoided that problem.

As I said, allowing Federal prosecutors to go after those who violate the antitrust laws will not prevent states from regulating the insurance industry. If a state is actively supervising practices by its insurance industry that might otherwise violate the antitrust laws, this legislation would exempt that practice from the antitrust laws. Antitrust law does not generally apply where a state is actively regulating an industry. This is as it should be and the legislation I introduce today, the Insurance Industry Antitrust Act of 2006, incorporates that standard.

The Judiciary Committee held a hearing on this issue in May.

During the hearing, Marc Racicot, the President of the American Insurance Association, a trade association composed of the nation’s largest insurers, acknowledged that “every State provides some form of antitrust regulation of insurers.” In other words, many States already enforce their State antitrust laws with respect to insurers. So, I have to ask, why have we tied the hands of our Federal enforcers?

The insurers will argue that repealing the antitrust exemption for insurers will create uncertainty by throwing into question the legality of every joint practice engaged in by insurers. They will argue that the legality of every joint practice will have to be litigated in court. However, this bill has been drafted to avoid such litigation. Rather than incorporating a laundry list of safe harbors, an approach that was taken in the past, the bill would allow the Federal Trade Commission to issue guidelines identifying joint practices that do not raise antitrust concerns and would therefore not face scrutiny from antitrust enforcers.

This is a job for which the Commission is well equipped. In the past, the Commission, along with the Justice Department issued “Statements of Antitrust Enforcement Policy in Health Care.” The Health Care Statements identified joint conduct by health care providers that did not raise antitrust concerns and therefore would likely escape scrutiny by antitrust enforcers. The Health Care Statements were designed to give health care providers confidence about their joint conduct under the antitrust laws. Similar guidelines for the insurance industry would provide insurers with certainty, but at the same time, would ensure that joint practices that are anti-competitive receive scrutiny from the antitrust enforcement agencies.

Although insurers oppose repeal of their antitrust exemption, others support a repeal. In particular, the Antitrust Section of the American Bar Association has long supported repeal. During the Committee’s hearing, the current head of the Antitrust Section, Donald Klawiter testified that “the benefits of antitrust exemptions almost never outweigh the potential for anticompetitive practices on the potential for anticompetitive practices on the insurance market.” He noted that joint practices in the industry are “highly likely to have an adverse effect on the functioning of the health insurance market.”

It is my hope that this legislation will bring the benefits of competition to the insurance industry and to consumers. Too many consumers are paying too much for insurance due to the collusive atmosphere that exists in the industry. This has become a particular problem along the Gulf Coast, where insurers have shared hurricane loss projections, which may result in double-digit increases for Gulf Coast homeowners.

I strongly urge my colleagues who are concerned about industry exemption from the antitrust laws and collusive insurance industry practices to support this important piece of legislation. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation designed to make the tax laws more fair for America’s primary and secondary school teachers.

Our public school teachers are some of the unheralded heroes of our society. These women and men dedicate their careers to educating the young people of America. School teachers labor in a difficult and even dangerous circumstance. In most schools, including many in my home State of Utah, the salary of the average public school teacher is significantly below the national average.

Unfortunately, these problems of retention and recruitment of our public school teachers are exacerbated by the unfair tax treatment these professionals currently receive under our tax law. Specifically, teachers find themselves greatly disadvantaged by the lack of deductibility of professional development expenses and out-of-pocket costs of classroom materials that practically all teachers find themselves supplying.

Let me explain. As many other professionals, most elementary and secondary school teachers regularly incur expenses to keep themselves current in their field of knowledge. These include subscriptions to journals and other periodicals as well as the cost of courses and seminars designed to improve their knowledge or teaching skills. These expenditures are necessary to keep our teachers up to date on the latest ideas, techniques, and trends so that they can provide our children with the best education possible.

Furthermore, almost all teachers find themselves providing basic classroom materials for their students. Because of tight education budgets, most schools do not provide 100 percent of the material teachers need to adequately present their lessons. As a result, dedicated teachers incur personal expenses for copies, art supplies, books, puzzles and games, paper, pencils, and countless other needs. If not for the willingness of teachers to purchase these supplies themselves, many students would simply go without needed materials.

I realize that employees in many fields of endeavor incur expenses for professional development and out-of-pocket expenses. In many cases, however, these costs are fully reimbursed by the employer. This is seldom the case with school teachers. Other professionals who are self-employed are able to fully deduct these types of expenses.

A historic turnover is taking place in the teaching profession. While student enrollments are rising rapidly, more than a million veteran teachers are nearing retirement.

Experts predict that overall we will need more than two million new teachers in the next decade.

This teacher recruitment problem has reached crisis proportions in some urban and rural areas. The shortage is most acute in high-need subject areas such as math, science, and technology.

Retaining qualified teachers in the schools is only part of the puzzle. Attracting new teachers in math, science, and technology is another. It is clear that our teacher recruitment problem represents one of the biggest challenges America faces as we contemplate how we are going to prepare the next generation to take their places in our society and in our economy.

As many other professionals, most elementary and secondary school teachers regularly incur expenses to keep themselves current in their field of knowledge. These include subscriptions to journals and other periodicals as well as the cost of courses and seminars designed to improve their knowledge or teaching skills. These expenditures are necessary to keep our teachers up to date on the latest ideas, techniques, and trends so that they can provide our children with the best education possible.

Furthermore, almost all teachers find themselves providing basic classroom materials for their students. Because of tight education budgets, most schools do not provide 100 percent of the material teachers need to adequately present their lessons. As a result, dedicated teachers incur personal expenses for copies, art supplies, books, puzzles and games, paper, pencils, and countless other needs. If not for the willingness of teachers to purchase these supplies themselves, many students would simply go without needed materials.

I realize that employees in many fields of endeavor incur expenses for professional development and out-of-pocket expenses. In many cases, however, these costs are fully reimbursed by the employer. This is seldom the case with school teachers. Other professionals who are self-employed are able to fully deduct these types of expenses.
there are two practical hurdles that effectively make these expenses non-deductible for most teachers.

The first hurdle is that the total amount of a taxpayer's deductible miscellaneous deductions must exceed two percent of adjusted gross income before they begin to be deductible.

The second hurdle is that the amount in excess of the two percent floor, if any, combined with all other deductions of the taxpayer, must exceed the standard deduction before the teacher can itemize. Only about a third of taxpayers have enough deductions to itemize.

The unfortunate effect of these two limitations is that, as a practical matter, only a small proportion of teachers are able to deduct their professional development and out-of-pocket supplies expenses.

Let me illustrate this unfair situation with an example.

Let's consider the case of a fifth-year high school English teacher in Utah whom I will call Alice White Head. Alice is single and earns $48,000 per year. Last year she incurred $1,050 for a course she took over the summer to increase her knowledge of English literature. She spent $540 for classroom supplies out of her own pocket. She was not reimbursed for either of these expenses, which totaled $1,590, by her school district. Under current law, Alice's expenditures are deductible, subject to the limitations I mentioned. The first limitation is that her expenses must exceed two percent of her income before they begin to be deductible. Two percent of $48,000 is $960. Thus, only $540 of her $1,590 total expenses is deductible, that portion that exceeds $960.

As a single taxpayer, Alice's standard deduction for 2006 is $5,150. Her total itemized deductions, including the $540 in miscellaneous deductions for her professional expenses and out-of-pocket classroom supplies, fall short of the standard deduction threshold. Therefore, not even the $540 of the original $1,590 in professional development expenses and out-of-pocket costs are deductible for Alice. What the first limitation did not block, the second one did, and Alice gets no deduction at all under the current law.

The way I see it, this situation is just not fair. Also, the tax treatment of teacher expenses certainly does not help solve our teacher retention and recruitment problems.

To help alleviate this long-standing problem, five years ago I introduced the Teacher Equity for School Teachers Act of 2001. This legislation would have provided an unlimited tax deduction for the out-of-pocket expenses of school teachers for classroom supplies and other needed materials to help a teacher do his or her job. The bill would have also allowed teachers to take a deduction for their professional development expenses.

Rather than being available only for those who are able to itemize their deductions, this bill would have made these expenses "above-the-line" deductions, meaning they would be deductible whether or not the teacher itemized on their tax return.

Unfortunately, only a part of this bill was enacted. It included an above-the-line deduction for $250 for the costs of classroom expenses. While this was a great step in the right direction, it did not go nearly far enough. Moreover, the provision has now expired, and it is not clear when Congress is going to extend it.

The bill I am introducing today would do three things. First, it would restate the above-the-line deduction for teachers' out-of-pocket expenses for classroom supplies, make it permanent, and remove the $250 cap. Second, it would provide an unlimited deduction for the professional development expenses for school teachers. Finally, to assist in the recruitment of teachers in the most needed fields, it would provide an unlimited deduction for the cost of professionals in the fields of math, science, and technology to certify to become public school teachers.

Under my bill, the Alice of my example would be allowed to deduct all $1,590 of her professional expenses and classroom supplies expenses, whether she itemized or not. This would help provide tax equity, and a measure of much-needed tax relief for an underpaid professional. It would also help retain current public school teachers and attract new ones to this vital field.

Some might argue that such a generous deduction would be giving teachers preferential treatment. I disagree. Most organizations provide training for their employees that is fully deductible to the organization and nontaxable to the employee. Yet public teachers, who are some of the most important professionals in our society, are rarely reimbursed for their needed costs on their own. Also, office supplies and instructional materials are fully deductible to businesses. Should not teachers who provide these similar materials for their classrooms be afforded the same tax treatment?

Others may question the wisdom of my bill granting an unlimited tax deduction. "Why not place a limit or a cap on the amount that may be deducted?" some might ask. Again, I respond: Section 165 of the Internal Revenue Code specifically allows deductions for professionals in such fields as medicine, law, and accounting. If these fields can justify their need for significant tax deductions, why not teachers? It is important to keep in mind the differences between a tax deduction and a tax credit. My bill calls for tax deductions, which reduce the amount of income that is subject to tax, and not for a credit, which is a dollar-for-dollar reduction in the amount of tax that is due.

With a tax deduction, a public school teacher is not receiving a cash subsidy or reimbursement for his or her expenses. Rather, he or she is merely obtaining a reduction in the amount of income that is taxed. Thus, the most benefit the teacher would receive under my bill would be a 35 percent reduction in the cost of the professional development, supplies, or certification expenses. This means that the teacher is still responsible for paying for the biggest portion of these costs. I do not believe that our public school teachers will abuse such an unlimited deduction. They will use their common sense and they will spend the appropriate amounts for their expenses.

Support for mathematics and science education at all levels is necessary to improve the global competitiveness of the United States in science and energy technology.

I endorse the efforts of my colleagues to encourage more of our best and brightest students choose these fields of study. Support for qualified STEM teachers (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) is equally important. If we are successful in increasing the supply for STEM students, we will need to increase the supply of STEM teachers.

This bill will provide incentives for these professionals to enter the teaching profession by allowing expenses in connection with teacher certification to be fully deductible, above-the-line, the same as the professional development and supplies expenses of teaching professionals.

Mr. President, this bill would provide modest tax equity for teachers who, for too long, have been footing the bill for improving the quality of teaching by themselves. It is time that Congress recognized this unfairness and corrected it.

I thank the Senate for the opportunity to address this issue today, and I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 4027

By Mr. MENENDEZ.

S. 4028. A bill to fight criminal gangs; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. President, today, all across America, organized criminal gangs plague our communities, destroying the lives of thousands of young children each and every year. Unfortunately, this plague is currently not being effectively combated, and as a result has grown in size and power in almost every State in the Nation. Indeed, gang violence is no longer a State and local issue that predominately occurs in highly urbanized areas, but has escalated into a national issue that affects our country as a whole.

In light of this, it is clear that we must recalibrate our efforts—and in addition to our local initiatives—to comprehensively address gang violence at the national level. That is why I rise today to introduce the Fighting Gangs and Empowering Youth Act of 2006. Addressing the efforts of Federal, State, and local agencies, this legislation would comprehensively deal with all aspects of gang violence, from rigorously enforcing and appropriately sentencing criminal acts, to preventing future gang members from being recruited and such crimes from occurring.

To reduce the number of young potential recruits gangs prey upon, this bill would authorize funds for after-school and community-based programs designed to economically empower young people. Disadvantaged students would be given the opportunity to realize their potential, through tutoring, mentoring, and job training programs as well as college preparation classes and tuition assistance. Additionally, millions of dollars would be authorized to enhance and expand anti-gang and anti-violence initiatives of elementary and secondary schools, ensuring that students can focus solely on learning, without having to be concerned for their personal safety. By providing "at-risk" youth with such resources and opportunities necessary to succeed in life, they will be far less susceptible to join a criminal gang.

The legislation would also expand adult and juvenile offender reentry demonstration projects to help with post-release and transitional housing, while promoting programs that hire former prisoners, and establish reentry planning procedures within communities. Prisoners with drug addictions would be forced to participate in treatment or rehabilitation programs to qualify for early parole, which would be continued in their transition period back into society. All offenders would be encouraged to participate in educational initiatives such as, job training, GED preparation, along with a myriad of other programs. These initiatives are designed to provide offenders with the skills necessary to become legally employed when they are released from prison, which will reduce, hopefully significantly, their recidivism rates.

In addition to programs focused on gang violence prevention, my proposal would provide law enforcement officials on every level of government with the resources and information they need to accurately track and effectively neutralize criminal gangs. Specifically, this legislation would establish a program similar to the current Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) program, to augment the number of police officers patrolling the streets of our local communities, and would authorize $700 million annually for it. Additional funds would be used not only to increase the number of officers combating gangs, but also to provide additional forensic examiners to investigate, and more attorneys to prosecute, gang crimes.

As is true with almost all problems, a better understanding of how gangs operate translates into a better understanding of how best to counter them. That is why this legislation would authorize increased funding for the National Youth Gang Survey to increase the number of law enforcement agencies whose data is collected and included in the annual survey and provide up to $38 million per year to upgrade technology to better identify gang members and include them in the National Gang Database. Additionally, this legislation would expand the Uniform Crime Reports (UCRs) to include local gang and other crime statistics from the municipal level, while also requiring the Attorney General to distinguish those crimes committed by juveniles. The bill also requires consolidation and standardization of all criminal databases, enabling law enforcement all across this country to better share information.

For those who still choose a life a crime, this proposal would increase the penalties prescribed for crimes committed in the furtherance of a gang. Gangs are dependent on committing crimes such as witness intimidation, illegal firearm possession, and drug trafficking, implementing these instruments to augment their power. Subsequently, when these crimes are committed in the furtherance of gang activity, they can be more detrimental to society than if they were committed in isolation. Thus, these tougher sentencing requirements for crimes committed in the furtherance of a gang are not only appropriate, but necessary to deter gang violence and shield society from its most dangerous and unremarkable criminals.

This legislation would also attack one of the roots of gang violence—gang recruiters, who seek out young, economically disadvantaged, at-risk youth and pressure them to join. Currently, there is no law specifically forbidding gang recruitment. This legislation would change that—making it illegal to do so—and would incarcerate an offender for up to 5 years if the person being recruited was under the age of 18, or up to 10 years if the individual was under the age of 18.

Taken together, the provisions of this bill develop a comprehensive approach to gang violence by focusing on prevention, deterrence, and enforcement. To not address all of these gang violence catalysts in their entirety would leave us with an incomprehensive approach that would do little to quell the scourge of gang violence. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to co-sponsor the Fighting Gangs and Empowering Youth Act, and by doing so, give law enforcement and our communities the means to thoroughly and comprehensively counter the growing specter of gang violence that afflicts our great Nation.

I ask unanimous consent the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

By Mrs. CLINTON:
S. 4029. A bill to increase the number of well-educated nurses, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mrs. CLINTON. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Nursing Education and Quality of Health Care Act of 2006. This legislation is essential for addressing our current and future nursing shortages.
I have been hearing from nurses and health care providers from every part of New York that we are facing an impending nursing crisis and their stories echo what I have heard from nurses across the Nation.

By 2014, the Bureau of Labor Statistics forecasts that there will be over 1 million job openings for registered nurses. In New York alone, we will need to produce over 80,000 new RNs to meet these projections. One of our greatest needs will be in rural areas where the pool of nurses is small and the loss of just one nurse from the workforce can have a profound impact on the community.
I can proudly say we have made good progress in New York on one front. In 2006, 30 percent more registered nurses graduated than in 2004. I believe that we can credit this increase to the Nurse Reinvestment Act that was signed into law in 2002. Through this bipartisan legislation, we were able to make great strides in strengthening our nation’s nursing workforce.
The Nurse Reinvestment Act included a number of critical initiatives including one from the bipartisan bill I introduced with Senator GORDON SMITH to retain nurses who are already in the profession. The Clinton-Smith provision provides grants to health care organizations that develop and implement models based on magnet hospitals. Hospitals that have achieved magnet status report lower mortality rates, higher patient satisfaction, greater cost-efficiency, and patients experiencing shorter stays in hospitals and intensive care units.

But I am here today because nurses are still facing an urgent situation that requires action. Even though we are making strides to graduate more nurses, in 2005 over 37,000 qualified applicants were turned away from nurs-sing schools in United States. In New York, it is estimated that nearly 3,000 nursing school applicants were denied entry. Put simply, we don’t have the classroom capacity in schools to train qualified potential students.
Not only are we facing a nursing shortage, we are setting ourselves up for a potential nursing crisis if we don’t address the impending faculty shortage. Will become accrue if we lose potential nurses due to the retirement of nurse faculty as that the aging population increases.
We need to pave the way and recruit more people into the nursing profession. This shortage crisis impacts not only the nurses, but also patients since we know that the quality of care increases when nurses are not working too many hours, are not treating too many patients, and are satisfied with their jobs.

Today I am here to support recruit-m ent, education, and training to help alleviate this crisis in New York and in the rest of the nation through introduction of the Nursing Education and Quality of Health Care Act of 2006. This act will establish distance learning opportunities for people in rural communities who wish to pursue the nursing profession without leaving their home town. This legislation will also provide tuition assistance and loan forgiveness for those who choose to practice in rural communities.

To increase the number of nurses in the workforce we need to expand the nursing faculty so that thousands of qualified people are not turned away from the profession. This legislation will fund programs that will enhance recruitment, scholarships, and educational preparation and encourage more nurses to become faculty members by establishing online courses and accelerated degree programs.

We need for nurses to participate and collaborate in patient-safety initiatives for the well-being of patients. The Nursing Education and Quality of Health Care Act will take the lead on this issue by supporting projects that integrate patient safety practices into nursing education programs and enhance the leadership of nurses in improving patients’ outcomes within their health care settings.

We will all rely on nurses sometime in our life, and we need to make sure that this essential member of the health care team will always be present at our bedside.
I am pleased to be here encouraging Nurses, who are so critical to the successful operation of our hospitals and the quality of care patients receive. We should be doing everything we can to address the nursing shortage and to make nursing an attractive and rewarding profession and long-term career.

The Nursing Education and Quality of Health Care Act of 2006 is supported by: American Association of Colleges of Congress’ vision by making investments in large scale, capital intensive commercial real estate available to all investors.

Changes to the REIT rules that Congress has made in the past decade have allowed REITs to serve better their tenants while maximizing returns to REIT shareholders.

The bill I introduce today would further modify the REIT tax rules to conform to constantly evolving business realities, such as the growing importance of cross-border trade and the increased velocity of the competitive marketplace while still focusing REITs on commercial real estate activities.

Specifically, the bill includes five titles.

The first would clarify the tax treatment of foreign currency gains attributable to overseas real estate investments. This is important as U.S. REITs continue to expand their investments overseas.

The second title would increase the permissible ownership of a REIT in a taxable REIT subsidiary (TRS) that can lease lodging facilities and would rather act purely as an investment Trust, with the payments to the REIT considered qualified income under the REIT rules.

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has long recognized that U.S. REITs can, and do, invest outside the U.S., essentially recognizing gains generated from REIT-permissible sources outside of the U.S. should not jeopardize the REIT’s tax status. However, the treatment of foreign currency gains directly attributable to overseas real estate investment is not wholly clear, and its correct characterization is becoming increasingly important as U.S. REITs strengthen their positions in foreign markets.

To ensure that foreign currency gains do not harm a REIT’s tax status, the IRS has provided a short-term solution by allowing certain REITs to establish a subsidiary REIT in each currency zone in which a REIT invests. Each of these REITs, each of which must satisfy the complex myriad of rules and risk disqualification of the parent REIT, is a cumbersome and manageable solution. Accordingly, RIDEA would clarify existing law by characterizing foreign currency gains generated by a REIT outside the U.S. as “good” REIT income so long as the REIT focuses on commercial real estate, as measured by specific objective rules. Despite the IRS’ authority to prescribe similar rules, the absence of such rules or legislative clarification to provide certainty to REIT management and their shareholders within a more administrable framework, RIDEA also would delegate to the IRS the express authority to issue guidance with respect to whether any other item of income should satisfy the REIT gross income tests or should not be taken into account in calculating these tests. While the IRS often has been willing to grant such rulings to specific taxpayers, these rulings cannot be relied on by other taxpayers, and in any event do not cover all circumstances.

Thus, RIDEA would: (1) characterize foreign currency gains attributable to a REIT’s ownership and disposition of real estate assets as qualifying income under REIT gross income tests; (2) conform the current REIT hedging rule to also apply to foreign currency gains and to apply those rules for purposes of the REIT gross income tests under current law; (3) specifically provide the Department of the Treasury the authority to interpret whether items of income to either qualify under the REIT gross income tests or to provide that items of income are not taken into account in computing those gains as qualifying a real estate asset; and (5) make conforming changes to other REIT provisions reflecting foreign currency gains.

Title II: Dealer Sales

The Internal Revenue Code imposes a 100 percent excise tax on profits generated on sales of property in which a REIT is acting as a dealer rather than an investor. Because of the confiscatory nature of this 100 percent excise, the Code of 1986 provided a de minimis excise tax on gains that may be generated from the sale of property in a double tax regime should increase revenues to the fisc compared to a single tax regime.

Title III: Taxable REIT Subsidiaries

As originally introduced in 1999, the REIT Modernization Act (RMA) limited a REIT’s ownership in taxable REIT subsidiaries (TRSs) to 25 percent of a REIT’s gross assets. However, in 2006, RMA was amended when Congress ultimately enacted the RMA as part of the Ticket to Work Incentives Improvement Act of 1999.

RIDEA would increase the limit on TRS securities from 20 percent to 25 percent of a REIT’s gross assets. The rationale for a 25 percent limit on TRSs that was contained in the RMA remains the same today. The dividing line for testing a concentration on commercial real estate in the REIT rules has long been set at 25 percent. A mutual fund rule uses a 25 percent test. An IRS study shows increasing amounts of taxes paid by new TRSs, and common sense tells us that muting those in a double tax regime should increase revenues to the fisc compared to a single tax regime.

Title IV: Health Care REITs

The Internal Revenue Code imposes a 100 percent excise tax on profits generated on sales of property in which a REIT is acting as a dealer rather than an investor. Because of the confiscatory nature of this 100 percent excise, the Code of 1986 provided a de minimis excise tax on gains that may be generated from the sale of property in a double tax regime should increase revenues to the fisc compared to a single tax regime.

One requirement under current law is that the REIT not either make seven sales in a taxable year or sell more than 19 percent of its portfolio each year. However, the test as currently constructed penalizes many REITs that have owned their properties for a long period of time. The test is geared to the property’s “tax basis,” an amount that diminishes over time due to tax depreciation, rather than “fair market value,” an amount that increases over time. Second, the current test requires that a REIT hold a property for at least four years, three years longer than the general holding period required to distinguish between an “investor” and a “dealer” in property.

RIDEA would update this safe harbor to treat fair market value as the “tax basis” to allow REITs that have owned their properties for longer periods not be penalized and thereby prevented from prudently managing the timing and extent of asset dispositions. As part of the REIT Modernization Act of 1999, Congress adopted a provision that utilizes fair market value rules for purposes of calculating personal property rentals associated with the rental of real property. Thus, there is an analogous precedent for a fair value approach.

The safe harbor also would be amended to replace the 4-year holding period with a 2-year holding period. The 4-year requirement is inconsistent with the tax law’s treatment of period that define whether property is held for long term investments, such as the 1-year holding period to determine long-term capital gains treatment, and the 2-year holding period to distinguish whether the sale of a home is taxable because it is held for investment purposes.

Title V: Health Care REITs

Generally, rental payments made from a subsidiary owned by a REIT to that REIT are not considered qualified rental income for REIT purposes under the “related party” rule. However, as part of the RMA, a lodging REIT is allowed to establish a taxable REIT subsidiary (TRS) that can lease lodging facilities to the fisc compared to a single tax regime. The RMA also created a rule under which a REIT is not taxable on profits generated on sales of property in which a REIT is acting as a dealer rather than an investor. Because of the confiscatory nature of this 100 percent excise, the Code of 1986 provided a de minimis excise tax on gains that may be generated from the sale of property in a double tax regime should increase revenues to the fisc compared to a single tax regime.
independent operator of the facilities. Health care REITs now believe that the TRS restriction is interfering with their ability to manage their operations in the most efficient manner.

RIEDA would conform the treatment of health care facilities to that of lodging facilities by treating as qualifying income rentals subqualifying units of health care facilities made to a REIT from a taxable REIT subsidiary. Under this proposal, a TRS would still be required to use an independent contractor to operate the health care facilities, but payments collected by a REIT from its TRS renting health care facilities would be qualified income under the REIT tests.

Title V: Foreign REITs

Since imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, Congress should be proud that about 20 countries have enacted legislation paralleling the U.S. REIT rules after observing the benefits brought to the United States as a result of a vibrant REIT market. The number of countries that have adopted REIT-like legislation this past decade has greatly accelerated, with Israel being the latest country to do so and legislation in the United Kingdom going into effect on January 1, 2007. Although the tax code treats a foreign company’s assets as being directly in another country.

A U.S. REIT might want to invest in another country through a REIT organized in that country. A company could lose its status as a U.S. REIT if it owns more than 10 percent of the foreign REIT’s securities, even though the foreign company looks and acts like a U.S. REIT. A REIT should not be discouraged from investing in an entity that engages in the same activities that a U.S. REIT is allowed to undertake if it invests directly in another country.

RIEDA would amend the REIT rules to provide that income from, and interests in, foreign-qualified REITs would be treated as qualifying REIT income and assets under the U.S. REIT rules provided that under the laws of another country: (1) at least 75 percent of the foreign assets must be invested in real estate assets; (2) the foreign REIT either receives a dividends paid deduction or is exempt from corporate level tax; and (3) a foreign REIT is required to distribute at least 85 percent of its taxable income to shareholders on an annual basis.

By Mr. DODD (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mr. DURBin, Mr. SCHUMER, and Mrs. CLINTON):

S. 4033. A bill to provide for Kindergarten Plus programs; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation to jump-start the chance for success in school for this Nation’s low-income children.

The legislation I am introducing today will provide children below 185 percent of the poverty line with additional time in kindergarten during the summer before and the summer after the traditional kindergarten school year, and help to ensure that more children enter school ready to succeed.

The kindergarten year is an important time of transition for young children. It represents the first year of schooling for 98 percent of the children in the United States, and it marks the bridge between early childhood education and the primary grades of school.

Many may ask why an initiative that will give an extra four months of kindergarten to low-income children? The answer is simple. Because too many low-income children today enter kindergarten unprepared for the year ahead and many children from low-income families are constantly out-performed by their wealthier peers.

We can, however, do a better job of preparing less fortunate children for school. We can expose them to classic room practices and routines and the expectations for kindergarten behavior and protocol. We can introduce them to educational concepts and help them understand that classrooms have rules. We can expose them to literature, stories, poems or circles to help them understand that books are made up of printed words and that words are made up of individual letters. We can ask them questions to help develop their critical thinking skills, like what do you think will happen next in the story? We can offer them “show and tell” to develop their oral language skills and ability to speak out loud in sequential sentences. Simply put, we can do a better job to provide them with a solid foundation that allows them to enter school with the skills necessary to become strong students.

How does this translate into school readiness? About 85 percent of high-income families have 5,000 words in their vocabularies. The percent of low-income children, can recognize letters of the alphabet upon arrival in kindergarten. About half the children of college graduates can identify the beginning sounds of words, but only 9 percent of the children from low-income families didn’t complete high school can recognize the beginning sounds of words.

Low-income children often have a more limited vocabulary. By the time they are in first grade, children in low-income families have 5,000 word vocabularies. In contrast, children from more affluent families enter school with vocabularies of 20,000 words. These are significant discrepancies.”

The John Hopkins University report, “Schools, Achievement, and Inequality: A Seasonal Perceptive,” recommendations are made to improve the socioeconomic differences in the seasonality of children’s learning over the school and summer months. The report that states during the summer, upper socioeconomic status (SES) children’s skills continue to advance, but lower SES children’s gains, on average, are flat. Pre-school and kindergarten can reduce the achievement gap associated with SES when children start first grade, but to help them keep up it requires extra resources and enrichment experiences. Summer education programs can build potential for economically disadvantaged children and their parents in support of academic development.

What we know from the research is that children can enter kindergarten better prepared to learn. We may not be able to close the gap between low-income children and their wealthier peers, but we can certainly narrow it considerably. This is what this legislation strives to do.

The legislation was named after Sandy Feldman who was a tireless advocate for children and public education who died last year after a long battle with cancer. Her commitment to social justice and her authority on urban education dates to her involvement with the civil rights movement.

Sandy rose from her position as second grade elementary school teacher to... become president of the 1.3 million-member American Federation of Teachers. She also knew that all too often, we don’t give our schools the resources they need to make all students’ dreams come to fruition. Her focus on early childhood education led her to develop the concept of kindergarten and in the end, it was Sandy who spent countless hours developing the details to ensure this would be a high quality initiative.

I am joined in introducing this legislation by my colleagues Senators KENNY DREW, LINDSAY DUNN, and DWIGHT SCHUMER. This bill is also supported by the American Federation of Teachers, the Parent Teacher Association, National Education Association, Council of Great City Schools, the Society for Research in Child Development, American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, Service Employees of International Union, National Head Start Association, the Children’s Defense Fund and Easter Seals. I urge my colleagues to join this effort and cosponsor the legislation. I encourage them to help give low-income children a jump-start on school success.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Kindergarten has proven to be a beneficial experience for children, putting children on a positive trajectory toward academic progress of their disadvantaged students.

(7) High quality, extended-day kindergarten that provides children with enriched learning experiences is particularly effective in helping to close achievement gaps, rather than having the gaps continue to widen.

By Mr. SARBANES:

S. 4038. A bill to establish the bipartisan and independent Commission on Global Resources, Environment, and Security, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to establish a Commission on Global Resources, Environment, and Security. The goal of the Commission is to address one of the most serious, long-term threats facing our Nation—the degradation of the earth’s natural life support systems—and to make recommendations for a coordinated, comprehensive, long-range national policy and new strategies to promote global environmental security.

In March 2005, more than 1,300 scientists from 95 countries around the world completed the largest and most comprehensive study of the health of the earth’s ecosystems ever undertaken, the Millennium Ecosystem Assessment, the four-year study found that the natural systems that support life on earth—our waters, wildlife and fisheries, air and lands—have been degraded more rapidly and extensively over the past five decades than in any comparable period of time in history. The result has been a substantial loss of biodiversity, a significant increase in atmospheric concentration of carbon dioxide, depletion of world fisheries and water supplies, excessive pollution of rivers and coastal waters, and increased risk of emergence of new diseases. The report also found that, unless substantial actions are taken in policies, institutions and practices in the near future to reverse the degradation, the pressure on the planet’s ecosystems will continue to increase. In the next 50 years, the world population is expected to grow from approximately 6 billion to more than 9 billion people. Global demand for food is projected to increase by 70-80 percent. Energy consumption is projected to double by 2035 at current growth rates. Globally, as much as 25 percent of freshwater use and 35 percent of irrigation withdrawal is supplied from unsustainable sources. An estimated 7 billion people could face water shortages.

Experts agree that these environmental threats also have profound implications for our national security. According to Secretary of State Colin Powell . . . “poverty, destruction of the environment and despair are destroyers of people, of societies, of nations, a cause of instability as an unholy trinity that can destabilize countries and destabilize entire regions.” As the world’s wealthiest nation, the U.S. has the responsibility and the unique capacity to lead the world toward a more sustainable future. I hope my colleagues will join me in this measure to establish this Commission on Global Resources, Environment, and Security.

We need a new consensus and a foundation upon which to build a renewed U.S. commitment to protect the global environment. I hope my colleagues will join me in this measure to establish this Commission on Global Resources, Environment, and Security.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, today I introduce and cosponsored six bills to address the increasingly important issues that relate to global health and the need for earlier access to generic medicines in the United States.

Each year, millions of people needlessly suffer from disease in impoverished countries worldwide because they lack access to lifesaving medicines. And each year, American and renowned research universities develop innovative treatments to combat these diseases. However, under our current system, these treatments do not get to the families in impoverished nations who so desperately need them.

Today, 15 percent of the world’s people consume about 81 percent of the world’s pharmaceuticals. The high price of lifesaving medicines—medicines we take for granted—puts them far beyond the reach of millions of the most vulnerable populations.

While the concept of my bill is simple, the implications are profound. If passed, my bill would greatly lessen the cost burden of generic drugs in the developing world. It achieves this by requiring federally funded research institutions to permit their inventions, such as, drugs, vaccines, and innovative medical devices, to be provided inexpensively by generic companies distributing medical supplies to the developing world.

Federally funded labs and research institutions have a vital role to play in meeting this goal. For example, Yale University has an agreement with Doctors Without Borders to permit their generic version of its lifesaving AIDS drug to be used for a pilot treatment program in South Africa. To date, Yale’s humanitarian endeavor, which in no way reduced their licensing revenues, continues to save thousands of lives.

It is time to ensure that public funds truly serve public purposes—in this instance, delivering essential health care needs at minimal costs to American taxpayers, universities, and pharmaceutical companies. Unfortunately, this Congress has been tied up in knots for months, delivering essential health care services to the American public while away from the home or regular place of business of the member in the performance of the duties of the Commission.

By Mr. LEAHY:

S. 4040. A bill to ensure that innovations developed at federally-funded institutions for the developing world are made available to the world’s pharmaceuticals. The high price of lifesaving medicines—medicines we take for granted—puts them far beyond the reach of millions of the most vulnerable populations.

While the concept of my bill is simple, the implications are profound. If passed, my bill would greatly lessen the cost burden of generic drugs in the developing world. It achieves this by requiring federally funded research institutions to permit their inventions, such as, drugs, vaccines, and innovative medical devices, to be provided inexpensively by generic companies distributing medical supplies to the developing world.

Federally funded labs and research institutions have a vital role to play in meeting this goal. For example, Yale University has an agreement with Doctors Without Borders to permit their generic version of its lifesaving AIDS drug to be used for a pilot treatment program in South Africa. To date, Yale’s humanitarian endeavor, which in no way reduced their licensing revenues, continues to save thousands of lives.

It is time to ensure that public funds truly serve public purposes—in this instance, delivering essential health care needs at minimal costs to American taxpayers, universities, and pharmaceutical companies. Unfortunately, this Congress has been tied up in knots recently and has been unable to pass even critical appropriations bills. The measures before us are crucial. This comprehensive approach toward providing better global health aid and better access to generic drugs should become law, and I am committed to trying to make it so. I look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, in this Congress or the next, to enact this important legislation.

I have recently introduced or cosponsored six bills to address the need for better access to generic medicines. Two of these bills relate to global health, and four of them address the need for earlier access to generic medicines in the United States.
With respect to HIV/AIDS treatment alone, at least two major drugs based on university inventions have come to market since the 2001 stavudine announcement: emtricitabine, developed in large part at Emory University and sold by Glaxo and Gilead Sciences as Emtriva; and T–20 developed in large part at Duke University and marketed as Fuzeon by Hoffmann-La Roche and Trimeris. Just this summer, Yale University announced the license of a new candidate AIDS drug based on stavudine. Called “4′-ethynylstavudine”, (or abbreviated more simply as EdiTT), Early testing suggests that it may be both more effective and less toxic than its famous predecessor.

But the question is: Will these life-saving drugs ultimately be available in places like sub-Saharan Africa, where HIV infection rates range as high as a third of the adult population?

This bill authorizes the introduction in the Public Health Act of 2006, would focus on this problem. By allowing licensing by generic companies of inventions coming out of publicly funded research institutions—innovations required to produce marketable medicines—it would drive down the price of new, innovative drugs in areas where they would otherwise be effectively unavailable.

Because they license this bill proposes self-enforcing, it minimizes both administrative overhead and eliminates the need for case-by-case decisions, while preserving important intellectual property protections. Because the Act allows the introduction of generic or reduced-price drugs only into markets too poor to otherwise afford them, its terms do not threaten corporate investments or profits in wealthy nations. All generic drugs manufactured under the bill must be clearly differentiated from the versions sold in developed nations, where the brand-name companies make their profits.

Moreover, publicly funded research institutions would receive royalties from the sale of inventions covered by this bill in developing markets. While the initial payment of the royalties will typically go to the research institution itself, the bill leaves complete freedom to these institutions and their licensee to decide how such royalties will ultimately be shared. This freedom is especially important because the inventions from universities and other research institutions are only one part of the collection of intellectual property necessary to manufacture a finished, marketable drug. The appropriate division of the royalties paid by generics for this package of rights would be different for different drugs and medical devices, depending on whether the university’s contribution is more or less central to the finished product. This Act would allow all the various parties the flexibility to divide these royalties appropriately.

I should be clear, however, that the bill I introduce today is an initial proposal. I look forward to working with research universities in the United States on this important matter. I also intend to work with the companies involved in creating, licensing, and bringing to market the fruits of America’s unparalleled research institutions and continue this discussion.

Indeed, the best answer may not be legislative at all, if the groups involved can come together around a different approach. But however it is achieved, I believe that increasing the availability of these life-saving medicines that come from publicly funded research centers is a good solution to pressing global health concerns.

Universities, in particular, are unique institutions with unique public commitments. They are, before anything else, institutions dedicated to the creation and dissemination of knowledge in the public interest. The Public Research in the Public Interest Act of 2006 is designed in the spirit of that commitment.

This bill completes a package of six bills that I have recently introduced to increase access to medicines in the United States and to address the global public health crisis. While it is the magnitude of this challenge that demands that we, as a Nation, take action, it is the small things, the individual stories that often speak to us most clearly at a personal level.

In my office hangs a photograph I took of three young boys on the side of a mountain in Turkey. I found them flying a kite off the edge of a cliff that overlooks a vast slum. They had made the toy out of scraps of paper, patched together with tape and string, and were flying it on the currents rushing up the face of the rock.

I recalled fearing for their safety as they played so precariously close to the edge. But these children faced much greater risks. When my grandchildren get sick, we know for sure they will get the medicines they need. For these boys, there is no such guarantee.

These boys, and the millions of children and others like them around the world are the reason behind each of the six bills I have introduced.

Earlier this summer, I introduced a bill which can be the catalyst for empowering U.S. generic companies to save the lives or improve the health of millions of families in impoverished nations. Under the “Life-Saving Medicines Export Act,” U.S. companies can make low-cost generic versions of any medicine for export to impoverished nations that face public health crises when those impoverished nations cannot produce these life-saving medicines for themselves.

This bill is based on World Trade Organization agreements permitting nations with pharmaceutical industries to help nations in need. The World Health Organization has adopted resolutions urging all WTO member nations with a generic capability to adopt laws that implement that agreement. On December 6, 2005, the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative announced that it “welcomes” efforts to “allow countries to override patent rights when necessary to export lifesaving drugs to developing countries that face public health crises but cannot produce drugs for themselves.”

This bill addresses the urgent needs of millions of low-income families in impoverished nations while protecting the interests of the patent owners of these life-saving medicines. As in the Public Research in the Public Interest Act, introduced today, generic companies are only permitted to use the compulsory license in the bill in developing nations, where low-income families are simply too poor to purchase the “brand-name” versions, and the generic versions must be clearly marked as not for resale in developed nations. Thus, both bills pose the risk of minimal harm, where there would be generating new revenue for the brand-name companies from the royalties on generics.

The four additional bills that complete this “Access to Medicines” package seek to preserve incentives for U.S. generic companies to enter and compete in the market. Increased competition leads to lower prices and saved lives.

First, in the wake of the Supreme Court refusal to hear the drug patent case called Federal Trade Commission (FTC) v. Schering-Plough, I joined fellow Judiciary Committee members—Senators Kyl, Cornyn, and Merkley—in introducing legislation to explicitly prohibit brand-name drug manufacturers from using pay-off agreements to keep cheaper generic equivalents off the market. Such payments are a distortion in the market that harms patients. I was stunned that the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear a case so important to our senior citizens. The Federal Trade Commission asked the Supreme Court to hear the argument, but the Court refused at the request of the Justice Department. It seems there may be no justice—until that bill is passed—for our seniors needing costly patented medicines but live where the brand-name company has paid generic companies not to compete.

Then, in July, I joined Senators Rockefeller and Schumer in introducing legislation to ban “authorized generics” that could stifle true generic competition. I said at the time that “the giant drug companies keep coming up with ways to avoid real competition and consumers need to be able to count on Congress to close each new anti-competitive loophole they come up with.” If enacted, that bill will close this anti-competitive loophole in the Hatch-Waxman Act and will preserve the incentives Congress created for generic companies to enter the market to supply American citizens and seniors with lower-cost drugs.

The fifth bill introduced was with Senator Kohn. That bill is intended to stop frivolous Citizen Petitions designed to delay introduction of generic drugs into the market place. Recently, large pharmaceutical companies have exploited that petition process to keep their profits high. In addition, I joined with Senators Schumer, Clinton and Durbin in introducing the LifeSavings Medicine Act which related to developing a fast-track process for approving generic versions of biologic medicines.

I want to thank Stacy Kern-Scheerer with Senate Legislative Counsel who provided very helpful guidance under extreme pressure in drafting this short, but complex bill. She and Bill Baird, also with Senate Legislative Counsel, did a great job with a rapid turnaround.

I believe that these six bills, together, can save millions of lives. Recognizing the great need, there have been significant voluntary efforts made by brand-name pharmaceutical companies, foundations and nonprofits who have already donated life-saving medicines, time, personnel and money to help in the fight against deadly diseases both in America and abroad. I commend and greatly appreciate those efforts. Nonetheless, more needs to be done. My bills will both add to and complement existing efforts, by making sure even cutting edge treatments are available in developing countries, and by ensuring that America’s aid dollars are not used to subsidize high-priced philanthropists are used as efficiently as they can possibly be used.

The President’s Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief Report to Congress reported that “[i]n every case generics prices present an opportunity for cost savings; in some cases, the branded cost of the approved generic version.”

The current global public health crisis is one of the great callings of our time. As a nation, we cannot afford to ignore this threat. Our own health and aspects of our national security depend on it.

We have become far more aware today of how much our own health depends on what takes place half a world away. Whether it is AIDS, SARS, West Nile Virus, the Avian Flu, or the encroaching menace of multi-drug resistant bacteria, we are all at risk. We are learning as a nation every day from anywhere an outbreak may occur—a place where the medical innovations developed in this country to combat these devastating diseases may not be available to keep the outbreak under control.

In a post-9/11 world, our well-being is intimately connected with that of other nations. Health is an essential building block for a strong economy, and vital to maintain a thriving democracy. Through increasing access to essential medicines throughout the world, the United States can help to give developing nations a chance to flourish, while improving U.S. relations with large segments of the world’s population.

President Franklin Roosevelt once said: “The test of our progress is not whether we add more to the abundance of those who have much; it is whether we provide enough, for those who have little.”

We are fortunate, at some times and on some issues, to be able to do both. Now is one of those times, and this is one of those issues. I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting my efforts this year on the global public health crisis, including today’s addition, the Public Research in the Public Interest Act of 2006. There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SEC. 2. PURPOSE AND FINDINGS.

(a) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to promote global public health and America’s national security by ensuring that innovative pharmaceutical and biotechnology inventions are available in eligible developing countries at the lowest possible cost.

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) It is in the national interest of the United States that people around the world live healthier lives, and that they perceive the United States in a more favorable light.

(2) The United States Government funds a major portion of all academic research.

(3) The Federal Government’s investment in science and technology fuels a thriving pharmaceutical industry and rising longevity and quality of life in the United States. In 2000, a Senate Committee Report found that public research was instrumental in developing 15 of the 21 drugs considered by experts to have had the highest therapeutic impact on society.

(4) Millions of people with HIV/AIDS in developing countries need antiretroviral drugs. More than 40,000,000 people worldwide have HIV and 95 percent of them live in developing countries. Malaria, tuberculosis, and other infectious diseases kill millions of people year in developing nations.

(5) The World Health Organization (“WHO”) has estimated that 3/5 of the world’s population lacks regular access to essential medicines, including all drugs. The WHO reported that just by improving access to existing medicines roughly 10,000,000 lives could be saved around the world every year.

(6) To help address the access to medicines crisis, the World Health Organization’s 2006 Commission on Intellectual Property Rights, Innovation, and Public Health recommended that universities adopt licensing practices designed to increase access to medicines in developing countries.

(7) The Department of State has reported to Congress under the President’s Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief that, “[i]n every case generics prices present an opportunity for savings in developing countries by ensuring even cutting edge treatments are available in developing countries.”

By Mr. INHOFE (for himself and Mr. COBURN):
S. 4041. A bill to protect children and their parents from being coerced into administering a controlled substance in order to attend school, and for other purposes;

Mr. INHOFE. President, I rise today, along with my colleagues, Mr. COBURN, to proudly introduce the Child Medication Safety Act, a bill to protect children and their parents from being coerced into administering a controlled substance or psychotropic drug in order to attend a school. The text of my bill exactly matches the text of H.R. 1790, which passed the House on November 16, 2006 by a vote of 407 to 12.

Parents face many challenges when raising their children, one of which is ensuring that their children receive the best education possible. My views on education come from a somewhat unique perspective in that my wife, Kay, was a teacher at Martin High School in Tulsa for many years and now both of our daughters are teachers. I can assure you that I am one of the strongest supporters of quality education. However, it has come to my attention that some schools have been acting as physicians or psychologists by strongly suggesting that children with behavioral problems be put immediately on some form of psychotropic drugs. Schools and teachers are not equipped to make this diagnosis and should not make it mandatory for the student to continue attending the school. This is clearly beyond their area of expertise. Therefore, I am introducing this legislation to ensure that parents are not required by school personnel to medicate their children.

The Child Medication Safety Act requires, as a condition of receiving funds from the Department of Education, that States develop and implement polices and procedures prohibiting school personnel from requiring a child to obtain a prescription as a condition of attending the school. It should be noted that this bill does not prevent teachers or other school personnel from sharing with parents or guardians classroom-based observations regarding a student’s academic performance or regarding the need for evaluation for special education. Additional, this bill calls for a study by the Comptroller General of the United States reviewing: No. 1, the variation among States in the definition of psychotropic medication as used in public education. No. 2, the prescription rates of medication used in public schools to treat children with attention deficit disorder and other such disorders. No. 3, which medications listed under the Controlled Substances Act are being prescribed to such children, and No. 4, which medications not listed under the Controlled Substances Act are being used to treat these children. This GAO report is due no later than 1 year after the enactment of this Act.

I believe this is an extremely important bill that protects the rights of our children against improper intrusion regarding health issues by those not qualified. If a parent or guardian believes their child is in need of medication, then they have the right to make that decision with a licensed medical practitioner who is qualified to prescribe an appropriate drug. Please join us in support of this legislation that protects the freedoms of our children. We also ask that you work with us in passage of the Child Medication Safety Act before the end of the 109th Congress as it has already passed the House by a huge margin.

By Mr. DURBIN (for himself, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. CONRAD, and Mr. BAYH):
S. 4042. A bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to prohibit disruptions of the funerals or former members of the Armed Forces; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I rise today to join my colleagues Senators CHAMBLISS, CONRAD, and BAYH in introducing the Respect for the Fallen Heroes Act. Our bill would make it unlawful to intentionally disrupt the funeral of a U.S. military servicemember or veteran. Sadly, we have seen at least 129 such disruptions in the past 16 months by a group nominally calling itself a Christian church. These disruptions have taken place in almost every State in the country. In Illinois alone, there have been at least 16 disruptions of military funerals during that time—more than any other State.

Most of us know the heartbreaking of laying a loved one to rest—a father, a mother, a husband or wife, a grandparent, a brother or sister, a child, a good friend. Funerals are a sad moment of parting, a last opportunity to say farewell. A loved one is laid to rest only once. And the families and friends of the departed have a clear interest in conducting the funeral ceremony peacefully. It can be devastating to have that funeral disrupted. The United States government owes an obligation to the men and women who have served our country in uniform. These men and women have risked their lives for their country. When they lose their lives, the government has a significant interest in allowing their families and friends to lay them to rest in peace.

In May, Congress enacted legislation called the Respect for America’s Fallen Heroes Act, which would safeguard the funerals of U.S. veterans and servicemembers that take place at Federal cemeteries. This law prohibits demonstrations during the military funerals at the national cemeteries and Arlington National Cemetery. It provides protection for the funerals of approximately 90,000 veterans who are buried each year Federal cemeteries.

Our bill would expand the current law to cover the funerals of all servicemembers and veterans, whether they are buried in a national cemetery, in a veteran’s own local cemetery, or somewhere else. It would provide protection for the funerals of all of the 650,000–700,000 servicemembers and veterans who die each year in the United States. Admiringly, my home State of Illinois and my other States have enacted laws to try to protect military funerals with their borders. A wide range of State laws have been enacted, providing varying degrees of protection. But many of these laws were not narrowly tailored and are likely to be struck down as unconstitutional. Legal challenges are already underway in several States. What’s needed now is a Federal solution.

Under our bill, it would be a criminal misdemeanor—punishable by a fine or up to one year in jail—for any person to 1. make any noise or diversion within the boundary of or within 150 feet of a military funeral location that intentionally disturbs the peace and good order of the funeral, or 2. intentionally impede access to or from the funeral within 300 feet of the funeral location. Such activities would be prohibited during the period from 60 minutes before until 60 minutes after a military funeral.

I understand the critical importance of the right to free speech. It is a foundational right under the U.S. Constitution. However, the Supreme Court has repeatedly found it is consistent with the First Amendment for the time, place, and manner of speech to be reasonably limited in a way that is content neutral and narrowly tailored to serve a significant government interest.

Our bill meets that test. The government has a significant interest in preserving the tranquility and privacy of the funerals of men and women who defend our country as members of the Armed Forces. Congress has the constitutional power to raise and support armies, and we can and should support our troops by providing them with peaceful funerals.

Our bill creates a reasonable time, place, and manner restriction on protests to restrictions that the Supreme Court has previously upheld. For example, in a case that took place in my home state of Illinois, Grayned v. City of Rockford, the Supreme Court upheld an ordinance that stated the following: "(a) No person, while on public or private grounds adjacent to any building in which a school or any class thereof is in session, shall willfully make or assist in the making of any noise or disturbance which disturbs or tends to disturb the peace or good order of such school session or class thereof."

Like the ordinance in Rockford, IL, my legislation is a reasonable restriction on disruptive activities within a limited geographic location for a limited period of time. Just as the local government has a significant interest in protecting the peace and good order of school sessions, the Federal Government has a significant interest in protecting the peace and good order of the funeral ceremonies of our military personnel.

The fact that funeral attendees are a captive audience also figures into the analysis. In many locations, the Supreme Court expects individuals simply to avoid speech they do not want to hear. But in the case Frisby v. Schultz, the Supreme Court upheld an ordinance that made it unlawful to picket outside an individual's residence, stating: 'That we are often captives outside the sanctuary of the home and subject to objectionable speech... does not mean we must be captives everywhere.' Like individuals in their homes and students in classrooms, mourners at funeral ceremonies are bound by tradition and cannot avoid those who intend to cause disruptions. And they should not be forced to suffer those disruptions, especially during the one chance they have to lay a loved one to rest.

The Respect for the Funerals of Fallen Heroes Act is content neutral. Its provisions apply to all offenders regardless of the nature of the message or the manner in which the message is conveyed. The legislation simply aims to allow funerals to be conducted in peace.

Our bill is also narrowly tailored. Not every form of speech or activity would be prohibited during the time period, only activities that are intended to and have the effect of disturbing the funeral ceremony they do not want to on a conversation on a sidewalk nearby or hand out leaflets, but the peace and solemnity of the funeral must not be disturbed.

This bill has been carefully drafted to withstand constitutional scrutiny. We sought the advice of distinguished First Amendment scholar Geoffrey Stone at the University of Chicago law school, and he believes the bill is consistent with the First Amendment.

In addition, it is within the power of Congress to provide protection for the funerals of fallen servicemembers and veterans that are held at non-Federal cemeteries. The National Cemetery Administration has determined that the Department of Veterans Affairs does not have the legal authority to regulate private property for the purpose of regulating speech. Research Service has researched this issue and concluded that a court would likely deem our legislation to be within Congress's lawmaking power, in light of Congress's constitutional authority to raise and support armies, and to declare war. In light of these cases in which the Supreme Court has upheld Congress's power to regulate private property for the benefit of the military.

Our legislation is supported by veterans groups in Illinois and across America. I received a letter from Retired U.S. Army Colonel Aaron J. Wolff, President of the Illinois Council of Chapters of the Military Officers Association of America, who said: "The Respect for America's Fallen Heroes Act passed in May 2006, and signed into law, was an initial step in stopping demonstrations at funerals of our fallen heroes... On behalf of all veterans and their families, I strongly support your bill to expand coverage of the demonstration ban to include all the funerals of our veterans, wherever they are held."

Tanna K. Schmidl, chairman of the Board of Governors of the National Military Family Association, wrote to me and said: "The National Military Family Association supports this legislation to ban demonstrations at all military funerals. Grievous military families, who had made the ultimate sacrifice, should not be subjected to these intrusions. This should be a time for military families to reflect and say goodbye to their loved one and a time for the nation to honor its heroes."

The men and women who served our country in uniform, and their friends and loved ones, have a right to a funeral ceremony that can be conducted in peace and without disruption. It's time to protect the funerals of all our fallen heroes. I hope that my colleagues from both parties will cosponsor this bill and join me in seeking to provide the protection they deserve.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. ALLEN (for himself and Mr. WARNER).

S. 4045. A bill to designate the United States courthouse located at the intersections of Broad Street, Seventh Street, Grace Street, and Eighth Street in Richmond, Virginia as the "Spottswood W. Robinson III and Robert Merhige Jr. Courthouse"; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mr. WARNER. I rise today to join my colleagues from Virginia, Senator ALLEN, in offering a bill to name the new Richmond Courthouse for two distinguished jurists and sons of Virginia.
We are privileged in the Commonwealth to have a long history, beginning with Jamestown as the first permanent English settlement on the American Continent. As a young republic, the College of William and Mary was selected as a site for the Nation’s first law school.

The two men to be honored in the naming of the new U.S. Courthouse in Richmond were lawyers who throughout their careers adhered to the principle of “equal justice under law.” Senator Robinson, III was born in Richmond, VA on July 26, 1916. He attended Virginia Union University and then attended Howard University School of Law, graduating first in his class in 1939 and serving as a member of the faculty until 1947.

Judge Robinson was one of the core attorneys of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund from 1948 to 1960, achieving national prominence in the legal community with his representation of the Virginia plaintiffs in the 1954 U.S. Supreme Court case Brown v. Board of Education. Brown outlawed public school segregation declaring “separate but equal” schools unconstitutional.

Judge Merhige was born in New York in 1919 and he attended college at High Point College in North Carolina. He earned his law degree from the T.C. Williams School of Law at the University of Richmond, from which he graduated first in his class in 1942.

From 1942 to 1945, Judge Merhige served in the United States Air Force and practiced law in Richmond from 1945 to 1963, establishing himself as a formidable trial lawyer representing criminal defendants as well as dozens of insurance companies.

On August 30, 1967, Judge Merhige was appointed U.S. District Court Judge for the Eastern District of Virginia, Richmond Division by President Lyndon B. Johnson serving as a Federal judge until 1998. In 1972, Judge Merhige ordered the desegregation of dozens of Virginia school districts. He considered himself to be a “strict constructionist” who went by the law as spelled out in precedents by the higher courts. In 1970, he ordered the University of Virginia to admit women. As evidence of Judge Merhige’s ground breaking decisions, he was given 24-hour protection by Federal marshals due to repeated threats of violence against him and his family. His courage in the face of significant opposition of the times is a testimony to his dedication to the rule of law.

Senator ALLEN and I carefully took this responsibility in naming the U.S. Federal Courthouse in Richmond. We worked on it for several years and consulted the Virginia Bar Association and sought the views of the bench and bar. Among the individuals who made presentations were the Virginia Bar Association, the Mayor of Richmond, and many others. Both men were to have them equally share the honor of naming the courthouse so named.

I thank the Senate for the consideration of this bill and look forward to working with my colleagues seeking its passage.

Sincerely,

L. Douglas Wilder
Mayor

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with my colleagues in the Senate and House of Representatives in introducing legislation to name the new Federal courthouse in Richmond, VA for two great men and leaders of the civil rights movement, Spottswood W. Robinson III and Robert Merhige, Jr. Judge Merhige served this country for 31 years on the bench and as a member of the United States Army Air Force as a B-17 bombardier. Born in 1919, Judge Merhige attended the T.C. Williams School of Law at the University of Richmond, from which he graduated at the top of his class in 1942. Over the next 21 years, Judge Merhige tried hundreds of both criminal and civil cases in both State and Federal court. He served as President of the Richmond Bar Association from 1963 to 1964.

In 1967, President Lyndon Johnson appointed Judge Merhige to be a United States District Judge. Respected and admired by lawyers from coast to coast, Judge Merhige is another hero of the civil rights movement.

I am honored to join with my colleague Senator WARNER in introducing legislation to name the new Federal courthouse in Richmond, VA for two great men and leaders of the civil rights movement, Spottswood W. Robinson III and Robert Merhige, Jr. Judge Spottswood Robinson was a brilliant champion of civil rights for all Americans. As a student at Howard Law School, Judge Spottswood W. Robinson III earned the highest GPA ever achieved at the law school. Following law school, he returned to Richmond, VA to establish a law firm with another pioneer of civil rights, Oliver W. Hill. Through the years he was involved in many important civil rights cases nationally and internationally, but it was his vital role in the seminal case of Brown v. Board of Education that placed Judge Robinson into legal history. Judge Robinson is widely recognized as the architect of the legal strategies that led to success in integrating the nation’s public schools.

(2) urges the Secretary of Agriculture to establish programs to raise awareness of the importance of the live-cut Christmas tree industry.

SENATE RESOLUTION 594—RECOGNIZING THE LAWRENCE BERKELEY NATIONAL LABORATORY AS 1 OF THE PREMIER SCIENCE AND RESEARCH INSTITUTIONS OF THE WORLD
Mr. DOMENICI (for himself, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mrs. BOXER, and Mrs. FEINSTEIN) submitted the following resolution; which was:

S. Res. 594
Whereas the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory was founded on August 26, 1931, by Ernest Orlando Lawrence, winner of the 1939 Nobel Prize in physics for his invention of the cyclotron, a circular particle accelerator that opened the door to modern high-energy physics;

Whereas the belief of Mr. Lawrence that scientific research is best done through teams of individuals with different fields of expertise left a legacy that has yielded rich dividends for the United States in basic knowledge and applied technology;

Whereas that distinguished legacy of accomplishment includes 10 Nobel Laureates associated with the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory, and dozens of the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory who have won the National Medal of Science; whereas, in 2006, the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory was recognized for its efforts to conduct research across a wide range of scientific disciplines with key efforts in fundamental studies of the universe, quantitative measurement, environmental solutions, and the use of integrated computing as a tool for discovery;
Whereas scientists at the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory discovered the revolutionary new truth of the accelerating expansion of the universe, are pioneering the promising new scientific field of synthetic biology, and are elucidating the secrets of the genome to help solve the grand challenges of the world;

Whereas, through those accomplishments and others, thousands of scientists and engineers provide the highest level of scientific, engineering, and technical support to thousands of scientists and engineers whose published works continue to enrich their respective research fields;

Whereas the newest user facility of the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory, the Molecular Foundry, opened its doors on March 24, 2006, to enable the design, synthesis, and characterization of nanoscale materials, thereby opening the door to unimagined scientific and technological advancements;

Whereas the Advanced Light Source of the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory is a national user facility that generates intense light for scientific and technological research that, among other accomplishments, has helped reveal how bacteria resist antibiotics, how inexpensive and efficient solar cells can be fabricated, and how unique substances like quasicrystals possess properties never before seen by humans;

Whereas the National Center for Electron Microscopy of the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory houses several of the most advanced microscopes and tools for microcharacterization in the world, including the One-Angstrom Microscope and the Spin Polarized Low-Energy Electron Microscope, that allow scientists to gain a basic scientific understanding of new energy-efficient materials, as well as to analyze the behavior of materials such as magnets, superconductors, ceramics, and high-temperature alloys;

Whereas the National Energy Research Scientific Computing Center of the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory is the flagship scientific computing facility for the Office of Science of the Department of Energy, and is 1 of the largest facilities in the world that is devoted to providing computational resources and expertise for basic scientific research; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the outstanding and unique role that the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory has played over the past 75 years in the scientific and technological advancement of the United States and the international community; and they worked day and night to search for people in the rubble. In the end, 346 firefighters and emergency personnel lost their lives.

The heroism and bravery shown by the firefighters and rescue workers in the immediate aftermath of the September 11th terrorist attacks led Conner Gehraty, the son of a New York City firefighter who perished in the rescue efforts after September 11th, to circulate via e-mail the idea of establishing a day to honor firefighters. Conner emphasized that there is a substantial remembrance of events such as the Oklahoma City bombing and 9-11. Conner has worked diligently for five years to try to accomplish his goal. My office was able to get in touch with him using Facebook, a networking website, and inform him of the plans to make this day a reality with this resolution. He is very supportive of this legislation.

The Oklahoma State Firefighters Association was also helpful with suggestions in the drafting of this legislation. The Oklahoma State Firefighters Association (OSFA) has 14,000 members consisting of paid (union and non-union), volunteer, and retired firefighters. In addition to providing support, services, and events for firefighters in Oklahoma, the OSFA oversees the Oklahoma Firefighters Museum and the Oklahoma Fallen and Living Firefighters Memorial. I am pleased with the dedication of this organization and the positive role it plays in the lives of Oklahoma’s firefighters. I appreciate their suggestions and support of this resolution.

The OSFA is one of many organizations of firefighters in Oklahoma and around the nation that impress me. Just last week, a group of fire marshals came all the way from Oklahoma to visit my DC office. That visit spurred me to move forward with this resolution.

I pledge to ensure that as we celebrate the first annual National Firefighter Appreciation Day and many more in years to come, the hard-working and courageous individuals that make up groups such as these will be honored in a distinct way that is long overdue.

In his idea of the heroism and inspirational example of firefighters, please join me in naming the second Tuesday of October National Firefighter Appreciation Day.

SENATE RESOLUTION 597—DESIGNATING THE WEEK BEGINNING OCTOBER 15, 2006, AS ‘NATIONAL CHARACTER COUNTS WEEK’

In honor of the Hispanic media of the United States

Mr. DOMENICI (for himself, Mr. SALAZAR, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. BINGAMAN, and Mr. NELSON of Florida) submitted the following resolution; which was:

S. Res. 597

Whereas, for almost 470 years, the United States has benefitted from the work of Hispanic writers and publishers;

Whereas Hispanic publishers circulate more than 20,000,000 copies of publications each week in the United States;

Whereas 1 out of every 8 citizens of the United States is served by a Hispanic publisher;

Whereas the Hispanic press informs many citizens of the United States about the great political, economic, and social issues of the day;

Whereas the Hispanic press of the United States particularly focuses on informing and promoting the well-being of the Hispanic community of the United States; and

Whereas, by commemorating the achievements of the Hispanic press, the Senate acknowledges the important role that the Hispanic press has played in the history of the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates the period beginning on October 8, 2006, and ending on October 14, 2006, as “National Hispanic Media Week”, in honor of the Hispanic Media of the United States; and

(2) encourages the people of the United States to observe the week with appropriate programs and activities.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I rise today to submit an important resolution designating October 8 through October 14 as National Hispanic Media Week. I am joined by Senators BINGAMAN, SALAZAR, MARTINEZ, and NELSON of Florida in the introduction of this resolution.

This is the second year in which the Senate has designated a week to honor the Hispanic media of America. An institution that can trace its origins to almost four hundred years ago, America’s Hispanic journalists and publishers have worked tirelessly to promote the free and deliberative exchange of ideas. The Hispanic media has played an important role in protecting cherished freedoms and rights. They have also worked to preserve our freedom of speech and have encouraged the growth of civic engagement in our nation’s Hispanic community.

Since its early days, the Hispanic media has grown to serve a population exceeding 20 million people. In my home State of New Mexico, approximately 42 percent of the population is Hispanic. I know that many of these individuals turn to Hispanic media for news and other important information. As such, I am honored to be able to support a group that is important to so many people in my home State and in our great nation.

This resolution calls on the American people to join with all children, families, organizations, communities, churches, cities, and states across the Nation to observe the week with appropriate ceremonies and activities. I strongly urge my colleagues to join us in promptly passing this Resolution designating October 8 through October 14 as National Hispanic Media Week.
Whereas the establishment of National Character Counts Week, during which individuals, families, schools, youth organizations, religious institutions, civic groups, and other organizations would focus on character education, would be of great benefit to the United States: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates the week beginning October 15, 2006, as ‘‘National Character Counts Week’’; and

(2) calls upon the people of the United States, including interested groups—

(A) to embrace the elements of character identified by local schools and communities, such as trustworthiness, respect, responsibility, fairness, caring, and citizenship; and

(B) to observe the week with appropriate ceremonies, programs, and activities.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I rise today with my good friend Senator DODD to submit a resolution designating the week of October 15 through the 21 as the 2006 National Character Counts Week.

Our character is the foundation of who we are as people and how we are perceived by the world. Everyday our character and ethics are tested through the decisions we make and the behavior we exhibit. The National Character Counts program focuses on ‘‘Six Pillars of Character’’ which are promoted through community-based character education programs across the country. The six pillars are: trustworthiness, respect, responsibility, fairness, caring, and citizenship.

I have supported Character Counts throughout the years because I believe this program reaches out to all youth and adults, as the Character Counts Coalition states, no matter the individual’s race, creed, politics, gender, and wealth. In my home state of New Mexico, we have run many successful Character Counts programs throughout the years. While many schools initiate Character Counts programs there are also many other organizations that develop character-based programming. I would like to recognize the time to recognize some of the successful programming we have had in New Mexico for 2006.

Mesa Elementary School in Clovis, NM is the definition of a school that embraces character education programming. Everyday school begins with a Character Song and Pledge and every month they organize a Character Counts assembly to recognize and reflect upon the ‘‘Six Pillars of Character’’ which are incorporated into children’s lives in all 50 states across all 50 states in rural, urban, and suburban areas.

In 1994, Senator DOMENICI and I first established the Partnerships in Character Counts Pilot Project which has been a major factor to the success of the program. This year we have cosponsors from both sides of the aisle. Many of our country’s leading educational and youth-serving organizations also actively support character education, including YMCA, 4-H, Boys and Girls Clubs of America, Little League, the National Education Association and the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Character education programs work. Schools across the country that have adopted strong character education programs report better student performance, fewer discipline problems, and increased student involvement within the community. Children want direction—they want to be taught right from wrong. Young people yearn for consistent adult involvement, and when they get it, according to surveys, they are less inclined to use illegal drugs, vandalize or commit suicide. The American public wants character education in our schools, too. Studies show that approximately 90 percent of Americans support schools teaching character education.

As all education policy should be, support of character education is bipartisan. This year we have cosponsors from both sides of the aisle. Many of our country’s leading educational and youth-serving organizations also actively support character education, including YMCA, 4-H, Boys and Girls Clubs of America, Little League, the National Education Association and the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Character education can and is being incorporated into children’s lives in and outside of the classroom. It provides the helping hand to schools and communities to ensure our children’s futures are bright and filled with opportunities and success. Character education not only cultivates minds, it nurtures hearts. While our children may be one-quarter of our population, they are 100 percent of our future.

I would submit that character transcends religious, cultural, political, and socioeconomic barriers. I believe our country is having a renewed focus on character and this sends a wonderful message to Americans, and will help those of us involved in character education reinvigorate our efforts to get communities and schools involved. So today, Senator Domenici and I introduce a resolution to accomplish just that and hopefully our renewed effort will bring together even more communities to ensure that character education is a part of every child’s life. I hope that my colleagues will support this important effort.

Whereas Byron Nelson will be remembered for his kindness and dedication that have won the respect and admiration of his peers, present-day players, and fans of all ages: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate honors the life and legacy of Byron Nelson.

Mrs. Hutchison. Mr. President, I would like to take this moment to honor a dear friend and great legend who passed away on September 26, 1996. Byron Nelson leaves behind a legacy as the "lord" of golf and a true gentleman, and he will be dearly missed.

Byron Nelson was born to a cotton farmer on February 4, 1912, in Long Branch, TX. At the age of 10, his golf career began as a caddy at the Glen Garden Country Club in Fort Worth. While at Glen Garden, Byron sharpened his skills and put them to the test in a number of competitions, even beating out another future golf legend, Ben Hogan, in a caddy tournament in 1927. Facing the labor shortages of the Great Depression, Byron decided to turn professional in 1932 at the young age of 22. By 1937, he had won his first Masters. In his 14 years as a professional, Byron won 54 sanctioned tournaments, including the Masters in 1937 and 1942, the U.S. Open in 1939, and the PGA Championship in 1940 and 1945.

As a hemophiliac, Byron was excused from military service during World War II, which allowed him time to perfect his game. In 1944, he won 13 of the 23 tournaments he played, and in the following year won a record 18 times in 31 starts. During his record season of 1945, Byron reached what is widely considered the least attainable record in golf: an astounding 11 victories in a season scoring average of 68.33.

1946, Byron retired from the game of golf to his 673-acre ranch in Roanoke, TX. A true Texan, Byron had said throughout his career that his incentive for playing well was that he "could see the prize money going into the ranch, buying a tractor, or a cow." In 1974, he was rewarded by the golfing community for his efforts on the course by being elected as an inaugural inductee into the World Golf Hall of Fame.

Always humble about his talent for the game of golf, Byron once said, "I know a little about golf. I know how to make stew. And I know how to be a decent man." Byron Nelson will not only be remembered for his golf game, but also for his graciousness and humility. Through his involvement, the EDS Byron Nelson Championship has raised over $75 million for the Salesmanship Club Youth and Family Centers, which has contributed more money for charity than any other event on the PGA Tour. Additionally, since 1983, the Byron and Louise Nelson Golf Endowment Fund has provided over $1.5 million in endowment funds to Abilene Christian University in Abilene, Texas.

Today we honor Byron Nelson and his outstanding achievements both on and off the golf course. My prayers go out to his wife, Peggy, and the Nelson family.

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates Thursday, November 16, 2006, as "Feed America Day"; and

(2) calls upon the people of the United States—

(A) to sacrifice 2 meals on Thursday, November 16, 2006, and

(B) to donate to a religious or charitable organization of their choice the money that they would have spent on food for that day for the purpose of feeding the hungry.

Mr. Hatch. Mr. President, I rise to support the Senate resolution recognizing "Feed America Day". That day, before we sit down to our own feasts of thanksgiving, I ask that all Americans share their food with those in need. As we give thanks to Pilgrims and the Indians shared with one another, and all were able to sit down and rejoice together.

The concept of Feed America Day is very simple. On the Thursday before Thanksgiving, I urge every American who is able to fast for two meals and give the money saved to a church or charitable organization engaged in feeding the hungry. Fasting means to go without food for a higher purpose. What higher purpose could there be than to share our blessings with those in need? As we feel the hunger for a brief time that so many in the world experience every day, we become more sensitive to the needs of others. And this strengthened generosity of spirit will reverberate throughout our Nation and the world.

Sarah Josepha Hale, recognized as the Mother of the American Thanksgiving, engaged in a nearly 40-year campaign to have Thanksgiving officially accepted as a national holiday. She summed up her vision for this holiday in one of her many editorials on the subject published in the women's magazine she headed for many years. She wrote, "Let us consecrate the day by an exercise of active good..." and "Let the people of all the States and Territories sit down together to the 'feast of fat things,' and drink in the sweet draught of joy and gratitude to the Divine giver of all our blessings. . . ."

This is the purpose of Feed America Day.

Through this program of fasting and charity, we as a nation can truly embody the spirit of Thanksgiving that was amply demonstrated for us between the first European settlers to this land and its native inhabitants in 1621, and later urged by Mrs. Hale.

I urge my colleagues to support "Feed America Day". It is my belief that participating in such selfless sacrifice will breed a genuine spirit of Thanksgiving, affirming and restoring the fundamental principles that form the foundation of the United States of America.

(1) recognizes the national role of the Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities as an advocate and champion for Hispanic higher education and congratulates the organization on its 20th Anniversary; (2) applauds Hispanic Serving Institutions for their work to provide quality educational opportunities to all Hispanic and other students who attend their institutions; and (3) recognizes the national role of the Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities for their work in developing Hispanic Serving Institutions; and

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I rise today to submit a bipartisan resolution recognizing the contributions of Hispanic Serving Institutions, and the 20 years of educational endeavors provided by The Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities.

Today, there are currently 202 Hispanic Serving Institutions in the United States enrolling nearly half of all Hispanic students in college. I take pride in noting that The Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities was founded in my home state of Texas. From its beginning in the City of San Antonio, the Association has grown from 18 colleges and universities to now recognizing more than 400 United States colleges and universities as Hispanic Serving Institutions, associate members, and partners.

The Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities strives to promote academic access for Hispanic students in higher education. This aspiration is continually met in the United States as the Association is the only national education entity that represents Hispanic Serving Institutions. Though focused on the U.S., the Association is also pursuing this goal of high standards by expanding its mission beyond our borders to 45 colleges and universities in Latin America, Spain and Portugal.

Education offers greater opportunity for every individual, and I commend the Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities for their work in developing Hispanic Serving Institutions in order to provide a quality higher education experience for Hispanics and other students who attend these institutions.

S. Res. 609
Whereas the children and youths of the United States represent the future of the United States;
Whereas numerous individuals, children’s organizations, and youth-serving organizations that work with children and youths on a daily basis provide invaluable services that serve to enrich and better the lives of children and youths;
Whereas by strengthening and supporting children’s charities, youth-serving organizations and other nongovernmental organizations, and encouraging greater collaboration among these organizations, the lives of many of these children may be enriched and made better;
Whereas heightening people’s awareness of and increasing the support for the United States for children and youth-serving organizations that provide access to healthcare, social services, education, the arts, sports, and other services will help to improve the lives of children and youths;
Whereas September is a time when parents, families, teachers, school administrators, and others increase their focus on preparing children and youths of the United States for the future as they begin a new school year and it is a time for the people of the United States as a whole to highlight and be mindful of the needs of children and youths;
Whereas “Child Awareness Week”, observed in September, recognizes the children’s charities, youth-serving organizations, and other nongovernmental organizations across the country for the work they do to improve and enrich the lives of children and youths of the United States; and

Whereas a week-long salute to children and youths is in the public interest and will encourage support for these charities and organizations that seek to provide a better future for the children and youths of the United States: Now, therefore, be it

(1) designates the week of September 24, 2006, as “Child Awareness Week”;
(2) recognizes with great appreciation the children’s charities, youth-serving organizations, and other nongovernmental organizations across the United States for their efforts on behalf of children and youths; and
(3) calls on the people of the United States to—

(A) observe the week of September 24, 2006, by focusing on the needs of the children and youths of the United States;
(B) recognize the efforts of children’s charities and youth-serving organizations to enrich and better the lives of the children and youths of the United States; and
(C) support the efforts of the children’s charities and youth-serving organizations of the United States as an investment for the future of the United States.
international fishery management organization or agreement, until such time as conservation and management measures consistent with the Magnuson-Stevens Act, the United Nations Fish Stocks Agreement and other relevant instruments are adopted and implemented to regulate such vessels and fisheries; and

(2) the United States calls upon the member nations of the United Nations to adopt a resolution at its October meeting to protect the living resources of the high seas from destructive, illegal, unreported, and unregulated fishing practices.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, as many of my colleagues are aware, we have been engaged in a long fight in Congress to bring international fishing up to the standards we have here in the United States under the Magnuson Stevens Act. The Senate passed this important measure by unanimous consent this past June. One of the most important sections of the bill deals with destructive fishing practices conducted by foreign vessels on the high seas that are not subject to any kind of international regulation and control.

The high seas comprise more than half of the planet’s surface, yet only 25 percent of this area is regulated by any region or nation’s management or regulation. Management of fishing on the high seas is patchy at best. Some areas like the donut hole in the Bering Sea off my State of Alaska have adopted strict and effective management measures. However, too many areas have not, and without an effective management regime, destructive fishing practices will continue to be conducted by foreign fleets.

In the United States our fishermen must adhere to an extensive set of management and conservation requirements which are laid out in the Magnuson Stevens Act. The eight regional councils located around the United States and the Caribbean Islands are a model of innovative and effective management of our nation’s fisheries. In contrast, management internationally and especially with respect to high seas bottom trawling is sadly lacking. Illegal, unreported and unregulated fishing as well as expanding industrial foreign fleets and high bycatch levels are monumental threats to sustainable fisheries worldwide. These unsustainable and destructive fishing practices on the high seas threaten the good management that takes place in U.S. waters.

One of the proudest moments of my Senate career was going to the United Nations to fight and end the use of large scale drift nets on the high seas. We now have the opportunity to influence the effects of unregulated high seas bottom trawling. The outlines of an agreement on unregulated bottom trawling on the high seas will be discussed at the UN beginning on October 26. There is clear political consensus that action is needed and the United States should take the lead in protecting our oceans.

The bipartisan resolution I am introducing today with our co-chairman Senator INOUYE and 16 other Senators calls on the United Nations to put an end to unregulated fishing practices on the high seas. It is my hope that the United States will work to secure adoption of a United Nations General Assembly Resolution calling on nations to stop their vessels from conducting illegal, unreported, and unregulated destructive high seas bottom trawling until conservation and management measures to regulate it are adopted.

SENATE RESOLUTION 611—Supporting the Efforts of the Independent National Electoral Commission of Nigeria, Political Parties, Civil Society, Religious Organizations, and the People of Nigeria from One Civilian Government to Another into the General Elections to Be Held in April 2007

Mr. FEINGOLD (for himself, Mr. HAGEL, Ms. LANDRIEU, and Mr. DEWINE) submitted the following resolution; which was:

S. RES. 611

Whereas the United States maintains strong and friendly relations with Nigeria and values the leadership role that the Nige- eria plays throughout the continent of Africa, particularly in the establishment of a regional Partnership for African Development and the African Union;

Whereas political aspirants and the democratic process are being threatened by an increasing politically-motivated vio- lence, including the assassination of 3 gubernatorial candidates in different states during the previous 2 months; and

Whereas the Chairperson of the Independent National Electoral Commission has stated:

(1) announced that governorship and state assembly elections will be held on April 14, 2007;

(2) stated that voting for the president and national assembly will take place on April 21, 2007; and

(3) vowed to organize fair and free elections to facilitate a smooth democratic transition; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes the importance of Nigeria as a strategic partner and long-time friend of the United States;

(2) acknowledges the increasing signifi- cance of the leadership of Nigeria through- out the region and continent;

(3) commends the decision of the National Assembly of Nigeria to reject an amendment to the constitution which would have lifted the existing 2-term limit and allowed for a third presidential term;

(8) expresses the support of the United States for coordinated efforts by the Govern- ment of Nigeria and the Independent Na- tional Electoral Commission to work with political parties, civil society, religious or- ganizations, and other entities to organize a peaceful political transition based on free and fair elections in April 2007 to further consolidate the democracy of Nigeria.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 121—Expressing the Sense of the Congress That Joint Custody Laws for Fit Parents Should Be Passed by Each State, So That More Children Are Raised With The Benefits of Having A Father and A Mother in Their Lives

Mr. AKAKA submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was re- ferred to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions:

S. CON. RES. 121

Whereas, in the Fatherhood Program pro- provided for in section 119 of HR. 240, as intro- duced in the House of Representatives on January 4, 2005, it states that—

(1) in approximately 84 percent of the cases where a parent is absent, that parent is the father;

(2) if current trends continue, half of all children born today will live apart from one of their biological parents, usually their father, at some point before they turn 18 years old;

(3) where families (whether intact or with a parent absent) are living in poverty, a sig- nificant factor is the father’s lack of job skills;

(4) committed and responsible fathering during infancy and early childhood contrib- utes to the development of emotional secu- rity, curiosity, and math and verbal skills;

(5) an estimated 19,400,000 children (27 per- cent) live apart from their biological fathers; and

(6) 40 percent of the children under age 18 not living with their biological fathers had not seen their fathers even once in the past 12 months, according to national survey data;

SEPTEMBER 29, 2006

Whereas single parents are to be commended for the tremendous job that they do with their children;

Whereas the United States needs to encourage responsible parenting by both fathers and mothers;

Whereas the United States needs to encourage both parents, as well as extended families, to be actively involved in children's lives;

Whereas a way to encourage active involvement is to encourage joint custody and shared parenting;

Whereas the American Bar Association found in 1997 that 19 States plus the District of Columbia had some form of presumption for joint custody, either legal, physical, or both, and by 2006, 33 additional States had added some form of presumption, bringing the current total to 32 States plus the District of Columbia;

Whereas data from the Census Bureau shows a correlation between joint custody and shared parenting and a higher rate of payment of child support;

Whereas social science literature shows that a higher proportion of children from intact families with two parents in the home are well adjusted, and research also shows that for children from divorced, separated, and never married parents, joint custody is strongly associated with positive outcomes for children on important measures of adjustment and well being; and

Whereas research by the Department of Health and Human Services shows that the States with the highest amount of joint custody subsequently had the lowest divorce rate: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That it is the sense of the Senate that States should enact joint custody laws for fit parents, so that more children are raised with the benefit of having a father and a mother in their lives.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I rise today to submit legislation expressing the sense of the Congress that States should enact joint custody laws for fit parents, so that more children are raised with the benefit of having both parents in their lives.

One of the most significant problems facing our Nation today is the number of children being raised without the love and support of both parents. Even if it is not possible for the parents to remain in a committed partnership, it is important that, when possible, each parent as well as their extended families have every opportunity to play an active role in their children’s lives. A number of recent studies have suggested that children greatly benefit from joint custody or shared parenting arrangements. In my own home State of Hawaii, it is a way of life to have our keiki, or children, raised and nurtured by the extended family and we have seen how our children flourish when the responsibility of child rearing is shared.

This Nation's children are our most vital resource and every effort should be made to ensure that they receive the guidance and encouragement they need to thrive. I urge States to pass joint custody laws for fit parents so all children can be raised within the extended embrace of both parents and their families.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that in executive session, the Senate consider the following treaties on today’s Executive Calendar: Nos. 19 and 20.

I further ask that the treaties be considered as having passed through the various parliamentary stages up to and including the presentation of the resolutions of ratification; that any committee conditions, declarations, or reservations be agreed to as applicable; that any statements be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD as if read; and that the Senate take one vote on the resolutions of ratification to be considered as separate votes; further, that when the resolutions of ratification are voted upon, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, the President be notified of their action, and that following the disposition of the treaties, the Senate return to legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered. The treaties will be considered to have passed through their various parliamentary stages up to and including the presentation of the resolution of ratification, which the clerk will state.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Protocol additional to the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949, and relating to the adoption of an additional Distinctive Emblem (Treaty Document 109-10-A)

Extradition Treaty with United Kingdom (Treaty Document 108-23)

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask for a division on the resolutions of ratification.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A division has been requested.

Those in favor of the ratification of these treaties, please rise.

Those opposed will rise and stand until counted.

With two-thirds of the Senators present having voted in the affirmative, the resolutions of ratification are agreed to.

The resolutions of ratification are as follows:

Resolved, (two-thirds of the Senators present concurring therein), That the Senate advises... and consents to the ratification of the Protocol Additional to the Geneva Conventions of 12 August 1949, and relating to the Adoption of an Additional Distinctive Emblem, adopted at Geneva on December 8, 2008, and signed by the United States on that date (Treaty Doc. 109–18A).

Extradition Treaty with United Kingdom
(Treaty Doc. 108–23)

Resolved (with the advice and consent of the Senate present concurring therein),

Section 1. Senate Advice and Consent Subject to Understanding, Declarations, and Provisos

The Senate advises and consents to the ratification of the Extradition Treaty between the United States of America and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and related exchanges of letters, signed at Washington on March 6, 2006 (hereinafter in this resolution referred to as the "Treaty") (Treaty Doc. 108–23), subject to the understanding in section 2, the declarations in section 3, and the provisos in section 4.

Section 2. Understanding

The advice and consent of the Senate under section 1 is subject to the following understanding:

Under United States law, a United States judge makes a certification of extraditability of a fugitive to the Secretary of State. In the process of making such certification, the United States judge makes determinations regarding the application of the political offense exception. Accordingly, the United States of America understands that the provisions in paragraphs 3 and 4 of Article 4 that "in the United States, the executive branch is the competent authority for making certifications of extraditability or determinations regarding the application of the political offense exception." Accordingly, the United States of America understands that the United States of America understands that the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland does not intend to seek the extradition of fugitives to the United States of America that is prohibited under United States law, to the extent that the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland knows of its existence.

Section 3. Declarations

The advice and consent of the Senate under section 1 is subject to the following declarations:

(A) Each party affirms that it is not seeking extradition of any fugitives for offenses committed before the Belfast Agreement.

(B) The Treaty shall be implemented by the United States in accordance with the Constitutional Provisions of Article 4 and shall be implemented by the United States in accordance with the United States law, including the requirement of a judicial determination of extraditability that is set forth in Title 18 of the United States Code.

Section 4. Provisos

The advice and consent of the Senate under section 1 is subject to the following provisos:

(A) The Senate is aware that the provisions of the Treaty are to be entered into in offenses relating to the conflict in Northern Ireland prior to the Belfast Agreement of April 10, 1998. The Senate understands that the purpose of the Treaty is to strengthen law enforcement cooperation between the United States and the United Kingdom by modernizing the extradition process for serious offenses and that the Treaty is not intended to reopen issues addressed in the Belfast Agreement, or to impede any further efforts to resolve the conflict in Northern Ireland.

(B) Accordionly, the Senate notes with approval:

(i) the statement of the United Kingdom Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, made at Washington on March 6, 2008, that the United Kingdom does not intend to seek the extradition of individuals who appear to qualify for early release under the Belfast Agreement;

(ii) the letter from the United Kingdom Home Secretary to the United States Attorney General emphasizing that the "new treaty does not change this position in any way," and making clear that the United Kingdom "want[s] to address the anomalous position of those suspected but not yet convicted of terrorism-related offences committed before the Belfast Agreement.

(iii) that these policies were reconfirmed in an exchange of letters between the United Kingdom Secretary of State for Northern Ireland and the United States Attorney General in September 2008.

The Senate notes that, as in other recent United States extradition treaties, the Treaty does not address the situation where the fugitive is sought for extradition made a claim to the Secretary of State to review carefully any claims made involving a request for extradition that implicates this provision of United Kingdom domestic law.

The Senate resolves that, within one year after entry into force of the Treaty, and each year thereafter for a period of four additional years, the Secretary of State shall submit to the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate a report setting forth the following information with respect to the implementation of the Treaty in the previous twelve months:

(A) the number of persons arrested in the United States pursuant to requests from the United Kingdom under the Treaty, including the number of persons subject to provisional arrest, and a summary description of the alleged conduct for which the United Kingdom is seeking extradition;

(B) the number of extradition requests granted, and the number of extradition requests denied, including whether the request was denied as a result of a judicial decision or a decision of the Secretary of State;

(C) the number of instances the person sought for extradition made a claim to the Secretary of State of political motivation, unjustifiable delay, or retrial after acquittal, and whether such extradition requests were denied or granted; and

(D) the number of instances the Secretary granted a request under Article 18(1)(c).

Legislative Session

The Presiding Officer.

The Senate will now return to legislative session.

Mr. Frist. Mr. President, I understand there are two bills at the desk, and I ask for their first reading en bloc.

The legislative clerk reads as follows:

A bill (S. 3994) to extend the Iran and Libya Sanctions Act of 1996.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO REPORT

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that notwithstanding the adjournment of the Senate, committees be authorized to report legislative and executive matters on Wednesday, October 25, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

REMOVAL OF INJUNCTION OF SECRECY

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, as in executive session, I ask unanimous consent that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the following treaties transmitted to the Senate on September 29, 2006, by the President of the United States:

I further ask that the treaties be considered as having been read the first time; that they be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President’s messages be printed in the Record.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The messages of the President are as follows:

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the Extradition Treaty between the United States of America and the Government of the Republic of Latvia, signed on December 7, 2005, at Riga. I also transmit, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State with respect to the treaty.

The new extradition treaty with Latvia would replace the outdated extradition treaty between the United States and Latvia, signed on October 16, 1923, at Riga, and the Supplementary Extradition Treaty, signed on October 10, 1934, at Washington. The treaty also fulfills the requirement for a bilateral instrument between the United States and each European Union (EU) Member State in order to implement the Extradition Agreement between the United States and each EU Member State—Latvia and Latvia—likewise also serve as the requisite bilateral instruments pursuant to the U.S.-EU Agreement, and therefore also are being submitted separately and individually.

The treaty follows generally the form and content of other extradition treaties recently concluded by the United States. It would replace an outdated list of extraditable offenses with a modern “dual criminality” approach, which would enable extradition for such offenses as money laundering and other newer offenses not appearing on the list. The treaty also contains a modernized “political offense” clause. It further provides that extradition shall not be refused based on the nationality of the person sought; in the past, Latvia has declined to extradite its nationals to the United States. Finally, the new treaty incorporates a series of procedural improvements to streamline and speed the extradition process.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the treaty.

GEORGE W. BUSH.

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the Extradition Treaty between the United States of America and the Government of Malta, signed on May 18, 2006, at Valletta, that includes an exchange of letters that is an integral part of the treaty. I also transmit, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State with respect to the treaty.

The new extradition treaty with Malta would replace the outdated extradition treaty between the United States and Great Britain, signed on December 22, 1931, at London, and made applicable to Malta on June 24, 1955. The treaty also fulfills the requirement for a bilateral instrument between the United States and each European Union (EU) Member State in order to implement the Extradition Agreement between the United States and the EU. Two other comprehensive new extradition treaties with EU Member States—Estonia and Latvia—likewise also serve as the requisite bilateral instruments pursuant to the U.S.-EU Agreement, and therefore also are being submitted separately and individually.

The treaty follows generally the form and content of other extradition treaties recently concluded by the United States. It would replace an outdated list of extraditable offenses with a modern “dual criminality” approach, which would enable extradition for such offenses as money laundering and other newer offenses not appearing on the list. The treaty also contains a modernized “political offense” clause. It further provides that extradition shall not be refused based on the nationality of a person sought for any of a comprehensive list of serious offenses; in the past, Malta has declined to extradite its nationals to the United States. Finally, the new treaty incorporates a series of procedural improvements to streamline and speed the extradition process.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the treaty.

GEORGE W. BUSH.
To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for Senate advice and consent to ratification, a Protocol Amending the Convention Between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Republic of Finland for the Avoidance of Double Taxation and the Prevention of Fiscal Evasion with Respect to Taxes on Income and Capital and to Certain Other Taxes, Signed at Helsinki June 1, 2006 (the “Protocol”), along with a related Joint Declaration. Also transmitted for the information of the Senate is the report of the Department of State with respect to the Protocol.

The Protocol eliminates the withholding tax on certain cross-border dividend payments. Like a number of recent U.S. tax agreements, the proposed Protocol provides for the elimination of the withholding tax on dividends arising from certain direct investments and cross-border dividend payments to pension funds. The Protocol also eliminates the withholding tax on cross-border royalty payments. In addition, the protocol modernizes the Convention to bring it into closer conformity with current U.S. tax-treaty policy, including strengthening the treaty’s provisions preventing so-called treaty shopping.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Protocol and give its advice and consent to ratification.

GEORGE W. BUSH.

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for Senate advice and consent to ratification, a Protocol Amending the Convention Between the United States of America and the Federal Republic of Germany for the Avoidance of Double Taxation and the Prevention of Fiscal Evasion with Respect to Taxes on Income and Capital and to Certain Other Taxes, Signed on August 29, 1989, signed at Berlin June 1, 2006 (the “Protocol”), along with a related Joint Declaration. Also transmitted for the information of the Senate is the report of the Department of State with respect to the Protocol.

The Protocol eliminates the withholding tax on certain cross-border dividend payments. Like a number of recent U.S. tax agreements, the proposed Protocol provides for the elimination of the withholding tax on dividends arising from certain direct investments and cross-border dividend payments to pension funds. The Protocol also provides for mandatory arbitration of certain cases before the competent authority. This is the first of its kind in a U.S. tax treaty. In addition, the Protocol also modernizes the Convention to bring it into closer conformity with current U.S. tax-treaty policy, including strengthening the treaty’s provisions preventing so-called treaty shopping.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Protocol, along with the Joint Declaration and give its advice and consent to ratification.

GEORGE W. BUSH.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, today I would like to talk about a very important piece of legislation sent over by the House of Representatives to the Senate last night. The Older Americans Act Amendments of 2006 will reauthorize the vital programs to assist the elderly. During the reauthorization it became apparent that the elderly population is growing more quickly in certain areas than others. This was highlighted in newspaper articles this week and has been a key issue for my colleague from North Carolina.

In light of this, I propose that the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions hold hearings during the coming Congress to review formulas for federal programs and how those formulas are developed to determine the fair and equitable distribution of funds. The committee will focus its attention on how funds must follow the people and the need. In other words, how do we make sure that federal monies are going to the areas of greatest need which are in many instances the fast growing areas of our country and how do we eliminate inequities in funding that exist under current formulas and which in many instances disadvantage high-growth states. Finally, I propose that the committee begin its reauthorization of the Older Americans Act no later than 3 years after the passage of this bill.

Mr. BURR. Mr. President, I thank the chairman of the HELP Committee and strongly support his proposals to focus the attention of the committee on how formulas for federal programs, like the Older Americans Act, are developed. The money should follow the people and their need. With respect to the Older Americans Act, I represent the seventh fastest growing state in the Nation and among that growing population is a quickly growing elderly population. The funds from this act are vital to supporting the services and institutions that serve our elderly population today and in the future. I also thank the chairman for addressing the next reauthorization within the 3 years after we pass this bill before us.

Mr. ENZI. I would like to thank my colleague from North Carolina for his support of our bill. He was very important in the drafting of this legislation. I especially want to thank Senator KENNEDY, the ranking member of the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions. In particular, I thank Senator DeWINE, the chairman of the Subcommittee on Retirement Security and Aging. Senator DeWINE provided immediate input in the passage of these amendments, as did Senator Mikulski, the subcommittee ranking member. In addition, I thank the members of the House Committee on Education and the Workforce for their commitment to moving forward with this legislation.

The Older Americans Act Amendments of 2006 is the primary source for the delivery of social and nutrition services for older individuals. Enacted in 1965, the act’s programs include supportive services, congregate and home-delivered nutrition services, community service employment, the long-term care ombudsman program, and efforts to prevent the abuse, neglect, and exploitation of older individuals. The act also provides grants to Native Americans and research, training, and demonstration activities.

Title I of the Older Americans Act sets broad, social policy objectives to improve the lives of all older Americans. It recognizes the need for an adequate income in retirement, and the importance of physical and mental health, employment in community services for older individuals and long-term care services.

Title II establishes the Administration on Aging, AOA, within the Department of Health and Human Services to be the primary Federal advocate for older individuals and to administer the provision of the Older Americans Act. It also establishes the National Eldercare Locator Service to provide nationwide information with regard to resources for older individuals; the National Long-term Care Ombudsman Resource Center; the National Center on Elder Abuse; the National Aging Information Center; and the Pension Counseling and Information Program. The 2006 amendments authorize the designation of a person to have responsibility for elder abuse prevention to develop a long-term plan and national response to elder abuse prevention, detection, treatment, and intervention. It also authorizes the Assistant Secretary to designate an individual to be responsible for administration of mental health services and authorizes Aging and Disability Resource Centers. Further, the 2006 Amendments strengthen the leadership of the Department of Health and Human Services through an interagency coordinating committee to guide policy and program development across the Federal Government with respect to aging and demographic changes.

Title III authorizes grants to fund 655 area agencies on aging and more than 29,000 service providers nationwide. Title III services are targeted to those with the greatest economic and social need, low-income, minority persons and older individuals residing in rural communities. The 2006 amendments will authorize organizations with experience in providing volunteer opportunities for older individuals to be eligible to enter cooperative arrangements with public and private entities to promote the development and implementation of state systems that enable older individuals to receive long-term care and community-based settings in accordance with needs and preferences; encourage and assist programs and policies on aging to plan for population changes; improve access to supportive services that help foster independence; require nutrition projects to prepare meals that comply with the most recent Dietary Guidelines; and reauthorize the National Family Caregiver Support Program.

Title IV supports a wide range of ongoing research and demonstration activities that will enhance innovation, identify best practices, and develop technical assistance for older individuals. The 2006 Amendments will permit competitive grants for planning activities that will benefit the aging population; assessment of technology-based models to aid in remote health monitoring systems, communication devices and assistive technologies. Further, it includes Hispanic serving institutions among those eligible to compete for grants to provide education and training opportunities. The amendments encourage competitive grants to improve transportation services for older individuals; ensures increased awareness of mental health disorders among older individuals; and authorizes development of innovative models of service delivery to ensure older individuals have access to appropriate services as they are able and as they choose.

Title V authorizes the community service employment program for older Americans—known as the Senior Community Service Employment, or SCSEP— to promote part-time opportunities in community service for unemployed, low-income persons who are 55 years or older and who have poor employment prospects. It is administered by the Department of Labor. This program represents approximately one-quarter of Older Americans Act funds—$432 million out of $1.78 billion in fiscal year 2006. This program is operated by the Assistant Secretary and awarded competitive grants and supported 61,050 jobs and served approximately 91,500 individuals in fiscal year 2005. The 2006 amendments establish 4-year grant cycles for the competitive program and prohibit poor performing grantees from competing during the next grant cycle. It expends participation for eligible individuals who are unemployed and establishes a 48-month time limit for participation in the program with a waiver for particularly hard-to-serve individuals. It establishes an overall grantee average participation cap of up to 27 months and authorizes a waiver of up to 36 months.

Title VI provides funds for supportive and income maintenance services for older Native Americans. The 2006 amendments will provide increase the Native American caregiver support program through 2011. Also, Title VII authorizes programs for the long-term care ombudsman, elder abuse, neglect and exploitation, and service developers and vulnerable Native American elder rights. The 2006 amendments will enhance the elder abuse prevention activities by awarding grants to States and Indian tribes to enable them to provide services at no cost and provide assistance for elder justice and elder abuse prevention programs. It will create grants for prevention, detection, assessment, treatment of, intervention in, investigation of, and response to elder abuse; safe havens demonstrations for older individuals; volunteer programs; multidisciplinary activities; elder fatigue and serious injury review teams; programs for underserved populations; incentives for long-term care facilities to participate and retain employees; and other collaborative and innovative approaches.

Finally, the National Resource Center for Women and Retirees is a highly successful program run by the Women’s Institute for a Secure Retirement—WISER—a nonprofit organization dedicated to ensuring the security of women’s retirement income through outreach, partnerships, and policy development. We know that many older women typically retire to financial security and that financial education is needed. This program provides a helpful service and should continue to be funded so as to expand its various programs for older Americans, including financial literacy.

The proportion of the population aged 60 and over will increase dramatically over the next 30 years as more than 78 million baby boomers approach, or have already reached, retirement. It is essential that in the coming years Congress and the Federal Government take a leadership role in assisting the States in addressing the needs of older Americans. The bill we offer today will ensure that our Nation’s older Americans are healthy, fed, housed, able to get where they need to go and safe from abuse and scams. The number one resolution of the 2005 White House Conference on Aging called upon Congress to reauthorize the Older Americans Act. With the 109th Congress, I am pleased that the Senate and the House are accomplishing this goal on behalf of one of our Nation’s greatest resources—our older Americans.

Before closing, I want to thank certain staff of the committee for their hard work and long hours in making this reauthorization a reality. I would especially like to thank the following staff members: Katherine McGuire, Illyse Schuman, Greg Dean, Lindsay Morris, Karla Carpenter, Kori Forster, Lauren Fuller, Michelle Dirst, Brittany Moore and Will Green. Also, I would like to thank the many others who have supported this effort, including Carey O’Sullivan, Richard Rimkus of the Congressional Research Service, and most notably the work of Liz King in the Senate’s Office of Legislative Counsel in supporting the drafting of this legislation. Also, I thank the work of the many staff on the other side of the aisle for their contributions toward passage of the bill. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation in light of the growing needs of our population to ensure that the services they need in the coming years are available to them.

OLDER AMERICANS ACT
AMENDMENTS OF 2006

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I commend Chairman ENZI, Senator DEWINE, Senator MUKILSKA, Chairman McKEON, Representative TIBERI, Representative MILLER, and Representative HINOJOSA for their bipartisan leadership in reauthorizing the Older Americans Act. It’s been a lifeline for senior citizens across the country for 40 years, and all of us want it to continue to fulfill its important mission in the years ahead.

Like Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid, the Older Americans Act is part of our commitment to care for the Nation’s seniors in their golden years.

Last year, 1,200 bi-partisan delegates were chosen by the Governors of all 50 states, the District of Columbia and the Territories to attend the first White House Conference on Aging since 1985. Over the years these conferences have served as catalysts for change, and this conference was no different. The delegates called for reauthorization of the Older Americans Act as their number one priority and I’m pleased that Congress has answered their call.

As we all know, the baby boomer generation is retiring. One in nine Americans are over age 65 today, but by the year 2030, the number will be one in five.

Our authorization bill is designed to take some of the necessary steps to put the infrastructure in place to provide services that will be needed by those retirees. It requires State and local agencies to acknowledge the dramatically changing demographics and to plan ahead. I hope Congress will continue to build on these efforts in coming years and provide increased funds for the programs that exist.

The Conference on Aging also focused on another important theme—the importance of civic engagement and community service by senior citizens.

Members of the new generation of older Americans obviously want to continue to be engaged in their communities after they retire, and it would make no sense for our society not to draw on their experience and knowledge in constructive ways.

The Older Americans Act already provides opportunities for employment of older Americans through the Senior Community Service Employment Program. According to a study by the Center for Labor Market Studies at Northeastern University, the number of older persons aged 55 to 74 with income below $125 percent of poverty will increase from 6 million in 2005 to over $8 million in 2015. Our bill strengthens job training for seniors to involve them in the causes they love, and which also love them. Last year, the program supported 61,000 jobs and served 92,000 people.

Older Americans today provide 45 million hours of valuable service to their communities, particularly in senior centers, public libraries, and nutrition programs. The bill is also intended to encourage good nutrition, healthy living, and disease prevention among seniors. The Meals on Wheels Program, enacted in the 1970s, is one of its greatest successes, and Massachusetts has been in the forefront of efforts to provide community-based nutrition services to the elderly. The Massachusetts program coordinates eight nutrition projects throughout the State to deal with poor nutrition and social isolation of seniors. Our bill will expand the ability of programs such as Meals on Wheels to reach all older individuals who need better nutrition.

Today it's estimated that 47 percent of the elderly eligible for Supplemental Security Income, 70 percent of seniors eligible for food stamps, 67 percent of people eligible for Qualified Medicare Beneficiary protections, and 87 percent of those eligible for Specified Low-Income Medicare Beneficiary protections are not participating in these programs. Surely, we can do a better job of outreach to bring these programs to the attention of those who need them. Our bill addresses the need for better outreach to seniors about the healthcare, mental health services, and outreach to seniors about the Medicare Beneficiary protections included in the Older Americans Act.

First, the conference report includes job training for seniors through the community service employment program and grants for supportive and nutrition programs for older Native Americans.

There are two provisions of this measure that I want to highlight.

First, the conference report includes provisions from legislation that I introduced earlier this Congress with my colleague, Senator BLANCHE LINCOLN of Arkansas, S. 705, the Elder Justice Act. More specifically, this legislation includes a provision which authorizes the Assistant Secretary on Aging to designate an individual to be responsible for elder abuse and prevention services, and to coordinate Federal elder justice activities. This includes developing a long-term plan for the creation and implementation of a coordinated, multidisciplinary elder justice system.

I am so proud to have provisions from the Elder Justice Act included in this legislation. With over 77 million baby boomers retiring in the next three decades, we have no choice but to acknowledge something must be done to combat elder abuse. Passage of this bill is an important step in the right direction.

I also am pleased that this legislation includes a sense of the Congress recognizing the contribution of nutrition to the health of older Americans. This sense of the Congress states that while diet is the preferred source of nutrition, evidence suggests that the use of a single daily multivitamin-mineral supplement may be an effective way to address nutritional gaps that exist among the elderly, especially the poor. I strongly believe that by encouraging seniors to take daily multivitamin-mineral supplements, we are only helping them to live longer, healthier lives and I am hopeful that this important legislation will provide to provide supplements to those who participate.

There is a long history of evidence indicating that multivitamins and minerals can maintain and improve health and are safe. While I wish this provision had been more than a sense of the Congress, I appreciate the work of the conferees to highlight the necessity of good nutrition and supplementation.

Once again, I want to congratulate my colleagues on a job well done. Older Americans across the country appreciate your efforts.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I rise today in strong support of the reauthorization of the Older Americans Act. I commend Chairmen ENZI and Ranking Member KENNEDY of the Committees on Health, Labor, and Pensions for their hard work in putting this bill together and working through the differences with the House prior to today's floor action so that this important legislation can go straight to the President's desk and be signed into law.

There are many important provisions aimed at improving the lives of our senior citizens contained in the Older Americans Act. Today, however, there is one part of the bill to which I want to give particular attention. Section 203 of the act establishes an Interagency Coordinating Committee that will help the Federal Government work with its partners to meet the growing housing, health care, transportation, and related needs of senior citizens around the country. The Interagency Coordinating Committee will work to better coordinate Federal agencies so that seniors and their families can access the programs and services necessary to allow them to age in place or find suitable housing alternatives. This section reads heavily from S. 705, the Meeting the Housing and Service Needs of Seniors Act, which I introduced in April 2005. S.705 was passed by the Senate unanimously on November 15, 2005.

As I said when the legislation first passed, the challenges that confront us as our population ages are growing more urgent. Data from the 2000 census show that the U.S. population over 65 years of age was 34.7 million. This number is expected to grow to over 50 million by 2020. It is projected that by 2030 nearly 20 percent of our population will be over 65; that is, almost one American in every five will be elderly.
As our senior population continues to increase, so will the demand for affordable housing and service options. This is a matter of concern not only for those who will need the services but for families—children along with spouses. It concerns communities all around the country, as productive and responsible citizens grow older and need help. It is a matter of deep concern for us all because it will affect the well-being of our entire society.

Many of us know, both from academic studies and our own experience with elderly parents or friends, that helping a senior citizen to remain in her home or in her community for as long as possible has the potential to improve their quality of life. In order to help seniors age in place or find suitable alternative housing arrangements, services must be linked with that housing. Seniors must be able to access needed health supports, transportation, king kinds of chore services, and assistance with daily tasks in or close to their homes. Without needed supports, seniors and their families face difficult and even daunting decisions.

The Commission on Affordable Housing and Health Facility Needs for Seniors, known as the Seniors Commission, established by Congress in 1999, found that too often, seniors face pre-mature institutionalization because housing and services are not linked. This results in more expensive care for the person, increased social isolation, and a lower quality of life. According to the Commission’s report, “the very heart of the problem is the recognition that the housing and service needs of seniors traditionally have been addressed in different ‘worlds’ that often fall to recognize or communicate with each other. The Commission concluded, ‘the most striking characteristic of seniors’ housing and health care in this country is the disconnection of one field from another.’” The creation of the Interagency Coordinating Committee will ensure that this important conversation gets started.

If left unattended, the problem of lack of coordination will increasingly undermine all of our efforts to assure that Americans have access to the services they need as they age. The Interagency Coordinating Committee established by this legislation will increase communication and coordination among Federal agencies while reducing duplication. The committee will also serve as a permanent national platform to address the needs and issues of our aging population.

The Interagency Coordinating Committee will further help to improve collaboration and coordination among Federal agencies and our State and local partners to ensure that seniors are better able to access housing and services. This committee will work to find new ways to link housing programs and supportive services to increase their efficiency, to make them more accessible, and to strengthen their capacity.

The decisions that our seniors and their families must make are difficult enough. They should not be made more painful and burdensome by having to negotiate a confusing maze of programs and services and a multiplicity of administrative procedures. I am hopeful that the Interagency Coordinating Committee will be able to focus attention on this problem and cut through the barriers that Americans face to utilizing the programs we have provided for them.

The two members of the Interagency Coordinating Committee specifically named in the legislation are the Secretaries of Health and Human Services, HHS, and Housing and Urban Development, HUD. These two Cabinet members are crucial to achieving the ultimate goal of the committee—to make affordable housing and needed supportive services, which are often health-related services, easier for seniors to access. The legislation also names high-ranking officers from agencies that oversee programs of significant importance to the lives of older Americans as potential members of Coordinating Committee. I urge the President, after signing this legislation into law, to name the rest of the committee so that it can begin to create the kind of seamless web of housing, health, transportation, and other services for our seniors that this legislation envisions.

In closing, let me thank Chairman Enzi and Ranking Member Kennedy for their strong support for including the idea of the Interagency Coordinating Committee. Katherine McGuire, Greg Dean, and Lauren Fuller from the HELP Committee were absolutely vital in working with Jonathan Miller of my office and the House committee to make sure this important provision was included in the final legislation.

Likewise, my longtime colleague and friend, Mike Enzi, who is the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Retirement Security and Aging, and Keysa Brooks-Coley from her subcommittee staff, have been strongly supportive of this provision and have been tireless in their advocacy on its behalf. I greatly appreciate their efforts. As I did when S. 705 first passed, I want to express my thanks to Chairman Shelby for moving S. 705 through the Committee and the Senate floor expeditiously and the Banking Committee staff who helped in mitigating this goal, especially Kathy Casey, the former staff director, Mark Calabria, and Tewana Wilkerson.

Finally, I want to thank two former members of my staff, Jennifer Fogel-Bublick and Sarah Garrett, who, at the staff level, were principally responsible for crafting the original legislation and who helped to guide it through this body last year. This accomplishment is very much due to their hard work over the last several years.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise today to highlight an agreement reached by my colleagues, Senator Mike Enzi and Senator Richard Burr, in regard to Federal funding formulas. Over the past year and a half the Senate Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee, of which I am a member, has been working on the reauthorizations of the Older Americans Act.

Part of this effort included changes to the funding formula for the programs contained within the act. I was actively involved in this work with Chairman Enzi and Senator Burr, as I believe that the formula is unfair and incompatible to states with a growing elderly population.

While we were able to make some changes to the funding formula for the Older Americans Act, it is far from adequate. The formula continues to provide high-growth states with less than their fair share of funding. Chairman Enzi has agreed to hold hearings during the 110th Congress to review federal funding formulas.

Senator Burr and I agree that Federal money ought to follow those in need, including the state of Nevada. Current Federal funding formulas often ignore this and penalize those living in fast-growing States.

According to USA Today, the state of Nevada is projected to see a one hundred and fourteen percent increase in our population—the highest rate of growth in the country. Nevada welcomes our new-comers with open arms, as they have recognized the quality of life the state of Nevada has to offer. I implore the Congress that so many Americans have chosen to call Nevada home.

I was sent to Washington, DC, promising that I would do more to bring Nevadans hard earned dollars back to the State. Nevadans are happy to pay their fair share of taxes to the Federal Government, but also expect a fair share to return to the State. Despite my success in changing several funding formulas, Nevada continues to rank at the bottom of the list in terms of Federal dollars returning to the State.

Much of this is because current Federal funding formulas contain provisions that require outdated population data, and others mandate the use of hold harmless provisions. Both of these provisions work against those who need the assistance these funds provide. These provisions punish those who have chosen to move to a different State particularly fast-growing States.

I have worked to bring some equity and fairness to the Perkins Career funding formula, which has brought an additional $34 million to the State of Nevada. I have also worked to bring some fairness to the Perkins Career and Technical Education program and other important programs, but much work remains to be done.

I am anxious for these hearings to begin so we can truly shed some light on these formulas and the unfair provisions used to allocate Federal dollars. Federal money ought to follow those in need, including the state of Nevada. It should not be held hostage to politics. It is my hope that these hearings will lay the groundwork for work on other members information about supportive services, nutrition programs like Meals on Wheels that provide meals to 2.75 million people every year, and transportation services which are critically important to seniors in our rural areas. At the same time, we recognize the importance of innovative programs in the act and establish new innovative initiatives that are fiscally responsible.

The bill strengthens the National Family Caregiver Support Program by providing new services to older adults who care for their children who are disabled and lowering the age eligibility of grandparents caring for a child from 60 to 55. The bill also extends caregiver services to individuals with Alzheimer’s disease at any age to address the increasing number of people who are being diagnosed with Alzheimer’s at an earlier age and increases the authorization for the program to meet the growing needs of family caregivers.

The bill strengthens aging and disability resource centers, expanding the important role resource centers across the country provide. These centers are visible, trusted sources of information and support for healthy aging, long-term care insurance and provide seniors and their family members with important information on benefits including the Medicare prescription drug program.

The bill strengthens the title V Senior Community Service Employment Program by maintaining the strong community service aspect of the program, an integral component since the beginning. This program helps seniors find jobs at Meals on Wheels programs, senior centers, and public libraries.

H.R. 6197 authorizes new innovative programs including a Naturally Occurring Retirement Community—NORC—Aging in Place Program that will support and enhance the ability of seniors to remain in their communities by providing seniors necessary supporting services including transportation, social work services, and health programs. The new grant program builds on the success of Naturally Occurring Retirement Communities Programs that have developed at the local level and have a proven record of success.

A Civic Engagement Demonstration Program is authorized that encourages older adults actively involved in their communities. The program will capitalize on the talent and experience of older adults to meet critical needs in our communities. The bill also creates an elder abuse program that will support State and a community effort against elder abuse by conducting research related to elder abuse and neglect and creates a nationally coordinated system to collect data about elder abuse, neglect, and exploitation.

The bill also establishes an Interagency Coordination Committee based on S. 705, Meeting the Housing and Service Needs of Seniors Act of 2005, introduced by the senior Senator from Maryland, Mr. SARBANES. The interagency committee will address the housing and social service needs of seniors and enhance working relationships and coordination among Federal entities including the Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Labor, and Transportation.

This bill addresses the issue of emergency preparedness for seniors by reauthorizing the Older Americans Act Amendments of 2006, H.R. 6197. This bill passed the House unanimously yesterday and is a bipartisan, bicameral agreement to reauthorize this important act until 2011.

H.R. 6197 retains and strengthens current programs, as well as establishes new innovative programs. This bipartisan bill also honors the agreement that I made with Senators ENZI, DeWINE, and KENNEDY to members of the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee to address the current funding formula for title III OAA dollars before moving the bill to the Senate.

The bill includes a compromise that recognizes States that have both increasing and decreasing populations. Updating the “hold harmless” to the fiscal year 2006 funding level helps States with steady populations, while phasing out the guaranteed growth over 5 years helps States with increasing aging populations. This past December, the congressionally mandated White House Conference on Aging convened 1,200 bipartisan delegations from States to discuss issues that affect the lives of older individuals across the country. The No. 1 resolution adopted at the conference was reauthorization of the OAA this year. We have needed their call and are pleased that H.R. 6197 has the strong support of the aging community.

There are three principles that I used to guide this reauthorization process. First, to continue to improve the core services of this act to meet the vital needs of America’s seniors. We need a national program with national standards that ensure consistency but allow for sufficient flexibility and creativity. Second, to modernize the act, to meet the changing needs of America’s senior population, including the growing number of seniors over 85. We must be ready for the impending senior boom and look for ways to help seniors live more independent and active lives. And finally, to ensure these critical national, State, and local programs have the resources they need to get the job done.

This bill keeps our promise to older Americans to retain and strengthen current OAA programs, as well as provide new innovative programs to further improve the act. It will ensure that the OAA continues to meet the day-to-day needs of our country’s older Americans and the long-range needs of our aging population.

The reauthorization bill maintains tried and true programs, including information and referral services that are the backbone of OAA programs, providing seniors and their family...
method used by the Administration on Aging, AOA, to distribute title III funding resulted in inequitable funding across States and adversely affected States with rapidly growing older populations such as North Carolina. Under AOA procedures, States with above-average growth were consistently underfunded, while States with below-average growth were consistently overfunded. In fiscal year 2000 alone, GAO found that AOA’s allotment method resulted in North Carolina being underfunded by $2.1 million.

Although Congress attempted during the 2000 reauthorization of the OAA to ensure that the allocation methods used to distribute funds were consistent with statute, a provision was added to the formula, referred to as a guaranteed growth factor, which had the unfortunate effect of compounding the disparities between high- and low-growth States. Under the formula included in the Act before us, this guaranteed growth factor is to be phased out in 5 years. I appreciate the inclusion of this phase out. However, I strongly believe that 5 years is too long a time to eliminate a funding provision that serves only to underfund high-growth States and overfund low-growth States.

As we all know, older Americans are a rapidly growing and ever important group of our population. My home State of North Carolina has and will continue to experience unprecedented growth in all segments of our populations in the coming years. While the Nation’s total population is expected to grow 29 percent by 2030, North Carolina’s total population is expected to increase 51.9 percent by 2030, making North Carolina the seventh most populous by 2030 and the seventh fastest growing state.

The State of North Carolina welcomes this growth, which we are experiencing in all segments of our population, and we are pleased that so many are choosing to make North Carolina their home. Nevertheless, to best meet the needs of our residents, it is imperative that funds provided by Federal programs such as the OAA reach the individuals they are intended to serve. As we all know, funding formulas are complicated. Nevertheless, it is critical that this and other formula issues be resolved once and for all and not become the nexus for another prolonged or other reauthorizations years down the road. If the goal of the OAA is to provide essential Federal programs and services to our most vulnerable populations, our seniors and our children. Additionally, I thank the many Michigan organizations who supported the Federal Youth Coordination Act, and I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the letters in support of S. 409 be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

NATIONAL COLLABORATION FOR YOUTH

Hon. DEBBIE STABENOW,
133 Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR STABENOW: On behalf of the National Collaboration for Youth and its member organizations, we thank you for your support of the Federal Youth Coordination Act (S. 409) and co-sponsoring the briefing on the legislation held earlier this week.

More than 20 Senate staff members attended the briefing to hear our distinguished panelists discuss the maze of services facing disadvantaged youth and their families. The federal government currently lacks a coordinating body with the mandate to weave the existing tangle of services into a seamless web of supports. We appreciate your leadership on the Federal Youth Coordination Act (FYCA), which fills this need and provides valuable leadership, support and efficiency to state and local efforts across the country. We look forward to continuing to work with your office on FYCA.

Sincerely,

IVY KATZ,
President and CEO.

VOICES FOR MICHIGAN’S CHILDREN

Lansing, MI, April 18, 2005.

Senator DEBBIE STABENOW,
U.S. Senate, 702 Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

On behalf of our Board of Directors of Michigan’s Children, I would like to thank you for your sponsorship of the Federal Youth Coordination Act of 2005.

Transitioning to adulthood can be a complicated process for young people, navigating the supports and services available should not be so complicated. For this reason, Michigan’s Children has as one of its legislative and administrative priorities for 2006 to provide young people with the tools and supports necessary to transition to adulthood. This priority includes supporting state and federal efforts to provide more coordinated services to this population. As you are aware, the Federal Youth Coordination Act represents a positive step in this direction.

We are pleased that you have signed on as a co-sponsor to this important piece of legislation. It may interest you to know that the theme of the 2005 Michigan Kids Count Databook will be issues faced by at-risk youth in transition. This provides a unique opportunity this fall (the databook is scheduled for release in October 2005) to
I thank the HELP Committee for working with me to improve OACSEP. Specifically, the bill expands eligibility to ensure that people who have some income but are still very poor can get OACSEP services. It also requires the Department of Labor to perform an evaluation of OACSEP grantees by hours of community service employment, placement into and retention in paid jobs, earnings, and the number of people served—including the number of people from hard-to-serve populations. And it sets performance standards on these measures as one of its criteria in awarding future grants.

At an Aging Committee hearing in April, the GAO testified that even though thousands of seniors need training and jobs, Labor has restricted OACSEP eligibility so much that grantees can’t find enough people to enroll. The bill returns to more realistic eligibility criteria, such as ensuring that SSI benefits no longer count as income in determining whether you are poor enough to qualify for the program.

This reauthorization also recognizes the importance of engaging our next generation of seniors in community service. I believe many boomers would like to continue working, others will look to mix work and leisure with vol-unteerism. Older Americans bring a wealth of talent and experience to their communities, and many are eager to reserve solutions. This reauthorization directs the administration on Aging to develop a blueprint for engaging boomers and authorizes a fund for innovation for community stakeholders to engage boomers. These are two important steps in giving the government and communities the tools needed to harness boomers’ leadership skills and abilities.

I am also pleased to see several provisions of the Elder Justice Act included in the Older Americans Act reauthorization. I am an original cosponsor of the Elder Justice and strongly support its goals. For far too long, our Nation has turned its back on the shame of elder abuse. With these provisions, we are finally saying enough is enough—elder abuse is unacceptable and we are going to put an end to it.

For the first time, the bill provides real Federal leadership in the fight to ensure the success of the Office of Elder Abuse Prevention. It also includes programs to assist States and Indian tribes with their efforts to protect seniors. Important research and data collection can now begin so we will know the scope of the problem and the best solutions to prevent, detect, and treat elder abuse, neglect and exploitation.

In addition, I am pleased this bill preserves the Long Term Care Ombudsman Program. Although it is a small program, it plays a key role in protecting the elderly and disabled in long-term care by serving as an advocate for patients and helping them resolve complaints of abuse, neglect, and mistreatment. A recent report by the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences noted the importance of routine onsite presence of ombudsmen in detecting problems before they become critical. In my home State of Wisconsin has one of the most successful ombudsman programs in the county, and we are proud to have one of the very best ombudsmen, George Potaracke, leading that program. I have worked for many years to ensure that the Federal government-funded program receives increases. These increases are often small, but they improve the lives of people living in long-term care facilities. I hope that future OAA reauthorizations will take the ombudsman’s growing caseload into account and increase its funding authorization to match the need.

This legislation also maintains strong support for state and community programs authorized under title III. These programs serve over 200,000 caregivers, and supports respite care for caregivers, and supports respite care services for about 300,000 caregivers, and supports respite care services for over 200,000 caregivers.

Now that we are poised to pass the Older Americans Act reauthorization, we must make sure we fund it. All of our good intentions will be empty promises if we don’t also provide the resources seniors need. As a member of the Appropriations Committee, I have consistently supported increased funding for OAA and will continue to fight for these programs.

Again, I applaud the HELP Committee for this sensible and much needed bill.
Republicans came together over the past 2 years to reauthorize the Older Americans Act and that’s simply good news for seniors across the country.

I thank Chairman Enzi and our Democratic colleagues Senators Mikulski and Durbin for bringing me into the effort. This bill is an excellent example of the positive things we can accomplish when members of both parties work side by side towards a common goal. Over the past 2 years, as Chairman of the Senate Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee as we join in passage of the Older Americans Act Amendments of 2006, a bill which we all believe will make the lives of seniors better.

Senator Mikulski and I worked together to draft and pass the Older Americans Act Amendments of 2000. I am pleased I have worked with her again to improve and update these vital programs for seniors. Her hard work and experience has been invaluable.

This bill comes about through the dedication and compromise of members in both the Senate and the House. I would like to take this moment to thank everyone on both sides of the aisle who worked on this bill—particularly my colleague from Ohio, Representative Tiberi. They have been dedicated to the passage of this important legislation, and I thank them for their hard work.

The Older Americans Act is so important for my home state of Ohio. More than 2 million people over the age of 60 in Ohio are eligible for services under the Older Americans Act. Let me say that again, there are over 2 million Ohio seniors who will have the opportunity to take advantage of the programs in this bill. The bill will bring more than $44 million to programs in Ohio. This vital funding will go to wonderful organizations such as Meals on Wheels, which provides important nutrition programs at senior centers and in senior’s homes.

This funding will also help programs preventing injury and illness to seniors, as well as programs supporting families who are caring for disabled loved ones, including the elderly and adult children with disabilities, and grandparents who are caring for their grandchildren. So many Ohioans need these services. In my state 87 percent of those in need of care by a family member are at age 50 or older. Seventy percent of those persons are women. A disabled family member spend an average of 4.2 years in this role—time impacting their job, their emotions, and their health.

The Older Americans Act also provides funding and support for the 12 Area Agencies on Aging that serve older Americans living in Ohio. These 12 agencies do a wonderful job of organizing the services I just described, as well as providing services to all 88 counties in Ohio and work with State and local providers of services to ensure that all seniors in their areas maintain proper health and nutrition and are aware of the services available to them.

Nationwide, older Americans are a vital and rapidly growing segment of our population. Over 36 million people living in the United States—about 12 percent of the population—are over the age of 65. The Census Bureau projects that 45 years from now, people 65 and older will number nearly 90 million in the United States and will comprise 21 percent of the population.

The Older Americans Act is an important—no, an essential—service provider for these Americans, and I strongly believe that the reauthorization bill we just passed updates and strengthens the Act in so many ways. Plans to prepare for changes to the aging demographics will be incorporated into the Act. A Federal interagency council will be established for ensuring appropriate planning for baby boomer-related needs and population shifts across agencies will be created. And grants and technical assistance will be provided to local aging service providers to plan for the baby boomer population.

Our bill will also increase the Federal funding levels for the National Family Caregiver Support Program over the next 5 years. This important program helps families care for loved ones who are severely ill or disabled, yet want to remain in their homes and community. Our bill expands this program so that all of those caring for loved ones with Alzheimer’s become eligible. Our bill also clarifies that this program will serve elderly caregivers who are caring for their adult children with developmental disabilities and expands that provision to include all adult children with disabilities who are being cared for by an elderly parent. Lastly, it clarifies that grandparents caring for adopted grandchildren are covered under the National Family Caregiver Support Program and lowers the age threshold to 55 years old. These important changes will improve the quality of life for so many who are struggling under the pressures of caring for loved ones—including more than 1.700 Ohioans annually.

Other provisions of the bill encourage seniors to make voluntary contributions to help defray the costs of these programs if they want to which will allow the program to reach out to even more seniors. This will help programs such as Michigan’s NET to expand their activities and will enable them to more effectively take contributions from those older Americans willing and able to pay for services. Annually, more than 125,000 Ohioans are served nearly 10 million meals by these important programs. The number of seniors in our population is increasing—and as it does, we need to modify our programs to ensure that they are economically sustainable and equipped to grow.

We know that most Americans wish to live independently in their own homes as they age. Our amendments will help them do so by providing funding that the Department of Health and Human Services can award grants for the improvement of assistive technology that will allow older Americans to monitor their health while they remain in their homes. This bill also creates a new program awarding grants for the creation of innovative models for the delivery of services to those who remain in their homes. The need for this grant program was discussed at length in a hearing I held on models for aging in place—specifically, Naturally Occurring Retirement Communities or NORCs. NORCs are areas in which large concentrations of people live and stay as they age. Essentially, NORCs are neighborhoods or communities that people want to stay in the places they love. Provisions for NORCs will allow Americans to remain in their homes and communities, the places where they believe they will stay happier and healthier. As I stated before, Americans want to stay in the places they love as they age. This bill will help them do just that.

Further, this bill creates a new momentum towards the provision of consumer-driven choices with respect to long-term care. As we all know, too many older Americans become disabled without the ability or the insurance to pay for their care. Too often, their only choice is to live in a nursing facility away from home. This ends up being more costly and ultimately not what the person would prefer—which is to remain in their home and their community. This bill will facilitate access to long-term care opportunities. It will also enhance the ability of local providers and area agencies on aging to provide advice on the range of options they have available. Older Americans will then have the flexibility to decide for themselves which is the best place for them to age.

The Senior Community Service Employment Program is a federally funded jobs program geared specifically for older Americans. In Ohio alone, it provides more than 2,000 jobs to low-income older Americans age 55 and older. Our bill updates this program to ensure additional stability in those who provide these services for older low-income Americans. This stability will limit the fluctuation faced in the program and will also help low-income older Americans get the training they need to move on to better paying jobs.

The Senior Community Service Employment Program has a dual nature, containing provisions that address both community service and job training for low income individuals. Our bill provides a Sense of the Senate supporting this dual approach. Furthermore, our bill limits the time period of participation in the program to 4 years, with an exemption for certain hard to serve individuals. This provision balances the need for a limit to the time a person spends in this employment program with the recognition that certain populations have special needs.

Of great importance to me, this bill also amends the Older Americans Act to focus attention on the mental health needs of older Americans. The amendments establish grants for the mental health screening of older Americans and for increased awareness of the effects of mental health needs on the elderly population. Too often the mental health needs of older Americans are overlooked—but they can be as serious and life-threatening as any other illness. The mental health needs of our seniors must be taken more seriously. We must deal with them more aggressively. I believe that these provisions move us significantly forward in this struggle.

Finally, this bill will help address the terrible problem of seniors who suffer abuse in their homes or while in nursing homes. Elder abuse is a serious problem that we know exists but is not well documented. This bill increases the profile of these issues while providing important resources for improving the data collection of incidents and outreach to those who may be suffering abuse. I believe that these new grants will move us forward tremendously in our fight against elder abuse. I know that this was an important provision for Chairman ENZI, and I am glad that we were able to include this important program for at-risk seniors.

Once again, I want to thank Senator ENZI and Senator KENNEDY for making this reauthorization a priority for the HELP Committee. Over the months we have negotiated this bipartisan bill, I have greatly appreciated their thoughtful and steady work to get the Older Americans Act to this point. Together, we have worked to get it done.

Today’s passage of the Older Americans Act Amendments of 2006 is incredibly important to older Americans, both in Ohio and across the Nation. I would like to commend everyone involved.

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read the third time and passed, a motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements related to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 6197) was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

TO EXTEND TEMPORARILY CERTAIN AUTHORITIES OF THE SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 6159 which was received from the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the title of the bill.

The legislative clerk read as follows: A bill (H.R. 6159) to extend temporarily certain authorities of the Small Business Administration.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of the bill.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, tomorrow—September 30, 2006—many of the SBA’s programs and authorities expire. Our committee worked together to come up with a bipartisan package, a true give-and-take on ideas, including many reforms driven by needs identified in the response to the gulf hurricanes last year. That comprehensive small business reauthorization bill, S. 3778, is opposed by the administration, and is being blocked from consideration in the full Senate through various holds.

We finished our work at the end of July, and the bill has been pending on the Senate calendar for consideration since August 2. The administration and other opponents are had 9 weeks to work out a compromise. But they don’t want to. SBA has told the small business community that they don’t want an SBA reauthorization bill this year; they only want to reauthorize their ability to cosponsor events with the private sector.

In the absence of passing that legislation, which is a replay of our last reauthorization bill, S. 1375, that was obstructed, the agency is at the mercy of a continuing resolution, CR. Unfortunately, a continuing resolution doesn’t extend all the authorities needed for the agency to operate. H.R. 6159 was put forward to catch some of the programs that would fall through the cracks. However, according to CRS and the Senate Legislative Counsel, as drafted, the bill still doesn’t close the gaps. The gaps leave open the Advisory Committee on Veterans Business Affairs, the New Markets Venture Capital Program, and the Program for Investment in Micro-entrepreneurs.

There are disagreements over the interpretation of what needs to be authorized, and some of our colleagues have argued that even if there are disagreements on the interpretation of what programs are covered by H.R. 6159, we should move the bill anyway because we have a letter from SBA committing to cover those provisions considered ambiguous. Specifically, SBA gave Chairman SNOWE a letter on September 27, 2006, committing to run the programs that we discussed about. Our colleagues argue that SBA would be bound by those written interpretations. However, I am sure my colleagues can understand why we might not feel comfortable relying on that letter given that on September 19, 8 days earlier, SBA sent a list to my staff regarding which programs are covered by a CR, those with “hard sunsets,” and it is clear that SBA’s reauthorization, so we prefer to go with their interpretations.

What are the contradictions?: “The Advisory Committee on Veterans Business Affairs, “The SBDC Drug-Free Workplace program, “The Pre-Disaster Mitigation program.

In the e-mail, SBA said:

Those marked with an * do not need authorization language in the CR to operate without authorization language. Those marked with * do not operate without authorization language and only asked that the language be included in the reauthorization bill.

Also, problematic is the date. The bill extends the programs through February 2, 2007, instead of November 17, 2006, consistent with the CR. Because the SBA has the cosponsorship authority, there is no incentive for the agency to come negotiate with us on the comprehensive reauthorization bill. They were given this 9 weeks ago, and told we had one hour to approve it. We tried, but our conversations, as referenced above, with CRS and Senate Legislative Counsel identified holes in the legislation. We asked Legislative Counsel to draft the corrections and told our colleagues that we were waiting for the draft. They moved forward without us. This take-it-or-leave-it approach is unnecessary.

The record reflect that we have been willing to compromise all along and only asked that the language accomplish: extension of programs or authorities that would fall through the cracks based on discussions with CRS and Senate Legislative Counsel and a date change to keep folks working to pass, this 109th Congress, S. 3778, the Senate’s bipartisan, comprehensive SBA Reauthorization Act. We did not include provisions outside those goals. The disappointing result of this bill last week, and told us we had one hour to approve it. House of Representatives on Tuesday that would provide a short-term extension of the Small Business Administration, SBA, and all of its programs. In particular, it ensures the continued authority, through February 2, 2007, of the SBA’s Pre-Disaster Mitigation program, the Small Business Development Center Drug-Free Workplace Grants, the Advisory Committee on Veterans Business Affairs, and also the SBA’s CoSponsorship and Gift Acceptance Authority.

Currently, many of the SBA’s programs, authorities, or provisions authorized under the Small Business Act and the Small Business Investment Act are scheduled to expire on September 30, 2006. While most of the SBA’s programs can operate through appropriations and the Continuing Resolution, this bill makes certain that the SBA will continue its vital small business lending programs, such as new jobs loan guaranty program; the Certified Development Company program; and the Small Business Investment Companies program.

On July 27, 2006, the Small Business Committee unanimously reported out the Small Business Improvements and Reauthorization Act of 2006 (S. 3778), a comprehensive, bipartisan bill which reauthorizes the SBA for the next 3 years. This bill is a product of the committee’s work over the last 2 years and includes many critical provisions to improve and revitalize the SBA and its programs.

My SBA Reauthorization bill will enhance the SBA’s role in assisting American small businesses to thrive and grow, through the agency’s lending programs as well as other programs and services. Most importantly, it will enable the agency to help small businesses and entrepreneurs create or retain over 5.3 million jobs in the United States.

I am confident that we can enact legislation to reauthorize the SBA before the 109th Congress ends and I am committed to work with my colleagues to pass a bipartisan bill. However, in the interim, we must ensure that the SBA can continue to offer the entire range of its programs to our nation’s small businesses, which are the backbone of our economic foundation, creating nearly three-quarters of all new jobs and generating about 50 percent of the nation’s gross domestic product.

However, at stake today are four key SBA programs and authorities, including the Advisory Committee on Veterans Business Affairs, which is scheduled to terminate, and its duties will be assumed by the NVBDC (National Veterans Business Development Corporation).

We must act today to ensure that the SBA, the Advisory Committee on Veterans Business Affairs, and all of SBA’s programs continue to operate. The bill before us achieves that goal by extending the authorization for the SBA’s programs and services to January 2, 2007. That will provide sufficient time and opportunity for both the Senate and the House to pass a SBA Reauthorization legislation, for Congress to reconcile the differences, and for the President to sign a long-term reauthorization bill for the SBA.

Too much was at stake for small businesses, and our economy as a whole, to allow SBA and critical small business programs and services to languish. We must find essential agreement and fulfill its obligation to America’s small businesses. Clearly, if we strive for anything less, we would fail to support the backbone of our economy, our hope for innovation and new technology, and our small firms that employ millions across the nation ensure the success of tomorrow’s entrepreneurs.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 6159 and thereby ensure that the SBA will continue to serve small businesses and enable small businesses to obtain the financing they need, as they contribute so greatly to the revitalization of our national economy.

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read the third time and passed, a motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to the bill be printed in the Record.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 6159) was ordered to a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

(1) SECTION 803(6), with respect to the operation by

(2)(B).
SEC. 1001. STUDY AND REPORT BY THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL ON THE CURRENCY TRANSACTION REPORT FILING SYSTEM.

(a) In General.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a study on the volume of currency transaction reports filed with the Secretary of the Treasury under section 5313(a) of title 31, United States Code.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of the study required under subsection (a) shall be—

(1) to evaluate, on the basis of actual filing data, patterns and characteristics of currency transaction reports filed by depository institutions of all sizes and locations; and

(2) to identify whether and the extent to which the filing rules for currency transaction reports described in section 5313(a) of title 31, United States Code—

(A) are burdensome; and

(B) can or should be modified to reduce such burdens without harming the usefulness of such filing rules to Federal, State, and local anti-terrorism, law enforcement, and regulatory operations.

(c) Period Covered.—The study required under subsection (a) shall cover the period beginning at the date of enactment of this section.

(d) Content.—The study required under subsection (a) shall include a detailed evaluation of—

(1) the extent to which depository institutions are availing themselves of the exemption system for the filing of currency transaction reports set forth in section 5313(a) of title 31, Code of Federal Regulations, as in effect during the study period (in this section referred to as the ‘‘exemption system’’), including specifically, for the study period—

(A) the number of currency transaction reports filed (out of the total annual numbers) involving companies that are listed on the New York Stock Exchange or the NASDAQ National Market;

(B) the number of currency transaction reports filed by the 100 largest depository institutions in the United States by asset size, and thereafter in tiers of 100, by asset size;

(C) the number of currency transaction reports filed by depository institutions in the United States, including the number of such currency transaction reports involving companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange or the NASDAQ National Market; and

(D) the number of currency transaction reports that would have been filed during the filing period if the exemption system had been used by all depository institutions in the United States;

(2) what types of depository institutions are using the exemption system, and the extent to which such exchange is used;

(3) difficulties that limit the willingness or ability of depository institutions to use their currency transaction reports reporting burden by making use of the exemption system, including considerations of cost, especially in the case of small depository institutions;

(4) the extent to which bank examination difficulties have limited the use of the exemption system, especially with respect to—

(A) the exemption of privately-held companies permitted under such exemption system; and

(B) whether, on a sample basis, the reaction of bank examiners to implementation of such exemption system is justified or inhibits use of such exemption system without an offsetting compliance benefit;

(5) ways to improve the use of the exemption system by depository institutions, including the issuance of clarifications in order to reduce the volume of currency transaction reports unnecessarily filed; and

(6) the usefulness of currency transaction reports filed to law enforcement agencies, taking into account—

(A) advances in information technology;

(B) the possible loss of investigatory data, that various changes in the exemption system would have on the usefulness of such currency transaction reports; and

(C) findings that could be made about the exemption system without affecting the usefulness of currency transaction reports.

(e) Assistance.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall provide such information processing and other assistance, including from the Commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service and the President of the Financial Enforcement Network, to the Comptroller General in analyzing currency transaction report filings for the study period described in subsection (c), as is necessary to provide the information required by subsection (a).

(f) Views.—The study required under subsection (a) shall, if appropriate, include a discussion of the views of a representative sample of Federal, State, and local law enforcement and regulatory officials and officials of depository institutions of all sizes.

(g) Recommendations.—The study required under subsection (a) shall, if appropriate, include recommendations for changes to the exemption system that would reflect a reduction in unwarranted cost to depository institutions, assuming reasonably full implementation of such exemption system, without reducing the usefulness of the currency transaction report filing system to anti-terrorism, law enforcement, and regulatory operations.

(h) Report.—Not later than 15 months after the date of enactment of this section, the Comptroller General shall submit to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Financial Services of the House of Representatives a report on the study required under subsection (a) to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate and the Committee on Financial Services of the House of Representatives.
This provision was included at the request of the regulatory agencies, and we have heard some concerns that the regulatory agencies may use this language to require personal guarantees from bank directors or officers in inappropriate circumstances.

I ask Senator CRAPO if he can explain the legislative intent behind Section 702?

Mr. CRAPO. In adopting this provision, it is our intention that the regulatory agencies utilize Section 702 with care and precision. Specifically, we do not intend that the regulatory agencies use it routinely in connection with corporate applications, notices or requests to impose financial or other conditions on bank directors or officers that contain a personal guarantee against loss by the institution. In particular, it is not our intention that the regulatory agencies use it routinely to require bank directors or officers to resign or keep well-qualified people from becoming directors in order to protect the safety and soundness of insured depository institutions. This provision was included at the request of the regulatory agencies to ensure that the regulatory agencies may use this language to require personal guarantees from bank directors or officers in inappropriate circumstances.

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4902, and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I thank the senior Senator from California for addressing concerns I had with an earlier version of this bill. I was particularly concerned about the apparent disconnect between the substantive offense created by the bill and the misdemeanor penalty for its violation. The offense requires proof that a defendant, for the purpose of damaging or interfering with the operations of an animal enterprise, “intentionally damages, or causes the loss of any property (including animals or records)” used by an animal enterprise. By contrast, the misdemeanor penalty provision applied to offenses involving “exclusively nonviolent physical obstruction” of an animal enterprise facility, resulting in no bodily injury, no property damage, and no loss of profits.

It is difficult to imagine how a person can intentionally damage property, or intentionally cause the loss of property, while at the same time be engaged exclusively in nonviolent physical obstruction that causes no real harm. The only way these provisions could be reconciled would be by watering down the criminal prohibition to extend to peaceful conduct that the bill was never intended to cover.

The current version of the bill clears up this confusion. It strikes the misdemeanor penalty provision in its entirety and clarifies that the substantive offense created by the bill requires proof of intentional damage to real or personal property, not simply a loss of profits. These changes will ensure that legitimate, peaceful conduct is not chilled by the threat of Federal prosecution, and that prosecution is reserved for the worst offenders.

Mr. FRIST. I ask unanimous consent the amendment at the desk be agreed to as amended to be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements be printed in the RECORD.

S. 3879
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Convention on Supplementary Compensation for Nuclear Damage Contingent Cost Allocation Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—
(1) section 170 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1945 (42 U.S.C. 2210) (commonly known as the “Price-Anderson Act”)—

(A) provides a predictable legal framework necessary for nuclear projects; and

(B) ensures prompt and equitable compensation in the event of a nuclear incident in the United States;

(2) section 170 of that Act, in effect, provides operators of nuclear powerplants with insurance for damage arising out of a nuclear incident within the United States, primarily through the assessment of a retrospective premium from each operator after the occurrence of a nuclear incident; and

(C) the Convention on Supplementary Compensation for Nuclear Damage, done at Vienna on September 12, 1997, will establish a global system—

(1) to provide a predictable legal framework necessary for nuclear energy projects; and

(2) to ensure prompt and equitable compensation in the event of a nuclear incident;

(3) the Convention benefits United States nuclear suppliers that face potentially unlimited liability for a nuclear incident outside the coverage of section 170 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1945 (42 U.S.C. 2210) by replacing a potentially open-ended liability with a predictable liability regime that, in effect, provides nuclear suppliers assurance for damage arising out of such an incident;

(C) the Convention also benefits United States nuclear facility operators that may be publicly liable for a Price-Anderson incident by providing an additional early source for a Price-Anderson incident by providing an additional early source of funds to compensate damage arising out of the Price-Anderson incident;

(4) the combined operation of the Convention, section 170 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1945 (42 U.S.C. 2210), and this Act will augment the quantity of assured funds available for victims in a wider variety of nuclear incidents, while reducing the potential liability of United States suppliers without increasing potential costs to United States operators;

(5) the cost of those benefits is the obligation of the United States to contribute to the supplementary compensation fund established by the Convention;

(6) such contribution should be funded in a manner that neither upsets settled expectations based on the liability regime established under section 170 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1945 (42 U.S.C. 2210) nor shifts to Federal taxpayers liability risks for nuclear incidents at foreign installations;

(7) in the event of a nuclear incident outside the United States not covered by section 170 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1945 (42 U.S.C. 2210) should be used; and

(8) with respect to a nuclear incident outside the United States not covered by section 170 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1945 (42 U.S.C. 2210), a retrospective premium should be prorated among nuclear suppliers relieved from potential liability for which insurance is not available.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to allocate the contingent costs associated with participation by the United States in the international nuclear liability compensation system established by the Convention on Supplementary Compensation for Nuclear Damage, done at Vienna on September 12, 1997—

(1) with respect to a Price-Anderson incident, by using funds made available under section 170 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1945 (42 U.S.C. 2210) to cover the contingent costs in a manner that neither increases the burdens nor decreases the benefits under section 170 of that Act; and

(2) with respect to a covered incident outside the United States that is not a Price-
Anderson incident, by allocating the contingent costs equitably, on the basis of risk, among the class of nuclear suppliers relieved by the Convention from the risk of potential liability classes of covered incident outside the United States.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the question be rescinded.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, in the early hours of the morning, we are going to be closing down here in a few minutes. We do have some very important business to conduct, first on the Defense authorization conference report, and closing up with a few other matters.

It has been a long day, with a lot of productive work. The Democratic leader and I were just commenting it has been a constructive and productive last 2 or 3 weeks.

Mr. President, before I proceed, I asked unanimous consent on the Defense authorization conference report. I turn to my colleague, the distinguished Senator from Oklahoma, who has been intimately involved in this issue over the last several days and the last several hours.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. President, I thank the leader for working with me on getting the requirements of what we need to do to get control of our spending in this country. I also want to thank the House leadership for their commitment in attempting to do that.

I had threatened to object to the unanimous consent request that we pass this bill. That is not a desire or something we want to do. But what I do want to do is make sure the money we spend actually goes for Defense. And we had, in both the appropriations bill and in the authorization bill, by a vote of 96 to 1 in this body, that even though we do not report earmarks in the Senate, do not call them, we do have an agreement—with amendments in both those bills—that we will allow the Pentagon to report to the American public on the status of those earmarks and back to us as a Congress whether or not they met the mission of the Defense Department because about 40 percent of them do not. It is all about transparency, the American people seeing where we are spending our money.

I appreciate the leaders both here and in the House agreeing to bring this amendment—which was offered and accepted and passed here—and what was thrown out of the conferences—up in the lame-duck session with the commitment from both the House leadership and the Senate leadership, I will not object to this bill.

I will tell people, other than the earmarks that are in this bill, this is a needed bill, and a lot of the earmarks are appropriate and needed. But the American people ought to be seeing where we are spending the money, and they cannot. This amendment would have allowed them to see that.

The agreement of, hopefully, bringing this back, so the American people can actually know where money is spent, I appreciate the leader’s help in accomplishing that.

I yield the floor.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, it looks like we will be able to proceed with our unanimous consent request and pass a very, very important bill to this country. We passed earlier today the appropriations for our Department of Defense. And with this, on the same day, we will be able to pass the authorization bill.

JOHN WARNER NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2007—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of the conference report to accompany H.R. 5122, the Defense authorization bill, and the conference report be agreed to, with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there an objection?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. No.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

INSURRECTION ACT

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I want to applaud the Senator from Virginia for his amendment in the Defense authorization bill. This amendment clarifies the President’s authority to employ the Armed Forces inside the United States to restore public order when domestic violence has occurred to such an extent that the State authorities are not able to enforce the laws and protect the legal rights of its people.

Late August last year, New Orleans and Gulf Coast residents saw the devastation nature can sow. We are now in another hurricane season. Communicable diseases like SARS and avian flu are still real risks. No one needs reminding that bin Laden and al-Qaeda are still out there. We need to clarify the applicability of this law to modern problems.

This is a task that uniquely belongs to Congress. It is Congress’s responsibility, according to the Constitution, to make rules “for the government and regulation” of the Armed Forces. Senator Warner’s provision takes a real step in the right direction.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I am glad Senator Kennedy drew attention to my amendment to the Militia Acts, sometimes referred to as the “Insurrection Act.” These statutes have not been amended for a half century. We urgently need a statute that clarifies when and how the President can use the Armed Forces in the homeland.

This is not a new problem. The Second Congress passed a law in May 1792 giving the President power to call out the Armed Forces inside the United States. Congress carefully defined when the President could act. In certain cases, he had to get a judge’s approval before calling forth the troops.

When President Washington put down the Whiskey Rebellion, he used this 1792 statute.

Congress made changes to this authorization in 1795, 1807, 1861 and 1871. Clearly, Congress was responding to threats of the day. These included Aaron Burr’s conspiracy, the Civil War, and Reconstruction. The end result of all these amendments was a very sweeping statute with open-ended authorization in some situations, but ambiguous authority to use the Armed Forces in others. So we clearly needed to revisit this.

Mr. KENNEDY. As I understand the amendment, it defines when the President can call on the Armed Forces if there is a major public emergency at home. The amended statute now lists specific situations in which the troops can be used to restore public order. This includes natural disasters, but also other serious public health emergencies, and terrorist attacks or incidents that result in domestic violence to such an extent that State authorities are unable to maintain public order. These were not mentioned specifically before. While the amendment does not grant the President any new powers, it fills an important gap in clarifying the President’s authority to respond to these new kinds of emergencies.

The amendment defines the kinds of situations in which the President can employ the Armed Forces to restore public order. In our system, responsibility for law enforcement and the maintenance of public order lies with the State and local authorities. The Armed Forces can and should enter this arena only in extreme emergencies. The amendment explains that the trigger for the employment of the Armed Forces in such a situation may result from a terrorist attack or a natural disaster, that makes it impossible for regular law enforcement agencies to enforce the laws.

Mr. WARNER. The Senator from Massachusetts is correct about the prospect about the provision. The Armed Forces have a legitimate role to play in responding to serious emergencies. That role benefits from clear definition. Bringing this statute to date and removing its ambiguity the nation respond better to the next crisis.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I rise to compliment the distinguished chairman and ranking member of the Armed Services Committee for their work in bringing the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2007 through conference. This Act supports our Armed Forces during this critical period in our nation’s history.

In particular, I would like to note the House and Senate conferences full support for the administration’s missile defense activities. The conference report before us fully funds the President’s request for missile defense activities—reflecting strong confidence in and the bipartisan consensus that we have demonstrated fully that we can engage ballistic missile targets of all ranges.

Critics continue to highlight reports of earlier unsuccessful missile defense testing, but the truth is that since 2001, we have had 22 successful hit-to-kill intercepts against all ranges of ballistic missiles, from the shortrange to the longrange.

In the past 90 days alone, we have conducted four successful engagements of short-, medium- and long-range ballistic missile targets—using Aegis BMD, THAAD, PAC-3, and GMD. I will submit for the RECORD a letter from the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition, Technology and Logistics Kenneth J. Krieg to Congressman IKE SKELTON on September 19, 2006, which discusses ground-based midcourse defense system testing. I think the letter is illustrative of the points I made here regarding our efforts to bring a robust missile defense system online.

While more testing is necessary and planned to ensure confidence in the effectiveness of the defenses we field, we should take comfort in the knowledge that we have demonstrated fully that we can engage ballistic missile targets of all ranges.

Some editorial writers also like to remind us that the budget request for missile defense is close to $10 billion per year. While this is indeed a significant sum, we should bear in mind that this funding figure reflects research, development and fielding not for a single missile defense system, but for a number of missile defense capabilities that are land-, on ships, on aircraft, and in space.

These include Patriot PAC-3, terminal high altitude area defense system, THAAD, ship-based Aegis BMD, the ground-based midcourse defense system, the air-launched kinetic energy interceptor, and a host of sensors and the command and control links necessary to tie all these elements together.

In conclusion, I thank the conferees for their hard work supporting the administration’s missile defense program and note the consensus within Congress to get on with the fielding of missile defense capabilities that are now demonstrating testing success and providing a measure of protection for our homeland and deployed forces.

This is a consensus that stretches back at least as far as the National Missile Defense Act of 1999, when Congress stated that "the policy of the U.S. to deploy as soon as is technologically possible an effective National Missile Defense system capable of defending the territory of the United States against limited ballistic missile attack. . . ."

Those of us who supported this legislation—indeed all of us in Congress—should be gratified to see how far we have come in such a short time.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the letter to which I referred be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Hon. IKE SKELTON, House of Representatives, Washington, D.C.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE SKELTON: Thank you for your August 29 letter concerning Ground-based Midcourse Defense System testing. The Secretary of Defense asked that I respond.

Since the Secretary’s comments at Fort Greely and your recent letter to him, the Missile Defense Agency launched a successful end-to-end flight test of the long-range missile defense capability on September 1.
This test began with the launch of a threat representative target on a realistic trajectory across an operational, upgraded, early warning radar manned by warfighters in California. The intercept solution was generated using the operational command and fire control system, also manned by warfighters, and an operational interceptor was launched. The interception occurred at an altitude of approximately 80 miles from the ground tracking station, which is the maximum limit for our current ground tracking station.

It was essential to basing to the ground tracking station, which is the maximum limit for our current ground tracking station. Aegis ballistic missile defense-equipped ships have successfully executed these types of tests in the past. These tests have demonstrated the capability of our current Aegis ballistic missile defense systems to engage targets in the re-entry phase of their flight.

Testing with existing equipment has also allowed us to evaluate the effectiveness of our current interceptors and space-based sensors. The data collected during these tests will be used to improve our interceptors and sensors, as well as to evaluate the effectiveness of our current Aegis ballistic missile defense systems.

Mr. President, I would like to commend the chairman and ranking member for their outstanding leadership in bringing the Defense Authorization Act to the floor and thank them for their tireless work concerning this important legislation. By enacting this legislation, Congress will take a major step forward in ensuring that the defense of our Nation remains the number one priority. That is why I will vote for passage of the conference report on H.R. 5122, the John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2007.

I would like to take a moment to recognize the distinguished chairman, a man I have known for 33 years, my friend and neighbor from Virginia. No Member of this body has done more for our national security than John Warner. As a sailor, a Marine officer, Under Secretary and Secretary of the Navy, and U.S. Senator, he has answered his country’s call. The dignified and even-handed way in which he has presided over the business of the Committee these past 6 years has enabled it to continue its noble tradition of being an island of bipartisanship in an increasingly unpleasant political era. I am proud that we have named this year’s defense authorization act, the last which John Warner will manage as chairman of the Committee on Armed Services, in his honor, and I thank my friend for all he has done for our Nation.

This legislation authorizes the funding of $462.8 billion in budget authority for defense programs in fiscal year 2007, which is a 3.6 percent increase or $21 billion above the amount authorized by Congress last year. I am pleased to see that this measure meets the President’s requested funding level and that the conferees focused much of their efforts on addressing requirements for the war on terror as expressed by the service chiefs in their unfunded priority lists.

While I am pleased we are able to act on this legislation prior to adjourning for the elections, I am compelled to point out that once again, the Defense Appropriations Act has been decided prior to final action on the Defense Authorization Act. The Defense Authorization Act is intended to provide a framework for the policies and funding levels for the Department of Defense and its agencies. The Defense Appropriations Committee is to allocate funding based on policies provided by authorization bills. A continuing trend, however, is an expansion of the role of the Appropriations Committee, which now engages in significant policy decision-making. It is my hope that next year we will succeed in passing the authorization measure prior to the appropriations measure.

An important legislative provision contained in the conference report is an amendment which I sponsored on the Senate bill that would require the regular budgeting for ongoing military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. Over the years, the administration and the Congress have become addicted to paying for these operations through emergency supplemental appropriation bills. In addition, many defense-related activities that should have been financed through the normal appropriations process have been funded through these emergency supplements. Additionally, non-defense-related spending has also found its way into these bills further undermining the budget process. This method of funding has unfortunately become the rule rather than the exception, but with this provision it will no longer be allowed. The next budget submission will be expected to include funding required to conduct ongoing operations through the following year.

It should now be obvious that the current rate of growth in the cost of defense programs is reaching unsustainable levels. Over the intervening term, this will pose a threat to not only our economic stability but also our national security. For this reason, next year I will propose an aggressive and comprehensive defense acquisition reform agenda. I have called for, and hope to obtain, the assistance of both the Department of Defense as well as the defense industry in this regard.

The need for such an agenda is clear. Over the last few years, the defense acquisition process has been broken. This has been shown not only by the Air Force’s proposed lease of Boeing 767 tanker aircraft, but also in the Department’s procurement strategies for the C-130J, Future Combat Systems, Joint Primary Aircraft Training System, Joint Cargo Aircraft, Joint Strike Fighter, and F-22A Raptor.

Incidentally, I remain concerned about the approach the Air Force is taking in recapitalizing its tanker fleet. But I will address this issue at another time.

As with past authorization bills, I have included in this year’s bill several acquisition reform-related provisions. These provisions include measures that address abuses in the use of cost-type contract billing, financial conflicts of interest involving lead systems integrators, the improper payments of award and incentive fees, and excessive pass-through charges. These provisions are part of the Defense Appropriations Committee’s 2007 Appropriations Act. It is my hope that next year we will succeed in passing the authorization measure prior to the appropriations measure.
further legislative efforts in the future. I am hopeful that these measures will be further supplemented by even more comprehensive reforms next year.

The American taxpayer has a right to expect the government to properly manage our precious resources, especially at a time when those resources are so critical. While this legislation addresses a great many of the needs of our military, there is still money that is being diverted to unrequested projects. Unauthorized earmarks drain our precious resources and adversely affect our national security.

One of the more egregious add-ons in the legislation currently on the floor is the addition of over $2 billion for 10 C–17 cargo planes that were not requested by the administration. This contradicts the Quadrennial Defense Review and is not in keeping with the President’s request. So why are these additional aircraft now part of a bridge fund designed to provide necessary resources for our conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan? Another reason I find this add-on particularly objectionable is that, going into conference, the House had approved only three additional C–17s and the Senate had approved only two. What is included in this legislation is seven more C–17s added by the conferees. This is completely outside the scope of the matter the conferees were tasked to resolve. The practice of adding unrequested, unauthorized, non-defense projects onto wartime spending bills must end.

Each and every day the men and women of our Nation’s Armed Forces put their lives on the line to protect the freedoms we cherish and it is imperative we provide them with the proper resources. It is our obligation to provide quality of life benefits for our servicemembers and their families. I am confident that enactment of this legislation will accomplish that goal. For example, the conference report authorizes a 2.2 percent across-the-board pay raise for all military personnel. Also included in the report is a provision that prohibits predatory practices by creditors who loan to military personnel. This legislation is a testament to our commitment to the brave men and women of our military who have answered their Nation’s call.

The ongoing war on terror has required us to become increasingly reliant on a workforce of reserve forces and National Guard. Approximately 40 percent of the ground troops in Iraq and Afghanistan are National Guard and Reserve forces. These soldiers and sailors leave behind friends, families, and careers to go willingly into harm’s way for their Nation’s cause. We in the Congress owe it to these patriots to ensure we look after their needs. Included in the conference report is the authorization to expand the eligibility for TRICARE to all members of the Selected Reserve.

This provision is critical for providing our Reserve forces with the proper care they have earned. Upon returning home from tours in Iraq or Afghanistan, soldiers and Marines are experiencing less and less downtime before their next deployment. This is not good for morale nor is it good for retention and eventually it will become a readiness issue as a result. This legislation authorizes significant increases in recruiting and retention bonuses, as well as substantial increases in educational funds for recruitment purposes. Also provided is authorization for maintaining the Army active-duty end strength of 512,400, the Army National Guard end strength of 350,000, and an increase in Marine Corps end strength to a total of 180,000. This authorized force structure is critical to ensure proper readiness levels so that our military can meet its operational requirements.

As in years past, I am disappointed that the annual “Buy America” battle has once again made its way into this legislation. Every year we fight the same fight in conference. What it really comes down to is what I have stated countless times before: we need to provide American servicemen and women with the best equipment at the best price to the American taxpayer. By following this simple philosophy, we will protect both the men and women in uniform, as well as our domestic defense industry.

The international considerations of Buy America provisions are immense. Isolationist, go-it-alone approaches have serious consequences on our relationship with our allies. Our country is threatened when we ignore our trade agreements. Currently, the U.S. enjoys a trade surplus of $31 billion in defense and aerospace equipment. We don’t need protectionist measures that detract from international cooperation in order to insulate our defense or aerospace industries. Critical international programs, such as the joint strike fighter and F–35, could be placed in jeopardy when our allies reassess our defense cooperative trading relationship. If we enact laws that isolate our domestic defense industry, allies could potentially retaliate and hinder our ability to sell U.S. equipment which would in turn adversely affect our interoperability with NATO and other allies.

Although there are examples of why this bill is far from perfect, I am putting my reservations aside to support the final passage of this conference report. The John Warner National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2007 is legislation that further strengthens our Nation’s military and gives the Department of Defense the tools it needs to defend our Nation’s interests both at home and abroad.

I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I would like to make some important reservations about certain provisions of the fiscal year 2007 Defense authorization bill conference report. This legislation poorly handles key provisions related to the National Guard, which—as the events since September 11th have highlighted—is critical to our Nation’s defense. The final conference report drops the reforms known as the National Guard Empowerment Act that would have given the National Guard more bureaucratic muscle inside the Pentagon. It would have cleared away some of these administrative cobwebs and given the Guard the seat at the decision-making table that it needs and deserves. It also should concern us all that the conference agreement includes language that subvert solid, long-standing posse comitatus statutes that limit the military’s involvement in law enforcement.

Combined, these moves amount to a double punch against the National Guard. The National Guard has done so much to protect the security and safety of our country. Yet the authorization bill sends the signal that we are not interested in supporting them. This conference report says we do not want to address glaring problems that have surfaced during their increasingly frequent deployments.

And, incredibly enough, it says to the Guard that other military forces are better to carry out tasks here at home. In short, this bill goes in the wrong direction.

Let’s review what the 500,000 men and women of the National Guard do for the country. The National Guard is essential to the military’s missions at home and abroad. More than 10,000 members of the National Guard are currently called up for domestic operations, most along the border and involved in counter-drug operations. Almost 60,000 citizen-soldiers are deployed overseas, almost 40,000 involved in Iraq deployments. Over 6,000 members of the Air Guard are deployed. And let’s not forget, the Air Guard’s water mark, the Guard made up almost 40 percent of the troops on the ground in Iraq.

It is also clear that we are going to need the Guard even more in the future. Consider the information reported in a New York Times article from last Friday. The active U.S. Army is being deployed at such a high rate that it appears increasingly likely that the National Guard is going to need to be used once again to make the troop levels.

Any way you cut it, the National Guard is absolutely essential to our Nation’s defense. We cannot fight our way out of a cold war. We cannot expect the country at home, and we cannot respond to large-scale emergencies without the Guard.

Given the fact that the National Guard is one of the country’s most valuable and needed forces, one would think that our leaders in the Department of Defense would be spending significant time developing policies and with the National Guard Bureau, the States Adjutants General, and the National Guard’s Governors, while Congress was successful in turning those recommendations back, the fact remains that the active force still desired to balance its budgets at the expense of the Guard.

In late Spring of last year, the Air Force forwarded a list of base closure recommendations the cut deeply into the Air National Guard. The closure list took away flying missions in States in which the Air National Guard is the only Air Force presence in the State. No consideration was made of this crucial link between local communities and the armed forces. Nor did the Air Force consider the Air National Guard’s role in homeland security activties. Why were such ill-advised recommendations made? The reason is that the Air National Guard was not involved in the force structure review process.
Similiarly, in 2002, was there no consultation with the Air National Guard when the Air Force decided to take away the Air National Guard’s B–1 bomber units, which, as a GAO study underscored, were cheaper to operate, much more efficient, and more effective than their active duty counterparts.
Further, since September 11, tor-netous debate has developed in the Pentagon whenever the National Guard home, such as during Hurricane Katrria

Federal reimbursement, under title 21 of the Federal Code.
The title 32 status ensures that locally elected officials remain in control of military forces operating at home.
Because the National Guard comes directly out of these local communities, posse comitatus statutes do not apply.
This title 32 arrangement has been used most recently to increase security at the border, but it has previously been used effectively to have the Guard provide added security at the Republican and Democratic National Conventions, the G8 Summit, the Nation’s airports, and around the Capitol Building in Washington.
There seems to be some kind of reflexive reaction within the Department of Defense against having the Guard and the Governors remain in control of operations at home. In fact, a sizeable contingent exists within the Pentagon to have the active duty military control the National Guard and other military personnel and assets. So every time there is a natural disaster or other emergency, the Pentagon engages in a lengthy debate back-and-forth about control of the Guard. To date, these debates have led to sensible outcomes, but it should not be so difficult and uncertain.
Finally, the National Guard has little influence at the senior ranks within the Army and the Air Force. The number of high-ranking officers is compared to the number of General and the active forces. While the National Guard constitutes a high percentage of our total number of ground troops, it has just a sliver of the overall percentage of three- and four-star officers. Yet when the Air National Guard constitutes a high percentage of the Air Force’s mobility assets and a similarly high percent of its strike assets, the Air Guard has a negligible share of the high-ranking positions, where important decisions are made.
The National Guard Empowerment
Act seemed to be a logical response to these ill-advised policy positions and imbalanced bureaucratic structure.
The legislation is designed to firmly identify the National Guard as a separated entity independent of the active force is ready and equipped for its critical Homeland Security missions by improving its organizational ties in line with its real responsibilities and ac-accomplishments.
Specificially, the legislation, as included in the Senate’s version of the Defense Authorization Act contained four major provisions. First, it would place the Chief of the National Guard Bureau on the rank of lieutenant general to full general.
Second, the Deputy Commander of United States Northern Command, the military headquarters designed to oversee military forces used in the United States, would be mandated to come out of the ranks of the National Guard. Third, the National Guard would be redefined as a joint bureau of the Department Defense, rather than a branch of the Army and the Air Force, enabling the Guard to maintain its role and function as the primary military reserve, while allowing the National Guard to avoid centralization within the Defense Department. Finally, the National Guard would have his independence be tasked with the States to identify gaps in their resources to respond to emergencies.
This proposal is not only targeted, broadly modest. The Empower-tion, S. 2558, the National Defense Enhancement and National Guard Empowerment Act of 2006, would have additionally placed the Guard Bureau chief on the Joint Chiefs of Staff and National Guard separate budget authority. Though we still believe these provisions are important to empowering the National Guard fully, we listened and understood the objections of other senators. We dropped those provisions in the amendment to the Defense Authorization bill to reach a consensus where even more members would agree to the amendment, beyond the already 40 senators who are cospon-soring the baseline legislation.
We can all acknowledge that the National Guard is essential to our Nation’s defense, that there has been some questionable policymaking afflecting the Guard in recent years, and that the empowerment bill represents a positive step towards strengthening the already 40 senators who are cospon-
soring the baseline legislation.
Not only does this conference report unfortunately drop the Empowerment amendment entirely, it adopts some incredible changes to the Insurrection Act, which would give the President more authority to declare martial law.
Let me repeat: The National Guard
Empowerment Act, which is designed to give the National Guard the tools to remain in State control, is dropped from this conference report in favor of provisions making it easier to usurp the Governors control and making it more likely that the President will take control of the Guard and the active military operating in the States.
The changes to the Insurrection Act will allow the President to use the military, including the National Guard, to carry out law enforcement actions without the consent of the Governor. When the Insurrection Act is invoked posses comitatus does not apply.
Using the military for law enforcement goes against one of the founding tenets of our democracy, and it is for that reason that the Insurrection Act has only been invoked on three—three—in recent history.
The implications of changing the act are enormous, but this change was just slipped in the defense bill as a rider with little study. Other congressional members were unaware of over these matters had no chance to comment, let alone hold hearings on, these proposals.
While the Conference made hasty changes to the Insurrection Act, the Guard empowerment bill was kicked over for study to the Committee on the National Guard and Reserve, which was established only a year ago and whose committee leaders have no force of law. I would have never supported the creation of this panel—and I suspect my colleagues would agree with me—if I thought we would have to wait for the panel to finish its work before we passed new laws on the Guard and Reserve.

In fact, we would get nothing done in Congress if we were to wait for every commission, study group, and research panel to finish its work. I have been around here over 30 years, and almost every Senator here knows the National Guard as well as any commission member. We don’t need to wait, and we don’t need to study the question of enhancing the Guard further. This is a terrible blow against rational defense policy-making and against the fabric of our democracy.

Since hearing word a couple of weeks ago that this outcome was likely, I have wondered how Congress could have gotten to this point. I can only surmise that we arrived at this outcome because we are too unwilling to carry out our article I, section 8 responsibilities to raise and support an Army. We have it in our constitutional power to organize the Department of Defense. We have it in our power to enact the National Guard and Reserve, which expects great things from us as much as we expect great things from them. And we fail our Constitution, neglecting the States, when we make it easier for the President to declare martial law and trample on local and state sovereignty.

The conference report was agreed to. (The conference report is printed in the proceedings of the House in the RECORD of September 29, 2006.)

SECURITY AND ACCOUNTABILITY FOR EVERY PORT ACT—CONFERENCE REPORT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the majority leader will suspend, under the previous order, the Senate adopts the conference report to accompany H.R. 4964, the port security legislation.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, the passage of this port security legislation marks the first time three Senate committees and their House counterparts have merged their collective expertise and crafted a truly comprehensive approach to providing a bipartisan group of Members from both Chambers dedicated several months earlier this year by the negative public reaction to foreign investments, it was evident that a more stringent requirement was needed.

To prevent future attacks, we must secure our ports. This bill is a major step forward in this effort. Senator Inouye is my co-chairman on the Commerce Committee on this matter. As a result of those hearings, this bill requires DHS to conduct background checks on all port personnel. Current law at the Transportation Security Administration to perform checks on those workers directly tied to transportation at the port, or involved in its security. From the Commerce Committee hearings, it was evident that a more stringent requirement was needed.

This bill also expands several initiatives with a proven track record of success. There are currently five interagency operations centers up and running throughout our country. These centers bring together Federal, State, and local security enforcement officials to ensure communication among officials to combat this act of manufacture to each of the major seaports, and places the Coast Guard in charge of these centers.

This act also builds upon the Department of Homeland Security’s, DHS, past cooperation with foreign governments. The container security initiative, CSI, contained within this bill enables the Department, working in partnership with host government customs services, to examine high-risk containerized cargo at foreign seaports before it is loaded on vessels destined for the United States.

The Customs-Trade Partnership Against Terrorism (C-T PAT), a voluntary public-private partnership, is also strengthened in this bill. The Commissioner of Customs and border protection will now be able to certify that a business’s supply chain is secure at the point of manufacture to the product’s final U.S. destination. Under this legislation, whether cargo crosses our border at Laredo or arrives on a ship from Hong Kong, participating companies’ supply chains will undergo a thorough security check. This will add another layer of security to the C-T PAT initiative. Since this is a voluntary system, we have also included provisions which encourage those in industry to go above and beyond the security requirements already in place. These new incentives include expedited clearance of cargo.

Mr. President, while I was disappointed earlier this year by the negative public reaction to foreign investments, it was evident that a more stringent requirement was needed.

Our country’s ports have become enormous operations. To fully address our threat, it is important that we appreciate the impacts security requirements might have on economic efficiencies in transportation and trade. We must strive to be a secure state without becoming a security state.

Each of the Senate and House committees involved in this bill has jurisdiction over an area vital to the safety of our transportation systems. Together, our committees have developed a comprehensive bill which will help shield our Nation from future terrorist attacks. It is my hope our colleagues will support this act and move quickly to pass this bill.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the days before a long recess are always a hectic time as we scramble to complete our work. This conference took a lot longer than it needed to take, and the events leading up to the filing of this report represented an abuse of the process. The Senate passed this bill 3 weeks ago, but the House waited until yesterday to appoint conferees. The conference conducted one perfunctory public meeting last night where no bill language was provided, no amendments allowed; and no votes taken in public. In fact, there seemed to be more interest by the majority conferees in determining what additional unrelated bills could be jammed into this conference over what or, how, and not on improving our homeland security.

These types of shenanigans really show a lack of respect for the members of this institution and a disregard for the serious task at hand. I voted for this bill when this bill passed the Senate 3 weeks ago. Senators from both sides of the aisle worked together to pass a transportation security bill for seaports, mass transit, freight rail, and commercial aviation systems and actually extended expired Customs fees in an attempt to pay for some of the new port security initiatives.

Three weeks later after negotiations with the House, all but the port security provisions were dropped and the objections of the House Republicans, despite overwhelming support in the Senate. The new initiatives for the mass transit and freight rail system would have fulfilled an important recommendation of the 9/11 Commission Report, which recommended that the Federal Government address a much broader range of transportation security issues in addition to those undertaken in commercial aviation. A Democratic amendment adopted in the Senate also would have provided a source of funding to fund some of the new port initiatives in the bill, given the fact that we are not adequately funding current port security programs. This meager attempt to begin to fund these programs was also dropped at the insistence of the House Republicans.

It has now been 5 years since the attacks on the World Trade Center and little has been done to make our transportation systems more secure other than the obvious improvements in commercial aviation. There is no urgency by this administration. One gets the feeling that they believe these transportation security issues are really not a Federal responsibility and instead should be funded by State and local governments or the private sector. Homeland Security Secretary Chertoff scoffed at the idea of spending money to protect mass transit, noting that a bomb in a subway car would kill only 30 people. Other Republicans, including Assistant Secretary of Homeland Security Kenney, have said that they think rail transit should be a State and local or private responsibility. Democrats believe Government cannot ‘pass the buck’ on protecting Americans from the threat of a deadly terrorist attack to the private sector or to our already-squeezed State and local governments.

The U.S. mass transit industry has said it needs $5.3 billion in capital expenditures from the Federal Government to protect American citizens from another terrorist attack. But, since 2003, the Federal Government has only invested a total of roughly $400 million in transit and rail security for the entire country, compared to $20 billion on aviation security during that time. The President’s Fiscal Year 2007 budget completely eliminated rail and transit security grants and intercity bus grants, which were funded at paltry amounts in 2006. This is just another example of misplaced priorities. If you take a look at the RAND Corporation, there are about 30 terrorist attacks on trains and rail-related targets per year. Our close allies in Britain, Spain, and India have been the victims of deadly terrorist attacks on rail and transit targets in recent years. Yet Republicans stripped rail security out of this bill so they could add unrelated provisions.

I am proud of the work of the Democratic caucus on this bill and on earlier bills. I am proud of the work of the Democratic-controlled Senate that has been included in the Senate-passed bill and a comprehensive port security bill immediately after 9/11—over the objections of the Republican-controlled House and the White House. These bills acknowledged for the first time that securing our maritime trade and our commercial air passenger system were national security responsibilities of the Federal Government and should not be relegated to contractors or the private sector. Similarly, Democrats have led the way in developing and pushing security measures during this Congress related to ports, freight rail, aviation and mass transit, and I am proud of the work the caucus has done on this bill.

The port security provisions in here reflect a lot of hard work and bipartisan effort, so are worthy of our support. But, I don’t take a lot of pride in giving the American people half a loaf when it comes to security. I think all in all, this is another time that the Republican majority has let the American people down. And I hope that the American people are sick of half a loaf and will agree with me on the need for a new direction.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, just 2 weeks ago, the Senate considered comprehensive legislation to address the transportation security needs of this country. That bill was not written overnight. It was the culmination of 2 years of bipartisan work within the Commerce Committee, the Banking Committee, the Finance Committee, and the Homeland Security Committee.

While we have had our jurisdictional debates during the past 2 years, this week we solemnly observed the fifth anniversary of the attacks of September 11, 2001. We set aside those debates, and as a body, came together and passed a comprehensive bill improving security for all modes of transportation. The Senate passed that bill by a vote of 97-0. However, several steps toward making our Nation a safer place to live, work, and travel.

I had hoped that today I would be telling my colleagues that the House and Senate conferees had recognized that the time had come for the first time in 5 years, to address transportation security in a comprehensive manner. I believed they would act in the same manner as we had here in the Senate just 2 weeks ago and would reach an agreement on the port security bill that truly reflects the best of our institution.

Regrettably, that is not the case. Staff from the Senate and several House Committees sat down the past 2 weeks and went through hundreds of pages of text in what was supposed to be, and in fact, appeared to be a bipartisan, bicameral process. They did a good job, and the port security title reflects their hard work. However, several days ago, House leadership stymied our efforts to provide a real transportation security bill for America.

The House leadership effectively hijacked the work of the Senate and refused to include or even discuss anything but the port security provisions of the Senate’s bill. Despite this refusal, several of my colleagues came to last night’s meeting of the conferees prepared to offer and debate amendments to restore the nonport related security provisions that had been included in the Senate-passed bill. As I stated then, while the port security provisions are strong and a big step in the right direction, we must take a comprehensive approach to securing our transportation infrastructure.

I was prepared to work into the evening on efforts to restore the other provisions. My colleagues should be aware that we did not have the text of the conference report when we met for the first, and what has now become apparent, the only meeting. During the round of opening statements on the conference report, the Chairman of the conference was repeatedly asked when we would be able to offer amendments.
In the end, the chairman indicated that we would reconvene in the morning when we had the text of the bill. Because of the chairman’s assurances that we would meet again, and out of deference to the chairman’s wishes, several members agreed not to offer their amendments to restore the Senate provisions on rail and truck security.

Late last night, we were told there would be no more meetings of the conference, denying my colleagues the ability to propose amendments debated and voted upon.

Last night’s theater has ramifications for all of us today for three reasons. First, we have allowed a rare opportunity to enact comprehensive legislation that would improve the security of our transportation infrastructure to pass us by.

Our colleagues who opposed the inclusion of the other transportation modes claim that this is a port security issue. Our colleague is right; other modes of transportation are just as important and worthy of protection. Like the port security provisions, the rail, truck, and transit provisions reflect several years of committee hearings and full Senate action.

To pretend these provisions were written overnight is a disservice to the expert staff that have worked on these issues for years. It is also a disservice to the constituents who rely on rail and transit and is an expert in the area of rail safety, demonstrates a troubling lack of leadership and a lack of vision about our responsibilities to the American people. As a result, what we have before this body today does so much less than what is possible and prudent to secure the Nation’s ports and those of both bodies. More importantly, it negates the real needs of our transportation security.

We have missed a rare opportunity to make our transportation infrastructure more secure. We have missed a rare opportunity to follow through with the promises we made on the Senate floor just 14 days ago.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise in support of the conference report to accompany the SAFE Port Act. This legislation achieves some important objectives that I have been working on for some time.

It will strengthen our port security operations and resources within the United States Customs and Border Protection.

It authorizes and approves current programs for securing our Nation’s trade, and it provides direction for further strengthening of these programs as technology permits.

It requires our Federal agencies to cooperate and better coordinate their contingency planning in the event there is a security breach. In sum, this critical legislation will empower personnel in the Department of Homeland Security to stay one step ahead of the terrorists who seek to wreak economic havoc and physical destruction on our Nation.

At the same time, this legislation strengthens our Nation’s economic security by realigning resources to ensure better efficiency in the administration of customs laws within the United States Customs and Border Protection, as well as trade facilitation functions within the agency and elsewhere in the Department of Homeland Security. Unfortunately, this legislation falls short in one critical area. The Senate-passed bill included robust sections on rail and mass transit security. But the House have prevented us from including those provisions in the conference report.

I find this extremely shortsighted. It demonstrates a troubling lack of leadership. I want to make clear that I strongly support the Senate-passed provisions on rail and mass transit security. But I find this extremely shortsighted. It demonstrates a troubling lack of leadership. I want to make clear that I strongly support the Senate-passed provisions on rail and mass transit security. But I strongly oppose their omission from this conference report.

But because this legislation contains so many provisions critical to the security of our Nation, I will support the conference report. It is certainly better than the alternative. I hope my colleagues on the House side realize that we have lost an opportunity here. At a minimum, it would take another several months for us to be in a position to enact rail and mass transit security legislation into law. In the meantime, this important aspect of our Nation’s security will not get the rightful attention it needs.

That being said, this legislation does significantly strengthen our Nation’s security. I want to thank my colleagues, particularly the chairman and ranking members of the Commerce and Homeland Security Committees in the Senate, as well as the chairman of the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations of the Homeland Security Committee, Senator COLEMAN, for their constructive engagement with me and Senator BAUCUS these past few months. Together we produced a very good bill, much of which is retained in this conference report. I urge its support so that we can get this critical legislation to the President’s desk as soon as possible.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I have mixed emotions about the SAFE Ports Act we pass today.

On the one hand, I am deeply disappointed that the bill that does not include the essential rail and transit security measures passed by the Senate last month. I strongly disagree with the decision to drop these provisions from the conference report. The rail and transit tragedies we have witnessed in London, Madrid, and Mumbai should be evidence enough that we should not have passed up this chance to shore up our defenses.

On the other hand, I am pleased that our hard work on land and seaport security has come to fruition. Working together, we have produced a bill that strengthens the security of our ports while ensuring the proper flow of trade on which all of our Nation’s ports and our Nation’s economy depends.

The easiest way to secure our ports would have been to simply pass a bill that mandated fences around our ports and required opening every container coming across our ports. These measures would bring the flow of port traffic to a grinding halt and cripple our Nation’s economy. It is essential that we strike the right balance on port security, I am pleased that this legislation does so.

This bill contains important provisions to screen workers coming through or working at the ports, establishes standards for container security devices, authorizes $1 billion in port security grants annually, and requires a pilot program at three foreign ports to employ integrated container scanning technology on 100 percent of containers bound for the United States.

The bill also directs the Commissioner of Customs to hire 1,000 more armed Customs and Border Protection officers for land and sea ports across the country. I have heard from ports big and small that they are woefully understaffed. In fact, in Montana, the port of Roosville finally received state-of-the-art container scanning equipment, but we didn’t get the personnel to run it, so it sits unused. This bill would ensure that every service port in the country, and the smaller ports in their area, won’t be overlooked by Customs and Border Protection headquarters in Washington.

The Act also authorizes the Commissioner of Customs to nearly double the number of Customs and Border Protection specialists dedicated to validating the supply chains of participants in the Customs-Trade Partnership Against Terrorism program. The quickening pace of the post-9/11 threat and the increased risk of terrorist attacks on our borders gave them the ability to move forward with that plan. Including this provision was important to me, to ensure that Montana Border Protection personnel have the backup they need to get the job done.

All of these provisions I have mentioned are key to enhancing physical security at our ports and along our borders. But it was important that we do more than that.

When Congress passed the Homeland Security Act of 2002, we strictly prohibited any diminution in the trade functions or personnel committed to trade functions at the Department of Homeland Security. Yet for 3 years, the Department has not complied with the law. Trade resources have decreased by as much as 15 percent with the Customs and Border Protection officials have proposed to close the branch by adding facilities in Kalispell, Havre and Glasgow. A provision I authored in this bill gives them the ability to move forward with that plan. Including this provision was important to me, to ensure that Montana Border Protection personnel have the backup they need to get the job done.

system was the target of a tragic attack that left 52 people dead, and in 2004, almost 200 people were killed when bombs exploded on commuter rail trains in Madrid.

In the United States this past May, the Department of Homeland Security issued a specific warning to transit systems to remain alert against possible terrorist attacks. The warning said that four people had been arrested over several months in separate incidents involving insomnia of European subway systems and transit systems, which, the Department went on to say, provides "indications of continued terrorist interest in mass transit systems as targets."

The threat to transit is clear. In response, both the Federal Transit Administration and the Department of Homeland Security have worked with transit systems to identify steps that can be taken to help prevent and mitigate attacks. In fact, the greatest challenge our Nation's transit systems is not a lack of knowledge of what to do, but rather lack of resources with which to do it. In the words of the Government Accountability Office: "Obtaining sufficient funds will constitute a significant challenge in making transit systems as safe and secure as possible."

Despite the record of attacks against transit overseas and the identified vulnerabilities here at home, the Federal Government has provided $250 million. That is a ridiculous imbalance."

To begin to address this issue, I worked closely with Chairman SHIELLY and with Senator REED of Rhode Island, who have been leaders on this issue, on the Public Transportation Terrorism Prevention Act, which was incorporated into the Senate version of H.R. 4954. The Senate bill authorized $3.5 billion over 3 years in security grants for our Nation's public transportation systems. That money would have been used to provide targeted security enhancements to transit systems, including surveillance technologies; tunnel protection; chemical, biological, radiological, and explosive detection systems; perimeter protection; employee training; and other security improvements.

Let me give one example of a critical need right here with respect to Washington's Metro. Their greatest security need is a backup operations control center. The need was identified by the Federal Transit Administration during its initial security assessment and then identified again by the Department of Homeland Security in its subsequent security assessment. This critical need remains unaddressed because it has been unfunded. The Senate bill would have authorized the funding to make this and other urgently needed security upgrades at transit systems around the country.

We know that transit systems are potential targets for terrorist attacks. We know the vital role these systems play in our Nation's economic and security infrastructure. We can wait no longer to address these security needs of America's transit systems, which provide 32 million trips every weekday. Improving security for rail and transit is an enormous concern and it should have been addressed tonight, rather than in a future Congress.

It is unfortunate that the bill no longer contains most of the well-advised Senate provisions which would have strengthened the operations of vulnerable rail and transit systems. While the rail and transit provisions authorized a large sum of money, it is but a fraction of what the experts say is needed to address rail and transit vulnerabilities—vulnerabilities which have been exploited time and again by terrorists in London, Madrid, and Mumbai. I regret that the money was stripped out of the bill and that I was prevented from even trying to reinstate it by offering an amendment in a conference that was never formally completed.

Nevertheless, I am proud to be an original cosponsor of the port security legislation at the heart of this conference report and to have worked with my colleagues in the Senate and House to craft the port security provisions we will be voting on shortly.

Let me thank Senators COLLINS, MURRAY, COLEMAN, STEVENS, and INOUYE for their hard work not only in the conference, but also in the House and Senate to establish the Port Security Act of 2002, which authorized $4.5 billion for security infrastructure. We can wait no longer to address these vulnerabilities—vulnerabilities which have been exploited time and again by terrorists in London, Madrid, and Mumbai.

million people might have to be evacuated from the Los Angeles area and another 2 to 3 million from the surrounding area might have to relocate due to the fallout. Short-term costs could exceed $1 trillion.

Besides the damage to the United States, such an attack would cause economic ripple effects across the globe.

The dangerous little secret of port security—and why we need this bill—is that we still lack any little idea about the contents of thousands of containers that are shipped into and across the heart of this Nation every day. Just 5 or 6 percent of those containers are physically inspected.

While Senator Collins and I began working on port security legislation in late 2004, the truth is port security received a major shot of adrenaline after the Dubai Ports World controversy earlier this year.

Looking back on it, perhaps we should be thankful for that uproar, since it raised the collective consciousness of the American people and Members of Congress to the vulnerabilities that we face at our ports.

Following that skirmish, the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee marked up the GreenLane bill, and later, Senator Collins and I started working with the Senate Commerce and Finance Committees, as well as our House colleagues to craft the comprehensive legislation we are voting on today.

The SAFE Port Act builds on the GreenLane foundation by providing both direction and much needed resources to port security. The bill moves us closer toward the goal of inspecting all of the containers entering the United States through our ports. The legislation requires DHS to establish a pilot program to inspect 100 percent of all containers bound for the United States from three foreign ports within 1 year and then report to Congress on how DHS can expand that system. We should move toward 100 percent inspection as fast as we can, understanding that we are at cross purposes if commerce slows to a halt. This legislation will provide us critical information about how soon we can achieve this goal.

This bill authorizes port security grants, training, and exercise programs, with the grant program for which ports can apply. And it requires DHS to deploy both radiation detection and imaging equipment to improve our ability to find dangerous goods and people being smuggled into the United States.

DHS says it will deploy radiation portal monitors at all of our largest seaports by the end of 2007. But this solution is only half of the equation. To provide real port security, radiation detection equipment must be paired with a port security strategy capable of seeing through dense materials that might shield radiation. This legislation requires DHS to develop a strategy for deploying both types of equipment, as does the three-port pilot program for screening 100 percent of containers.

Lastly, since most experts agree that the next terrorist attack is a matter of when, not if, this bill requires DHS to develop a plan to deal with the effects of a maritime security incident, including protocols for resuming trade and identifying specific responsibilities for different agencies. I cannot stress the importance of this provision enough. The private sector and our global trading system require confidence that we can mitigate an economic disruption with the least amount of harm to our trading partners and foil terrorism’s chief goal, which is to instill chaos.

Mr. President, again let me stress that the absence of funding for rail and transit security is a major omission that leaves wide open an entire transportation sector that we know from history is an appealing target for terrorists.

Nevertheless, when it comes to our ports, the SAFE Port Act will move us one giant step closer to better security by building a robust security regime domestically and abroad and by providing the necessary tools to protect the American people and our global economy.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, tonight the Senate is voting on the port security conference report. While the conference report contains important provisions to secure our Nation’s ports, I am disappointed that the House of Representatives refused to accept the Senate bill’s transit and rail security provisions. This is particularly troubling in light of the inclusion in the conference report of extraneous matter not debated by the full Senate and not related to our nation’s security.

While our Nation acted quickly after 9/11 to secure our airports and air-planes, major vulnerabilities remain in our maritime and surface transportation. As the 9/11 Commission concluded “opportunities to do harm are as great, or greater, in maritime and surface transportation” as in commercial aviation. Unfortunately, this conference report will leave our surface transportation system vulnerable.

Transit agencies around the country have identified in excess of $6 billion in transit security needs—$3.5 billion in security-related investments and $800 million to support personnel and related operation security measures to ensure transit security and readiness.

The Senate-passed port security bill contained a provision I coauthored with Banking Committee Chairman SHELBY, Ranking Member SARBANES, and Senator ALLARD that authorized a needs-based grant program within the Department of Homeland Security to identify and address the vulnerabilities of our transit system. The Senate bill provided $3.5 billion over the next 3 years to transit agencies for projects designed to resist and deter terrorist attacks, including surveillance technologies, tunnel protection, chemical, biological, radiological, and explosive detection systems, perimeter protection, training, the establishment of redundant critical operations control systems, and other security improvements.

Transit is the most common, and most vulnerable, target of terrorists worldwide, whether it is Madrid, London, Moscow, Tokyo, Israel, or Mumbai. Transit offers a solution to our national energy crisis and dependence on foreign oil. But, more Americans will not use transit unless they feel safe. When it comes to protecting our homeland against a terrorist attack, we can and must do more to fortify our ports, our transit systems, and our rail system. Our priorities must be to ensure that we are doing all we can to protect our most important asset—our citizens. Unfortunately, this conference report falls short by failing to include rail and transit provisions and once again the Republican-led Congress has missed an important opportunity.

Mr. JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I have serious concerns about extraneous provisions that was included in the Senate conference report. The Internet gambling prohibition which was included in the conference report at the eleventh hour has been opposed by banks, convenience stores, American Indian tribes, religious groups, and a Government agency—the National Indian Gaming Commission.

There are several troublesome attributes to this legislation, but perhaps none more so than how it became included in the port security conference report. This legislation was never approved by the Senate Banking Committee nor debated by the full Senate. Many unresolved concerns exist about this legislation regarding the impact it will have on the gaming and gambling industry, an effect that could be in the billions of dollars. I strongly support firm regulation and oversight of the gambling industry, and this legislation is unequal in its treatment of gambling activities creating specific carve outs for horse racing while not providing similar treatment for other gambling entities. As expressed in the opposition letter of the National Indian Gaming Commission, the Federal agency charged with oversight of Indian Gaming, this legislation could have unintended consequences that will have negative and far reaching effects on the Indian Gaming industry. Moreover, this legislation charges banks with a responsibility for regulating the wire transfers that could potentially place an undue burden on the small independent banks that serve countless South Dakotans and others on main streets across the country.

At the very least, the effects of this legislation needed to be studied and analyzed by the full Senate before final passage. While I now have no choice but to vote for Defense legislation at a time when our Nation is at war, I deeply resent the Republican leadership shopping this unrelated matter into a must pass bill. The inclusion of the Internet Gambling provision in a must pass bill at the last minute is irresponsible legislation.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I support the SAFE Port Act. Simply put—this historic legislation will make us safer.

The result of inaction will be disastrous. We are just too high. In a recent estimate, a 10-to-20 kiloton nuclear weapon detonated in a major seaport would kill 50,000 to one million people and would result in direct property damage of $50 to $500 billion, losses due to trade disruption of $100 billion to $200 billion, and indirect costs of $300 billion to $1.2 trillion.

FBI Director Robert Mueller, ominously assessed the terrorist threat at the annual Global Intelligence Briefing by stating, "There is no greater concern than the growing body of sensitive reporting that continues to show al-Qa’ida’s clear intention to obtain and ultimately use some form of chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear or high-energy explosives in its attacks against America."

Many terrorism experts believe that maritime container shipping may serve as an ideal platform to deliver these weapons to the United States. In fact, we recently saw that containers may be an ideal platform to deliver potential terrorists into the United States. This was demonstrated on January 15 and again on April 2 of this year when upwards of 30 Chinese immigrants were found emerging from containers arriving at the Port of Los Angeles. The Subcommittee’s concern is that smuggled immigrants could include members of terrorist organizations—and/or—that the container could have contained a weapon of mass destruction.

As the 9/11 Commission put it so succinctly, “opportunities to do harm are as great, or greater, in maritime or surface transportation.” Since 90 percent of global trade moves in maritime containers, we cannot allow these containers to be utilized to transport weapons of mass destruction. The consequences of such an event would be devastating to our way of life and our economy.

Instead, we must secure our supply chain before we pay the high price of an attack, and seek the appropriate balance between two often competing priorities: security and speed. This balance involves the implementation of two prominent homeland security programs—the Container Security Initiative, or CSI, and the Customs-Trade Partnership Against Terrorism, or C-TPAT. CSI effectively pushed our borders out from CBP offices in foreign ports to inspect containers before they reach our shores. C-TPAT exemplified a true public-private partnership, in which the private sector took on a leading role in securing its supply chain—a laudable—but due to the sheer magnitude of the challenge of securing the global supply chain—we must continue to improve upon these promising initiatives.

With that in mind, as Chairman of the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, I have directed the Subcommittee’s 3-year effort to bolster America’s port security and supply chain security. We have identified numerous weaknesses in our programs that secure the global supply chain. A brief overview of these vulnerabilities illustrates the challenges confronting these efforts:

In CSI, the Subcommittee found that only a de minimus number of such high-risk containers are actually inspected. In fact, the vast majority of high-risk containers are simply not inspected overseas. To make matters worse, the U.S. Government has not established minimum standards for these inspections.

The Subcommittee initially found that an overwhelming proportion of C-TPAT companies enjoy the benefits before DHS conducts a thorough on-site inspection, called a validation. As of July 2006, this proportion has improved considerably to where 98 percent of the participating companies have been subjected to a validation. But this still leaves 51 percent of companies that have not been subjected to any legitimate, on-site review to ensure that their security practices pass muster.

The Subcommittee found that DHS uses a flawed system to identify high-risk shipping containers entering U.S. ports. According to CBP officials, the Automated Targeting System or ATS is largely dependent on “one of the least reliable or useful types of information for targeting purposes,” including cargo manifest data and bills of lading. Moreover, the Subcommittee found that this targeting system has never been tested or validated, and may not discern actual, realistic risks.

Currently, only 70 percent of cargo containers entering U.S. seaports are screened for nuclear or radiological materials. One part of the problem is that the deployment of radiation detection equipment is woefully behind schedule. As of August 29, 2006, the Department of Homeland Security has deployed only 43 percent of the necessary radiation monitors at priority seaports.

These are just a handful of the significant questions that the Subcommittee will address this year when upwards of 30 Chinese immigrants were found emerging from containers arriving at the Port of Los Angeles. The Subcommittee’s concern is that smuggled immigrants could include members of terrorist organizations—and/or—that the container could have contained a weapon of mass destruction.

The SAFE Port Act addresses the problem of inadequate nuclear and radiological screening, by requiring the Secretary of DHS to develop a strategy for deployment of radiological detection capabilities and mandating that, by December 2007, all containers entering the United States through at least 22 priority seaports shall be examined for radiation; requires DHS to develop, implement, and update a strategic plan to improve the security of the international cargo supply chain. In particular, the legislation makes improvements that would: provide improvements and goals, and establish protocols for the resumption of trade after a critical incident; requires DHS to identify and request reliable and essential information about containers moving through the international supply chain; requires DHS to promulgate a rule to establish minimum standards and procedures for securing containers in transit to the U.S.; provides Congressional authorization for the CSI program, empowering cap to identify, examine or search maritime containers before U.S.-bound cargo is loaded in a foreign port as well as establish standards for the use of scanning and radiation detection equipment that CSI monitors at ports; C-TPAT and establishes certain minimum security and other requirements that applicants must meet to be eligible for C-TPAT benefits.

Even if we pass this legislation, our job is not completed. We still need to look to the future and develop even more effective and advanced programs and technology. Effectively scanning containers with both an x-ray and a radiation scan is the only definitive answer to the particularly important question of “what’s in the box?”

However, in fiscal year 2005, only 0.38 percent of containers were screened... with a nonintrusive imaging device and only 2.8 percent of containers were screened for radiation prior to entering the United States. DHS’ efforts have improved somewhat from last year’s paltry numbers, but we have more work to do. DHS is taking a risk-based approach that targets only high-risk containers. While this approach is fundamentally sound, the system used to target high-risk containers has yet to be validated or proven. Moreover, the validity of the intelligence used to enhance this system’s targeting ability is increasingly in question. Thus, we need to both enhance our targeting capability and use technology to enhance our ability to increase inspections—without impeding the flow of commerce.

While the United States currently inspects approximately 5 percent of all maritime containers, the partial pilot test in the Port of Hong Kong demonstrates the potential to scan 10 percent of all shipping containers. Each container in the Hong Kong port flows through an integrated system featuring an imaging machine, a radiation scan, and a system to identify the container. Coupling these technologies together allows for the most complete scan of a container currently available. The Hong Kong concept or similar technology holds great promise and could lead to a dramatic improvement in the efficacy of our supply chain security.

I am pleased to say that this legislation develops a pilot program in three foreign seaports, each with unique features and varying levels of trade volume to test integrated scanning systems using non-intrusive inspected radiation detection equipment. It requires full-scale pilot implementation within 1 year after enactment and an evaluation report would be required to be submitted 120 days after full implementation of the pilot. If the pilot programs prove successful, then full-scale implementation would follow.

The bottom line is this: we are safer now than we were yesterday, but we are not safe enough. The question then becomes: how do we get there? In the words of the hockey legend Wayne Gretzky, “A good hockey player plays where the puck is. A great hockey player plays where the puck is going to be.” In other words, we cannot safeguard a post 9/11 America by using pre-9/11 methods. If we think that the terrorists are not plotting their next move, we are mistaken. We must find where the gaps are in our Nation’s homeland security and close them before an attack happens. That is the only way to guarantee our security.

I agree with what Secretary Chertoff articulated at our full Committee DHS budget hearing, “the worst thing would be to have a program for reliable cargo that was insufficiently robust so that people could sneak in and use it as a Trojan Horse. That would be the worst of all worlds.” By reforming and strengthening C-TPAT, CSI, ATS, by expediting the, deployment of sophisticated radiation portal monitors and testing the ability to scan 100 percent of cargo before it enters the United States, the SAFE Port Act closes gaps in our homeland security and makes us safer.

The conference report was agreed to. (The conference report is printed in the Record of the proceedings in the House in the Record of September 29, 2006).

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION BILL

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I do want to add my congratulations to the managers, Senators WARNER and LEVIN. They have done a tremendous job on the Defense authorization bill, a very important bill. We had several pauses over the course of today that we were able to work through, and not at all adversarial—just to make sure that we are moving forward.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the managers’ amendment at the end of the report, on the record, be agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. Frist. Mr. President, I do want to turn to another very important issue. It is an issue the Democratic leader and I have been discussing and moving towards. It is on the India nuclear arrangement. I will propound a unanimous consent request and comment after that.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of S. 3709, the U.S.-India nuclear bill. I ask consent that the managers’ amendment at the end of the report be agreed to, the bill, as amended, be read a third time and passed, and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. Frist. The Democratic leader.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, preserving the right to object, I support this legislation. I have for many months. This was reported out of the committee sometime in July. And from that time to today, we have given the majority a proposal for a limited number of amendments. When we get back after the election—I have spoken to the majority leader—certainly there is a commitment from us that we would complete this bill very expeditiously. This has been rejected.

As I have indicated, this bill has been on the calendar since July, and it has not been scheduled. We could have acted on this a long time ago. It was held up initially because of an arms control matter that was placed in the bill by Senator Lugar. And a number of people on the majority side, the Republican side, held this up. It took a lot of time. It was not brought forward. And that is unfortunate.

So I will object to this consent request. I look forward to working with the majority leader in November to complete this act. It is very important. I acknowledge that I hope, certainly, we can do that during the lame-duck session. It is one of my priorities.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I know my distinguished Democratic colleague agrees with me about the need to enact this United States-India Peaceful Atomic Energy Cooperation Act.

Therefore, once again, I am disappointed that this Senate is prevented from passing this important legislation by their objection.

All Republican Members of the Senate prepared for this evening, to pass the managers’ amendment to the legislation without any debate or amendment. But it is clear the Democrats will not allow us to do so.

The reason so many colleagues on the other side of the aisle are not prepared to pass the legislation is that in some cases they oppose it and wish to defeat it, and in other cases, a lot of amendments. In my opinion and the opinion of other Republican Members of the Chamber, there really is no need to further amend the managers’ amendment. It was carefully worked out between Chairman LUGAR and Ranking Member BIDEN of the Committee on Foreign Relations. They have done an outstanding job working on that bill and refining that bill that was reported by their committee. It is a tribute to their fine work, to their dedication, to their hard work that all of which is reflected in that Defense authorization conference report that we just passed.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST—S. 3709

We have a lot of legislation to do when we come back. We need to get to this as quickly as possible. With that, there should be no doubt on our side of the determination and President Bush’s commitment on this matter and to get this done bill as soon as possible.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if I may say a final word. The problem with the managers’ amendment, all the amendments are Republicans’ amendments. We don’t have the numbers, but I think we have a few amendments that would strengthen the bill. We have discussed this publicly and privately and here is where we are. It is unfortunate. It is something that should be done. There is not a country in the world, in my opinion, that deserves more attention than India—maybe some as much as them, but they have been a good partner of ours. I think this would be a step forward for the world and our two countries.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, it is my understanding the managers’ amendment has been worked out between Senator LUGAR and Senator BIDEN to their satisfaction.

We all agree that it is critical to do this as soon as possible. We have this promising relationship between our Nation and India, which is the world’s largest democracy, and it is a relationship President Bush has begun to construct. That can only grow if Congress delivers on the commitment the President put forward to revise the U.S. law. There should be no doubt about our determination to deliver on President Bush’s commitment.

ORDERS FOR THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 2006

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand in adjournment under the proviso of H. Con. Res. 483 until 10 a.m. on Thursday, November 9, and that following the prayer and the pledge, the Senate stand in adjournment until Monday, November 13, at 2 p.m. I further ask that notwithstanding the adjournment of the Senate on November 9, Senators be permitted to introduce bills and submit statements and the Senate receive messages until 10:30 a.m. on November 9.

I further ask that following the prayer and the pledge on Monday, November 13, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the Journal of the proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved, and the proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved, and the proceedings be approved to date. We will return on Monday, November 13. We will have a busy week, with orientation of new Members and our party conferences. I don’t expect votes to begin that week until sometime later Tuesday afternoon. We will get word to Members as to the timing of any votes.

THANKING THE SENATE STAFF

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield, I know I speak for both of us in expressing appreciation to our Senate staff. It is 2:30 in the morning, and they have been here long, long hours. We get a lot of things done here, but it is not on our own. We have a wonderful staff that does so much. We have the pages, some of whom are still here, and they are juniors in high school. We have the doorkeepers, the Capitol Police, the official reporters, and the fine floor staff that makes it possible to get all this complicated stuff done. It could not be done without them. They get very little recognition.

To them, I say thank you very much to all of you who do such wonderful things for us personally, and it all winds up being country.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I second that as well. It is interesting, when you are around here at 2:30 in the morning—or, as I said at my retirement dinner, when you are here early in the morning and among the first people who come in and usually one of the last people leaving, because generally Senator Reid and I are here to close, you get to see a side of this place that a lot of people don’t see—the people who keep it clean, who sweep the floors, make sure light bulbs are in place, who make sure there is always clean paint on the walls. It is pretty amazing. It reminds me of a hospital a lot because people get sick 24 hours a day. This is very similar in that the hours are unpredictable, and it is a living democracy in which we have the opportunity to participate. It is one big, huge team that makes it possible. We very rarely pause and say that. It is very important as we all work together to make the country a safer, healthier, and stronger place.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 2006, AT 10 A.M.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, if there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in adjournment under the proviso of H. Con. Res 483.

HONORING THE GREATER CHICAGO FOOD DEPOSITORY

HON. DANIEL LIPINSKI
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Greater Chicago Food Depository, a non-profit organization that provides food to a half-million adults and children every year. The Food Depository accomplishes this massive undertaking with a network of almost 600 food pantries, soup kitchens, and shelters in the Chicago area. Last year, the Food Depository distributed more than forty million pounds of nonperishable food, fresh produce, dairy products, and meat—the equivalent of more than 84,000 meals every day.

Recently, the WGN Radio Needlest Kids Fund awarded a $60,000 grant to the Greater Chicago Food Depository, supporting two of its unique programs: the Kids Cafe and Nourish for Knowledge. These programs specifically focus on providing sustenance for the neediest children.

The Food Depository administers nearly forty Kids Cafes in Cook County, serving over 1,800 meals per day through this program. Kids Cafe is a place where underprivileged children can enjoy a warm meal, exercise, and receive tutoring/other educational services. The Food Depository also sponsors Nourish for Knowledge, a program that provides take-home bags of food on weekends to schoolchildren in low-income neighborhoods. Together, the Chicago Food Depository and the Chicago Public Schools offer bags of food and after school programming for students and their parents in sixteen community schools. Both Kids Cafe and Nourish for Knowledge act to mitigate the negative effects of hunger for young people.

Today, I am honored to recognize the Greater Chicago Food Depository, their sponsors and partners, and all those making their work possible. The Food Depository’s ongoing and innovative efforts to fight hunger serve as an inspiration to our community. In a world where hunger plagues many people, organizations like the Greater Chicago Food Depository make life-saving differences.

HONORING MR. FREDRICK W. HATFIELD AS A 2006 TOP DOG AWARD RECIPIENT

HON. JIM COSTA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend Mr. Fredrick W. Hatfield for his achievement in receiving the California State University Fresno’s Outstanding Alumni 2006 Top Dog Award for the College of Social Sciences. Mr. Hatfield has enjoyed an exceptional career in public service and has served in many key positions in both the Federal Government and the private sector. Mr. Hatfield is currently one of five commissioners appointed by the President, and confirmed by the Senate, to oversee the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

A native of the Central Valley, Mr. Hatfield graduated from Fresno State in 1977, Summa Cum Laude, with a Bachelor of Arts degree in History. Upon graduating from Fresno State, he worked as a government teacher for the Fresno County Schools. After his time in the classroom, Mr. Hatfield relocated to Washington, D.C. and embarked on his lifelong career in public service by joining the staff of then, House Majority Whip Tony Coelho. His 9 years of diligent service to Congressman Coelho’s office opened the floodgates for career opportunities elsewhere in our Nation’s Capital. Mr. Hatfield pursued and successfully served as a partner with Copeland and Hatfield Government Affairs; Chief of Staff for Senator John Breaux of Louisiana; Senior Vice President for Human Resources and Community Relations for Education Training Communication Inc.; and Deputy Commissioner General for U.S. Pavilion’s World’s Fair in Lisbon, Portugal.

Above all, Mr. Hatfield is someone who has never forgotten his roots and has never failed to contribute and invest in the future of the Central Valley. Aside from serving as chief of staff, advisor, and confidant to some of the most powerful and influential elected officials on Capitol Hill, Mr. Hatfield has dedicated time to serve as a mentor, role model, and friend to many Central Valley residents who have gone to Washington, D.C. for internships and employment opportunities from Fresno State. In addition, Mr. Hatfield has provided many local elected officials and their staff with indispensable advice and guidance. He has also helped our local leaders by facilitating introductions to high level policy makers, administrative agencies, boards and commissions on behalf of many Central Valley residents.

Mr. Hatfield’s commitments and efforts to improve the quality of life in the Central Valley are truly deserving of such recognition. It is for those reasons that I, a Fresno State Alumni myself, join his family, friends, colleagues, and the Fresno State community in honoring Mr. Hatfield as a 2006 Top Dog Awards recipient.

TRADEMARK DILUTION REVISION ACT OF 2006

SPEECH OF
HON. LAMAR S. SMITH
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 25, 2006

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the fair use exception is of great importance to ensure that the threat of dilution claims does not chill the exercise of free speech, particularly in expressive works of authorship. Parody, criticism, and commentary are familiar and important examples of fair use.

Another common example is the appearance of trademarks when products are used in motion pictures as props, “set dressing,” and the like.

I also want to clarify that nothing in H.R. 683 is intended to amend, change, or disturb the fair use defenses available in a claim of trademark infringement under Section 43 or other applicable sections of the Lanham Act.

HONORING SHELTON BEACH ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH ON THE OCCASION OF ITS 47TH YEAR

HON. JO BONNER
OF ALABAMA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to pay tribute to Shelton Beach Road Baptist Church on the occasion of its 47th year.

The congregation of Shelton Beach Road Baptist Church has been a vital partner of the city of Saraland and the State of Alabama. The church was founded in 1959, and for the last 47 years, this congregation has been worshipping God and serving the people of south Alabama.

The congregation of Shelton Beach Road Baptist Church has used its resources and opportunities to provide hope, comfort, instruction, and inspiration to countless citizens in the north Mobile County area. Their outstretched arms have touched the hearts of many through their efforts in missionary projects throughout the world.

Shelton Beach Road Baptist Church has lovingly served the people of Saraland through its contributions to children and family throughout the community. The Shelton Beach Road Baptist kindergarten and day care center, and the beautifully constructed family life center, are among the inspirational services provided to the young people of north Mobile County. The World of Life Club, the Olympians Club, and Gopher Buddies are just a few of the many youth activities offered to help instill Christian values in the children of Saraland.

It is my sincere hope that the Shelton Beach Road Baptist Church will continue to be such a source of inspiration, hope, and comfort to the people of Saraland for another 47 years, and I rise today to salute this wonderful congregation and the many contributions they have made toward the betterment of south Alabama.

INTRODUCTION OF THE TAXPAYER PROTECTION FROM FRIVOLOUS LITIGATION ACT

HON. RON PAUL
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to introduce the Physicians and Taxpayers’ Protection from Frivolous Litigation Act. This bill provides protection from frivolous lawsuits for physicians in cases involving Medicare and Medicaid, and in cases where physicians are obligated to provide treatment under the Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act (EMTALA).

Among the legal reforms contained in this act are a loser pays rule providing for physicians who always reimbursed for costs incurred in defending against frivolous lawsuits; a tightening of statutes of limitations to ensure lawsuits are not just attempts to extort money for conditions that arose years after it was delivered; reforms of how putative damages are calculated in order to ensure damages bear a relationship to the harm suffered; limitations on contingent fee contracts which encourage the filing of frivolous lawsuits; reforms to calculations of joint and several liability so a defendant is only liable for the harm it actually caused, and limitation of damages in cases where the plaintiff has already received compensation.

Frivolous lawsuits and the accompanying increase in malpractice insurance payments have driven many physicians out of medical practice. The malpractice crisis has further increased the cost of health care by forcing physicians to practice defensive medicine. While most malpractice reform issues are properly addressed at the state level, Congress does have a duty to act to protect physicians from frivolous lawsuits stemming from cases involving federal programs or federal mandates. After all, these programs already impose tremendous costs on physicians. For example, Medicare imposes so many rules and regulations on health care providers that the Medicare code is actually larger than the infamous tax code.

EMTALA imposes additional burdens on physicians. EMTALA forces physicians and hospitals to bear 100% of the costs of providing care to anyone who enters an emergency room, regardless of the person’s ability to pay. According to the June 29, 2003 edition of AM News, emergency physicians lose an average of $138,000 in revenue per year because of EMTALA. EMTALA also forces physicians and hospitals to follow costly rules and regulations. A physician can be fined $50,000 for a technical EMTALA violation.

The combined effect of excessive regulations, inadequate reimbursements, and the risk of being subjected to unreasonable malpractice awards is endangering the most vulnerable people’s access to health care. I am aware of several physicians who have counseled me that they are withdrawing from care profession because of lawsuits, federal regulations, and low federal reimbursement rates. Other physicians are withdrawing from the Medicare and Medicaid programs and cutting their ties with emergency rooms in order to avoid the EMTALA mandates. Protecting physicians from frivolous lawsuits who are participating in federal programs or acting to fulfill federal mandates is an important step in removing federally created disincentives to providing care to the Become people. I therefore call upon my colleagues to stand up for health care providers, low income people, senior citizens, and taxpayers by cosponsoring the Physicians and Taxpayers’ Protection from Frivolous Litigation Act.

HON. BOB ETHERIDGE OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, September 26, 2006

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 2679, Public Expression of Religion Act of 2005, and I urge my colleagues to join me in voting against it.

I take very seriously the need to uphold the rights safeguarded for all citizens by the United States Constitution. Our founding fathers created a document that not only gives us a framework that we govern by even today but a document that sets forth the unalienable rights of all Americans. The legislation that passes Congress should be designed to protect these rights, not weaken them. Unfortunately, H.R. 2679 fails to meet this most basic test.

H.R. 2679 is not a bill that would protect the freedom of religion as its authors contend. In reality, by weakening the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, it would have the opposite effect. Under current law, attorneys’ fees are paid for by the defending party when the plaintiff is found to have filed a constitutional claim or a claim violating the Establishment Clause. By denying the payment of these attorneys’ fees, even in successful cases, H.R. 2679 insulates serious constitutional violations from judicial review.

IN REMEMBRANCE OF LAURETTA ZARLENGA

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in memory and recognition of Lauretta Lisa Zarlenga. A wife, mother, and grandmother, Lauretta dedicated her life to her family.

Born in a small town in Italy in 1913, Lauretta immigrated to the United States during the Great Depression as a teenager. Settling in Chicago, Lauretta’s family carved out their presence as a working class immigrant family. Learning quickly the skill of artistic hat design at night school, Lauretta practiced her craft to support her constantly growing family. It was also at night school that she met her future husband, Dino, whereupon the two coincidentally chose the same topic for an essay assignment and subsequently discovered they came from neighboring villages in Italy.

Lauretta went on to serve the Chicago community in the restaurant industry where she eventually managed several dining rooms at Chicago’s premier establishments. Once, while running the dining room at the Drake Hotel, she accommodated a desperate Bob Hope and Bing Crosby, who had been denied entrance to another restaurant based on their attire. The two had been referred to Lauretta by her brother, who said, “You give these guys good service.” This story exemplifies the two strongest qualities for which we remember Lauretta: service and family. Lauretta’s ability to always hospitably put others before herself stood out to anyone who knew her. As a mother of four, she modestly provided her children with any opportunities she could and supported them in all their endeavors. In this way, she truly accomplished her own American Dream.

Lauretta Zarlenga’s legacy continues to live on through her posterity. Lauretta’s inspiration and support of her family shows itself in the work of her children who include a lauded poet, successful restaurateur, and a notable scolar of monetary reform.

Mr. Speaker and Colleagues, please join me in honoring the memory and recognizing the accomplishments of Lauretta Zarlenga. Her unwavering commitment to her family, friends, and community framed her life and served to make a difference in the lives of countless individuals.
Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of Mr. Stuart Pyle of Bakersfield, California. Mr. Pyle was an exemplary advocate for effective water policy primarily in California’s San Joaquin Valley.

As a past manager of the Kern County Water Agency, Stuart was known to all who knew him for his love and dedication to his family, his commendable service to the community, and his success in managing the second largest water contractor in the State of California.

Mr. Pyle was born in 1925 in Napa, California. He spent most of his adolescent years with his five siblings in Tahoe City and Auburn, California. As a Naval Officer during World War II, Mr. Pyle earned a degree in civil engineering in only three years. Following the war, he began his career in water as a developer of dams and canals for the California Department of Water Resources. As his career in water was established, he met his wife Virginia and married her in 1950.

In 1967, the Pyle family moved to Pakistan, where Stuart worked as a project manager for water systems for three years. When the Pakistani Civil War broke out they were forced to move back to the United States. Upon his arrival to the states, Stuart was hired as the manager of National Water Issues for the Federal Government in Washington DC. After three years in DC, he was offered a job as a manager of the Kern County Water Agency. Stuart spent the next 17 years of his life dedicated to advancing water policy in Kern County.

Throughout his life Mr. Pyle was extremely involved in his community. He served on the National Academies of Science, was a Member of the Rotary Club, and was an active supporter of the Bakersfield Assistant League. Even while enjoying retirement, he was active in the United States Committee on Irrigation and Environment. In addition to being a life long advocate of water policy, he was also a dedicated member of the Christian Science Church where he was a reader on the Board of Directors.

Mr. Pyle is survived by his beloved wife of 56 years Virginia, their five children; Linda, Jennifer, Stuart, Marianna, and Tom, and his nine grandchildren.

Stuart Pyle led a happy life full of love and adventure. His professional achievements will Operation Homelink enables communication and encouragement by providing free refurbished computers to both deployed military units and their spouses or parents. Troops on the field then have the ability to e-mail their loved ones updates, while loved ones have the ability to relate local news and send their best regards. This excellent program truly makes a difference in the lives of our soldiers, as well as their families and friends.

I ask my colleagues to rise with me to acknowledge Dan Shannon for his highly successful and significant program that supports our armed forces. Dan Shannon is an American Jewish Committee leader, and the group’s phenomenal success makes them most worthy of our recognition today.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that it is incumbent on this body to recognize the accomplishments of Fourplay. The group’s phenomenal success makes them number one and stayed on the charts for more than three years, but unfortunately, the Skelton motion failed to pass. Although the Republican majority would not allow consideration of proposed Democratic amendments, it is important to note the significant and substantive changes that have been made to the bill to correct the serious flaws of the original White House proposal.

Specifically, the bill would replace the White House’s denial of habeas corpus rights with a process known as combatant status review in which detainees may challenge their detention within the confines of the military commission system. In addition, the manager’s amendment assures the prohibition of cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment, codified in the Detainee Treatment Act (Pub. L. 109–163, P.L. 109–163).

Secondly, the Manager’s Amendment would be too high for most people to afford. The costs to bring a lawsuit against a defendant for a violation of religious freedom makes a difference in the lives of so many people. I commend him for his continued efforts and unyielding determination.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. BOB ETHERIDGE
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak on this legislation to establish military tribunals for terrorist suspects.

This legislation was made necessary by a U.S. Supreme Court decision in June in the case of Hamdan v. Rumsfeld, in which the court ruled that the military commissions created by the Bush administration violated both U.S. and international law. This important legislation is necessary to create a lawful framework in order to bring to trial such terrorist suspects as Khalid Sheikh Mohammed, the alleged mastermind of the 9/11/01 terrorist attacks on America. Without passage of this legislation, the United States will have no legal means to bring to justice those who have participated in the most heinous acts of terrorism against our country.

I agree with my Democratic colleagues who rightfully argued we should have been allowed to consider substantive changes to the bill such as those contained in the Skelton motion to recommit, which I voted for. The Skelton language would have provided for expedited consideration of the statute’s constitutionality through the statutory process to be renewed in three years, but unfortunately, the Skelton motion failed to pass. Although the Republican Majority would not allow consideration of proposed Democratic amendments, it is important to note the significant and substantive changes that have been made to the bill to correct the serious flaws of the original White House proposal.

Specifically, the bill would replace the White House’s denial of habeas corpus rights with a

IN HONOR OF LANCE CORPORAL CLEVE KINSEY

HON. JO BONNER
OF ALABAMA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Marine Lance Corporal Cleve Kinsey, who was wounded in Ramadi, Iraq, earlier this year.

Cleve, a native of Foley, Alabama, and a member of the Marines’ 3rd Battalion, 8th Regiment, was injured on April 1, when an improvised explosive device was detonated next to the Humvee in which he was riding. Sustaining serious injuries to his left leg, Cleve faced the very real threat of losing his leg. After undergoing at least 12 surgeries, which included having muscle tissue transplanted from his back to his leg, his leg was saved.

A member of Foley High School’s track and football teams, Cleve joined the Marines upon graduation. Throughout his career with the Marines, Cleve has set a standard of excellence and displayed the qualities of discipline, devotion, and dedication to country that are the hallmarks of men and women throughout the long and distinguished history of the American military.

Mr. Speaker, I am happy to note that Cleve returned home last month. I urge my colleagues to take a moment to pay tribute to Marine Lance Corporal Cleve Kinsey and his selfless devotion not only to our country and the freedom we enjoy, but to a people who are in the infant stages of a new life—a new freedom—in their own land.

I ask my colleagues to join with me in recognizing a true hero. I know Cleve’s parents, Jimmy and Penny, his brothers, Matthew and Christopher, his sister April, and his many friends will join me in praising his accomplishments and extending heartfelt thanks for his selfless efforts on behalf of a grateful Nation.

CONGRATULATIONS TO POINT COMFORT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

HON. RON PAUL
OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, Point Comfort Elementary School, of the Calhoun County Independent School District, is among the 26 Texas schools that have recently received the Department of Education’s prestigious Blue Ribbon Schools award.

The No Child Left Behind-Blue Ribbon Schools Program recognizes outstanding public and private schools that are either academically superior or have demonstrated dramatic and consistent gains in student achievement. The Department of Education selects Blue Ribbon Schools based on nominations submitted by the states. My colleagues may be interested to know that every school nominated for a Blue Ribbon award in Texas received a Blue Ribbon Schools award.

Schools can be nominated for a Blue Ribbon Schools Award if at least forty percent of their disadvantaged students show dramatic improvement over three years on state tests in reading or English language arts and mathematics. Schools whose student bodies rank in the top ten percent on state tests in reading or English language arts and mathematics may also be nominated for a Blue Ribbon Schools Award.

In addition to these two criteria, Blue Ribbon Schools must meet Adequate Yearly Progress requirements in reading or English language arts and mathematics, must not have been identified as a Persistently Dangerous School within the last two years, and must comply with other Department of Education requirements.

Point Comfort’s designation as a Blue Ribbon School is a tribute to the schools’ teachers, administrators, and other employees’ dedication to providing students with a quality education. It also is a reflection of the students and parents’ commitment to the pursuit of educational excellence. I am therefore pleased to offer my congratulations to Point Comfort Elementary School for being one of the 26 Texas schools designated as Blue Ribbon Schools by the Department of Education.

TRIBUTE TO THE JAZZ GREAT, NATHAN EAST

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of the renowned jazz musician, Nathan East, a distinguished member of the music industry. It behooves us to pay tribute to this outstanding artist and I hope my colleagues will join me in recognizing his impressive accomplishments.

Born one of seven children to Thomas and Gwendolyn East on December 8, 1955, in Philadelphia, PA, Nathan East and his family moved to San Diego, CA, when he was 4 years old to accommodate his father’s aero-dynamic engineering position at General Dynamics. As a child, East would peck out familiar melodies on the family piano. Music filled the home as his sister Cecilia practiced the French horn and their sister Gertrude played the flute. When Nathan was in the seventh grade, he began playing cello in the junior high school orchestra. At age 14, he switched to bass guitar, inspired by his older brother David’s mastery of the guitar. He began playing for local church groups and folk masses with his brothers.

East played along with the recordings of jazz bassists Ray Brown, Ron Carter, Charles Mingus, and other jazz legends. He attended a session with Scott LaFaro, Motown’s James Jamerson, James Brown, Sly Stone with Larry Graham, Cream, and horn bands like Chicago, Tower of Power and Blood, Sweat & Tears as they came over the radio or out of his record player. The young bassist began playing in his high school’s jazz ensemble, marching band, choir, chorus, and pep band, as well as local Top 40 bands. He also listened to Wes Montgomery, Quincy Jones, Cannonball Adderley, Herbie Hancock, Wayne Shorter, George Benson, Bob James, Harvey Mason, Lee Ritenour, Jimi Hendrix, Santana, session bassist Chuck Rainey, Earth, Wind & Fire’s Verdine White, and Francis Rocco Prestia.

East’s breakthrough came while he was a member of a band named Power. They were hired as the house band for a Stax revue. The recognition brought the attention of Barry White, who hired the entire band for a national tour. Still a teenager, East became a member of the Love Unlimited Orchestra (“Love’s Theme”) playing The Apollo Theater, Madison Square Garden, Kennedy Center and other major U.S. venues. East earned a bachelor of arts degree in Music from the University of California at San Diego. He began work on a master’s degree when instructor Bertram Turetzky suggested that he already had enough education and that it was time for him to move to Los Angeles to try and start a lucrative music career.

While involved with the San Diego club and studio scene, Barry White contacted him to play on many of his recording projects. In early 1980, veteran writer/arranger Gene Page, whom East had worked with on White’s sessions, called the bassist to play on a recording session for a Hertz commercial jingle. Impressed with East’s ability to read music as well as his diverse playing skills, Page used East on numerous projects (Dionne Warwick, Johnny Mathis, Whitney Houston, and Madonna). As East’s reputation grew on the L.A. session scene, so did his job calls. From that point on, East worked consistently. He did sessions for Lionel Richie (“Endless Love,” Kenny Rogers’ “Lady”) and Kenny Loggins (“Footloose,” “Vox Humana”). He toured with Loggins appearing with the singer at Live Aid in 1985. Eric Clapton heard East and invited him to join his band. With keyboardist Greg Phillinganes and drummer Phil Collins, they toured the world over and performed multiple concerts at London’s Royal Albert Hall which resulted in the release of Clapton’s “24 Nights” CD, 1988.

In 1990, East was one of four musicians that formed the supergroup, Fourplay. The group had phenomenal success: albums selling millions of copies, several times charting at No. 1 as well as remaining on the chart as long as 90 weeks and a Grammy nomination. East was voted the Most Valuable Player in the bass category at the International Rock Awards. He also won Britain’s most prestigious Ivor Novello Award for co-writing the number one hit song “Easy Lover” with Phil Collins and Philip Bailey. East has developed his own Yamaha Signature Series bass guitar (the BBNE–2) available in stores worldwide. He also has an instructional VHS video, Contemporary Electric Bass and instructional DVD, The Business of Bass, (distributed by Hal Leonard Music Publishing Co), a behind the scenes look that goes into considerable detail on the steps he has taken, the choices and decisions made and the mindset that has successfully earned him both the profile and the respect many players would be pleased to call their own.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that it is incumbent on this body to recognize the accomplishments of Nathan East, as he offers his talents on this body to recognize the accomplishments of Nathan East, as he offers his talents.

Mr. Speaker, Nathan East’s selfless service has continuously demonstrated a level of altruistic dedication that makes him most worthy of our recognition today.

MILITARY COMMISSIONS ACT OF 2006
SPEECH OF HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY OF NEW YORK IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Wednesday, September 27, 2006

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 6166, the Military Commissions Act of 2006. Rather than allow a full and open debate on this important issue, the Majority has decided that 2 hours is sufficient and prohibited any amendments from being offered during consideration on the Floor. We all are committed to bringing the masterminds of the 9/11 attack and other terrorist plots to justice. However, I have strong concerns about several provisions of the bill before us today. First, by allowing the President to interpret Geneva Conventions requirements, H.R. 6166 would endanger American soldiers who for 60 years have been protected by those very provisions. Under this bill, the President could determine what methods constitute torture rather than banning torture outright. This loophole could leave our soldiers vulnerable to the same reinterpretations that should they be taken as prisoners.

Second, the bill prevents detainees from filing habeas corpus suits challenging their detentions in court. The indefinite detention of individuals who have been designated as enemy combatants without judicial recourse is very likely unconstitutional and rejects the long American commitment to the rule of law.

Finally, rather than use the existing appellate military system, H.R. 6166 creates a new and untested Court of Military Commission Review that would handle appeals of military commission determinations.

Amendments offered by Democratic members to address these three concerns were denied by the Republicans, and so the House today will debate a bill that raises serious constitutional issues. This is a shame. I urge my colleagues to oppose H.R. 6166.

HONORING THE SOUTHWEST YOUTH SERVICES COLLABORATIVE
HON. DANIEL LIPINSKI OF ILLINOIS IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the Southwest Youth Services Collaborative, an outstanding organization for teenagers and young adults, that serves several Chicago communities plagued with gang violence, high drop-out rates, and high unemployment. For more than a decade, the Collaborative’s after-school programs have given students a vision and focus they need to become responsible leaders of their communities—leaders that are agents of change. Area churches, social service centers, recreational centers, and neighborhood organizations are responsible for the good work of the Southwest Youth Services Collaborative. They bring hope to participants through the recreational centers, a soccer league, and even a Hip-Hop Academy. Additionally, the organization offers mentoring and support programs that provide wisdom, understanding, and a second chance for many young adults.

Recently, the WGN Radio Neediest Kids Fund awarded the Southwest Youth Services Collaborative a $25,000 grant in recognition of their after-school programming. The grant will help support these essential after-school life skills programs that make a difference in the lives of so many young people.

It is my honor to recognize the Southwest Youth Services Collaborative for their role in providing opportunities for young people and making our community a better place to live. I also commend the staff, facilitators, and volunteers who truly make this organization possible. Their work positively influences the lives and outlook of many who face the pressures of life in disadvantaged areas.

Mr. KOLBE. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 494, my vote was not recorded. Had I been present, I would have voted “aye.”

A TRIBUTE TO LARRY TRULLINGER
HON. JIM COSTA OF CALIFORNIA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. COSTA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of Mr. Lawrence E. Trullinger who passed away on Wednesday, August 30, 2006. Larry dedicated his life to serving his community as a civic leader and his efforts will provide all those engaged in a civic movement with a lasting model. Throughout my time in public office I came to know Larry and considered him a good friend within the Fresno community.

Mr. Trullinger was born on February 22, 1930 in Portland, Oregon. Throughout his life, he was a devoted member of the Democratic Party and he never shied away from lending a helping hand to further the party’s cause. Mr. Trullinger had several leadership roles with California’s Democratic Party, including serving as the president of the Democrats of North Orange County and the regional vice president of the California Democratic Council (C CDC). After moving to Fresno, he served as the C D C C ’ s Executive Vice President and State Treasurer. Further, Mr. Trullinger contributed countless hours as statewide chair of CDC’s Organizational Development Committee, Living Wage Initiative, Water Advisory Committee, Interfaith Alliance, Health Care for All and many other projects.

Mr. Trullinger is survived by his sons Steven and Mark; daughter, Laureen; and many grandchildren. Although Mr. Trullinger’s passing brings sadness to his family, friends, and the community, he left a legacy as an advocate for the people that will never be forgotten.

HONORING THE LIFE OF FORMER CONGRESSMAN JOEL T. BROYHILL
HON. TOM DAVIS OF VIRGINIA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the life of the late Joel T. Broyhill, former Congressman for Virginia’s 16th district.

Congressman Broyhill was born in Hope- well, Virginia on November 4, 1919. His family moved to Arlington in 1937, when his father relocated his building and real estate firm,
As Members of Congress we have no higher priority than the security of the American people. It’s our duty to see that anyone who murders Americans is properly tried and punished. This responsibility requires us to address the disastrous detainees policies put in place by the Bush Administration. Republicans and Democrats have sought to create a sustainable legal framework that gives our judiciary the tools to deliver justice to our enemies. It is clear that all our efforts must reflect the ideals of our Constitution and the highest standards in protecting human rights and due process under the law.

The bill before us fails to meet these standards. Instead, it erodes the protections of the Geneva Conventions and reverses two centuries of American jurisprudence by denying habeas corpus protections for the accused. More dangerously, it fails to eliminate the use of torture, which has seriously undermined global support for our fight against terrorism.

As a member of the House Intelligence Committee I’m very familiar with the challenges we face in the fight against terror, and nothing I have seen has convinced me that the measures in this bill will make us safer or provide an effective framework for bringing our enemies to justice.

The Geneva Conventions exist not to embolden our enemies but to protect our own soldiers from harm should they be captured or detained. Our failure to embrace these standards is a closed door to misconduct by our enemies, a reality that many current and former military experts have spoken out against. Former Secretary of State Colin Powell put it best by saying that redefining our obligations under the Geneva Conventions would ‘doubt the moral basis of our fight against terrorism. . . . Furthermore, it would put our own troops at risk.’ No one doubts the wisdom of Secretary Powell in these matters and it’s reckless of this body to ignore his counsel.

Habeas corpus rights, likewise, do not give comfort to the guilty, nor do they help to free terrorists in our custody. They exist only to protect the innocent, and their proper application helps reduce the risk of detaining the wrong individuals. The failure to provide habeas corpus was the basis for the Supreme Court’s decision to declare the Administration’s original tribunal system unconstitutional. Denying these rights again with this bill creates a serious threat to the constitutionality of the legislation, and makes it more than likely that we’ll all be back here in a year, or 5 years from now, trying once again to create a system that will bring terrorist enemies to justice.

Finally, this bill fails to set an appropriate standard for the treatment of prisoners and relaxes the restrictions on the use of torture embodied in Common Article 3 of the Geneva Conventions. The bill grants the sole authority for interpreting the Geneva Conventions, including Common Article 3, to the President, giving the Administration the option to relax or simply ignore these protections outright. The bill also specifies that the restrictions on the use of torture laid out in the Army Field Manual which apply uniformly to U.S. military personnel and facilities, do not apply to other U.S. agencies engaged in the fight against terror, including the CIA.

Our system is based on effective and lawful interrogation practices that yield dependable, actionable intelligence. This legislation gives the Administration a blank check to define its own methods for interrogation and opens the door for abuses. We’ve already seen where permissive interrogation rules can lead . . . it’s called Abu Ghraib. Certainly what we have lost in credibility in the eyes of the world community and the Iraqi people weighs heavily against any information that has been obtained. To ensure that the tools Congress must have the ability to review and set standards for interrogation practices around the world. Doing so ensures not only their legality, but ultimately their effectiveness. This bill takes responsibility out of our hands.

Mr. Speaker, for all the stated reasons, this bill should not become the policy of our great Nation and I urge my colleagues to oppose it.
The Khartoum government has demonstrated that it cannot be relied upon to address the humanitarian crisis. The government's use of import restrictions and routine harassment of aid workers and obstruction to food aid deliveries is according to U.N. Secretary General, 7,000 member African Union Mission in Sudan, AMIS. As it stands, AMIS has 7,000 member support the 7,000 member African Union Mission to protect civilians, lacks the troop mandate until the end of September 30, 2006, applies a U.N. peacekeeping force to Darfur. At the same time, the Sudanese government is opposed to U.N. forces entering Darfur and continues to object to the African Union troops remaining in Darfur. No mandate to protect civilians, lacks the troop support to protect civilians, lacks the troop strength, financial, and logistical support necessary to stop the ongoing genocide. However, even these insufficient efforts, the A.U. force has performed admirably. AMIS' mandate was set to expire on September 30, 2006, and the A.U. has consistently called for transition of AMIS to the U.N. force. Khartoum vehemently opposes this request and consequences. The A.U. Security Council Resolution 1706 but with much reluctance, Khartoum has agreed to extend AMIS' mandate until the end of the year.

The United States continues to call on the Sudanese government to recognize the severity of the humanitarian crisis in Darfur and immediately agree to a transition of AMIS to the U.N. President Bush has failed to leverage the diplomatic might of the presidency to overcome the objections of the Sudanese government to a U.N. force entering Darfur. Instead, we have witnessed the stalling tactics of the Sudanese administration: only a massive U.N. force can legitimately and credibly protect civilians, ensure humanitarian access and fully carry out the extensive monitoring and implementation duties spelled out in the Darfur Peace Agreement. The Darfur Peace Agreement, CPA, establishes critical security, wealth-sharing, and power-sharing arrangements that address the long-standing economic and political marginalization in Darfur. To date, criteria of the CPA have yet to be implemented thus creating a sense of uncertainty for Darfur.

We must leverage our compounded international diplomatic efforts to work with members of the Security Council such as China and Russia to overcome Sudanese President Al-Bashir's objections to U.N. Security Council Resolution 1706 and allow the 20,000 U.N. forces to enter Darfur and begin to provide immediate security to Darfurians. The international community should not take a back seat to Khartoum's objections nor should the deployment of the troops be contingent upon Khartoum's consent. The situation on the ground continues to spiral out of control. Violence is causing surges in malnutrition and starvation rates. Humanitarian aid organizations have been cut off from helping those in need. Twelve humanitarian aid workers have been killed in the last 2 months. Twenty-three humanitarian aid vehicles have been hijacked and some humanitarian aid organizations to pull out of northern Darfur leaving major populations vulnerable. Under pressure from the Congress, the President recently appointed a Special Envoy for Darfur, Andrew Natsios. Securing civilians should be his primary responsibility. Further, he should have a strong mandate and staff to ensure he is successful in achieving this mandate.

The Government of Sudan is deploying 26,000 Sudanese troops to Darfur in preparation for a major offensive. At the same time, the Sudanese government is opposed to U.N. forces entering Darfur and continues to object to the African Union troops remaining in Darfur if they transition into a U.N. force. The actions by the Government of Sudan should raise concern for the safety of the people of Darfur. Sudanese armed forces—Janjaweed militia—are still using vehicles that they've painted white to look like African Union troops and continue to steal gasoline from the A.U. It is despicable to know that the Sudanese Government in Khartoum continues to use helicopters, guns, and Soviet-era Antonov planes to bomb villages and drive innocent unarmed civilians from their mud-and-thatch hut homes. An international force is needed immediately to stop the killings, rapes, and pillaging in Darfur; provide security to facilitate humanitarian assistance programs for internally displaced people; enforce the cease-fire between the government in Khartoum and the rebel groups in Darfur to allow for political negotiations; and, facilitate the return of civilians to their land, reconstruction of homes, and provide a secure environment.

Mr. Speaker, we should be immediately deploying a U.N. peacekeeping force in accordance with U.N. Security Council Resolution 1706 and immediately implement all previously passed U.N. Security Council resolutions. The people of Darfur should not have to wait. We must act not before it is too late, we must act now before there is no one left to protect. I applaud Dr. Davis for his many years of service. I know that he and Velouis Davis, his wife of 54 years, will enjoy this new phase of life, but will continue to give back to the community in the Ypsilanti area. Once again, I salute the work of Dr. Fred Davis and I wish both he and his wife many more years of happiness.
there are fewer people surrendering to American troops now than in at the start of the war in Iraq.

While there are those who argue that the erosion of civil liberties is needed to protect our Nation, I believe it will actually have the opposite effect and will make our country less safe. This is why it is so important that the United States has in the world community is our commitment to the rule of law and fair treatment. By denying habeas corpus rights and giving the President unfettered discretion in defining torture, we are sending out a signal to the world that the United States will no longer serve as the world’s standard in our commitment to human rights, civil rights and the rule of law. It will erode our international reputation as a moral Nation that is an example of democracy and freedom, and it will undermine our leadership in the world community. I urge all of my colleagues to vote “no” on H.R. 6166.

HONORING THE LIFE OF LLOYD WAYNE WAGGONER

HON. DON YOUNG

OF ALASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, I come to the House floor today to express my profound sadness for the loss of a constituent and a friend, Lloyd Wayne Waggoner. He was a husband, father, father-in-law, grandfather, and a friend, Lloyd Wayne Waggoner. He was placed on a terrorist watch-list based on innocent people can be unlawfully detained and indefinitely imprisoned based upon insubstantial or even erroneous evidence.

In a letter to Members of Congress commenting on the habeas stripping provisions, former Judge Advocate Generals John Hutson, Donald Guter, and David Brahms stated, “the detainees, who have not been charged with any crime, that Congress not strip the courts of jurisdiction to hear their pending habeas cases. The habeas cases are the only avenue open for them to challenge the bases of their detention—potentially keeping them imprisoned as ‘enemy combatants.’” In a letter to Members of Congress, 9 former Federal judges also expressed concerns. They warn that “...driving the courts of habeas jurisdiction will jeopardize the Judiciary’s ability to ensure that Executive detentions are not grounded on torture, other abuse, or prisoner of war status. Congress would thus be skating on thin constitutional ice depriving the Federal courts of their power to hear the cases of Guantamno detainees.” Thomas Sullivan, a former United States attorney in Chicago who has represented Guantamno Bay detainees, testified at a recent Senate hearing that he believed that if this legislation is “passed with these habeas-stripping provisions in it, then after I am dead and the members of this Senate are dead, an apology will be made, just as we did for the incarceration of the Japanese citizens in the Second World War.” (“Security and War Take Center Stage as Campaign Break Nears,” New York Times, September 26, 2006)

Mr. Speaker, as Members of Congress we should work to protect Constitutional rights, not denounce them. As the former Judge Advocate Generals wrote in their letter to Members of Congress, “...the writ of habeas corpus embodies principles fundamental to our Nation. It is the essence of the rule of law, ensuring that neither king nor executive may deprive a person of liberty without some independent review to ensure that the detention has a reasonable basis in law and fact. That right must be preserved.”

H.R. 6166 has serious consequences for the safety of our brave military men and women, and for our Nation. If the United States supports stripping detainees of fundamental legal protections, other countries will feel justified in doing the same thing. Allowing questionable interrogation techniques—practices that could actually violate the Geneva Convention—would have dangerous implications for the treatment of American soldiers who are captured abroad. It will also make the enemy fight harder because capture or surrender could have such dire consequences. In fact, soudough Alaskan. With a story and a smile for everyone, he was a person that made people think, “boy, am I glad I met him.” We are all better for having known him, for having loved him, and for having been loved by him. For the person he was, for the lessons he taught us, for the love he shared with us, he could have been in our corner. We will dedicate his life and cherish our memories. Mr. Speaker, in Wayne’s words I leave you with his favorite toast “may you work like you don’t need the money, may you dance like no one is watching, and may you love like you’ve never been hurt.”
The McGovern-Dole Program has used American-grown commodities and financial and technical assistance to decrease the incidence of child hunger and increase educational opportunities for millions of these vulnerable children. Nutritious meals, take home rations, or both are provided as means to increase food security for children, and increase school enrollment and attendance. Official evaluations by USDA document how McGovern-Dole has been especially successful at increasing access to education for girls and in strengthening parental and community commitment and engagement in education, nutrition and agriculture. McGovern-Dole has also become a catalyst for other community-based projects such as clean water, sanitation, children's health, and HIV/AIDS education, treatment and prevention programs. These outcomes have resulted in broad bipartisan support for the program and especially for increased annual funding. The McGovern-Dole Program was envisioned as a program of farm, commodity and agricultural groups, as well as the United States and international humanitarian, development, education, anti-hunger and food security organizations.

In general, the McGovern-Dole Program also supports maternal and child health projects when those projects complement school feeding, including early learning and early childhood development programs that address critical nutritional and developmental needs of children under five years of age.

Named in honor of former Senators George McGovern and Robert Dole, who worked closely during their tenures in the U.S. Senate to address the problems of hunger and malnutrition in the United States and around the world, the McGovern-Dole program was initiated in 2000 by President Bill Clinton as a $300 million pilot program, the Global Food for Education Initiative (GFEI). From 2001–2003, the GFEI fed nearly 7 million children through 48 projects in 38 countries. Enrollment increased by up to 10 percent in participating schools. The program provided an additional billion of funding to complement the GFEI program. In 2003, as part of the Farm Bill Reauthorization, the GFEI was established as a permanent program, and renamed the McGovern-Dole Program. During 2003–2004, the McGovern-Dole Program used $100 million of Commodity Credit Corporation funds and $50 million in appropriated funds to support over 4 million children in 26 countries. School enrollment overall rose by 14 percent in participating schools, with girls enrollment increasing by 17 percent. McGovern-Dole helped considerably in Afghanistan when the country’s leadership changed and girls were once again allowed to be educated. The program helped to build or renovate schools, provided meals and other incentives for children to come to school, and contributed to a 123 percent increase in overall enrollment in the country. The McGovern-Dole school feeding programs also received support from other donors, private businesses, and local government and communities.

Mr. Speaker, I have the privilege of visiting several McGovern-Dole and school feeding programs in Colombia. They were in some of the poorest neighborhoods surrounding the capital of Bogota, where thousands of people displaced by violence and conflict were trying to survive. I remember, in particular, a mother and grandmother who came up to me and thanked me and the United States for supporting the school and providing these daily meals. They told me how members of the FARC guerrillas would prowl around the edges of their neighborhood, trying to recruit young children as soldiers with the promise of a meal. But their children would not be lured into becoming child soldiers because they were being fed and educated at the school. Mr. Speaker, you can't imagine how proud and grateful those words made me feel. I could see the powerful good will this modest project had created for America among these poor families.

I was reminded of the words of these families when I read the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission, and more recently, reviewing the declassified judgments of the latest National Intelligence Estimate (NIB). Both of these reports noted that the lack of nutrition and education leading to stunted brain development and development feed the anger, humiliation, powerlessness and sense of hopelessness that are the feeding grounds of terrorists and extremists. When mothers and fathers have hope for their children’s future, they turn away from extremists. When children have the chance to go to school and stay in school, and when hunger no longer impedes their ability to learn, then they are on the path that leads to greater economic opportunity. Hope and opportunity are among our most powerful weapons in the fight against terrorism. Mr. Speaker, and I believe it is programs like McGovern-Dole that will ultimately help us win the war against extremism.

Mr. Speaker, the bill we just introduced would reauthorize the McGovern-Dole Program for fiscal years 2008 through 2012. It provides stable funding with annual increases to expand the reach of current programs and initiate new project in more countries, bringing hope and opportunity to more children and families. Such increased funding will allow McGovern-Dole programs to work with local communities and national governments to make these critical educational, nutritional and development programs self-sustaining. The increased funding will also allow greater project development in early learning and early childhood development programs so that more children enter school healthy and ready to learn. And by demonstrating a firm, long-term commitment to this program, I believe this reauthorization will serve as a catalyst to increase support from other donors for global school feeding programs.

In the true spirit of George McGovern and Bob Dole, Congresswoman Emerson and I are also very proud that this bill addresses the strong bipartisan support that the McGovern-Dole Program has received since first initiated. In a time of intense partisanship, this bill demonstrates that men and women of good will not only can come together, but want to come together, on issues and programs that genuinely matter to our children’s lives and help make our world a better place. I would like to thank Representatives Lantos, Hyde, Skelton, Wolf, Pomroy, Smith (NJ), DeLauro, Leach, Herseth, Osborne, Kaptur, Visclosky, Wexler, Bourke, McCotter, Payne, Shubik, Moorhead (KS), English, Snyder, Moran (KS), McCollum (MN), and Solis for joining us as original cosponsors of this important legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I ask for the RECORD a copy of a letter Senators George McGovern and Robert Dole sent to representatives urging Members of Congress to cosponsor the McGovern-Dole Reauthorization Act.

Dear Representative: We are writing in support of the George McGovern-Robert Dole International Food for Education and Child Nutrition Program and to request that you cosponsor legislation reauthorizing this important program.

The McGovern-Dole International Food for Education and Child Nutrition Program has made a critical difference in the lives of millions of children and provides a clear statement throughout the world about America’s compassion and values. The McGovern-Dole Program provides American-grown food to hungry children in schools in the world’s poorest countries. It helps ensure that children suffering from hunger receive at least one nutritious meal during the day. In addition, where school feeding programs are offered, enrollment and attendance rates increase significantly—especially for girls. Increasing children’s education has important implications for social and economic progress in the world’s poorest countries. It is a model food aid program that is tailor made for the 21st Century and we strongly support its reauthorization.

Representative Jim McGovern and Representative Jo Ann Emerson are introducing legislation to reauthorize the McGovern-Dole Program. We respectfully urge you to cosponsor either Jim or Jo Ann and add your name as a cosponsor of this important legislation as soon as possible.

Sincerely,

GEORGE MCGOVERN
ROBERT DOELE

TRIBUTE TO MR. RICHARD G. "ANDY" ANDERSON

HON. JOHN T. DOOLTITE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. DOOLTITE. Mr. Speaker, today I wish to recognize and honor a citizen and public servant who will celebrate his 50th Anniversary as Fire Chief of the Quincy Volunteer Fire Department on November 11, 2006. I join with the local community of Quincy and the residents of Plumas County in congratulating Mr. Richard G. "Andy" Anderson for his remarkable service.

Andy Anderson was born and raised on a farm in Southern Illinois. In addition to attending school and performing farming chores, Andy also worked at the local mortuary. After World War II commenced in 1941, he pleaded with his father to allow him to serve in the United States military. When his father finally granted permission in 1942, Andy enrolled in the United States Navy and served aboard the USS Cullman for the duration of the conflict and received an honorable discharge for his contributions.

After the war, Andy attended mortician school in San Francisco and completed his apprenticeship in the Bay Area. He then took a position in Red Bluff, California, before pursing mortuary schools in Portola and Quincy, California. In 1956, Andy moved to Quincy to manage his businesses and was elected fire chief of the local department in November of that same year.
During his service as chief, Andy made the Quincy Volunteer Fire Department into a model organization. He has stressed the importance of interagency cooperation and created the Plumas County Fire Chiefs Association which included the fire chiefs from throughout rural Plumas County. Andy served as the Chair of this organization for 25 years. Presently, the organization has expanded to include all Plumas County emergency service providers. In addition to this valuable contribution, Andy participated in or created several other county and statewide organizations dedicated to emergency services and disaster preparedness. To this day, he serves as the Director of the Plumas County Office of Emergency Services and as Plumas County Fire Warden.

Andy is also an accomplished pilot and has an active interest in radio broadcasting, railroad, and county fairs. He has poured his efforts into these worthy causes as well as numerous other local volunteer and civic organizations. Andy has great pride in his two grandsons, Will and Richard, and has been married to his wife Gayle for over 42 years. He affectionately refers to Gayle as "the real Chief."

Mr. Speaker, my district encompasses a large area of rural California, and I am happy to say that these communities are kept strong by people like Andy Anderson who make sacrifices in order to serve their fellow citizens. Andy is deserving of our recognition because of his five decades of public fire and emergency service, his military service to our country, and his love of family. I appreciate the opportunity to honor him today.

TRIBUTE TO REVEREND DR. G. DAVID HORTON, PASTOR OF GREATER NEW BETHEL BAPTIST CHURCH

HON. KENDRICK B. MEEK
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to one of our community’s indefatigable church leaders, Rev. Dr. G. David Horton, Pastor of Greater New Bethel Baptist Church, as he celebrates his 27th Pastoral Anniversary.

Rev. Horton is married to Modena Smith Horton and is the father of five sons: Gregory, Eldrick, Reginald, Michael, and Thomas, and one daughter, Ava Rena.

Rev. Horton represents the vocation of a Good Shepherd who attends to his flock in ways we can never understand. As pastor and teacher, he exudes the knowledge and pragmatism of a visionary who goes about teaching the ways of God. He has tirelessly worked to enlighten our community on the agenda of spiritual needs and good governance, impacting our duties and responsibilities to the less fortunate.

I want to commend his tremendous work in guiding not only the members of Greater New Bethel Baptist Church, but also the members of the larger community. Through the longevity of his service, he has truly persevered in showing us the Way and expounding for us the Truth that emanates from the teachings of the Gospels.

Having completed his religious studies at the Easonian Theological Seminary in Birmingham, Alabama, he went on to pursue and obtain his Doctorate of Ministry from the South Florida Center for Theological Studies. In the midst of his studies, he continued to serve as the CEO of Bethel’s Family Life Center and Bethel’s Child Care Center. He emphasizes the sanctity of the family and the importance of responding to the needs of children. This commitment truly underscores his unshakeable belief that “... the ruin of a nation starts in the homes of its people.”

Rev. Horton continues to be involved in the Baptist Church on both the state and national level. He is currently Moderator of the seaboard Baptist Association, Inc. and President of the Moderator Auxiliary, Florida General Baptist State Convention, Inc. He has previously served in several other capacities within the Seaboard Baptist Association and the State Congress of Christian Education.

Rev. Horton’s timely and persevering leadership at Greater New Bethel Baptist Church for 27 years is genuinely admirable. As a man of God and as a deeply spiritual leader immersed in Scriptural commitment, he has earned our deepest respect and commendation.

This is the legacy of Rev. Dr. G. David Horton. I am truly privileged in thanking him for his many years of service. My pride in sharing his friendship is only exceeded by my utmost gratitude for everything he has sacrificed on behalf of our community. He continues to teach us to live by the noble ethic of loving God by serving our fellow man.

BRINGING TERRORISTS TO JUSTICE

HON. RON LEWIS OF KENTUCKY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I would like talk about the most important reason our constituents send us to Washington—to work to secure our forefathers never shirked from this responsibility and neither should we. Since the Supreme Court’s Hamden decision this year it is critical that this Congress create a legal structure to bring terrorists to justice.

Since September 11, 2001, our country has captured hundreds of members of the al-Qaeda network including masterminds of the 9/11 attacks and others who have made it their mission in life to kill innocent Americans. It is critical that we continue to stay on the offensive in the fight against terror. Our soldiers have pushed this objective forward with the apprehension of these terrorists, who, with the passage of the Military Commissions Act of 2006, will have their day of justice.

This Act ensures that terrorists have basic legal rights, including the right to counsel, the right to obtain evidence and witnesses, and the right to appeal a guilty verdict. Suspected terrorists have the right to be present at all legal proceedings, and no evidence may be presented to the jury unless it is also provided to the accused terrorist. This measure also reinforces international law by adhering to the standards set forth by the United Nations. The United States is in a unique and dangerous position in the international community.

I am glad to cast my vote in support of creating a legal system that will bring to justice those who seek to destroy our way of life. As President Bush said before a joint address before Congress, “whether we bring our enemies to justice, or bring justice to our enemies, justice will be done.”

INTRODUCTION OF THE WITHHOLDING TAX RELIEF ACT OF 2006

HON. WALLY HERGER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, I have long championed tax relief for small businesses because I believe such firms are the lifeblood of our economy. As a small businessman myself, I know how small business owners struggle to remain profitable in a highly competitive and extremely challenging environment. Yet, despite their many efforts into these worthy causes as well as numerous other local volunteer and civic organizations dedicated to emergency services and disaster preparedness, they continue to be the drivers of much of our Nation’s economic and new job growth. It is for this reason that I have strongly supported increases to the current section 179 small business expensing limits, an end to the onerous death tax, and the reduced double taxation of capital gains and dividends. I am concerned, however, that a little known revenue raising provision, passed as part of the tax reconciliation bill in May, will hamper small business’ creative spirit by significantly and adversely changing the way government pays for the goods they use and services they require.

Effective in 2011, section 511 of the Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005 will require federal, state, and local governments to withhold 3 percent from payments for goods and services, excluding payments to non-profits and those made by governments with less than $100 million in annual expenditures. This onerous provision will not take effect for 4 years. But I believe we must begin addressing the impacts it will have on honest taxpayers and our small businesses.

Every day, thousands of businesses and individuals across the country are reimbursed by governments for various reasons. In my Northern California congressional district, governments rely on local and regional businesses all the time to maintain public services—from the electrician who rewires a city council chamber in Redding to the construction company that builds an interchange at a dangerous stretch of highway in Butte County. When the Feather River needs a new setback levee, or an existing levee in the network requires urgent repair to protect the community, the Army Corps of Engineers employs local businesses for construction and materials. Similarly, when an escape route from a fire-prone community requires widening, the government turns to local sources to get the job done. In 2011, however, firms providing these necessary goods and services to governments will see 3 percent of their payments withheld. I am troubled that the withholding provision will effectively force firms to float a new interest-free loan to the federal Treasury if they do business with a local, state or federal government. In addition, unlike other income-based withholding, which is actually based on tax liability, the new government withholding provision is based on payment with no relationship to a company’s taxable income. This means that, while businesses will be deprived of much needed cash flows for day-to-day operations, the 3 percent provision could end up significantly over witholding for tax purposes. The Joint Committee on Taxation (Joint Committee) confirmed this in its description of the provision, stating “sellers of goods and materials are more likely to have overwithholding and, thus, bear more of the burden of a flat rate because of the lower profit margin on such sales relative to sales of services.”

The provision would also disproportionately harm small-and medium-sized businesses that operate on low margins, and contractors that frequently employ subcontractors. It is conceivable that, faced with 3 percent withholding on a revenue source, companies that do business with governments may inflate contract costs to compensate, shift costs to subcontractors, or simply hire fewer employees over the course of the year. Others may resort to increased debt financing to make up for reduced cash flows. In addition, government payments at all levels have expressed concerns over the new administrative burdens that such withholding will require.

Among the reasons for inclusion of this provision was a desire to reduce America’s tax gap, or the difference between the taxes we believe should be collected in a given year, and those that actually are. The Internal Revenue Service currently estimates the net tax gap to be in the area of $290 billion. Whether due to taxpayer error or willful tax avoidance, the tax gap is an area in need of improvement, and can undermine taxpayer confidence in the voluntary nature of our tax system, and encourage continued non-compliance. According to the National Taxpayer Advocate, the “cost” of the tax gap could be equated to a $2,000 annual “surtax” on each taxpayer to subsidize non-compliance. The result is that the tax gap ends up “harming compliant taxpayers because they pay their correct tax liability while others do not.”

Like many, I believe that bridging the tax gap and encouraging tax compliance should remain a top priority of both Congress and the Administration. Where identification of specific non-compliant sectors of the economy has been difficult, the Administration should continue to investigate ways it can use its existing authority to improve the collection and utilization of non-wage taxpayer information for enforcement purposes. In addition, as better information on noncompliance is generated, Congress should actively consider whether additional legislation is needed to crack down on tax cheats.

Prior to implementing a new tax collection regime, such as the 3 percent withholding provision, we should investigate what other methods are at our disposal to deal with the outstanding problems of non-compliance. To this end, I believe that any solution that aims to reduce the tax gap should consider the impacts of new burdens on taxpayers. For this reason, I am pleased to introduce the “Withholding Tax Relief Act of 2006,” a companion to legislation introduced in the Senate, S. 2831, by Senator LARRY CRAIG of Idaho.

While I recognize the underlying problem of tax compliance must be addressed, I believe this problem—as it pertains to businesses and individuals that provide goods and services to governments—can be tackled in a less intrusive manner than withholding, and with positive results. As reported by the Joint Committee, the withholding provision is estimated to increase revenues coming into the Treasury by $6.079 billion in its first year of implementation, and between $215 million and $235 million per year over the next four years. Further, the Joint Committee recognizes that the “significant revenue effect” in the year of implementation “is largely attributable to accelerating tax receipts,” indicating that the additional compliance sought by this provision is really in the ballpark of $235 million. Still, in order to recapture that amount of unpaid taxes, the withholding provision will affect over $6 billion of government payments to honest business and individual taxpayers.

It is probably unrealistic to think that we could ever reduce non-compliance to zero, especially given the enormous complexity of our CUI tent tax code. But apart from fundamental tax reform and simplification, increased compliance should remain an objective. Congress and the Administration should continue to pursue increased compliance alternatives, including the use of the federal government’s already broad authority to levy federal payments, improve coordination and use of taxpayer information, require new information reporting, or increase enforcement. Ultimately, any alternatives that focus on compliance should be balanced against the new burdens such compliance mechanisms would cause. We should avoid placing unnecessary burdens on all honest taxpayers in a particular sector of the economy to force the compliance of the few.

Although I recognize that repeal of the 3 percent withholding provision will leave the actual problem of non-compliance unanswered, I believe withholding is the wrong policy approach to this issue. Repeal, as proposed in the “Withholding Tax Relief Act of 2006,” serves as a reminder of the importance of this issue, and the need to seriously address the impacts this policy will have on businesses in my congressional district and elsewhere in the country. In addition, we must also begin discussion of alternatives to withholding. I intend to continue working with the business community and others in the 110th Congress on ways to reduce any eventual burdens this provision will cause, as well as alternatives to withholding that will reduce taxpayer non-compliance.

PETS EVACUATION AND TRANSPORTATION STANDARDS ACT OF 2006

SPEECH OF
HON. SILVESTRE REYES
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 20, 2006

Mr. REYES. Mr. Speaker, I would like to express my appreciation to Representative T O M L ANTOS for introducing H.R. 3858, the Pets Evacuation and Transportation Standards Act of 2006.

Hurricane Katrina brought to light the difficult circumstances and decisions citizens may face when forced to evacuate their homes. Heartbreaking scenes and stories of evacuees being forced to leave behind their beloved pets were all too common. Thankfully, many evacuees were reunited with their animals after the storm. However, thousands of pets either did not survive or may still be separated from their owners.

H.R. 3858 would ensure that all States and communities include the evacuation of pets and service animals within their emergency and disaster preparedness plans. With pets present in 63 percent of American households, this legislation would provide the needed tools for citizens and communities to better navigate the already stressful experience of evacuation.

I was not present when the House considered H.R. 3858 because I was in Texas to participate in a critically important conference on Latino health issues. However, I would have voted in favor of this legislation. I now look forward to the President signing the bill into law.

RECOGNIZING HONORAIR 2006

HON. CHARLES H. TAYLOR
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the World War II veterans group, “HonorAir” of Western North Carolina, who recently visited Washington, DC. I want to commend the residents of Henderson County, who made this trip possible and showed the rest of the Nation how to honor the heroes of the greatest generation.

The residents of Henderson County, with a population of 98,000, raised more than $100,000 to send 220 World War II veterans on two chartered aircrafts to Washington, DC to see the World War II memorial for the first time.

The World War II Memorial honors the 16 million who served in the Armed Forces of the U.S., the more than 400,000 who died, and all who supported the war effort from home. Symbolic of the defining event of the 20th century, the memorial is a monument to the spirit, sacrifice, and commitment of the American people.

The idea for HonorAir started when Jeff Miller, a resident of Western North Carolina whose father served in the Navy in the Pacific Theater, read an article about a man who flew World War II veterans in a small plane to Washington, DC to see the memorial.

A fundraising campaign began in Western North Carolina on Memorial Day and ran... through July 4, 2006. This effort was lead by Jeff Miller, Frank Schell, David Reeves, David Adams, Senator Tom Apodaca, Mike Murdock, Maryburn Sessions, George Erwin, Meredith Elliott, Maryburn Burns, Kim McKibbin and Sarah Smith. Within 6 months, residents young and old raised over $150,000 for the trip. I would like to commend these individuals for their hard work in making this awe-inspiring idea a reality. Also, I want to commend Mr. Frank Schell and the “guardians,” a group of over 50 volunteers, who flew up from North Carolina to assist with the operation of the event.

From the celebrated departure at the Asheville Regional Airport, to the water-arched greeting at Reagan National Airport, to the wreath ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknowns, the World War II veterans of Henderson County received a day of honor that was long deserved. It is apparent that the people in Henderson County truly love the Nation, and they honor the heroes who have protected it.

Again, it was truly an honor to take part in HonorAir 2006 and I and the rest of the United States Congress hope to see more events like this around the Nation.

CELEBRATING KPMG LLP’S VOLUNTEERISM IN PHILADELPHIA

HON. ROBERT A. BRADY OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the spirit of volunteerism embodied by a company in Philadelphia which celebrates its 100th anniversary in our city, KPMG.

KPMG’s partners and employees serve as officers, directors and volunteers for many of Philadelphia’s philanthropic and charitable organizations. Earlier this year, KPMG sponsored the “City Hall in Bloom” spring planting. As part of the event, more than 200 KPMG volunteers joined students from the Bach-Martin Elementary School in clearing, cleaning and preparing beds for more than 8,500 flowers, plants, and trees in the largest volunteer clean-up ever mounted at City Hall. Other examples of KPMG’s volunteerism are many. Employees helped paint the interior of Bach-Martin school and created a new mural for the entrance. The firm also has assisted the “Help Philadelphia” women’s shelter with a number of events over the years. And last year, KPMG helped welcome refugees from Hurricane Katrina, assisting in their relocation, while this year a group of KPMG professionals traveled to the Gulf region to help rebuild homes with Habitat for Humanity.

In 1906, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. opened its doors on Chestnut Street. Marwick, Mitchell & Co. was then a small accounting firm with less than a handful of partners. In the last 100 years, Philadelphia has added greatly to its history as the birthplace of the American republic to its renown as one of the Nation’s leading ports, centers of commerce, and home to many Fortune 500 companies. Marwick, Mitchell & Co. grew with Philadelphia and is known today as KPMG.

Throughout its history, KPMG has been and is an outstanding citizen of Philadelphia. KPMG is today one of the oldest and largest professional services firms in the city, employing more than 850 professionals headquartered on Market Street and providing a variety of audit, tax and advisory services to the public and private sectors.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to pay tribute to KPMG and its people for 100 years of service to Philadelphia, for its contributions to the growth and health of the city’s commerce, and for its many efforts benefiting our community’s quality of life.

GREAT LAKES FISH AND WILDLIFE RESTORATION ACT OF 2006

SPEECH OF
HON. TED STRICKLAND
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 2006

Mr. STRICKLAND. Madam Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to express my strong support for S. 2430, the Great Lakes Fish and Wildlife Restoration Act of 2006 (GLFWRA), which passed the House yesterday. This important legislation makes available critical federal dollars allowing state and tribal management agencies to take significant strides to address the challenges threatening Great Lakes fish and wildlife resources and habitats. This bipartisan bill passed the Senate by unanimous consent and I am hopeful will be signed by the President soon. I believe the authorization of the GLFWRA will go a long way to help protect the environmental and economic health of one of our nation’s most unique and splendid natural treasures: the Great Lakes.

In both size and ecological diversity, there is no other freshwater system which matches that of the Great Lakes Basin. The Great Lakes are simply magical. They offer outstanding recreational and tourism opportunities. The Great Lakes are a source of drinking water for millions of residents and provide a safe and efficient mode of transportation in the region. Obviously, the Great Lakes also provide habitat for our fisheries and wildlife. Ohioans know what Lake Erie means for the state’s economy. Lake Erie alone produces more fish for human consumption each year than the other four lakes combined. And, Lake Erie supports a $1 billion a year sport-fishing industry and one of the largest freshwater commercial fisheries in the world.

There is no question that restoration and protection of one of our nation’s most unique and precious resources, the Great Lakes, warrants the level of federal commitment reauthorized under S. 2430.

I am pleased that S. 2430 is consistent with the Great Lakes Regional Collaboration’s (GLRC) Strategy to Restore and Protect the Great Lakes. The GLRC is a tremendous effort to coordinate the pathway forward for the restoration, protection, and sustainable use of our Great Lakes. I am pleased that passage of the Great Lakes Fish and Wildlife Restoration Act will advance the GLRC goals which were developed through extensive collaboration of federal, state, tribal, and local partners.

The challenge facing the Great Lakes will not be solved overnight, but the GLRC process has designed a unifying strategy forward, and I strongly support S. 2430 as one part of that strategy to restore and protect our invaluable Great Lakes.

BULGARIAN MIRACLE CONTINUES

HON. JOE WILSON OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, yesterday was a joyous day for the people of Bulgaria. The European Commission recommended Bulgaria be admitted into the European Union in January 2007. In less than 16 years, Bulgaria has successfully transitioned from a Communist totalitarian regime into a free market democracy.

Just 3 years ago, I was honored to be at the White House with former Prime Minister Simeon Saxe-Coburg Gotha as Bulgaria was admitted into NATO. Bulgaria has proven to be a true ally in the Global War on Terrorism, and Bulgarian troops have served bravely in Iraq and Afghanistan. There are currently plans for three U.S. bases to be located within Bulgaria.

Bulgaria has one of the fastest growing European economies, and membership in the EU will accelerate its pace. Economically and militarily, Bulgaria is secure.

Congratulations to President Georgi Parvanov, Prime Minister Sergey Stanishev, Ambassador to Washington Elena Poptodorova, and my longtime friend Ambassador to Athens Stefan Stoyanov.

I am grateful to serve with Congresswoman ELLEN TAUSCHER as Co-Chair of the Bulgarian Caucus, promoting the growing partnership between Bulgaria and America.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will never forget September 11th.

TRIBUTE TO AUTISM SPEAKS

HON. J.D. HAYWORTH OF ARIZONA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, the incidence of autism is rapidly growing. By some estimates, one out of every 166 children born today will be diagnosed with autism. And science has not yet been able to determine a cause or treatment for autism. Efforts to treat children with autism have resulted in children being subject to chelation, hyperbaric chambers, massive allergy therapies, and restrictions in diet, to name a few. So many treatments, yet few have real scientific proof behind them and none has proven effective. With such a great number of children affected by autism, we need to find the cause and also a cure! To assist in these efforts, the people of Arizona are raising awareness through such events as the Lake Pleasant Bar-b-que Cook-off. The people of Lake Pleasant, Arizona will host Autism Speaks, a national organization that raises awareness about autism and is actively searching for the causes of and a cure for autism. Events like these are crucial to raising awareness about the prevalence of autism and lack of information on autism. I applaud organizations like Autism Speaks for raising awareness of autism and the need for more scientifically-based information.
November 6, 2006

THE CHIEF MOSBY IS RETIRING ON OCTOBER 6.

Chief Henery Bonilla of Texas

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. Bonilla. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak about the use of ultrasound imaging by emergency physicians. October 2006 marks the 10-year anniversary of the establishment of the American College of Emergency Physicians, ACEP, Section of Emergency Ultrasound, which actively encourages research and training of emergency physicians in the use of emergency ultrasound. October 15, 2006, celebrates Emergency Ultrasound Day.

Emergency ultrasound, defined as the use of ultrasound imaging at the patient’s bedside, is a critical component of quality emergency medical care. Ultrasound imaging enhances the physician’s ability to evaluate, diagnose, and treat patients in the emergency department. It provides immediate information and can answer specific questions about the patient’s physical condition, such as determining whether a presenting patient has thoracic and abdominal trauma, ectopic pregnancy, pericardial effusion, and many other conditions.

High-quality emergency care is dependent on rapid diagnostic tools, enhanced safety of emergency procedures, and reduced treatment time. Imaging technology has greatly improved the quality of care and made invasive medical procedures safer.

Emergency physicians are trained in the use of imaging equipment during their residency, as well as continuing medical education courses. Hospital privileges further validate this training.

Emergency ultrasound has moved outside the hospital due to its compact nature. In fact, emergency ultrasound technology is helpful on-site during military and disaster medical care. It has served in the care of America’s brave military troops during both the Gulf and Iraq Wars. Also, emergency ultrasound was used to care for patients last year after Hurricane Katrina, and will be helpful in responding to other disasters and mass casualty events.

Mr. Speaker, I congratulate the work of the ACEP Section of Emergency Ultrasound. It has increased awareness of the contribution and value of ultrasound imaging by emergency physicians in the medical care of emergency patients, survivors of disasters, and our military forces serving at home and abroad. Research in this field should continue to be encouraged to allow the adaptation of critical technologies to continually improve the quality of emergency care.

The response that was given

HON. THOMAS BAKER

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. Davis of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Rev. C.T. Baker the Pastor of Holy Corinthian Missionary Baptist Church located in Chicago, Illinois. This Sunday Rev. Baker will celebrate 32 years as Pastor of Holy Corinthian Missionary Baptist Church. Rev. Baker has come a long way from his birth in Lexington, Kentucky. He has served in the ministry now for more than 45 years.

Rev. Baker has served as a beacon of light and a ray of hope throughout Chicago. Rev. Baker is not only a great preacher, but he has also been blessed with a great singing voice. After preaching on Sunday’s he can be found singing God’s praises in Dr. Willie Wilson’s Singsation Choir. The choir is in a different church every Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Baker really epitomizes the scripture found in the sixth Chapter of the Book of Micah. In that chapter the writer asks the question—what does God require of man? The response that was given—God requires that man do justice, love kindness and walk humbly with God. When Hurricane Katrina struck and thousands of people were displaced—it was Rev. Baker who helped lead the effort on behalf of Dr. Willie Wilson and Ministers throughout Chicago to provide relief. Rev. Baker, Dr. Willie Wilson and others personally went to the Gulf Coast and New Orleans—while there they handed out more than $300,000 dollars to people who were displaced by the storm.

Rev. Baker is a compassionate man with a big heart. He received his formal training in the ministry from Moody Bible Institute and The Chicago Baptist Institute. He is a family man, father of his own children and he and his wife Mrs. Diane Baker are parents to many others.

On behalf of the constituents of the Seventh Congressional District I join with those paying tribute to Rev. Baker for his 32 years as Pastor of the Holy Corinthian Missionary Baptist Church.

Ms. Ros-Lehtinen. Mr. Speaker, I would like to recognize Dr. Virgilio I. Beato, a constituent of Congressional district, in Coral Gables, Florida. Dr. Beato was born on December 20, 1916, in Cuba, where he grew up and attended medical school. Dr. Beato graduated as President of his class at the Havana University School of Medicine in 1943. Over the course of a career that has spanned more than six decades in both the United States and Cuba, Dr. Beato has treated thousands of patients and left a tremendously positive impact on countless lives.

Dr. Beato has done more than cure patients; he has also contributed greatly to the medical community with dozens of articles published in both English and Spanish medical journals. He has also shared his wealth of knowledge and tremendous insight with his peers by addressing numerous medical conventions on a wide variety of subjects.

Dr. Beato’s dedication and support extends beyond the medical community and has long been a strong advocate for his community and activist for South Florida. Dr. Beato has also stood firm in the face of brutality and oppression as a staunch and vocal opponent of Fidel Castro and his tyrannical regime in Cuba.

I wish Dr. Beato an early happy 90th birthday and that he has many more happy returns. I would also like to offer many congratulations on his numerous accomplishments throughout his lifetime and his contribution and service to his community. I offer my best wishes to Dr. Beato in all his future endeavors and thank him for over 60 years of service to the medical community.

TRIBUTE TO SIMON GREEN WOODARD OF WASHINGTON, DC

HON. KENDRICK B. MEEK
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, it is with deep sorrow that Mr. Ryan of Ohio and I rise to pay tribute to the late Simon Green Woodard, a dedicated public servant devoted to his family, religion, community, and country. Mr. Woodard is the father of Kimberly Annette Woodard of Washington, DC. We mourn alongside Kimberly in this time of family sorrow.

Simon Green Woodard was born on March 3, 1943, to the late Charles and late Ida Harrington Woodard in Columbia, South Carolina. He was educated in the public schools of Richland County District One in Columbia, and after graduating from Booker T. Washington High School, he served in the United States Navy for 4 years.

Mr. Woodard moved to Washington, DC, in 1963. He received a B.A. in public management from the University of the District of Columbia. He began his 25 years of service in the Federal Government as an entry level contract specialist with the National Aeronautics Space Administration, NASA. Following his time at NASA, Simon worked for the National Science Foundation. At the time he retired from the Federal Government, Simon served as a Procurement Executive at the Corporation for National and Community Service, AmeriCorps. Simon’s “retirement” lasted less than a week and in April 2003 he joined the Washington Convention Center as manager of the Contracts and Procurement Services Department.

Mr. Woodard was a man of faith who dedicated his life to Jehovah’s Witnesses. He attended the Ft. Chaplin Park North Congregation for more than 20 years and for the past 3 years, belonged to the Mt. Pleasant Congregation.

Mr. Woodard was the loyal and loving husband of Iris Woodard. They wed on September 23, 1972. Together they had one daughter, Kimberly Annette Woodard; and two sons, Lamar Simon Woodard of Champaign, Illinois, and Mark Christopher Woodard of Washington, DC.

Mr. Speaker, Mr. Woodard was loved and admired by his family and friends. He will be sorely missed. We offer our sincere condolences to his family and all who were touched by his kindness and service.

THE CAMPUS FIRE SAFETY RIGHT TO KNOW ACT

HON. BILL PASCRELL, JR.
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Speaker, in March 2006 the Campus Fire Safety Right to Know Act passed the House of Representatives as part of the College Access and Opportunity Act of 2006. This landmark legislation called for colleges and universities across the United States to report fire safety information to the U.S. Department of Education so that prospective students and their parents could make informed decisions regarding a fire-safe school based on criteria such as the installation of automatic fire sprinkler systems, automatic fire alarm systems, fire prevention training, and other related factors.

The fact that this legislation passed the House of Representatives was due, in no small part, to the tremendous support provided by leading fire safety organizations. Each of these organizations works tirelessly every day to improve fire safety for our citizens, and their contribution to the passage of this bill was instrumental.

These organizations include: The Center for Campus Fire Safety, the Congressional Fire Services Institute, the International Fire Chiefs Association, the International Code Council, the International Fire Marshals Association, the National Association of State Fire Marshals, the National Electrical Manufacturers Association, the National Fire Protection Association, the National Fire Sprinkler Association, the Society of Fire Protection Engineers, and Underwriters Laboratories.

I want to offer my heartfelt thanks to these associations for their hard work and dedication to the safety of the students of this Nation. They are to be commended for their commitment to the cause of fire safety and for their support in the passage of the Campus Fire Safety Right to Know Act.

I also want to thank my friends on the Education and Workforce Committee who worked to make passage possible. My colleagues Representatives Rob Andrews, Carolyn McCarthy, Joe Wilson, Chairman Buck McKeon, and former Chairman (and current Majority Leader) John Boehner were immensely helpful in passing our amendment in Committee and I am eternally grateful for their support.

Mr. Speaker, I will not stop fighting to enact legislation to ensure a safe school environment for all college and university students. This is the least we can do for the young people of this nation. When we entrust our children to any institution, we expect that they will be in a safe environment. And we have the right to expect that much.

TRIBUTE TO SHOSHANA SHOUBIN CARDIN

HON. BENJAMIN L. CARDIN
OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. CARDIN of Maryland. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay special tribute to Shoshana Shoubin Cardin, a remarkable woman and Baltimorean who will celebrate her 80th birthday on October 10.

Shoshana Cardin is known to many in this chamber, and to many presidents and prime ministers throughout the world. She has been a tireless worker for human rights, women’s rights, education, Jewish spirituality and culture, and the State of Israel.

As Chairwoman of the Maryland Commission for Women, Shoshana worked with Citicorp to help women understand their economic rights and to initiate the first women’s credit “hotline.” She also worked with the Maryland Senate to revise rape legislation, and convened the first state conference on battered women, leading to the opening of the House of Ruth, a safe haven for victims of domestic violence. She promoted volunteerism and helped to form and to chair the Maryland Volunteer Network.

Shoshana was the first woman to become the Chair of the Board of the Associated Jewish Community of Baltimore, the first female President of the Council of Jewish Federations, the first woman Chair of the National Council of Soviet Jewry, NCSJ, the first female Chair of the Council of President of Major American Jewish Organizations, the first female President of the National Center for Learning and Leadership, CLAL, and the first woman to Chair the United Israel Appeal.

Using her position of leadership in the Jewish community, Shoshana brought her courage and wisdom to bear on international issues. As Chair of the NCSJ, she succeeded in convincing Soviet President Gorbachev to denounce anti-Semitism as negative antisocial behavior. She met with Presidents Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, Secretary of State James Baker, Prime Ministers of Israel Shimon Peres, Yitzhak Rabin, Yitzhak Shamir and Ariel Sharon. She served as a Public Member of the U.S. delegation to the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe Conference, as well as an NGO representative in numerous world conferences promoting human rights.

Currently, Shoshana serves as co-founder and chair of the Shoshana S. Cardin School, Baltimore’s first trans-denominational Jewish high school.

I urge my colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives to join me in honoring Shoshana Cardin, a woman who has made a difference as a wife, mother, grandmother, volunteer, professional, activist, philanthropist and humanitarian. I hope you will join me in wishing Shoshana Shoubin Cardin the happiest of birthdays and wishes for many more.

THE GUILT-FREE RECORD OF

GEORGE SOROS

HON. MARK E. SOUDER

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. SOUDER. Mr. Speaker, George Soros is one of the most controversial figures in American politics, and I think it is important for American families to focus on what George Soros has said about his objectives, and where George Soros has spent his money to influence public opinion. Supreme Court Justice Louis D. Brandeis once wrote that “the best disinfectant is sunshine,” and it is in that spirit that I submit “The Guilt-Free Record of George Soros” to be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

THE GUILT-FREE RECORD OF GEORGE SOROS

“I am basically there to—make money. I cannot and do not look at the social consequences of—of what I do.” George Soros, commenting on being blamed for the financial collapse of Malaysia, Indonesia, Japan and Russia. “He can move world financial markets simply by voicing an opinion or destabilize a government through buying and selling stock.” [When he saw cracks in the Asian boom, he began selling the currency in Thailand. Traders in Hong Kong followed suit, triggering a financial crisis that plunged much of Asia into a depression. (“George Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)]

“I don’t feel guilty. Because I’m engaged in an amoral activity which is not meant to have anything to do with guilt.” George Soros, commenting on his actions in the currency markets. (“George Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Soros Convicted of Insider-Trading, Ordered to Pay $2.8 million. “George Soros’s bid to overturn an insider-trading conviction has been rejected by France’s highest appeals court, ending the billionaire financier’s 20-year battle to avoid the fate of his most prominent legal rival, the late Swiss-born seated on the board of the International Monetary Fund, who was convicted of insider-trading in 1998.” (“Mr. Soros.” The Daily Telegraph, December 16, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: Well, of course I consider myself a Christian. Mr. SOROS: (Voiceover) Right. (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: (Voiceover) You’re a Hungarian Jew. (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: Yes. Yes. (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: No. (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: (Voiceover) . . . by—by posing as a Christian. (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: (Voiceover) . . . to be there, because that was just like in markets— if I weren’t there—of course, I wasn’t doing it, but somebody else would . . . be taking it away anyhow . . . whether I was there or not, I was only a spectator, the property was being taken away. So the— I had no role in taking away that property. So I had no sense of guilt.” (“George Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Extended quotation from the 60 Minutes transcript follows: “When the Nazis occupied Budapest in 1944, George Soros’ father was a successful lawyer. He lived on an estate near the Danube and liked to commute to work in a rowboat. But knowing there were problems ahead for the Jews, he decided to split his family. . . . “When the Nazis marched in, he bribed a government official to take 14-year-old George Soros in and swear that he was his Christian godson. But survival carried a heavy price tag. While hundreds of thousands of Hungarian Jews were being shipped off to the death camps, George Soros accompanied his godfather on his appointed rounds, confiscating property from the Jews. (“Vintage footage of Jews walking in line; man dragging little boy in line.”)

KROFT: (Voiceover) These are pictures from 1944 of what happened to George Soros’ friends and neighbors. (“Vintage footage of women and men with bags over their shoulders walking; crowd by a train.”)

KROFT: (Voiceover) You’re a Hungarian Jew . . . (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: (Voiceover) Mm-hmm. (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: (Voiceover) . . . who escaped the Holocaust . . . (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: (Voiceover) . . . by—by posing as a Christian. (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: Not—not at all. Not at all. (“Mr. Soros.” 60 Minutes interview transcript, December 20, 1998)

Mr. SOROS: (Voiceover) . . . to be there, because that was just like in markets— if I weren’t there—of course, I wasn’t doing it, but somebody else would . . . be taking it away anyhow . . . whether I was there or not, I was only a spectator, the property was being taken away. Soros Called the War on Drugs a “Fantasy” and More Harmful Than Drugs Themselves. “Tilting the balance against the drug war, the institute helped Howard Fineman on the activities of George Soros. The billionaire financier, who calls the drug war ‘a fantasy’ and says it does more harm to America than drugs, spent big money pushing his position that we should treat drug abuse as a medical problem, not a criminal one.” (Bill Steigerwald, “Newsweek Wants A Drug Debate,” Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, January 30, 1997)

Soros is Major Financier Behind Drug Legalization Efforts For Marijuana Groups. In 1994, Soros pledged $4 million over five years to the Lindesmith Center, a pro-marijuana legalization think-tank that merged with the Drug Policy Foundation to create the Drug Policy Alliance, which supports legalization of marijuana for “medical” purposes, repealing mandatory minimum sentences for drug offenses, ending imprisonment for drug possession. The Drug Policy Alliance describes itself as "the nation’s leading organization working to end the war on drugs." Along with its major donor George Soros, it helped produce It’s Just A Plant, a pro-marijuana children's book. I will be very interested in learning from the witnesses today what they believe U.S. Government policy towards marijuana should be. With respect to finding heroin distribution, safe-injection facilities, and how-to manuals like H Is For Heroin, public education about drug reduction and harm reduction are also a major concern. "International financier George Soros and two other wealthy donors have contributed a total of $450,000 for a November ballot measure that would alter California’s tough three strikes sentencing law. … The donation marks the third time that the trio has backed criminal justice measures in California. In 1996, the three gave money to pass Proposition 215, which sought to legalize marijuana for medical use. In 2000, they supported the successful Proposition 36, which diverts drug offenders from prison to treatment." Lewis, who gave $300,000 to MPP in 2004, is also a major funder of (in order of decrease), the Los Angeles Times, and the McClatchy Newspapers. INTRODUCTION OF THE ENDANGERED SALMON PREDATION PREVENTION ACT

HON. DOC HASTINGS
WASHINGTON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation that provides an end to the endless conflict between the states of Washington and Oregon and the four Columbia River treaty tribes to manage aggressive California sea lion predation of endangered salmon and steelhead in the Columbia River. This bill is the result of months of collaboration with my colleague from Washington, Mr. Bauman, and I thank him and his staff for their diligent efforts in working with me to develop this legislation.

The Columbia River is the heart of our region, and runs right through my district in Central Washington state. This river is critical for power production, recreation, and fish and wildlife habitat. This river is renowned for its salmon, which are an important part of the regional economy and way of life, and of great cultural significance to the Native American people of the Pacific Northwest. Unfortunately, at this time, we have a number of salmon and steelhead runs that are listed as threatened and endangered under the Endangered Species Act in our region. Many of these are in the Columbia River and its tributaries.

Our region of the Northwest is working diligently to restore healthy salmon runs, and we have made great progress over the last 10 years. We have invested hundreds of millions of dollars each year in direct spending in support of salmon recovery. I have long argued that we must take a balanced approach to salmon recovery that recognizes the many factors that influence their life cycle. This includes the so-called “four Hs”—hydropower, hatcheries, harvest, and habitat—as well as things like ocean conditions and the threats from certain birds and marine mammals. This legislation is about addressing the latter problem.

We have witnessed dramatic increases in the number of California sea lions over the past few decades. In fact, their numbers have grown six-fold to nearly 300,000 coast wide. While these animals have always been present in and around the Columbia River, we have seen them appear in growing numbers in recent years—especially during the peak of the spring salmon run. A few years ago, just a few sea lions were witnessed in the tailrace below Bonneville Dam, where the salmon tend to gather before entering the fish ladders. Now, it is becoming the norm to see nearly 100 of them. Recent estimates by the Army Corps of Engineers project that California sea lions are responsible for eating more than three percent of the run as observed at Bonneville Dam. This does not include the numbers of salmon eaten elsewhere in the lower Columbia River by sea lions.

The efforts by federal, state, and tribal officials to discourage the sea lion predation through aggressive nonlethal hazing, the sea lions appear to be becoming more brazen with each passing year. It is clear that lethal removal of some of the worst actors is necessary to deter this sea lion behavior and to help recoup more of our substantial investment in salmon recovery.

Similar conflicts between protected marine mammals and ESA-listed fish have occurred in the Northwest before. The Marine Mammal Protection Act was amended in 1994 to address the problem of California sea lions eating returning winter steelhead at the Ballard Locks in Seattle. The process established by that amendment allows states to apply to the Commerce Department for legal authority to remove marine mammals under certain conditions. However, in practice, the application process takes 3 to 5 years to come to a conclusion.

The Endangered Salmon Predation Prevention Act, which I am introducing today, would provide expedited authority for states and tribes to manage the sea lion problem while the states concurrently apply for longer-term authority through the established process. There are numerous protections in this proposal to ensure that only a limited number of sea lions are removed. In addition, the permit holders would have to determine that the sea lion in question has preyed upon salmon stocks and has not been responsive to nonlethal hazing methods. I call upon the Commerce Secretary to report to Congress on the need for amendments to the Marine Mammal Protection Act to address conflicts between protected marine mammals and fish species that are listed under the Endangered Species Act.

In addition to Mr. BAIRD, I am pleased to be joined today upon introduction by Mr. WALDEN and Mr. DICKS. This proposal is a measured, common-sense response to the very real problem of increasing California sea lion predation of threatened and endangered salmon, and I hope my colleagues will allow us the opportunity to move this legislation expeditiously before the end of the 109th Congress.
HON. CHARLES W. “CHIP” PICKERING OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. PICKERING. Mr. Speaker, as we near the end of this session of Congress, I see the end of the loyal service of my legislative director and counsel, Mike Hurst. He leaves my office in October to become an Assistant United States Attorney in Mississippi. Today I make these remarks to honor Mike’s service and to recognize the challenges we faced together as he now embarks on this new opportunity.

It was August 2003 when Mike Hurst first joined my team. After graduating from Newton County Academy as the valedictorian in 1993, he attended East Central Community College on a basketball scholarship where he earned an Associates of Arts degree. He was the student body association president and “Mr. ECCC.” He went on to earn a Bachelor of Arts degree in political science at Millsaps College in 1997 where he was recognized for his academic achievements and earned a law degree from George Washington University Law School. Mike has been working in the private sector for a few years at Troutman Sanders, and turned to public service as majority staff counsel for the House Judiciary Committee’s subcommittee on the Constitution.

Mike joined my staff as legislative director and counsel and led my staff and committee work on telecommunications, transportation, and energy issues including the House-passed Communications Opportunity, Promotion, and Enhancement Act of 2006 and Mississippi specific language in the Satellite Home Viewer Extension and Reauthorization Act of 2004. He served as my representative on the conference committee for the Energy Policy Act of 2005 and the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, Efficient Transportation Equity Act: A Legacy for Users. Following Hurricane Katrina, he assisted me in drafting and passing into law—less than a month—the Local Community Recovery Act of 2006. He also played an integral part in drafting the Housing Opportunities and Mitigating Emergencies Act of 2005, which served as the model for Mississippi’s post-Katrina housing initiative implemented through community development block grants.

Mike is a son of Newton County who grew up in what we affectionately call Hurstville, a “suburb” of the town of Hickory, population 512. His father Mike operates Mike Hurst Trucking and his mother Lucy is an assistant district engineer for the Mississippi Department of Transportation. I know they, along with his sister Aimee Hurst Lang, are proud of Mike.

Now Mike, his wife Celeste and their children Anna Reagan, Amelia, Asa with another on the way, have returned home to Mississippi. Our office will miss his experience, knowledge, and skills, but Mississippi and our Nation will continue to benefit from his service as an assistant United States attorney.

Mike Hurst leaves a formative mark on the shape and operation of my office. We will miss his good nature, humor, and dedication to his work. But I thank him for his service to this office and to Mississippi.

HON. JOHN N. HOSTETTLER
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. HOSTETTLER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the Utilities District of Western Indiana Rural Electric Membership Corporation (REMC) for its remarkable safety record, specifically working more than 750,000 hours without a lost-time accident.

Since its incorporation some seventy years ago, UDWI REMC has focused on its core mission of providing reliable and affordable power to its member consumers. The electric cooperative was formed to serve southwestern Indiana residents in 1936 when most of our nation’s rural homes and farms were without the benefits of electric power.

Today, UDWI REMC delivers power, services and energy solutions to nearly 19,000 homes, businesses and farms in Indiana’s Greene, Clay, Daviess, Knox, Lawrence, Martin, Monroe, Owen, Putnam, Sullivan and Vigo counties. Through its efforts, the Bloomfield-based cooperative has improved the quality of life for thousands of Hoosiers.

Ensuring reliable electric distribution is a vital job that requires dedication, skill and safe work practices. Electricity provides light, heat, cooling, and comfort, and power for labor-saving conveniences and electronics along with life-saving benefits. Yet electricity demands proper respect and attention. UDWI REMC’s 49 employees have demonstrated their commitment to safe work practices by compiling an exceptional safety record, working from February 24, 1998 to August 10, 2006 without a lost-time accident.

Mr. Speaker, it is through the efforts and cooperation as demonstrated by UDWI REMC that our country’s rural communities enjoy the benefits of clean, safe electricity. We take great pride in commending UDWI REMC General Manager Roger Davis, the cooperative’s employees, and Board of Directors on a job done well—and doing the past 8 years. Thanks to these men and women, and others like them, the future is bright in southwestern Indiana.

HON. LAMAR S. SMITH
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 25, 2006

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Madam Speaker, I strongly support the Darfur Peace and Accountability Act. This bill demonstrates the strong bipartisan commitment of Congress to address the terrible crisis in Sudan.

Day after day, month after month, we have watched the situation in Darfur deteriorate before our eyes. The genocide occurring there is a clear example and tragic reminder that atrocities still exist in the world. This bill sends a clear message that the United States and the entire global community must do more to intervene in this catastrophe.

It will expand our ability to support peacekeeping operations in the region and will hold accountable those responsible for committing atrocities.

I recognize that this bill alone will not stop the violence in Darfur. However, it is a step, and an important step. I am hopeful that this will signal the beginning of our increased engagement with this issue.

HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. McCollum of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the U.S.-Oman Free Trade Agreement, which perpetuates the flawed CAFTA model by sacrificing worker rights and environmental standards for the sake of greater profits for the elite.

American policies should promote global trade that is both fair and free. Trade agreements that meet this standard improve the quality of life for American families by expanding export markets for our products while also providing economic opportunity, human dignity and political stability for workers around the world.

Unfortunately, the U.S.-Oman Free Trade Agreement is another step towards a lowest-common-denominator global economy where sinking labor and environmental standards undermine American competitiveness and global security. The intellectual property provisions of the agreement will hinder the spread of lower priced generic drugs, which could improve public health and stabilize populations in Oman. The agreement’s only enforceable labor protection is a requirement that Oman enforce its own labor laws, even though the country’s laws fail to comply with basic international labor standards in ten specific areas. Rather than requiring improvements in Oman’s labor law, H.R. 5684, accepts unenforceable promises from Oman’s government. Even then the most basic labor safeguards in this agreement have been crippled: the Bush Administration subverted the will of Congress and stripped out a provision inserted by the Senate Finance Committee stipulating that goods made in Oman with forced labor may not benefit from the trade agreement.

Global trade is the keystone of America’s economic success. Expanding trade promotes economic growth in our country and the quest for higher living standards and opportunity abroad. And, as with foreign policy, America’s trade policy is an expression of our values and a tool to advance our global vision. Unfortunately, this Oman Free Trade Agreement contradicts America’s much-touted commitment to foster global democracy and freedom. If America is to find success in our efforts to spread democracy, serious commitments to the conditions that support democracy: economic stability, environmental sustainability and human dignity. To secure economic prosperity at home and human rights around the world, we in Congress do better than H.R. 5684.

Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. SÁNCHEZ of California. Mr. Speaker, on May 22, 2006 I missed rollcall vote No. 178 on the Pets Evacuation and Transportation Standards Act (H.R. 3858).

I have been present, I would have voted in favor of this legislation that requires local and state authorities to consider the needs of people with pets and service animals in disaster planning. Hurricane Katrina taught our Nation many difficult lessons about preparing for a disaster. We now know that many evacuees, who were fleeing the area, were forced to abandon their animals. This bill works to correct these problems by requiring all federal evacuation plans to protect pets. I know how important a role pets play in the lives of many people, and therefore am proud to be both a co-sponsor and full supporter of this legislation.

Mr. POMBO. Mr. Speaker, I was not able to attend a number of votes that took place September 26, 2006 on the House floor. I take my responsibility to vote very seriously and would like my intentions included in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Had I been present, I would have voted “yea” on rollcall 479, or the Child Custody Protection Act, S. 403; “yea” on rollcall 480, or the Public Expression of Religion Act, H.R. 2679; “yea” on rollcall 481, or the Calling on the President to take immediate steps to help improve the security situation in Darfur, Sudan, with specific emphasis on civilian protection, H. IN TRIBUTE TO THE ELECTRONIC WARFARE CENTER OF EXCELLENCE
HON. ELTON GALLEGGY
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. GALLEGGY of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize and pay tribute to the Electronic Warfare Center of Excellence at the Naval Air Station, Point Mugu, as it celebrates its 55th anniversary.

Electronic Warfare encompasses the science of denying an enemy the ability to locate, monitor, guide, and communicate within its own offensive and defensive operations, while retaining one’s own capabilities. In practical terms, it includes, but is not limited to, the ability of our missiles and aircraft to avoid detection while breaking through the electronic barriers erected by our enemies.

Great Britain’s World War II Prime Minister Winston Churchill dubbed this technology the “Wizard War.” And for much of Point Mugu’s Electronic Warfare Center of Excellence’s existence, its work has been shrouded in secrecy accorded wizardry. Much of its work today, in fact, remains sensitive and classified.

However, what is public knowledge is impressive: maintaining the EA-6B, Airborne Electronic Attack platform, optimizing Jammer techniques, developing Mission Planning systems, conducting post-mission processing, and continually updating the worldwide threat database.

The center has generated millions of lines of software code; provides fleet support 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year. The men and women who staff Point Mugu’s Electronic Warfare Center of Excellence are not only among the most creative, they are also among the most dedicated.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues will join me in paying tribute to Point Mugu’s Electronic Warfare Center of Excellence and the men and women who have worked diligently behind the curtain for 55 years to keep our Nation free.

TRIBUTE TO ST. JOHN’S EPISCOPAL CHURCH
HON. RODNEY P. FRELINGHUYSEN
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN of Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor St. John’s Episcopal Church in the Town of Boonton, Morris County, New Jersey, a vibrant community I am proud to represent! On October 21, 2006, the good citizens of Boonton will celebrate St. John’s Episcopal Church’s 150th Anniversary.

St. John’s Episcopal Church was established in 1856, when the Reverend Charles F. Hoffman began holding services at a building on Main Street in Boonton. The Reverend Francis D. Canfield became Rector later that year and was responsible for leading his congregation to finance and build their own church. The plans were drawn by an architect renowned for the designs of such magnificent structures as Trinity Church, Trinity Chapel and St. Thomas’ in New York City. The cornerstone of St. John’s Church in Boonton was laid on July 8, 1863. The total cost of the building amounted to $3,600. The building was completed in three months and consecrated on October 13, 1863. Two years later the grounds were graded and enclosed in stone. The Reverend Canfield, in addition to his regular responsibilities, was responsible for raising much of the money needed to build the church.

St. John’s is also graced by its E. & G. G. Hook Company Opus 394 pipe organ, which was installed in the north transept in 1893. The organ company was one of the foremost makers of fine pipe organs in the 19th century. The organ has been in continuous service since its installation and is dedicated to Eleonor Bidwell, St. John’s organist-choirmaster for 37 years, through 2001.

St. John’s continues to be a vital part of the greater Boonton area to this day, hosting regular luncheons for the needy and helping to support the local Cedar Street Community Development Corporation, the Boy Scouts, the Seamen’s Church Institute, and the Boonton Food Bank.

Mr. Speaker, I urge you and my colleagues to join me in congratulating St. John’s Episcopal Church of Boonton on the celebration of its 150 years serving Morris County.

H.R. 4893
HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 4893, which represents a significant change in federal policy towards tribal governments and grossly undermines tribal sovereignty.

The U.S. Constitution article 1, section 8 acknowledges Indian Tribes as governments, equal to States and Foreign Nations. In recognition of this constitutionally guaranteed sive, the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, IGRA, directs tribes to negotiate gambling compacts with states and the federal government. H.R. 4893 amends Section 20 of IGRA to restrict off-reservation Indian gambling by forcing tribes to enter into agreements with subdivisions of states for the first time in over 200 years.

H.R. 4893 further undermines tribal sovereignty and Indian Self-Determination with a provision that requires tribes to enter into binding arbitration with counties and parishes. Binding arbitration is an alternative dispute resolution process between two equals, yet the Constitution makes clear that Indian Tribes are equal to Federal and state governments, not their local subdivisions. This legislation creates a precarious precedent that could lead to further erosion of tribal sovereignty.

For these reasons, major tribal organizations vehemently oppose passage of H.R. 4893. The National Indian Business Association, the National Indian Gaming Association and the National Congress of American Indians, which includes 250 tribes throughout the United States, are among the bill’s detractors.

This bill is only the most recent in a long and regrettable series of assaults on the rights of Native Americans. As a proud member of the Native American Caucus and a stalwart defender of tribal sovereignty, I stand opposed to this legislation and in defense of the Constitution. I will continue to work in Congress to ensure that our federal government’s commitment to America’s Native peoples, cultures and languages remains steadfast.

A TRIBUTE TO BISHOP L.N. FORBES

HON. G.K. BUTTERFIELD
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. BUTTERFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a great man, Bishop L.N. Forbes whom I greatly respect for his dedication, commitment and loyalty to serving the Lord and his people. Bishop Forbes was born on October 24, 1936 in Wayne County, North Carolina, the fourth of ten children to the late Will Scott and Sally Melvin Forbes. At an early age, he began practicing actively and later received his biblical and spiritual guidance at the Leventon Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, where he remains a member in good standing.

As the Presiding Bishop of the Original Free Will Baptist Conference, he spearheaded the construction of the L.N. Forbes Tabernacle in Wilson, North Carolina, which was dedicated in 1975. He now serves as the General Bishop of the Original Free Will Baptist Conference of America, the Vice President of the National Convention of Free Will Baptist of USA, President of the East Orange Clergy Movement and Past President of the Hampton University Ministers Conference.

Mr. Speaker, Bishop Forbes is my personal friend and I know so well the difference his Ministry is making in our community. He works tirelessly and often without compensation. My colleagues, I ask that you join with me in honoring this great American, Bishop Lemmie Nathaniel Forbes.

RECOGNIZING VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF NURSING AND GODCHAUX HALL

HON. JIM COOPER
OF TENNESSEE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the many contributions of Vanderbilt University School of Nursing and its historic Godchaux Hall. Some of Nashville’s most talented health care professionals, educators and students will gather today to celebrate a place where tradition meets innovation, the newly renovated Godchaux Hall.

Godchaux Hall was built in 1925 as the dormitory for the 100 students and faculty of the Vanderbilt nursing program. It included class-rooms, laboratory space and a library. Since then, it has undergone several name changes and renovations. But last year, Vanderbilt University School of Nursing was awarded a grant from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) to improve the space for the first time in thirty years.

Today, Godchaux Hall is a truly innovative place where students from all over the world come to earn advanced nursing degrees and learn the skills they need to care for patients as nurses. An advanced 9-bed “Intervention Lab” provides a simulated hospital environment and includes state-of-the-art computer equipment, “Sim Man,” to replicate a human patient. New behavioral labs create space for nursing researchers to work with human subjects outside the laboratory. The increased space also allows Vanderbilt to expand its relationship with community partners like Fisk University to develop nursing programs. Students can earn a Bachelor degree at Vanderbilt’s Godchaux Hall.

The improved learning space at Godchaux Hall will give Vanderbilt the ability to continue its long tradition of excellence in nursing education. I commend Dean Colleen Conway-Welch for her leadership and Vanderbilt University School of Nursing for its achievements in innovation and education. One of the most significant outcomes of today’s ribbon-cutting is that it will allow Nashville to combat the nursing shortage our nation faces and continue to provide the best in health care to patients from across Middle Tennessee.

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, as a Co-Chair of the Croatian Caucus, I am fully convinced that Croatia’s earliest integration into NATO will allow it to be a more valuable ally to the United States. I ask that you and my other distinguished colleagues join me today in recognizing Croatia’s progress and in encouraging the Departments of State and Defense to push for full integration of Croatia into NATO at the earliest opportunity, preferably with an invitation no later than 2008.
I recognize that additional input from outside interested parties will be needed, and look forward to working with other Members, the Justice Department, the Department of Homeland Security, the Treasury Department and other parties on this worthwhile project.

RECOGNIZING THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF THE AMERICAN COUNCIL OF YOUNG POLITICAL LEADERS

HON. BETTY McCOLLUM
OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. McCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, it is with appreciation that I rise today to recognize the accomplishments of the American Council of Young Political Leaders (ACYPL). As a bipartisan, non-profit educational exchange organization, ACYPL serves a critical purpose in helping to ensure strong U.S. public diplomacy around the world. ACYPL programs enhance understanding of political systems, cultures, and people by fostering relations between young political leaders. These international exchanges are an important strategy in a broader effort to ensure our nation’s security and the protection of U.S. interests abroad.

Through these exchanges young political leaders learn from each other and share their experiences. In fact, two of my own staff have participated in ACYPL programs, including a program to Egypt and a program to Tanzania and Uganda. These experiences have provided opportunities for them to share their views on democracy, foreign policy issues, and cultural differences—broadening their world views and building new international relationships.

I am also proud that my Congressional Office has hosted several young political leaders over the years. This September, my office hosted a young political leader from Egypt—Ms. Fatma Zaki-Khalil. Fatma is a staff member with the Badrawi Technical Bureau. Dr. Hossem Badrawi, a former of the People’s Assembly and Chairman of the Education Committee, has also hosted young American political leaders, including a staff member from my office, through ACYPL exchange programs in Egypt.

Thank you ACYPL. I look forward to continued partnerships in working to support cultural and political exchanges.

HON. DENNIS MOORE
OF KANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. MOORE of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, on September 28, 2006, I was unavoidably detained and failed to cast a recorded vote on rollcall vote No. 495. Had I cast my vote, I would have voted “no.”
TRIBUTE TO POINT MUGU, CALIFORNIA
HON. ELTON GALLEGY
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006
Mr. GALLEGY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize and pay tribute to Naval Air Station, Point Mugu, California and its 60 years as a premier Navy missile research, development, test, and evaluation center.

Point Mugu beach is believed to be the site where Juan Cabrillo landed on October 10, 1542. Muwu was the capital village of the Chumash Indians located along the shores of Mugu Lagoon. Most of its early history centers around ranching, farming, and the famous Mugu fish camp.

In 1947, Congress appropriated funds to establish a permanent Navy presence here to develop a site where both missiles and pilotless aircraft could be tested. Since the mid-1940s, Point Mugu has had several Center Names, all with the mission to develop, test, and evaluate missiles and related systems.

Originally, on October 1, 1946, Point Mugu was named the U.S. Naval Air Missile Test Center, followed on August 1, 1949, as the Naval Air Station. On June 16, 1958, it obtained the Pacific Missile Range moniker and on January 7, 1959, it was named the Naval Missile Center. On April 26, 1975, Point Mugu became the Pacific Missile Test Center. On January 21, 1992, it became the Naval Air Warfare Center Weapons Division and Naval Air Weapons Station.

Today it is part of Naval Base Ventura County with the designation Naval Air Station, Point Mugu.

The main base complex at Point Mugu consists of 4,500 acres of support facilities and instrumentation equipment. Point Mugu maintains three runways to support range users and the numerous operational units assigned there.

Additionally, the Sea Range Operational Area comprises a 36,000-square-mile instrumented sea test range that can be expanded to 196,000 square miles. The sea range is supported by a deepwater port located at nearby Port Hueneme, and San Nicolas Island 60 miles off the coast.

Point Mugu is an integral part of the Naval Air Warfare Center Weapons Division, NAWAPNS, the Navy’s full spectrum research, development, test evaluation, and in-service engineering center for weapons systems associated with air warfare.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues will join me in paying tribute to the military and civilian men and women who, over the course of 60 years, have dedicated themselves to the defense of the United States and have substantially contributed to the security of the United States and our allies.

TRIBUTE TO ACCESSIBLE ARTS ON ITS 25TH ANNIVERSARY
HON. DENNIS MOORE
OF KANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006
Mr. MOORE of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I take this opportunity today to pay tribute to Accessible Arts, Inc., of Kansas City, Kansas, during the year in which it celebrates its 25th year of service to children with disabilities.

Accessible Arts values children and the arts; above all, access to the arts for children with disabilities is their core principle. Advocacy, education and collaboration are essential components in accomplishing their objectives. Through the arts, children develop critical thinking skills, take risks in a safe environment and experience successes. The challenge of creating something of value instills hope and self-confidence in children of all ages.

In 1981, Accessible Arts founder and first executive director William Freeman saw the need for an organization to advocate for active participation in the arts for all children, regardless of their ability. The result was the Arts with the Handicapped program of the Kansas State Department of Education, which later became Accessible Arts, Inc.

This unique and innovative program has benefited thousands of children, their teachers and parents. This 25th anniversary of the Accessible Arts program is cause for celebration and appreciation of all who have contributed their time and talents to celebrate its Accessible Arts’ continuing its important work. I join in paying tribute to this unique and valuable program and wish Accessible Arts many more years of successful service to children with disabilities and their families.

TRIBUTE TO NEW VERNON VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT
HON. RODNEY P. FRELINGHUYSEN
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006
Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the New Vernon Volunteer Fire Department, in the Township of Harding, Morris County, New Jersey, a patriotic community that I am proud to represent! On September 30, 2006 the good citizens of Harding Township and the surrounding area will celebrate the New Vernon Fire Department’s 85th anniversary at their 54th annual auction.

New Vernon, in the early 20th century, was a small community within Passaic Township with about 300 scattered homes with no electricity or radio. The Postmaster and keeper of the general store owned a large coach with a long seat on each side, which he used to take groups on picnics and other outings. When someone heard of a fire, he hitched his team to the coach and took the available men to the site of the fire. In the absence of a water supply and pumps, the best they could do was to pass buckets of water from hand to hand. Residents were eager for a fire department.

The New Vernon Volunteer Fire Department was formally incorporated in 1921 with approximately 21 members along with the Ladies Auxiliary of approximately 35 members.

The all volunteer fire department has never received financial support through taxation. A large portion of the financial support in 1924 came from a carnival fundraiser, dinners and square dances; today, and for the past 54 years, an all-day auction, annual steak and lobster dinners, pancake breakfasts and soup contests have successfully raised a majority of the money needed to support the fire department. These events also are known to be opportunities for town residents to get together.

During the first 50 years of the department’s history, the fire department responded to over 1,000 calls. In 1995, along with the First Aid Squad, they responded to more than 400 calls in that year alone.

Today, New Vernon Volunteer Fire Department Chief Ken Noetzi and his 60 volunteer firemen respond within an area that includes over 1,000 homes and a major interstate highway. The number of members has grown from 21 to 60.

Mr. Speaker, I urge you and my colleagues to join me in congratulating the New Vernon Volunteer Fire Department on its 85 years of protecting one of New Jersey’s finest municipalities.

A TRIBUTE TO ROMALLUS O. MURPHY
HON. G.K. BUTTERFIELD
OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006
Mr. BUTTERFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to an outstanding citizen and a person whom I admire greatly, attorney Romallus O. Murphy of Greensboro, North Carolina. The meaningful accomplishments of Romallus Murphy have affected the lives of many people across the State of North Carolina and across this Nation. On October 14, 2006, this great American will be justly honored by the Operation Carolina Statewide. The yearly award of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, NAACP, for his many meaningful years of remarkable service. At the Conference they will also announce a fitting tribute, the establishment of an Annual Continuing Legal Education Program bearing the name of Reverend Talmage A. Watkins. The yearly award will assist lawyers in refining their skills and renewing their dedication to honorable, steadfast service which has been the hallmark of his career.

Mr. Speaker, Romallus Murphy served as Chair of the Legal Redress Committee of the North Carolina Conference of the NAACP since the 1960s. Over the last half-century, he and those he has inspired have given invaluable counsel to clients and young lawyers alike who were and still are engaged in dismantling the legal barriers that have denied people of North Carolina along artificial lines of color and creed.

Romallus Murphy is a native of Houston, Texas. He attended college at Howard University in Washington, DC, and graduated in 1951. He briefly attended the School of Law at Howard University but finished his legal education at the University of North Carolina School of Law in 1956 where he was the only student of color.

Mr. Speaker, Romallus Murphy began his legal career in my home community of Wilson, North Carolina. He was the only African-American attorney in this eastern North Carolina community. As such, he was a role model to countless individuals. I attribute my desire to become a lawyer to the tremendous impression he made upon my young life.

Mr. Speaker, in 1957 the Wilson City Council changed its election procedure to require at-large elections and a provision requiring voters to vote for a full slate. Anything less than a full slate was considered a spoiled ballot. Murphy led the legal team that forced the Wilson City Council to change its election procedure resulting in the Black candidate, Dr. G.K. Butterfield, being defeated.

In 1959, another Black candidate ran for a seat on the City Council but was required to run in the new at-large election system and be subjected to the full slate requirement. The candidate, Reverend Talmae A. Watkins, was soundly defeated and his defeat was directly attributable to the new elections procedure. In response, the community retained Romallus Murphy to bring a voting lawsuit against the City of Wilson. Mr. Murphy argued the case through the state courts and eventually argued the case before the United States Supreme Court. Though unsuccessful, the case was part of the record that convinced the Congress to enact the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

Mr. Speaker, Romallus Murphy served in the United States Air Force and was honorably discharged with the rank of Captain. He was assigned to Shaw Air Force Base, Sumter, South Carolina, Clovis Air Force Base, Clovis, New Mexico, and Japan.

Romallus Murphy served as President of Shaw College in Detroit, Michigan, for several years. He also practiced law in the capital city of Raleigh, North Carolina, with renowned civil rights lawyer, Samuel Mitchell. He currently practices law in Greensboro, North Carolina, where he serves a community that is appreciative of his work.

In 1987, Romallus Murphy was legal counsel to the North Carolina State Attorney Maestro Branches for the NAACP, He was part of the legal team that forced the State of North Carolina to create electoral opportunities for Black lawyers to become Superior Court Judges. His lawsuit was the catalyst that forced the General Assembly to create majority black judicial districts. As a result of this effort, at least eight African-American judges were elected to the Superior Court bench.

Currently, Romallus Murphy is a practicing attorney in Greensboro, North Carolina. He is a member of Genesis Baptist Church. He is married to Gale Bostic Murphy and he has six children: Natalie, Kim, Romallus Jr., Wynette, Verna, and Christian.

Mr. Speaker, placing this tribute into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD is a great personal honor for me. I ask my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to this courageous attorney who has worked to foster and continue our Nation’s founding principle—that all men and women are created equal.

IN RECOGNITION OF NORTHASHVILLE’S SCHERMERHORN SYMPHONY CENTER

HON. JIM COOPER
OF TENNESSEE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Speaker, Nashville has long been known as Music City. It is famous as the home of the Grand Ole Opry, the best place anywhere to hear the stars of country and bluegrass perform. Nashville is also the place to head if you want to kick back at a lively spot like Tootsie’s Orchid Lounge for a night of sad songs and good times.

Now, Nashville has another reason to claim the title of Music City. It is home to a new symphony hall that is being heralded as a world class triumph. According to the Wall Street Journal, “the $123 million, 1,860-seat concert hall is an architectural and acoustic gem and one of the most successful audiotheriums built in a century.”

Nashville’s new Schermerhorn Symphony Center opened September 9th to great reviews from the media and the community. Praised for its elegant neoclassical design and its superb acoustics, the project also won fans because it was on budget and on time. But Nashville is truly proud of our new hall because it recognizes the extraordinary talent and dedication of a gentleman who led the Nashville Symphony for more than 20 years, Maestro Kenneth Schermerhorn. Under his leadership, the Nashville Symphony was transformed from an orchestra that too often struggled for funding and stability into one now recognized as among the best in the nation.

On Saturday, October 7th, the spirit of Maestro Schermerhorn will fill downtown Nashville. On this day, the new symphony hall that bears his name will open its doors to one and all for a free all-day celebration, the Lindquist CNG Music City style. On this day, more than 600 musicians from the region will bring their talents to the stages and courtyards and many performance spaces that are part of the Schermerhorn Symphony Center. The Nashville Symphony will share the spotlight with the twin Jubilee Sings, the Belmont Bluegrass Ensemble, the Gypsy Hombres, Annie Sellick and the Tennessee State University Band, among others. Come early and stay all day. Whatever style of music you prefer, you will find it celebrated here at the Schermerhorn Symphony Center, and that is just the way the Maestro envisioned it.

On Saturday, October 7th will be a special day in Nashville. But in our city, at Schermerhorn Symphony Center, we are proud to say every day is special because every day we celebrate what it means to be Music City.

TRIBUTE TO IVY TECH COMMUNITY COLLEGE NORTHWEST AND SOUTH SHORE CLEAN CITIES, INC.

HON. PETER J. VISCLOSKY
OF INDIANA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. VISCLOSKY. Mr. Speaker, it is with great honor and pleasure that I stand before you to recognize Ivy Tech Community College Northwest and South Shore Clean Cities, Incorporated, as they join the National Alternative Fuels Training Consortium in hosting the 2006 National Alternative Fuel Vehicle (AFV) Day Odyssey. They, along with other community leaders, will come together on Thursday, October 12, 2006, at the Westfield Shoppingtown in Hobart, Indiana to explore alternatives to powering cars and trucks with gasoline and diesel throughout many locations throughout Northwest Indiana.

The National AFV Day Odyssey began in 2002. The mission of the National AFV Day Odyssey, which is vital to the protection of our environment for future generations of our country and the world, is to create awareness of alternative fuel and advanced technology vehicles. The first event reached more than 17,000 people at 51 sites nationwide. In 2004, nearly 25,000 people attended the 54 locations where the Odyssey events were held. Having continually grown in size and interest, this event will once again explore the environmental needs for AFV’s in our country, and local participants will learn of alternative fuel options which protect the future of not only Northwest Indiana, but the rest of the nation as well.

On October 12, 2006, Ivy Tech Community College Northwest and South Shore Clean Cities, Incorporated will be educating participants on how alternative fuels can be part of the solution to America’s environmental and energy needs. The day’s events will include presentations, information, and games, as well as a special appearance by the Lindquist CNGExtensions of Remarks — September 29, 2006
The Sentencing Commission’s report shows that in the last year there has been a six-fold increase in below guideline range sentences for defendants convicted of sexual abuse of a minor, a five-fold increase in below guideline range sentences for defendants convicted of sexual exploitation of a child, a 50 percent increase in below guideline range sentences for defendants convicted of sexual contact of a minor, trafficking in child pornography, and possession of child pornography.

The report also shows an increase in overall departure rates for nearly all Federal offenses across all judicial districts, including drug trafficking offenses, firearms offenses, theft and fraud offenses, and immigration offenses. These four offense types comprise 75 percent of all Federal cases annually. According to current sentencing data, the rate of downward departures has not improved.

Shortly after the release of the Booker report, I expressed my concern for the increase in departures rates, particularly for sexual offenses, and promised a legislative response. The Sentencing Fairness and Equity Restoration Act of 2006, which was enacted as part of the PROTECT Act in 2003.

On March 13, 2006, the U.S. Sentencing Commission issued its report on Booker’s impact on Federal sentencing. The Sentencing Commission’s report shows that unstrained judicial discretion has undermined the very purposes of the Sentencing Reform Act, and jeopardizes the basic precept of our Federal court system that all defendants should be treated equally under the law.

The Federal Sentencing Guidelines are now advisory in all cases, even in those where they can be applied without any judicial fact-finding. Federal judges are now able to impose sentences outside the prescribed ranges, thereby undermining the very purpose of the Sentencing Reform Act to “provide certainty and fairness in meeting the purposes of sentencing, avoiding unwarranted sentencing disparities among defendants with similar records who have been found guilty of similar criminal conduct.”

The PROTECT Act ensured that appropriate sentences would be administered to sex offenders, pedophiles, child pornographers, and those who prey on our children. Thus, I am troubled that the Commission’s Report shows that these fundamental sentencing reforms have been effectively destroyed. The Federal Sentencing Guidelines are now replete with provision excised by the Court with a requirement that the court may impose a sentence above the minimum of the guideline range up to the statutory maximum and may impose a sentence below the minimum of the guideline range and not the statutory maximum.

The Federal Sentencing Guidelines are now advisory in all cases, even in those where they can be applied without any judicial fact-finding. Federal judges are now able to impose sentences outside the prescribed ranges, thereby undermining the very purpose of the Sentencing Reform Act to “provide certainty and fairness in meeting the purposes of sentencing, avoiding unwarranted sentencing disparities among defendants with similar records who have been found guilty of similar criminal conduct.”

Most alarming is the dramatic increase in departure rates for sex offenses including sexual abuse of a minor, sexual exploitation of a minor, and possession or trafficking in child pornography. Downward departures increased for these offenses to levels that had not existed since enactment of the PROTECT Act in 2003.

Section 1. Short Title. This section provides that the Act may be cited as the “Sentencing Fairness and Equity Restoration Act of 2006.”

Section 2. Reaffirmation of Intent of Congress in the Sentencing Reform Act of 1984. Subsection (a) amends section 3553(b)(1) of title 18 to address the Supreme Court’s holding in United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005). The Booker court ruled that the current guidelines are unconstitutional and not conform with judicial fact-finding. Id. at 232. In a separate opinion, the Court excised the provision in section 3553(b) that instructed the court to “impose a sentence of the kind, and within the range” provided by the Guidelines. This subsection amends the first sentence of section 3553(b)(1) to instruct that the sentence is to “impose a sentence below the minimum of the guideline range unless the court finds the existence of a mitigating circumstance that is not adequately addressed by the guidelines.” The amendment also instructs that the court may impose a sentence above the minimum of the guideline range up to the statutory maximum sentence.

Subsection (a) replaces the mandatory provision excised by the Court with a requirement that the court adhere to only the minimum of the guideline range. The amendment provides that the court may impose a sentence below the minimum of the guideline range unless the court finds the existence of a mitigating circumstance that is not adequately addressed by the guidelines.

Section 3. Uniform National Standards for Downward Departures for Substantial Assistance. A significant result of the Booker decision is the spike in downward departures for substantial assistance imposed by the courts in the absence of a government motion. Substantial assistance motions are filed on behalf of defendants, and the government has provided the government with information relating to another investigation or prosecution. In reviewing this increase in sua sponte departures, the committee was concerned that the government’s standards for these motions vary from district to district, creating potential for disparate treatment of similarly situated defendants.

This section, therefore, directs the Attorney General to implement a uniform policy for downward departures for substantial assistance, including the definition of substantial assistance in the investigation, the process for determining whether departure is warranted, and the criteria for determining the extent of departure. The amendment instructs the Attorney General to report the policy to Congress within 180 days of enactment.

Section 4. Assuring Judicial Administrative Responsibilities are Performed by the JUDICIAL BRANCH. This section amends section 994(w) of title 28, which governs the reporting requirements of the federal district courts to the U.S. Sentencing Commission. This amendment simply clarifies that the reporting required by this section is to be completed by the judicial branch and may not be delegated to the executive branch.

MILITARY COMMISSIONS ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. DENNIS MOORE
OF KANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 2006

Mr. MOORE of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to share my views on H.R. 6166, the Military Commissions Act. In the aftermath of the terrorist attacks of September 11, the Bush Administration established new procedures for war crime tribunals for terrorist suspects held at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. The United States Supreme Court ruled 5-3 on June 29, 2006, that President Bush’s military order in the detention and treatment of the Guantanamo Bay detainees exceeded his authority. Though the court did not dispute the President’s authority to hold the prisoner as an “enemy combatant for the duration of hostilities,” it found that military tribunals convened to try detainees did not comply with the Uniform Code of Military Justice of the law of war, as embodied by Common Article 3 of the Geneva Conventions.

Because of the unique nature of the War on Terror, no current system exists for bringing detainees to trial, many of whom are individuals believed to have committed a serious crime and who may be found in their country under the protection of innocent civilians. It is important that the United States establish a judicial process for dealing with illegal enemy combatants and allow for the continued interrogation of detainees while following basic international agreements on humane treatment. H.R. 6166 accomplishes this. This legislation provides a framework through which we can bring enemy combatants to justice through an open military commission system that affords substantial due process. It represents a comprehensive approach to try accused war criminals while recognizing the unique national security situation the United States faces in the War on Terror. The commission system created by H.R. 6166 takes into account the concerns of the Supreme Court, as well as the input of intelligence officers and military lawyers in all branches of the armed services.

Prior to casting my vote for H.R. 6166, I voted for the Motion to Recommit, offered by Representative Ike SKELTON of Missouri, which would provide expedited judicial review of the statute’s constitutionality and require the reauthorization of the legislation in three years. Specifically, the provision would provide for expedited review of a civil action challenging the bill’s legality. A three-judge panel in the D.C. District Court would hear the action and the Supreme Court would review a judgment in that order. Additionally, by requiring a reauthorization in 3 years, we give Congress the ability to carefully review how this statute is working in the real world. Unfortunately, the Skelton Motion to Recommit failed by a vote of 195-228.

While H.R. 6166 is certainly not perfect, it is a step in the right direction. It is essential that our government has the necessary intelligence to prevent future terrorist attacks on our Nation and our allies. As this legislation is implemented, it is important that the Legislative and Judicial branches provide vigorous oversight to ensure that the international laws regarding the treatment of detainees are violated in the name of security.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ of California. Mr. Speaker, on September 7, 2006 I missed rollcall vote No. 431 on the Goodlatte Amendment to the American Horse Slaughter Prevention Act (H.R. 503). I am working closely with other members of the House to encourage the United States to end the horse meat trade, as it is used for human food in many countries around the world. I must apologize for any confusion caused by my absence on the floor of the House.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, CDC, reports that the rate of Spina Bifida in the Hispanic population is almost seven in 10,000 births, nearly 40 percent higher than the non-Hispanic rate. And tragically, Hispanic women continue to have the lowest level of folic acid consumption of any racial or ethnic group. To that end, I am happy to report that Gruma—one of the world’s largest producers of corn flour and tortillas—has begun researching and conducting product testing with a goal of enriching folic acid its corn products sold in the United States. Importantly, no research that showed the incidence of Spina Bifida could be reduced by up to 75% with the addition of folic acid in a woman’s diet, the United States Public Health Service recommended that all women of childbearing age should take 400 micrograms of folic acid daily to prevent having a pregnancy affected by a neural tube defect.

Based on this recommendation, I introduced the Folic Acid Promotion and Birth Defects Prevention Act, which was passed into law as part of the Children’s Health Act of 2000. This Act authorized a program within CDC to provide professional and public education for folic acid awareness.

The good news is that progress has been made in educating women about the importance of consuming folic acid supplements and maintaining diets rich in folic acid. However, the majority of women in this country are still not aware of the benefits of folic acid, and only 40 percent of women ages 18 to 45 take a daily vitamin with the recommended level of folic acid.

The Spina Bifida Association is an organization that advocates for the rights of people with Spina Bifida, a birth defect that affects approximately 70,000 people in the United States each year with a serious neural tube defect, is the leading cause of childhood paralysis. There are approximately 70,000 people in the United States currently living with this permanently disabling birth defect.

Spina Bifida can be accompanied by significant social, emotional and financial burdens. With proper medical and family care, people affected by Spina Bifida can live productive lives with the help of braces and/or a wheelchair. The key to a better life for Americans who live with Spina Bifida is research and improved quality-of-life, and this goal must be a national priority.
organization that has helped those affected by this debilitating disease for over 30 years and is the Nation’s only organization solely dedicated to advocating on behalf of the Spina Bifida community. With almost 57 chapters in more than 125 communities, the SBA brings families together to answer questions, voice concerns, and lend support to one another.

Together the SBA and various local SBA California chapters work tirelessly to help families living with Spina Bifida meet the challenges and enjoy the rewards of raising their children. I thank the local chapters of SBA, especially those in my State of California for all they have done and all that they will continue to do to advance the needs of the Spina Bifida community.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, we have come a long way in the prevention of new incidences of spina bifida, as well as in the treatment and care of those individuals impacted by this serious birth defect. But there is still much to do. During this month of National Spina Bifida Awareness, we must commit ourselves to the goals of increased prevention, expanded health education, more thorough research, and improved quality of life for all those living with Spina Bifida.

HONORING CREATIVE BEGINNINGS

Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to honor Creative Beginnings, a South Florida organization dedicated to assisting women and children transition out of homelessness. Since its inception in 2000, Creative Beginnings has provided case management services on a one-to-one basis to provide homeless women with the support they need to foster growth, discipline, and self-commitment as they break the cycle of homelessness.

Through the tireless dedication of Creative Beginning’s professional and caring staff, numerous homeless women and children have begun the path to happy, meaningful, and productive lifestyles.

My heart goes out to all the employees and volunteers at Creative Beginnings, but I would like to personally congratulate and thank Executive Director Teresita R. Terrón, Secretary Isabel Gonzalez-Jettinghoff, Treasurer Rose Marie Rojas Marty, and Rev. Fr. Jorge Bello for their supra efforts at Creative Beginnings what it is today.

Creative Beginnings provides an integral service to our community, and plays an invaluable role in the lives of all those who have been aided by their efforts.

The hard work and individual attention given to every woman is truly extraordinary and the entire South Florida community is truly grateful for their noble efforts. I congratulate Creative Beginnings for their work, and wish them continued success in helping individuals regain their rightful places in society.

HONORING CLINT BOLTE

HON. BILL SHUSTER
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Clint Bolte of Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, who has been named “2006 Citizen of the Year” by the Borough Council and the Waters Award Committee. This distinguished award is given annually, in memory of the late Donald “Mike” Waters, who most exemplifies the efforts and achievements in community service once performed by Waters throughout his lifetime.

The “Citizen of the Year” award was presented to Clint, a local businessman and principal of C. Clint Bolte and Associates, by Mr. Waters’ widow, Jenny, and son, Don. They remarked that Clint has “carried on Waters’ tradition of community service,” just as Clint and Mr. Waters did while co-chairing a community spring cleanup campaign together some years ago.

While accepting the honor on September 18, 2006, Clint said that the award was “very much a surprise,” and that he was incredibly grateful for the recognition. Clint also remarked that the late “Mike” Waters was “very much an individual of extraordinary faith who loved his family and was passionate about his community.”

Clint Bolte, himself, has contributed endlessly to the betterment of the Chambersburg community, and Franklin County as a whole. Clint has worked through organizations such as the Chambersburg Club, the Rotary Foundation, the United Way, and the YMCA. To cite each individual accomplishment and contribution that Clint has been a part of would be nearly impossible. His involvement in the community over the years has been immeasurable. Jenny Waters may have put it best, speaking about Clint Bolte, saying that he has selflessly dedicated himself to the Chambersburg community “just like ‘Mike’ did.”

RECOGNIZING FRANCES WILLARD ELEMENTARY SCHOOL AND GARFIELD ELEMENTARY SCHOOL IN THE FOURTH DISTRICT

HON. TODD TIAHRT
OF KANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to recognize the excellent efforts and achievement of two schools in the fourth district of Kansas.

Last Friday, I was notified that Frances Willard Elementary School in Ark City and Garfield Elementary School in Augusta have been named 2006 No Child Left Behind—Blue Ribbon Schools. Schools that receive this honor are academically superior or show dramatic gains in student achievement.

The students, teachers, and administrators at Frances Willard and Garfield Elementary Schools are to be commended. Their dedication and hard work is evident and I am proud of their accomplishment. These two schools are excellent examples of how all students can exceed and achieve higher standards.

This is an incredible honor and truly shows the commitment of education in the Augusta and Ark City communities. I would also like to recognize the parents for the support of their children. Parental involvement in a child’s education is crucial to his or her success.

As we begin another school year, I encourage students, teachers, administrators, and parents in Kansas and around the nation to continue their efforts to close the achievement gap so all children can learn and succeed. We, as a nation, have to do more now to prepare these young people for their futures. I am confident that we will continue to see improvements each year and I hope to be honoring more schools next year.

Congratulations to Frances Willard Elementary School in Ark City and to Garfield Elementary School in Augusta for their outstanding achievement in earning the 2006 No Child Left Behind—Blue Ribbon Schools.

HON. JOSEPH R. PITTS
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, I stand up today on behalf of the people of North Korea.

A number of reports have detailed the horrific suffering of the people there—a suffering that makes China looks like paradise. Those held in the prison camps in North Korea endure torture, forced abortions, and brutal deaths.

In early October, the Yoduk story musical will be performed in our area—this musical tells the story of the suffering in a North Korean prison camp, Director Jung, Sung-San is a North Korean defector himself, whose father died in one of the political prison camps.

Interestingly, the South Korean government did not want this musical produced in South Korea, but the director thought it was so important for the world to know the story of North Korea that he put up his own kidney as collateral for a $20,000 loan to ensure the musical was produced.

Mr. Speaker, that a North Korean was willing to put up his own kidney to produce this story speaks to the gravity of the suffering in North Korea. The international community must get its head out of the sand and ACT to stop the terrible suffering of the North Korean people.
CHILD INTERSTATE ABORTION NOTIFICATION ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. TODD TIAHRT
OF KANSAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, September 26, 2006

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the Child Interstate Abortion Notification Act (CIANA). As a co-sponsor of the Child Interstate Abortion Notification Act (CIANA) and having voted for its passage in the House on April 27, 2005, I remain committed to this important piece of legislation and hope to see it passed into law promptly. The Child Interstate Abortion Notification Act prohibits circumventing state parental involvement laws by allowing states to extend their parental involvement laws to include a minor’s parental state to obtain an abortion and places additional responsibilities on the abortionist.

Not surprisingly, parental involvement laws are overwhelmingly supported by a significant majority of the American people. Parents desire to know Parent’s rights and state’s rights are being violated. Children are quietly being transported across state lines without the consent of their parents for abortions. Abortion clinics in states where there is no parental involvement law advertise their services in states which have parental laws in place. “No Parental Consent Required” one advertisement read.

Children should be protected. Transporting a minor across state lines in order to obtain an abortion without parental notification or consent is more than troublesome. Pregnancy isn’t something to be taken lightly and teenagers should not be isolated in their decision making. Instead, their parents should be involved in the decision on whether to have an abortion. My home state of Kansas is one of the 22 states that require parental consent with 2 of those states requiring both parents to consent.

Parental notification laws are critical to protect the life and health of minors. Parents deserve to be involved in their daughter’s decision as they are the ones who would be responsible for paying any medical bills due to complications from an abortion. Parents must give their consent in order for their minor to obtain certain medical procedures including ear piercing and to receive aspirin at school yet they can acquire an abortion—a major medical procedure that could be fatal or result in complications without the consent of a parent? That is a dangerous exception that should be eliminated in all states.

The Child Interstate Abortion Notification Act is good legislation that will protect minors and inform parents. Today I hope to see CIANA pass the House for the second time this Congress and be sent to the Senate without further ado. I ask my colleagues in the Senate to not hold up this bill and to pass the language as it is written.

I will vote in favor of the Child Interstate Abortion Notification Act today and encourage my colleagues in the Senate to join me. I also encourage my colleagues in the Senate to promptly pass this piece of legislation so minors are better protected and parents are informed.

CONGRATULATING DR. JUDEA AND DR. AKBAR AHMED

HON. HOWARD L. BERMAN
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Dr. Judea Pearl and Dr. Akbar Ahmed, co-recipients of the Purpose Prize. Drs. Pearl and Ahmed have been recognized for innovation and success in using their lifetime of experience to make the world a better place.

The Daniel Pearl Foundation, which Dr. Pearl founded following the tragic death of his son, Daniel, at the hands of terrorists in Pakistan, is dedicated to promoting cross-cultural tolerance and understanding through public dialogue and the training and support of journalists. Together with Dr. Ahmed, Pearl created the Daniel Pearl Dialogue for Muslim-Jewish Understanding, which holds dialogues around the world to frankly discuss contentious issues and provide different perspectives on the topics that are causing so much violence today.

The Purpose Prize was created in 2005 by Civic Ventures, a California-based non-profit organization dedicated to generating ideas and inventing programs to help society achieve the greatest return on experience. Over 1,200 adults age 60 and over competed for the five $100,000 cash prizes and the accompanying benefits of publicity and support for their projects. The Purpose Prize aims to stimulate, recognize and support the entrepreneurial efforts of older adults who use their passion, smarts and experience to address serious social challenges. Unlike lifetime achievement awards, it seeks to reward new and creative efforts by older persons from all walks of life. Ultimately, the Purpose Prize will contribute to the transformation of our society’s view of aging and lead to investments in America’s greatest untapped resource: experienced and engaged older adults.

Mr. Speaker, I extend my heartfelt congratulations and appreciation to Drs. Pearl and Ahmed on receiving this prestigious award in its first year and I wish them continued success. I also commend Civic Ventures, The Atlantic Philanthropies, and The John Templeton Foundation, for their vision and generosity in creating this important stimulus for expanding citizen initiative for public good.

CELEBRATING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF HEDY KUGLER’S ARRIVAL IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

HON. BRAD SHRADER
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. SHRADER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a very special occasion in the life of one of my constituents, Jadwiga “Hedy” Kugler. This year, Hedy celebrates her 50th year in the United States of America! And what a wonderful 50 years they have been for her and her family.

Hedy’s life represents the quintessential American dream. At the age of 13, she left the comforts of her family’s Paris apartment and set sail for America on the SS United States with her parents Vincent and Maria Niziuk and her sister Marta. Although the family had very little at the time, they had grand dreams of a better life in America. Her very first glimpse of that dream was the Statue of Liberty, as her ship sailed into New York City on the morning of July 30, 1956.

But her journey did not end there. Shortly after clearing immigration, Hedy and her family boarded a train for the long trip to Los Angeles to meet the family’s sponsor Wanda Wegrocka. Along the way, Hedy saw her first television show, “Queen for a Day,” and had her first sip of Coca-Cola.

The family finally arrived in Los Angeles on August 4, 1956, and settled into a new apartment and new life on Ivar Avenue in the Hollywood Hills. These early years were an exciting time for Hedy, as she explored her new homeland and made lasting friendships that continue to this day. Hedy also took care to make the most of every opportunity that America provided. She graduated high school at Blessed Sacrament, and went on to earn a B.A. in Mathematics from UCLA. She then embarked on a career as a senior instructor for IBM, where she spent 30 years traveling the globe teaching application and systems programming to IBM clients. Now in her retirement, Hedy devotes much of her time to helping others, volunteering at a Kaiser hospital and serving as a Eucharistic minister at her local church.

Hedy has been married for 43 years to the love of her life, Bolek Kugler, and has two adult children, Christine and Andrew. She’s now a proud grandmother too, or Baba as she is known to Ellie and Nate Kugler. I’m also proud to say that Hedy and her husband still live in the same Encino home that they bought nearly 35 years ago. Together, they continue to explore all corners of the world, from Argentina to Vietnam, Sydney to Krakow. Her adventurous spirit, born on the SS United States, continues to thrive and grow.

Fifty years ago, Hedy came to this country with a dream of a better life. She has turned that dream into a successful career, a lasting marriage, a vast circle of friends & family around the country, and a family that loves her dearly. She is truly an inspiration to all those who know her.

I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Hedy on her 50th anniversary in the United States. May your future years in America be as full and prosperous as the last five decades.

IN RECOGNITION OF COOPERATIVES AND NATIONAL CO-OP MONTH

HON. EARL POMEROY OF NORTH DAKOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the tremendous role that our cooperative businesses play in our nation’s economy and in the state of North Dakota. October is National Co-op Month, so it is fitting that we take this opportunity to recognize the value of cooperatives.

Cooperatives are businesses owned and democratically governed by their members—those who buy their products or use their services—rather than by outside investors. This business structure provides valuable benefits to the co-op’s member/owners.

North Dakota alone has over 250 farmer cooperatives and over 300 cooperatives total (including utilities and credit union cooperatives). These cooperatives contribute over $1.6 billion to the state’s economy, and personal income attributed to cooperatives is over 15 percent of North Dakota’s total.

North Dakota’s cooperatives directly employ over 9,000 people full-time and an additional 3,000 people part-time. Add in secondary jobs associated with these cooperative businesses, and over 50,000 jobs in North Dakota result from cooperatives.

The effects of cooperatives are not just felt in North Dakota, of course. Nationwide, cooperatives operating in every state in the nation pump more than $200 billion into the economy and serve an estimated 130 million Americans. These cooperatives operate in virtually every industry, including agriculture, energy, financial services, food retailing and distribution, housing, healthcare, and telecommunications. They range in size from small storefronts to large Fortune 500 companies, employing more than 500,000 Americans with an aggregate payroll in excess of $15 billion.

Cooperatives dedicate substantial resources to serving their communities beyond their core business functions. This includes charitable giving that assists the underserved and community development activities that generate jobs and income.

The theme for Cooperative Month 2006 is “Cooperatives, Owned by Our Members, Committed to Our Communities.” I urge my colleagues to join with cooperatives in their districts next month in celebrating the role of cooperatives in our economy and their value to their communities.

TRIBUTE TO HELEN DEHNKE
HON. RON KIND OF WISCONSIN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, as a member of the House Committee on Education and the Workforce, I am committed to ensuring that all children, regardless of socioeconomic background, receive an education that gives them the skills to achieve. Head Start, as developed in 1965, aims to address the educational, emotional, psychological, health, social, and nutritional needs of preschool-aged children from lower income families. Knowing how critical an early start is, this program is for so many families and their kids in western Wisconsin, I have consistently supported it.

Our local Head Start centers and leaders in western Wisconsin have served these students extremely well. One of the key components of the Head Start program is the quality of teaching it offers to its students. Without these teachers, the program could not succeed. Helen Dehnke of Mondovi, Wisconsin, embodies the devotion of many Head Start teachers. Helen has devoted 36 years of her life to Western Dairyland Head Start children and families.

Helen began her career as a Head Start parent volunteer in 1969 when her twins were in the program. The following year, her hard work earned her the position of teaching assistant in collaboration with Mondovi Day Care, Western Dairyland Head Start, and the Mondovi School District. Understanding how important teacher quality is, Helen participated in professional development sessions and she earned her Child Development Credential in order to serve her students to the best of her abilities.

Helen’s hard work has not gone without recognition. Both her students and their families are extremely grateful for her 36 years of dedication, as am I. As a loving and nurturing teacher, who has learned to know her student’s exact needs. She has dedicated her life to ensure that young children are able to learn in a healthy, supportive environment.

I congratulate Helen on her retirement and thank her for her life’s dedication to Wisconsin children and families. It is because of her work, and the work of her colleagues, that 13,000 Wisconsin preschool-aged children are enrolled in Head Start. As a result, these children will gain an excellent education and acquire the skills necessary to succeed in life. I wish Helen all the luck and well-being in the future, and it is my hope that her work will inspire others to continue to advance teacher qualifications and skills and strengthen the cognitive development and literacy of Head Start students.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize and honor Dr. Herbert H. Richardson for his service to the Texas A&M University System.

Dr. Richardson joined The Texas A&M University System in October 1984 as Vice Chancellor for Engineering in the System, Dean of the College of Engineering and Distinguished Professor of Engineering at Texas A&M University and brought together the University and the System’s three engineering research and service agencies—the Texas Engineering Experiment Station, the Texas Engineering Extension Service and the Texas Transportation Institute—to form an integrated Engineering Program.

During his 22 years with The Texas A&M University System, Dr. Richardson has shown innovative leadership in building strong academic and research programs and in so doing has strengthened the College of Engineering and the Texas Transportation Institute earn and maintain their outstanding national and international reputations for excellence.

FREE TRADE AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE U.S. AND TAIWAN
HON. PETER T. KING OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. KING. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in support of H. Con. Res. 236, a resolution expressing Congressional support for a free trade agreement between the United States and Taiwan. As a cosponsor of this resolution, I join with over 65 of my colleagues in urging the Administration to begin these negotiations.

For more than 50 years, the U.S. and Taiwan have shared a close economic and security relationship resulting in more than 140 bilateral agreements. In 2005, trade between these countries totaled $56.9 billion as Taiwan became the 8th leading trading partner of the U.S. while the U.S. was Taiwan’s 3rd leading trading partner. The Bush Administration has shown its commitment to expanding free trade in the region by signing FTAs with Singapore and launching negotiations with Korea and Malaysia recently. Now it is time to start discussions with Taiwan on a FTA that will further strengthen this relationship.

A 2002 report issued by the U.S. International Trade Commission found various sectors of the U.S. economy would increase significantly if the U.S. entered into a FTA with Taiwan. While both the U.S. and Taiwan would benefit greatly from the elimination of trade and investment barriers, New York State stands to gain as well. Some of the largest U.S. companies whose headquarters are based in New York have invested in Taiwan. And over 300 Taiwanese companies specializing in computers, finance, and jewelry have invested in New York. In 2005 New York State exported over $1 billion worth of products to Taiwan. The reduction of these tariffs will certainly increase exports to Taiwan and create more jobs in New York. Finally, this FTA will allow New York companies to use Taiwan as a gateway for selling their products to China and the entire Asia-Pacific region.

A FTA between the U.S. and Taiwan has already been endorsed by 23 state legislatures. This important agreement will expand and greatly enhance the already close relationship between the U.S. and Taiwan.

Mr. Speaker, given these facts, I believe now is the time to begin negotiations on a free trade agreement between the United States and Taiwan.

TRIBUTE TO STEVE IRWIN
HON. MICHAEL T. McCaul OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. MCCaul of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I would like to submit the following poem for the RECORD.

THOSE AREN’T CROCODILE TEARS
(By Albert Carey Caswell)

Those aren’t Crocodile Tears!

October 6, 2006
Those are real! As it’s for their great fine friend, such heartache they now feel!
As the Crocodiles all in prayer, throughout the world so prepare . . . for their hero to so kneel!
As this day our Hearts Lie Down Under,
As The World and her Animal Kingdom have lost their great thunder, their fine son of heart to be so seen!
As The Lions they too so mourn, for this man of love so warm, their Savior . . . as they stop to ponder. All the Animals are crying, as upon them they open tears now lay lying
All because this their fine Hero, their True Champion . . . their True Friend lays dying
All of those sad elephant’s ears are drooping, in the oceans . . . the whales, sad songs are crying!
But, Steve you will never be extinct.
Forever in our hearts, in our souls, in our minds, in our memories, you’ll live on as of you we so think!
With you, life was all it’s crooked up to be . . . with your heart of happiness ever to us such joy did bring.
FULL OUT, from life you never sipped, but drank . . . as how a life should be lived . . . with no doubt!
With the heart of a child, as you lived To So Save The Wild . . . showing us all what living is all about!
Because you loved and so cared, as with the World your Viking heart of a lion so shared throughout.
You thought you were just a bloke, I think not!! . . . God, put you on this earth to bring your light!
To Teach Us!
To So Deep Inside, In All Of Our Hearts To So Reach Us!
To show us all the true meaning of love and life, husband & wife, child or crocodile, you beseeched Us!
Oh Crockeee, Oh Crocodile Tears in Heaven, you showed us how life should be lived,
As to this our world, and her entire animal kingdom . . . Oh Crockeee, the gifts you beseeched Us!
You are gone, but not forgotten . . . as forever and a day upon this earth in our hearts you shall live!
For once, you were The King of The Jungle
But, more so . . . A Prince of Love and Peace . . . of kindness, of what it is in our world she so surely needs.
For on this day, with your loss in so many ways, all God’s Children and his Animals now for you so bled.
Because, to our world you never took . . .
You Saved!
In your life, and most magnificent family . . . the meaning of love . . . you so portrayed!
As The World & her most beloved Animals you fought for to save, as was your fine life’s crusade.
Steve, today . . . you’re reached the Top!
As an Angel in The Army of our Lord, fighting for the destruction of the Animal Kingdom to so stop!
The first thing you will do, is return to earth to that stingray who killed you . . . and his brother!
But, the hardest pain of all . . . Is what all of us so saw, how much you loved your family and they so too you!
Knowing, that little girl and boy, and fine wife and loved ones, will together miss such splendid joy . . . You!
But, really you’re not gone!
As they will carry you in their hearts from dusk to dawn!
Until, the years pass by . . . and together with tears in eyes . . . in Heaven you’ll rejoin and will live on!
Those aren’t your tears anymore.
Dedicated To A Most Magnificent Man . . . who taught all of The World’s Animal Kingdom
A Messenger to all of us from Our Lord, about Love, Life and Living! Crockeee . . . God Bless You Steve, May your Family find peace!

In Celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month Recognizing Paquito D’Rivera For His Contributions To American Jazz And the Second Annual Duke Ellington Jazz Festival

Hon. Xavier Becerra
Of California
In the House of Representatives
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. BECERRA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Paquito D’Rivera who has been selected as Artistic Director for this year’s Duke Ellington Jazz Festival. In celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month, we salute the festivities’ acknowledgment of the contributions made by Latino artists. Paquito D’Rivera is a world-renowned jazz instrumentalist who embodies the diverse soul of today’s modern musician. His ability to fuse South American and Caribbean sounds with that of American jazz is creative, unique and inspirational to all of us.

Mr. D’Rivera’s proclivity toward music was apparent at a young age. Raised in Cuba, his father was his music instructor. By the age of 10, he was performing with the National Theater Orchestra of Havana. He continued making his mark in Cuba, playing both the clarinet and saxophone with the Cuban National Symphony Orchestra and co-founding the Orchestra Cubana de Musica Moderna and the group Irakere, a Cuban jazz band known for its mixture of Latin sounds and musical improvisation. Irakere impressed jazz enthusiasts across the world with its ground-breaking style, going on to win a Grammy in 1979 for Best Latin Recording.

So that he could fully express his musical talent, Mr. D’Rivera defected to the United States in 1981. With the assistance of fellow jazz musicians such as Dizzy Gillespie, he began performing in New York City and released his first album Paquito Blowin in 1981 and Mariel in 1982. The success of these two albums launched him into the national spotlight. His contribution continued in 1988, Mr. D’Rivera was invited to join the United Nations Orchestra to perform jazz fused with Latin rhythms and sounds.

Paquito D’Rivera is truly a diverse musician. With commissions as a classical composer, he continues to be involved in a wide range of projects and categories. In 1985, he composed “New York Suite” for the Gerald Danovich Saxophone Quartet and “Aires Tropicales” for the Aspen Wind Quintet. In 1999, D’Rivera participated in a series of programs in collaboration with Germany’s Chamber Orchestra Wernem entitled “D’Rivera Meets Mozart”. He continues to play with Paquito D’Rivera Big Band and is an Artist in Residence at the New Jersey Performing Arts Center. For over a decade, Mr. D’Rivera has been the Artistic Director of the Festival International de Jazz en el Tambo in Uruguay. In 2003, Mr. D’Rivera received a Doctorate Honors Causa in Music from the Berklee College of Music and made history when he became the first artist to win a Latin Grammy in both Classical and Latin Jazz categories. He has amassed seven Grammy awards to date and has over 30 solo albums. Additionally, his many solo performances include performances with the National Symphony Orchestra, the Brooklyn Philharmonic, and the St. Luke’s Chamber Orchestra. Internationally, he has performed with the London Royal Symphony, the Costa Rican National Symphony, and the Simon Bolivar Symphony Orchestra, among others.

Paquito D’Rivera is a gifted writer and the author of his autobiography, “My Sax Life, a Memoir.” In his autobiography, he gives us a glimpse of the world through the eyes of a gifted jazz artist. Introduced to literature by his father, he also penned the novel “Oh, La Habana.” In 2005 he was awarded the National Medal of Arts, the nation’s highest honor for artistic excellence.

In January of 2005, Mr. D’Rivera celebrated 50 years in the music industry and 24 years in the United States. He continues to inspire jazz musicians in the U.S. and throughout the world. Mr. Speaker, during this Hispanic Heritage month, as we celebrate the valuable contribution Latinos make to this nation, we thank Mr. D’Rivera today for his brilliant work and tireless efforts to ensure that the Second Annual Duke Ellington Jazz Festival continues to successfully bring jazz to the Nation’s Capitol.

Tribute To U.S. Military Service Men And Women Around The World

Hon. Lynn A. Westmoreland
Of Georgia
In the House of Representatives
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. WESTMORELAND. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the sacrifices of our young men and women who are serving in the U.S. military around the world. A dear lady from my district, Mrs. Linda Smith, has two sons serving in the U.S. Marine Corps in Iraq. During Sunday school at Vineville Baptist Church a few weeks ago, she made a presentation to the class that I think summarizes the courage and bravery of our soldiers around the world.

I wish to insert her comments into the Record, so that people across the country can be aware of their great efforts, not only of our men and women, but also of their families back home.

When Mrs. Ann asked me to speak to the class today, I told her that I may cry. I hope I don’t, but if I do, I hope you will understand.

I want people to understand why our country is at war and why not only my sons, but others are willing to go.

When people hear that I have two Marine sons being deployed to the same place in Iraq, they often comment that they didn’t think the government could do that. I tell them that my oldest son was a drill instructor at Parris Island. When his term was up, he re-enlisted for a second time and asked to be in the same unit with his little brother. I am not the only Marine mom who has more than one son going to war. There are many of us.

Another comment that I often hear is that people don’t think the government should deploy servicemen more than once. I say to them, “This is their job.” That is like saying to a fireman you have already put out one fire, . . . therefore you shouldn’t have to go to another fire and put yourself in danger.

My son and all the other service men and women who want America to stand behind them in this war. None of them enjoy leaving their wives and children, their moms and dads, or friends. Believe me, it is very hard. But they know that they must go. Islamic extremists are dangerous, and they must be dealt with now. Militant Islam is just as much of a danger to our country and the world as other radical fascist governments in the past have been . . . such as Hitler’s Germany or Lenin’s or Karl Marx. Militant Islam no more cares about their religion but only wants total control. Traditional Islam seeks to teach people to live as Allah will. Militant Islam aspires to create a new order, even if it means rewriting Islamic law to fit their desires. They have tortured and killed many of their own people in an attempt to gain control. This evil and evil can only be dealt with by force.

So where does this leave us as Christians? I have thought a lot about that as I pray for my sons. I pray for their protection, for their safety, for their success, for their prayers, for what he needs, not murmuring against him.

So if you ask me how you can help or support our troops, I would say first, to give thanks. Thank him for what you have. Thank him for the sweet young men and women he has called to defend our nation and fight for what is right. Ask God to reveal himself to our troops . . . that his glory would shine. That many would see his glory, . . . our enemies as well as our troops. That they would worship him. It is then that we will have peace and our boys can come home.

Mr. Speaker, there is nothing I can add. May God bless the brave men and women fighting around the world for our freedom, and their families at home. And may God continue to bless America.

HONORING ANDREA PICKENS OF CEDAR CREEK LAKE

HON. JEB HENSARLING

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. HENSARLING. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to recognize the outstanding contributions of Andrea Pickens, a model citizen of Cedar Creek Lake, Texas. Andrea has long dedicated herself to her community, supporting organizations including Mabank ISD, Trinity Valley Community College and the Youth Ranch. Andrea has given her time and effort to her fellow citizens, particularly helping those most in need through civic work with the American Heart Association, the Council of the Blind, and one very dear to me, the American Cancer Society in Henderson County. Andrea also serves on the Board of Directors for the Kaufman Hospital District.

In addition to her dedicated hours of community service, Andrea also contributes immensely to improving the commerce and local economy of her community. She serves on the Board of Directors of the Mabank Chamber of Commerce and the 1st State Bank of Athens while still finding the time to own and operate the new Tri-County Ford Dealership in Mabank with her husband Joe. Andrea’s work at Cedar Creek Lake community has earned her a well deserved “Citizen of the Year” Award as well as a “Lifetime Service” Award. She has been an invaluable leader to the district, and through both word and example she has encouraged and fostered a communal mentality of public service and involvement.

Andrea Pickens has offered so much of her time and financial support to the causes that help to better our community. Her generosity and example is well known, and I thank her for being a blessing to the community.

On behalf of the citizens of Cedar Creek Lake and the Fifth District of Texas, I am honored to be able to recognize Andrea Pickens in the United States House of Representatives.

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, yesterday, September 28, 2006, I couldn’t be present for votes because I was in Michigan to attend the memorial service of the spouse of one of my longtime staffers.

House rollcall vote No. 495—I would have voted “no” on the motion to order the previous question on H. Res. 1046. Voting “no” would have allowed the House to take up the following 5 bills: A bill to implement the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission; a bill to increase the minimum wage to 7.25 per hour; a bill to provide authority to the Secretary of Health and Human Services to negotiate for lower prescription drug prices for senior citizens and people with disabilities; a bill to repeal the massive cuts in college tuition assistance imposed by the Congress and to expand the size and availability of Pell Grants; a bill to roll back tax breaks for large petroleum companies and invest those savings in alternative fuels to achieve energy independence.

House rollcall vote No. 496—I would have voted “no” on the motion to order the previous question on H. Res. 1046. Voting “no” would have allowed the House to take up the following 5 bills: A bill to implement the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission; a bill to increase the minimum wage to 7.25 per hour; a bill to provide authority to the Secretary of Health and Human Services to negotiate for lower prescription drug prices for senior citizens and people with disabilities; a bill to repeal the massive cuts in college tuition assistance imposed by the Congress and to expand the size and availability of Pell Grants; a bill to roll back tax breaks for large petroleum companies and to invest those savings in alternative fuels to achieve energy independence.

House rollcall vote No. 497—I would have voted “no” on the passage of the Martial Law Rule, H. Res. 1046, bypassing House rules to extend the size and availability of Pell Grants; a bill to roll back tax breaks for large petroleum companies and to invest those savings in alternative fuels to achieve energy independence.
Res. 1052, the rule providing for consideration of H.R. 5825, the Electronic Surveillance Act. Defeating the previous question would have allowed the House, immediately after the rule is adopted, to take up a bill to implement the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission.

House rollcall vote No. 499—I would have voted “no” on H. Res. 1052, the rule providing for consideration of H.R. 5825, Electronic Surveillance Act. This Rules Committee reported out a closed rule, which allowed for no amendments and limited debate on a bill that has strong, bipartisan opposition.

House rollcall vote No. 500—I would have voted “yes” on Representative Thompson’s Motion to Instruct Conference on H.R. 4954—SAFE Port Act. Mr. Thompson’s motion instructs conference to agree to the Senate provisions to improve security for America’s rail, subway, buses and trucking systems; and to the Senate provisions to strengthen aviation security, secure the border, create a National Warning and Alert System, and provide first responders with post-disaster health monitoring. I was pleased this measure passed by a vote of 281–149, with all Democrats voting yes.

House rollcall vote No. 501—I would have voted “yes” on the Schiff/Flake/Harman/Inglis Motion to Recommit. The bipartisan substitute would update provisions of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act, FISA, to provide intelligence agencies more flexibility in emergency situations and less bureaucratic red tape when applying for warrants, while still requiring court orders for domestic surveillance of Americans. The motion to recommit failed by a vote of 202–221.

House rollcall vote No. 502—I would have voted “no” on final passage of H.R. 5825, the Electronic Surveillance Act. I strongly support giving our law enforcement and intelligence agencies the tools they need to fight terror. However, H.R. 5825 gives the President unnecessary broad powers to eavesdrop on innocent Americans. The FISA court system has worked well for nearly 30 years—we should be expanding and reforming the existing system, instead of reducing judicial oversight and undermining our system of checks and balances.

House rollcall vote No. 503—I would have voted “yes” on H.R. 6143, the Ryan White HIV/AIDS Treatment Modernization Act. While I understand that some States may lose funding under the new formula, I believe that as the bill moves to the Senate, we can increase the overall funding level for the program so that Congress does not have to pick winners and losers in combating this terrible disease.

ANN RICHARDS’ PASSING

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. DeLAURO. Mr. Speaker, earlier this month, our country lost one of its most vibrant women of remarkable intellect, principle and—to be sure—wit. Regardless of who you were or whether you agreed with her politics, you could not help but admire and respect Ann Richards for who she was and what she accomplished. She was one of a kind—and she was my friend.

The twelfth woman ever elected Governor in the United States and the first elected in Texas in her own right, Ann Richards was a trailblazer—a pioneer—a woman who never wasted a minute of her 73 years. Like few others, she was a force of nature—always pushing forward.

And whether she was raising her four children, teaching high school and college, working to elect women to the Texas Legislature when there were hardly any, or training women candidates and campaign managers, Ann Richards made opportunity real for women—something I learned for myself, when she came to Connecticut to help me highlight the issues important to the women in my community. There I saw firsthand how she understood that the political process was a powerful force for change.

But you did not have to be a woman or a student to admire and learn from Ann Richards. The secret to her success as simple as it was elemental. Indeed, as much as Ann Richards’s wit made people laugh, more importantly, she made people think. She challenged our society and believed we could always make it better, fairer, more just.

And Mr. Speaker, none so relentlessly quotable, no one will ever say that Ann Richards could not also walk the walk. During her campaign for Governor, Ann said she would be the face of “New Texas” and believed that government ought to reflect the diversity of its citizens. When she left office 4 years later, 46 percent of her appointees had been women, 15 percent were African-American, and one-fifth were Hispanic. And most importantly, her successors have since followed her example. “New Texas” is now the standard.

Ann Richards blazed a path taken now by women in all corners of society—in the well of the United States Congress and in Governor’s mansions in States like Delaware and Michigan. In corporate boardrooms and in homes across the land. She was an elder of First Christian Church and president of the Denison Downtown Association, president of the Denison Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the board of the Texoma Medical Center, just to name a few of her civic affiliations. David also was involved with religious and charitable organizations as an elder of First Christian Church and president of United Way.

David also dedicated tremendous time and expertise to his alma mater. The University of North Texas benefited from his membership in the President’s Council, as well as his time spent as regent from 1991 to 1997, director of the UNT Foundation Board, and first president of his local Alumni Chapter, the Texas Eagles, which he founded.

His years of work and service brought him many honors, including the “Outstanding Citizen” award in 1978 and induction into the Grayson County “Business Hall of Fame” in 1998. In 1991, the University of North Texas honored David as its Outstanding Alumnus, and in 1999 UNT again honored him as a Distinguished Alumnus. David and his wife, Patsy, were honored with a bronze plaque on the “Wall of Honor” in the UNT Alumni Center, and Chestnut Hall, the new student health center at UNT, will name the rotunda in his honor.

David will be missed by family, friends, and all those in Denison and at UNT whose interests he championed through a lifetime of service. He is survived by his wife Patsy and two children, David, Jr., and wife Sharon of Potsboro, Brandy Hewitt and husband Stephen of McKinney, four grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, David Bayless, Sr., was a great American and an outstanding civic leader whose legacy of service will be long remembered.

INTRODUCTION OF THE INTERNATIONAL TAX SIMPLIFICATION ACT

HON. SAM JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the International Tax Simplification Act of 2006. This bill is aimed at streamlining tax rules so that American companies doing business all over the world can be more competitive. In the last few years we have taken a number of important steps toward this goal and the bill I am introducing would continue this effort.

In the past one of our former colleagues, Amo Houghton of New York, introduced similar bills. Some of the provisions of this bill echo his legislation and build off of his efforts. Many of the concepts related to the taxation of international business operations were written forty years ago and have remained frozen in time. The global business environment has changed dramatically since the early 1960s when American companies were the major... player in global business transactions. In the early 1960s, Western Europe was still recovering from the scars of World War II and the Asian business environment was just developing. Today, our European and Asian competitors produce products and services of world-class standards and have consumers that demand the same. American companies must compete in these markets but are sometimes still bound by a tax code that presumes they are the only player in the field.

The American system of taxation—based on a "worldwide income" model—basically taxes all income earned by American companies both in the United States and abroad and then gives credits for taxes paid in other countries. Many of our competitors look only at income earned within its borders—based on a "territorial" model—but make certain exceptions for income earned abroad.

The tax departments of American companies are dwarfed in the size of tax departments of their foreign competitors. I believe there are more productive uses of corporate assets than complying with the arcane rules that make up our tax system.

At the House Ways and Means Committee, we’ve been trying to modernize the tax rules for American businesses working in the global business environment. We were also forced to change our tax code because of rulings by the World Trade Organization. Yet there remain dozens of places in the tax code that need work. The bill I am introducing is a first draft at this work. I am introducing it as the 109th Congress comes to a close and I invite those who are interested in these issues to work with me to either fine tune these provisions or find broader strokes to envelop wider solutions to introduce similar legislation early in the 110th Congress.

The bill I am introducing would get rid of some of the rules regarding the worldwide grab for revenue. The part of the tax code known as Subpart F—tax on some earnings of American companies abroad that are not included in the income of the United States—would be eliminated. The bill would also make the tax rate on ordinary income earned by American companies abroad the same as the rate in the United States. American subsidiaries should be able to pay their salaries, taxes, and profits based on GAAP rather than the American tax accounting rules of uniform capitalization.

The bill would accelerate the effective date of a provision of this bill generally focus on American corporations that have subsidiaries abroad. However, there are two other areas on which I invite comment for the next version of this bill. The first concerns American economic expansion. The other area on which I invite comment is individual taxpayer concerns regarding international taxation.

I want to thank several professional tax staffs who have helped to comb through many proposals and provided invaluable advice to me in drafting this legislation. They are: Marc Gerson from the Ways and Means Committee, Tom Barthold, Patrick Driessen, Tara Fisher, Chris Gerke, David Lenter, and Allen Littman from the Joint Committee on Taxation.

SEPTEMBER AS CAMPUS FIRE SAFETY MONTH

HON. CURT WELDON
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, recognizing the organizations that have worked to promote fire safety and save young lives.

Mr. Speaker, H. Res. 295, which establishes September as Campus Fire Safety Month, is a vital part of our efforts to raise awareness about the importance of fire safety across the Nation. Along with the U.S. House of Representatives, 31 states, representing 61 percent of the population, have introduced proclamations and, as a result, many colleges and universities are holding campus fire safety training events during September.

There are several key organizations that are working tirelessly to promote the cause of fire safety and were instrumental in the introduction and passage of H. Res. 295. These include: The Center for Campus Fire Safety, Congressional Fire Services Institute, International Association of Fire Fighters, International Fire Chiefs Association, International Fire Marshals Association, National Association of State Fire Marshals, National Electrical Manufacturers Association, National Fire Protection Association, National Fire Sprinkler Association, Society of Fire Protection Engineers, and Underwriters Laboratories.

The Center for Campus Fire Safety is a central focal point for campus fire safety and is led by a staff and Board of Directors of dedicated individuals: Edward Comeau, Michael Halligan, Shawn Kaufman, Timothy Kniely, Paul Martin, and Michael Swain.

The aforementioned individuals are to be commended for their commitment to protecting students and improving fire safety on our campuses. Teaching our youth the importance of fire safety during their college years will help to protect them not only while they are in school, but for the rest of their lives. The fire safety lessons and skills they learn will be vital in helping to reduce the horrific death toll from fire which claims the life of almost 4,000 people every year in all occupancies across the Nation.

HONORING WENDY KOPP, PRESIDENT AND FOUNDER OF TEACH FOR AMERICA

HON. CHARLES B. RANGEL
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. RANGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor one of my constituents, Wendy Kopp, President and Founder of Teach for America, who was recently awarded the prestigious 2006 Harold W. McGraw, Jr. Prize in Education.

Ms. Kopp’s steadfast commitment to education is evident in her deeds and actions for she truly embodies the ideal that a decent education is the key, not only to the acquisition of knowledge and skills, but also to building self-esteem. In short, education is the receptacle of hope and the door to the American dream.

Kopp’s pursuit of educational excellence and equity led her in 1989 to propose the creation of Teach for America. She did this as her undergraduate senior thesis, and has spent the last 15 years working to sustain and further develop the organization. Teach for America is comprised of a national corps of recent college graduates who commit 2 years to teach in urban and rural public schools. Its mission is to help to eliminate educational inequity by enlisting our country’s most promising future leaders in this effort.

Today, more than 3,500 corps members are teaching in our country’s neediest communities, reaching approximately 300,000 students. They join more than 10,000 Teach for America alumni who are already assuming significant leadership roles in education and social reform even though they are in their 20s and 30s.

Kopp serves on the board of directors of The New Teacher Project, and the advisory boards of the Center for Public Leadership at Harvard University’s Kennedy School of Government and the National Council on Teacher Quality.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to recognize Wendy Kopp for her devotion and hard work in the field of education, and wish to extend my congratulations and best wishes to her for much continued success.

CHICAGO: WORKING TO CREATE A 21ST CENTURY ENERGY POLICY

HON. JANICE D. SCHAKOWSKY

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, as the summer vacation season comes to a close and the winter heating season begins, I urge my colleagues to take a moment to consider the need for a serious investment in alternative energy policies. With global warming, unrest in the Middle East and stagnating wages that are stretched thin by high fuel bills, both the environment and our country stand to gain from increased and aggressive promotion of renewables and energy efficiency.

Important steps have already been taken by state and city governments to support the use of renewable energy sources. The Apollo Alliance, an organization that promotes policies which meet the concerns of green environmentalists and blue-collar workers alike, has cited Chicago, Illinois, as being one of several forward-thinking cities that has already acted to put numerous energy-efficient policies in place. Noted by the Alliance were Chicago’s comprehensive solar power, environmentally-friendly public transportation, location efficient mortgages, and green roofs initiatives.

As what the Alliance calls a “model” solar-powered community, Chicago is working to promote photovoltaic cells and has attracted the solar manufacturer Solargenix to the city; a facility that employs 15 people full-time and manufactures 30–40 solar collectors a day. Solar factories such as Solargenix’s and a recently-built photovoltaic field which will be used to help generate electricity (“Solar Panels Could Power Backup Plant,” Chicago Tribune, September 21, 2006) contribute to the city’s already-installed 2 MW of solar power.

Illinois is one of the country’s top five ethanol-producing states, and it is no surprise that Chicago has environmentally-friendly transportation policies as well. In addition to ethanol, the city is exploring another alternative: the hydrogen fuel cell. As Merriman Curhan Ford & Co. mentioned in their May 2005 industry report, fuel cell buses already run on the streets of Chicago. Such public buses are doubly efficient: decreasing the amount of cars on the road, as well as not producing any negative greenhouse gases themselves. The Apollo Alliance explains the Chicago Transit Authority takes its concerns for the environment even further, partnering with the Park District and 48 other municipalities to purchase green power. Commonwealth Edison, the awarded bidder, with the help of the Environmental Resource Trust (ERT), plans to sell “green tickets” certified by the ERT and to create a fund to further finance the resource and development of renewable energies with the proceeds.

Simply encouraging citizens to use public transportation can greatly decrease the amount of greenhouse gases emitted from a given city, no matter what fuel is used in such transportation. Chicago has found that location efficient mortgages (LEM), mortgages that allow the purchaser to take out greater amounts of money, borrowing against the future money he or she will save by using public transportation, are particularly efficient in this respect. To further promote such mortgages and energy efficiency, Chicago also offered the first 100 LEM borrowers a voucher for $900 toward the purchase of an EnergyStar refrigerator or washer/dryer set. Chicago’s Department of Environment also participates in green city planning through the creation of the City Hall Rooftop Garden Pilot Project in 2000 as part of the EPA’s Urban Heat Island Initiative. This green roof project helps alleviate Chicago’s carbon emissions by requiring a certain percentage of roof space be allocated to green roofs. The program’s pilot project, the City Hall’s garden, has successfully dropped the temperature on the roof surface and the surrounding air temperature—lowering cooling costs and demand for electricity in the summer and providing insulation heat in the reduction heat in the winter. Green roofs also improve air quality by absorbing and converting carbon dioxide, producing oxygen, and removing airborne particulates.

The Apollo Alliance has recognized the many steps that Chicago has taken to make our Nation energy-independent and environmentally-friendly. We need to build and expand on their success. We need a 21st century energy policy that uses wind power, solar power, biomass, and geothermal energy in our homes and businesses; and ethanol and hydrogen-driven cars on the streets. City planning must be rethought to prevent urban sprawl and encourage the use of public transportation. Chicago and other cities have shown us that we can take a new direction on our energy and environmental future—It is time that Congress act forcefully to do so as well.

INTRODUCING THE HAWAIIAN HOMEOWNERSHIP OPPORTUNITY ACT OF 2006

HON. NEIL ABERCROMBIE

OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of legislation I am proud to introduce today. The Hawaiian Homeownership Opportunity Act of 2006 is the exact same language of HR 5851, reported out of the House Financial Services Committee on September 28, 2006.

The measure reauthorizes existing Native Hawaiian housing programs for five years and makes two adjustments to the program that will allow the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands to help more Native Hawaiians whose incomes are equal to or less than 80 percent of the median income.

In 2000 Congress passed legislation authorizing the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to provide block grants for affordable housing for Native Hawaiians through the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands. The 2000 measure also authorized HUD home loan guarantees for low-income Native Hawaiians to include Native Hawaiian families, the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands, the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, and private nonprofit organizations experienced in planning and developing affordable housing for Native Hawaiians.

The Hawaiian Home Ownership Opportunity Act of 2006 reauthorizes these programs and adds a new provision authorizing loan guarantees for home mortgage refinancing. This introduces greater flexibility and allows families to take advantage of lower interest rates as millions of other American families have. The measure would also permit the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands to refinance. This will allow the Department to service more low-income families without a large increase in appropriations.

This bill is about homeownership, this is not welfare or public assistance. It offers another tool for a family to provide for a basic need, housing. This is an important component in Hawaii where land is scarce and the median home price on the island of Oahu is $639,000 and the median condominium price is $310,000. This measure will advance our efforts to address housing affordability in the islands.

I would like to thank the House Financial Services Committee, in particular Chairman MIKE OXLEY and Ranking Member BARNEY FRANK, who have been extremely supportive in dealing with the housing problems of Hawaii. I would also like to recognize my colleague from Hawaii, Congressman EO CASE, who, like Chairman Oxley and Ranking Member Frank, is a cosponsor of this legislation.

I urge my colleagues to help the residents of Hawaii and support this legislation.
INTRODUCTION OF THE GREAT LAKES FISH AND WILDLIFE RESTORATION ACT

HON. MARCY KAPTUR OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, I rise this week to praise passage of the Great Lakes Fish and Wildlife Restoration Act. With an estimated 40 million people relying on the Great Lakes basin for jobs, drinking water, and recreation, the health of this resource is paramount and should remain a priority for Congress. Our Great Lakes constitute the largest body of freshwater on the face of the earth.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to tell you about a treasured spot in the Great Lakes—the north coast of Ohio. It is a true sapphire jewel, enjoyed by large communities of birders, sport and commercial fishermen, hunters and recreational boaters. It is vital to life for every living creature in our region.

While the value of this treasure should be obvious to all, it is undeniable that the resources it provides remain threatened. This is a region whose wildlife populations are under attack by invasive species like the Goby, Carp and Zebra Mussels, and where encroaching sprawl constantly jeopardizes the region’s priceless wetlands. Without addressing the social and human costs posed by these problems, we face an incalculable menace—a menace that this week, this body took a step to fight.

Mr. Speaker, the reason that I wish to praise passage of the Great Lakes Fish and Wildlife Restoration Act is not because this bill solves all the longstanding problems that our Great Lakes face, but because it serves as one step in the journey toward restoring the integrity of our lakes. The bill authorizes the Fish and Wildlife Service for grants of up to $12 million per year and gives legal authority for the Fish and Wildlife Service to receive $2 million per year. These funds will be used to implement recommendations of the Great Lakes Regional Collaboration that are consistent with water quality, fisheries, and wildlife agreements.

Though the House has taken a tremendous step towards restoring the Great Lakes by passing this bill, we must not rest. Instead, we must continue on with the next steps, taking up the additional priorities of the Great Lakes Regional Collaboration not addressed in this bill. Let us find the will to expand the Ottawa and Cedar Point National Wildlife Refuges. Let us preserve more wetlands for the migrating birds that pass through the Great Lakes. Let us stop the flow of invasive species in the last water of transport ships. Let us celebrate victory for the crown jewel of our refuge system by fully funding the grant programs that we have just authorized.

Mr. Speaker, we are the only species with the capability of precipitating the wholesale extermination of other species; but, through compassion and conviction, we are also capable of protecting the things we treasure. We are unique in our ability to affect the fate of the planet, but also unique in our ability to predict those effects and change our ways in light of what we foresee.

So now, let us take this one moment to appreciate the importance of passage of the Great Lakes Fish and Wildlife Restoration Act. I would like to thank the many friends who made passage of this bill possible and ask them for the strength to continue the battle in restoring the Great Lakes to the pristine beauty that we can all foresee.

GREAT LAKES FISH AND WILDLIFE RESTORATION ACT OF 2006

Summary: This bill would reauthorize the Great Lakes Fish and Wildlife Restoration Act, a program first enacted in 1990 and again in 1998. This bill ensures that both fish and wildlife is included throughout the bill and ensures that this Act is consistent with the goals of Great Lakes Regional Collaboration.

Fish & Wildlife Grants: The bill reauthorizes the state and tribal grant program. Under this bill, grants will be used to restore fish and wildlife in the Great Lakes. The U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service would award grants based on the recommendations of the Great Lakes states and tribes.

Studies and Reports: The Fish & Wildlife Service will submit a report to Congress in 2011 that describe the fish and wildlife grants that have been awarded and the results of the grants.

Under this bill, the Service will provide updated information through a public access website to the states and tribes on what grants have been awarded, priorities proposed for funding in the budget, and actions taken in support of Great Lakes Regional Collaboration.

The bill calls upon the Service to complete the overdue 2002 Report on actions taken under this Act, which was called for under existing law, to be released by June of 2006.

Fish & Wildlife Regional Projects: The bill authorizes up to $6 million each year for the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service to undertake projects that have a regional benefit to fish and wildlife. Under this new authority, the Service would undertake projects based on the recommendations of states and tribes.

In honor of...
HON. ANNA G. ESHOO
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Elizabeth Gheleta who is retiring after more than three decades of service as Executive Director of the Service League of San Mateo County, California.

Elizabeth Gheleta joined the Service League of San Mateo County in 1968, and in the ensuing 38 years she has worked tirelessly to improve the social system and provide opportunities for the incarcerated to create change in their lives. She became Executive Director in 1978, when funding cuts under California’s Proposition 13 threatened to close the Service League’s doors. Under her leadership, the Service League has grown into a highly respected nonprofit organization with strong community ties, 25 permanent staff and over 500 dedicated volunteers. They provide a myriad of services that have helped rebuild the lives of thousands of County inmates, their children and their families.

Elizabeth Gheleta has been responsible for the development and expansion of in-jail programs to help inmates learn how to function better once they are released, increasing their chances of successful reentry into the community. Among all the programs she has helped initiate hundreds of educational and self-improvement programs which focus on transition, substance abuse recovery, personal responsibility, permanent housing and family life skills. Today, Service League employees and volunteers have reintegrated into society and have become responsible and productive members of our community.

Mr. Speaker, it is a special privilege for me to honor my friend Elizabeth Gheleta, her extraordinary career and her extraordinary achievements. I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring her because she has bettered the soul of our community as well as our Nation.

TRIBUTE TO DETECTIVE RORY FORRESTAL

HON. TIMOTHY H. BISHOP
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. BISHOP of New York. I am proud to rise in recognition of an American patriot and good friend, Detective Rory Forrestal, for his many outstanding contributions to the Suffolk County Police Department on Long Island. On behalf of New York’s First Congressional District, I thank Detective Forrestal for his extraordinary service and accomplishments over the past 20 years that have earned him several prestigious decorations, the respect and admiration of his fellow officers, and the gratitude of Suffolk County’s residents.

A graduate of St. Joseph’s College, Detective Forrestal has proven his courage and commitment to Long Island’s residents time and again. While fighting crime and keeping Long Islanders safe during his tours in the department’s narcotics and general services divisions, he compiled an impeccable service record. Many of my constituents may recall when he was one of two Suffolk police officers who helped a woman deliver her baby at her home in Mastic Beach, only a few hours after the hospital misdiagnosed her labor pains and released her.

As a veteran and expert investigator, Detective Forrestal was selected by the department in 1999 to help launch the computer crimes unit when criminal use of the Internet by sexual predators along with other forms of cyber-fraud and exploitation expanded dramatically. Performing what some might consider a tough and unpleasant job, he has conducted this important job with tenacity, success, and steadfast resolve. His hard work and diligence have directly resulted in several arrests and protected countless children from cyber-predators.

I am proud to honor and represent him in this chamber.
老师们在Ms. Porter离开后继续工作。她立即采取了一些行动，包括寻找资金支持，以便为部队成员提供支持。她还联系了社区，并得到了大家的积极响应。

Mr. Speaker，我支持与国土安全委员会联合起来的建议，该委员会由Brooklyn Center Rotary Club担任，它解决了该问题并向前推进。该委员会与Brooklyn Center Rotary Club，Phil Cohen，Past Rotary President Carrie Engl of Bremer Bank Brooklyn Center和现任总统Frank Lawton of American Express Financial Planners，Rotary Club贡献了$10,000。

The Lions Club also made financial contributions and the Brooklyn Center Business Association held a golf tournament to help the band. And the Brooklyn Center Taxpayers Association pitched in, too. The people of Brooklyn Center have really come together to support the band.

Mr. Speaker, Ms. Porter’s inspired leadership and the band’s hard work resulted in the Grammy Foundation personally delivering the $15,000 Grammy Enterprise Award to the band at Brooklyn Center High School!

Chris Porter and Chanel Chatham received a well-deserved standing ovation. The tremendous outpouring of affection and support for the band made it all worthwhile!

The story of the Brooklyn Center High School Band even brought tears to the eyes of singer Kelly Clarkson, who was a guest of honor at the event. The story reminded Clarkson of her own high school band, and the story has warmed all of our hearts.

From the trombones to the tubas, the Brooklyn Center High Band is truly playing a joyful tune! There was a lot of hard work that went into this masterpiece.

Thank you, Chris Porter and the wonderful Brooklyn Center High School Band, for bringing so much great music into our lives and the lives of young people. You have all shown us that hard work, creativity, talent and the right instruments can make a beautiful song!

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 5631, DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2007

SPEECH OF
HON. MARK UDALL
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, September 26, 2006

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation.

The conference report today funds our military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, among many other things. It is very similar to the Defense Authorization bill that I supported in the Armed Services Committee and on the House floor.

The bill provides $447.6 billion in funding, including $70 billion in emergency funds to support military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. This grand total represents about 55 percent of the entire Federal discretionary budget. Overall defense spending has risen 40 percent since September 11th and is more than currently being spent by the rest of the world combined.

Appropriating $70 billion for the so-called bridge fund is realistic and necessary, because we must support our men and women in uniform, but I also believe the Administration must begin to take responsibility for the full cost of the war in Iraq and consider these costs through the regular appropriations process. There is no “emergency” here—we know that since September 11th and is more than halfway through fiscal year 2007, we should be expecting another request before the year is over. With total costs for operations in Iraq and Afghanistan crossing the half trillion dollar point after passage of this bill, the American people deserve greater candor from the Administration on the costs as well as the anticipated benefits of our undertakings in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Although I don’t agree with the “emergency” designation, I’m pleased that the conference saw fit to increase the bridge fund levels to include $17.1 billion to replace and refurbish Army equipment. This is the amount General Schoomaker testified that the Army needed in fiscal year 2007 to fully fund its reset program. It’s true that even with this funding, the Army will still need tens of billions of dollars over the coming years for equipment rehabilitation and recapitalization—but this is an important start.

The bridge fund also includes funding for Marine Corps equipment and body armor as well as $549 million to cover costs of the enhanced insurance and death gratuity benefits.

I am pleased that the conference report fully funds military pay, benefits, and the pay raise of 2.2 percent for the base force. It also includes language that I advocated for prohibiting funding for permanent U.S. bases in Iraq. I remain concerned about rising costs of weapons systems that have yet to be fully funded, such as the Future Combat Systems and missile defense program, among others.

A recent report from the Department of Defense identified 36 major weapons systems as having significant cost overruns. And yet Congressional Budget Office projections are that we’ll need to increase defense budgets by 17 percent per year simply to sustain the current force structure and weapons programs. And this is happening at the same time that operations and maintenance and personnel costs—as well as training and recruiting costs—are rising.

So Mr. Speaker, this conference report is not perfect. It does not solve or attempt to solve some of these looming budget problems. But overall, it deserves to pass and I urge its approval.

CONGRATULATING VINCENT D. MURRAY ON RECEIVING THE HAROLD W. MCGRAW, JR. PRIZE IN EDUCATION

HON. JOHN LEWIS
OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Vincent D. Murray, who will receive the prestigious Harold W. McGraw, Jr. Prize in Education. Mr. Murray has been chosen for the prestigious 19th annual award for his leadership in transforming his inner-city public school into a higher achieving institution in which graduation and college-going rates consistently have risen above the district and state averages.

Sixty-six percent of Grady High students are African American and 44 percent qualify for free or reduced price lunch. When Murray joined Grady High, more than a third of all freshmen were held back as they repeated their freshman year. The student body’s passing rate on the Georgia graduation test was below the statewide average.

Mr. Murray has been consistent in his efforts and focused on innovative reform. The result is that today, four out of every five graduating seniors are graduating directly on to college or university, including Ivy League institutions. Average scores on the graduation test, SAT and Advanced Placement exams exceed district, state and national averages. Graduation rates have risen 38 percentage points for African American students (to 84 percent), 26 points for economically disadvantaged students (to 86 percent) and 25 points for white students (to 97 percent). As a result of Murray’s success in transforming Grady High, the U.S. Department of Education recognized him in 2000 with the Department’s Title I Distinguished School Award. In 2006, the governor of Georgia named him a High Performance Principal, a top honor in the state.

Mr. Murray has a bachelor of arts degree in history and English from Morehouse College, the master of arts degree in early childhood education from the University of Georgia, and a doctorate in psychology/learning disabilities from Boston University. He has pursued post-doctoral studies at Clark-Atlanta University and Georgia State University.

I congratulate Mr. Vincent D. Murray for his outstanding contributions to education. He has dedicated himself to improving education in this country and his accomplishments continue to make a difference.

URGING THE CENTERS FOR MEDICARE AND MEDICAID TO RECONSIDER IVIG REIMBURSEMENT

HON. CHARLIE NORWOOD
OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. NORWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring your attention to a very important issue relating to medical reimbursement by the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS). The Medicare Prescription Drug Improvement Act and Modernization Act of 2003 (MMA) created new reimbursement mechanisms for IVIG therapies. CMS’s implementation of the MMA has resulted in reduced access to life-saving therapies for Medicare beneficiaries. CMS potentially closed the door to medical treatment when they issued the CY 2007 proposed rules for the physician fee schedule and the hospital outpatient prospective payment system, which, if implemented, would effectively limit IVIG treatment by not properly reimbursing providers.

IVIG is a vital medical service. It is a plasma-derived therapy tailored to the individual’s diseases and treatment options to achieve optimal results. Nearly 40,000 Medicare beneficiaries are afflicted with primary immune deficiency (PID) which only responds to IVIG therapy. For many Americans there is no substitute for IVIG treatment.
More to the point, this treatment allows individuals to carry on normal daily-life activities. PID requires IVIG therapy every 3 to 4 weeks for the duration of an individual’s life, but without such treatment the individual not only imposes additional medical costs on an already overburdened system, they cease to be active members of our society. Such an outcome is simply not acceptable. IVIG therapy is cost-effective and beneficial for the patient. As far as I am concerned, that should be enough to get CMS to rethink implementing any reimbursement change that has the potential to harm access and reduce medical outcomes.

In May of this year, thirty-five members of Congress, including myself, sent a letter to Secretary Leavitt of the Department of Health and Human Services expressing our concern over this matter and encouraged Secretary Leavitt to consider a payment adjustment, combined with product specific reimbursement. We also made clear that we would be open to any other mechanism he may have deemed suitable in order to resolve this patient access dilemma. Secretary Leavitt’s response was, quite simply, inadequate. He failed to address our specific concerns or pose alternative remedies that would allow patients continued access to IVIG treatment.

I urge CMS to reconsider its actions in this case to ensure patient access to a necessary and legitimate medical treatment.

IN HONOR AND RECOGNITION OF THE 75TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE ST. SAVA SERBIAN SINGING FEDERATION

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor and tribute to the 75th Anniversary of the St. Sava Serbian Singing Federation, and the local St. Sava Cathedral choir in Parma, Ohio.

Vojko Lugonja founded the Serbian Singing Federation in 1931. His legend continues to thrive in the voices of the singers today. On a local and national level, the Singing Federation’s member choirs contribute their Serbian cultural heritage through song and music. In Ohio alone, there are six member choirs. The group also boasts the largest collection of Serbian music, contained in its library, featuring the work of 96 Serbian composers.

The Serbian Singing Federation also supports local high school seniors trying to afford college tuition through its Paul Bielich Scholarships, given to multiple students for general college tuition, as well as the Petar and Minnie scholarships, given to multiple students for general college tuition through its Paul Bielich Scholarships, local high school seniors trying to afford college tuition through its Paul Bielich Scholarships, and the John Templeton Foundation, for their vision and generosity in creating this important stimulus for expanding citizen initiative for public good. The Purpose Prize joins Experience Corps as an important innovation by Civic Ventures, a nonprofit organization dedicated to generating ideas and programs to help society achieve the greatest return on the experience of older adults. I believe these programs will help transform society’s view of aging, and lead to better investments in America’s greatest untapped resource, which are experienced and engaged older adults.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in extending my heartfelt congratulations and appreciation to Wilson Goode, and wish him continued success.

IN MEMORY OF MONROE SWEETLAND

HON. EARL BLUMENAUER
OF OREGON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. BLUMENAUER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate and honor the life of Monroe Sweetland, along with my colleagues TOM LANTOS, ANNA ESHOO, and many other of Monroe’s California friends.

The most important Oregonian most people have never heard of passed away earlier this month. Even though I knew Monroe would serve leaving us. Quite a lucid farewell conversation with him shortly before, it’s still hard to believe that he is gone.

Here’s a man whose lifespan of active political life stretched from the Hoover administration to George Bush the second. Monroe engaged in every single important political debate of our times from economics to foreign-policy to civil rights: He was in Indonesia, during the year of living dangerously; was one of the most powerful men in Oregon during the Truman administration as a Democratic national committee member for a Democratic administration when every elected leader was Republican; and, he had tremendous influence on appointments and policy decisions from judicial appointments and personnel decisions to policy direction. He was a journalist, an educator, and a politician but most of all a passionate advocate for making the world a better place.

From the time I first met Monroe Sweetland as a college student directing Oregon’s campaign to lower the voting age, he was a steady presence in my political life and development. He always provided me good, sound advice, gentle but firm encouragement and tremendous support.

He knew everyone who had made a difference in his party for three quarters of a century. Monroe earned the respect and affection of prominent opponents, including Senator Mark Hatfield who defeated Monroe when they ran against each other for Oregon Secretary of State in 1956. It was great to hear and feel the respect these two Oregon giants had for one another, and one hopes that someday that can come back into fashion.

As recently as 1998, Monroe ran for the State Senate mounting a close campaign against Verne Duncan, a longtime incumbent. To the end, Monroe conducted his campaign, as his entire career, with civility and affection, being able to point out differences with precision and civility that made people feel good about politics.

Most of all, Monroe was tireless and effective. He was gentle and kind but resolute in... what he believed in. He was a fierce partisan fighting for his party, his candidates, and his country but never approaching, let alone crossing the line in the 37 years that I knew him. He was unyielding in his beliefs but never cruel or unkind in his judgments. The sadness on his passing is tempered by the knowledge of his rich and full life and that thousands of Oregonians and people around the country are the better for his friendship and his life’s work.

HONORING MR. CHARLES BARNES, OF IDAHO, FOR HIS DISTINGUISHED SERVICE TO THE PEOPLE OF IDAHO

HON. MICHAEL K. SIMPSON OF IDAHO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to give a speech I have long dreaded but knew would one day come. It is a speech many of us in this body have had to deliver from time-to-time—one that none of us likes to give but one that is entirely necessary and right.

The speech I am talking about is one that announces the retirement of a trusted staffer and ally, someone who has worked with me since my election to Congress and served the people of Idaho’s Second Congressional District with distinction, class, and a sincerity matched by none.

That staffer is a gentleman named Charley Barnes. Charley has worked in my Twin Falls office for the past 8 years handling all of my agriculture outreach efforts and working day-in and day-out with the farmers and ranchers of Idaho to make sure their Government is effectively serving them.

When I first got to Washington, I was immediately awarded a seat on the House Agriculture Committee. While this assignment was a great honor and of immense importance to the people of my district, it was not an assignment that played to my greatest expertise. So I knew from the start that I was going to need exceptional staff to guide me through my duties on the committee and the re-write of the farm bill. And thank god I had Charley Barnes by my side to help me out.

I am proud of the farm bill we produced in 2002 and believe it has been perhaps the best farm bill this Congress has ever written. While I can’t claim that Charley wrote the farm bill, he provided advice and counsel to me that was critical to my work as a member of the committee.

But Charley’s service to the Second District went well beyond the re-write of the farm bill or preparing me for a few committee hearings.

When the farmers of Idaho’s Second Congressional District were devastated by drought and disease, Charley was there to lend a helping hand and push his own boss to support disaster assistance payments that kept farmers out of bankruptcy and the economy of small, rural towns alive.

When the Federal Government mistakenly sprayed a product called OUST on private land, killing the sugar beets, wheat, and potatoes of the Second District, Charley was there witness the damage, organize the Idaho congressional delegation, and push the BLM and USDA to compensate farmers for their loss.

Idaho’s farmers are still fighting this battle, but they have a great friend and advocate in Charley Barnes.

When the USDA tried to penalize Idaho’s sugar farmers for wrongful participation in a program for which they were told they qualified, Charley was there to argue against punishment. When the farmers impounded defense of these producers, and in the end, Charley was proven right. USDA relented and Idaho’s sugar farmers saw firsthand the value of a forceful advocate like Charley Barnes.

And when a farmer in my district is facing an appeal before the USDA over an issue where the farmer believes he has done nothing wrong, more often than not that farmer will see Charley Barnes attend that appeal, offer words of encouragement, and stand beside them for the duration of the hearing.

Charley Barnes doesn’t see his work in my office as just another job. He sees his role in my office as an advocate for agriculture, an advocate for farmers and ranchers, an advocate for rural communities, and most importantly, an advocate for rural families.

Charley Barnes isn’t just a congressional staffer, he’s a farmer, a businessman, a husband, a father, and a very good friend.

Everyone who has ever met Charley Barnes is better off for having known him. The people of the Second District are better off for having been served by Charley Barnes. And I am a better Congressman today than I was 8 years ago because I had the good sense to hire, and learn from, Charley Barnes.

I know I speak for everyone in my office when I say that we miss Charley’s day-to-day presence in the office. But this is not goodbye, because we are going to be calling on Charley from time-to-time for some good advice, some constructive criticism, and a nudge in the right direction.

As he settles into retirement, and a well-deserved break from the daily grind of a long and distinguished career, I wish Charley well and in all of his future endeavors and offer my sincere gratitude for all his hard work, great advice, and dedication to the people of Idaho.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF LUBBOCK CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY

HON. RANDY NEUGEBAUER
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Lubbock Christian University on reaching milestone of its 50th anniversary.

LCU was established in 1957 with a mission to teach students the spiritual dimension of life, provide a quality education, and impart a system of values for living and for service to family, community, and church. This mission has led to a half century of striving for the best in education.

Lubbock Christian first opened as a junior college with F.W. Mattox as president, a new class of 110 students and was completely surrounded by farmland on the west side of Lubbock. In the fall of 1997, the college advanced to university status. Five presidents and numerous faculty and staff have contributed to the success of LCU. At one point, the faculty and staff sacrificed a month’s salary in order to provide financial assistance for the university.

Through the past 50 years, LCU has been able to achieve a stature worthy of great praise. The university now has more than 2,000 students, offers 34 bachelor’s degrees and 10 master’s degrees, more than 30 building, and funds for educational programs, and provides services for education and teaching from the Word of God.

Many things have changed in our world and in education over the past 50 years. To enable graduates to stay competitive in our ever-changing economy, our higher education system must be a key source of America’s competitive advantage around the world. Lubbock Christian University is helping to make this idea a reality. Keeping Christian values at the forefront of their teachings will help to bring about great leaders for many years to come.

I am proud to join the citizens of Lubbock in extending my appreciation for all the hard work of LCU’s administration, faculty, staff, and past and current students. Our community would not be the same without the unparalleled contributions of the school.

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO FRANK HOVORE

HON. HOWARD P. “BUCK” McKEON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. McKEON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in sorrow to pay tribute to the life and memory of Franklin Thomas Hovore IV. Every once in a while, a person comes along who has the passion to explore the world, the ability to research the unknown, and the extraordinary capacity to teach what he has learned. Frank Hovore was such a man. Pursuing his life’s passion in Ecuador on September 22, 2006, he died suddenly while studying beetles near the Amazon. He was 61 years old.

Frank was born on August 19, 1945 in El Centro, California. He earned a Bachelor’s Degree in Biology and English at California State University, Northridge. He later worked as an adjunct biology professor at his alma mater. Further advancing his education led Frank to the University of California, Los Angeles where he was a Ph.D. candidate in evolutionary biology.

Enthusiastic and dedicated to the study of insects, he also cared deeply about teaching others. Over 35 years ago, Frank began teaching children from a school bus parked at Placentia Canyon’s Nature Center. He was instrumental in the creation of the center’s education program, which now reaches over 10,000 schoolchildren a year. He trained docents, served on the center’s foundation board, and was an active volunteer at the nature center until his death. Frank is credited with making the Placentia Canyon Natural Area and his tribute to the life and memory of Frank Hovore.

Long considered the world’s authority on beetles, Frank published books and many papers on the subject. In addition, he was a scientific advisor on David Attenborough’s 2005 documentary series “Life of the Undergrowth” and provided his expertise on the movie “Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom.” Director Steven Spielberg recruited
Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of S. 3525, the Child and Family Services Improvement Act of 2006. This legislation reflects a bipartisan agreement developed by the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee to reauthorize and improve important child welfare programs under our jurisdictions.

Other bills might attract more media attention, but few are more important. This agreement reflects our mutual interest in doing more to ensure children are protected from harm. To achieve this goal, the bill increases resources for activities and services that will help prevent child abuse and neglect from occurring. But it also involves spending more intelligently and with greater accountability the money we have previously committed for these purposes.

For example, we know from numerous reports and simple common sense that when caseworkers visit children in foster care, children are safer and more quickly placed in permanent homes. While most States agree that children in foster care should be visited at least once per month, there currently is no consequence for States that fail to meet that standard. Moreover, data suggest that most States can’t even tell which foster children are visited and how often. Very simply, these children and the Federal taxpayers who support these programs deserve much better.

The Child and Family Services Improvement Act is designed to address this shortcoming by requiring additional accountability. Specifically, the legislation will require States to ensure that, within 5 years, they can document case-worker visits once a month to at least 90 percent of foster children.

This is a significant step in the right direction. This legislation requires States to increase child protection funding or risk losing Federal funds. That’s the right structure—continue today’s generous level of Federal support, but insist that States that don’t make the grade contribute more of their own funds to improve these programs.

This agreement will also target $145 million over the next 5 years for preventing and treating parental substance abuse, including involving methamphetamines. This is an issue of great concern to me because the State of California, its Central Valley region, and Kern County, which I represent, unfortunately have significant levels of methamphetamine production, use, and distribution.

The Child and Family Services Improvement Act is good policy; it not only targets increased protection, use, and distribution.

The bipartisan legislation that I am introducing today will enable disabled Americans utilizing the ADA to focus on the discrimination that they have experienced rather than having to first prove that they fall within the scope of the ADA’s protection. With this bill, the ADA’s “clear and comprehensive national mandate for the elimination of discrimination on the basis of disability” will be properly restored and the ADA can rightfully reclaim its place among our Nation’s civil rights laws.

HON. BILL SHUSTER

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Ms. Virginia M. Day of Altoona, Pennsylvania, who will receive the 2006 John Riley

HONORING THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF ASTRONAUT JOSEPH TANNER

HON. TIMOTHY V. JOHNSON

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. JOHNSON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the achievements of NASA astronaut, Joseph Tanner for his outstanding service to his country in the name of space exploration, including his recent mission to the International Space Station on the Space Shuttle Atlantis.

Joseph Tanner was born in Illinois in 1950 and graduated from Danville High School in Danville, Illinois in 1968. He pursued a mechanical engineering degree from the University of Illinois graduating in 1973 with a Bachelor of Science degree. Upon graduation, Mr. Tanner joined the Navy where he earned his pilot wings in 1975 before serving as an A-7E pilot with the Light Attack Squadron 94 aboard the U.S.S. Coral Sea. He finished his active service with the Navy as an advanced jet instructor pilot with Training Squadron 4 in Pensacola, Florida.

In 1984, Mr. Tanner began working for the NASA Johnson Space Center as an aerospace engineer and research pilot. His primary flying responsibilities involved teaching the astronaut pilots Space Shuttle landing techniques in the Shuttle Training Aircraft and instructing the pilots and mission specialists in the T-38. In addition to his flying duties, Mr. Tanner held positions as the aviation safety officer for the Big Moss section of the Deputy Chief of Aircraft Operations Division. In total, Mr. Tanner has accumulated an impressive less than 8,862 hours in military and NASA aircraft.

Selected as an astronaut candidate by NASA in March 1992, Mr. Tanner reported to the Astronaut Office in August 1992 where he completed one year of initial training and worked in the Shuttle Avionics Integration Laboratory before being assigned to his first mission. Mr. Tanner also served in part of the Astronaut Support Personnel team at the Kennedy Space Center, supporting Space Shuttle launches and landings. Throughout his NASA career, Mr. Tanner has participated in four space flight missions.

The most recent space flight Mr. Tanner flew on was STS-115, the Space Shuttle Atlantis. Atlantis launched on September 9, 2006 with six crew members to continue construction on the International Space Station. The 12 day mission included several space walks to construct crucial components to ensure the future of the International Space Station, including the installation of two solar arrays to assist the station in generating power. Mr. Tanner performed two space walks on this particular mission, bringing his total number of space walks to seven. Atlantis landed in Florida at the Kennedy Space Center on September 21, 2006 in the early morning. The Space Shuttle Atlantis accomplished its mission of delivering the first major new component to the International Space Station since 2002 and laid important groundwork for upcoming station construction.

I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating the crew of the Space Shuttle Atlantis and especially to astronaut, Joseph Tanner.

HONORING MICHAEL PARENT

HON. MIKE THOMPSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Michael Parent of Eureka, California, who is being honored for his contribution to one of our nation’s most precious rights—participation in the political system. Mr. Parent is being recognized for his outstanding contributions to the political process by the Humboldt County Democratic Central Committee as “Democrat of the Year, 2006.” His commitment to the preservation of our political liberty is worthy of appreciation and recognition.

Mike Parent has had a long and distinguished career as an employee of the California Department of Forestry, serving as a Forestry Logistics Officer for over 29 years. During his tenure he helped to coordinate emergency response to wildland fires throughout the state. He was an exemplary employee and valued for his tenacity, organizational skills and commitment to duty.

Mr. Parent has exemplified the model citizen as an active volunteer and member of numerous local organizations. He serves as President of the Fortuna Kiwanis Club and President of the Board of the North Coast Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Eureka. He worked tirelessly for these organizations and helped to improve his community and the lives of many young people. He was also a member and served as finance officer for the Humboldt County Democratic Central Committee for two years.

During his tenure he re-energized the Committee’s community activities and public events and helped to grow the membership.
Mr. Parent is a native of Ohio, the oldest of 14 children. He is married to Barbara Ellis and father to Adam Parent, Ryan Nichols and Kevin and Melissa Ellis. Though retired from state service, he continues to offer his logistical expertise for national disasters through the Federal Emergency Management Administration.

Mr. Speaker, it is appropriate at this time to recognize Michael Parent for his leadership and commitment to his community and to the people of the state of California. I would like to add my voice to that of the Humboldt County Democratic Club in offering thanks to Mike for his hard work.

IN HONOR OF ANN RICHARDS

HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of the late Ann Rich- ards who passed away on September 14th. I had the pleasure to meet Ms. Richards on one of her visits to Minnesota. A true inspiration to others, she will be remembered for her leadership, strength, charisma and humor as well as her lifelong commitment to public service.

As a member of the Democratic Party, Ms. Richards began her political career as Travis County Commissioner from 1977 until 1981. In 1982, she successfully ran a statewide campaign for Texas State Treasurer and became the first woman elected to statewide office in 50 years. In 1988, Ms. Richards gained national attention when she delivered the keynote address at the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta, Georgia.

After two terms as State Treasurer, in 1990, Ms. Richards ran a successful campaign for Governor of Texas, and served as Chief Offic- er of the state from 1991–1995. During her tenure as Governor, she worked tirelessly to eliminate gender barriers, revitalize the Texas economy, and decentralize control over education policy. She valued diversity, appointing the largest number of women and minorities to state boards and commissions of any Texas governor up until that time. An idealistic, strong woman with a witty personality, Governor Richards connected with Texans and people across the United States.

Unfortunately, in 1994, she lost a close re- election to Governor against Texas baseball owner, George W. Bush. Following her term as Governor, Ms. Richards continued her dedication to public service. She was a senior advisor to the communications firm Public Strategies, Inc. in Austin and New York, as well as a senior advisor with a Washington, DC-based international law firm. Ms. Richards also served on several corporate boards and taught classes at Brandeis University and the University of Texas-Austin.

I extend my thoughts and prayers to her four children, and eight grandchildren. Gov- ernor Richards was a loving mother and devoted public servant. She will be remem- bered and honored in the highest regard.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in paying trib- ute to the life of Governor Ann Richards.

HON. DANNY K. DAVIS
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I express congratulations to Ms. Kenya Ray for her outstanding achieve- ment in the area of screenwriting. I also applaud the initiative by Scenarios USA and their collaborative partners, BET and the Kaiser Family Foundation, in creating a national story and script writing contest that attracted 500 youth across America who ad- dressed issues dealing with the topics “What’s the Real Deal, on Growing Up in the Age of AIDS?”

I am filled with pride that one of my constitu- ents developed the award-winning script—a story about three young women trying to sur- vive and sustain themselves amidst an envi- ronment filled with danger and pain. I am anx- ious to read Kenya’s story about these three women creating and maintaining strong and lasting bonds with each other and members of their families. Our community needs real sto- ries that show real heroes conquering adver- sity and having happy and healthy lives.

I also want to commend the village of May- wood for supporting this project and I look for- ward to professional film-makers shooting foot- age in the Maywood community. I am de- lighted that Kenya will work directly with profes- sionals in making her script “come alive.” Furthermore, it is realized that Ken- ya’s feelings and perceptions will be seen on BET next February and will be shared with young people across America via Rap-It-Up curriculum kits promoted through cable in the classroom.

Unfortunately, the commemoration of Cy- prus’ Independence Day this year, as in the past, is clouded by the fact that Cyprus continues to be illegally occupied by the Turkish military forces, in violation of U.N. Security Council resolutions. On July 20, 1974, Turkey invaded Cyprus, and to this day continues to maintain an estimated 35,000 heavily armed troops. The peaceful and cooperative spirit in the person-to-person, family-to-family inter- actions between Greek Cypriots and Turkish Cypriots is an encouraging sign for the suc- cessful reunification of Cyprus. However, it is time for Turkey to remove its troops from the island so that Cyprus can move forward as one nation. I remain hopeful that an end to this division will be achieved.

I believe that the United States must play an active role in the resolution of the serious issues facing Cyprus. Cyprus and the United States share a deep and abiding commitment to democracy, human rights, free markets, and the ideal and practice of equal justice under the law. Despite the hardships and trauma caused by the ongoing Turkish occupation, Cyprus has registered remarkable economic growth, and the people living in the Govern- ment-controlled areas enjoy one of the world’s highest standards of living.

I also want to commend Cyprus for its crit- ical support in helping citizens from many na- tions including the United States as they evac- uated from Lebanon earlier this year.

The relationship between Cyprus and the United States is strong and enduring, and we stand together celebrating democracy and freedom.

RECOGNIZING “COMCAST CARES DAY 2006” IN MIAMI-DADE COUNTY, FLORIDA

HON. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. LINCOLN DIAZ-BALART of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the sixth annual Comcast Cares Day in Miami-Dade County on October 7, 2006. Several hundred dedicated Comcast employees and their fami- lies will join together to help the children of our South Florida community. Nationwide, over 30,000 Comcast employees will take part in hundreds of projects that are vital community service contributions.

This year, Comcast employees are donating their time to His House Children’s Home. This exceptional program cares for South Florida children who have been abused, exposed to drugs, or neglected by offering them a home environment. In addition, His House provides necessary counseling and health care. And His House provides these services to over 200 local children in foster care.

Comcast employees will use this day to spend time with the children in the residential program and perform needed upkeep and maintenance on the residential building and surrounding grounds. The dedication to serv- ice exhibited by local Comcast employees and their families should serve as an inspiration to all the residents of South Florida.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to offer this state- ment declaring October 7, “Comcast Cares Day 2006.”
Ms. BORDALLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of House Concurrent Resolution 473, a resolution recognizing September as the seventh annual Gynecologic Cancer Awareness Month. I and 74 of my colleagues have co-sponsored this resolution. We firmly believe that raising public awareness, detecting gynecological cancers early, and educating women to the risk of reproductive tract cancers are powerful methods with which to combat this disease.

The Gynecological Cancer Foundation (GCF) seeks to promote these important goals by leading the Gynecological Cancer Awareness Month events and through the Foundation's work year-round. I commend the GCF for its efforts and accomplishments to date. I congratulate the GCF on the occasion of its 15th anniversary.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reports that 27,000 of 71,000 women diagnosed with gynecological cancers succumb to their diseases during 2002. Uterine cancer is the most common among women today. Ovarian cancer is the most deadly. Cervical cancer, for instance, was a leading cause of death for American women. But medical advances and early detection efforts during the last 40 years have significantly increased a woman's chances of surviving it. But a revealing 2005 GCF poll showed that 45 percent of American women could not name a single symptom common to gynecological cancers. Clearly, more must be done here.

Through awareness, early detection and better treatment, we can make more progress toward increasing survival rates for women at risk for or diagnosed with gynecological cancers. The passage of H. Con. Res. 437 will help improve the rate of early detection of these cancers. The passage of H. Con. Res. 437 will also help to save lives. Lastly, the adoption of H. Con. Res. 437 will help bolster gynecological cancers education and research. Taken together, these actions will help researchers and physicians discover better treatments and ultimately a cure for these debilitating cancers.

Raising awareness and early detection coupled with better education and treatment programs for women who suffer from gynecological cancers is of particular concern to my constituents at Guam. Guam does not have an oncologist. Most oncology services are thousands of miles away in Hawaii or on the mainland. Adequate care and information regarding gynecological cancers are similarly inaccessible for women from other isolated or rural communities across America. They are at particular risk. We must do more to help.

I am among thousands of people who stood at the Reflecting Pool on the West front of the U.S. Capitol to honor cancer survivors and mourn the loss of those who succumbed to the disease last week. Attendees were invited to light a candle in memory of survivors and victims. Each candle represented a person’s battle, a family’s grief, and a community’s struggle. I memorialized Guam’s cancer survivors and victims in this way. This Ceremony of Hope was an emotional display of strength and optimism. But the sight of a sea of candles flickering before us was also a disturbing testimony to the loss and heartbreak associated with this dreadful disease.

I urge my colleagues to support H. Con. Res. 473. I would also like to take this opportunity to urge the House Energy and Commerce Committee to report H.R. 1245, the Cancer Education and Awareness Act. H.R. 1245 enjoys the support of 256 members of this body. The bill is colloquially known as Johanna’s Law, named in memory of Johanna Silver Gordon, who lost her life to a battle with ovarian cancer which was not diagnosed until it had reached an advanced stage. Johanna’s Law would make education and outreach on gynecological cancers an ongoing effort and a national priority. The House should have an opportunity to vote on this bill. Together, H. Con. Res. 473 and H.R. 1245 would do much to raise awareness and improve early detection of gynecological cancers while facilitating better education and treatment programs for women who suffer from gynecological cancers.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Speaker, July 4th each year, Americans young and old, of every ethnicity and political persuasion, unite in our celebration of our Nation’s independence. We proudly stand and honor our democratic ideals and the liberty we all enjoy. It is a day to reflect on our shared history and remember those who have sacrificed their lives to ensure our freedom.

For the citizens of the Republic of Cyprus, July 4th is just another day on the calendar. But on October 1st each year, they celebrate their independence, which was attained in 1960 after decades of British colonial rule. I want to offer my sincerest congratulations to the Cypriot people on the 46th anniversary of their independence.

I also want to reaffirm the strong and enduring relationship between Cyprus and the United States. Over the past few decades, Cyprus and the United States have established close political, economic and social ties, developing a valued friendship. Cypriots and Americans alike share a deep and abiding commitment to democracy, fundamental human rights, free markets, and the ideal and practice of equal justice under the law.

As the Republic of Cyprus celebrates its 46th Independence Day, I share the Cypriots’ joy for and love of their nation, a prosperous and open society based on solid foundations. The celebration of this anniversary is an opportunity for the United States and Cyprus to draw closer together as we stand united in our resolve to fight the ongoing battle against terrorism, maintain in memory of freedom, and democracy around the world. As we move forward, I am confident that our friendship will continue well into the future.
We should be voting on a bill today that would make college more affordable and make a higher education attainable for Americans. Today, we are once again voting on the sixth HEA extension—which maintains the status quo—despite skyrocketing college costs and cuts to student financial aid earlier this year. Our students and higher education system will have to continue to wait for legislation improving college access and affordability. This Republican Congress has failed to make access to higher education or our global competitiveness a priority. This became clear to me and the families of my District when Republicans voted earlier this year to cut $12 billion from the student loan program—the largest cuts in the history of federal student financial aid and is further evidenced by the failure to move HEA to the top of the agenda.

The only good news is in this extension. The good news is that the current law that will be extended today is better than the Republican bill to reauthorize the Higher Education Act, H.R. 609, which does nothing to make college more affordable for students—the express purpose of the Higher Education Act.

In addition, this extension includes provisions that will make it easier for Hispanic Serving Institutions (HSI) to serve their students. I applaud these changes.

But more must be done for American students and their families. I support Democratic plans to provide substantive increases to the Pell Grant and to cut the student loan interest rates in half. As a cosponsor of the Reverse Pell Grant and to cut the student loan interest rates in half. As a cosponsor of the Reverse Pell Grant and to cut the student loan interest rates in half. As a cosponsor of the Reverse Pell

As I’ve stated in earlier extensions—today, this temporary extension is necessary, but I will continue to work to ensure that college students are not forced to bear the weight of this Republican Congress’s irresponsible fiscal policies that have slashed student aid in order to pay for tax cuts that only benefit one percent of the nation’s wealthiest.

Congratulations to Ms. Lois Baumann and the Maywood Fine Arts Association

HON. BART R. GORDON OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. McCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, once again, I rise today to support an extension of the Higher Education Act, and to express my concern for the dangerous direction in which this Congress has taken our country’s college students and our nation’s valued higher education system.
Greece did not panic. Men went calmly to their closets and retrieved their military uniforms and weapons. Women went about their necessary tasks, and the children assisted as they were able. With level-headed determination and steadfast resolve, the citizenry of Greece ran head-on against the coming invaders and delivered their resounding “No!” to the Axis aggressors.

On OXI Day, the people of Greece chose the harder path, the path of resistance. If they had opened their gates to the invaders, much bloodshed and many deportations might have been avoided. That brave generation of Hellenes, refused to submit to oppression, even at the cost of their homes, their land, and their lives. They chose to fight and even to die so that their children and the children of other nations might live in liberty. Theirs was an act of self-sacrifice that clearly proclaimed the humanitarian ideals of their Orthodox Christian faith and their ethnic heritage.

Demonstrating poise under pressure, the heroes of that period fought against tyranny and daemonized the Axis onslaught in the Balkan Peninsula. The Greek nation which said “OXI” contributed to the eventual downfall of the Fascist powers in Europe.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in saluting the heroes of OXI Day. In their brave stand, we see all the highest virtues of Hellenic heritage: passion for justice, courage at a time of trial, unity in the midst of conflict, and willingness to sacrifice one’s life for the good of others. On this day, we thank Greece for saying “OXI.”

IN SUPPORT OF INCREASED FUNDING FOR BREAST CANCER RESEARCH

HON. MADELEINE Z. BORDALLO OF GUAM IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. BORDALLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 2231, the Breast Cancer and Environmental Research Act of 2005. I, along with 254 of my colleagues, have cosponsored this important legislation since it was introduced in March of 2005. Support for this legislation has been so strong because funding sources for further research and study of the environmental factors which contribute to the occurrence of breast cancer in both women and men remain available. It is as a result of this research that the causes of breast cancer will be determined. It is as a result of this research and other efforts that a cure will be found.

Breast cancer is the second leading cause of cancer-related death among American women. Sadly, one in every eight American women—an estimated 200,000 women this year alone—will be diagnosed with breast cancer according to the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation. The American Cancer Society reports in “Breast Cancer Facts and Figures 2005–2006” that 40,410 women lost their fights with breast cancer last year. More must be done to understand the causes of breast cancer. More must be done to find a cure.

On Guam, we have a disturbing shortage of oncology-related services. There is no radiology treatment center on Guam. Our only oncologist recently left our island. Cancer screening rates and preventative screening for the people of Guam in light of the challenges we face each day toward gaining better access to cancer diagnosis for those who may be at risk, better treatment for those battling the disease, and better long-term care for those who are survivors.

A multi-faceted research approach based on a broad spectrum of causes ranging from genetics to environmental factors relating to breast cancer is needed. We cannot ignore a major aspect of treatment and potential future prevention if we do not support more funding for research on the impact of the environment on breast cancer.

We have an opportunity to further raise awareness for this disease next month by scheduling a vote on this bill. October 2006 will mark the 21st anniversary of Breast Cancer Awareness Month. The National Breast Cancer Awareness Month (NBCAM) has done excellent, life-saving work over the years educating women about early breast cancer detection, diagnosis and treatment. NBCAM continues its mission to reach out to women with several key messages. Most notably, NBCAM advocates for the importance of early detection through annual mammography screening for women over 40, or earlier for women at increased risk. I commend and fully support their efforts.

I am committed to help facilitate a better understanding of what causes breast cancer. I am committed to help find a cure. Passage of H.R. 2231, the Breast Cancer and Environmental Research Act of 2005 will help achieve these goals. I urge my colleagues to support floor consideration for H.R. 2231.

CELEBRATING “OXI” DAY

HON. MICHAEL BLIRIKAS OF FLORIDA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. BLIRIKAS. Mr. Speaker, we often refer to the World War II generation as “the greatest generation,” not only because of their bravery in times of economic depression and war, but also because of their strength, their moral fortitude, and their commitment to advancing the cause of freedom both here and abroad. We celebrate the accomplishments of their generation and respect them for who they are and the lessons they impart, as we rightly should.

My primary purpose today, in addition to honoring our American World War II heroes, military and civilian alike, is to celebrate the courage of Greece’s “greatest generation,” those citizens who, on October 28, 1940, stood up to the Axis powers and said “no” to the spread of fascism and hate.

The significance of “OXI” day and what it meant to the outcome of World War II cannot be overstated. On that fateful day in October, the small, battered and courageous nation of Greece made a firm stand against the aggression of Italy and Germany. And by doing so, the people of Greece disrupted Hitler’s war plans and ensured that freedom would live another day.

By October 1940, World War II had begun, and the Nazi regime already was operating in high gear. Under Aolph Hitler and Benito Mussolini, German and Italian forces were threatening Greece. In fact, Hitler intended to eliminate British operations in the Mediterranean in order to weaken their ability to hinder German advances.
To achieve this objective, Hitler needed the Axis powers to strike British forces in Greece. By conquering Greece, Hitler hoped to gain access to the important connecting link with Italian bases in the Dodecanese islands, giving Italian forces a stranglehold on British forces in Egypt where they were already under attack. Although Egypt was still Allied positions in the oil-rich Middle East.

On October 28, 1940, the Italian Ambas-

Tions of war. Mussolini, at the time of his cabinet’s disbanding, was only three hours to do so. Mussolini obviously underestimated the erule of the Greek people and their passion for liberty. In what has now become one of the prime Minister Metaxas, demanding the unsaidor in Athens issued an ultimatum to Greek

Of World War II, Prime Minister Metaxas responded with the word “oxi,” which means “no” in Greek.

This statement, which embodied the true courage and strength in the face of innominous attacks by Italian forces. “Oxi” echoed the same devotion and love of country that Greek patriots exhibited during their war of independence against the Ottoman empire when they defiantly shouted “liberty or death.” The Prime Minister’s actions marked the beginning of Greece’s most heroic effort to combat tyranny and oppression. Knowing that Greece would not give in to its demands, Italy invaded.

Greece went into battle as the clear underdog. In addition to having a population seven times larger than Italy, the disparity in the nations’ armed forces was even greater. Italy enjoyed ten times the firepower of Greece in its army and navy and seven times the number of troops. Italy’s command of the air gave Greece little hope of success. However, despite their lack of equipment and smaller numbers, the Greek army proved to be well-trained and resourceful. Within a week of the invasion, the Italian forces were suffering serious setbacks.

On November 14, 1940, the Greek army launched a counteroffensive and quickly drove the Italian forces back into Albania. By December, the Greeks had captured the town of Pogradec in eastern Albania, where the fighting continued for several months. It became very clear that the Greeks were not going to stand for defeat. In a last ditch effort to bring the skirmish to a close before they would be forced to ask Hitler to intervene, the Italian armed forces launched another onslaught on March 12, 1941. It took only six days for them to concede that German intervention was neccessary.

Hitler ordered the German invasion of Greece on April 6, 1941, but it took the Germans five weeks to finally end the conflict.
This delay proved critical to the outcome of the entire war. Italy’s inability to capture Greece enabled the British to win major victories against Mussolini’s forces in North Africa, solidifying their positions in the region.
This delay also contributed to the failure of the German Barbarossa campaign to conquer Russia. Because he was forced to capture the Balkans, mainly Yugoslavia and Greece, Hitler did not have the resources to invade and occupy the Soviet Union before the winter of 1941. The Greek resistance, both in Albania and in another famous battle in Crete, altered the time table of the planned Barbarossa invasion by at least six months, proving a favorable development for Allied Forces.

Perhaps the most important effect the Greeks’ unyielding stand had on World War II was guaranteeing that the Germans would not gain the advantage against the British. Although Mussolini was a key member of Europe, Hitler’s inability to decimate British and Russian forces early in the War would eventually prove fatal. Thanks to Prime Minister Metaxas saying “oxi” and inspiring the heroic Greek resistance, the war tide was permanently changed.

The Allies gained tremendous advantages by the stubborn and proud resolve of the Greek armed forces, but the Greeks themselves suffered loss and sacrificed much.

Nearly one million Hellenes died during this year, and, the Western world, discouraged and fearful of the Axis powers and increasingly ugly war, were inspired by the Greeks’ incredible victories. British Prime Minister Winston Churchill honored these acts of heroism, declaring that “Today we say that Greeks fight like heroes; from now on we will say that heroes fight like Greeks.”

Mr. Speaker, “Oxi” Day continues to serve as an inspiration to all those in this world who cherish democracy and freedom. It marks definence of fascism and ongoing commitmen to doing what is right. As a Greek-American,

I am proud to honor the memory of those brave patriots who fought for the freedom of their country and in so doing, helped secure it for the entire free world.

Today freedom-loving nations are battling a new enemy, not defined by nation but by hated of freedom and love of fear and oppression. As we continue to fight the Global War on Terror, we should take a page from Prime Minister Metaxas and the Greek people and echo their resolute “no” to those who threaten liberty. By doing so, we honor the spirit of “Oxi” Day and all those who have sacrificed to freedom.

IN RECOGNITION OF SENATOR GEORGE ONORATO
HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay standing New Yorker and a great American.

For more than half a century, George Onorato has dedicated his life to public service. In recognition of his courageous wartime service to our country in the United States Army, to the people of the State of New York, and to his beloved family, I ask for moderate and low income families.

Senior Onorato and his wife are equally dedicated to their community. A lifelong resident of Astoria, Senator Onorato, is active in nu-erous civic organizations. Since 1972, he has served as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Tanniner Regiment Democratic Club, one of the largest and most prominent Democratic Clubs in our nation’s greatest city.
Senator Onorato has also served as a Democratic Leader of the 36th Assembly District since 1977.

Mr. Speaker, in recognition of his courte-gious wartime service to our country in the United States Army, to the people of the State of New York, and to his beloved family, I ask civic life made by the Honorable George Onorato.

HON. MIKE THOMPSON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker,
I rise today to recognize State Senator Wesley Chesbro of Arcata, who is being honored for his 32 years of public service to the people of California.
Mr. Chesbro began his long and distinguished public service as a member of the Arcata City Council in 1974, where he fought to protect the environment and to promote social justice. He served as a member of the Humboldt County Board of Supervisors from 1980 to 1990, where he served with distinction as an effective and powerful advocate for local government, protecting California’s coastline and northern California’s water resources.

He served on many boards and commissions, was a founding member of the North Coast Environmental Center and the Arcata Community Recycling Center. His leadership role in advocating for community recycling led to his being appointed to serve on the State of California Integrated Waste Management Board for 8 years. His service resulted in many projects around the state that bear the imprint of his commitment to recycle, reuse and clean-up.

Senator Chesbro was elected to the State Senate in 1998 as the representative for the Second Senate District of California, which encompasses a portion of the state’s North Coast and the North Bay counties of Humboldt, Mendocino, Lake, Napa, Sonoma, and Solano. During his tenure he has become a statewide leader in the area of healthcare, mental health and developmental disabilities; resource, fisheries and coastal protection; school facilities funding; and veterans’ affairs.

A California native, Wes attended California State University, Humboldt and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of San Francisco. He is married to Cindy Chesbro and is the proud father of Alan and Collin.

Senator Chesbro is being honored for his contribution to one of our nation’s most precious rights—participation in the political system. He is being recognized for his outstanding contribution to the political process by the Humboldt County Democratic Central Committee as “Democrat of the Year,” 2006. His active commitment to the preservation of our political liberty is an example for all of his many admirers.

Mr. Speaker, it is appropiate at this time that we thank Senator Wesley Chesbro for his contributions and service to our country.

HONORING 21 YEARS OF HEAT’S ON
HON. BETTY McCOLLUM OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. McCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor “Heat’s On,” a partnership between Union Pipefitters and the Minnesota Mechanical Contractors Association that has been helping those in need for 21 years.

Winters are cold in Minnesota, and home heating is a basic necessity. Over the last two decades, St. Paul Pipefitters Local 455, Minneapolis Pipefitters Local 539 and local contractors come together each fall to volunteer their skills and time to inspect and fix furnaces, flames and smoke alarms for low-income senior citizens and disabled homeowners. Thankfully, most of these visits turn up no serious problems. However, when inspections do not go smoothly, these professionals are able to provide the help needed.

Volunteers sometimes uncover major problems. On average, 10 homes out of the 400 homes inspected each year have furnaces that must be replaced, and many of these homeowners cannot afford the expense. This year, pipefitters and contractors have come together yet again to establish a fund to help these homeowners with the cost of furnace replacement.

Thanks to the outstanding Heat’s On partnership, thousands of senior citizens and disabled Minnesotans have been able to remain safe in their homes. Just as important, they have a sense of relief knowing that their homes will be warm and comfortable as cold weather approaches.

I am proud to live in a community that cares—where union workers come together with small businesses for the good of our neighbors. This is a partnership that makes sense, which is why it has served as a model for other communities.

Mr. Speaker, please join me in commending all of the volunteers from St. Paul Pipefitters Local 455, Minneapolis Pipefitters Local 539 and the Minnesota Mechanical Contractors Association for 21 years of Heat’s On.

TRIBUTE TO CLEVELAND-CLIFFS (CCI)
HON. BART STUPAK OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor an important industry in my district that has been responsible for creating thousands of jobs in Michigan and for the settlement of Michigan’s Upper Peninsula. On October 2nd, Cleveland-Cliffs, CCI, will celebrate the milestone of 50 years of iron ore pellet production and 500 million tons of iron ore pellets produced.

Even in its earliest days, Cleveland-Cliffs’ history was characterized by pioneering risk-taking. Cleveland-Cliffs brought electrical power to Michigan’s Upper Peninsula by introducing electric haulage equipment at the Cleveland Lake Mine in 1892. Cleveland-Cliffs created the first geological department for an iron mining company in the Lake Superior region in Ishpeming, Michigan in 1900. In 1910, the company built the region’s first hydroelectric plant.

However, it was not until the middle of the 20th century that Cleveland-Cliffs made what is perhaps the company’s most valuable contribution, iron ore pellets. In the 1940s, it became apparent that the iron ore of the Marquette area that Cleveland-Cliffs had relied upon were being depleted. While the Marquette Iron Range still had millions of tons of leaner ore, a method had not yet been invented for making this leaner ore usable in blast furnaces. Once more, Cleveland-Cliffs exhibited leadership and innovation. Partnering with the U.S. Bureau of Mines, Cleveland-Cliffs researchers developed a technique for concentrating low-grade iron ore and pelletizing it to provide high-quality iron ore pellets for use in steel production in the company’s blast furnaces.

In 1956, CCI put this innovative technique into practice, producing its first iron ore pellets at the Eagle Mills pellet plant near Negaune, Michigan, just west of Marquette. While these first pellets were crude by today’s standards, the pellets could be used in the blast furnaces to make a high grade steel and they opened the way for the development of the pellet making operations of today.

The process of pelletizing low-grade iron ore revolutionized the iron ore business. Without this process, thousands of jobs in Michigan might never have been created and Marquette County would have missed out on billions of direct economic impact from these mines.

Today, Cleveland-Cliffs is the largest producer of iron ore pellets in North America.

This year, Cleveland-Cliffs reached another historic milestone. Celebrating the 500 million ton total is an important tribute to not only the Cleveland-Cliffs company, but also to the working men and women who have kept the pelletizing and mining operations running smoothly and productively over the past 50 years.

Mr. Speaker, from the beginning of its operations in Michigan’s Upper Peninsula to its innovation of the iron ore pelletizing process to the present day, Cleveland-Cliffs has demonstrated leadership and a forward thinking trailblazing spirit. As this great company marks this important occasion, I would ask that you and the U.S. House of Representatives join me in saluting the past and present employees of Cleveland-Cliffs, CCI’s entrepreneurial spirit, their steady growth, their innovations, and their contributions to the economy of the Great Lakes region.

ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE MODERNIZATION ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 5825, the “Electronic Surveillance Modernization Act.” Yet again, the Republican Majority has brought legislation to the Floor that disrespects the rights of American citizens. H.R. 5825 would give the executive branch broad discretion to eavesdrop on Americans without judicial review or sufficient oversight from Congress.

Since the terrorist attacks of 9/11, we have learned more and more about the secret programs run by this Administration that violated long-standing U.S. laws and policies. I know that we all agree that obtaining intelligence to prevent terrorist attacks is a high priority. However, innocent Americans should not have to worry that their phones have been tapped or their emails are being read.

It is a shame that the bill before us today leaves out the sensible provisions of the bipartisan Schiff-Flake-Harmarlinging substitute which would require congressional oversight of surveillance programs, extends from 72 hours to seven days the amount of time allowed to initiate surveillance in an urgent situation before going to the FISA court for a warrant, and increase the speed of the FISA process.

I urge my colleagues to vote no.
HONORING JUSTIN-SIENA HIGH SCHOOL OF NAPA

HON. MIKE THOMPSON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to mark the 40th anniversary of the establishment of Justin-Siena High School in Napa, California. Thousands of young men and women from Napa, Sonoma and Solano counties have benefited from the school’s rigorous curriculum and commitment to developing outstanding citizenship in its students.

Justin-Siena High School was created in 1972 from the merger of Justin High School and Siena High School. Both schools were founded in 1966, Justin High School by the Christian Brothers and Siena High School by the Dominican Sisters. Justin-Siena has benefited from the spirit and guidance of both orders in the decades since it was created, and the ideals under which each school was founded have guided its faculty and students.

A strong tradition of academic excellence has been the foundation of Justin-Siena’s status as a preeminent high school in Northern California. This has translated into success for the remarkable numbers of Justin-Siena’s graduates who continue their educations at colleges all over the United States. Additionally, the school has made a notable effort to ensure that its students learn the value of service to others as part of their education, and this has been of great benefit to the Napa Valley. The back-to-back sectional football championships Justin-Siena High School won in 2004 and 2005 remind us that athletics are not being neglected either.

Justin-Siena High School has made an important commitment to opening the opportunities afforded by the school to students of all backgrounds. This determination to ensure an accessible and affordable education is an important indicator of the role this school plays in our community.

Mr. Speaker, it is appropriate at this time that we recognize the 40th anniversary of Justin-Siena Catholic High School in Napa, California, and I congratulate the staff and students there. Justin-Siena has been a great asset to the Napa Valley and surrounding areas, and I expect it will continue educating fine young women and men for many generations to come.

CALLING ON THE SPEAKER TO BRING H. RES. 759 TO THE FLOOR FOR IMMEDIATE CONSIDERATION

HON. LANE EVANS
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. EVANS. Mr. Speaker, the sexual enslavement of more than 200,000 young women and girls by the Japanese Imperial Army before and during World War II is one of the most ignored and overlooked violations of human rights and international law in the 20th Century. These women, euphemistically known as “Comfort Women,” are now elderly and living their last years without a formal apology from the government that enslaved them. We cannot allow these survivors to fade into history without the closure that would come from official recognition, which is why my colleague, the Honorable CHRISTOPHER SMITH, and I introduced H. Res. 759, calling on the Japanese government to formally acknowledge and take responsibility for its involvement in this unspeakable atrocity.

Our resolution has broad Congressional support with 55 bipartisan cosponsors, including a substantial number of Members from the International Relations Committee, and the Congressional Women’s Caucus, Human Rights Caucus, Japanese American Congressional Caucus, Asian Pacific American Caucus, and American Indian Caucus. Additionally, on September 13, 2006, the resolution was marked up in the International Relations Committee by unanimous consent, and subsequently sent to the Speaker with an official request that it be considered on the floor under suspension of the rules. We have also seen an overwhelming response from the Korean American, Chinese American, Filipino American and Vietnamese American communities to the Speaker asking for the resolution to come before the entire House of Representatives. Amnesty International, as well as prominent Japanese-American Congressman and my close friend, MIKE HONDA, also strongly and vocally support H. Res. 759.

Mr. Speaker, it is beyond my understanding why H. Res. 759 has not been scheduled for floor consideration. There has been no visible controversy about the bill from Members of Congress.

Moreover, many of the bills also marked up in the September 13 International Relations Committee hearing have made it to floor and passed by voice vote. It is deeply disturbing that the leadership of this House is not interested in supporting human rights or reiterating the role of the Congress to oppose human trafficking and other similar atrocities that have occurred throughout the world. This is not a Japanese issue, this is not a Korean issue, this is not an American issue; this is an issue about human dignity. And it is a slap in the face to those who have worked so hard to bring this issue to light on the international stage and especially to those who have been directly or indirectly affected by sexual slavery for this resolution to die at the hands of the Speaker after it successfully completed all the necessary procedural steps and demonstrated broad bipartisan support.

I urge the Speaker in the strongest terms possible to allow H. Res. 759 to come before the full House under suspension of the rules before the end of the 109th Congress, so that we may once and for all put this issue to rest, before the end of the 109th Congress, so that we may once and for all put this issue to rest, and demonstrate broad bipartisan support.

I urge the Speaker to immediately consider H.R. 6191 and urge my colleagues to vote against the bill before us.

HON. SILVESTRE REYES
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. REYES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of S. 2562, the Veterans’ Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 2006.

S. 2562 would raise the rates of compensation for veterans with service-connected disabilities and would increase dependency and indemnity compensation for survivors of certain disabled veterans. Surviving spouses and children aged under 18 would be among those who would benefit from the compensation rate increase that would become effective on December 1, 2006. The increase in rates would be equal to the increase provided to Social Security recipients and is projected to be approximately 2.9 percent.

As a co-sponsor of H.R. 4843, the Veterans’ Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 2006, which passed the House of Representatives on June 27, 2006, I also strongly support the Senate version of the bill.

In recognizing the contributions that veterans have made to our country, it is vital that we provide compensation that reflects today’s rising cost-of-living. Many of the approximately 6.5 million veterans who reside in El Paso, Texas, depend largely on government compensation for supporting their families. Increasing the compensation rates for veterans and their families allows us to demonstrate our immense gratitude for those who have courageously served our country.

Mr. Speaker, nation’s veterans and their service to our appreciation for their service to our country. I ask all my colleagues to join me in voting favorably on S. 2562.

RECOGNIZING FINANCIAL PLANNING WEEK

SPREECH OF
HON. MAXINE WATERS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 973, “Recognizing Financial Planning Week.” I want to thank Mr. HINOJOJA and Mrs. BIGGERT for introducing the resolution. I am cosponsor of this resolution because I believe we must acknowledge the importance of financial planning for all Americans.

This resolution accepts the goal of financial planning as a tool to enable families and individuals to achieve their financial and life goals. It recognizes the relevance of financial planners, many of whom are essential to American individuals and families planning for their futures.

Sound financial planning must be integrated into any comprehensive life plan. Many of the financial instruments and investments require basic if not advanced financial planning to be used productively. Financial independence is a goal that I strongly advocate. Without financial independence it is impossible to function and to meet future challenges.

The Financial Planning Association has designated the week beginning October 2, 2006 as Financial Planning Week. The House officially recognizes the importance of financial planning and financial planners in the process, and this resolution embraces Financial Planning Week. Therefore, I urge my colleagues to support this resolution.

ON THE DEATH OF SECOND LIEUTENANT EMILY J.T. PEREZ

HON. STENY H. HOYER
OF MARYLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, the tragic loss of Second Lieutenant Emily J.T. Perez, a young soldier from Prince George’s County, MD, who gave the ultimate measure of sacrifice for our Nation in Iraq, saddens all of us.

And today, I want to pay tribute to this outstanding young American, as well as express my deepest condolences to her family, including her parents, Vicki and Daniel, and all of her friends and loved ones.

Second Lieutenant Perez of Fort Washington died on September 12 after a roadside bomb exploded under her Humvee. She is the first female graduate of West Point to die in Iraq.

But she should not be remembered solely for how she passed from this life and into God’s hands. She must be remembered for the outstanding and inspiring way in which she lived and those she touched during her 23 years.

Emily Perez was a trailblazer and a star in every sense of the word. She rose to the top of her class at Oxon Hill High School. She became the first minority female command sergeant in the history of the U.S. Military Academy. And she excelled at everything from track to the gospel choir.

As the Washington Post reported, friends and family members nicknamed her “Kobe,” after Los Angeles Lakers basketball player Kobe Bryant, because “everyone knew she could make the shots, in whatever she did.”

Second Lieutenant Perez was best known for her performance as a wing commander of Junior ROTC and then on the campus of West Point. She leaves behind a collection of young cadets inspired by her patriotism, as they prepare for military careers defending our Nation.

While incredibly strong willed, Perez also is remembered for her sensitivity to others, organizing an HIV/AIDS ministry in high school after family members contracted the virus.

Yet it was being a soldier that was Perez’s true calling. She was born into a military family; Heidelberg, Germany, knew from a very young age that she wanted to serve. After graduating from West Point, she was assigned to the Army’s 204th Support Battalion, 2nd Brigade, 4th Infantry Division and deployed to Iraq in December.

One of her mentors, Roger Pollard, told the Post: “I clearly remember thinking that she would definitely be the first female president of this country.”

Lost at the age of 23, we will never know what was in store for this extraordinary young woman. But one thing is certain: She heroically served her Nation in defense of our freedom, and we should all be proud of the full life she led in her short time here.

STATEMENT ON IOM RECOMMENDATIONS FOR FDA REFORM

HON. ROSA L. DELAURO
OF CONNECTICUT
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to bring to my colleague’s attention a New York Times editorial that comments on the recommendations by the Institute of Medicine (IOM) for reforming the Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

The editorial contends that IOM has wisely called for a significant increase in financing and personnel to correct the imbalance between the money and staff devoted to approving new drugs and the smaller resources available for post-market surveillance. The editorial also observes that, even when problems arise, the agency virtually has no authority to regulate drugs on the market unless there is overwhelming evidence that they are unsafe, which is seldom the case.

Although the nation is mired in budget deficits, the institute was wise to call for a large increase in financing and personnel for this crucially important regulator of public health. If Congress is too stingy to ante up more money, it should at least divert some of the drug industry’s user fees to surveillance after a drug’s approval.

The panel calls for the F.D.A. to evaluate the safety and effectiveness of drugs that are truly new, not just copycats, at least once every five years. It wants the agency to be explicit about what it is seeking in post-marketing studies and to impose fines, injunctions and withdrawals to enforce its decisions. In a departure from conventional wisdom, the panel also urges the F.D.A. to require that a substantial majority of the members of each of its advisory panels be free of significant financial involvement with companies whose interests might be affected. That undercuts the agency’s claims that there are not enough experts without ties to the drug industry.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO ANN SCHREIBER

HON. JON C. PORTER
WASHINGTON, DC

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Ann Schreiber for her community leadership and efforts on behalf of the State of Nevada.

Ann is a founder of the Muddy River Regional Environmental Impact Alleviation Committee (MRREIAC). Through Ann, this community based organization has contributed greatly to the Overton and Moapa Valley, Nevada communities by eradicating tamarisk plants, a non-native species to the area. I applaud Ann today for all of her hard work and dedication to removing this Western lands nemesis. In 1994, MRREIAC was established in order to protect the Muddy River, a spring fed river that flows from the upper part of Moapa to Lake Mead. During its inception, MRREIAC grappled with ways to remove the tamarisk plants that encased the Muddy River and left this important water source for rural Nevada a dry bank. A single tamarisk plant can consume hundreds of gallons of water daily and their abundance throughout the West is a pervasive problem.

Without being formally educated on the process of how to remove this invasive species, Ann sought the assistance of Clark County, Nevada Power, the US Fish and Wildlife Service, the National Park Service, and other various volunteer organizations. Through trial and error Ann and MRREIAC were able to successfully remove tamarisk plants which had once before choked out the native plant species. Today, water flows freely down the Muddy River and native species live and thrive.

I applaud Ann and MRREIAC for their initiative and for successfully employing inmates from the Indian Springs Correctional Facility. Not only did these inmates receive vital work skills, but they were able to contribute to the overall success of MRREIAC’s initiative.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to honor Ann Schreiber for her relentless dedication to water conservation efforts and to the safety of our community and the State of Nevada. She is an example to all of how one person’s dedication to a cause can create lasting change. I wish Ann all the best on her future endeavors.

HONORING SEYMOUR SIMON

HON. RAHM Emanuel
CHICAGO, IL

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. EMANUEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of a great and respected Chicagoan, Justice Seymour Simon, who recently passed away at the age of 91. Seymour was a dear friend of mine, and a passionate advocate for justice who exemplified all of the finest qualities of true public service.

Seymour was born on the 10th of August, 1915 in Chicago, IL. He attended law school at Northwestern University, graduating first in his class. He served his country in World War II and was honored with the Legion of Merit medal.

After his service in the Pacific, Seymour returned to his hometown to practice law and serve his community in elected office. He served two separate terms as alderman of the 40th Ward, from 1955 to 1961, and then from 1967 until 1974. From 1961 to 1967, Seymour represented all of Cook County on the Cook County Board of Commissioners, rising to board president in 1961. During his career Seymour also served as an attorney for the U.S. Department of Justice Antitrust Division, as president of the Cook County Forest Preserve District and as a member of the Chicago Public Building Commission.

In 1974, he was elected to the Appellate Court, on which he served for 6 years. He was elected to the Illinois Supreme Court in 1980. As a member of the Illinois Supreme Court, Justice Simon exhibited a moral drive that led him to dissent from the court’s decision in many cases, and earned him the enduring admiration of his colleagues and the people of Illinois.

Justice Simon was an adamant opponent of the death penalty and sided against the court in several decisions which were later reversed by the U.S. Supreme Court. In retirement, he continued to fight against inequities in the prosecution of Illinois death penalty cases. Former Governor George Ryan cited several letters from Justice Simon as a factor in his decision to impose a moratorium on all executions in the State of Illinois.

Seymour’s life of public service was honored with numerous awards, among them an honorary doctor of laws degree from John Marshall Law School and the Northwestern University Alumni Association Award of Merit. Seymour passed away in Northwestern Memorial Hospital on September 26th after battling with cancer.

Mr. Speaker, Seymour Simon was an inspiration to all who knew him, and I am honored to have considered him a friend and mentor. I wish to express my deepest condolences to his family, and ask all of my colleagues to join me in remembering the life and legacy of this great American.

HONORING DEBRA NAUMAN, CHAIR AND FOUNDER OF GIANT STEPS OF ILLINOIS

HON. JUDY BIGGERT
CHICAGO, IL

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mrs. BIGGERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor an outstanding woman whose commitment and passion for a great cause led her to accomplish a very good thing for her community and state.

The woman is Debra Nauman. The cause is educating autistic children. And the very good thing accomplished is a place called Giant Steps, Illinois.

When Debra’s son Riley entered pre-school, she became concerned about the quality of education he would receive as an autistic child. But instead of becoming disheartened, Debra Nauman became inspired. She was determined to provide her son with an education that would facilitate his mental and physical progression.

Her resolve led her to Giant Steps, a school for children with autism, in Montreal, Canada. Here was a school that featured an environment that nurtured the autistic mind and provided therapeutic services. Here was what she was seeking for Riley. But here—Montreal, Canada—was a very long way away from her home and business in Illinois.

It was then when Debra sought such a school back home and couldn’t find one, she founded her own.

Armed only with her tenacity and infectious enthusiasm, she recruited a board of directors, raised funds, rented space, hired personnel and opened the doors at Giant Steps, Inc. Illinois, an academic and therapeutic day school for children with autism spectrum disorders in Burr Ridge, Illinois.

As we celebrate the tenth anniversary of Giant Steps of Illinois we continue to fight against inequities in the fact that we cannot recognize Debra Nauman. We celebrate her because, despite the challenges she faces as a single mom running her own business, she did not compromise when it came to her autistic son and his needs. Debra recognized long ago that every child deserves an education that will help him or her progress in life. She continues to work tirelessly to improve Giant Steps of Illinois and expand its programs. In so doing, she has made a world of difference in the lives of so many autistic children and their families in Illinois.

Mr. Speaker, once again, I would like to extend my sincere gratitude to Debra Nauman and congratulate her on Giant Steps of Illinois’ tenth anniversary.

A TRIBUTE TO ANNA M. CABALLERO

HON. SAM FARR
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. FARR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the achievements of Anna Caballero. Anna first moved to Salinas in 1982 and started a law office specifically to provide excellent legal representation for working people. She promptly became active in town, and due to her immense enthusiasm she was quickly recognized as a community leader. She served on the City Council for seven years, including four years as Vice Mayor. In 1998 Anna was elected as the first female Mayor in the 126 year history of the city of Salinas, and has hence served four terms.

During her tenure as city Mayor, Anna was a driving force in improving life for the people of Salinas. Some of her most successful projects were the diversification of Salinas’s economic base, improving the affordability of local housing, the redevelopment of historic downtown Salinas, and ensuring the permanent funding of the Salinas library. The key to her success was her innate ability to sit people down, get straight to the issue and have them reach a consensus. Furthermore, Anna used her talents to streamline the Mayor’s office and develop partnerships with neighborhood, parent groups, labor groups, school districts, local businesses and the greater Salinas community.

Anna’s accomplishments in the community have not gone unnoticed. In 1996, Anna was honored with the “Athena” award for “entrepreneurial excellence” by the Salinas Area Chamber of Commerce, the most prestigious honor the Chamber can bestow upon a fellow businessperson. In 2000, the Monterey County Lawyers Association granted Anna the Justice Ribbon Award, the Association’s highest award for members who bring distinction to the legal profession through commitment to public service.

Anna has continued to reach out to the community. She is an avid volunteer coach for local baseball and soccer teams. She works with the Mexican-American Women’s National Association of “MAMA”, to raise scholarship money for young women continuing to higher education. Anna is also an Executive Director of the non-profit Partners for Peace, dedicated to developing multi-disciplinary partnerships, which share community resources to bring about community change.

Mr. Speaker, I would like once more to applaud Anna Caballero’s many accomplishments. On behalf of the United States Congress, I would like to congratulate her on her successful career, and express my sincere gratitude for her commitment to the community.

URGING THE PRESIDENT TO APPOINT A PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL ENVoy FOR SUDAN

SPEECH OF

HON. RUSH D. HOLT
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, September 25, 2006

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the decisive actions taken this week by the U.S. Congress to address the ongoing genocide and worsening humanitarian crisis in Sudan.

I am pleased that the House of Representatives has again passed H.R. 3127, The Darfur Peace and Accountability Act of 2006. The House originally considered this bill on April 5, 2006, but it took the Senate more than five months to pass it, finally doing so on September 21st. This important bill would block the assets and deny visas and entry to any individual (or family member) responsible for acts of genocide, war crimes, or crimes against humanity in Sudan. H.R. 3127 authorizes support for the African Union peacekeeping mission in Darfur. It prohibits U.S. assistance to a country in violation of U.N. Security Council embargo on military assistance to Sudan. It also urges a Security Council resolution supporting the African Union peacekeeping mission. I look forward to the President signing this important measure into law.

The House has also considered and agreed to H. Res. 723 and H. Res. 992, both of which I am proud to cosponsor. These resolutions call on President Bush to take decisive action to respond to the ongoing crisis in the Sudan. In June, I joined with many of my colleagues to call on President Bush to appoint a Presidential Special Envoy for Sudan. Appointing a Special Envoy would dovetail to the international community that the United States remains engaged and committed at the highest level to bring peace to Darfur. In his address to the United Nations last week, President Bush announced his appointment of former United States Agency for International Development Administrator Andrew Natsios as Special Envoy. I welcome and applaud this move.

The United Nations Security Council has again passed H.R. 3127, The Darfur Peace and Accountability Act of 2006. The Senate previously considered this bill on May 9, 2006, but it took the House longer than five months to pass it, finally doing so on September 21st. remained focused and dedicated to ending the genocide and healing the wounds of a prolonged civil war. Justice must be served on those who perpetrated these heinous immoral crimes and we must help rebuild and restore the lives of the people who, through the grace of God, survived this heinous war.

After the systematic genocide of the Holocaust, we said never again. After the horrors of Rwanda and the Kosovo we committed ourselves to preventing genocide before it surfaced elsewhere. Sadly, we are to adding Darfur to this list. It is long past time for the United Nations to become involved in Sudan. The U.N. needs to deploy a robust and sizable international mission to end the genocide and then work to bring peace to the Sudan. President Bush was right last week to suggest that it may be time to override the objections of the Sudanese government in order to send international peacekeepers into Darfur. After his speech to the U.N., Bush said, "[There’s] genocide taking place in Sudan... Now is the time for the U.N. to act.'’

I call on the President to continue to push for action on this issue with world leaders, internationalize the response, and advocate in the United Nations to end the genocide in Darfur. I pray that the suffering will soon end, and that we will not soon forget our brothers and sisters in Africa.

STATEMENT ON H. RES. 759
HON. MICHAEL M. HONDA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. HONDA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res. 759, a resolution that expresses the sense of Congress that the Government of Japan should formally issue an apology for the sexual enslavement of young women during the imperial occupation of Asia and World War II. I am disappointed that this non-controversial resolution was not on the suspension calendar this week.

The women and children suffering in over 200,000 "comfort women" in Asia before and during World War II is one of the greatest and most averted tragedies of the 20th century. These women were ordinary and innocent citizens, ranging from young girls who had barely reached adolescence, to married women with children at home. These women shared in common, coercion into sex slavery by the Japanese Imperial Army.

Equally disturbing is Japan’s modern and democratic government’s refusal to issue a formal apology for this atrocity. I believe these women deserve a clear and unambiguous apology and reparations from the Japanese government to recognize the fact that their personal dignity was ripped from them.

In 1999, when I served in the California State Assembly, I authored Assembly Joint Resolution 27, which called on Congress to urge the Japanese government to issue an apology for the victims of the Rape of Nanking, comfort women, and POWs who were used as slave laborers. The resolution was ultimately passed, and urged Congress to pass the resolution. Now, 7 years after the success of AJR27, I stand united with my colleagues in support of H. Res. 759. I commend my good friend LANE EVANS for his tireless work on this issue, and I thank him for his courage and leadership. I look forward to carrying on his work and legacy after his retirement this year.

Given the wide bipartisan support for this resolution, as evidenced by its 55 co-sponsors, the House, the Senate, and the Congressional Caucus, the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus, the Congressional Caucus for Women’s Issues, the Congressional Human Rights Caucus, and the Congressional Caucus on Korea; and its non-controversial language and recent passage by Unanimous Consent out of the House International Relations Committee, I simply cannot accept that H. Res. 759 is too controversial or lacks the importance to be on the suspension calendar.

It is only right that we provide justice for the victims of the Pacific theater with the same fervor as we did for those in the European theater of WWII. Congress has a moral duty to formally apologize for this atrocity. I believe these women were ordinary and innocent citizens, who were coerced into sex slavery, barely reached adolescence, to married women during the imperial occupation of Asia and World War II.

These women were ordinary and innocent citizens, who were coerced into sex slavery, unable to choose their own destiny. Some were willing to become a "comfort woman," because they were forced to marry and have children. Some were taken from their families and forced to become "comfort women" to serve the Japanese Imperial Army.

The Congress has a moral duty to formally apologize for this atrocity. I believe these women were ordinary and innocent citizens, who were coerced into sex slavery, barely reached adolescence, to married women during the imperial occupation of Asia and World War II. that people could practice religion as they saw fit, but also to prevent government from meddling in organized religion. Those who seek to expand religious expression by allowing the government to participating in it do great harm to the religious and non-religious.

IN RECOGNITION OF ARMANDO PEREZ

HON. NYDIA M. VELÁZQUEZ OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives to recognize the life and contributions of a tremendous community advocate, Armando Perez.

For over 30 years, Armando Perez was an outspoken advocate who championed the rights of the Lower East Side’s poor and working class. Armando was the co-founder, and Artistic Director of CHARAS/EI Bohio Cultural and Community Center—a building in our community which recently received landmark status as it embodied the spirit of the neighborhood’s history of organizing and grassroots activism—largely due to the work and dedication of Mr. Perez.

Armando was a true champion and leader within our community. Not only was he a Democratic district leader for his neighborhood, but he was also a tireless community activist on multiple fronts. Armando can be credited with helping to lead the fight to preserve the character and history of the Lower East Side—and succeeding.

Those that had the honor of working alongside Armando, and knowing him on a personal level, remember him for both his strong sense of honesty and for his humor. Many were inspired by the feelings of trust he instilled in others, the passion he had for the pursuit of justice, and the encouragement he offered to all in fighting for the betterment of our community.

Mr. Perez spent his lifetime helping others, especially the poor and working class. His commitment, contributions and leadership are now engrained in the Lower East Side. In honor of Armando’s work and dedication to our community, a local street, E. Ninth, will be renamed for him. This is a small token of appreciation for all that Mr. Perez gave to our community—but one that will be recognized for generations to come, keeping his memory alive and vibrant throughout our neighborhood.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I rise with my colleagues in the House of Representatives to honor the life and contributions of Armando Perez—a true champion.

CONGRATULATING JAMES T. CASSIDY, MD, ON HIS MEDICAL CAREER AND OUTSTANDING SERVICE

HON. KENNY C. HULSHOF OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. HULSHOF. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the career of a great Missouri pediatrician, a physician who has practiced for years in my home town of Columbia, MO. He literally wrote the book on pediatric rheumatology, and has provided outstanding health care over a distinguished medical career. He is being honored at the Cassidy Symposium at the University of Missouri School of Medicine on October 7, 2006.

Dr. Cassidy is an outstanding pediatric rheumatologist, well-known nationally and internationally. He has been a leader in the field of rheumatology for over 40 years and a founding member of many of the subspecialty organizations.

Dr. Cassidy was born in 1920 in Oil City, PA, and received both his undergraduate and medical education at the University of Michigan. He completed 2 years of active duty in the U.S. Navy and 7 years in the Naval Reserve. He returned to the University of Michigan to complete his residency in Intellectual Medicine and a rheumatology fellowship in the Rackham Arthritis Research Unit under the mentorship of Drs. Roseman and Johnson. He went on to the faculty in 1963 and worked his way up the ranks to Professor of Intellectual Medicine and Pediatrics in 1974. In 1984 he was recruited as Professor and Chair of Pediatrics at Creighton University School of Medicine in Omaha, NE, and then 4 years later as professor in the Department of Child Health and Human Development at the University of California, San Francisco, and Chief of Pediatric Rheumatology at the University of Missouri-Columbia. He became emeritus in 1996 and continued to staff his arthritis clinics until this year.

He is a Diplomate of both the American Board of Internal Medicine and the American Board of Pediatrics and their respective rheumatology sub-boards.

He has received many honors and awards including Phi Beta Kappa, Alpha Omega Alpha, Excellence in Education Award from the University of Missouri SOM, National Service Citation from the Arthritis Foundation, and Master of the American College of Rheumatology (ACR). He is a member of a number of prestigious organizations including the American Academy of Pediatrics, the College of Physicians, the American College of Rheumatology, the British Society of Rheumatology, the American Pediatric Society and the Society of Pediatric Research.

He has served the academic and the rheumatology community admirably with service on numerous committees including as a Founding Member of the Council on Pediatric Rheumatology of the ACR and Chair of the Academic Pediatric Rheumatology Blue Ribbon Committee, the BOD of the Arthritis Foundation, and the first Executive Committee of the American Juvenile Arthritis Organization, and Chair of the Executive Committee for the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Through Dr. Cassidy’s efforts, the Missouri Department of Health established the Juvenile Arthritis Care Coordination Program in 1993 to help families obtain family-centered, community-based, coordinated care for children diagnosed with juvenile arthritis.

Along with Drs. Brewer and Kredich, he was instrumental in the development of the Subboard of Pediatric Rheumatology and the acceptance of educational training programs in Pediatric Rheumatology by the American Board of Pediatrics.

He has published over 150 manuscripts and book chapters and is the founding author of the “Textbook of Pediatric Rheumatology” now in its fifth Edition and the leading textbook in the field. He is a frequent invited speaker, having addressed audiences all over the world.

In summary, he is the consummate academician and a founding member of pediatric rheumatology as a recognized subspecialty. He is a great American, he has treated my constituents and their children with dedication and sympathy, and I am grateful they have brought his distinguished career to my attention. I congratulate Dr. Cassidy on his many accomplishments, and wish him well in his future endeavors.

HONORING CAROLYN TATE

HON. MAXINE WATERS OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Speaker, Carolyn Tate, UAW Retired Workers International Representative, was born in Freeport, Illinois, on June 23, 1945. Only daughter of James and Vinnie Arnold she also has three brothers, James Arnold, Jr., Columbus, Ohio, David Arnold, Columbus, Ohio, and Bennie Tate, Jr., in December 1964, and had three children, Steven, Karen, and Tracy Tate. She has one grandson Steven M. Tate and a second grandson on the way.

Carolyn attended Berkeley High School, Berkeley California, and graduated in June of 1963. Continued her education by attending Merritt College, Oakland, California, and received her Associate in Arts Degree, Liberal Arts Studies in June 1980. Being aware of the importance of continuing her learning experience in 2001 Carolyn was accorded senior status at Cal State University, Long Beach, where she intends to pursue a B.A. Degree in her new role as a retiree.

Carolyn’s work and professional experiences are quite interesting to follow. In her search for short term employment she interviewed with General Motors Part Depot in September 1973. Interesting to note, that job led to 33 years of service with the UAW and General Motors. Her plant closed and she relocated to Sparks, Nevada in 1980. She immediately became involved with UAW Local 1262 and became the Financial Secretary of the Local and held that elected position for 12 years. In 1988, she implemented the first V-CAP check-off drive in the GM facility which tripled Local 2162’s contributions to the UAW’s V-CAP regional program.

Remembering having heard UAW President Walter Reuther’s old saying that there was a definite connection between the ballot box and collective bargaining, she decided to become very active in the Democratic party of Nevada. During the party activities led her to hold various positions which included Washoe County Registrar from 1986 to 1992. It was in Nevada that Carolyn, not only became an extremely active UAW Local Union officer, but she also began to be more deeply involved in community activities making her a committed activist for social change. In 1989, UAW leadership noticed this active Local union official and was appointed by Vice-President Stephen P.
Yokich, as the UAW quality network representative.

Having shown a quick grasp of the make up of UAW activities, she was recommended for an appointment to the International Staff by Region 6 Director Bruce Lee. Upon that recommendation in August 1990, UAW President Owen commuters him to the International Staff and was relocated to the UAW headquarters in Artesia, California. Her first assignment was an International Organizer, and shortly thereafter there was an opening in the UAW Retirement Workers Department and she was assigned to that position where she spent the last 14 years. In that capacity, Carolyn coordinated and implemented UAW senior activities, programs, political action, lobbying events and all Get Out to Vote/registration Drives in California, Nevada, Oregon, Arizona and Washington State for over twenty-seven thousand UAW Retirees. Under Director Jim Wells leadership, since 1995, she elevated Region 5—West Retiree’s to holding the number one title for UAW V—CAP fundraising drives.

Carolyn Tate’s experiences as a working mother, union organizer, international representative, dedicated community activist, and political action and lobbying activities, make her an outstanding model for others, male and female, to follow and emulate. She has proven that in spite of obstacles that one faces in life, one can always strive to improve oneself by sticking to it and giving service to others.

HONORING NEELY MOODY
HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the distinguished public service of Mr. Neely Moody, who until recently, served as Inspector General of the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA).

Throughout his 43 years as a public servant, Mr. Moody has distinguished himself as a dedicated leader, one who faced challenges with determination, persistence and balance. This was true early in his 20-year U.S. Air Force career, and remained true throughout his 23-year DIA career.

From the time of his March 2003 appointment as DIA Inspector General until his retirement, Mr. Moody capably led the Office of the Inspector General in promoting the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of DIA and defense intelligence programs and operations.

Prior to his appointment as DIA Inspector General, Mr. Moody served as the Chief, Diversity Management and Equal Opportunity, where he effectively led the effort to develop and implement DIA employment opportunity, and diversity management policy and procedures. During his tenure as Chief, Personnel Security Division, DIA, he effectively managed the agency’s personnel security program and promulgated Director of Central Intelligence personnel security policies within the Department of Defense.

During his military career, Mr. Moody served in diverse career specialties of security, counterintelligence, law enforcement, munitions maintenance, aircraft maintenance, and special investigations. He distinguished himself throughout his active duty career, including in his final assignment as a Chief in the U.S. Air Force Office of Special Investigations.

Mr. Moody’s service to our nation has been recognized for his service and achievements in a host of ways. He is the recipient of the Presidential Rank Award for Meritorious Execu-wireless network technologies.

The Minority Serving Institution Digital and Wireless Technology Opportunity Act of 2005

HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Minority Serving Institution Digital and Wireless Technology Opportunity Act.

For years, reports have indicated that minority-serving institutions such as Historically Black Colleges and Universities have produced the majority of African American scientists and engineers. These colleges and universities have created a strong pipeline of technical excellence among minority populations. Young African American and Hispanic students, rising through the ranks and full of promise, see role models in the professors and scientists with whom they interact at these institutions.

The absence of consistent role models is a major contributing factor of why underrepresented minorities have faced challenges in increasing their numbers in our high-tech domestic workforce.

The Minority Serving Institution Digital and Wireless Technology Opportunity Act would establish a program at the National Science Foundation to award grants to such institutions to provide educational instruction in digital and wireless network technologies.

If enacted, the bill would also help minority-serving institutions attract their digital and wireless infrastructure and would also give them an opportunity to provide input for how grant proposals would be reviewed and evaluated.

One other nice point about the bill is that it encourages partnership formation between the institutions and third parties by requiring a matching recipient contribution of 25 percent of the federal assistance amount.

Mr. Speaker, I believe that minority serving education institutions are extremely valuable in supporting our domestic minority workforce. Historically Black Colleges and Universities; Hispanic-, Alaska Native-, and Native Hawaiian-serving institutions; tribally controlled colleges and universities; and others tend to have a higher share of student population and deserve our support.

Mr. Speaker, I support this bill and urge my colleagues to vote for its passage.

IN MEMORY OF JIM WADE
HON. RALPH M. HALL
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. HALL. Mr. Speaker, it is a privilege to pay tribute today to one of my best friends from childhood, Jim Wade of Dallas, TX, who passed away in May at the age of 85. Jim and I grew up together in Rockwall, TX and shared many wonderful times over the years. He was a great patriot who was devoted to his family, his State, and his country.

Jim attended Rockwall High School, studied at the University of Texas and graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1943. He served his country in General George Patton’s 3rd Army in England, landing on Utah Beach in July 1944. His service in France, Luxembourg, Germany, and Czechoslovakia earned him five battle stars as well as a Bronze Star Medal for individual bravery for relief efforts of Bastogne in the Battle of the Bulge. Jim’s later service included tours in China and Taiwan before he resigned with the rank of major.

Jim lived in Denver, San Antonio, and Beeville and returned to Dallas in 1959 to begin a long and distinguished career with New York Life Insurance Company. Jim and I shared an interest in public service and served together in the Texas State Senate. He also served in the Texas House of Representatives.

Jim was the last of 11 children born to Henry Wade and Lula Wade, all of whom preceded him in death. Jim followed in the steps of his father, the late Henry Wade, who was a longtime County Judge of Rockwall County, and in the steps of his brother, the late Henry Wade, Jr., famous Dallas District Attorney for many years, and along with the late Faires Wade, the late Ney Wade, the late Reese Wade, the late Mart Wade, and the late Joe Wade, all former criminal District Attorneys of Rockwall County, with Joe Wade also a longtime District Judge of Rockwall County. As they graduated from law school, the father would get them elected County Attorney and make the incumbent son move out of office to make room for the latest law school graduate. They were all successful lawyers, and Jim gave some good years to Dallas County as their State Senator. Four other family members, sisters Carrie, Noni and Lillian, and brother Dr. Colquitt Wade also were successful in life and active in politics.

Jim was dedicated to his family and served his country and State with pride and dignity. His many leadership positions brought him respect, but his friendships brought him admiration. He enjoyed the relationships he cultivated with friends at the Dallas Country Club, where he was a member, as well as at the Highland Park Presbyterian Church, where he worshiped. He was an extraordinary businessman, civil servant, family man and friend.

Jim was married for 50 years to Madeline Hopkins, who preceded him in death in 1994, and is survived by his son Kirk and wife Laura Sue of Dallas and their sons Reese and Roby; and daughter Chris Bartlett and husband Tim of Colorado Springs. He was married to Sara Lees Glover from 1995 until her death in 2001, and for the last three years of his life was married to Stephanie May. He also is survived by stepdaughter Valerie and her husband Roger Smith, stepson Bill Glover and 5 step-grandchildren.

Tongue or pen, The saddest are these:

1958 and cancer and defied the predictions of his doctors to make it back home. As his son Bart said in his eulogy, his Dad never once believed that he would not make a recovery, not be able to walk again, or not make the next baseball game of one of his grandsons. He never lost his determination, never lost hope and never lost his good disposition despite the circumstances. That is the Jim Wade we loved and will always remember.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me in memory and in honor of this great American and my good friend—Jim Wade. He will be truly missed.

TRIBUTE TO ROBERTA HOLLOWELL

HON. LYNN C. WOOLSEY OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I, along with my colleagues, Mr. Thompson and Ms. Schakowsky, rise today to honor Roberta Hollowell of Santa Rosa, California, who passed away on August 10, 2006, after a two-year battle with cancer. We know that, though she has left this earthly plane, she will be continuing her work as a feminist activist elsewhere. Hers is the kind of voice that will never be silenced, and her spirit lives on in the many she inspired.

Born 77 years ago in Brooklyn, NY, Roberta moved to California as a teenager when her father took an engineering job in the Bay Area. She graduated from UC Berkeley (where she met her husband Ellis Hollowell) and later earned a master's degree from Mills College. The couple had three children before divorcing in 1962.

In 1962 and later to Santa Rosa. At that time, Roberta began teaching English at Healdsburg High School, a position she held for 23 years.

As an activist, Roberta was a leader and member in many organizations, and as a retired teacher, education was one of her passions. She was active in the California Teachers Association (CTA), National Education Association (NEA), the Sonoma County Educators Council, and the Healdsburg Area Teachers Association. Other affiliations included National Organization for Women, Sierra Club, NAACP, Sonoma County Commission on the Status of Women, and California State Democratic Central Committee.

Her union work and liberal politics probably started as a family trait, but Roberta blurred her own path and was a mainstay of the Sonoma County Democratic Party. Throughout her life she was active in a host of issues that benefited from her skills and contacts.

But it is Roberta's personal contacts and example that we remember the most. Stories told at her funeral attest to her unique ability to bring others into the fold. She insisted that since we all have voices we should use them. Her humor and warmth as well as her determination, leadership, and sense of organization were all key to her success. And fond nicknames, like The General and La Jefa, were also marks of respect.

Roberta was very proud of her wonderful family. She is survived by her daughter Mardi, her son Tom, grandchildren Ryan and Danielle, and great-granddaughter Melody Ann. Her son David preceded her in death in 1995.

Mr. Speaker, we are honored to have been counted among Roberta Hollowell's many friends. We will miss her support and inspiration and will carry her legacy with us.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I, along with my colleague Congresswoman Lynn Woolsey, rise today to honor Roberta Hollowell of Santa Rosa, California, who passed away on August 10, 2006, after a two-year battle with cancer. ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE MODERNIZATION ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. JANICE D. SCHAKOWSKY OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Ms. SCHAKOWSKY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to H.R. 5825, the Electronic Surveillance Modernization Act.

I believe that President Bush's secret warrantless wiretapping program was a violation of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) and violated the civil rights that make this country so strong and respected. Once this program was unveiled, the Administration's response was not to change the program to comply with American law but to change American law to comply with this program. As a result, we have the bill before us—legislation that would make truly far-reaching changes to FISA and will have alarming consequences for democracy and civil liberties.

H.R. 5825 expands the definition of "electronic surveillance" to include Americans' international emails and phone calls. It authorizes the warrantless electronic surveillance and physical searches of Americans' emails and phone calls for 60-days after an "armed attack" or 60 days before and after an "imminent attack" against the United States. Those 60-day periods can be indefinitely renewed. Moreover, “imminent attack” is defined as an “attack likely to cause death, serious injury, or substantial economic damage.” What is “substantial economic damage?” This definition is so sweeping that hacking into a computer could fit. The bill also strips all courts of jurisdiction over intelligence cases, preventing anyone from seeking redress for illegal or unconstitutional electronic surveillance.

All of us want to be protected from terrorists, but we can protect our Nation without expanding the FISA law so broadly that innocent people can be spied on by their own government without reasonable justification, trampling on our civil liberties. The FISA law already has measures that take into account the need for emergency surveillance, and the need for urgency cannot be used as a rationale for going around America’s law. FISA allows wire-tapping without a court order in an emergency: the court must simply be notified within 72 hours. The government is aware of this emergency power and has used it repeatedly.

Mr. Speaker, the United States is a Nation built upon adherence to the laws. And no one—not even a U.S. president—is above the law. Our system of checks and balances must be maintained if American democracy is to be preserved. I urge all of my colleagues to vote “no” to H.R. 5825.

TRIBUTE TO B. MONROE HIERS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. CLIBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a great public servant and Southern gentleman. Mr. B. Monroe Hiers is retiring as the attorney for the City of Bamberg, South Carolina, a post he has held for more than forty years.

Monroe Hiers was born on October 15, 1923 in the town of Ehrhardt, South Carolina to Mr. and Mrs. B.W. Hiers. In 1943, he graduated from Wofford College and went on to earn a Juris Doctor from the University of South Carolina, a post he has held for more than 50 years as the Bamberg County Veterans Service Officer. He has dedicated more than 50 years of his life to serving others through his profession and his community involvement. I am confident the City of Bamberg and the State of South Carolina will continue to benefit from his extraordinary commitment even as he officially retires.

On this occasion, I offer my best wishes and Godspeed.

HONORING TEXAS STATE REPRESENTATIVE AND EDUCATION ADVOCATE DR. ROBERT D. HUNTER

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. MARCHANT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in honor of Dr. Robert “Bob” Hunter for his 50 plus years of public service in the state of Texas and his devotion to higher education.

Dr. Hunter’s commitment to educational institutions, the millions of collegiate students and potential students in the state of Texas make him more than worthy of this recognition. Dr. Hunter has displayed a loyalty to the state of Texas and his devotion to higher education.

I have spoken in numerous situations where Bob Hunter has been recognized for his dedication to education. As an advocate for education he has served on numerous boards and committees, including being appointed by then Governor of Texas, Dolph Briscoe, to the Advisory Council for Technical-Vocational Education.

After serving in the Navy as a Security Aide to two Admirals in the South Pacific, Dr. Hunter returned home to Abilene, TX. He began work at his Alma Mater, Abilene Christian University where, before his retirement in 1993, was named the 13th President. In recognition of his diligent work to further higher education, Bob has received Honorary Doctoral degrees from many highly regarded institutions, including: Pepperdine University, Texas Wesleyan College, University of St. Thomas, McMurry University, Austin College, and Abilene Christian University. Currently Dr. Hunter is serving his 10th term as a member of the Texas House of Representatives.

An asset to the state of Texas and its higher education system, Dr. Hunter has consistently served without want of recognition. However, today I commend him for his diligent public service efforts in furthering higher education.

IN HONOR OF LYNETTE AND FRANKIE BISCONTI

HON. DONALD A. MANZULLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, Lynette Bisconti is a courageous young woman who rejoiced when she discovered she was pregnant, only to soon learn she had breast cancer. Six physicians told her to terminate the pregnancy. Thankfully, the advice of these physicians and delivered a healthy baby boy. Her inspiring story is set forth in the attached excerpt from a recent national magazine article.

[From the Family Circle Magazine Oct. 2006]

We Fought Back

(BY Sandra Gordon)

Lynette was 20 years old in 1997 when she learned she was pregnant. But a month later that happiness turned to heartache. After having surgery to remove what was presumed to be a benign cyst on her left breast, she was told she had cancer. “The doctors said that the hormones my body was producing would likely fuel the cancer, and that I had to terminate the pregnancy immediately to save my own life,” she says. Lynette spent the next few days wrestling with the dilemma of what to do and at the same time began to experience bleeding that made her think she might be miscarrying.

When she went in for an ultrasound, the obstetrician told her, “This little guy is hanging on.” Lynette made up her mind in that moment. “My heart leapt,” says Lynette. “I knew that no matter what, no matter how bad it got, my baby and I would get through this together.”

Biggest hurdle: Finding physicians who respected her decision. Three weeks after her diagnosis Lynette had a mastectomy. “The lab report was bad. I had an aggressive cancer that had spread to several lymph nodes. I was told that if I went ahead with chemotherapy, which was the next step, my baby might die or be brain damaged.” Six other physicians she consulted said the same thing: She had to terminate her pregnancy and get into chemotherapy immediately. “I left every visit crying,” Lynette says.

After a truly agonizing first trimester, Lynette got a referral from a family friend that led her to the Cancer Treatment Centers of America (CTCA), in Zion, Illinois, which was 75 miles from her home in Menomonee Falls, Wisconsin. “At the CTCA I met doctors and medical personnel who treated me with respect and compassion.”

Advice to others: If you’re not getting the answers you want, keep searching. While going to see more than six doctors may seem crazy, it might be necessary, says Lynette. She was not satisfied until she found a place that would treat her the way she wanted to be treated. She decided to go on a fractionated-dose chemotherapy (smaller doses of chemo over a greater length of time), which was considered gentler for both her and baby’s sake. “They also allowed me to refuse anti-nausea medication and steroids, to avoid exposing my baby to those drugs,” she says.

Life goes on: Lynette gave birth to a healthy baby boy on August 31, 1998. “When I held Frankie for the first time, I just thought, We did it!” Frankie continues to thrive today, and Lynette has been in remission for eight years now.

CREDIT RATING AGENCY REFORM ACT OF 2006

SPEECH OF
HON. MICHAEL G. FITZPATRICK
OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 2006

Mr. FITZPATRICK of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I would like to extend and revise my remarks made on September 27th regarding S. 3850, the Credit Rating Agency Reform Act of 2006. I submit the attached statement by Brian Carroll, E1957, 232 Number 186 of the Legal Intelligencer.

[From the Legal Intelligencer, Sept. 26, 2005]

ENRON SCANDALS SPUR PROPOSED CREDIT RATING LEGISLATION

(By Brian Carroll)
The regulatory legacy of Enron, WorldCom and other major accounting frauds remains a matter of national significance. While the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 fundamentally recast the statutory responsibilities of chief executive and financial officers, audit committees and auditors, it took a different tack when it came to credit rating agencies: Section 702(b) mandated that the Securities and Exchange Commission study the role of credit rating agencies in securities markets. While acknowledging this study, Bucks County Congressman Michael G. Fitzpatrick, R-8th District, has introduced the Credit Rating Agency Duopoly Relief Act of 2006, H.R. 2990, which increases competition among credit rating agencies while extending SEC oversight authority. This article reviews the role of credit rating agencies and offers a new approach to the SEC’s reform of credit rating agency regulation with Fitzpatrick’s proposed legislation.
organization, an agency must have been in the business of primarily issuing publicly available ratings at least for the most recent three consecutive years. Here, 'publicly available' is defined as certain ratings disseminated via the Internet for free or a fee. This provision permits both issuer and investor financed ratings to qualify. Sec. 214 requires that an agency employ either a quantitative or qualitative model in determining its publicly available ratings. This provision permits agencies that rely on existing no-action letters for determining a credit rating, as opposed to interviewing the issuer’s senior management. Notably, there is no generally accepted by the financial community of rating agencies definition, eliminating the 'chicken and egg' barrier.

Fitzpatrick’s bill would amend section 15 of the Exchange Act by creating a public registration procedure for becoming a statistical rating organization. As part of the procedure, an eligible agency must disclose how it handles potential conflicts of interest and misuse of nonpublic information, as well as its methodologies for determining credit ratings. If denied, the agency could appeal the SEC to a circuit court.

Under H.R. 2990, a registered statistical rating organization must also maintain policies and procedures at preventing and resolving conflicts of interest, anticompetitive practices and misuse of nonpublic information. Recent events underscore the importance of these controls. For example, the report describes one anti-competitive practice known as nooting—refusing to rate or lowering the rating of some securities unless the issuer permits the agency to rate other securities. Also, the report notes concerns over agency pressure on issuers to purchase other agency services, presumably to stay in its good graces. In SEC v. Garvey et al., the SEC alleged that employees of S&P’s Financial Rating Services violated section 10(b) of the Exchange Act and Rule 10b-5 by engaging in insider trading on material nonpublic information obtained through employment at S&P.

Perhaps most important, Fitzpatrick’s bill would provide the SEC with statutory authority under the Exchange Act to require statistical rating organizations to maintain certain books and records, conduct examinations, and administer the enforcement actions against the SRO itself. This type of SEC oversight already applies to brokers, dealers, municipal securities dealers, combined clearing agencies under existing provisions of the Exchange Act. Consistent with this requirement to register under the Exchange Act, H.R. 2990 prohibits a statistical rating organization from registering as investment adviser and reliance on existing No Action letters concerning NRISROs.

Section II.

CONCLUSION

In light of the history of this issue, H.R. 2990 would, if enacted, go a long way toward strengthening the SEC’s authority to oversee this key area of our securities regulation scheme—while providing the SEC’s ratings agencies who is qualified to perform credit ratings. With this legislation, the SEC would be in a better position to challenge industry assertions that SEC examinations, inspections, and enforcement actions against the SRO itself. This type of SEC oversight already applies to brokers, dealers, municipal securities dealers, combined clearing agencies under existing provisions of the Exchange Act. Consistent with this requirement to register under the Exchange Act, H.R. 2990 prohibits a statistical rating organization from registering as investment adviser and reliance on existing No Action letters concerning NRISROs.

I strongly urge my colleagues to support this legislation and help provide a positive, long-term solution to a pressing water need in the rural West.

THE EASTERN NEW MEXICO RURAL WATER SYSTEM ACT OF 2006

HON. TOM UDALL OF NEW MEXICO IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Eastern New Mexico Rural Water System Act of 2006. This is companion legislation to a bill being introduced today by Senator DOMENICI and Senator BINGAMAN. This legislation is very similar to H.R. 4623, which I introduced during the 108th Congress. It contains, however, slight revisions that were suggested during hearings held both in the House and the Senate in 2004. There has long been a recognized need for a reliable and safe supply of potable water for eastern New Mexico.

In fact, Mr. Speaker, the recognized need goes back to the late 1950's when the New Mexico Legislature and Interstate Stream Commission authorized the construction of a dam on the Canadian River, thus establishing the Ute Reservoir. Soon after construction, numerous Congressionally-authorized studies were conducted to explore the feasibility of a project that would utilize the Ute Reservoir as a reliable water supply for communities in eastern New Mexico. Finally, in the late 1990's, several communities, concerned about the increasingly urgent need, came together to begin planning for the development of a regional water system.

Out of those meetings came the Eastern New Mexico Rural Water Supply Authority. The ENMFWS, as it is known, consists of six communities and two counties in eastern New Mexico. This Authority has expeditiously and effectively finalized the studies and planning necessary to move forward with this project.

Today, Mr. Speaker, we build upon the efforts of the citizens of eastern New Mexico who have both proven the critical need and completed the necessary steps that must form the basis for the project. This project is not new and the need for water is becoming increasingly more urgent. I strongly urge my colleagues to support this legislation and help provide a positive, long-term solution to a pressing water need in the rural West.

HONORING PAM BALDWIN OF THE CONGRESSIONAL RESEARCH SERVICE

HON. SHERWOOD BOEHLERT OF NEW YORK IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I want to express my thanks and best wishes to Pamela Baldwin, a lawyer who served in the American Law Division of the Congressional Research Service, CRS, for many years, and who, like me, is now retiring. Pam's title at CRS was Legislative Attorney, and her specialty was environmental law, and it often seemed that her specialty was all of environmental law. She was a trusted advisor to the Congress, in general, and to me and my staff, in particular, on a dizzying array of issues—the National Environmental Policy Act, endangered species, wilderness and public lands, oil and gas drilling, forestry, mining, and coastal land use.

And she worked on all of these issues the same way—painstakingly, tirelessly, drawing on deep knowledge and with an unsparing dedication, to objective analysis. She knew both the theory of law and how it was being applied in practice by federal agencies. And she could discuss complex and abstruse legal matters in a way that even a Congressman could understand.

In short, in a time of deep partisan and ideological division, Pam was exactly the kind of expert we needed—someone who knew the facts and was willing to state them, no matter how much pressure she faced to do otherwise. And she would always take full advantage of the extra time and kept her busy during these recent months.

She did all of this with unfailing good humor, a wry sense of the world, and a constant ability to be surprised but not thrown by what might turn up in legislation.

Pam played an invaluable role at CRS, and the Nation is better for it. This is not the time to list the number of questionable provisions that might have made it into law if not for Pam's analysis, but they are many. Not just those of Congress, but the Nation, owes her a debt of gratitude. My staff and I will miss her greatly, but we will remember what we have learned from her. I wish her the best in retirement.

WEST END FIRE COMPANY #3 100TH ANNIVERSARY BANQUET

HON. JIM GERLACH OF PENNSYLVANIA IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. GERLACH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor West End Fire Company #3 as its members and the community celebrate the Company's 100th anniversary.

The West End Fire Company #3 of Phoenixville, Pennsylvania was established as a result of the disastrous Preserverance Knitting Mill fire of 1906. The community's leaders decided that they could no longer rely on outside help in time of emergency and needed to create their own company. On October 16, 1906, the West End Fire Company was formed.

This Company has transitioned from using a barn and horse-drawn fire engine to its first official hose cart donated by the Phoenix Hose, Hook, and Ladder Company No. 1. The original members of the Company were able to pull together funds to purchase its first lot and, within two years, a fire house made from Chester County limestone was established on the corner of W. Bridge Street and Pennsylvania Ave. The Company continued to grow, adding an ambulance service in 1917, and finally incorporating female firefighters into service in 1985. The West End Fire Company #3 is to this day on cutting edge of safety by constantly adding new equipment, training new members, and providing Phoenixville with countless hours of community service.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me today in honoring the West End Fire Company #3 of Phoenixville, Pennsylvania as they celebrate its 100th anniversary and in extending best wishes and heartfelt congratulations for 100 years of exemplary community service and volunteerism in protecting the lives and property of Phoenixville area citizens.
RECOGNIZING THE IMPORTANT GREEK HOLIDAYS APPROACHING: CYPRIOI INDEPENDENCE DAY AND GREECE’S “OXI DAY”

HON. TOM LANTOS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, on Oct. 1, we will celebrate Cyprus Independence Day, and at the end of October, the 28th, we will remember Greece’s “Oxi Day,” commemorating the Greek decision to reject and resist occupation by the Axis Powers in 1940 during World War II. I ask my colleagues to join me in remembering and reflecting on these special days in Greek and Cypriot history.

Greek pride and bravery during the independence struggle in the 1820s forged the first successful war for self-determination in the modern era. This Greek example has fired the imagination of oppressed peoples ever since, including the struggle for liberation that resulted in the founding of the State of Israel in 1948. Both Jews and Greeks over the years have had to supply in brains and pluck what they lacked in numbers.

Ever since throwing off the yoke of dictatorship in 1974, the Cypriots have played one of Europe’s Amazing success stories. Greece entered the European Economic Community and never looked back. Today it is a model of growth and prosperity, and for more than three decades it has been a vibrant paragon of the gift it gave the world so long ago, democracy. Since 1974 the 600,000 people of Cyprus has suffered immensely. All the more remarkable then that Cyprus has taught the world the lesson of how to endure difficult circumstances with uncommon grace, dignity, strength, and commitment to humane values. Notwithstanding the hundreds of Greek Cypriot refugees suffered in 1974, Cyprus remained a democracy, and it rebuilt itself into the prosperous European Union state of today. Cyprus democracy, and it rebuilt itself into the prosperous European Union state of today. Cyprus entered the European Economic Community and never looked back. Today it is a model of growth and prosperity, and for more than three decades it has been a vibrant paragon of the gift it gave the world so long ago, democracy.

Mr. Speaker, earlier this summer, I was honored with the Mordechai Frizis Award. This honor is named after the Jewish Greek hero from Chalkis who was the first high-ranking Greek military officer to give his life in defense of it, not against the Greek people. As the only survivor of the Holocaust ever elected to Congress, I saw first-hand the atrocities of that time. I lost my family, and my wife lost most of her family. Many others lost their lives and their families.

Over 55 million people perished in World War II, including Mordechai Frizis. Had brave and selfless people like Frizis not fought against the evils of the Hitler regime and even been willing to die for our freedom, the outcome could have been even worse. We are much in the debt of the Mordechai Frizis of the world.

HON. GREG WALDEN
OF OREGON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. WALDEN of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a remarkable lady and tremendous public servant who hails from the quaint town of Condon, Oregon—Laura Pryor. For as long as I can remember, folks in Gilliam County have fondly referred to her as “Judge Pryor” as she is the chief steward of the county. Today, I ask my colleagues to join me as we thank Judge Pryor for the countless contributions she has made to Gilliam County and the state of Oregon during 19 years of public service.

Born and raised in San Diego County, Judge Pryor rode her horse to school up until the second grade. Her childhood instilled in her a love for the rural countryside and rural way of life. Over 30 years ago, as her California community began to develop and be paved, Laura decided to move her four children to Oregon to avoid the urban sprawl in preference for a country setting where neighbors still offer their help without thinking about it. After briefly serving at the Oregon Department of Economic Development, she met a third-generation wheat farmer, married him and moved to his hometown of Condon, population 750. Within two years, the governor appointed her to fill a vacant seat on the county commission. Gilliam County is one of seven in Oregon where the top official is titled “county judge,” and has responsibility over some judicial functions in addition to chairing the county commission. Laura has been ably steering Gilliam County from the judge’s seat for 19 years.

But President Makarios was too wise for that. That is why the world’s view of Cypriot leaders is that they could do is to compromise the well-being of our own people for the sake of propaganda; that, he said, would only heap indignity upon their suffering and would be a derogation of the government’s obligation to its own. In almost all time, Cypriot resistance leaders had achieved the little nation of the refugees, and refugee neighborhoods were virtually indistinguishable from others, at least to others. Cypriot leaders for the healing of their nation, but they lead creative and productive lives every single day.

Thanks to Makarios’s far-sightedness, Cyprus is today a dynamic and thriving European state, instead of a benighted third-world backwater. Would that the Palestinians had had a highly capable officer. But circumstances have allowed him with so much more, with near-mythical status. For Mordechai Frizis is a metaphor for all that Greeks and Jews have suffered, all that we have triumphed, all the values that we would not compromise and that we have insisted that the civilized world embrace.

That is why I was deeply honored and grateful to receive the Frizis award, and that is one reason why the Hellenic world has my enduring friendship and support.

I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating our Greek and Cypriot friends as we all remember the October 1st Cypriot Independence Day and Greece’s “Oxi Day” on October 29.
in small and rustic communities all across the West. Judge Pryor has worked tirelessly at the state and federal level to ensure attention to basic services such as education and health care in small towns. She’s worked hard to maintain funding for county roads while promoting and encouraging economic development and commerce within the county.

Mr. Speaker, I have had the joy to work closely with Laura on numerous issues through the years, and know well the deep devotion she brings to her job each and every day in representing her fellow citizens in Gilliam County. It is this devotion that propelled a county effort to construct a Grain Facility next month. She has also been a strong proponent for renewable energy efforts and has worked to locate wind farms within the county for an additional tax base and source of revenue.

While it is very difficult to choose Judge Pryor’s most memorable accomplishments, many would say it has been her successful effort to unite rural Oregon as one voice. Laura’s leadership in uniting elected peers led to the establishment of the Eastern Oregon Rural Alliance, which joins government officials with residents from all across the vast territory of eastern Oregon in advocacy for rural issues. Her efforts ultimately led to the creation of the Office of Rural Policy, which was established by the state of Oregon to examine how state policies impact rural communities and act as an advisory branch to the state legislature and the governor.

Mr. Speaker, my remarks illustrate but a few of the many accomplishments Judge Pryor has made during her distinguished career. I appreciate my colleagues joining me today in congratulating Judge Laura Pryor, an extraordinary lady and great American. I wish Laura and her husband, Earl, many years of continued happiness and success.

On September 14, 2006 the House passed H. Res. 1000, instituting a new standing order of the House with regard to earmarks in authorization, appropriations, and tax measures. H. Res. 1000 provides that, in order to consider a bill, the committee of jurisdiction must list all earmarks included in the bill and committee report along with the names of Members requesting the earmarks.

The bi-partisan bill that I introduced yesterday has not been reported by the Committee, so there is no report or list of earmarks. In reading the standing order, I concluded that the requirement that a list appear with this bill does not apply because the point of order described in section 1(c) of H. Res. 1000 does not apply against a bill considered under suspension of the rules. I intend to move to suspend the rules of the House to pass H.R. 6233.

This bill does not increase the amount of funding that is designated for projects in SAFETEA: LU. There are changes to the descriptions of projects that are currently in SAFETEA: LU and there are some projects to replace projects in SAFETEA: LU that cannot be executed or implemented. In this correction bill, however, the total amount of funding remains identical to the amount that was designated in SAFETEA: LU.

Where this bill does provide funding (which is offset by a rescission of contract authority), the legislative sections providing such funding do not meet the earmarking definition, because no entity is named as the intended recipient of the funds. Where this bill does designate specific entities, or amend underlying project designations in SAFETEA: LU, it does not provide new funding. In addition this bill provides for no new outlays. In fact, the Congressional Budget Office has scored the bill as reducing contract authority by $4 million over five years.

Thank you for your consideration of this matter.

Sincerely,

DON YOUNG, Chairman

SAFETEA-LU AMENDMENTS ACT

HON. DON YOUNG
OP ALASKA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, I insert in the Record a letter from me to Speaker HASTERT regarding H.R. 5689, making technical corrections to SAFETEA-LU.

HON. DENNIS J. HASTERT,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE,
WASHINGTON, DC, SEPTEMBER 29, 2006.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: On June 28, 2006 the House passed H.R. 5689, making technical corrections to the Safe, Accountable, Flexible, Efficient Transportation Equity Act: A Legacy for Users (SAFETEA-LU). Yesterday, I introduced a bill that revises H.R. 5689 to incorporate changes that the Senate has asked us to include (H.R. 6233). These changes are necessary to ensure that all policies, programs and projects embodied in last year’s highway, transit, and highway safety authorization bill are implemented as intended by the Congress.

Mr. Speaker, my remarks illustrate but a few of the many accomplishments Judge Pryor has made during her distinguished career. I appreciate my colleagues joining me today in congratulating Judge Laura Pryor, an extraordinary lady and great American. I wish Laura and her husband, Earl, many years of continued happiness and success.

RECOGNIZING FINANCIAL PLANNING WEEK

SPEECH OF

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Ms. SANCHEZ of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H. Res. 973, and the goals and the ideals of Financial Planning Month. I am proud to say that I am an original co-sponsor of this bill, and a member of the Financial Literacy Education Caucus.

I would first like to start by thanking my colleagues Mrs. BIGGERT and Mr. Hinojosa for their leadership on this issue.

Mr. Speaker, we need to be paying more attention to financial literacy in this country, and to making sure our constituents have the tools to be responsible consumers, good savers and savvy investors.

An estimated 40 percent of Americans say they know only some, a little or not much, about how to manage their finances and only 10 percent of college students have had financial education in high school.

And yet, everyday life requires an increasing knowledge of banking and finance. The average American family spends $200,000 to raise a child to the age of 18, but the overall savings in this country barely breaks above 1 percent.

Prices for basic essentials— for health care, housing, schooling—are all skyrocketing. How are our families going to pay for it if they aren’t saving?

I am pleased that the Congress is voting to pass this financial planning awareness resolution at this time. Next week, I will be hosting the banking and finance portion of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute Summit.

Financial literacy education is such an important topic that I have chosen to make it the focus of our summit. During our discussion, we will talk about “best practices” in financial literacy education.

It is essential that our citizens develop the tools of good financial management. These are the tools that will allow them to build wealth to enrich their families and communities.

They are also the tools that will protect them from fraud and exploitation, and help them be more responsible with their finances. This is not just important for individuals and their families, it is important to our nation as a whole.

Less debt, more savings and more investment will be the foundation of our future economic success.

Once again I thank my colleagues for bringing H. Res. 973 to the floor and urge its passage.
Mr. Speaker, let us be crystal clear: All Americans, and Democrats especially, want those responsible for 9/11 and other terrorist acts to be tried fairly and punished according-ly, and we want those convictions to be upheld by our courts.

Democrats want the President to have the best possible intelligence to prevent future ter-rorist attacks on the United States and its allies.

Democrats agreed with the President when he said “whether the terrorists are brought to justice or justice brought to the terrorists, jus-tice will be done.” But Democrats understand that justice requires the Congress to establish a system for trying suspected terrorists that is fundamentally fair and consistent with the Geneva Conventions.

We should abide by the Geneva Conven-tions not out of some slavish devotion to in-ternational law or desire to coddle terrorists, but because adherence to the Geneva Conventions protects American troops and affirms American values.

S. 3930, the compromise before us, in-cludes some improvements that I strongly sup-port. For example, evidence obtained through torture can no longer be used against the ac-cused. Similarly, the compromise bill provides that hearsay evidence can be challenged as unreliable.

Perhaps the most important improvement over the bill passed by the House is that ac-cused terrorists will have the right to know what evidence is being used against them. This change to the bill goes a long way toward minimizing the sources or methods. This change to the bill passed by the House is that accused terrorists will have the right to rebut all un-reliable.

Mr. Speaker, nine former federal judges were so alarmed by this prospect that they were compelled go public with their concerns: “Congress would thus be skating on this con-stitutional ice in depriving the federal courts of their power to hear the cases of Guantanamo detainees. . . . If one goal of the provision is to bring these cases to a speedy conclusion, we can assure from our considerable experi-ence that eliminating habeas would be uncon-stitutional.”

Mr. Speaker, common Article 3 of the Geneva Convention requires that a military commis-sion be a regularly constituted court affording all the necessary “judicial guarantees which are recognized as indispensable by civilized nations.” The provision in the House bill asserting that the military commis-sions established therein satisfy this standard, the fact is that many other nations will dis-agree. Simply saying so does not make it so. Moreover, they may well be right. Consider this, Mr. Speaker.

The compromise allows statements to be entered into evidence that were obtained through cruel, inhuman and degrading treat-ment and lesser forms of coercion if the state-ment was obtained during the Detainee Treat-ment Act last December.

To provide limited immunity to government agents involved in the CIA detention and inter rogation program, the bill amends the War Crimes Act of 1996 to encompass only “grave breaches” of the Geneva Conventions. U.S. agents could not be tried under the War Crimes Act for past actions that degraded and humiliated detainees. The bill also limits any use of international law such as the Geneva Conventions in the War Crimes Act.

Mr. Speaker, what is sometimes lost sight of in all the tumult and commotion is that the rea-son we have observed the Geneva Conven-tions since their adoption in 1949 is to protect members of our military. But as the Judge Ad vocate Generals pointed out, the compromise bill could place United States service mem-bers at risk by establishing an entirely new international standard that American troops could be subjected to if captured overseas. As Rear Admiral Bruce McDonald testified: “I go back to the point that was raised earlier, that I would be very concerned about other nations looking in on the United States and making a determination that, if it’s good enough for the United States, it’s good enough for us, and perhaps doing a lot of damage and far worse internationally if one of our servicemen or women—were taken and held as a detainee.”

What’s more, Mr. Speaker, the Geneva Conventions also protect those not in uni-form—special forces, civilians, diplomatic personnel, CIA agents, contractors, journalists, missionaries, relief workers and all other civil-ians. Changing our commitment to this treaty could endanger them, as well.

We can fix these deficiencies easily if we only have the will. What we should do is recommit the bill with instructions to add two im-portant elements: (1) expedited constitutional review of the legislation; and (2) a requirement that these military commissions be reauthoriz- ed every 3 years.

Under expedited review, the constitutionality of the military commission system could be tested and determined quickly and early—be-fore there are trials and convictions. And it would help provide stability and sure-footing to the new kind of military justice system unlike anything in Amer-ican history.

Such an approach provides no additional rights to alleged terrorists. All it does is give the Supreme Court of the United States the ability to decide whether the military commis-sions system under this act is legal or not. It simply guarantees rapid judicial review.

Second, any system of military commissions to deal with detainees should be required to be reauthorized in 3 years. There are several good reasons for requiring Congress to reaffirm its judgment that such tribunals are nec-essary:

The Military Commissions Act of 2006 is a far-reaching measure that implements an entirely new kind of military justice system out-side the Uniform Code of Military Justice. It has many complex provisions. This legislation has been rushed to the floor. It has numerous provisions that are still poorly understood by many in Congress. By requiring a reauthorization in 3 years, we give Congress the ability to carefully review how this statute is working in the real world.

Providing for a reauthorization in 3 years is the best way to ensure congressional over-sight. This reauthorization will allow Congress to evaluate the effectiveness of the military commission provisions and de-cide whether they need any modifications in the future.

The reauthorization requirement in the Patriot Act has worked well—compelling Congress to review how various provisions in the Patriot Act have worked. As a result of con-gressional review, important modifications in the Patriot Act were signed into law in January 2006 when 16 provisions were reauthorized.

Mr. Speaker, even Republicans on the House Judiciary Committee admitted that the only way Congress was able to get informa-tion out of the Justice Department about the operation of the Patriot Act was that Congress had to have reauthorization—similarly, the only way Congress will be able to perform proper over-sight on military commissions is this similar re-quirement that the program must be reauthoriz- ed. The reauthorization requirement is a crit-ical tool in Congress’ ability to hold the adminis-tration accountable and review the military commission program’s performance.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot recall being asked to render final judgment on a matter of such scope, consequence, and moment in so short a period of time with such a sparsely devel-oped evidence. It would not be prudent for me to rush blindly forward. Rather, now more than ever, it is important to take our time and make the right decision and establish the right pol-icy. And the right policy is not to jettison the Geneva Convention.

We should not try to redefine the Geneva Convention. We should not do anything to alter our international obligations in an elec-tion-year rush. We cannot use international Bright, articulate and focused, Melanie, goddaughter to former Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley, never wavered in her mission to help others. She felt deeply and emotionally about defenseless people and often found herself isolated while fighting unpopular causes. But she would always forge ahead in the cause of justice. Melanie’s untimely death is a substantial loss to all of us. It is hard to imagine anyone else stepping into the void she leaves with the same gusto, vigor, and fervor. She will be sorely missed.

RECOGNIZING THE 15TH ANNIVERSARY OF AZERBAIJAN’S INDEPENDENCE

HON. SOLOMON P. ORTIZ
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, as Co-Chair of the Azerbaijan Caucus, I rise to congratulate one of our key democratic allies—the Republic of Azerbaijan—as it prepares to celebrate the 15th Anniversary of its independence on October 18.

Azerbaijan is one of the United States’ leading allies on the war on terrorism, with the distinction of being among the first to offer our nation unconditional support; providing airspace and airport use for Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan. And, Azerbaijan was also the first Muslim nation to send troops to Iraq. Though bilateral cooperation on terrorism issues between the United States and Azerbaijan predates September 11, 2001, our relations were strengthened following their immediate, and heretofore unwavering, support against the war on terrorism.

Azerbaijan cooperates with the United States within international and regional institutions including the UN, Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) and NATO’s Partnership for Peace program. Regionally, Azerbaijan works together with the United States within the framework of the Organization for Democracy and Development—GUAM which is comprised of Azerbaijan, Georgia, Moldova, and Ukraine. GUAM was created as a political, economic and strategic alliance in order to collaboratively address common risks and threats and thereby strengthen the independence and sovereignty of its member states.

The Republic of Azerbaijan is a standout nation among the South Caucasus countries, with a population of eight million people and an ambitious economic policy. During the last decade Azerbaijan has been implementing structural reforms and adopting numerous laws and legislative changes, paving the way toward further integration with the global economy. The nation has been moving toward a more diversified economy to achieve sustainable growth and meet the social and development needs of its population.

Diversification of the economy and ensuring the development of non-oil sectors is a priority for the government. This policy includes implementation of projects and programs that create favorable conditions for development of private entrepreneurship, attracting investment in non-oil sectors, creating new jobs, evaluation of potential industries and markets and development of infrastructure in the regions.

The last 15 years of independence has not been without challenges, but the country has grown stronger with each new challenge it faces. Let us today commend the Republic of Azerbaijan on their forthcoming 15th Anniversary celebrations. And, let us also commit ourselves to their continued development as a global partner against the terrorism, toward economic growth, diversification of energy resources, and strengthening stability and security in the region.

A BLUEPRINT FOR LEAVING IRAQ NOW

HON. JAMES P. MCGOVERN
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, former Senator George McGovern and William R. Polk, founder and director of Middle Eastern Studies at the University of Chicago, have co-authored a new book, Out of Iraq, that is being released in October 2006 by Simon & Schuster.

I would like to share with my colleagues an excerpt published in the October edition of Harper’s Magazine.

THE WAY OUT OF WAR
(By George S. McGovern and William R. Polk)

A BLUEPRINT FOR LEAVING IRAQ NOW

Staying in Iraq not an option. Many Americans who were among the most eager to invade Iraq now urge that we find a way out. These Americans include not only civilian “strategists” and other “hawks” but also senior military commanders, perhaps most fervently, combat soldiers. Even some of those Iraqis regarded by our senior officials as the most pro-American are determined now to see American personnel leave their country. Polls show that as few as two percent of Iraqis consider Americans to be liberators. This is the reality of the situation in Iraq. We must acknowledge the Iraqis’ right to ask us to leave, and we should set a firm date by which to do so.

We suggest that phased withdrawal should begin on or before December 31, 2006, with the promise to make every effort to complete it by June 30, 2007.

Withdrawal is not only a political imperative but also a strategic imperative. All and many retired American military officers now admit, Iraq has become, since the invasion, the primary recruiting and training ground for terrorists. The longer American troops remain in Iraq, the more recruits will flood the ranks of those who oppose America not only in Iraq but elsewhere.

Withdrawal will not be without financial costs, which are unavoidable and will have to be paid sooner or later. But the decision to withdraw at least does not call for additional expenditures. On the contrary, it will affect massive savings. Current U.S. expenditures run at approximately $236 million each day, or more than $10 million an hour, with costs rising steadily each year. These figures do not include all expenditures, the Congressional Research Service listed direct... costs at $77.3 billion in 2004, $87.3 billion in 2005, and $100.4 billion in fiscal year 2006. Even if troop withdrawals begin this year, total costs (including those in Afghanistan) are those by $371 billion in 2008, it would be possible to cover from the trauma of the occupation in a way that does not violate national and religious sensibilities.

The argument is false. When a driver is on the wrong road and headed for an abyss, it is a bad idea to “stay the course.” A nation afflicted with a failing and costly policy is not powerless to prevent the turmoil that will ensue when we withdraw as we have been to stop the insurgency. But we will have removed a major cause of the insurgency once we have left the ground. Moreover, the ways in which we can be helpful to the Iraqis—and protect our own interests—by ameliorating the underlying conditions and smoothing the transition. That is why these would be a “bridging” effort between the occupation and complete independence.

To end this, we think that the Iraqi government would be wise to request the temporary services of an international stabilization force to police the country during and immediately after the period of American withdrawal. Such a force should itself have a firm date fixed for its removal. Our estimate is that Iraq would need this force for no more than two years after the American withdrawal is complete. During this period, the force could be slowly but steadily cut back in both personnel and deployment. Its purposes could be limited to activities aimed at enhancing public security. Consequently, the armament of this police force should be restricted. It would have need for tanks or armored personnel carriers or aircraft with light equipment. It would not attempt, as have American troops, to battle the insurgents. Indeed, after the withdrawal of American forces, the British regulars and mercenary forces, the insurgency, which was aimed at achieving that objective, would almost immediately begin to lose public support. Insurgent gunmen would either put up a dummy fight, or would be turned over to the police services it required.

We should of course withdraw from the Green Zone, our vast, sprawling complex in the center of Baghdad. The United States has already spent or is currently spending $1.8 billion on its headquarters there, which contains, or will contain, some 600 housing units, a Marine barracks, and more than a dozen other buildings, as well as its own electrical, water, and sewage systems. The U.S. government should hand over the Green Zone to the Iraqi government no later than December 31, 2007. By this time, the U.S. should have bought, or rented, or built a “normal” embassy for a reduced complement of personnel. Symbolically, it would be beneficial for the new building not to be in the Green Zone. Assuming that a reasonable part of the Green Zone’s cost can be saved, there should be no additional cost to create a new American embassy for an appropriate number of not more than 500 American officials, as is the case to the British diplomats who today staff the Green Zone. Insofar as it is practical, the new building should not be designed as though it were a beleaguered fortress on enemy territory.

Withdrawal from these bases, and an end to further construction, should save American taxpayers billions of dollars over the coming two years. This is quite apart from the cost of the troops they would house. America should immediately release all prisoners of war and close its detention centers. Mercenaries, euphemistically known as “Personal Security Detail,” are now provided by an industry of more than thirty “security firms,” conventionally, the odd 25,000 armed men. These constitute a force larger than the British troop contingent in the “Coalition of the Willing” and operate out of direct control of the United States government. The argument against withdrawal is that the occupation will allow the return of the insurgents and the Baghdad Baathists. This is a canard. The insurgents can not prevent the reconstitution of an Iraqi army. We should not act as if we are currently doing, actually encourage this at a cost of billions to the American taxpayer. If at all possible, we should not allow our troops to transfer what soldiers it has already recruited for its army into a national reconstruction are, literally, the “loose cannons” of the Iraq war. They should be withdrawn rapidly and completely, as the Iraqis regard them as the very symbol of the occupation. Since the U.S. forces are not directly involved, indirectly, all we need to do is stop payment.

Much work will be necessary to dig up and destroy these other unexploded ordnance and, where possible, to clean up the depleted uranium used in artillery shells. These are dangerous tasks that require professional training, but they should be undertaken wherever possible to Iraqi contractors. These contractors would employ Iraqi labor, which would help jump-start a troubled economy and provide benefits to millions of Iraqis who are now out of work. The United Nations has gained considerable knowledge about de-mining—from the Balkans and the Middle East, and throughout the world, it will be severely jeopardized. These measures are, we repeat, expensive and represent an enormous savings over the cost of the current war effort. These measures are, we repeat, expensive and represent an enormous savings over the cost of the current war effort. These measures are, we repeat, expensive and represent an enormous savings over the cost of the current war effort.

Property damage incurred during the invasion and occupation has been extreme. The World Bank has estimated that at least $50 billion will be required to repair the Iraq infrastructure alone—this is quite apart from the damage done to private property. The reconstruction can be, and should be, done by the Iraqis. This would greatly benefit the Iraqi economy, but the United States will need to make a generous contribution to the effort if it is to be a success. Some of this aid should be in-kind; the remainder should be in the form of loans. Funds should be paid directly to the Iraqi government, as it would be in the best interest of the American people and American corporations to do so. Independent accounting of Iraqi funds is urgently required. The United Nations handled over to the American-run Coalition Provisional Authority (CPA) billions of dollars generated by the sale of Iraqi petroleum with the understanding that these monies would be used to the benefit of the Iraqi people and would be subject to the supervision of an independent auditor. The CPA delayed this audit month after month, and it was still not completed by the time the CPA ceased to exist. Any monies not expended by the U.S. government or its officials should be repaid to the proper Iraqi authority. What that amount is cannot predict at this time.

Although the funds turned over to the CPA by the U.N. constitute the largest amount in dispute, that is by no means the only case of possible misappropriation. Among several other reports, perhaps the most damaging to Iraq has been a project allocated to Halliburton’s subsidiary Kellogg, Brown & Root as part of a $2.4 billion no-bid contract awarded after the invasion. This project was meant to repair the junction of some fifteen pipelines linking the oil fields with terminals. Engineering studies indicated that as much as $1 billion would be required, but KBRS forged ahead and, allegedly, withheld news of the failure from the Iraqi Ministry of Petroleum until it had either spent or received all the money. Despite this, KBRS was actually awarded a bonus by the Army Corps of Engineers, even though Defense Department officials had estimated that only two-thirds of the $1 billion would be required to finish the job.

We do not, then, anticipate a net cost connected with this reform.

Providing reparations to Iraqi civilians for lives and property lost is a necessity. The House of Representatives has already allocated to the zone they occupy. According to Martin Hem- ming of the Ministry of Defence, British pol- ice have been able to see the destruction in Iraq, been to recognize the duty to provide compensation to Iraqis where this is required by the law. . . . [Bet]ween June 2003 and 31 July 2006, 2,327 claims have been registered . . . . Although there is no precise legal precedent from past wars that would require America to act accordingly, American forces in Iraq have now provided one: individual military units are authorized to make “condolence payments” of up to $2,500. The United States could, and should, do even more to compensate the victims of their heirs. Such an action might be compared to the Marshall Plan, which so powerfully redounded to America’s benefit throughout the 1950s after the Second World War. As we go forward, the following points should be considered.

To Iraqis killed or wounded during the invasion and occupation, particularly in the sieges of Fallujah, Tal Afar, and Najaf, is unknown. Estimates run from 30,000 to 100,000 killed, with many more wounded or incapacitated. Assuming the number of unjustified deaths to be 50,000, and the compensation per person to be $10,000, the number of ”grandsons” of the war would be 500,000. This is a greater cost than the two days’ cost of the war. The number seriously wounded or incapacitated might easily be 100,000. Taking the same figure as for death benefits, the total cost would be $1 billion, or four days' cost of the war. The dominant voice in this process should be that of Iraqi citizens not supplying the funds. The United States could reasonably insist on the creation of a quasi-independent body, composed of both Iraqis and respected foreigners, perhaps under the umbrella of the UNICEF or internationally recognized organization such as the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies or the World Health Organization, to assess and distribute compensation.

In the meantime, a respected international body should be appointed to process the claims of, and pay compensation to, those Iraqis who have been tortured (as defined by the Geneva Conventions) or who have suffered death benefits. The Depart-mament of Defense admits that approximately 3,200 people have been held for longer than a year, and more than 700 for longer than two years, most of them without charge, a clear violation of the treasured American right of habeas corpus. The number actually subjected to torture remains unknown, but it is presumed to include a significant portion of those incarcerated. Unfortunately, there exists no consensus, legal or otherwise, on how victims of state-sponsored torture should be compensated. Compensation is not currently possible to estimate the cost of such a program.

Given that this is uncharted legal territory, we should probably explore it morally and politically, without the measure of $1 billion of com-penation. The very act of assessing damages—perhaps somewhat along the lines of the South African Truth and Reconciliation Commission—should be expected, in and of itself, to be a part of the healing process.

America should also offer—not directly but through National or international non-governmental organizations—a number of further financial inducements to Iraq's recovery. These might include fellowships for the training of lawyers, judges, journalists, social workers, and other civil-affairs workers.

Two days' cost of the current war, or $500 million, would ably fund such an effort.

In addition, assistance to grass roots organizations and professional societies could help encourage the return to Iraq of the thousands of skilled men and women who left in

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — Extensions of Remarks
September 29, 2006
142
HONORING HOWARD HANFT
HON. BART STUPAK
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006
Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a constituent of mine who has dedicated significant personal time towards helping mentor and lead young people in his community. Howard Hanft, or "Howie" as he is known locally, has led the West Branch Little League for 21 years.

As President of the West Branch Little League, Howie has helped grow the league tremendously. Today, the league serves 588
Ogemaw County youngsters who play on 46 teams. Under his leadership, the league has built five new fields, bringing the total number of fields to seven. Five of those fields are under lights and groomed with irrigation, which speaks to the sophisticated care the league puts into its fields for the players.

Howie's efforts to build a world class little league program have yielded great results for the West Branch Little League. In 2005, West Branch sent four teams to the state championship finals—two teams of girls and two teams of boys. The boys' senior league clinched the state title and finished second in the national regional playoffs, one game away from the Little League World Series. This year, the same team won the state championship and the regional playoffs qualifying them to play in the Big League World Series in Easley, South
Carolina. At the end of the World Series, Howie's team was ranked 11th in the world, training an astounding accomplishment. What is equally impressive is that this group of young men won the state championship in a division that generally has 17–18-year-olds. Howie's team is comprised of 16–17-year-olds.

I congratulate Howie and his players: Pete
Jackson, Troy Lambert, Rickie Dodridge, Curtis Lyons, Kyle Wangler, Matt Faiman, Calvin Page, Aaron Kihn, Ryan Bragg, Robbie
Goulette, Kyle Weber, Anthony Betancourt and Mike Noffsinger. I also salute the team's manager Mark Weber and coaches Mark
Goulette, Kyle Weber, Anthony Betancourt
and Mike Noffsinger, Sr.

However, Howie's record of success goes beyond wins and losses. Thanks to the superior facilities that were built under Howie's leadership, West Branch had the honor of hosting the minor-league state tournament for 9- and 10-year-old boys last year. In hosting the tournament, West Branch organized major parties and giant picnics for teams visiting across the state. Some have described the celebrations that Howie organizes in conjunction with tournaments as a "carnival." As several local newspapers have noted, Howie's hard work benefits not only the local little league players, but also the West Branch area economy.
Howie’s deep connection to the sport of baseball goes back to his childhood. When he was only 8 years old, Howie began playing little league baseball. During high school, Howie umpired younger kids while also working as a game announcer. Howie took a break during his freshman year of college from coaching and umpiring. However, every year after that, he returned to coach and assist whenever he was needed.

In 1988, Howie became President of the West Branch Little League. The West Branch community has benefited from his leadership, commitment and passion for baseball ever since. Running a baseball program with nearly 600 participants is both labor-intensive and expensive. Howie has therefore had to spend a great deal of time raising money and recruiting volunteers. All of the money and manpower that Howie is able to marshal comes from the local community. In many ways, Howie’s efforts have helped rally the West Branch community together, engaging local citizens and local businesses to support the town’s baseball tradition.

Mr. Speaker, little league baseball is a uniquely American tradition. For over 100 years, American towns, villages and communities have come together during the summer to watch young people partake in America’s pastime. Howard Hanft has helped continue and strengthen that great tradition in part of my district. However, every year after that, the West Branch community has benefited from his leadership, and a man who understood completely the unique American tradition. For over 100 years, American towns, villages and communities have come together during the summer to watch young people partake in America’s pastime. Howard Hanft has helped continue and strengthen that great tradition in part of my district. However, every year after that, the West Branch community has benefited from his leadership, and a man who understood completely the culture of Capitol Hill.

THE KIKA DE LA GARZA COURTHOUSE
HON. SOLOMON P. ORTIZ
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, I want to commend my colleague from Texas, Mr. DOGGETT, for his work in getting the McAllen courthouse named for my dear friend, our former colleague, Kika de la Garza.

It is fitting that after a long and distinguished career as a lawmaker, the McAllen courthouse, which dispenses justice in the Rio Grande Valley, will bear the name of the former Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee. Kika de la Garza was instrumental in passing many of the laws under which many people will be judged.

The former Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee is a son of South Texas and a man who understood completely the unique culture of the Rio Grande Valley and the culture of Capitol Hill. While his expertise was in agriculture, Chairman de la Garza made a legendary lesson of how food was integral to our military warfighters. He famously asked the chairman of the House Armed Services Committee so long ago, “How long can a submarine stay under water?”

After listening to a long and detailed discourse on the capabilities of submarines from the Armed Services Committee chairman, Chairman de la Garza responded, “That’s not right, sir. A sub can only stay under water as long as the food supply lasts.”

Kika de la Garza is a giant in the history of the United States Congress, of South Texas and in the hearts of all of those who know and love him. It is a fitting tribute that this courthouse will bear the name of Kika de la Garza.

BATTLE AGAINST ILLEGAL DRUG TRADE
HON. GREG WALDEN
OF OREGON
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. WALDEN of Oregon. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to share with you my pride and deep gratitude for a group of people who have truly made a difference in our battle against the illegal drug trade that threatens the very fabric of American society.

As you know, Mexican drug cartels have recently been operating large scale marijuana growing and processing operations in our National Forests, National Parks, and Bureau of Land Management lands. Growing marijuana and conducting illegal drug activities on our public lands is nothing new. What is new is the extremely large scale of the operations, the heavily armed growers, and the aggressive resistance toward law enforcement. With assault rifles and booby traps, these criminals, the majority of whom are in this country illegally, are fearlessly intent on protecting a collective enterprise that grosses billions of dollars each year. They have made parts of our public lands, traditionally used for recreation and hunting, unsafe.

Because of sophisticated growing techniques which employ drip irrigation, chemical fertilizers, and lethal pesticide compounds, these operations inflict serious damage on the environment. Furthermore, these operations are intertwined with the trade and manufacture of other illegal drugs such as meth, heroin, cocaine, and ecstasy.

Mr. Speaker, these criminal operations are attracted to public lands not only because of their remote locations, but also because our federal land agencies have very small law enforcement forces. They were never designed to combat crime on such a massive scale. Who then can draw a powerful line in the sand and both force the invading cartels away from our public lands and protect the public from them and the scourge of drugs they produce?

In my district, this challenge has been taken up by a coalition of local law enforcement professionals who have voluntarily formed task forces large enough to disrupt these enormous operations and send a message that such criminal activity will not be tolerated. They have let the cartels know with certainty that they will pay dearly if they operate on our back yard.

To challenge such a formidable criminal enterprise, it takes intelligence, bravery, and an unselfish sense of purpose. I have witnessed all those characteristics displayed in exemplary fashion in southern Oregon and northern California. In the past few weeks, a task force of over 175 people and 19 agencies, led by Jackson County Sheriff Mike Winters and Siskiyou County Sheriff Rick Riggins, dealt a telling blow on the cartels’ illicit activities on our public lands.

In a series of well-timed and meticulously executed raids on both sides of the Oregon/Columbia border, this amazing group of dedicated individuals eradicated 27.6 tons of marijuana from our public lands in a matter of a few days! They removed well over $320,000,000 from the drug trade and forcefully sent the message to the cartels that they will not be able to do business as usual in southern Oregon and northern California.

Mr. Speaker, it is not hard to imagine the work and commitment involved in assembling so many able and dedicated people from municipal, county, state, and federal agencies. With no single law enforcement agency large enough to handle the task, these dedicated law enforcement professionals and volunteers formed to combat a common enemy that was dealing massive amounts of drugs and creating mayhem on our forest landscape. Driven by sense of duty, respect for the law, and a commitment to protect the public, they got the job done.

Needed to say, Mr. Speaker, I am very proud and appreciative of what these outstanding people have done for us. I know that all of my colleagues join me today in saluting their stellar performance. We are honored to extend to them the gratitude of our entire nation.

Please join me in congratulating these agencies and individuals for a job well done. We owe them so much for their sacrifice and dedication.

PERRY PARKS
HON. DIANE E. WATSON
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. WATSON. Mr. Speaker, it is with much sadness that I rise today to announce the passing of my very good friend and colleague, Perry Conrade Parks, Jr.

Perry Parks was born in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1908, to Professors Perry C. Parks, Sr. and Sophia Parker Parks on the campus of Clark Atlanta University in Atlanta, Georgia. The family moved to East Chicago, Indiana, where Perry attended school.

Perry later attended Tennessee State College and transferred to Wiley College in Marshall, Texas where he lettered in four sports (football, basketball, track, and tennis) and graduated in 1934. After graduation he joined his family in Los Angeles and took a job as a social worker for the California State Relief Administration. Soon after establishing himself in California, he married his college sweetheart, Artemisia Stillwell.
Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong opposition to the Child Custody Protection Act. The text of the bill that we are considering is quite similar to the Child Interstate Abortion Notification Act, which the House considered in April of last year and I opposed. It is yet another attempt by Congress to try to interfere in the personal health decisions of young women. The question of whether or not to have an abortion is one of the most difficult decisions any woman can face. Some issues cannot be legislated away because this is one of them. Reproductive health care is a personal matter that should be left to individuals, their doctors, and their families without interference from the government.

This bill will force mature young adults who have sought help from individuals other than their parents—including grandparents, aunts, uncles, older siblings and clergy members—to act alone in a time when loving support is needed. I believe that adolescents should be encouraged to seek their parents’ advice and counsel when facing a difficult decision. However, the government cannot mandate healthy family communication where it does not already exist. We need to encourage our youth to seek the counsel of individuals that they do trust and that have their best interests and not encourage them to go through this difficult process and draining procedure alone.

Not only does this bill discourage our youth from seeking adult counsel, this bill will also put the health of young women in jeopardy. A provision of this bill seeks to delay the abortion process by demanding that doctors go through a detailed and complex scheme to notify a parent. Doctors who do not comply and conduct an abortion before this notification will face fines and federal criminal penalties.

I would guess that my colleagues on both sides of the issue agree that having an abortion should be the last option for an adolescent. But it is a reality that young women are going to continue to have to make life-altering decisions regarding their bodies regardless of restrictions the federal government places on them. Taking away the support of responsible adults in whom teens trust is not the way to stop abortions.

I have consistently opposed legislation of this type because I want to make sure that we protect young women who are facing unintended pregnancies by providing them with assistance from adults they trust. I certainly prefer an open dialogue between parents and teens, so that a hushed, last-minute decision is not necessary. Unfortunately, parental consent is not always a viable option and teens will still make decisions that are difficult for any woman regardless of age. By passing this legislation, we will force trusted adults to turn their backs on their nieces, sisters and granddaughters and we will also be turning our back to the young women of this Nation.

Instead of debating a measure that will impose federal punishments on family members and doctors who assist young women who are making difficult choices and considering another measure that will fix a symptom, we should be having a constructive dialogue that gets at the root of this issue.

This bill is an injustice to young women across this Nation who need all the support that they can get. I urge my colleagues to vote against this legislation because it will severely harm young women at one of the most important times in their lives.

HONORING MR. GERARD (JERRY) BELANGER

VETERANS' DAY EVENT AT GAYLORD MIDDLE SCHOOL

Mr. BERTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor an educator in my district who has done laudable work to ignite a new sense of patriotism and a profound sense of pride and respect for all of our nation’s military men and women.

Now that he is married with a 3-year-old son, you will often see Jerry with his son Patrick at local Memorial Day and Veterans Day celebrations, seeking to pass on to his own son the same pride and deep respect for the armed forces and the same love of country.

Mr. Speaker, as our brave men and women serve abroad in today’s conflicts, all of us are reminded of the importance of recognizing, honoring and remembering the sacrifices of the heroes of the past. Mr. Jerry Belanger has found a way to ensure that in his corner of the world, young people are introduced to these important values early on. For that, Mr. Speaker, I ask that you and the U.S. House of Representatives join me in saluting him.
and ideals of the Lights On Afterschool program. According to the Afterschool Alliance’s survey, 14.3 million children are left alone and unsupervised after school. Lights On provides children with a safe place to go after school and promotes healthy opportunities for growth and learning.

I believe that after school programs provide vital services to our youth and we must make a commitment to continue to fund these programs. Communities and schools can help by promoting after-school programs that engage teenagers in a thoughtful and safe manner. Encouraging high school students to join after-school clubs, sports teams, and band or chorus also gives teenagers purposeful extra-curricular activities that diminish their chances of causing trouble in their community.

Our children deserve the very best chance to succeed in a turbulent global community, a world where economic competitors grow more numerous and powerful everyday. To ensure American leadership in the future, children today must be afforded comprehensive education and enrichment through well-funded schools and after-school activities.

There are many after-school programs that are benefiting the children of my district. The Trenton After School Program has been serving our community for over 20 years. It not only provides our children with a safe place to go after school but also provides culturally enriching programs including arts education.

Lights On provides children with fun, educational, and entertaining activities when the school day ends. I am proud to rise in support of this resolution.

ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE MODERNIZATION ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. JAMES R. LANGEVIN OF BROOK ISLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. LANGEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to H.R. 5825, the Electronic Surveillance Modernization Act. Since the President’s illegal domestic wiretapping program became public, I have called for greater oversight and Congressional involvement to ensure that we can provide our intelligence agencies with the tools needed to fight terrorism while protecting essential civil liberties of Americans. The bill before us today does not meet those standards.

As a member of the House Armed Services and Homeland Security Committees, I am fully aware of the dangers posed by those who wish to harm Americans, and I have strongly supported efforts to make our nation safer. However, the Bush Administration has not explained to my satisfaction why powers available under existing law cannot meet the needs of the war on terrorism. For example, the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) already permits the warrantless surveillance of communications under certain limited circumstances. Nevertheless, the Bush Administration did not use those emergency powers and instead chose to expand the authority of the National Security Agency (NSA). The President’s decision to expand domestic surveillance, while notifying only a handful of legislators, does not constitute Congressional consent and is a danger to our established Constitutional system of checks and balances.

I would have been receptive to modifications to FISA that preserved the vital oversight through the creation of the FISA court system. I am a cosponsor of H.R. 5381, the Lawful Intelligence and National Security Surveillance Act of 2007. This bill would provide judicial and Congressional oversight for the NSA domestic surveillance program outside of FISA that preserved the vital oversight of the FISA court. It uses judicial and Congressional notification as a substitute for legitimate oversight, and it establishes such broad justifications for surveillance that the Administration will have almost unlimited ability to continue its present programs with little to no changes. Disturbingly, it also removes an important protection of current law that requires the government to certify that its warrantless surveillance of foreign agents would not intercept the communications of U.S. citizens.

Once again, the President has sought to expand his own authority at the expense of Americans’ civil liberties, and Congress has willingly abided its oversight authority. I urge my colleagues to vote against this measure so that we can find a better way to crack down on terrorists who would do us harm while safeguarding the rights of Americans.

TRIBUTE TO PICTURED ROCKS NATIONAL LAKE SHORE

HON. BART STUPAK
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore, which celebrates its 40th anniversary on Lake Superior this year. This pristine part of my district was the first unit of the national park system authorized as a National Lakeshore.

Pictured Rocks derives its name from the 15 miles of colorful sandstone cliffs northeast of Munising, Michigan. These cliffs, some approaching 200 feet in height, have been naturally sculptured into shallow caves, arches and formations that resemble castle turrets, and human profiles. Anyone who has visited the splendid 42 miles of the Lakeshore knows that the park offers spectacular scenery of the hilly shoreline speckled with natural archways, waterfalls, and sand dunes.

Today, Picture Rocks has a vision of creating a National Lakeshore to preserve for future generations’ enjoyment a significant portion of the diminishing shoreline of the United States. Today, Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore continues to provide inspiration and recreational enjoyment for residents of northern Michigan, and further, asserts that the area is a natural haven of the millions of visitors who come to enjoy the area’s natural splendor every year. The refreshing waters in summer, the beautiful palette of fall, the serene atmosphere of winter and the renewal of spring are all unique at Pictured Rocks.

As Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore celebrates this anniversary, it is also appropriate to mention former Congressman Raymond F. Clevenger. His hard work and dedication to the conservation and economic improvement of this area played a major role in the creation of Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore.

Thanks to the efforts of Congressman Clevenger, more than 73,000 acres of beaches, cliffs, waterfalls, and forests, as well as the wildlife that resides there, have been preserved. In recognition of former Congressman Raymond Clevenger’s efforts, I will be working to see that the Miners Castle Information Station at Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore be known as the “Raymond F. Clevenger Visitor Information Center at Miners Castle.”

Mr. Speaker, our nation is blessed with countless natural resources and wonders. Those of us from northern Michigan and from the Upper Peninsula take great pride in Pictured Rocks National Lakeshore. I would ask that the U.S. House of Representatives join me in observing this historic anniversary and in pledging our continued support for the preservation of this beautiful and historic park.

BUREAU OF ALCOHOL, TOBACCO, FIREARMS, AND EXPLOSIVES MODERNIZATION AND REFORM ACT OF 2006

HON. RUSH D. HOLT
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Speaker, I oppose the “Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives Modernization and Reform Act of 2006,” H.R. 5029. This bill would effectively gut the ability of the ATF to shut down rogue gun dealers who ignore or undermine federal law by selling guns to criminals. It literally protects the worst of the worst.

We should be doing more to ensure that our communities are safe, by getting guns out of the hands of criminals. That is why we should make sure federal authorities have all the tools they need to go after criminal gun dealers.

Yet, this bill would substantially undermine the ATF’s ability to revoke federal firearms licenses and shut down rogue gun dealers who have repeatedly violated the law. By re-defining the burden of proof for violations of existing federal gun laws, this bill would make it essentially impossible to sanction, prosecute, or revoke the federal firearms license of corrupt gun dealers.

The majority of gun dealers are honest hard-working business owners who play by the rules. Yet, their compliance with federal law is tarnished by the few gun dealers who... are more interested in making a profit than following the law or protecting our children. Statistics show that 60 percent of guns used in crimes can be traced back to just 1% of the Nation’s 80,000 gun dealers. This means that a tiny percentage of criminal gun dealers are responsible for the bulk of guns used in the crimes that terrorize our communities. Yet, this legislation makes it harder to shut down these criminal outliers.

In 2003, the ATF issued only 54 notices of license revocation to shut down rogue gun dealers. That represents .06 percent of all gun dealers. Under the proposed legislation, this small group of dealers would be allowed to stay in business, and pay only a minor fine. This bill would also weaken the record-keeping requirements that gun dealers must follow currently. This would allow criminal dealers to hide their illegal sales and missing firearms. Rather than being required to properly maintain their gun sale records, this legislation would simply allow them to keep such records in a box or a storage room, and would make it very difficult for the ATF to investigate and uncover dealer violations.

I oppose this flawed legislation. I believe strongly that the ATF needs the authority to prosecute and eventually revoke the licenses of corrupt and criminal gun dealers. I am not alone in this view. This legislation is also opposed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police, The American Bar Association, The Major City Chiefs, the International Brotherhood of Police, Mayors Against Illegal Guns, The Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence, The Violence Policy Center, The Coalition to Stop Gun Violence, Former Director of the ATF Rex Davis, New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg, and Boston Mayor Thomas Menino.

I urge my colleagues to join me in opposing this dangerous bill.

RYAN WHITE HIV/AIDS TREATMENT MODERNIZATION ACT OF 2006

SPEECH OF
HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 6143, Ryan White HIV/AIDS Treatment Modernization Act of 2006. While I fully support this program and believe we must do everything we can to assist those living with and affected by HIV/AIDS, H.R. 6143 will destabilize the valuable systems of care and will be devastating for New York. While the HIV/AIDS epidemic has expanded, more than 1/2 of all people living with AIDS in the United States reside in just 5 States: New York, California, Florida, Texas, and New Jersey. Under this bill’s flawed formula, 3 of the highest prevalence States, including New York, will lose significant funding. New York City predicts a possible $17.8 million loss in the first year of implementation of this bill and potential increasing losses in each of the remaining 4 years of the reauthorization. In total, New York would lose just $78 million in the first 4 years of reauthorization. Of course, New York is not opposed to other regions of the country receiving more funding, but it should not be at the expense of New York. Instead, we should increase the authorization of appropriations for the program so that we do not pit states against each other.

I urge my colleagues to vote against this bill so that the Committee can find a compromise and data-mining will not result in reduced funds for any State.

ELECTRONIC SURVEILLANCE MODERNIZATION ACT

SPEECH OF
HON. MARK UDALL
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. UDALL of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I support changing current law on electronic surveillance to remove obstacles to vigorously fighting terrorism, and I believe we can do so in a way that protects the constitutional rights of our citizens. This bill attempts to strike the right balance, but it has serious flaws that could and should have been corrected—and because of those flaws, I cannot support it as it stands.

I believe the American people should know that on this very important subject, for the most part, we are being asked to legislate in the dark. It is only because of leaks to the news media that we became aware that after the terrorist attacks of 2001 the administration decided not to follow the procedures of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act, FISA, with regard to a new, wide-ranging surveillance program.

Since it became public, that decision has been controversial and has been challenged in the courts, but the administration has consistently maintained that this surveillance program is lawful—although it has been less consistent in its reasons for reaching that conclusion.

Like many of our colleagues, I have found some of their arguments strained and far from fully convincing.

Nonetheless, I do think it makes sense to further revise FISA to reflect both the latest technology and the realities of the current threats to our country. While the revelation of the administration’s decision not to comply with FISA have made it clear that there is a definite need for better oversight by the courts, but the administration has consistently maintained that this surveillance program is lawful—although it has been less consistent in its reasons for reaching that conclusion.

while these positive aspects of the bill are encouraging, they are unfortunately overwhelmed by the bill’s more serious defects.

Overall, this legislation goes very far toward making warrantless surveillance of communications here in the United States the rule rather than the exception and toward allowing the Executive branch to conduct electronic surveillance of telephone calls and e-mail in the United States without adequate, meaningful oversight.

The bill makes sweeping alterations to the current definition of “electronic surveillance” and how to define an “agent of a foreign power.” The bill redefines the term “surveillance device” in a way that would allow the government to conduct unregulated data re- and data-mining on all the information collected through the warrantless surveillance that this bill authorizes.

My concerns about these provisions are shared by others, including former Representative (and former House Republican leader) Dick Armey, as expressed in a September 26th letter in which he says:

The explosion of computers, cameras, location-sensors, wireless communication, biometrics, and other technologies is making it much easier to track, store, and analyze information about individuals’ activities. Unfortunately, the legislation may promote additional government intrusions into individual lives by exempting such data mining from requiring court orders... It is not evident that such legislation will necessarily prevent the next terrorist attack. But... failure is unlikely to lead to a halt in federal data mining. Instead, it will probably just spur the government into an ever-more-frenzied effort to collect and store even more personal information on ever-more people in a vain effort to make the concept work. We would then have the worst of both worlds: poor security and a vast increase in the information about individuals collected by the government that would destroy Americans’ privacy and threaten our freedom.

I also am concerned that while the bill would explicitly allow essentially unlimited surveillance in the event of an “armed attack” or “terrorist attack” or an “imminent threat of attack,” the term “terrorism” remains inadequately defined. I think this means that there is an unacceptably large chance that these sweeping exceptions would give the Executive Branch unlimited authority to conduct surveillance whenever and however it prefers.

These concerns are heightened by the fact that the bill does not include an explicit reaffirmation of the principle that FISA, including the revisions that would be made by the bill, is the exclusive means for conducting electronic surveillance in the United States. Such a provision would help make sure that every president and in the future—complies with the law.

This is not a theoretical matter, because the Bush administration has never indicated that it will comply with FISA—even as it would be re-visited by this bill, which was proposed by a member of his party and has the support of that party’s leadership here in the House of Representatives. Indeed, the Bush administration has indicated it will appeal the recent decision of a federal judge that its ongoing surveillance program—which the administration says does not comply with the current version of FISA—is illegal.

That was one of the reasons I voted for the motion to recommit, which would have added language to reiterate that FISA is the exclusive mechanism by which domestic electronic surveillance for foreign intelligence purposes may be conducted, unless Congress amends the law or passes additional laws regarding electronic surveillance. It also would have made clear that the Authorization for the Use of Military Force, AUMF, passed after the 9/11 attack was merely a declaration by the President that there were military actions in Afghanistan—a measure I supported—does not constitute an exception to that rule.
If the motion to recommit had been adopted, the result would have been to approve an alternative version of the legislation so it would update FISA to provide intelligence agencies more flexibility in emergency situations and less bureaucratic red tape when applying for warrants, while still requiring court orders for domestic surveillance.

That better alternative would have extended from 72 hours to 7 days the amount of time allowed to initiate surveillance in an urgent situation before going to the FISA court for a warrant. This authority can be used to thwart imminent attacks.

The alternative also would have made clear that foreign-to-foreign communications are outside of FISA and don't require a court order, and would have provided that a FISA order for electronic surveillance shall continue to be in effect for the authorized period even if the person leaves the United States. It also would have removed redundant requirements in the application process and made other changes to streamline the FISA process, including adding judges to the FISA court while authorizing that court to hire more staff to provide the prepetition and consideration of FISA applications and orders. And it would have made clear that in addition to a "declaration of war by the Congress," an "authorization for the use of military force, AUMF," can also trigger the FISA "wartime exception" for purposes of allowing 15 days of warrantless surveillance.

I think that alternative had the best features of this bill without its defects. Unfortunately, it was not adopted and those changes were not made.

As a result, I do not think this bill as it stands should be approved. But while I cannot support it tonight, I recognize that it is not being sent to the president for signing into law. Instead, if it passed tonight it will go to the Senate, where it will be subject to further debate and revision.

My hope is that if it does pass tonight, and the legislative process continues, the result of that process will be a revised version that will deserve enactment.

RECOGNIZING CRESTWOOD ELEMENTARY SCHOOL'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. TOM DAVIS OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to Crestwood Elementary School in Fairfax County, Virginia as it prepares to celebrate its 50th anniversary.

Since its establishment in 1956, Crestwood Elementary School has committed itself to lofty standards of academic and extracurricular excellence. Over the years, as the Springfield area has expanded and diversified, Crestwood has followed the community's example.

In 1950, the Springfield area consisted of nothing but woods and a few farms and households, and Carr bought much of the land and in 1950 started to build the first planned community in northern Virginia. He gave some land to the community for the school and the first community pool was built here because of the land he donated. The area grew slowly, with few community resources. Little League was started in 1955. There were no schools here until 1956. All of the school children had to go out of the area. In those days, Springfield was the outermost edge of the Washington area. Since its inception, Crestwood Elementary has been an integral part of the Springfield, Virginia, community. Originally costing $595,585, when the school was constructed there was one telephone booth per street, milk and bakery items were delivered weekly to residents, boarding up a hotel every weekend was the train. Over the past 50 years, the Crestwood community has become a very progressive community in the heart of the Springfield area and educates hundreds of students each year. With the addition of the Family Resource Center, Crestwood is a true community school working with parents and children building a better future for the entire Crestwood community.

The mission of Crestwood Elementary School is to offer each student the skills, knowledge, and experiences necessary to be successful and productive members of society. The staff envisions a school where academic excellence is paramount, the arts are celebrated, cultural and linguistic diversity is honored, and all learners meet their personal academic goals. Over the years ethnic and cultural diversity have brought a unique spirit to the school, as it continues its commitment to academic excellence.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, I would like to thank Crestwood Elementary School faculty and staff for the immeasurable contributions they have made in shaping today's youth and tomorrow's future. I congratulate the school on its successes over the last 50 years and I wish it more successful years in the future. I ask that my colleagues join me in applauding this outstanding and distinguished institution, as well as the committed faculty and students.

At age 30, Ken served as a volunteer to the Bloomington Planning Commission, where he served as vice chairman for 6 years. During his tenure with the planning commission, Bloomington, Minnesota, won the Best Cities Award twice. As former C.E.O. of Elberle Architects and Engineers, the 8th largest firm in the U.S., Ken developed sales and marketing of architectural and engineering services, creating the first professional firm in this field. The firm developed sales projection marketing plans, which computerized fee projections.

MILITARY COMMISSIONS ACT OF 2006

SPÉECH OF HON. TOM UDALL OF NEW MEXICO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 2006

Mr. UDALL of New Mexico. Mr. Speaker, today, as we consider passage of H.R. 6166, we stand on the verge of undermining our Nation's own moral standard, and risk further eroding the moral authority we have already jeopardized with our unilateral action in Iraq. H.R. 6166 must be defeated.

Former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and former Secretary of State Colin Powell has written that the kinds of proposals included in H.R. 6166 add to the worldwide doubts of "the moral basis of our fight against terrorism" and "would put our own troops at risk." Nearly all of the military's top attorneys have publicly expressed strong opposition to the proposals, saying that they not only go against the historical standards of conduct we have previously followed, but that the acts of torture and coercion are actually counter-productive, and in fact damaging, to the ability of our military to fully fight terrorism.

It has been said that we must develop new ways to fight the enemy we now face, that the enemy confronting us does not care for human life and therefore we must not be restrained by unclear or antiquated laws. And Mr. Speaker, there is some truth to that. We do need to pass legislation that will provide the President with a tough and fair system of military commissions that will ensure swift prosecution of terrorists and protect our men and women in uniform. However, we must do so within the boundaries of our own standards and values. Not those of the enemy. In the meantime, if we continue to defile our international agreements by blatantly disregarding them, it will only mean our profile abroad will continue to suffer, potentially to the great detriment of our men and women in uniform, and ultimately to our goal of successfully defeating our enemy.

I would ask my colleagues, and I would ask the American people, do we really believe that we must betray our moral standard in order to defeat our enemies? We are fighting a different enemy, one espousing a radical ideology and using blatant violence as a vehicle to achieve its goals. But I do not believe for one second that this means our adaptation and our military strategy against this new enemy must include torture. Nor should it include a subversion of some of our most precious judicial protections. Tragically, and outrageously, H.R. 6166 includes both of these. H.R. 6166 must be defeated.

IN HONOR OF MISS ALLIE DIETZ

HON. MICHAEL N. CASTLE OF DELAWARE
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a very special young lady, Miss Allie Dietz. She continues to impress me with her courage and her determination to fight diabetes, which she has suffered from since she was just five years old. She is now twelve. I have come to know Allie over the years at different events throughout my state—Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation Galas, Children’s Congress, Walk for a Cure, the fight for stem cell research and many others. She has told me her stories of low and high blood sugars, she has shown me how she pricks her fingers and takes her insulin and she has always demonstrated a positive attitude through it all.

Most of all, I am proud to call her my friend. Recently, we shared the podium at an event at Alfred I. DuPont Hospital for Children, and it is safe to say that Allie stole the show! Allie is surrounded by loving parents and two wonderful younger sisters who share her joy, her sadness and her hope for a cure. That is why I will continue to fight for a cure for diabetes—through efforts like increased research funding, an expanded federal embryonic stem cell research policy, legislation to address racial disparities in minority and ensuring patients have access to care.

I know Allie will go far in life, and it is our job as Members of Congress to ensure that she has help along the way. I am hopeful that Congress will begin to make diabetes more of a priority, as it has become a national epidemic. We need to lead the fight for a cure for Allie and all of the other diabetes patients suffering throughout the United States.

TRIBUTE TO THE REECE SCHOOL OF NEW YORK CITY

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, September 29, 2006

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to the Reece School of New York City, which has been dedicated for 58 years to serving children who are intellectually capable but emotionally fragile and vulnerable. The oldest such special-education school in Manhattan, the Reece School has grown in size and stature from its founder’s home to a new facility on the Upper East Side. On October 26, it will recognize a significant donation by officially naming its state-of-the-art building.

The Reece School was established in 1948, in the home of Ellen Reece, as a response to the needs of children who were incapable of functioning in a traditional school setting. Today, it serves 90 students, from Manhattan and all 5 boroughs, who reflect the diverse communities of the City of New York. They represent middle- and lower-income families who care deeply about their children’s future but lack the ability to pay privately for services beyond those offered by the school community. These families depend on Reece for the intellectual and emotional support that allows their children to progress and function as independently as possible. They rely on Reece for services that many other special-education schools are unable to provide.

Over the years, the Reece School has grown out of Ellen Reece’s home, out of its longtime Carnegie Hill location, and into a new home at 25 East 104th Street. For years, it has worked hard to be an integral part of its community. It has made its space available to several community groups, and has partnered with several community agencies and public schools to help improve the quality of life for Reece students and, in fact, of all children in the community.
Thanks to a $12 million loan through Industrial Development Agency Bonds, Reece was able to emerge from its somewhat-crammed Carnegie Hill quarters and into a facility of unprecedented size and technology in July 2006. On October 26, the Reece School will officially name its new building the Elise M. Besthoff Building of the Reece School.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that my distinguished colleagues join me in recognizing the outstanding contributions to the children and families of New York City made by the Reece School.

As Regional Assistant Postmaster General he was in charge of regional operations, oversaw construction of multi-million dollar post offices, directed a large staff, and held oversight responsibility for annual budgets of over $1 billion.

Mr. Fallis has been a NARFE member since 1965, first as an active participant in his local chapter. He then went on to serve two terms as First Vice President and two terms as President of Roanoke Valley Chapter 111 in Roanoke, Virginia. In addition, Mr. Fallis was active in the Virginia Federation of Chapters where he served multiple terms in the positions of Area Vice President, Vice President, and Federation President.

Mr. Fallis participated in NARFE activities at the national level as well, serving as chairman of the Resolutions Committee at the 1996 National Convention in Houston. He then served two terms as NARFE National Treasurer and two terms as NARFE National President.

His tenure at NARFE has proved successful in preserving benefits for retired and active Federal employees, and the addition of a visual and dental benefit to the Federal Employees Health Benefit Program (FEHBP).

Throughout his career, Mr. Fallis and his wife Betty raised four children.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, I ask my colleagues to join me in applauding Charles Fallis and congratulating him on his retirement after a distinguished career.

HONORING GUY GABALDON
HON. LUCILE ROYBAL-ALLARD
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, I rise today to pay tribute to all U.S. service members and veterans for their service and dedication to our Nation. During Hispanic Heritage Month, we would like to pay special tribute to service members and veterans of Hispanic decent who have served with pride, valor and distinction since the revolutionary war.

In particular, we want to recognize World War II veteran Guy Gabaldon, who passed away recently. Born in Los Angeles, California on March 22, 1926, Mr. Gabaldon grew up in Boyle Heights. He died on August 31, 2006 in Old Town, Florida. Mr. Gabaldon is an excellent example of the dedication that Latinos in uniform have demonstrated while providing the highest service to our country.

As a child, Marine Private First Class Guy “Gabby” Gabaldon, befriended and eventually moved in with a Japanese American family. When the U.S. entered WWII, Gabaldon joined the Marines, and served as a mortar crewman and scout observer. Through his familiarity with the Japanese language and culture, Mr. Gabaldon gained the distinction of capturing more enemy soldiers than anyone else in the history of U.S. military conflicts.

While serving in Saipan, he received a Silver Star for obtaining vital information and capturing more than 1,000 enemy personnel in the face of direct fire. PFC Gabaldon was able to persuade the weakened Japanese soldiers to surrender, in spite of their orders to fight. His commanding officer and fellow Marines nominated him for the Medal of Honor. He was awarded the Silver Star, which was elevated to a Navy Cross in December of 1960.

Mr. Gabaldon and the more than one million Latino service members and veterans deserve our gratitude and admiration. They have always been an integral part in the fabric of our military. I ask my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to Mr. Gabaldon, and all of our nation’s Latino service members and veterans.

HONORING DR. RICHARD P. HALLION
HON. JAMES P. MORAN
OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Dr. Richard P. Hallion, who is retiring as Senior Adviser for Air and Space Issues at the Directorate for Security, Counterintelligence and Special Programs Oversight at the Pentagon. His distinguished career and record of achievement reflects selfless commitment to our country.

Dr. Hallion graduated from the University of Maryland in 1970, and completed the Kennedy School of Government’s National Security Studies Program in 1993. His career spanned a variety of offices, including the working at the Air Force Flight Test Center, Andrews Air Force Base, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, the Office of the Assistant to the Air Force, the Air Force Centennial Flight Office, and the National Air and Space Museum. His experience and education has afforded him the opportunity to author numerous articles and books on the evolution and history of airbone warfare. Tirelessly, Dr. Hallion continues to write to this day.

Dr. Hallion has been recognized numerous times for his hard work and dedication to military aviation. In 2005, he received the Annual Award of the Conference of Historic Aviation Writers, and was recognized as a Distinguished Lecturer and Associate Fellow of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics. He has received similar recognition from the Society of Experimental Test Pilots, the Aviation Space Writers Association, the Air Force Association and the Air Force Systems Command.

His contributions to the Air Force will be missed as he moves on to new and exciting opportunities. I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Dr. Richard P. Hallion and wish him all the best in his future endeavors.

INTRODUCING A RESOLUTION TO HONOR JACOB BIRNBAUM
HON. JERROLD NADLER
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, with the approach of International Human Rights Day on December 10, I would like to take this opportunity to chronicle for the national record the life and work of a remarkable human rights activist, Jacob Birnbaum of New York. It is interesting to note that he was actually born on December 10, 1926. As December 10, 2006 will mark his 80th birthday, it is entirely appropriate that his work should be portrayed in the Record of the Congress of the United States.

Jacob Birnbaum’s immediate family fled the Nazi and Soviet totalitarian systems. He was born in Warsaw, Poland, attended a public school in Poland and worked for many years.

Mr. Birnbaum named the new organization Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry (SSSJ). The authoritative Center for Jewish History was established. The same British historian of Winston Churchill, has considered Mr. Birnbaum the father of the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry movement.” Similar statements have been made by other major public figures such as Dr. Meir Rosenne, who worked closely with Mr. Birnbaum in the early formative period 1964–1967. Dr. Rosenne later became Israel’s ambassador to the United States. Sir Martin Gilbert, the official British historian of Winston Churchill, has made a similar statement.

In May, 1965, Mr. Birnbaum was the first to testify before a Congressional Committee on the importance of utilizing economic leverage on the Kremlin. When the late Senator Henry Jackson initiated the legislation which finally resulted in the passage of the Jackson-Vanik Amendment in 1975, Mr. Birnbaum worked closely with the director of Senator Jackson’s office, Dorothy Fosdick, and, of course, Richard Nixon, who played a major role in the initiation and development of the legislation.

The idea of placing economic pressure on Communist states to increase emigration played a key role in softening up the Kremlin regimes to make possible the Soviet Jewish demand to “Let My People Go.” For the first time, there was legislation to put teeth into the previous congressional humanitarian resolutions.

From 1976 to 1986, Jacob Birnbaum conducted annual Most Favored Nation campaigns, based on Jackson-Vanik, to pressure Romania to increase emigration and release prisoners. He testified annually before both Senate and House committees.

In the latter 1970s, Mr. Birnbaum enlarged his Soviet Jewry strategy. He expanded the slogan “Let My People Go” by adding “Let My People Know” (their heritage). The Kremlin had pulverized Jewish religious, cultural, and community life, and, in the 1960s, the Soviet Jewish resistance underground began to generate Jewish self-education cultural, religious, Hebrew-speaking groups. Mr. Birnbaum conducted numerous campaigns for their protection, enlisting the aid of many Christian religious denominations. These efforts reached a high point when he organized and led a delegation of American Jewish leaders to meet with the Deputy Secretary of State and the Department’s Human Rights Director, Warren Zimmermann in September, 1985.

Mr. Birnbaum’s vision was partially realized with Malcolm Hoenlein’s Solidarity Rallies in New York and, finally, by the great national rally in Washington on December 7, 1987 on the eve of Gorbachev’s meeting with President Reagan.

Finally, in 1990, the Kremlin conceded and permitted a mass emigration which now totals two million, (on million to Israel and one million elsewhere, mostly to the United States). This was no small accomplishment, and many people played a role in making it happen.

In addition to the courageous work of Mr. Birnbaum, tribute ought to be paid to the pioneers and the national organizations which fought so strenuously for the liberation of Soviet Jews.

The pioneers and the national organizations that Mr. Birnbaum asked me to publicly acknowledge for their support in this noble effort includes:

- Morris Abram, U.S. human rights commissioner; Dr. Moshe Deeter, the scholar whose research fueled the early movement; Justice Arthur Goldberg; the distinguished theologian Rabbi Dr. Abraham J. Heschel; Senator Jacob Javits; NASA scientist Dr. Louis Rosenblum of the Cleveland Committee on Soviet Anti-Semitism; and Elie Wiesel, whose book “The Jews of Silence” was so influential.

Furthermore, Mr. Birnbaum recalls the important roles played by colleagues in the following national organizations:

- Agudath Israel of America; Center for Russian Jewry with Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry, of which he is the founder and national director; Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish organizations; Greater New York Conference on Soviet Jewry, whose founding director was Malcolm Hoenlein; International League for the Repatriation of Russian Jews, founding chairman Morris Braman; Senator Jacob Javitts; Nehemiah Levanon, Israel Liaison Bureau for Soviet Jewry; the Lubavitcher Hasidic movement; National Conference of Soviet Jewry; New York Conference on Soviet Jewry, whose founding director was Malcolm Hoenlein; International League for the Repatriation of Russian Jews, founding chairman Dr. Louis Rosenblum; and Ambassador Dr. Meir Rosene.

Following the collapse of the Soviet regime, Mr. Birnbaum spent a substantial part of the 1990s in combating anti-Semitic manifestations in former Soviet Central Asia, mostly in Uzbekistan, intervening via the State Department and enlisting Malcolm Hoenlein’s aid in engaging the Uzbek Ambassador in Washington.

In his 80th year, Mr. Birnbaum continues to support groups engaged in the Jewish education of former Soviet Jews and their children.

For all these reasons, the House of Representatives ought to honor the life and six decades of public service of Jacob Birnbaum and especially his commitment to freeing Soviet Jews from religious, cultural, and communal extinction. He is a true hero.

INTRODUCTION OF THE INTERNATIONAL WOMEN’S FREEDOM ACT OF 2006

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, today I introduce the International Women’s Freedom Act of 2006. This legislation establishes an Office of International Women’s Rights within the State Department, headed by the Appointed Ambassador at Large, and additionally, would create a United States Commission on International Women’s Rights. The positive links between the empowerment of women and effective and sustainable development are very clear and this legislation would seek to protect women’s rights by channeling U.S. security and development assistance to countries that are not found in gross violations of women’s rights. According to the World Bank, when men and women are equal within a society, not only do the poor move more quickly out of poverty, but economies flourish and familial well-being is enhanced. I believe that all people, regardless of gender, should have the power to shape their lives and participate in their communities without the fear of oppression. When given the tools they need, such as education, access to employment, land, and economic assets, and the opportunity to contribute to civic life, women and girls improve their situation in society and have a positive impact on society as a whole. By annually reviewing the status of women’s rights in each country and designating countries of particular concern, more succinct policy recommendations can be made to the President, the Secretary of State and the Congress.

In 1998, Congress created a Commission on International Religious Freedom, and the State Department has already made a strong case for it. According to news reports, the Commission on International Religious Freedom has made substantial progress towards expanding religious freedom in Saudi Arabia and Turkmenistan. We require the State Department to issue reports on battling international terrorism and extremism. It is the duty of the United States to engage the other branches of government, the Department of Justice, and the Department of Homeland Security to take control, among many others. Creating a report on the status of women’s rights is vitaly important to assuring the rights of women worldwide.
PAYING TRIBUTE TO MICHAEL “MICK” GILLINS
HON. JON C. PORTER
OF NEVADA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006
Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Michael “Mick” Gillins for his exemplary service in the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department, LVMPD.

As a 19-year veteran of the Las Vegas Metro Police, Mick has a long history of admirable service and is a hero in the very essence of the word. In September, 1989, Mick arrested a suspect that had stolen military explosives that were intended to go to gang members. For this, Mick received a “Job Well Done” citation from the LVMPD. In January, 1992, Mick was nominated by the LVMPD for the American Legion Police Post #55 “Outstanding Officer of the Year” award; although he did not win this award, he was given a letter of commendation from then Sheriff, John Moran.

Mick’s dedication and service has affected countless lives; most noticeably on December 27, 1991 when he saved a drowning child’s life by administering CPR. When Mick arrived on the scene, the child was clinically dead; but due to Mick’s expertise the child was revived and suffered no brain damage. For his heroism, Mick received the “Exemplary Service Award” from the LVMPD, the “Life Saving Award” from Mercy Medical Services, and the “Community Service Award” from the Las Vegas Fire Department.

Recently, Mick was injured in the line of duty. On May 23, 2006, Mick was finishing up a traffic stop when he was struck by a car while sitting on his motorcycle. He sustained a broken left leg and two bulging disks in his lower back. The driver of the car that struck him was charged with driving under the influence, and toxycology reports indicated that she had more prescription drugs in her system than prescribed.

I also worked personally with Mick during my time as a Nevada State Senator. Mick spent a number of sessions at the Legislature for the LVMPD and the PPA, lobbying on behalf of his fellow officers.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to honor Michael “Mick” Gillins. His commitment to the Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department and to the Las Vegas Community has improved countless lives. I applaud his dedication and I wish him a speedy recovery.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO DANIELLE SHEEHAN
HON. THOMAS G. TANCREDO
OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006
Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to one of my constituents, Ms. Danielle Sheehan of Littleton, Colorado. Ms. Sheehan has been accepted to the People to People World Leadership Forum here in our Nation’s Capitol. This year marks the 50th anniversary of the People to People program founded by President Eisenhower in 1956.

Ms. Sheehan has displayed academic excellence, community involvement and leadership potential. All students chosen for the program have been identified and nominated by educators.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to join in paying tribute to Danielle Sheehan, and wish her the best in all her future endeavors.

WHY CONGRESS SHOULD TAKE A CLOSER LOOK AT RUSSIA’S WTO ACCESSION PROCESS
HON. DARRELL F. ISSA
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006
Mr. ISSA. Mr. Speaker, as Congress leaves for the upcoming November elections, I would like to raise an issue that will gain more attention over the next few months—a U.S.-Russia bilateral agreement on Russia’s membership in the World Trade Organization. As someone who is watching the U.S.-Russia WTO negotiations very closely, I believe the outcome is important to acknowledge the obstacles that remain.

While a successful U.S.-Russia WTO agreement can be imagined, the reality of the current situation is that both sides are still apart on key issues. I urge my colleagues to keep a watchful eye on these negotiations, which will have important consequences for U.S. industries, workers, and consumers.

Some say Russia has made progress in its actions, commitments, and negotiations with the United States over the past year. However, both countries were unable to meet the goal of concluding WTO talks at the July Group of Eight meeting in St. Petersburg, Russia. The new goal for the completion of negotiations is when Presidents Bush and Putin meet at the November 2006 Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) forum in Vietnam.

The United States and the global community will ultimately benefit when Russia becomes a member of the World Trade Organization. Although Russia’s economy is a developing one, including many aspects, its economic progress since the end of the cold war and potential for growth are positive trends. The complete integration of Russia into the global economy is an important step that will help Russia and its trading partners. It will also help to support the continuation of positive U.S.-Russia relations.

However, at this stage, significant obstacles to Russia’s WTO accession remain and must be addressed. Russia’s behavior in a number of areas and its lack of concrete commitments on important issues is contrary to the spirit of free trade and the WTO and must be reversed. In essence, the WTO is a set of rules and commitments and a forum for dispute resolution, factors that make it fundamentally different from most international organizations with extended bureaucracies. In this manner, these rules and commitments must be honored and if the WTO is to have any meaning whatsoever.

Russia is failing to uphold standards that many in the U.S., Europe and elsewhere believe are essential for WTO accession. The area of intellectual property is a prime example.

Due in large part to Russia’s failure to enforce its anti-piracy and intellectual property protection laws, 421–2 of my House colleagues joined me in passing a resolution in December 2005 (H. Con. Res. 230) that called on Russia to provide adequate and effective protection of intellectual property rights, or it risk losing its eligibility to participate in the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP) program and to ensure that intellectual property protection is effectively enforced. It is time for Congress to pay closer attention to Russia’s WTO accession process.

The United States remains concerned about access to the Russian banking, financial services and insurance markets, all of which are substantially restricted for foreign companies. The U.S. is advocating on the opening of bank branches, but Russia has repeatedly insisted that foreign banks be required to open a full subsidiary, not a branch, when entering Russia. In the insurance industry, Russia does not allow foreign insurance companies to underwrite and reinsure mandatory forms of insurance, including motor vehicle, health and government institutional insurance. Before Russia passed legislation in late 2003 to expand foreign ownership to 25 percent, the EU had considered the Russian insurance industry essentially closed.

According to the President’s 2006 Trade Policy Agenda and 2005 Annual Report, the U.S. remains concerned about market access for poultry, pork and beef in the wake of a June 15, 2005 agreement with Russia. The issue of how the agreement is being implemented, specifically questions that a U.S. agency could be used by other countries, is currently under discussion.

The United States is currently in the midst of its bilateral negotiations with the Russian Federation to agree to Russia’s membership and participation in the World Trade Organization. The United States is one of only a few nations remaining that must conclude a bilateral WTO agreement before Russia formally accedes to the WTO.

As this process continues, it is critical that Congress consider Russia beyond specific commercial issues and commitments on trade issues. Congress should consider that Russia’s is regressing in its movement towards a more democratic society and free market.
economy because both issues have important ramifications for our trade relationship.

As a member of Congress who serves on the House Judiciary and International Relations Committees and Chairs the Energy and Resources subcommittee of the Government Reform Committee, I am engaged in the formulation of policy on intellectual property, U.S. foreign policy, and energy issues. Therefore, I see the U.S.-Russia trade relationship from a variety of perspectives. I also see the important relationship between market and democracy trends and Russia's WTO accession process.

I urge my colleagues to pay attention to these larger trends, some of which are disturbing, as you consider Russia's progress on WTO negotiations with the United States and the eventual consideration of the Jackson-Vanik legislation and granting of PNTR to Russia. Russia must be held accountable under a WTO agreement that protects free and fair trade.

COAST GUARD AUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2006

SPEECH OF
HON. DON YOUNG
OF ALASKA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Madam Speaker, I am an exchange of letters between DON YOUNG and RICHARD POMBO for the RECORD.

Chairman, Committee on Resources,
Chairman, Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I have reviewed the text of H.R. 5681, the Coast Guard Authorization Act of 2006, and believe that the Committee on Resources has a jurisdictional interest in provisions in this important legislation dealing with fisheries. Specifically, we have identified a provision dealing with the Bering Sea and Aleutian Islands crab fishery in the Northern Region of the management plan.

Recognizing that the House of Representatives has a dwindling number of legislative days left before the 109th Congress adjourns, I will forsake the sequential referral of H.R. 5681. Waiving the Committee on Resources’ right to a referral in this case does not waive the Committee’s jurisdiction over any provision in H.R. 5681 or similar provisions in other bills. In addition, I ask that you support my request to have the Committee on Resources represented on the conference on this bill, if a conference is necessary. Finally, I ask that you include this letter in the Congressional Record during deference on this bill, if a conference is necessary. I appreciate your agreement to allow this measure to proceed under suspension and to waive further consideration.

I understand that your agreement to allow this bill to proceed under suspension is conditioned upon our mutual understanding that nothing in this legislation, or your decision to waive further consideration, reduces or otherwise affects the jurisdiction of the Committee on Resources over provisions of the bill that are in your jurisdiction. I also understand that this waiver does not affect the right of the Committee on Resources to have its members named as conferees in the event of a conference with the Senate on this bill.

I greatly appreciate your cooperation in allowing the conversion to catcher processor shares provision to move on H.R. 5681. This issue impacts only fisheries in Alaska.

Sincerely,

DON YOUNG, Chairman.

TRIBUTE TO HUMBOLDT VETERANS “WALL OF HONOR”

HON. JOE KNOLENBERG
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. KNOLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I want to pay tribute today to one town’s effort to remember all of its veterans from the Civil War to the current War on Terror. Remembering the brave men and women of our military is something we should all strive to do in some fashion.

Humboldt and Humboldt Township is a small community in northern-central Illinois. Thirty-five miles south of Champagne and nine miles north of Mattoon, Humboldt and Humboldt Township revolve around agriculture and farming. The 1,300 people of Humboldt Town, including the 500 that live in the town of Humboldt, define the essence of hard-working Americans.

The citizens of Humboldt Township are embarking on a remarkable memorial to honor the men and women of our Armed Forces. Next month the “Wall of Honor” will be on display at the Humboldt Township building. This tribute will honor veterans from the Humboldt area dating back to the Civil War and continuing to the present day. There will be hundreds of pictures mounted on the walls and articles of interest will be displayed on tables.

While Humboldt may not be large, their contribution to the U.S. military has been great. Humboldt residents have served during times of peace and times of war. When needed, they have heeded the call of duty and traveled far from home to defend the United States. They have triumphed at Vicksburg during the Civil War, flown bombing missions over the Pacific in World War II, rescued fellow soldiers as the U.S. engaged in the Korean War, courageously served in Vietnam, liberated a country held hostage during the Gulf War, and fought in the War on Terror and Iraq.

Mr. Speaker, during this time when the military is so important to the United States, it is gratifying to see local communities make efforts to remember those that have dedicated their lives to protecting this nation. I congratulate the citizens of Humboldt and wish them the best.

HONORING FAIRFAX CITY’S VFW POST 8469

HON. TOM DAVIS
OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 60th anniversary of VFW Post 8469, and the veterans whose dedication and service to this country are a remarkable testament to the past and present character of America’s servicemen.

On October 7, 2006, Fairfax City’s VFW Post 8469 will celebrate its 60th anniversary. This Veterans of Foreign Wars Post includes members who have served their country in several foreign conflicts, including World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Desert Storm and most recently Iraqi Freedom. It is the history of this fine group of patriots that is celebrated. And history tells a tale.

Sixty years ago Fairfax was a bucolic little southern county. There were only two high schools. The Fairfax County Police Department had only six officers. Most of the young men who went off to war in the preceding 5 years knew each other, as did many of their families. They generally left for war at different times and typically served in different units, spread all over the globe.

These soldiers saved the world and then they returned to an America that had radically transformed in their absence; specifically, to a county poised on the verge of a period of unprecedented growth. The only thing that had changed more than their world was the soldiers themselves. The returning soldiers, in the words of Oliver Wendell Holmes, “[had] shared the incomunicable experience of war . . .” This theme, and the reality of their circumstance, helped to underscore the necessity for a place and a venue where the veterans could find comradeship, work for the common good of the community, their fellow veterans, the widows and orphans, and to remember their fallen.

Mr. Speaker, today VFW 8469 is blessed with the presence of four of the 108 charter members of our Post from October 1946. All members of VFW 8469 stand on the shoulders of those and others.

The Charter Members named VFW 8469 the “Blue and Gray Post”, in honor of the area’s famous 29th Infantry Division and in recognition of the healing power of a post-Civil War poem titled, The Blue and the Gray, by Francis Miles Finch. The first verse of which reads:

“By the flow of the inland river,
Whence the fleets of iron have fled, [the Chesapeake Bay and Potomac River]
Where the blades of the grave-grass quiver,
Are the ranks of the dead: [Arlington Cemetery]
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment-day;
Under the oak and the pine,
Under the other, the Gray.”

All Americans owe an unfathomable debt to our American soldiers who have taken up arms in defense of our lives and our freedom. As I ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the 60th anniversary of VFW Post 8469, I believe it appropriate to conclude with the remarks of Floyd Houston, a member of VFW Post 8469.

"These young veterans need us as much as we need them. We must never forget our past—these giants who built what we have today and we must always keep faith with our values as we press into the future—support to veterans, their survivors, our community, and honoring our dead. May God continue to bless this Post, this county, this country, and may we never be at a loss for heroes such as these."

PAYING TRIBUTE TO JOHN RINALDI
HON. JON C. PORTER
OF NEVADA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor my good friend John Rinaldi, who is retiring after a long and distinguished career with the City of Henderson, Nevada. John is an outstanding example of a dedicated and supportive community-minded person that I have the privilege of representing in the Third Congressional District.

John joined the City of Henderson in October 1989 as Property Manager and City Surveyor and was promoted in July 2004 to Manager of the Office of Property Management and Redevelopment in the City Manager’s Office. He formerly directed the City of Henderson’s real estate interests; administered the sale, purchase, and lease of property for public use and city-initiated enterprise projects; and oversaw the Redevelopment Agency’s efforts in three separate districts: Downtown, Tuscany, and Cornerstone.

John graduated from California Polytechnic University, San Luis Obispo in 1976 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Horticulture—Landscape Design. John is a registered Water Rights Surveyor in Nevada and a licensed Professional Land Surveyor in Nevada, California, and Oregon. He is a published author of several articles on land surveying and an instructor, presenting papers at national conferences, classes and seminars.

In addition to his academic success and accomplishments, John is also a member of several organizations such as the Urban Land Institute, International Right-of-Way Association, American Public Works Association, American Congress on Surveying and Mapping, and the Nevada Association of Land Surveyors. John is also a graduate of the 1998 Clark County Leadership Forum.

John has allowed these experiences to strengthen his philosophies and ideologies of community, integrity and professionalism to strengthen his moral code and leadership abilities. John is well regarded for possessing a strong moral character which has guided him successfully through his years of public service to our community. His commitment and passion for building a better Nevada reflects the type of person that he is.

Mr. Speaker, I am proud to honor my good friend John Rinaldi. He has worked tirelessly for the last 17 years on behalf of the residents of the City of Henderson, and I applaud his efforts and dedication. I wish him the best in his retirement.

CONGRATULATIONS TO KATY ELEMENTARY
HON. RON PAUL
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, Katy Elementary School, of the Katy Independent School District, is among the 26 Texas schools that have recently received the Department of Education’s prestigious Blue Ribbon Schools award.

The No Child Left Behind-Blue Ribbon Schools Program recognizes outstanding public and private schools that are either academically superior or have demonstrated dramatic and consistent gains in student achievement. The Department of Education selects Blue Ribbon Schools based on nominations submitted by the states. My colleagues may be interested to know that every school nominated by Texas received a Blue Ribbon Schools award.

Schools can be nominated for a Blue Ribbon Schools Award if at least forty percent of their disadvantaged students show dramatic improvement over three years on state tests in reading or English language arts and mathematics. Schools whose student bodies rank in the top ten percent on state tests in reading or English language arts and mathematics may also be nominated for a Blue Ribbon Schools Award.

In addition to these two criteria, Blue Ribbon Schools must meet Adequate Yearly Progress requirements in reading or English language arts and mathematics, must not have been identified as a “Persistently Dangerous” school within the last two years, and must comply with other Department of Education requirements.

Katy Elementary’s designation as Blue Ribbon Schools is a tribute to the school’s teachers, administrators, and other employees’ dedication to providing students with a quality education. It also is a reflection of the students and parents’ commitment to the pursuit of educational excellence. I am therefore pleased to offer my congratulations to Katy Elementary School for being one of the 26 Texas schools designated as Blue Ribbon Schools by the Department of Education.

INTRODUCTION OF THE PERSONALIZED HEALTH INFORMATION ACT
HON. PATRICK J. KENNEDY OF RHODE ISLAND
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Speaker, I am proud today to introduce the Personalized Health Information Act, which I hope will be a step in helping us redesign America’s health care system.

Our health care system today delivers some of the best care in the world, but can hardly be described as the best health care system. We spend more than 50% more on health care per capita than other industrialized nations, and yet our health outcomes are much worse. We all know the burden that health care costs are putting on America’s families and businesses.

Many of us have extolled the potential of information technology to begin transforming health care. I.T. can unlock data that is trapped in paper, catch human errors, help providers deliver the latest evidence-based medicine, improve public health, reduce duplication and administrative costs, and provide new research capabilities. I.T. is both a means to an end, and yet we must always keep faith with our aircraft carriers. That is what I.T. is.

I’ve introduce other bills on this subject, and House and Senate negotiators are currently trying to work out a compromise health I.T. bill, but this bill today is a new approach. Those other bills, mine and others’, have generally focused on the challenges of putting technology in providers’ hands and building the related infrastructure. This bill puts people at the center of the equation, and we pursue it vigorously. But it also is long-term.

I believe that there are other, parallel steps we can take that can begin harnessing the power of technology to improve health outcomes and efficiency right now. And I think we can do so in a way that will begin changing the dynamics around health I.T. in a way that makes the longer-term goals more attainable.

Web-based, consumer-controlled patient health records, PHRs, have been recognized by many to have great potential. After all, a PHR that contains a person’s basic demographics, insurance information, and a current medications list would be extremely valuable, even if it contained nothing else. That PHR would mean every provider would have important basic information at the point of care, it would cut down on medication errors, and streamline administration.

The problem is that while many organizations offer PHRs, few people actually use them. The Personalized Health Information Act is designed to jump-start the use of PHRs.

This bill seeks to use the doctor-patient relationship to make the PHRs of value to the patients. Right now, most individuals see PHRs... as a lot of work with little benefit. If doctors begin using them with patients, however, the patients can get something out of them. So this bill will ask doctors to use PHRs to replace those dreaded clipboards when patients come to the office. If physicians do that, PHRs become more attractive. The patient can take his or her own information into a PHR, and use it with any doctor. If their doctors use them, the person will never have to fill out another clipboard again.

Even better, the PHR can be a communications channel between the doctor and patient. The physician, or other entities like the health plan or the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention or the American Heart Association, can send messages to the patient. For example, the patient can receive a reminder that she is due for a mammogram, or her prescription needs to be refilled. If physicians are willing, many PHRs can be used to allow e-consults and online scheduling as well.

If we can bring a critical mass of consumers into PHRs, it could create a strong consumer demand for health I.T. that could dramatically accelerate the transition. And polls show that consumers do want the capabilities that PHRs provide. For example, a recent Wall Street Journal poll found that approximately three-quarters of respondents said in each case that they would like to be able to email their doctor, to receive test results electronically, and to receive electronic reminders. Unfortunately, fewer than ten percent can do any of those things right now.

Once physicians begin tapping into this pent-up demand by offering to use PHRs, I believe large numbers of patients will enroll. And conversely, as patients begin using PHRs, they will want their physicians to do so as well. Banks initially paid customers to use ATMs, but now they compete on how many ATMs they have and the functionality of their online banking offerings. Similarly, once health care consumers begin seeing the convenience and benefits of information technology, providers will want to be able to meet that demand. In this way, widespread use of PHRs could create the incentive to make the investments in electronic medical records and other information technologies.

PHRs carry the potential for significant health and efficiency gains by changing patient behavior. Research shows that when patients receive reminders and other messages, they better comply with prescriptions, preventive care, and other health care recommendations. When that happens, patient health improves, and it also brings financial benefits to health plans, purchasers, and pharmaceutical companies. Everyone wins.

The Personalized Health Information Act would tap the value-added of PHRs by creating a public-private PHR Incentive Fund to pay physicians and other providers an incentive of at least $2 for every patient with whom they use the PHR. The doctor simply needs to use the PHR in lieu of the clipboard, ensure that the patient’s medications list is updated after the appointment, and use the PHR for communicating with the patient in appropriate circumstances. These requirements would be carried out by office staff and put minimal burden on the doctor. Every appointment would contribute $2 to the Fund for each beneficiary enrolled, and private plans, drug and device manufacturers, and other private parties could do the same.

To qualify for the payment, PHRs will need to meet certain minimum standards. They need to be entirely in the control of the individual, and will have to guarantee the portability of the data, so that the individual can take the information at any time. They’ll have to meet interoperability standards and privacy from persons who enter the information into a PHR. In addition, they will also need to be able to send patient-specific messages in appropriate situations. Partners in the Fund would be able to have messages sent to patients with whom they have relationships via the PHRs, with strong safeguards to ensure that the messages are independently verified to be objective, accurate, and relevant to the patient. Absolutely no marketing or solicitations would be permitted. The individual must have the right to opt out of these messages, either entirely or from particular sources, at any time. In addition, the bill creates a Consumer Protection Board to ensure that these standards are met.

By paying incentives to physicians from a public-private fund, the Personalized Health Information Act captures the value that PHRs can create in targeting the strongest force in health care: the doctor-patient relationship.

This bill is not a silver bullet, Mr. Speaker, and will not solve all of the challenges inherent in moving from a 20th century pen-and-paper system to a digital system for the 21st century. But it can inexpensively and quickly give millions of consumers and physicians a stake in that transition.

Before I close, I want to acknowledge the efforts of Dr. Edward Fotsch, who has done much to develop the ideas underlying this bill and has helped pull together feedback and input from physicians, consumer groups, payers, pharmaceutical companies, and others. I also need to express a debt of gratitude—again—to former Speaker Newt Gingrich and David Merritt at the Center for Health Transformation, who have been unlikely but terrific allies in the quest for, as Speaker Gingrich would say, a 21st century intelligent health system.

There are too many Americans who are being let down by a health care system that is unable to consistently and efficiently deliver the world-class care that it is capable of. I hope that this legislation will bring us one step closer to the health care system we need and deserve.

Mr. TANNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize a valued employee of the U.S. House of Representatives, Louis Costantino, Sr. This year marks his 26th year of service to the Capitol and the House of Representatives. Mr. Costantino was born in a house on New Jersey Avenue, just a couple of blocks from the Capitol and it has always been an integral part of his life. Growing up on Capitol Hill he has fond memories of playing in the halls of the Capitol as a child. There is no wonder that he grew up to be one of our Chamber’s finest gate keepers.

For years he has taken up his post outside the main entrance to the chamber—“the same door the president comes in for his State of the Union address,” he will quickly tell you. He first began his career with the House of Representatives in 1980 with the Office of the Doorkeeper and he currently works for the Sergeant at Arms. Mr. Costantino has the deepest respect and admiration for our institution and all of it Members. He truly loves his job and the people around him.

Mr. Costantino has been struggling with cancer for the last two years, and I am happy to report that he has won that struggle. His physician, Dr. Kressel, this week gave him the good news. This was what his wife Doris, his children Eddyie, Lou and Amy, his first grandchild Bella and his friends everywhere had long waited for.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that we congratulate Mr. Costantino on his 26 years of service to the House of Representatives and that we wish him continued good health.

entered Naval Training Station Great Lakes, Illinois. In February 1944, Frank became one of the first 13 African-American commissioned naval officers. The Golden 13 scored higher on standard tests than their white counterparts and went on to serve with distinction and fight the Nazis in the Atlantic and the Japanese in the Pacific. Frank Sublett continued to serve until the war ended in 1945.

When I first met Frank I was inspired by his story. And when I learned that he and other members of the World War II Black Navy Veterans were raising money to build a memorial honoring African-American Navy veterans from World War II, I wanted to help. I am saddened that Frank Sublett will not be standing next to me when we dedicate the memorial in North Chicago on Veterans Day. I hope that this monument to the courage of Frank and his comrades in arms will inspire young people to dedicate themselves to public service, whether in the military or as a civilian.

I want to offer my condolences to the Sublett family, especially to Frank’s wife, Susan. Frank will be missed, but the memory of the Golden 13 will live on.

RECOGNIZING MARUMSCO HILLS ELEMENTARY SCHOOL’S 40TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. TOM DAVIS
OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. TOM DAVIS of Virginia, Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to pay tribute to Marumsco Hills Elementary School as it prepares to celebrate its 40th anniversary.

In the late 1950s and early 1960s the Woodbridge area was starting its suburban growth. Most of the land surrounding the school was developed by Cecil D. Hylton. His major projects included Marumsco Village (1954), Loch Lomond (1958), Westgate (1961), Marumsco Acres (1961), Marumsco Hills (1961), Marumsco Woods (1962), and Dale City (1965).

In June 1963, the citizens of Prince William County approved a bond proposal for $7,000,000 for school construction. In April 1964, Cecil D. Hylton and his wife Irene deed-ed 12 acres in Section 2 of the Marumsco Hills subdivision to Prince William County Schools. Marumsco Hills Elementary School was constructed by the Whyte Construction Company in 1964 for a contract price of $442,631.67.

The school was designed by architect Earl Bailey. His particular plan was called the Bailey plan and was in a barbell design with circular pods on either end of a rectangular section. Eight other schools in the county were constructed in the same design. The classrooms surrounded an open court with each room opening onto the court.

It was first occupied by pupils for a full day of school on November 25, 1964. The dedication ceremony was held a year later on December 14, 1965. Dedication speakers included Stuart Beville, the Superintendent of Prince William County Schools. The school address at that time was 1005 Page Street. In 1966 a six-room addition was constructed, which now houses first grade and kindergarten classrooms. In 1984, the pods were enclosed, creating 5 new rooms. In 2005 another two-rooms were added to the previous addition.

The school originally housed 1st through 6th grade students. In 1966, the county school system made major changes, moving 6th graders to the middle school level. In 1973 kindergartners were added to the elementary schools. In the 1974–1975 school year, 720 students were enrolled here. That year there were 74 kindergartners and 193 fifth graders. Today Marumsco Hills Elementary School currently has 406 students.

Since its establishment in 1966, Marumsco Hills Elementary School has committed itself to lofty standards of academic and extra-curricular excellence. Over the years, as the Prince William area has expanded and diversified, Marumsco Hills Elementary School has followed the community’s example.

Mr. Speaker, in closing, I would like to thank Marumsco Hills Elementary School faculty and staff for the immeasurable contributions they have made to the community by shaping today’s youth and tomorrow’s future. I congratul-at the school on its successes over the last 40 years and I wish it more successful years in the future. I ask that my colleagues join me in applauding this outstanding and distin-guished institution.

SALUTING THE NATION’S TOP BLACK COLLEGE RADIO STATION: FISK UNIVERSITY’S WFSK-FM

HON. JIM COOPER
OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. COOPER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate a very special organization in my hometown of Nashville, WFSK-FM, the radio station of Fisk University. Fisk is recognized nationwide for its outstanding academic programs as well as the world-famous Fisk Jubilee Singers—a group we recently honored here in Congress with the introduction of a special Congressional Resolution. Now, Fisk is also celebrating another outstanding accomplishment. WFSK-FM was just named the Nation’s top black college radio station in the annual awards from Black Press Magazine and the Historical Black Press Foundation.

WFSK-FM broadcasts from its home on the campus of Fisk, but it informs and entertains a growing audience throughout the Middle Tennessee area. On air since 1973, WFSK-FM has long been recognized for its diverse and innovative programming. The current format reflects the diversity and interests of the greater Nashville area. Music programs showcase smooth jazz classics, reggae, Haitian and African and gospel, as well as vintage funk and soul recordings. Public affairs programming includes in-depth news reporting, talk shows. that focus on issues of concern to the community, and features on art and culture events. According to Sharon Kay, General Manager at WFSK for the past year, the station prides itself on offering the community “an opportunity to hear shows and events from a cultural perspective and viewpoint that is unique in this marketplace.”

On October 6, WFSK will kick off a major fund-raising effort with a non-stop, 48-hour on-air celebration of their heritage and their commitment to future growth. Under Sharon Kay’s direction, WFSK is undertaking a major renovation and expansion, with plans for a new transmitter and new antennae, as well as upgraded digital equipment. I am honored to be joining the entire team at WFSK, as well as other community leaders and music professionals, for this important event.

WFSK is a powerful and important voice in Nashville. I am proud to salute them on their latest achievement, being named the Nation’s top black college radio station. And I wish them continued success with their upcoming fundraising event and in the years to come as they expand their presence in our community.

HONORING REV. WAITSTILL AND MARTHA SHARP FOR SAVING LIVES DURING THE HOLOCAUST

HON. JAMES P. MCGOVERN
OF MASSACHUSETTS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, it is my honor to introduce legislation today paying tribute to the Reverend Waitstill and Martha Sharp, the couple who fought genocide.

On September 14, 2006, a ceremony was held at the U.S. Holocaust Museum in Washington, D.C. honoring the Reverend Waitstill Sharp and his wife, Martha, as they became the second and third Americans to be added to the honor roll of 21,000 “righteous” gentiles, or non-Jews, whose efforts saved countless lives during World War II.

Also, on September 14, the Washington Post wrote an article about the Sharps, calling them “The Couple Who Fought Genocide,” and I would like to share with my colleagues excerpts from that article:

As the Nazis marched across Europe in 1939 and 1940, a Unitarian minister from Massachusetts and his wife rushed into the coming Holocaust to save Jews and other refugees, including some of her own children. When they set out for Europe in January 1939, Germany had seized the Sudetenland from Czechoslovakia and refugees were flowing across the continent. The American Unitarian Association asked numerous ministers to go to Europe before Waitstill, 37, and his social worker wife, Martha, 33, agreed.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, was home to one of the world’s largest Unitarian congregations, which was helping refugees of all stripes—Jews, trade unionists, political dissenters, and others. The Sharps arrived by hand in February 1939, and one month later, the city was occupied by the Nazis.

On March 14, the day the Germans took Prague, Martha Sharp guided an anti-Nazi leader to asylum at the British Embassy. A few days later, the Reverence Waitstill Sharp arranged for a member of the Czech parliament to be smuggled out of a hospital morgue in a body bag. The Nazis soon closed the Sharps’ office and threw their furniture into the street. But the couple stayed another five months and got out just ahead of the Gestapo.

On their second foray to Europe, in mid-1940, they worked in Marseilles, France and helped smuggle people across the Pyrenees into neutral Portugal. One of their close collaborators was Varian Fry, a 32-year-old New York editor who devoted himself to saving European intellectuals and was the first U.S. citizen placed by Yad Vashem on its “Righteous Among the Nations” honor roll, which includes Oskar Schindler and Raoul Wallenberg.

Since the Sharps burned most of their records to keep them out of Nazi hands, no one knew how many saved their grandson, Artemis Joukowcyski III of Boston, estimates they helped 3,500 refugees in Prague, though it is unclear how many survived. In Marseilles, they pioneered routes that hundreds used to escape.

Marianne Sheckler-Feder of Laguna Hills, California, has a funny but enduring memory of Martha Sharp. She described her as a fading black-and-white photograph taken on a sun-dappled street in the French port of Mars-elle. “I remember the figure, she was a very, very elegant lady. Kind of serious and very concerned. You looked up to her, she demanded respect,” said Sheckler-Feder, now 79.

Thousands of refugees from across Europe had flocked to Marseilles in hopes of gaining passage abroad, only to be interned in work camps when France surrendered to Germany in 1940 and the Nazis set up a collaborationist government in Vichy. Sheckler-Feder was 12. She was one of three Jewish sisters, nearly identical triplets who had fled with their parents from Vienna, a bare step ahead of the Gestapo.

Marseilles was the end of the road, the end of hope until... Waitstill Sharp. She persisted Vichy officials to issue exit visas for 29 children, including nine Jews. With all most as much difficulty, she persuaded the State Department, which was rife with anti-Semitism, to let the children and 10 adults into the United States.

Sheckler-Feder and her sisters traveled by train to Lisbon and sailed in December 1940 aboard the Exclusion, a ship stripped of all furnishings except sleeping bags, blankets and pillows to accommodate as many passengers as possible. Their parents eventually followed.

Sheckler-Feder has no doubt that were it not for Martha Sharp, her family would have perished: “What she did is outstanding, it will never be forgotten.”

Mr. Speaker, this bill is the House companion to S. Res. 562, which was introduced in Senate by Senators REED, KENNEDY and KERRY. I am very proud to introduce this bill with the esteemed ranking member of the House International Relations Committee, Congressman TOM LANTOS, and the other House members of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council, Representatives CANNON (UT), CANTOR (VA), LATOURrette (OH) and WAXMAN (CA), along with the Members of the House congressional delegations representing Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

I urge all my colleagues to cosponsor this resolution paying tribute to this courageous husband and wife team and to pass this legislation in the coming weeks before the 109th Congress permanently adjourns.

INTRODUCTION OF NATIONAL PLAN YOUR VACATION DAY

HON. JON C. PORTER
OF NEVADA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to submit a resolution that would support the goals and ideas of a National Plan Your Vacation Day.

I have introduced this resolution today because I believe that vacations play an important role in creating a lifetime of memories that may be shared between individuals, friends, and families. Furthermore, travel opens our minds and hearts to different cultures, places and people. As Mark Twain wrote: “Travel is fatal to prejudice, bigotry, and narrow-mindedness, and many of our people need it solely on these accounts. Broad, wholesome, charitable views of men and things cannot be acquired by vegetating in one corner of the earth all one’s lifetime.”

Travel is vital to our health and well-being as a strong and vibrant economy. The southern Nevada area is one of the top American and international tourist destinations. The city of Las Vegas has earned a reputation as the convention capital of the world. In 2005, the city hosted 22,154 conventions, attended by some 6.2 million people. In fact, two-thirds of every dollar spent in the State of Nevada is a product of the tourism industry.

With the advancements in technology, making travel arrangements to visit Las Vegas or other destinations has never been easier. In fact, in this new broadband world, where businesses need not be built on brick and mortar, we have seen a transformation and revolution to online commerce. For example, October 23, 2006 marks the 10-year anniversary of Expedia.com, an innovative online travel company which maintains significant operations
Mr. Speaker, today I urge my colleagues’ support of legislation that has been introduced to enhance, improve and modernize veterans’ education and training programs. Specifically, I am proud to be an original co-sponsor of H.R. 6250, a bill introduced by Dr. Vic Snyder of Arkansas, a member of the House Veterans’ Affairs Committee.

Nearly 62 years have passed since congressional enactment of the “Servicemen’s Readjustment Act of 1944”, commonly known as the “GI Bill of Rights”, by which accounts a landmark legislative accomplishment. Last year marked the 20th anniversary of the implementation of the “Montgomery GI Bill” (MGIB), another critically important legislative measure which has been credited for the creation of the middle class in America.

Now, the time has come to develop a “Total Force GI Bill for the 21st Century.” For education and training benefits to remain a relevant recruitment, retention and readjustment tool, we must ensure that VA’s education and training programs reflect the current manner in which individuals earn and learn in today’s competitive marketplace.

A “Total Force GI Bill” must also reflect today’s military force structure. Clearly, we all recognize the total force policy of our military includes increased activation of the National Guard and Reserve forces. Like no other time in our history have citizen-soldiers sacrificed so much and served with such distinction as they currently do in Iraq and Afghanistan. Since September 11, 2001, nearly 500,000 National Guard and Reservists have been activated, and approximately 40 percent of the troops currently serving in Iraq and Afghanistan are citizen-soldiers. These patriots have earned and deserve high quality education and training benefits, to be used even after they separate from military service. The “Total Force GI Bill” proposal would organize all MGIB programs within a single area of Federal law and under the jurisdiction of the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA). It would allow members of the National Guard and Reserves to use their education benefits after they separate from military service, for up to a period of 10 years.

I want to work in a bipartisan fashion to improve and modernize the MGIB so that it better reflects current trends in education and vocational training programs. The VA’s Advisory Committee on Education and the Partnership for Veterans Education—a group made up of traditional veterans and military service organizations, as well as higher education advocates, all have endorsed the provisions of H.R. 6250. I believe this legislative proposal deserves careful consideration, and I pledge to work to pass the funding needed to support these improvements.

TRIBUTE TO MARY JEAN DUCKETT

HON. NATHAN DEAL
OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. DEAL of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Ms. Mary Jean Duckett. Ms. Duckett served as the Deputy Director of the Disabled and Elderly Health Programs Group (DEHPG) within the Center for Medicaid and State Operations and the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) and retired on March 3, 2006 after 39 years of distinguished Federal service. More than half of her career was dedicated to the Medicaid program at CMS, and I rise in honor of her service.

Ms. Duckett served as a champion for people with disabilities and long-term illness to live meaningful lives in the community. She worked tirelessly to ensure Medicaid beneficiaries received effective and high quality services. Most recently, her skillful and seasoned insight was of great assistance to the Energy and Commerce Committee during the development of home and community-based care legislation, including the Money Follows the Person Rebalancing Demonstration Act of 2005. Ms. Duckett can be proud that her work on this legislation will have a significant impact on the lives of many people with disabilities and enable them to live and work in the community.

Ms. Duckett started her career in the Social Security Administration working the graveyard shift as a secretary so she could attend college full-time during the day. She received her Bachelor of Science degree in Sociology and then went on to earn a Master's degree in Social Policy while still working full-time and raising two children with her husband. Using this education and her experience, she worked her way up into the CMS management team as the Senior Director of the Division of Benefits Coverage and Payment in DEHPG within the Center for Medicaid and State Operations and eventually became the DEHPG Deputy Director. She provided national leadership in increasing care options for individuals with disabilities by assisting states and others stakeholders in designing financially sound Medicaid programs that emphasize long-term services and supports that foster choice and opportunity for full participation in community life, including independent living, economic self-sufficiency and recovery for individuals of all ages.

Ms. Duckett served as a pioneer in helping states provide alternatives to institutional settings. She is part of the foundation upon which the home—and community-based service (HCBS) program in CMS has been built. The HCBS program was created in 1981, and she contributed to the development, approval, and implementation of each of the approximately 250 home and community-based programs operating throughout all 50 states today. The wealth of knowledge she developed will continue to benefit individuals with disabilities and long-term illnesses across the country every day.

Ms. Duckett's expertise was invaluable and extensive, and her commitment to serving individuals with disabilities and long-term illness served as a model for people that worked for her. She provided an infallible sense of public service, and she always put other people first. Her contributions will be carried on as further steps are taken towards improving or maintaining the ability of individuals to contribute to society in a setting of their choice, averting deterioration in individuals' functional status, and reducing the likelihood that individuals with disability and the elderly will need institutional care.

On behalf of the million plus people living in the community of their choosing instead of an institution, who may never know who she is, or how directly and fundamentally her work impacted them, I sincerely hope that you will join me in recognizing and thanking Mary Jean Duckett for her dedication and service to the Federal Government, and in wishing her the best in her retirement.
Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the previous question. This do-nothing Republican Congress plans to adjourn without taking action on the issues facing American families. It is outrageous that instead of addressing our national security and economic security, Republicans are focused on scoring cheap political points that benefit special interests, further divide this country, and put us at greater risk.

Families—not big oil companies—need relief from the economic squeeze most are facing. This year we see the cost of health care, energy and education going up while wages stagnate. Our economic growth depends on an investment in our future and on recognizing that hard working, middle class Americans are the engine of our economy. It is also outrageous that 5 years after the tragedy of September 11, Republican leadership has failed to make the necessary investment in Homeland Security, preferring instead to continue to provide unaffordable tax cuts to corporations.

Democrats have proposed 5 actions that this Congress can take that will make a real difference in the lives of families.

This Congress should not adjourn without increasing the minimum wage. Republicans voted to increase our pay by $31,600 this year but have refused a pay raise for the 15 million hardworking Americans making the minimum wage.

We must allow the Federal Government to negotiate for best price for pharmaceutical drugs on behalf of American seniors, persons with disabilities and taxpayers. This will significantly lower the cost of drugs, providing for resources that we use to fill the doughnut hole and finally provide the comprehensive coverage our seniors have been fighting for.

In order to ensure our global competitiveness, Congress should reverse the raid on student aid by replacing the $12 billion cut earlier this year to pay for tax cuts for the wealthiest.

This summer gas was over $3 dollars a gallon. And while we are feeling some relief now, we must be watchful that this price is not a mirage. Congress, including the President, should act to protect American families and support our national security.

And to keep America safe, Republicans should stop blocking the full implementation of the 9/11 Commission’s recommendations and commit the resources necessary to secure our borders, ports, airports and chemical facilities. Instead of simply scaring Americans with talk of a terrorist attack, Democrats want to take real steps to keep American families safe.

Mr. Speaker, America needs a new direction. By voting against the previous question I am voting for initiatives that will promote economic growth and provide real security. I urge my colleagues to reject the politics of cynicism and fear and to work together to move this country forward.

CHILD INTERSTATE ABORTION NOTIFICATION ACT

HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to S. 403. S. 403 makes it a Federal crime for anyone other than a young woman’s parent to take her across State lines for an abortion unless the parental notification and involvement requirements of her home State have been met. In States without a current parental notification law, the Federal law applies. This legislation also requires a physician to notify, in person, the parents from another State about a medical procedure the doctor will be performing.

I will continue to work to do more to reduce abortions, but this is the wrong approach. Criminalizing health care providers and clergy while further victimizing young women who are already facing major challenges will not reduce abortions, will not reduce teen pregnancy, and will certainly not help to protect young women in this country. It is unfortunate that this legislation offers no new approach to address the serious problem of the role of religion in health care. I urge my colleagues to support netting young women in this country, and put us at greater risk.

Mr. TERRY, Mr. Speaker, I inadvertently voted “no” on rollover 503, the Ryan White HIV/AIDS Treatment Modernization Act. Please let the record reflect that I entered “aye” vote on this rollover.

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to S. 403. S. 403 makes it a Federal crime for anyone other than a young woman’s parent to take her across State lines for an abortion unless the parental notification and involvement requirements of her home State have been met. In States without a current parental notification law, the Federal law applies. This legislation also requires a physician to notify, in person, the parents from another State about a medical procedure the doctor will be performing.

I will continue to work to do more to reduce abortions, but this is the wrong approach. Criminalizing health care providers and clergy while further victimizing young women who are already facing major challenges will not reduce abortions, will not reduce teen pregnancy, and will certainly not help to protect young women in this country. It is unfortunate that this legislation offers no new approach to address the serious problem of the role of religion in health care. I urge my colleagues to support netting young women in this country, and put us at greater risk.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the “The R.S. 2477 Rights-Of-Way Recognition Act.” I am introducing this legislation to advance the dialogue on an issue very important to my constituents and many other stakeholders, particularly in the western United States.

R.S. 2477 Rights-Of-Way were originally granted by the 1866 Mining Law. However, in 1976 with the passage of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act or FLPMA, the R.S. 2477 statute was repealed while grandfathering in existing claims. Since the passage the FLPMA and its repeal of R.S. 2477, a long-standing dispute regarding these grandfathered claims has persisted with the validity of these rights-of-way remaining in doubt.

The purpose of my bill is to remove this cloud, once and for all, by declaring that State policy is not valid under FLPMA. Instead, this bill even criminalizes a victim’s support network, the grandparents, aunts and uncles, adult siblings, religious counselors, and other trusted adults whom a young woman might turn to for help in this time of crisis. It also requires doctors to know the notification laws in all 50 States or face criminal penalties. S. 403 undermines Minnesota’s authority, forcing all States to comply with and enforce other States’ laws.

This legislation is opposed by a wide variety of individuals and organizations including physicians, public health experts, women’s organizations, religious groups, and think tanks. Simply put, S. 403 imposes significant barriers to young women’s emotional and physical health. The reality is that marginalizing and isolating these vulnerable young women will not protect them in their time of need, but rather force them to seek risky and unsafe ways to terminate their pregnancy. Instead, we must do more to support families and to work to reduce unwanted pregnancies through comprehensive education, adoption assistance, and family planning.

Mr. Speaker, S. 403 is a dangerous bill, harmful to those young women most in need of help. I urge my colleagues to join me in opposing this legislation, which poses a serious threat to young women’s access to safe reproductive health choices.

THE R.S. 2477 RIGHTS-OF-WAY RECOGNITION ACT

HON. STEVAN PEARCE OF NEW MEXICO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. PEARCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the “The R.S. 2477 Rights-Of-Way Recognition Act.” I am introducing this legislation to advance the dialogue on an issue very important to my constituents and many other stakeholders, particularly in the western United States.

R.S. 2477 Rights-Of-Way were originally granted by the 1866 Mining Law. However, in 1976 with the passage of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act or FLPMA, the R.S. 2477 statute was repealed while grandfathering in existing claims. Since the passage the FLPMA and its repeal of R.S. 2477, a long-standing dispute regarding these grandfathered claims has persisted with the validity of these rights-of-way remaining in doubt.

The purpose of my bill is to remove this cloud, once and for all, by declaring that State policy is not valid under FLPMA. Instead, this legislation intends to reaffirm the rights and responsibilities of State and local governments to the rights-of-way that Congress intended them to have.

Thus, any attempt to construe this legislation as an endeavor to create a system of superhighways through public lands is just plain wrong. This bill draws from the landmark decision by the United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit concerning the nature of an R.S. 2477 right of way, the meaning of unreserved federal land for R.S. 2477 purposes, and the principles governing the creation, nature, acquisition, and maintenance of R.S. 2477 public roads.

Supporters of this legislation should keep in mind that the bill I am introducing today is not the conclusive end this controversy. Today’s introduction marks the start of a dialogue that I hope leads to a comprehensive solution and eventually a victory for all the stakeholders; a victory that protects our public lands, the rights of property owners, and the legitimate interests of Federal, State, and local governments.

As we close the 109th Congress, let us each strive to work together to solve some of our most divisive public lands issues. Doing so requires engaging all parties through dialogue, creativity and persistence so that we may find common sense solutions that will meet the needs of the American public.

OCTOBER 3RD PROCLAIMED “SCIENCE DAY”

HON. JO ANN EMERSON OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask my colleagues to join me in recognizing the important role science plays in our society. Today, October 3, has been proclaimed “Science Day” by Missouri Governor Matt Blunt and worn by mayors throughout southern Missouri.

“Science Day” is important because American innovation depends upon a strong foundation in the sciences. Statistics indicate the United States is falling behind other nations in science education. Japan, China, and South Korea produce more engineering graduates than the United States. Twenty years ago, the United States, Japan, and China each graduated a similar number of engineers. South Korea at the time graduated roughly half as many engineers as the United States. By the year 2000, China increased engineering graduates by 161 percent, Japan effected a 42 percent increase and South Korea increased graduates by more than 140 percent. Meanwhile, the number of U.S. engineering graduates declined 20 percent. If this trend continues, by 2010 more than 90 percent of all scientists and engineers in the world will live in Asia.

Science and technology-related employers continue searching overseas to find qualified engineers and scientists because our Nation is simply not producing enough graduates in the engineering and science disciplines. “Science Day” aims to bring attention to this problem and encourage action among parents, teachers and community members.

Science not only offers economic and advancement opportunity, it is also fun and exciting. Inside and outside the classroom, science offers an awe-inspiring window into the origins, workings and future of our physical world. By engaging students in this intriguing subject, parents and teachers foster exploration and enable them to reach their academic potential.

I commend this effort to raise awareness of the importance of science educators. I want to thank the staff at KFVS News for their efforts in promoting the recognition of “Science Day.” By partnering with educators and community leaders, KFVS News has organized events and competitions designed to challenge students and emphasize the importance of science. On “Science Day,” I join Missouri community leaders in challenging our Nation’s parents, guardians, grandparents, and other family members to do a simple science experiment with their children, to honor science teachers in their community and to recognize scientific contributions and their important roles in the future of our country.

RECOGNIZING FINANCIAL PLANNING WEEK

SPEECH OF
HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 2006

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, today I rise in strong support for House Resolution 973—recognizing Financial Planning Week. Now more than ever, working families need the tools and resources to make sound financial decisions.

American families are struggling with financial burdens—from growing student loan and credit card debt—to increasing interest rates. Flattened wages and negative savings rates mean that too many families have to choose between sending their children to college and saving for retirement.

The financial future for most American families is grim. In fact in 2005—for the first time since the Great Depression—the personal savings rate of Americans was negative. Americans have depleted their savings to pay off debt and to simply make ends meet. This is a dangerous trend for Americans that must be reversed.

That is why financial planning is more critical than ever. Americans need the tools and resources to know how to save for a variety of life opportunities and situations—including retirement, college, starting a new business, and buying a home. Families simply need assistance with budgeting for everyday needs. I commend the financial institutions that have included in their business models financial planning assistance for their customers. These institutions help to strengthen the economic situation for our communities and families.

What is unfortunate is that this Republican Congress has done little to provide relief to struggling families. Instead, families are being squeezed—flat wages, increased costs of health care, skyrocketing prices at the gas pump, and double digit college tuition increases. In nearly every aspect of life, American families are faced with financial burdens and tough budget decisions.

Congress could benefit from better financial planning. America deserves a Government that knows how to model good budget decisions. Unfortunately, this Republican Congress has led our Government into a negative savings rate—spending and borrowing more than our Nation can afford—while passing budgets that benefit the Nation’s wealthiest while short-changing hardworking, middle class families.

Today, I rise to support this important resolution. I will continue to work to support legislation that will encourage working families to save for their futures and to ensure that working families have the resources to make sound budget decisions.

HISPANIC HERITAGE MONTH STATEMENT

HON. BARBARA LEE
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of the month-long celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month.

During Hispanic Heritage Month, we pay tribute to the Hispanic community and to the important contributions Hispanics make to America. Today the Hispanic-American community numbers some 43 million, is the fastest growing ethnic group in our country, and plays a vital part in our nation’s economy, culture, and politics.

That’s why I’m so proud in Congress to be a member of both the Hispanic Working Group organized by Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi, and of the Tri-Caucus, which is the collection of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, Congressional Black Caucus, and the Asian Pacific American Caucus that advocate for the Latino community.

Mr. Speaker, I am privileged to represent a thriving and accomplished Latino community in the 9th Congressional District of California, where the contributions of Latino members of the community are stronger than ever.

For example, throughout the past 37 years, the Spanish Speaking Citizens’ Foundation has empowered our community and improved the quality of life for many through an enormous range of services. Each year the foundation assists 12,000 members of the community through providing vital social services as well as enhancing opportunities for leadership development and civic participation.

Jovita Solis, the foundation’s Citizenship Coordinator, came to the United States when she was quite young and has made a tremendous difference in our community. Jovita routinely volunteers her time at numerous community events to encourage and assist many permanent residents to become naturalized citizens. Jovita has an indomitable spirit that was tested when her brother was murdered only 3 years ago. Jovita came out of her brother’s death with a purpose to make our community safer and to help our youths turn away from violence and crime. Jovita has spearheaded many youth initiatives to help our young people stay in school and encourage their pursuits in the arts and sports.

Another community leader creating a better world is Arnoldo Garcia. Arnoldo is the Enforcement and Justice Program Coordinator at the National Network for Immigrant and Refugee Rights (NNIRR), based in Oakland, California.

The NNIRR is a national organization that serves as a forum to share information and analysis, to educate communities and the general public, and to develop and coordinate plans of action on important immigrant and refugee issues.

Arnoldo works to promote a just immigration and refugee policy in the United States and to defend and expand the rights of all immigrants.
and refugees, regardless of immigration status. Arnoldo and the National Network bases their efforts in the principles of equality and justice, and seek the enfranchisement of all immigrant and refugee communities in the United States through organizing and advocating for the rights, labor, environmental, civil and human rights. Arnoldo recognizes the unparalleled change in global, political and economic structures which has exacerbated regional national and international patterns of migration, and emphasizes the need to build international support and cooperation to strengthen the rights of workers, welfare and safety of migrants and refugees.

Mr. Speaker, Individuals in my district are the motivating force behind the remarkable organizations that promote civic engagement among Latinos in the 9th Congressional District. Leaders like Marta Higuera, a Berkeley Organizing Congress for Action field representative, helps BOCA fulfill its mission of creating a coalition of interfaith congregations throughout the city of Berkeley. Marta’s leadership has been instrumental in having BOCA meet the needs of the Latino community. She persuaded the Berkeley High School English Language Learners program to translate forms and documents into Spanish for parents. In addition, Marta has organized immigration town halls and fundraisers to support our community members who are in most need.

Mr. Speaker, as we honor the achievements of outstanding Hispanic Americans—like Jovita Solis, Arnoldo Garcia, and Marta Higuera—we know that celebrating the Hispanic community for just one month not enough. All Latinos deserve a real opportunity to achieve the American Dream, whether they have been here for generations or just arrived to our shores. Hispanic dreams and values are undoubtedly American dreams and values.

REGARDING THE “ACCOMPLISHMENTS” OF THE 109TH CONGRESS

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am so glad my colleagues on the other side of aisle feel that they can look the American people in the eye and say “we have done enough for you this session in Congress, we have earned a vacation. It is high time for us to adjourn.”

Now, Mr. Speaker, let me translate what the Republicans are actually saying: “We choose rather to go on vacation than to attend to the needs of the American people.”

It seems the Grand Old Party’s leadership had a grand old time this year, deciding to recess after having spent the fewest number of days in session in our lifetime.

Pitifully, in comparison to the typical American worker who spends approximately 247 days a year laboring, Congressional members will have worked less than 100.

Mr. Speaker this is not simply a “do nothing Congress” as so many of my colleagues have said before me. It is just as much a “do nothing right Congress.”

And the American people understand this reality all too well. Remarkably, a recent CBS News/New York Times poll found 75 percent of voters can’t name one thing Congress has accomplished this session.

Well my friends, I can’t really either. Republican priorities rolled out this session were strictly those that helped them advance politically. They chose to fetter away scarce time debating trivial constitutional amendments banning flag burning and gay marriage instead of real issues Americans at home are concerned with.

As we end this session, Republican leadership has only passed 2 of the 11 required amendments this year to fulfill their promise to the American people that both chambers of Congress are of the same party.

If this Congress were a school, students here would certainly receive an “F.”

The list of their failures reads like a laundry list almost too long for me to recount right now:

In a gross display of negligence, Congress has failed to enact an annual budget this year. Even though for nearly a decade the federal minimum wage has remained stagnant, Congress this year has again failed to produce a real pay raise for working class Americans.

And Congress also failed to negotiate deals on vital tax breaks for college tuition costs or research and development tax credits for businesses.

In response to the profusion of the Republican culture of corruption this year, Republicans have decided to do... zilch. Add Congressional failure to enact lobbying reform this year to the list.

Congress has failed to achieve health insurance reform and failed to finalize nuclear negotiations with India.

In response to sky high gas prices, increased signs of global warming and even President Bush’s admission that America is too reliant on foreign oil, Congress has failed to produce a real energy plan this session.

Congress packs its bags to go, refusing to mandate higher levels of fuel efficiency standards or propose incentives for consumers or product makers to utilize alternative energy sources.

Congress leaves while nearly 12 million undocumented workers are hiding in the shadows of our society. After all the hype and rhetoric of passing an immigration bill, no true immigration reform has been realized this Congress.

Is the list of things left undone too lengthy, too repetitive, and too tiresome? Am I boring this Congress? There are still many more demonstrations of what little progress this Congress has made.

And what little has been done has been done badly! Important bills are being rushed through to secure a Republican majority in the next Congress. The latest example being the tyrannical anti-terror law, allowing Congress to reinterpret international law to authorize torture. A law that despite its name, nonetheless makes our terrors less safe, leaves our Nation unprotected, and successfully damages our international credibility.

Of all the bills that have actually passed this Congress, how many of them have actually improved the lives of Americans?

What do have to show our constituents back home in our districts? An unstable economy, ridiculously high health care costs and gas prices, a loss in life abroad and a loss of our basic freedoms here at home.

More than 5 years after 9/11, numerous reports have shown that the war on Iraq is hurting our Nation in the war against terrorism. Our borders still remain exposed and our first responders still lack adequate resources to respond to either another 9/11 or another Katrina.

While we spend approximately $2 billion a week on defense, Osama bin Laden is still alive and well, and Al Qaeda is resurfacing in Afghanistan stronger than ever before. Iraq is engulfed in sectarian violence and civil war and has become the breeding ground for a new generation of terrorists.

The war in Iraq has stretched our resources and troops thin, leaving us exposed to potential global terrorists and nuclear threats from nations such as Iran and North Korea.

Americans, I insist that you ask this question to yourself before you go to the ballot box this November: What has the Republican Congress done for me these last 2 years? If you can not think of a single thing, you are not alone. Please think of a new Congress that would attend to your priorities here and overseas before you select your next elected official.

THE SECURE FENCE ACT OF 2006

HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM
OF MINNESOTA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to H.R. 6061. This bill will not improve U.S. national security and will clearly not provide for meaningful immigration reform.

I voted against the construction of a fence spanning our entire southern border in December, when the House unfortunately passed H.R. 4437, the Border Security Act of 2005. It is disappointing that the Republican leadership has chosen to spend the time debating a provision that has already passed the House, rather than go to conference and pass comprehensive immigration reform that will protect American workers and secure our borders. This House should be addressing issues like raising the minimum wage, providing health care and quality education to every child in America, and ensuring that our State and local law enforcement agencies have the resources they need to keep our streets safe. Rethashing a border fence provision that has already been voted on in the last 12 months.

Once again, I strongly believe that Congress needs to work to secure our borders and ensure the safety of our citizens. However, this bill is inadequate and clearly will not begin to address the complicated issues regarding immigration reform. Even the small effort authorized in this bill—a 700-mile fence along our southern border with Mexico—is not fully funded. Nor does this legislation contain the resources necessary to increase the number of border security agents. This is nothing other than an election year ploy to use a serious issue that affects workers, immigrants, and our communities as a scare tactic.

America deserves immigration reform that will secure our borders. The Republicans have had months to appoint a conference committee and work out the differences between the President’s approach and the bills put forward by the would like to insert into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD my reflections on the tragedy currently occurring in Darfur, and to recommit ourselves to making every effort to end such global outrages.

65TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE MASSACRE AT BABI YAR

HON. TOM LANTOS
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Friday, September 29, 2006

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, today marks the 65th anniversary of the massacre at the Babi Yar ravine near Kiev, Ukraine. On September 29, 1941, German occupying forces ordered the city’s Jewish population to assemble at the ravine. The Jews complied, assuming they would be placed in a ghetto. Instead, they were herded together and ordered to strip. Nazi machine gunners then systematically and brutally cut them down. That first day more than 33,000 Jewish men, women, and children were put to death. As the war continued, more mass slaughters occurred at Babi Yar; by the end, more than 100,000 people are thought to have been murdered there.

We mourn the tragic deaths of these innocent people at Babi Yar, along with the 55 million who perished in other places, during the Holocaust and World War II, as a result of the brutal and sadistic policies of Adolf Hitler. To prevent future genocides, we must dedicate ourselves to the promotion of human rights for all people. Humanity should never again have to suffer through such a nightmare. As the only Holocaust survivor ever elected to Congress, I am firmly committed to this effort. Since early 2004 I have been working to draw the world’s attention to the genocide that is occurring in Darfur, Sudan. The international community must act now to safeguard innocent lives in Darfur, as I noted in a September 26 Financial Times op-ed piece—which I would like to insert into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—and in legislation that passed the House this week (H. Res. 723). This resolution calls on the President to take immediate steps to help improve the security situation in Darfur, and particularly to protect civilians.

Unfortunately, while the world community in general has been quick to condemn the genocide, mobilization in support of the Sudanese civilians has been slow. Evidently, the world needs reminding that the genocide in Darfur, like the Holocaust before it, is not just a local crisis. It is a crisis for all humanity and obliges all of us to act with urgency. Words without deeds trivialize the lessons that humanity professes to have learned from the Holocaust, and they betray the people of Darfur.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to reflect on the tragedy currently occurring in Darfur, and to recommit themselves to making every effort to end such global outrages.

FROM THE FINANCIAL TIMES, SEPTEMBER 27, 2006
WE MUST MOBILIZE PRESSURE AND FEAR TO SAVE DARFUR
(By Tom Lantos)

History will regard the situation in Darfur, Sudan, as an African holocaust if the international community fails to protect innocent lives. The African Union’s decision last week to extend its mandate in Darfur has bought just three more months for the rest of the world to persuade Sudanese leaders not to start another round of slaughter. Khartoum still refuses to agree to let United Nations peacekeepers take over from the AU troops when they go home.

The U.N. Security Council voted last month to deploy 20,000 peacekeepers to replace the AU troops; the Sudanese government immediately rejected that resolution and announced that the AU had no authority to transfer its mission to the U.N. Then Sudan began to fan out more than 30,000 of its troops, allegedly to bring peace and stability to Darfur and to protect civilians.

Imagine if Hitler had offered to “protect” Europe’s Jews. As a Holocaust survivor, I cannot think of a more despicable act than to have Khartoum send soldiers—who have raped and slaughtered thousands and displaced 2 million people—to “protect”—civilians.

Evidence is mounting that the Sudanese government is positioning its military forces employed by Sudan to attack civilians or to inhibit peacekeepers from their deployment. Khartoum must be made to understand that there will be severe consequences for a further genocidal assault on the people of Darfur. Its reaction to the Security Council resolution authorizing a peacekeeping operation is no surprise. Neither is its attempt to bully the AU into submission by issuing an ultimatum for the union to reject the U.N. resolution or leave Darfur.

Evidently, the world needs reminding that the genocide in Darfur is not just an African crisis. It is a crisis for all humanity and obliges all of us to act with urgency. Words without deeds betray the people of Darfur.
