House of Representatives

This being the day fixed by the 20th amendment to the Constitution of the United States and Public Law 109–447 for the meeting of the Congress of the United States, the Members-elect of the 110th Congress met in their Hall, and at noon were called to order by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, Hon. Karen L. Haas.

The Chaplain, the Reverend Daniel P. Coughlin, offered the following prayer:

"Today is built upon all the yesterdays and contains the promise of all the tomorrows.

Lord God, You are the eternal author of all creation and every age. You are the same yesterday, today and forever. Be present to us now. Be gracious and bless all those duly elected by their districts who gather today to form the House of the people as the 110th Congress of the United States of America for the governance of our beloved Nation.

Together, may they know forthright debate and civil discourse, enact quality legislation and persevere in representing the diversity and the will of the people in addressing the priority issues facing the Nation today.

Bless the families of these Representatives, granting them forbearance and understanding of the public service implied by this undertaking.

Lord, may the 110th Congress of the United States read the signs of the times and seize this moment to create a history that will reflect the values of Your kingdom here on Earth and thereby unite this Nation and reveal to peoples around the world the dignity and the glory of being the free children of God. For to You be the honor, the glory and the power, now and forever. Amen.

At the request of the Honorable Nancy Pelosi, I am pleased to introduce the Reverend Stephen A. Privett, President of the University of San Francisco, for an additional prayer.

The Reverend Stephen A. Privett, President, University of San Francisco, San Francisco, California, offered the following prayer:

I recall this morning the story of a poor mother of five children. When she was asked which of her children she loved the most, she did not answer the expected, “I love them all the same.” Rather, she bent down and scooped up into her arms a young child with obviously crippling disabilities. “This one,” she said, “because he needs me the most.”

Let us pray:

God of compassion and mercy, we pray that the new leadership of this Congress and all of its Members will write into law the story of a country that measures its success by God’s standard; by how well it cares for the weakest and most vulnerable among us.

We pray for the legislators of this 110th Congress, that they may challenge, inspire and lead us to put aside self-interest and pursue the common good of all the people of this great Nation of ours, especially of those “who need us the most.” Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The CLERK. The Members-elect and their guests will please remain standing and join in the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CLERK

The CLERK. The quorum call discloses that 435 Representatives-elect have responded to their name. A quorum is present.

ELECTION OF SPEAKER

The CLERK. Pursuant to law and precedent, the next order of business is the election of the Speaker of the House of Representatives for the 110th Congress.

Nominations are now in order.

The Clerk recognizes the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EMANUEL). Mr. EMANUEL. Madam Clerk, as a father of three young children, I am particularly thrilled to be a part of this moment, thrilled that a generation of young girls and boys across America are about to witness another historic step in our Nation’s march toward equality of opportunity. NANCY PELOSI’s goal is a Congress known for its ideas, not its insults; its patriotism, not its partisanship.

Madam Clerk, as chairman of the Democratic Caucus, I am directed by... the unanimous vote of that caucus to present for election to the office of the Speaker of the House of Representatives for the 110th Congress the name of the Honorable Nancy Pelosi, a Member-elect from the State of California.

Mr. PUTNAM. Madam Clerk, I am pleased to put forward the name of a man who represents the best of honesty, integrity, decency, uncanny wisdom and understanding.

As chairman of the Republican Conference, I am pleased to present for election to the office of Speaker of the House of Representatives for the 110th Congress the name of the Honorable John A. Boehner from the State of Ohio.

The Clerk. The Honorable Nancy Pelosi, a Member-elect from the State of California, and the Honorable John A. Boehner, a Member-elect from the State of Ohio, have been placed in nomination.

Are there further nominations? There being no further nominations, the Clerk will appoint tellers.

The Clerk appoints the gentleman from California (Ms. Millender-McDonald), the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Ehlers), the gentleman from Ohio (Ms. Kaptur), and the gentleman from Florida (Ms. Ros-Lehtinen) as tellers.

The tellers will come forward and take their seats at the desk in the office of the Speaker's rostrum.

The roll will now be called, and those responding to their names will indicate by surname the nominee of their choice.

The Reading Clerk will now call the roll.

The tellers having taken their places, the House proceeded to vote for the Speaker.

The following is the result of the vote:

[Roll No. 2]

Pelosi—233

Boehner—202

McDonnell (VA) 12

The Clerk. The tellers agree in their tallies that the total number of votes cast is 435, of which the Honorable Nancy Pelosi of the State of California has received 233 and the Honorable John A. Boehner of the State of Ohio has received 202.

Therefore, the Honorable Nancy Pelosi of the State of California is duly elected Speaker of the House of Representatives for the 110th Congress, having received a majority of the votes cast.

The Clerk appoints the following committee to escort the Speaker-elect to the chair:

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. Boehner), the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. Hooyer), the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. Clyburn), the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. Blunt), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Emanuel), the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Larson), the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. McCotter), and the Members of the California delegation: Mr. Stark, Mr. George Miller, Mr. Waxman, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Dreier, Mr. Hunter, Mr. Lantos, Mr. Berman, Mr. Gallegly, Mr. Herger, Mr. Rohrabacher, Mr. Dooley, Ms. Waters, Ms. Beccerra, Mr. Calvert, Ms. Eshoo, Mr. Filner, Mr. McKeon, Ms. Roybal-Allard, Mr. Royce, Ms. Woolsey, Mr. Farr, Ms. Zoe Lofgren, Mr. Radano-vich, Ms. Millender-McDonald, Mr. Sherman, Ms. Loretta Sanchez, Mrs. Tauscher, Mrs. Capito, Mrs. Bono, Mr. Lee, Mr. Gary G. Miller, Mrs. Napolitano, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Baca, Ms. Harman, Mrs. Davis, Mr. Honda, Mr. Issa, Mr. Schiff, Ms. Solis, Ms. Watson, Mr. Cardoza, Mr. Nunes, Mrs. Linda T. Sanchez, Mr. Daniel E. Lungren, Mr. Costa, Ms. Matsui, Mr. Campbell, Mr. Bilbray, Mr. McCar-thy, and Mr. McNerney.

The committee will retire from the Chamber to escort the Speaker-elect to the chair.

The Sergeant at Arms announced the Speaker-elect of the House of Representatives of the 110th Congress, who was escorted by the chair by the committee of escort.
Mr. BOEHNER. Madam Speaker, Leader HOYER, my distinguished colleagues, welcome to you all. I would particularly like to welcome our new colleagues. It is an honor and a privilege to serve in this great institution, and I feel that is your duty to recognize for the sacrifices and contributions you will make to this body during your time here.

As colleagues, we owe a huge debt to those who have served before us. I would be remiss if I did not mention the enormous contributions of one of my predecessors, Gerald Ford. Former President Ford served in the House over 25 years, including 8 of those years as Republican leader from 1965 to 1973. He served his Michigan constituents and the American people with great distinction not just here in Congress, but as Vice President and as President of the United States. The thoughts and prayers of this House and those of a grateful Nation are with Betty and the Ford family.

This is an historic day. In a few moments, I will have the high privilege of handing over the gavel of the House of Representatives to a woman for the first time in American history.

For more than 200 years, the leaders of our government have been democratically elected, and from their ranks our leaders have always selected a man for the responsibility and honor as serving as Speaker of the House. Always, that is, until today.

It is sometimes said the Founding Fathers would not recognize the government that exists here in Washington today. It has grown in size and scope far beyond anything they could ever have imagined, much less endorsed or advocated for our future. But today marks an occasion that I think the Founding Fathers would view approvingly. And my fellow Americans, whether you are a Republican, a Democrat, or an Independent, today is a cause for celebration.

This, of course, marks a change in the House majority. Twelve years ago, some of us stood proudly in this Chamber as our former colleague, Dick Gephardt from Missouri, handed over the gavel of the United States House of Representatives to the first woman Speaker in our history, the gentlewoman from California, NANCY PELOSI. Ms. PELOSI, Thank you, Leader BOEHNER. Thank you, my colleagues, Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speakers.

I accept this gavel in the spirit of partnership, not partisanship, and I look forward to working with you, Mr. BOEHNER, and the Republicans in the Congress for the good of the American people.

After giving this gavel away in the last two Congresses, I am glad someone else has the honor today.

In this House, we may be different parties, but we serve one country, and our pride and our prayers are united behind our men and women in uniform. They are working together to protect the American people; and in this Congress, we must work together to build a future worthy of their sacrifices.

In this House, we pray for the character, courage, and civility of a former Member of this House, President Ford. He healed the country when it needed healing. This is another time, another war, and another trial of American will, imagination, and spirit. Let us honor his memory not just in eulogy, but in dialogue and trust across the aisle.

I want to join Leader BOEHNER in expressing our condolences and our appreciation to Mrs. Ford and to the entire Ford family for their decades of leadership and service to our country.

With today's convening of the 110th Congress, we begin anew. I congratulate all Members of Congress on your election. I especially want to congratulate our new Members of Congress. Let's hear it for our new Members.

The genius of our Founders was that every 2 years, new Members would bring to this House their spirit of reform, their commitment for the betterment of the people. This Congress is reinvigorated, new Members, by your optimism and your idealism and your commitment to our country. Let us acknowledge your families whose support have made your journey possible today.

Each of us brings to this Congress our shared values, our commitment to the Constitution, and our personal experience. My path to Congress to and to the speakership began in Baltimore where my father was the mayor. I was raised in a large family that was devoutly Catholic, deeply patriotic, very proud of our Italian-American heritage, and staunchly Democratic. My parents taught us that public service was a noble calling that we had a responsibility to help those in need.

My parents worked on the side of the angels, and now they are with them.

But I am so happy that my brother, Tommy D'Alesandro, who was also a mayor of Baltimore, is here leading the D'Alesandro family from Baltimore today. He is sitting right up there with Tony Bennett.

Forty-three years ago, Paul Pelosi and I were married. We raised our five children in San Francisco where Paul was born and raised. I want to thank Paul and our five children, Nancy Corrine, Christine, Jacqueline, Paul Jr., and Alexandra, and our magnificent grandchildren, for their love, for their support, and the confidence they gave me to go from the kitchen to the Congress.

And I thank my constituents in San Francisco and to the State of California for the privilege of representing them in Congress. St. Francis of Assisi is our city's patron saint, and his prayer of St. Francis is our city's anthem: Lord, make me a channel of thy peace; where there is darkness may we bring light, where there is hatred may we bring love, and where there is despair, may we bring hope.

Hope, that is what America is about. And it is in that spirit that I serve in the Congress of the United States.

And today, I thank my colleagues. By electing me Speaker, you have brought us closer to the ideal of equality that is America's heritage and America's hope.

This is a historic moment, and I thank the leader for acknowledging it. Thank you, Mr. BOEHNER. It is a historic moment for the Congress, and it is a historic moment for the women of America.

It is a moment for which we have waited for over 200 years. Never losing faith, we waited through the many years of struggle to achieve our rights. But women were not just waiting; women were working. Never losing faith, we worked to redeem the promise of America that all men and women are created equal. For our daughters and our granddaughters, today we have broken the marble ceiling. For our daughters and our granddaughters, the sky is the limit. Anything is possible for them.

The election of 2006 was a call to change, not merely to change the control of Congress, but for a new direction for the United States. Nowhere were the American people more clear about the need for a new direction than in the war in Iraq.

The American people rejected an open-ended obligation to a war without end. Shortly, President Bush will address the Nation on the subject of Iraq. It is the responsibility of the President to articulate a new plan for Iraq that makes it clear to the Iraqis that they must defend their own streets and their own security, a plan that promotes stability in the region and a plan that allows us to responsibly redeploy our troops.

Let us work together to be the Congress that rebuilds our military to meet the national security challenges of the 21st century. Let us be the Congress that strongly honors our responsibility to protect the American people from terrorism.

Let us be the Congress that never forgets our commitment to our veterans and our first responders, always honoring them as the heroes that they are.

And the American people told us they expected us to work together for fiscal responsibility, with the highest ethical standards and with civility and bipartisanship.

After years of historic deficits, this 110th Congress will commit itself to a strong, sound, pay-as-you-go, no new deficit spending. Our new America will provide unlimited opportunity for future generations, not burden them with mountains of debt.

In order to achieve our new America for the first 21st century, we must return this House to the American people. So our first order of business is passing the toughest congressional ethics reform in history. This new Congress doesn’t have 2 years or 200 days. Let us join together in the first 100 hours to make this Congress the most honest and open Congress in history. 100 hours.

“This openness requires respect for every voice in the Congress. As Thomas Jefferson said, the very difference of opinion is not a difference of principle.” My colleagues elected me to be Speaker of the House, the entire House. Respectful of the vision of our Founders, the expectation of our people, and the great challenges that we face, we have an obligation to reach beyond partisanship to work for all Americans.

Let us stand together to move our country forward, seeking common ground for the common good. We have made history; now let us make progress for the American people.

May God bless our work, and may God bless America.

Before we move forward, because there are so many children here and so many of them asked me if they could touch the gavel, I wanted to invite as many of them who wanted to come forward to come join me up here. I know my own grandchildren will.

Let’s hear it for the children. We’re here for the children. For these children, our children, and for all of America’s children, the House will come to order.

I am now ready to take the oath of office from the Dean of the Congress of the United States, Mr. DINGELL. In acknowledging him, I also want to acknowledge Speaker Foley who has been with us as well.

Mr. DINGELL then administered the oath of office to Ms. PELOSI of California, as follows:

Do you solemnly swear that you will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that you will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that you take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; and that you will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which you are about to enter, so help me God.

Mr. DINGELL. Congratulations, Madam Speaker.

Resolved, That upon the adoption of this resolution it shall be in order in the House the resolution (H. Res. 6) adopting the Rules of the House of Representatives for the One Hundred Tenth Congress. The resolution shall be considered as read. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the resolution to its adoption without intervening motion except as specified in sections 2 through 4 of this resolution.
SEC. 2. The question of adopting the resolution shall be divided among five parts, to wit: each of its five titles. The portion of the divided question comprising title I shall be debatable for 30 minutes, equally divided and controlled by the majority leader and the minority leader or their designees. Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, for the purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the minority leader or his designee, pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

The resolution that I am calling up for the consideration of the House, H. Res. 6, provides for the consideration of a rules package, H. Res. 6, that we hope will begin to return this Chamber to its rightful place as the home of democracy and deliberation in our great Nation.

The resolution we are now debating will allow the House to consider and vote on the Democratic rules package in five separate parts. The first title contains the rules package our Republican colleagues adopted in the 109th Congress, while the second through fifth titles are amendments that will begin a reformation of this body that is long overdue.

I also include for the RECORD at this time a detailed summary of the changes H. Res. 6 will make to the standing House rules of the 109th Congress.

SUMMARY OF HOUSE RULES PACKAGE, OPENING DAY OF THE 110TH CONGRESS, PREPARED BY THE RULES COMMITTEE, LOUISE M. SLAUGHTER, CHAIRWOMAN-DESIGNATE

TITLE I—ADOPTION OF 109TH RULES PACKAGE

This title adopts the standing rules that were in effect in the 109th Congress. The subsequent adoption of the amendments contained in Titles II–V will then make certain changes to these rules.

TITLE II—ETIQUETTE OF WHITE HOUSE STAFF

(Rule XXIII—Code of Official Conduct) Provides for the enforcement of official etiquette rules to prevent retaliation against private firms that hire employees who do not share the Member's partisan political affiliation.

TITLE III—ETHICS REFORMS

ENDING THE K STREET PROJECT

(Rule XXIII—Code of Official Conduct) Prohibits Members and employees from accepting gifts from a registered lobbyist, from an agent of a foreign principal, or an entity that employs or retains lobbyists and agents. Under the current gift ban, Members and employees may accept gifts valued less than $50 (and a total of $100 per calendar year) from these lobbyists and agents. The current gift ban exemptions in §5(a)(5) still apply.

LOBBYST GIFT BAN

(Rule XXV, cl. 5(a)) Prohibits Members and employees from accepting travel reimbursements from a registered lobbyist, from an agent of a foreign principal, or from an entity that employs or retains these lobbyists and agents. (Current rules already prohibit lobbyists and agents of foreign principals from reimbursing travel.)

A new subsection to this rule clarifies that colleges and universities are not subject to this prohibition. Another subsection allows entities that employ lobbyists to reimburse Members and employee travel to one-day events (e.g., conventions, meetings). In general, travel to a one-day event includes an overnight stay, although the Ethics Committee may allow two-night stays in certain cases. These new restrictions take effect on March 1, 2007.

New travel authorization and public disclosure requirements

(Rule XXV, new cl. 5(d)) Adds language stating that prior to accepting reimbursed travel, Members and employees will be required to obtain a certification from the entity paying for the trip declaring that, except as permitted for universities and one-day travel, lobbyists did not plan, organize, request, arrange, or finance the travel. Members and employees will be required to submit this certification to the Ethics Committee and receive approval from the Ethics Committee before taking the trip. These new requirements take effect on March 1, 2007.

In connection with prior authorization requirement, this new rule requires Members and employees to submit their certifications, advance authorizations, and disclosure statements to the Clerk of the House within 15 days after the travel is completed. The Clerk of the House must make this information available to the public and acknowledge receipt. (Current rules require approval 60 days for the submission of travel disclosures).

(Rule XXV, new cl. 5(i)) Requires the Ethics Committee to develop standards for what constitutes a reasonable expense by a private group for Member travel. The Ethics Committee must also develop a new standard for determining that the travel has a valid connection to Members' official duties. In addition, it requires the Ethics Committee to determine the submission and approval of the prior authorization requirements created in new cl. 5(d).

CORPORATE JET BAN

(Rule XXIII—Code of Official Conduct) Provides that Members from personal, or campaign funds to pay for the use of privately owned airplanes. (Members will still be able to charter commercially available airplanes.)

ETHICS TRAINING

(Rule XI, cl. 3) Requires the Ethics Committee to offer annual ethics training to Members and appropriate employees. New employees must receive this training within 60 days of beginning work in the House and other employees must certify they take the course each year.

COMMITTEE NAME CHANGES

(Rule X, cl. 1) Changes the names of the following House committees: 1) the Committee on Education and the Workforce becomes the “Committee on Education and Labor”; 2) the Committee on International Relations becomes the “Committee on Foreign Affairs”; 3) the Committee on Resources becomes the “Committee on Natural Resources”; 4) the Committee on Government Reform becomes the “Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.”

TITLE III—CIVILITY

HOLDING VOTES OPEN

(Rule XX, cl. 2) Prohibits the Speaker from holding votes open for longer than the scheduled time for the sole purpose of changing the outcome of the vote.

CONFERENCE PROCEDURE

(Rule XXII, new cl. 12) Requires House conferences to operate in an open and fair manner and that House conferences sign the final conference papers at one time and in one place.

(Rule XXII, new cl. 13) Prohibits the consideration of a conference report that has been altered after the time it was signed by conferees.

TITLE IV—FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

(Rule XXI, new cl. 7) Prohibits the House from considering budget resolutions or amendments to budget resolutions that contain reconciliation instructions increasing the budget deficit.

(Rule XXI, new cl. 8) Applies Budget Act rules against bills that have not been reported by committees.

(Rule XXI, new cl. 10) Prohibits the consideration of any legislation proposing direct spending or revenue changes that would increase the budget deficit within a five-year or a ten-year time frame (“Pay-as-You-Go” point of order).

EARMARK REFORM

(Rule XXI, new cl. 9) Requires committees of jurisdiction and conference committees to publish lists of the earmarks, limited tax benefits, and limited tariff benefits contained in reported bills that have not been reported by committees.

(Rule XXII, new cl. 10) Prohibits the consideration of any legislation proposing changes in spending or revenue changes that would increase the budget deficit within a five-year or a ten-year time frame (“Pay-as-You-Go” point of order).
may make a point of order (similar to the unfunded mandates point of order) against the consideration of any special rule that waives this requirement. This new clause defines an earmark as any Member-requested project that is targeted to a specific place and falls outside a formula-driven or competitive grant process. Limited tax and tariff benefits are revenue provisions that would benefit 10 or fewer persons. (Rule XI, cl. 3) Prohibits trading earmarks for votes and requires Members to disclose their earmark requests and certify that they and their spouses have no personal financial interest in the request.

TITLE V—MISCELLANEOUS

(Rule X, cl. 4) Gives the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform and the authority to adopt a rule allowing Committee Members and staff to conduct depositions in the course of Committee investigations.

(Rule XII, cl. 3) Shields Rules Committee reports from a point of order if they are filed without a complete list of record votes taken during the consideration of a special rule. This provision allows the Rules Committee to publish recorded votes taken during Committee hearings in committee reports and/or through other means such as the Internet.

Makes a number of technical changes to the standing House rules.

All or part of the consideration of several pieces of legislation that are part of the “First 100 Hours” agenda if special rules for those provisions are not separately reported.

Continues the budget process in effect since the 2nd Session of the 109th Congress until such time as a conference report is added at the last minute.

Renews the standing order approved during the 109th Congress that prohibits registered lobbyists from using the Members’ exercise facilities.

Mr. Speaker, I consider it to be a great honor to have a chance to address our House on the first day of the 110th Congress. That is what serving as a Representative in this body is, an honor.

There are only 435 Members of Congress chosen from a population of over 300 million. Our neighbors send us here to represent their interests and defend their needs in Washington. What they give us is their trust and the precious right to defend and protect their needs. It should come as no surprise that the culture of the last Congress was one of those who gave those gifts and paid for their allegiance, traded for gifts, trips, and parties, all worth so much less than the faith the American people had in our Nation’s institutions, solid as a rock, even though the CEOs of some of those companies have admitted they did not want those tax cuts.

We had seen our homeland defenses imperiled and a war effort undermined by huge contracts given not to the best but the highest bidder. This bill that did nothing to make our Nation’s energy supply more stable, but that made the balance books of billion-dollar corporations solid as a rock, even though the CEOs of some of those companies have admitted they did not want those tax cuts.

The culture of the last Congress has been a corrupted Congress. It rendered the Ethics Committee powerless to meaningfully enforce the ethical standards of the House. While its most egregious elements were abandoned, it did its job, helping to pave the way to a Congress where unethical conduct would soon find a new home.

By the time Democratic leaders from both the House and Senate joined me to unveil our Honest Leadership and Open Government Act, nearly a year ago, a great deal of damage had already been done. We had already seen a Medicare bill that sold out America’s seniors to the bottom lines of the drug companies. We had seen a bill that did nothing to make our Nation’s energy supply more stable, but that made the balance books of billion-dollar corporations solid as a rock, even though the CEOs of some of those companies have admitted they did not want those tax cuts.

The culture of the last Congress is adopted.

Continues the budget process in effect since the 2nd Session of the 109th Congress until such time as a conference report is added at the last minute.

By contrast, a responsible process acts as a powerful check against the abuses and misuses of power so common in recent years. In so many ways our Founding Fathers were visionaries. The rules that Thomas Jefferson first wrote down two centuries ago provide for order and discipline in the House. They provide for transparency and accountability. If they are followed, corruption will be exposed before it has a chance to take root.

Democrats are going to follow the long-established rules of the House, instead of treating them as impediments to be avoided. We are going to allow Members to read bills before voting on them and prevent them from being altered at the last minute.

We are not going to hold open votes for hours on end while arms are twisted and favors are traded. We are going to conduct business whenever possible during normal hours, instead of in the dead of night. We are going to be open about the schedule we keep. In short, we are going to restore basic civility to this body, and never again will any Member of the Congress have to fight to find out where the conference to which he or she has been appointed is meeting.

But we are going to do more. While the rules package of the 109th Congress effectively embraced corrupt practices, this package stamps them out. Today and tomorrow we will introduce a series of critical new rules, legislation that will help guarantee that the unethical practices of the past will have no place in our future.

Gifts and lobbyist-sponsored travel are banned by this rules package. They have been used to grant select groups of people unfettered access to Members of Congress. They have no place in this new Congress. The rules package will finally shed light on an earmarking process that has greased the wheels of corrupt House machinery. It requires the full disclosure of earmarks on all bills and conference reports before Members are asked to vote on them.

If a Member is convinced that a project is worth a Federal earmark, they should have no problem attaching their name to that funding if the project is sound and they have nothing to hide. This package will make real fiscal discipline, not a rhetorical principle of the House, not a rhetorical principle. It will prohibit the consideration of any legislation that would increase budget deficits without offsets.
Democrats are joined by so many Republicans in believing that it is immoral to pass on the question of debt to our children and grandchildren.

Enough is enough. No more deficit spending.

Mr. Speaker, and my friends on both sides of the aisle, I know I am joined by my fellow Democrats as well as many Republicans when I say that I want a Congress that America can be proud of again.

I am tired of having to tell my grandchildren and school children in my district that what they have learned in school about the ideals and practices of democracy isn't true anymore, and what they have learned about how a bill is passed no longer stands here.

It is long past time that this House started living up to those ideas and practices; that they started putting honesty, integrity, transparency and accountability ahead of everything else.

We must re dedicate the People's House to the needs of its citizens. We must return the keys of the government to the democracy to the citizens whom they belong.

This body was created to serve as the battleground of ideas, not of checkbooks or back-room deals or deceptions. It was created to serve the people of the United States.

Today, the men and women of America have given us a very special gift. We have the ability to leave our mark on the future of our Nation. It is the only gift Members of Congress should ask for, and one we must cherish for the good of all. Let us begin.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to reaffirm the jurisdiction of the Committee on Small Business as contained in House Rule X, clause 1(p). The Committee's jurisdiction includes the Small Business Administration and its programs, as well as small business matters related to the Regulatory Flexibility Act and the Paperwork Reduction Act. Its jurisdiction under House Rule X, clause 1(p) also includes other programs and initiatives that address small businesses outside of the confines of those Acts.

This reaffirmation of the jurisdiction of the Committee on Small Business will enable the House to ensure that it is properly considering the consequences of its actions related to small business.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I rise as the designee of the Republican leader.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER).

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, we have spent a great deal of time this afternoon focusing on the fact that we have the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives in our Nation's history. And I think it is also very important for us to note today that we have the first female Chair of the House Rules Committee in my good friend, Ms. SLAUGHTER, and I would like everyone to join in extending congratulations to Ms. SLAUGHTER.

Now, let me say, Mr. Speaker, that I look forward to working in a bipartisan way in the spirit that was outlined by Speaker PELOSI, and I, of course, will treat the new Chair of the Rules Committee with the dignity that she deserves.

I will say, Mr. Speaker, that I do rise with mixed emotions today. I was very proud to join with you as we came down the center aisle escorting the new Speaker of the House, my fellow Californian. And I am very pleased that we have the first woman, the first Californian, and the first Italian American as Speaker of the House of Representatives.

I have mixed emotions because, while I am very, very proud of Speaker PELOSI, and the new Rules Chair, Ms. SLAUGHTER, and others who assumed leading positions, I also am very disappointed.

I am disappointed as I look at this package that we are about to consider, because I do join with you, Mr. Speaker, in terms of the transmission of the majority leader, and Speaker PELOSI, as we have discussed privately and publicly, in our quest, and I think Speaker PELOSI put it extraordinarily well, focusing on the priorities that we have. Well, we are first and foremost Americans. We are here to do the people's business and they sent a very strong message last November, and I believe we have an opportunity to do just that.

I will say that I remember very well the opening days of the 104th Congress, 12 years ago. I remember the very heady feeling that came from knowing that, for the first time, at that junction, in almost half a century, we Republicans were in the majority of the House of Representatives, and we were going to do all that we had promised the American people.

We were that optimistic, quite frankly, because we didn't know any better. None of us had ever served in the majority and we were blissfully unaware of the pressures and problems associated with trying to govern this institution.

During the 109th Congress, the Democratic Caucus, many of whom actually served in the House before 1965, made a lot of promises about how they would run this place if they ever achieved the majority again. Of course, they, unlike Republicans in 1994, had the experience of having run this place, having served in the majority. And I will say, Mr. Speaker, with a great deal of satisfaction for my colleagues, because they know exactly what they are facing. Knowing that, knowing exactly what they would face in the majority, they made a commitment to minority rights, should they regain the majority again. And that, Mr. Speaker, is why I said I am disappointed. The resolutions before us bear very little resemblance to the rhetoric on this floor and on the campaign trail. The much ballyhooed commitment to minority rights is virtually nonexistent in the measures before us today. They undermine minority rights that were constantly guaranteed when we were in the majority. The right, the minority, is undermined. Their promises are for a delivery date at some later point, if we agree to be cooperative, according to one Member on the other side of the aisle. And we have, as an IOU now, a wink and a nod as a gentle "trust." Mr. Speaker, trust is something that is in short supply in this House, and the actions of the incoming majority are, based on the package that has been brought before us early last evening, certainly less than 24 hours before we are considering it here on the House floor, are not doing a lot to bolster our reserves when it comes to the issue of trust. Despite an oft repeated commitment to provide Members with, as I quote, "as much time and opportunity as the package that we are about to consider, legislation before voting on the floor, we received this package at 6:15 last night, 6:15 only after that package was delivered to our friends up in the press gallery.

Mr. Speaker, despite Speaker PELOSI's principle that we need to return to regular order for legislation, including a full committee process of hearings and markups and, I quote Ms. PELOSI here when she said we need an "open, full and fair debate consisting of a full amendment process that grants the minority the right to offer its alternatives, including a substitute."

Now, we, in spite of that great directive that came forward, we have a rules package that actually self-executes closed rules for bills that haven't even been introduced, and won't even be going through the committee process. The section of the package that includes those closed rules is debatable for only 10 minutes, and the polar opposite of how the Republicans opened the 104th Congress, when our priorities were considered in regular order and under an open amendment process.

Mr. Speaker, also providing a stark contrast is the fact that we put in place, from day one, a guaranteed bite at the apple for the minority in the form of a motion to recommit. We felt so strongly about the fact that when we were in the majority, we had been denied that chance. So that is why at the beginning of the 104th Congress we put into place that guarantee for the minority.

But I must remind my Democratic colleagues on the Rules Committee that, time and time again, they have made clear their view that the motion to recommit is an insufficient opportunity to articulate their alternative. That argument was propounded constantly as we were dealing with public Sedition legislation. I imagine how surprised I was when the Speaker recently replied to a reporter's question about Republican alternatives to the Democratic priorities by saying, “They'll have a motion to recommit.”

Even worse than five closed rules, Mr. Speaker, is the rollback of one of the most essential elements of transparency that Republicans put into place back at the beginning of the 104th Congress. That is, the right to know how a member of a committee votes on legislation.

Mr. Speaker, this rules package exempts the Committee on Rules from the requirement to publish the votes of its subcommittee reports, something required of every other committee except the Ethics Committee.

Now, in my 12 years as a member of the Rules Committee majority, we took more than 1,300 votes in committee, every single one of which was accurately reported in the committee’s report.

Mr. Speaker, at best, this is a solution in search of a problem. At worst, it is an attempt to shield the Rules Committee from the public scrutiny of its actions.

We were told by the distinguished Chair of the Rules Committee that ethics reform and rules reform were not just election year issues for Democrats. Now, Mr. Speaker, sadly, this document says something quite different than that. Promises were made, and they are not being kept. That is the thing that I find to be most troubling. We intend to explain the many inconsistencies for the record and as the debate moves forward.

At the same time, Mr. Speaker, we want to work with our democratic colleagues. Even with this treatment of minority rights, we stand here determined to work in a bipartisan way to confront the challenges that we all know face this country. Unfortunately, this rules package shunts us out from the start. It is my hope that the promises made will, indeed, be kept. But, Mr. Speaker, this package does not inspire a great deal of hope in that they are not being kept. That is the thing that I find to be most troubling. We intend to explain the many inconsistencies for the record and as the debate moves forward.

And so, Mr. Speaker, I rise with a great deal of disappointment and a great deal of concern about the first actions that we are taking here.

Mr. Speaker, with that I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker. I would like to yield myself about 30 seconds, 45 perhaps, just to respond for a moment, to remind my friend that what we are voting on is the Republican package of the last term. If it was so bad, we thought it was pretty bad ourselves, but we will have time to debate all these things. We will have open debate. And what we have said about fairness is what we are dedicated to do.

GENERAL LEAVE

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, before I yield to the next speaker, I ask unanimously that all Members be given 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks on H. Res. 5 and H. Res. 6.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CLEYBURN). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased, for the purpose of debate only, to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DOGGETT).

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Speaker, on this historic day, the sun is shining brightly in Washington outside and today, finally it is shining inside this great Capitol building.

Normally, a New Year’s resolution is a list you write for yourself. But the ethics package that we Democrats are now adopting was written by the American people at the ballot box in November. This January resolution is possible only because of the November revolution by voters who were, quite frankly, revolted by what they saw going on here in Washington.

Under Democratic leadership, “Spring Cleaning” is getting an early start here in January. We ban lobbyists-sponsored junkets and gifts and the use of corporate jets from jet-setting lobbyists like the tobacco company that even took one Member of Congress on a special flight to his criminal arraignment.

In Congress, an earmark too often is a secret means for a Member to funnel Federal dollars to special projects. Some are worthwhile, some are dubious.

When I talk about earmarks to my rancher friends down in Texas, they have a different earmark in mind. It is the mark you put on an ear of your cow to identify them. By their very nature, earmarks are public, designed to identify ownership. I think we need some of that Texas thinking here in Washington.

If earmarks can identify a steer, we are now able, through this new package, to know who is “steering” earmarks of federal tax dollars to some unworthy cause.

Ethics reform, of course, is not an end in and of itself. The goal of reform is to improve the substance of the work that we do here. It is to ensure that the priorities in Washington are genuinely the priorities of hard working families in San Marcos, Bastrop, Kyle, and many other communities across our country.

Because fiscal security is national security, we are also working to cut the billion-dollar pay-as-you-go budgeting; barring new spending provisions or tax changes that would increase our soaring national debt.

Our reforms seek to curb the cost of corruption. It is a cost that has been borne in the pocketbooks of our seniors who pay too much for drugs because of a drug bill that was designed by the pharmaceutical manufacturers, instead of designed to help those who needed help most.

It is the cost of corruption that is reflected in no-bid contracts in Iraq and in the aftermath of the Hurricane Katrina debacle. And it is reflected in the price that the jobless, the homeless, and the hopeless are paying for the corruption within this administration.

Mr. Speaker, accountability, so long lacking from this administration and the House leadership begins today.
follow in the 110th Congress. These rules will serve as a baseline for the rules of the 110th Congress, and then we shall add the needed ethics reforms, fiscal responsibility reforms, and rules on civility.

After recent tumultuous events, we can all agree that our neighbors back home expect the highest ethical standards from the Members of Congress, the people’s House. This rules package includes some of the very good rules changes from the 109th Congress, including the end of proxy voting in committees and the emergency power granted to the Speaker to recess the House and convene in another location in the case of a terrorist incident. But our Democratic package goes further, instituting ethics reforms that prohibit Members from accepting gifts from registered lobbyists, restricting Members’ travel on corporate airplanes, and offering ethics training to Members and staff.

I come to the House from local government; and like many of my reformed-minded freshmen colleagues, I championed ethics reform on the local level, particularly in the Tampa Bay area, where it was needed in the inner workings of government. Well, it is needed here in the Halls of Congress now more than ever.

The new rules will include a fair and open process for the Congress: no holding open votes to change the outcome and clear guidelines for the operation of conference committees and final conference committee reports. Provisions for more stringent fiscal responsibility and pay-as-you-go budgeting requirements ultimately will aid our neighbors back home in reducing their own debt load while the Federal Government begins to do its part to ease the financial crunch so many of us feel across the country.

The proposed transparency in the earmark process and the additional requirement that Members certify that neither their spouses nor their relatives will have any personal financial interest in an earmark request will show and assure our neighbors back home that Congress is indeed operating in a way that best serves the needs and interests of every American.

I am humble and proud to be part of this new historic Congress and am glad to stand in support of the ethics reform package. I applaud the additional requirement that Members certify that neither their spouses nor their relatives will have any personal financial interest in an earmark request which will show and assure our neighbors back home that Congress is indeed operating in a way that best serves the needs and interests of every American.

I am truly pleased to join my colleagues here who are interested in good government, responsive government, and accountable government. And as a matter of principle, as a matter of principle we believe it is imperative that elected officials be held accountable for what they say and what they do.

Now, while on the campaign trail, Democrats made the promise over and over again that they wanted to have the most open and fair government in history. In fact, the new Speaker said herself, “More than 2 years ago, I first sent Speaker Hastert proposals to restore civility in Congress. I reiterate my support for these proposals today. We must restore bipartisanship to the administration of the House, reestablish regular order for considering legislation, and ensure the rights of the minority, which is the party that is in the minority. The voice of every American has the right to be heard.”

And she is right. But far from regular order is what we are dealing with here. There are a couple of items I want to present. We have heard that these issues to be dealt with over the next 100 hours of debate have already been vetted, already been through committee. In fact, the freshmen, who are at least 39 of the 435 Democrats, have not had any say in their history. So there is no regular order there.

We also note that in the rules package under Democrat control, the Rules Committee would become anything but transparent, being that the votes that are required or will take place in the Rules Committee will not be available to the public. I do not think that is what the American people voted on when they voted in November.

A minority bill of rights is what we will propose in our previous question amendment, and it is that kind of common sense and that kind of accountability and fairness that Americans expect and that we are asking for.

Hearings, amendments to bills, 24 hours’ notice, it is that kind of thing we need because it is that process that ensures that the House will work for all Americans to decrease taxes and to make certain our security is maintained in solving the health care challenges that we have.

Mr. Speaker, it appears that promises made on the campaign trail are going to be promises broken in the majority.

Mr. Slaughter. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. Blumenauer). Mr. Blumenauer. I appreciate the gentlewoman’s courtesy in permitting me to speak on this.

I am pleased, Mr. Speaker, that we are acting quickly in this Congress on the unfinished business from the last Congress. In short order we will be dealing with things like implementing the 9/11 Commission recommendations, we will have a clean, up-or-down vote on the minimum wage unchanged after 10 years, and we will be able to deal with promoting stem cell research and cutting interest rates on student loans. Again, this is getting past the unfinished business left over from the last Congress.

I am pleased that today, unlike how we started the last Congress, we are not beginning by watering down the ethics rules or making it more difficult for the minority.

I believe very strongly in the commitment that our caucus has made. Our leadership has articulated that we are not going to treat the Republican minority the way that we were treated. I think it is going to be very important, Mr. Speaker, that we deal with the spirit with which these rules are enforced. And I am absolutely certain that you will find that the people on the Democratic side of the aisle are going to make sure that the spirit is enforced to make sure that voting machines are not kept open for hours in the middle of the night; making sure that our commitment to have functioning conference committees, where Republicans will be invited to attend conference committees, will function as that committee to have bipartisan confidence in permitting the business lobby into a partisan tool.

Most important, I am interested in our progress to maintain and enhance civil discourse on this floor. I look forward to a bipartisan effort on an ethics panel that would be independent enforcement and that issue will be reported back to Congress by March 15. I am interested in working on a bipartisan basis to establish this independent mechanism for ethics oversight.

The rules we are adopting today and that we will be refining are an important first step to realize the promise of the new Congress. Most important will be the spirit. And I, for one, pledge myself to work with Rules Committee members on both sides of the aisle to make sure that that spirit is maintained.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, at this time I am very happy to yield 2 minutes to the very distinguished gentleman from Cherryville, North Carolina (Mr. MCHENRY).

Mr. MCHENRY. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my colleague from California for that warm introduction.

Today was a historic day for the House of Representatives: A new Speaker, a new majority, and, in their words, a new time in Washington. To use the new Speaker’s words, this is about respect for every voice, to work for every American, to seek common ground for the common good.

Those are high words and high values that we should seek here in the House of Representatives that all Americans desire in their government. And as a key part of what the Democrats campaigned on in the 2006 election, one of the key tenets was open and honest bipartisan governance. But their first act on this House floor is to push down the throat of this institution a closed rule that closes off debate, that disallows dissenting voices, that simply waves off that open, fair, and honest process.

To that end, I urge my colleagues to defeat the previous question. And if we defeat the previous question, I will be able to offer this minority bill of rights, the Pelosi minority bill of rights. To use the words of the new Speaker, the minority bill of rights includes guidelines for bipartisan administration of the House and for the regular Democratic order for legislation. The principles are fair and will provide for the full and open debate that the American people expect and deserve. Now, those are not my words. Those are the words of the new Speaker. They render Pelosi wrote those words in June of 2004.

Now, while the new Speaker and I may not agree on much in terms of policy, tax policy, or the policy on national defense, I think we have the same values when it comes to fair and open and honest legislative debate. And to that end I sought to outline her principles and put them into the minority bill of rights. So let us defeat the previous question so that we can vote on this minority bill of rights, the Pelosi bill of rights.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maine (Mr. MEEHAN).

Mr. MEEHAN. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlelady for yielding me time.

Madam Speaker, this is a historic day in this House: the first woman ever elected Speaker; the first woman, Louise Slaughter, to be chairman of the powerful Rules Committee. In addition to that, Ms. Slaughter and Speaker Pelosi have put together a package that is indeed a historic, comprehensive ethics package that deserves the support of each and every Member of this body.

In the last Congress, we saw egregious abuses of power by Members of Congress and lobbyists. These abuses tarnished the image of this great institution and caused Americans to lose faith in their government. In the face of these scandals, America had its midterm election and the American people decided decisively to put a new party in charge here in the House of Representatives. They sent a message loud and clear that it was time to clean up Washington.

Ms. Slaughter. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN).

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlelady for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H. Res. 5, to provide for the rules package of the new Congress. I am proud that the first act of this new Congress is to pass long-overdue ethics and lobbying reform.

Today, we end the era of Jack Abramoff and Tom DeLay, when the levels of government were used less to help American families and more to reward monied special interests. Today, we take a major step to restoring America’s trust in the legislative branch of government.

We will ban gifts from lobbyists, trips funded by lobbyists, and the use of company planes. We will shut down the K Street Project. We will force Members of Congress to take responsibility for their earmarks. And we will ban arm-twisting for votes.

The need for reform is obvious. The alliance between the previous leadership and K Street lobbyists came at a disastrous cost for democracy, decency, and the public interest. The best example is the industry-written Medicare D prescription drug bill passed in the middle of the night. The majority leadership held the vote open for 3 hours as they twisted arms and levied threats. Thousands of Maine seniors can see today that the program was designed to serve the insurance and pharmaceutical interests more than the people on Medicare.

I am pleased that the ethics package includes reforms that Congressmen David Obey, Barney Frank, David Price, and I introduced 1 year ago. I thank Chairwoman Slaughter and Speaker Pelosi for incorporating our ideas, simple ideas, like ensuring that we all have time to read bills before they are voted on.

H. Res. 6 will restore the people’s voice to the House. Every American family will benefit by legislatively transparent manner, rather than written by lobbyists behind closed doors.

I urge the adoption of this resolution and the entire Democratic rules and ethics reform package.

Mr. DREIER. Madam Speaker, I may inquire of the Chair how much time is remaining on both sides.

Mr. HENSARLING. The Speaker pro tempore (Ms. ESHOO). The gentleman from California has 14 1/2 minutes remaining and the gentlelady from New York has 11 minutes remaining.

Mr. DREIER. Madam Speaker, at this juncture I am very pleased to yield 2 minutes to a very, very hardworking Member of the House, the Chair of the Republican Study Committee, the gentleman from Dallas (Mr. HENSARLING).

Mr. HENSARLING. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding.

Madam Speaker, I rise today, and, unfortunately, I have to oppose this particular rules package. I listened very carefully to our new Speaker when she spoke of fairness, and yet I see that the minority is not being given the opportunity to offer amendments to this particular package when it comes to the floor. We are being asked to vote on things we don’t even know about, some thing that, Madam Speaker, your party complained of when you were in the minority.

But I specifically am disturbed by what I see in supposedly the fiscal responsibility portion that this rule package would allow. I heard our new Speaker talk about how important it was to bring PAYGO to the floor of the House; and I agree, it is a great concept.

Unfortunately, what is being offered, where the minority doesn’t have an opportunity to amend, is really false advertising, because what we have, Madam Speaker, is, number one, this concept called PAYGO, but where these programs are going to grow automatically in what we call discretionary spending, and yet this PAYGO doesn’t apply to this. Anything that the majority writes into the budget again is exempted from PAYGO. All of the entitlement spending, a majority of the spending, which could bankrupt our children and our grandchildren, once again is exempt.

What is covered, Madam Speaker? It is the tax cut that we pass. But that is, that is true if you find. But that is, then the majority has 5 to 10 years apparently to put off the costs, and somehow we are supposed to be convinced in 5 to 10 years they are actually going to pay for it. And this is false advertising. This isn’t PAYGO; this is TAXGO. All this is a subterfuge to make sure that hardworking American families are denied the tax relief that the Republicans and President Bush brought, the tax relief that created 6 million new jobs, that created the highest rate of homeownership in the history of our country, that helped deficits fall, that ensured that real wages came up. That is why we need to oppose this rule, Madam Speaker.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Madam Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MEEHAN).

Mr. MEEHAN. Madam Speaker, I thank the gentlelady for yielding me time.

Madam Speaker, this is a historic day in this House: the first woman ever elected Speaker; the first woman, Louise Slaughter, to be chairman of the powerful Rules Committee. In addition to that, Ms. Slaughter and Speaker Pelosi have put together a package that is indeed a historic, comprehensive ethics package that deserves the support of each and every Member of this body.

In the last Congress, we saw egregious abuses of power by Members of Congress and lobbyists. These abuses tarnished the image of this great institution and caused Americans to lose faith with their government. In the face of these scandals, America had its midterm election and the American people decided decisively to put a new party in charge here in the House of Representatives. They sent a message loud and clear that it was time to clean up Washington.
What did they ask for? They asked for honest leadership and open government, and this package presented today by Ms. SLAUGHTER, Ms. PELOSI and the leadership is the most significant, comprehensive ethics reform that has ever been presented on the first day of an opening of this Congress.

This is a rules package that cuts the ties to the old culture of corruption and in its place creates a new culture of disclosure, of accountability, and of oversight. Starting today, there will be no more junkets to begin the year; no more lobbyist-funded vacations; starting today, no more corporate jets, where Members of Congress can be flown to their indictment; starting today, no more lobbyist-paid gifts; beginning today, no more lobbyist-funded junkets or vacations; starting today, no more corporate jets, where Members of Congress can be flown to their indictment; starting today, no more lobbyist-funded vacations.

I urge all of you, my distinguished colleagues, to join together in support of these vital reforms. This is the first step toward restoring pride in our democracy, and that means restoring fiscal responsibility. Passing our massive debt on to our kids and grandkids is not a legacy we want to leave. Those who elect us are our employers, and we must be diligent in spending their hard-earned money which they entrust to us.

The number of earmarks alone increased nearly 400 percent and spending doubled over the last decade. We must all make an effort, Republicans and Democrats alike, to trim the fat from the budget. We can once again have a balanced budget, fund important initiatives and be diligent in our oversight of agencies of government, all without raising taxes.

I am proud to cast one of my first votes in the 110th Congress in favor of pay-as-you-go rules and aggressive reform of the earmark process so that we can return to a government truly of, by, and for the people.

I am honored to be back in this Chamber. I am proud that this Congress is starting off on the right foot with the best interests of every American on our minds, and I am proud to ask all of my colleagues to support this significant package of rules, H. Res. 5 and 6.

Mr. DREIER. Madam Speaker, at this time I am happy to yield 2 minutes to our very distinguished chief deputy whip, my good friend from Richmond (Mr. CANTOR).

Mr. CANTOR. Madam Speaker, I think the gentleman is correct. Madam Speaker, first of all I would like to congratulate the gentlelady from California on her election as Speaker and look forward to serving with her.

I just ran into a reporter on the outside of the Chamber who asked me about the tone of debate and what I thought the tone would be going forward. I agree with Leader BOEHNER when he spoke in this Chamber just a little bit earlier about the fact that we can debate, we can disagree in a nice way, and I think that is what the American people expect.

But they also expect rigorous debate here on the floor of the House. I am asking my colleagues to reject the previous question. Because if we look at the message from this election, the American people spoke out. They want change. They want us to change the way that Washington does business. And in fact, a little less than 2 years ago, then Minority Leader PELOSI saw fit to send a letter to the former Speaker Hastert spelling out the way that she thought this House should run, how we should change, a prescription to correct the so-called ills that my friend from Massachusetts mentioned earlier of the 109th Congress. So if we defeat the previous question, we in the House will be allowed to bring it to the floor and enacted. It has been called the minority bill of rights, and this again was the recipe for change that then minority Leader PELOSI saw fit that was the Madam Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to my friend from Nebraska (Mr. TERRY).

Mr. TERRY. Madam Speaker, I too am deeply disappointed today. I think part of the message from the electorate was that they want us to work together, that they want us to cooperate, that the best people, at least in Nebraska, very upset with the examples of those who violated the public’s trust.

We need to work together on an ethics package. We need that in this package there are ethics measures that, by the way, the Republicans helped put together many months ago in reaction to the ethics violations we have seen from some of our colleagues.

So, as the people want us to work together in a partnership and not in partisanship, what we received was a partisan slap across the face. It is the mismatch between words and actions of which we are speaking today.

I have had a bill that was incorporated into a package that we passed last May that the Democrats almost en banc opposed because it wasn’t tough enough. The reality is that the package in today’s rule, which we had no participation in, is, in many respects, the same examples of what is the fact that, as I worked on with our Speaker, that if you have violated the rules of this House and the public trust and you took money, you found $90,000 of cold hard cash or you took bribes. It’s a pension, that was in the ethics package passed months ago but isn’t in this one. So this is a weaker package.

Now, I wish I would have had the opportunity to take the bill that I have introduced today and did last year and work with our friends on the other side, but, in the partisan slap, have been unable to do so.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Madam Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I will yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. McNerney), one of the freshmen of which we are so proud.

Mr. McNERNEY. Madam Speaker, I am very honored to be part of the historic 110th Congress.

It is entirely appropriate that the incoming Congress is making ethics reform one of its first acts. This issue is personally important to me and to all of California.

We need to provide Congress with a fresh start and improve the strained relations that exist between voters and elected officials. Members of Congress should be held in the highest regard by the people they represent, and the ethics changes will help repair years of damage. We must reestablish positive relationships with everyone we serve, and end this period of mistrust in our government.

Traveling throughout our State of California, I heard from many people who simply want to believe and trust in their elected officials, and today we are sending the message that we feel the same way.

I am confident also that this will be the first of very many steps that will take back trust and civility in Congress, and I urge all of my colleagues to support the ethics package.

Mr. DREIER. Madam Speaker, I am inquiring of the Chair how much time we have remaining?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Ms. Eshoo). The gentleman from California (Mr. McNerney) is recognized for 6 minutes. The gentleman from New York (Mr. Mchenry) is recognized for 10 minutes.

Mr. DREIER. Madam Speaker, I will yield an additional minute to the gentleman from Cherryville, North Carolina, who would like to be recognized.

Mr. MCHENRY. Madam Speaker, I thank my colleague from California for yielding, again, to restate what is very important about this coming vote on the previous question.

If we defeat the previous question, we can then have an honest vote on the Pelosi minority bill of rights package. It is a very important thing for us to have an open, bipartisan debate on opening day of this new Congress, for the new majority to be able to say clearly to the American people that there is a bicameral majority on the opening day of this Congress. For if they do not do that and they do ram down the throats of all Members here on this floor this previous question, then all people will be locked out from debating our bills on this floor; and, from the Republican side, 140 million Americans who voted for our side of the aisle, their voices will be stifled in this process.

So, Madam Speaker, I encourage all Members, both Republicans and Democrats to come together, defeat this previous vote, and then we can move on to an open, fair debate on the minority bill of rights, the Pelosi minority bill of rights. That is a fair thing to do.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Madam Speaker, for the purposes of debate only, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina, the chairman of the Budget Committee, Mr. Spratt.

Mr. SPRATT. Madam Speaker, the package before us will be modified tomorrow to include provisions that reinstate a practice that was followed throughout the 1990s in the budget process called pay-as-you-go. Pay-as-you-go was established in 1991 as part of the budget enforcement act when President Bush, the first President Bush, was the President of this country. Pay-as-you-go simply provides that if you want to cut taxes when you have a deficit, you can’t move a deficit with House got to offset those tax cuts either with entitlement cuts in an equivalent amount or with tax increases elsewhere in the tax code. And, if you want to enhance any entitlement, you have to pay for it with an identified revenue stream.

Our friends across the aisle are trying to imply that this PAYGO rule is a sham. I will simply say to you that our PAYGO rule is the art of the possible; it is what we can do at the present moment, and that is what we can amend the rules of the House today and tomorrow to include two new PAYGO rules which we have provided for and which have been published in the Rules. There is some dispute as to whether or not the baseline against which to measure increases and decreases is going to be something that we can manipulate in the Budget Committee. I would simply invite everybody to read the legislative history of the rule, and they will see that in this particular case, the Committee on the Budget is bound to turn to the Congressional Budget Office, which is traditional practice, and to use the recent baseline estimates supplied by the CBO consistent with section 257 of the Balanced Budget Act of 1995. That is what the rule provides. We go to CBO for the baseline, we determine whether or not the extent to which there will be an increase in spending in relation to the baseline or not. If we choose to do that, we can change it to a CBO function based upon the latest baseline. And any other construction of this is a false construction.

Now, some may say this is just a rule of the House, it can be waived by the Rules Committee because, as the other side well knows, points of order of this kind traditionally have been mowed down by the Rules Committee. But this is the best we can do with a rule of the House. We can later come back and make a statutory change, but it will be good to know if our opponents on the other side who support such a change.

Mr. DREIER. Madam Speaker, may I inquire of the distinguished Chair of the Rules Committee now, are there any further speakers on the majority side?

Ms. SLAUGHTER. There are not. And I will reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Madam Speaker, I yield myself the balance of the time.

Madam Speaker, I am actually very enthusiastic and excited about the great new opportunity that lies ahead for every single one of us. We have heard speeches today from our distinguished Republican leader, and we are all very proud that my fellow Californian has become the first woman to preside over the greatest deliberative body known to man. And, as I said earlier, I am particularly proud of the fact that I am being succeeded by the distinguished chairwoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER), as the first woman to chair the Rules Committee.

I am enthused about the challenges that lie ahead, and I am very encouraged by the words that we have heard from our new Speaker about the need for civility, about the need for us to make sure that we recognize that we are first and foremost Americans, and that the message from last November’s election was a very clear one. It was a message that we should come together, work together, Democrats and Republicans alike, to solve the challenges that we face so that we can in fact do the people’s business.

We are very proud of the accomplishments that we have had over the past 12 years, and I believe we can work together with those successes to build on those successes, the successes of ensuring that we have an economy that is second to none, an unemployment rate that is at near-record lows at 4.5 percent, strong domestic product growth, more Americans working than ever before, more Americans working than ever before, more families having an opportunity to buy. And I believe them now.

One of the things that I think is very important is for us to have an opportunity to consider measures here on the House floor that allow for a greater opportunity for Member participation. The thing that troubles me most is if we don’t defeat this previous question and then defeat this rule that allows us to move forward, we will be proceeding with a package that will bring forward five closed rules, preventing the Rules Committee from having an opportunity to do in any way consider the chance to bring forward amendments.

Never before, never before in our Nation’s history have we seen an opening day Rules Committee that would allow for the consideration of five closed rules in the opening-day package. And one of the things, of course, that was discussed widely by our colleagues on the other side of the aisle which we have strongly supported is the notion of transparency, accountability, and disclosure.

One of the most troubling aspects of this measure is that we would move to prevent the RECORD from showing the votes that are cast in the Rules Committee.

We were very proud that we eliminated proxy voting when we came to majority status. Why? Because we wanted Members to show up to work, and we wanted the American people to see their work product. Well, unfortunately, the American people understand what it means to show up to work. They understand what it means for greater disclosure and accountability and transparency. We heard the opening remarks during this rule debate on letting the sunshine in. The sun is shining outside today, and it is going to shine in. Under this provision, we see a potential for the opportunity for the sun to shine in the Rules Committee, and I find it very troubling.

Madam Speaker, I will be asking Members to vote “no” on the previous question so we could be able to make in order to consider the Speaker’s minority bill of rights as was outlined on May 25, 2006, in her document “New House Principles: A Congress For All Americans.” We need to give the new majority an opportunity to live up to those commitments that were made.

Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to insert the text of my amendment and extraneous materials in the RECORD immediately prior to the vote on the previous question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection. Mr. DREIER. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Madam Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to insert the text of my amendment and extraneous materials in the RECORD immediately prior to the vote on the previous question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN THE COMMITTEE ON TRANSPORTATION AND INFRASTRUCTURE AND THE COMMITTEE ON HOMELAND SECURITY

On January 4, 2005, the U.S. House of Representatives adopted H. Res. 5, establishing the Rules of the House for the 109th Congress. Section 2(a) established the Committee on Homeland Security (hereinafter “Committee”) jointly agree to the January 4, 2005 legislative history as the authoritative source of legislative history of section 2(a) of H. Res. 5 with the following two clarifications.

First, with regard to the Federal Emergency Management Agency’s, FEMA, emergency preparedness and response programs, the Committee on Homeland Security has jurisdiction over the Department of Homeland Security’s responsibilities with regard to emergency preparedness and collective response only as they relate to terrorism. However, in light of the federal emergency management reforms that were enacted as title VI of the Public Law 109-2, rebranding FEMA’s all-hazards emergency preparedness programs that necessarily addresses FEMA’s terrorism preparedness programs would be referred to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure; in addition, the Committee on Homeland Security would have a Second, with regard to port security, the Committee on Homeland Security has jurisdiction over port security, and some Coast Guard responsibilities in that area fall within the jurisdiction of both Committees. A bill addressing the activities, programs, assets, and personnel of the Coast Guard as they relate to port security and non-port security issues would be referred to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure; in addition, the Committee on Homeland Security would have a jurisdictional interest in such bill.

This Memorandum of Understanding between the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure and the Committee on Homeland Security provides further clarification to the January 4, 2005 legislative history of the jurisdiction of the Committees only with regard to these two specific issues. The Memorandum does not address any other issues and does not affect the jurisdiction of other committees.

James L. Oberstar, Chairman-designate, Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

Bennie G. Thompson, Chairman-designate, Committee on Homeland Security.

Amending Special Rules

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The Rules of the House of Representatives are amended by adding at the end the following:

"(b) ALLOCATION OF COMMITTEE EXPENSES.—Clause 6 of rule X of the Rules of the House of Representatives is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(f) Of the amount provided to a committee under a primary expense resolution or a supplemental expense resolution under this clause, or during an interim funding period, described in clause 7, one-third of such amount, or such greater percentage as may be agreed to by the chair and ranking minority member of the committee, shall be paid to the Chair of the Resolution Committee.”.

The previous question having been refused, the gentleman from New York, Mr. Fitzgerald, who had asked the gentleman to yield to him for an amendment, is entitled to the last recognition.

Because the vote today may look bad for the Democratic majority they will say “the previous question was defeated and I only had a vote on whether to proceed to an immediate vote on adopting the resolution . . . [and] has no substantive legislative or policy implications whatsoever.” But that is not true because they have always said. Listen to the Republican Leadership Manual on the Legislative Process in the United States House of Representatives, 6th edition, page 183. Even how the Republicans describe the previous question vote in their own manual: Although it is generally not possible to amend the rule because the majority Member controlling the time will not yield for the purpose of offering an amendment, the same result may be achieved by voting down the previous question on the rule . . . . When the motion for the previous question is defeated, control of the time passes to the Member who led the opposition to offering the previous question. That Member, because he then controls the time, may offer a amendment to the rule, or yield for the purpose of amendment.”

Deschler’s Procedure in the U.S. House of Representatives, the subchapter titled “Amending Special Rules” states: “a refusal to order the previous question is a refusal to order a rule [a special rule reported from the Committee on Rules] opens the resolution to amendment and further debate.” (Chapter 21, section 3.1.2.2). Upon rejection of the motion for the previous question on a resolution reported from the Committee on Rules, control shifts to the Member leading the opposition to the previous question, who may offer a proper amendment or motion and who controls the time for debate thereafter.”

Clearly, the vote on the previous question on a rule does have substantive policy implications. It is one of the only available tools for those who oppose the Democratic majority’s agenda and allows those with alternative views the opportunity to offer an alternative plan.

Ms. Slaughter. Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

Thus during the next 2 years, we have an obligation, each and every one of us, to ensure that the Ethics Committee does the job that it was constitutionally mandated to do. The implementation of rules, while vital, must be followed by effective, real enforcement.
Through this rules package, Mr. Speaker, we also signal our sincere intent to foster an environment in which civility, consensus, and compromise are nurtured. The American people are tired of partisanship. They are rightfully demanding progress on the critical priorities that face our Nation. Surely we will disagree on many issues, but that does not require us to be disagreeable, and we surely can disagree without impugning or questioning the motives, the character of our colleagues.
In addition, Mr. Speaker, this rules package restores fiscal discipline by re-instating the budget rules that helped us produce record budget surpluses in the 1990s and which previously were supported on a bipartisan basis.
Mr. Speaker, we simply cannot continue on our current fiscal course. In the last 72 months, our Nation has turned a projected 10-year budget surplus of $5.6 trillion into a deficit of... more than $3 trillion. It is, in my opinion, Mr. Speaker, immoral of this generation of Americans to force our children and grandchildren to pay our bills. Our current course threatens our economic as well as our national security. The 109th Congress has already shown an extraordinary opportunity that is distinctive in the American experience, to heal a deeply divided Nation, to conquer national doubt and restore public confidence in the United States Congress. I look forward, Mr. Speaker, to working with each and every one in this body in our pursuit of that progress.

In conclusion, let me leave you with the words of our 35th President, John Kennedy, who said this: ‘Let us not seek the Republican answer or the Democratic answer, but the right answer. Let us not seek to fix the blame for the past. Let us accept our own responsibility for the future.’

Mr. Speaker, let us now embrace our responsibility and fulfill the trust that the American people have placed in us to lead, to govern effectively, and to make the greatest Nation on Earth even greater. I urge my colleagues to support this resolution.

Mr. Speaker, at this time I would ask unanimous consent that the remaining time allocated to me be controlled by Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, a member of the Rules Committee.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. SCOTT of Virginia). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentlewoman from California (Mr. DREIER) as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I would like to begin by extending my compliments to my very good friend from Maryland, the distinguished majority leader, Mr. HOYER. In fact, Mr. HOYER just quoted John F. Kennedy. I believe that he is right on target in focusing on that brilliant quote of President Kennedy’s where he said that we should not seek the Republican answer, we should not seek the Democratic answer, we should seek the right answer. I was struck with that, Mr. Speaker, and I believe that we should join in strong support of this resolution, of support of this title; and I am going to urge my colleagues to join in voting in support of this title which uses the rules base of the 109th Congress as the basis for which these proposed changes are being offered.

But I think it is very important for us to note that if we are going to, in fact, seek the right answer as opposed to the Republican answer or the Democratic answer, we need to do that by vigorously pursuing the deliberative process about which we all speak. And I know that during the past several weeks and months about minority. And so I would argue that the words of President Kennedy can best be implemented if we in fact do increase the level of deliberation, and that is why as we look at the proposed changes that we are going to be considering, I have to say that when it comes to the actual management, I am concerned. I am concerned about the prospect of, for the first time in the history of this institution, taking prospectively five closed rules and placing that in the opening-day rules package.

Similarly, Mr. Speaker, I am concerned about the prospect of taking this issue of transparency, accountability, and disclosure about which we speak in both Houses of the legislative process about which we are here to represent all of the American people, the notion of now saying again for the first time in the history of this great institution that we are going to create an opportunity whereby we will not have accountability and transparency in our very important deliberations that will take place in the Rules Committee.

And so again I would say in response to the brilliant words of President Kennedy, I believe by our distinguished majority leader, Mr. HOYER, that we do seek the right answer; and I believe that the best way to seek the right answer is through enhanced deliberation, and we have a chance to do this today; and I hope that when it comes to this vote urge my colleagues to vote in favor of title I. Title I, as you know, Mr. Speaker, simply provides a chance to use the opening rules package of the 100th Congress, and I think that is that course. And I am going to urge my colleagues on our side of the aisle to join so that again we will be coming together and I think having the right answer on that.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.
Mr. DREIER. The section that we are talking about right now is simply implementation of the rules that you wrote are the rules that we all know what the rules for the 109th Congress are; but all I am suggesting to you is that you are not surprised by anything in title I, because you participated in writing it and, therefore, I think that the record should reflect that, notwithstanding the fact.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, the simple point that I am trying to make is that we all know what the rules for the 109th Congress were. We have lived under those rules for the last 2 years. Yes, I was proud to have crafted those, working with my colleagues on this side of the aisle, and we passed those at the beginning of the Congress and we are going to have a chance in just a few minutes to vote on those again.

The point is, it is not the rules of the 109th Congress that we didn’t have a draft of. We did not have a draft until January 3 at 5:45 p.m., which clearly did not comply with that 24-hour requirement that has been put forward. And that is the only point that I am trying to make.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Reclaiming my time, I think the gentleman has made his point.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman may now yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. The gentleman objects to my including the draft?

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. I reserve the right to object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman reserves the right to object and is recognized under his reservation.

Mr. DREIER. The gentleman objects to including the draft?

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. I just wish to share with Mr. DREIER in the spirit of bipartisanship that mincing words with reference to whether or not you knew that this portion of the draft of the 109th rules are those of the 110th actually don’t even get to the level of substance that we ought be dealing with, with something as important as the rules.

You know the rules. I agree with you that that draft that you are talking about came from the 109th; but all I am suggesting to you is that you are not surprised by anything in title I, because you participated in writing it and, therefore, I think that the record should reflect that, notwithstanding the fact.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Pasco, Washington.

Mr. HASTINGS of Washington. I thank the gentleman for yielding. And I will try right up from here I intend to support title I and the rules package, and I take literally what the gentleman, my friend from Florida, talked about what we can expect from the Rules Committee when we restructure, hopefully next week, as to the timing and so forth of the business that we take up.

But I want to talk about one issue that is not addressed in the proposed changes for the 110th that is in the 109th package, and that is, the requirement to have recorded votes in the Rules Committee.

What the provision in the bill and the proposed changes say is that the Rules members now will comply as the Ethics Committee does. I was the chairman of the Ethics Committee in the last Congress and the ranking member in this Congress, and we have recorded votes in those committees, but we have the option of making them public or not.

Under the proposed rules packages, for the life of me, I cannot understand why that needs to be extended to the Rules Committee. It is obvious for the Committee on Official Standards, it is obvious there. But why is it in the Rules Committee is beyond what I can understand. Now, I do understand one of the reasons is that if there are errors, then you would certainly want to be able to correct those errors.

My first term was the 104th Congress, and that is when we made some major changes. And at that time, there have been 1,304 recorded votes in the Rules Committee; the number of errors in the rules report in those 12 years is zero. And I think one of the reasons why is because this is a committee of only 13. There are nine Democrats and there are four Republicans in this Congress. It was the reverse in the last Congress. As a matter of fact, I would suggest that you could probably, on most of those votes, predict what the outcome is going to be.

So with the life of me, we would want to take the transparency of the Rules Committee away from public knowledge is absolutely beyond me. It just simply doesn’t make any sense.

So I enthusiastically support adopting the rules of the 109th Congress. It would be my wish that that would be the rules for the 110th Congress, but we are going to debate that later and we will see what happens. But, again, why we want to take transparency out of votes in the Rules Committee, and I understand how few members on your side, why they won’t want to stand the transparency for their constituents is beyond me.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1¾ minutes to the distinguished chairman of the Agriculture Committee.

Mr. PETERSON of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, some of us that have big huge wingspans, we fly around the district to get to meetings just like some people use their automobiles, and there is concern amongst the few of us that do this about a provision in here. So, Mr. HASTINGS, could you clarify for me that it is not the intent of the section 207(b) of House Resolution 6 to prohibit a Member to use his or her own airplane; specifically, that is not intended to apply to the use of the Members’ representational allowance to reimburse a Member for mileage on his or her own airplane.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. I want to assure my colleagues that this is not the intent of this provision. It is not intended to apply to a Member who is using her or his own airplane, whether or not it is on his personal campaign or official business. Specifically, it is not intended to apply to the use of the Members’ representational allowance to reimburse a Member for mileage on his or her own airplane. We will work closely with the Ethics Committee and the Committees on House Administration to ensure that this is how these committees will interpret the rule.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Florida, my good friend, KATHY CASTOR, who is the first new Member to speak in the 110th Congress.

Ms. CASTOR. Mr. Speaker, I thank my fellow Floridian very much. And I am proud to stand here with many other new Members who are very reform-minded, and let me assure you we are ready to chart the new direction for America.

The election is over, and it is time for us to keep our commitment for honest leadership and open government rules changes. During this first 100 hours of the 110th Congress, all of us in this Congress must work together to pass key measures affecting the everyday lives of all Americans. We will begin by adopting the rules of the 109th Congress. This is the baseline provision that is before us now. But then we shall continue on, on other proposals to clean up Washington, to sever unethical ties between lawmakers and lobbyists. We will start by banning travel and gifts from lobbyists, requiring full transparency to end the abuse of special interest earmarks, and ending the abusive processes that have undermined democracy in this House. These measures are the first steps to ensure that the Congress upholds the highest ethical standards.

America has paid the cost of corruption in Washington with skyrocketing prices at the pump, spiraling drug costs, and the waste and fraud of... no bid contracts in the Gulf and Iraq. No more. Reform is a top priority for this House because reform is a top priority for the American people.

As our first responsibility in fulfilling the mandate of this critical election, the Democrats are introducing an aggressive reform package to restore the public trust. So, let’s begin.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of the time.

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased that we can, in fact, join in a bipartisan way in supporting implementation of title I of this provision. And I believe that it is great that my friend from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS) began heaping praise on the many accomplishments of the 104th Congress when we implemented things like an end to proxy voting, term limits on committee chairmen, and the other items which we have which go on and on and on, increased transparency and accountability and disclosure.

It was not so long ago that I have said, I am very, very troubled and saddened by the inconsistency when it comes to the issue of transparency and disclosure in light of the discussion that Mr. HASTINGS of Pasco, Washington and I have had about closing down transparency in the Rules Committee.

My friend from Florida mentioned the fact that I may be the champion of closed rules. I will admit that as chairman of the Rules Committee, I did bring more than a few closed rules here, primarily on bills that related to tax issues, which was done under the Democratic majorities of the past and I suspect will be done in the future as well. But I will say this: Never before, never before have I, as chairman of the Rules Committee, prevented the Rules Committee from having an opportunity to deliberate and including in an opening day rules package five closed rules. I am concerned as we move forward with that. We have that debate later. But I look forward to urging my colleagues to join in support of this proposal.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, at this time I am very pleased to have my colleagues to join in support of my request which is to urge later on. But I look forward to urging myself the balance of the time.

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, at this time I am very pleased to yield 1 1/2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Florida, who is my neighbor, Mr. RON KLEIN, who I believe is speaking for the first time.

Mr. KLEIN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida, and my new friend from California. My name is RON KLEIN, and today I am proud to stand in all of us were in the new Congress, and I represent Florida’s 22nd district. I believe I can speak on behalf of all my fellow freshmen colleagues today in saying that we are all truly honored to be here to represent the value of America’s families.

It is time to bring a new direction to Washington and promote honesty, integrity, and real leadership in the United States Congress. That is why we have introduced an ethics reform package that will restore the public’s trust and confidence in Congress. Those of us who were just recently on the campaign trail heard that frequently, and we know we need to do something about it.

One of these reforms has been introduced by my colleague, ZACK SPACE from Ohio’s 18th district, and it is a measure banning Members of Congress and their staff from accepting gifts from lobbyists. This bill will also put a stop to the common but inappropriate practice of allowing Members of Congress to use their campaign coffers to fly for corporate jets for travel purposes.

Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, on that I yield back the balance of the time.
Mr. KING of Iowa changed his vote from "nay" to "yea." So that portion of the divided question was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:

Mr. MCCAUl of Texas. Madam Speaker, on Rollcall No. 6 with family in town I was given insufficient notice of the vote. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts). The portion of the divided question comprising title II is now debatable for 60 minutes.

The gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MCGOVERN) and the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 4 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, it may seem like the November elections took place ages ago, but the sentiments that created new majorities in the House and Senate are still strong.

The American people spoke loud and clear on November 7. Together, Republicans and Democrats and independents from across this great Nation voted for change. They voted to end the cycle of corruption, pay to play, and junkets.

Today, Mr. Speaker, the new Democratic majority is fulfilling the pledge we made to the voters. We are going to clean up Washington, D.C. We are going to give the people their House back.

Two years ago my friends on the other side of the aisle brought forward a rules package that, in my opinion, did not go far enough in upholding the highest ethical standards. Today we offer a package that is based on real change. Members of Congress are elected to serve the American people, not their own individual private interests. And I am proud to say that today, this House of Representatives will enact a reform package that ends the culture of corruption once and for all. The days of the K Street project are over. No longer will Members of this House be able to dictate to any private entity the hiring or firing of anyone based on their political affiliation.

This rules package prohibits Members of Congress from traveling on corporate jets. My constituents in Massachusetts don’t have the opportunity to get cheap travel on corporate jets and neither should Members of Congress.

Mr. Speaker, this rules package also changes the way Members of Congress and staff can travel for official business. I strongly believe that overseas trips and other travel can be important tools to helping Members of Congress understand complex domestic and international issues. But the free travel of lobbyist-sponsored golf junkets will be relics of the past. The actions this package takes are simple and straightforward: no more junkets, no more gifts from lobbyists, no more travel on corporate jets.

This package is comprehensive, and it is historic. We are going to change the way this place is run, and we are going to change the way people look at the Congress. The American people don’t want to pick up their morning newspapers and read about golf junkets to St. Andrews. They don’t want to hear stories about how their Congressman or Congresswoman was wined and dined with $100 steak dinners.

Mr. Speaker, this is not complicated. These are commonsense items that should have been dealt with years ago. The time has come to do what is right, to hold Members of this House to the highest ethical standards.

With the election of NANCY PELOSI as Speaker of the House, the first woman Speaker in the history of the United States, Democrats are ushering in a new era and putting an end to the culture of corruption. We are changing the tone in Washington, and we are changing the way we do business.

Now, I know full well that the ethical problems of the past were not limited to one side of the aisle, and the solutions to those problems can and should come from both Democrats and Republicans. I know that many of my Republican friends agree that change is needed, and they wish that their leadership in the past would have moved forward on some of these changes. I look forward to working closely with them in the weeks and months ahead.

Mr. Speaker, the American people demand, and they deserve, a higher standard of conduct from their elected officials. Today, we are raising the bar for how Members of the 110th Congress will carry out their duties and do their jobs.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I support Mr. MCGOVERN’s package. Once again, I think we will have an opportunity for bipartisanship. The issue of ethics and lobbying reform is something that we believe is very, very important. As I sit here today, I am reminded of the fact that I year ago this month, Speaker Hastert and I stood right upstairs in the press gallery and unveiled a package for lobbying and ethics reform, which was maligned by many of our colleagues, unfortunately.

But I will say that I am very pleased with the fact that we were ultimately able to pass out of the House our measure, which did a number of things that I am happy to see are incorporated in this provision that is coming forward from the new majority.

The thing that troubles me most, Mr. Speaker, is the fact that this was done in a unilateral way. We are all very proud of the fact that we have a working, strong, vibrant bipartisan Ethics Committee. It would have been great if we could have had the Ethics Committee come forward with these recommendations.

There has been no consultation whatsoever between the majority and the minority, although I will say, again, I congratulate those Members of the new majority for including, including many of the items that were either incorporated in H.R. 4975, which was our lobbying and disclosure act that we passed out of the House last year, and some of the provisions that Speaker HASTERT and I outlined a year ago this month: free clearance of travel, a ban on travel and an end to gifts. An end to the K Street project. These are all very important reforms that I do think are essential.

I will say this, Mr. Speaker, as I listen to my very good friend from Massachusetts, and I congratulate him on his position in the majority this morning and the Rules Committee, what happens between today and March 1 of this year? Well, let us see, we have the month of January and the month of February, and, guess what, under this package, they have quorum in the Congress, under the Democratic majority, remains in place without any kind of reform or change.

So I have got to ask rhetorically, anyone who wants to answer as to why we are waiting until March 1 before we see any kind of implementation here. They want to see guidelines put forward, maybe by the Ethics Committee. If that is what they would like to do, why don’t we impose an immediate ban until they come up with recommended guidelines?

So I will say that as I listen to these proposals, they are interesting, I am very pleased that they have incorporated them, I don’t believe they go far enough. In a few minutes, my colleagues, Mr. KIRK and Mr. SHADEeG, will be talking about concern on the pension issue, which unfortunately has been left out of this, but I do believe that by and large this is a measure that is going to be worthy of bipartisan support, and I am going to urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, let me just say to my good friend from California, whom I have a lot of respect for, there is a big difference between what his leadership proposed in terms of higher ethical standards and what is being proposed here today. I have got to say to the gentleman that we include a little bit more than just banning lobbyists from the locker rooms. They are banned from the locker rooms in this bill, but there is a heck of a lot more.

Mr. DREIER. Will the gentleman yield? If you will recall, we passed H.R. 4975.

Mr. MCGOVERN. I am in the middle of my statement. I would also say to the gentleman that his party has been in control for 12 years, and there has been ample opportunity to change the status quo. The gentleman’s party not only allowed the status quo, but saw a proliferation of the culture of corruption, and that is what this is a response to. In answer to the gentleman’s question as to this March 1 deadline, that is to give the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct ample time to put the rules and regulations and the disclosure requirements into place so that this can be an effective change.

So this is real historic change. We are going to end the culture of corruption in this Congress today. I am glad that the gentleman has said that he is going to support it. I hope that this is a bipartisan vote.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes, for the purpose of closing debate, to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. SPACE).

Mr. SPACE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to ask you to support this historic rules package. The winds of change have enough to say that my very presence before you constitutes a message to this body, a message sent from the good people of Ohio’s 18th District. By these presence, I wish to deliver this message from my constituents.

The message is that the legislative process is broken. Rather than serving the needs of working families, this Congress has shown through past actions a preference for serving interests of the privileged few. Nowhere has this been more clear than in the influence wielded by lobbyists. The influence of lobbyists has compromised the reputation and even the health of this body. In order to restore the integrity to this Chamber and restore America’s faith in its elected officials, we must undertake substantial ethics reform. Our actions today will not only enhance the most fundamental principles of a democratic society; they will remind our constituents that we are a body of the people and not above the people.

The package before you will breach the circle of privilege between lobbyists, their key clients, and this body. It represents long overdue real ethics reform. It bans House Members and their employees from accepting gifts from lobbyists and the organizations that hire them. It prohibits lobbyists from paying for or organizing Member-level, and it eliminates the all-too-common practice of legislative jet-setting. In short, the ethics package is the first step toward restoring integrity and beginning the process necessary to restore faith in our system of government.

Coming from a district whose previous Congressman became mired, and then consumed, by scandal, my fellow district residents and I understand all too intimately the perils associated with weak and loosely monitored ethics regulations.

We have suffered the frustration, disappointment, and anger associated with betrayal. We have suffered from not having a Member of Congress available to attend to the needs of the citizens of our district. But we are not alone. Other districts have suffered similar loss. That is inexcusable, and it is unconscionable.

At a moment in time when our Nation needs truly heroic leadership, as the challenges of the changing world continue to grow, this body has failed to step up and lead. The institution of Congress has failed to make clear its commitment to the principles of democracy; and it has frustrated, disappointed, and angered the American public.

The winds of change have, indeed, blown many among us into this Chamber, and there is much work to do.

We cannot begin our work in good faith without this declaration today that the ethics rules are above the American people. The time to act is now. We have an extraordinary burden to prove to those who have given us this honor. We must make clear to them that we are representing their interests, not bartering legislative favors in order to gain gifts and trips.

I ask my colleagues to join me in supporting this important ethics reformation.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Omaha, Nebraska (Mr. TERRY).

Mr. TERRY. Thank you, I appreciate this opportunity.

Mr. Speaker, to the gentleman from Ohio, the new Member who just spoke, I rise in strong support of the rules reform package. In my district and I’m sure in every district that we have a process in place where we can do this. I appreciate and respect his point of view. I will add, though, that the disgust, the frustration with the ethics violations, the disregard for the people, and the public’s trust in this body because of a few of our colleagues isn’t relegated to one side of the aisle or the other, nor one district or the other.

I think all of us in this institution today that took the oath of office are disgusted by the past; and that is why this body that last May passed a comprehensive ethics bill, which mostly was incorporated in this one. Ironically, I think, it is fairly humorous, that most of the folks on the other side voted against it because it was not good enough, yet substantially similar to the one that is brought forward without our input into the process today.

Now, I stand here today saying this isn’t good enough. We could have done a better job of tightening down with lobbyists and gifts. Frankly, I don’t know how to interpret the plane part, but I am concerned about establishing the public trust when someone accepts bribes.

In our package that was voted against by a lot of our colleagues from the other side of the aisle that are pouring their chests today, in that was saying that you cannot receive the fruits that you earned during your tenure in this office if you have violated the public’s trust.

That is not part of the bill that stands before us today. If you have accepted a bribe, you are convicted of a felony and are sitting in jail, you should not be able to accept the part of the government-funded pension or other government-funded benefits that you earned while you were here. You simply cannot do that.

My folks back in Nebraska think that is absolutely absurd. I just wish we had a process in place where we could have worked in a partnership to improve this bill, to make it better. But we didn’t have that opportunity, and I don’t have the opportunity on behalf of my Nebraskans, who feel that it is absurd that you have cash in a freezer, and you can accept we had in a California or in an Ohio district, and still accept your pension. I think it is absurd that we don’t have that opportunity today.

Frankly, the fact that those folks voted against comprehensive ethics reform package introduced one without Republican input to improve the bill smacks of partisanship to me. I thought we were going to clear the decks of that and start working together for the public good, and it just doesn’t seem like it is happening today.

That is a poor start for civility in this body.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me just educate the gentleman that the change that he is asking for requires a statutory change. Today we are dealing with the House rules. I will assure the gentleman that constituents in Nebraska and people all over the United States who agree with him that we will have the opportunity to do that. We will go through House Administration and you will have the opportunity to do that. We will hopefully have a unanimous vote on that.

I am also happy to hear the gentleman and others on the other side of the aisle all of a sudden speak in favor of ethics reform and real change and ending the culture of corruption in this House. It is amazing what an election will do.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. SUTTON), a new member of the Rules Committee.

Ms. SUTTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman for yielding me this time.

I rise in strong support of the rules package.

Trust is a fragile thing. It is difficult to win, but easy to lose. It finds its rationale. It requires long-sustained and unquestionable integrity.

As the representative of the 18th District of Ohio, I am honored to rise on this historic day to speak for the first time on the floor of the people’s House. And in so rising, I am proud that I do so to keep the faith with the people who sent me here to serve.

With our actions today, on this first day of the 110th Congress, we have the opportunity to fulfill the awesome responsibility entrusted to us by the American people.

We have heard the call for change and it shall be heeded. Today, we sever the links between those who would buy influence on Capitol Hill and those who would willingly sell it.

We act to clean up the corruption which has eroded the public trust and resulted in far too many policies that benefit the well-connected and the privileged few, at the expense of the greater good.

Title II of our rules package does just this. We end the K Street Project, which took peddling of access and influence to soaring new heights. We act to eradicate the cronynism and corruption. We ban the gifts, the perks and travel wielded by special interests. We take the darkest inner workings of government and sanitize them with the light of day.

We work to adopt this set of anti-corruption reforms to dismantle the dark corridors and backrooms and avenues to abuse that have allowed corruption to grow and flourish.

We will beat back the culture and abuses that have hurt the American people, both in policy and in spirit. Let me just say one other thing to the gentleman from Marietta, with that, I yield 2 minutes to my very good friend from Highland Park, Illinois (Mr. KIRK).

Mr. KIRK. Mr. Speaker, this House needs more ethics reforms, rather than less. And the package before the House makes a positive step, but falls short in several key areas.

The most important ethics reform that is missing from this package concerns pension enhancements for Members of Congress convicted of a felony. Under current law, both Congressmen Traficant of the Democratic Party and Cunningham of the Republican Party would still be eligible to collect a taxpayer-funded pension, even after being indicted and convicted beyond a shadow of a doubt by a jury of their peers of a felony.

Stopping taxpayer-funded pensions for lawmakers who break the law is not a new issue. My home State of Illinois, a State not known for its clean government, in that State, we, at least, kill pensions for lawmakers who break the law, and we have done so for 30 years.

Ten years ago, Speaker FELOSI voted for H.R. 4011. That would have killed pensions for Congressmen for a conviction on any one of 21 separate felonies. She was right then, and it would be right now to terminate taxpayer-funded pensions for lawmakers convicted of a felony. Mr. Speaker, Democratic Congressman BRAD SHERMAN and I joined to support these very reforms in the last Congress. And we, at least, passed limited reforms and allowed the Senate at least to consider them.

But today, the 100th Congress fails to take up this issue. None of these pension killing reforms are in the package or are currently scheduled.

I take what the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. McGovern) says very seriously, that he has made a commitment to bring up legislation to kill pensions for Members of Congress convicted of a felony. I have introduced legislation, H.R. 14, to do exactly that, modeled after the language supported by Speaker HASTERT as well as Speaker FELOSI. These are commonsense reforms, already part of the law of the land in the land of Lincoln, and long ago should be part of the ethics reforms of this House.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, let me just respond to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. KIRK) by saying I know I am from Massachusetts, and you may think I have a funny accent and you have trouble understanding me. But let me repeat what I said before. In order to make the changes on the pension issue that he is asking for, which we all support, it requires a statutory change. And I think the staff over there will help clarify that. We are all for that.

In H.R. 4011, which Ms. PELOSI supported that you mentioned was a statutory change. We are going to do that. Let me just say one other thing to the gentleman. You keep on referring to your reform package as if it was some kind of this monumental change and reform.

You didn’t ban the K Street Project, which has really resulted in so much outrageous behavior across the country. You had a temporary suspension on the issue of travel, and you had no ban on lobbyists’ gifts.

This is real reform. We are going to end the culture of corruption.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I yield for the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. GILLIBRAND). She was right then, and it would be right now to end the culture of corruption and providing the environment where we can get back to what is most important, working for the people of the United States.

Mrs. GILLIBRAND. Mr. Speaker, the American people. They want change. They want our elected leaders to put the people’s eye?

I also pledge to my constituents, and will vote as part of this legislation, to never accept any gifts from lobbyists, nor will my staff.

My job, and all of our jobs, is to represent the citizens of our districts. And this is the only group that I will be answerable to.

I encourage my colleagues to join me in voting in favor of ending the culture of corruption and providing the environment where we can get back to what is most important, working for the people of the United States.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, let me just, before yielding to the gentleman from Marietta, say very quickly again, the legislation that passed the House, H.R. 4975, specifically banned the K Street Project. Look at the language. It is virtually identical. We focused on the issue of lobbyist travel and gifts. And I believe that we can come together in a bipartisan way. We want to work in a civil tone, as was outlined by Speaker FELOSI today.

Mr. GINGREY. Mr. Speaker, I was surprised when reading title II of this resolution, as it looks conspicuously like the ethics package passed by the Republican majority last Congress; the ethics package that only eight Democrats voted to support. I suspect today’s vote from eight Democrats will finally agree with the Republicans that meaningful ethics reform is a priority of the American people.

In fact, the most obvious change in the Democratic package is the overly partisan and adversarial tone, adding headlines like “Ending the K Street Project” to language that was included in the Republican legislation. And for what purpose other than a partisan poke in the minority’s eye?

Democrat campaigns on the promise of a more open and inclusive government, assuring us of their bipartisan intentions. Yet, today, on the first day of the 110th, that promise has
Mr. Speaker, I know why the Democratic leadership is trying to limit debate on these liberal bills, but the American people deserve to have a voice in this process, the voice of their elected representatives. Today it is clear we have been denied that voice.

Mr. McGovern. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me just say, respond to my good friend from Georgia (Mr. Gingrey), who I am going to miss on the Rules Committee, if he thinks that the Republican reform package was meaningful reform, I will lend you my bifocals so you can read it more carefully. What ended up happening, what you ended up enacting essentially, after 12 years in the minority, was banning lobbyists from the locker room. That is all that became law.

You controlled the House of Representatives. You controlled the Congress. And you controlled the United States Senate, and that is basically all that you did.

So I would just say to the gentleman, if he wants to vote “no” on this, he can go right ahead and vote “no” on it. But that is defending the status quo.

I think the American people made it very clear during the last election that they are sick of the culture of corruption; that they want a ban on lobbyists’ gifts; that they want an end to the K Street Project. They want a ban on Members using corporate jets to fly around the country. And so if you want to vote for the status quo, vote “no” on this. If you want to vote for real meaningful change, vote “yes.”

Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. Hodes).

Mr. HODES. Mr. Speaker, thank you to the gentleman from Massachusetts for yielding time.

Dear colleagues, it is my great privilege to rise today for the first time as the Representative for New Hampshire’s Second District. It is humbling to serve with so many men and women I have admired for so long and to stand in this Chamber, hallowed by American history as the people’s House.

But while today is dedicated, in part, to celebration, there is no time to waste in fixing the ills that have plagued this House in recent years.

Traveling across my State of New Hampshire this fall, I heard one clear, consistent message from voters—from Democrats, Independents and Republicans. We are fed up with the mess in Washington, D.C., and we want it fixed.

Mr. Speaker, while most Americans see Congress as somewhat distant from their lives, they probably couldn’t rattle off the names of Congressional leadership, for example, or quote bill numbers, they do understand with absolute clarity when Congress is working for them or when Members of Congress are working for themselves.

Now, the Democratic ethics reform package is much needed and it is long overdue. While some in this body may bristle at its stringency, and some are now heard to complain, apparently, that it doesn’t go far enough, as a new Member, I can tell you that it is only logical and only just to make these changes to the House rules, starting today and starting now.

We must ban gifts and travel from lobbyists, we must put a stop to the pernicious K Street Project, we must reform the way we spend taxpayers’ money and the way we write and pass the bills meant to protect taxpayers’ interests.

I strongly support the adoption of the Democratic rules package. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote “yes.”

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to congratulate the gentleman from New Hampshire. We welcome him here. Unfortunately, this package doesn’t start today and start now. It starts March 1 of 2007, 2 months from now.

I also want to say to my very good friend from Massachusetts once again that if you look at the package that we oppose, the package that we oppose, it is a package that enjoyed bipartisan support. It is one of which we are very proud. And I believe that if you look at the fact that we did go beyond preventing registered lobbyists from coming onto the House floor and the gym, we are doing many of those same things here. It has been done before.

And that is why we are proud to be here in support of this effort, which, yes, doesn’t go far enough but there are some problems with it, but we do believe it is a positive step. Why? Because it is a reaffirmation of what Speaker Hastert led us to last year.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I am very happy to yield 4 minutes to my good friend from Arizona (Mr. Shadegg).

Mr. SHADEGG. I thank the gentleman for yielding and I want to express my concern about the tone of this debate. Let me make it clear: I compliment my colleagues on the other side of the aisle. Ethics reform is needed here, and today you are making a good first step. But please listen carefully to those of us on this side of the aisle who will vote with you for this package when we implore you to go further and when we take some credit for the efforts of the past.

It is true that we passed as a law through this House, sadly the Senate did not follow suit, a bill that corrected many of these things. Your bill, in some respects, goes further, but some of us are concerned that it needs to go even further. And it is not because we are revisionists.

I have campaigned in this body and out of this body throughout my career for reform. I believe it is not enough just to do so-called lobbyist reform, We must direct our ethics reform at the Members of this institution. And one way to do that is a way that was recognized by our new Speaker a decade ago, and that is to say that the Hiss Act, passed clean back in 1954, which said a Member of Congress convicted of bribery would lose his or her pension, should be reinstituted, because it was repealed in 1961.

Over a year ago, watching what I was disappointed in the criminal conduct of the Members of this body I introduced a bill with 57 cosponsors saying that any Member, any Member, Republican, Democrat or otherwise, convicted of bribery in connection with their office ought to, at an absolute minimum, lose their pension. And I believe that is the standard we owe the American people, and no less.

My colleague says this is just a rules package, but this is your first hundred hours. There is no rule that says you could not have brought a statute, and I implore the gentleman and tell him that I will join with him, as will my colleague from Illinois and my colleague from Nebraska, each of whom had introduced bills a year ago or more seeking to prohibit Members from collecting a taxpayer-funded pension when they are convicted of bribery. My colleague from Massachusetts pointed out, used this office not as one of public trust but one of public abuse to benefit themselves.
There is no time for delay. Pass a reform now punishing Members who misuse their office. Take away their pensions and do it now.

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I will commit to the gentleman from California that we are going to enter into that exchange, and I look forward to having that statute on the floor where he can speak in favor of it and we can speak in favor of it too.

Let me, Speaker, correct the record. The distinguished former chairman of the Rules Committee said none of this ethics reform takes place for 4 months. That is true on the travel, and I clarified that earlier as to why that is the case, so we had time to implement the rules and regulations of disclosure. But everything else, I will assure him, takes place immediately.

So once this ethics package passes, I would urge my colleague from California not to go out to dinner with any of his lobbyist friends because he might be breaking the law.

Mr. Speaker, I yield for purposes of debate only 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Florida (Mr. MAHONEY).

Mr. MAHONEY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today representing Florida’s 16th District and a voice in support of title II of the rules of the House relating to ethics reform in the House of Representatives.

Today, Democrats, and I hope with the support of our Republican colleagues, will pass an aggressive reform package that keeps our promise to the American people and reforms how we do business here in Washington. These ethics reforms mark an end to a tragic era in American history where the pursuit of power has cost us the faith of the American people.

We are here today to rebuild America’s trust and make a promise that never again will special interest trample the interests of the hardworking families, not lobbyists, will have a voice in Congress again.

I urge my colleagues to support these important changes to the House ethics rules.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire of the Chair how much time is remaining on both sides.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California has 14 minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Massachusetts has 9½ minutes remaining.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, at this time it is my privilege to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. SARBANES).

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to address the body and speak to one another face to face. We have ethics, and other reform that is before the body; and I do it in support of those who you have already heard today, many of whom represent the outrage, as has been mentioned, of their constituencies because of situations that were faced by those Members, that this is an opportunity that we had to send a clear and positive message to the American people that what they called for in this past election is going to be carried out.

The exit polls all across this country reflected that the number one issue, the number one issue on which the voters cast their vote in the election of 2006 was concern about ethics and reforming ethics. We owe it to the American people, we owe it to all those in this chamber; I recognize that everyone in this body is committed to this. We owe it to all of those to articulate and enact a rules package that incorporates this significant reform.

It is a privilege and an honor for me to stand in support of this package and in support of the ethics reforms being called for by the American people.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume to do what he and many of my colleagues want to do:

I trust my colleagues. I want to begin by saying as a Californian that I am very proud of the fact that California has provided the first female Speaker of the House of Representatives. Similarly, I have congratulated our colleague, Ms. SLAUGHTER, who will be the first woman to chair the Rules Committee in our Nation’s history.

This has been a historic day and I believe a very exciting day for us. I am pleased to have again the ability to do a number of things already in a bipartisan way, and I think this issue of ethics and lobbying reform, building on the reforms that we passed in the 109th Congress, utilizing those very positive provisions, is exactly what we are about to vote on here in just a few minutes; and I think that it is a time when we can be civil.

And I will say to all of my friends on both sides of the aisle, the American people want us to deal with these problems. I submit my commitment to my colleagues on the Rules Committee that I will continue to strive to comport myself in the most dignified way possible in dealing with my colleagues, and I urge support of this very important measure.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. McGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I want to say to my colleague from California (Mr. DREIER) that I appreciate his words of cooperation and bipartisanship, and I do hope, and it is my belief, that you will see a change in terms of more outreach across the aisle and more respect, quite frankly, for the opinions of every single Member of this House.

I agree this is a historic day. This is not only a historic day because we have elected the first woman Speaker of the House in the history of the United States of America, it is also a historic day for what we are about to vote on. We are about to change the way we do business here in Washington. We are responding to what the American people made very clear on election day, that they are tired of the ethics lapses of their leaders in government; that they want an end to the culture of corruption; that they want a government that has high ethical standards; that they want Members of Congress to adhere to those high ethical standards and, if they do not, that they will be held accountable.

So what we are doing today in this ethics package, I think, is also an important moment in our history.

What we are doing is we are doing it right. We are moving the Members of this House to the very highest ethical standards. And I want to say to my colleague from Arizona (Mr. SHADegg) that I agree with him on the pension issue. So do, I think, everybody on both sides of the aisle. We are working to address that and we are going to hopefully get a unanimous vote on that issue, because he is right on that issue.

But, again, we are not dealing with that. That requires a statutory change, and today we are dealing with the House rules.

Mr. Speaker, what we are doing here today, I will remind my colleagues again, is very important. We are ending gifts by lobbyists to Members of Congress, we are banning the use of corporate jets for Members of Congress for a minimal price so that they can take a corporate jet and fly anywhere in this country. No one else can do that, yet that has been a practice by too many Members in this Congress. That will be banned.

We will end the lobbyist-sponsored golf junkets. They will be relics of the past. This is a new day. This is a day where ethics and where integrity are going to hold a very, very high place.

We are going to end the culture of corruption with this vote, and I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote “yes” on that.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of Title II of H.R. 6, the Rules of the House of Representatives for the 110th Congress. With the adoption of this title, we begin to make good on our pledge to “drain the swamp” and end the “culture of corruption” that pervaded the 109th Congress.

Mr. Speaker, it is critically important that we adopt the ethics rules contained in Title II because Americans are paying for the cost of corruption in Washington with skyrocketing prices at the pump, spiraling drug costs, and the waste, fraud and no-bid contracts in the Gulf Coast and Iraq, for Administration cronies like Halliburton.

Ethics and legal scandals plagued the Republican Congress—from the resignation of Reps. Tom DeLay and Duke Cunningham to... the admission of illegal or improper conduct by Reps. Bob Ney and Mark Foley.

The cozy relationship between Congress and special interests we saw during the 109th resulted in serious lobbying scandals, such as those involving Republican super lobbyist Jack Abramoff. In this scandal, a former congresswoman pleaded guilty to conspiring to commit fraud—accepting all-expense-paid trips to play golf in Scotland and accepting meals, sports and concert tickets, while providing legislative favors for Abramoff’s clients.

But that is not all. Under the previous Republican leadership of the House, lobbyists were permitted to write legislation, 15-minute votes were held open for hours, and entirely new legislation was sneaked into signed conference reports in the dead of night. The American people registered their disgust at this sordid way of running the Congress last November and voted for reform. Democrats picked up 30 seats held by Republicans and exit polls indicated that 74 percent of voters cited corruption as an extremely important or a very important issue in their choice at the polls.

Ending the culture of corruption and delivering ethics reform is one of the top priorities of the new majority of House Democrats. That is why as our first responsibility in fulfilling the mandate of the American people, paid fitting tribute to the late President Gerald R. Ford, a former leader in this House, who did so much for the integrity, good character, and commitment to the institution of Congress. We can end the nightmare of illegal ties to lobbyists.

To restore public confidence in this institution and the American people, paid fitting tribute to the late President Gerald R. Ford, a former leader in this House, who did so much for the integrity, good character, and commitment to the institution of Congress.

Mr. SIRES. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Honest Leadership and Open Government rules package before the House.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Honest Leadership and Open Government rules package currently before the House.

All of the way this House conducts its business is not an option. It is an absolute necessity. A recent poll found that only 37 percent of Americans approve of how Congress is doing its job. Does anyone here doubt that the largest scandals and procedural abuses of recent years are a major factor for this low public approval rating? In 2006 alone, four Members of the House resigned their seats under a cloud. Two of these former Members have already been convicted for unethical and illegal ties to lobbyists.

I do not believe that these specific abuses represent the majority of Members, but I do believe it is the responsibility of the Majority party to set out strong rules that can begin to regain the trust of the American people in their institution of government.

For many years now, our constituents have been bombarded by media reports of cozy relationships between Congress and special interests lobbyists. They are incensed by news reports of Members accepting all-expense-paid trips to play golf in Scotland, the flagrant abuse of House rules to hold 15-minute votes open for hours for the sole purpose of affecting the outcome, the widening Jack Abramoff lobbying scandal, and the lack of accountability and transparency in how congressional earmarks are awarded.

I mentioned that our constituents learned about these abuses from the media, in their morning newspapers and on the nightly news. Too often in recent years, it is also from the floor of the House. The American people registered their disapproval in the dead of night and brought up for a vote before Members had an opportunity to read what they were being asked to vote on. This form of secret legislating has got to stop, and it will stop under this reform package.

The reform package before the House will also curb a large number of the other abuses that have come to light. These reforms will ban gifts from lobbyists, expand and tighten the restrictions on congressional travel paid for by outside groups, prohibit travel on corporate jets, and require greater public disclosure of targeted special interest legislation. The reforms will also prohibit the practice of holding votes open for the sole purpose of affecting the outcome.

There are many other needed reforms contained here, but the one I want to single out is the provision that restores pay-as-you-go budgeting. Pay-as-you-go budgeting simply means that Congress will not consider any legislation to boost entitlement spending or cut taxes unless it is fully paid for. Before they were abandoned in 2002, the pay-as-you-go rules helped to turn record deficits into record surpluses in the 1990s. Since abandoning pay-as-you-go, the cumulative deficit for the past four years has totaled over $1.36 trillion. We simply cannot continue to pile up more and more debt and pass it along to our children and grandchildren.

For all these reasons, I urge all my colleagues to join me in voting for the House rules reform package before the House.

Mr. SIRES. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 6.
Throughout history, there has been an ongoing struggle to put the people’s interest ahead of special interests. With this legislation, we put an end to this age-old struggle. The 110th Congress has been given a mandate by the people and make sure that’s the way it stays.

To do this, we must ban gifts and meals from lobbyists and the organizations that they represent. We must ban lobbyists from planning, organizing, financing and participating in travel for Members or staff. We must protect the American taxpayer by requiring full disclosure of earmarks so that they know how their money is being spent. We must ensure that the business of the people is completed in a fair and open way.

As we start the 110th Congress, we must govern our own chamber in a manner that represents the interests of our constituents. This is why I proudly rise in support of this measure and urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. TERRY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my deep disappointment in the rules package we are considering today.

The message from the American public last fall was “we want Republicans and Democrats to work together.” We all had high expectations for a “new way of doing business in Washington.”

Throughout the 110th Congress, we have had a chance to work together. We need to see after last fall’s election. We are being denied the chance to work together. We need to restore the public’s confidence in this House and one way to do that is to work together to solve the problems facing this Nation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY

LANCE CORPORAL LUKE YEPSEN,
TEXAS WARRIOR

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Poe) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. Poe, Mr. Speaker, has been asked, “We are United States Marines, and for two and a quarter centuries we have defined the standards of courage, spirit, and military prowess.”

These are words spoken by United States Marine Corps General James Jones. This describes the elitism of those chosen few who wear the title of United States Marines. Luke Yepsen, a young man whose life was making a difference at a very young age. He personified the core values of the United States Marine Corps of honor, courage, commitment.

He was from Kingwood, Texas, a close-knit community near Houston, Texas. He was a graduate of Kingwood High School, and he was known for his big heart and ability to live life to its fullest extent. He enjoyed travel and he was proud of the fact that he had already traveled to 20 different foreign countries in his short lifetime.

Luke deeply cared about his family back home in Texas and his military family. His fellow Marines said he was more than just a friend; he was a brother, a brother to everyone who knew him.

Like many Texans, especially those Texans who go to war, Luke chose to enroll in Texas A&M after high school. During his freshman year, he made a decision to leave Texas A&M University. Gary Yepsen, Luke’s father, asked him why he didn’t want to graduate college and then enter the United States Marine Corps as an officer. Luke said, “I don’t want to go into the Marines to tell people what to do. I want to go into the Marines so they can tell me what to do.”

Here is what President Ronald Reagan said about the Marines: “Some people spend an entire lifetime wondering if they made a difference in the world. But the Marines, they don’t have that problem.”

Luke Yepsen was one of those Marines. With faith in God and country, at 18 Luke enrolled in the United States Marine Corps. He was an assaultman, later a mechanic, which came easy to him because he loved working on cars. “He had so much courage and pride, you can’t even imagine. You could hear it in his voice how proud he was,” said Luke’s brother, Kyle. In October of 2006, Luke was deployed to Iraq with the 1st Tank Battalion, 1st Marine Division, 1st Marine Expeditionary Force. Amid the violence and anarchy in Iraq, Luke’s thoughts never waned from the security of home and American freedom. When told by his college roommate that he was praying for him, Luke quickly responded, “Well, I’m praying for you.”

On December 14, 2006, at the age of 20, Luke, while fighting the forces of evil, was killed by enemy action in Iraq. For his military service, he was awarded the Purple Heart, the Meritorious Service Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, and the Iraq Campaign Medal, the Global War on Terrorism Medal, and the Sea Service Deployment Ribbon.

On the morning of December 22, 2006, hundreds of Kingwood, Texas, residents lined the streets of this community paying tribute to the family of this patriot. Many of those on the streets carried flags, yellow ribbons. Many held banners saying “Proud of You.” “Proud to be an American.” Some said, “Thank You.” As the funeral procession made its way to the church, the residents of Kingwood, with tearful eyes and grateful hearts, saluted the Yepsen family.

Mr. Speaker, I want to tell you that patriotism is alive and well in the United States. And as the Kingwood, Texas, community mourns the loss of America’s son, Luke Yepsen, and all those who came before him and all those that will come after him, we also know that freedom is not free, and we thank this fearless Marine for dedicating his life to America.

Luke’s sacrifice will be etched in the catalogue of history as another Marine who was always faithful. A sacrifice made for his parents, Sheila and Gary; his brother, Kyle; and his fiancée, Sandra Bruman; the Kingwood community; and this great Nation.

As we honor the life of Luke Yepsen, reflect on those timeless words from the Marine Corps Hymn that say: "In many a strife
We've fought for life
And never lost our nerve.

If the army and the navy
Ever look on heaven's scenes,
They will find the streets are guarded
By United States Marines."

Mr. Speaker, I suspect that Lance Corporal Luke Yepsen is patrolling the streets of heaven tonight and guarding the pearly gates.

So Semper Fi, Lance Corporal Yepsen. Semper Fi.

And that's just the way it is.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BOUCHER). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. PALLONE addressed the House.

His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

HONORING DEREK RYAN KEHOE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. DENT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DENT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak of a courageous young man from my district, and of his friends and family and supporters, who are trying to use his untimely demise to help make the world a better place.

Derek Ryan Kehoe graduated from Nazareth High School in 2005, which this high school is located in Nazareth, Pennsylvania. And he was a star player on the school’s basketball team, a team he led to the District 11 Tournament in 2005.

He was a freshman at Albright College when, in April of 2006, he discovered a lump on his back. The lump turned out to be leiomysarcoma (LMS), a rare and deadly form of cancer. LMS currently has no cure, and though Derek was a strong, healthy 19-year-old, the disease overcame him, and he passed on October 28, 2006.

Throughout his illness, Derek was cheerful and encouraging, more concerned with the feelings of those who came to see him than with his own condition. On January 5, 2007, Derek’s life will be commemorated at the half-time of the Nazareth High-Northampton High boys basketball game. A full house is expected, and 150 of Derek’s classmates are returning for the event. All proceeds from the game will be earmarked to fight this dreaded disease of LMS that took Derek away from us way too soon.

I want to extend my condolences to Derek’s parents, Maureen Kehoe and Kevin Kehoe. I also want to express my support for all the people who have put together this event, including the Kehoes, the administration of Nazareth Area High School, and the Nazareth High School Booster Club. I also want to convey a special word of thanks to Nazareth basketball coach Joe Arndt, a school officer, and to the Marine Corps Hymn that say:

We've fought for life
And never lost our nerve.

If the army and the navy
Ever look on heaven's scenes,
They will find the streets are guarded
By United States Marines."

Mr. Speaker, I will insert a copy of these words into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD this 4th day of January, 2007, as part of the effort to commemorate for all time the life of Derek Ryan Kehoe.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak of a courageous young man from my District, and of his friends, family, and supporters who are trying to use his untimely demise to help make the world a better place.

CLEAN ENERGY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California (Mr. SCHIFF) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. WOOLSEY addressed the House.

Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)
to take those billions of dollars, those tax goodies given away to these corporations, repeal those giveaways and shift that money, shift those public resources, into a pool of funds that will be used to develop new high-tech, clean energy sources that we can go forward to build on. Without a result, we reduce our contributions of carbon dioxide and other gases that are contributing to global warming. And I think this is a fundamental shift in American history.

We have had a steam revolution starting with American ingenuity, with Fulton and others. We had an industrial revolution led by American inventors, Ford and others. We have had an IT revolution led by many people in the software business. Many of them in my district in North Seattle and Redmond, Washington.

And now we are heading into a fourth revolution in the industrial base of America, and that is an energy revolution. And I think we may make a transition from dirty fuels to clean fuels, many of which we will talk about tonight, and we will do it in a smart, prudent, fiscally sound way of using funds that are being wasted essentially on these old dirty technologies and shift them over, being wasted essentially on these old technologies. We should be embarking on a sustainable energy path. Not just clean energy, not just renewable energy, but a sustainable energy path that is environmentally sustainable, that is economically sustainable, and that is climatically sustainable.

One of the big changes that has occurred, and I think Mr. INSLEE would agree, in the last year or 2 is here in that we have a clear path to use country, we have come to the conclusion, some of us years ago, but most people very recently, have come to the conclusion that global climate change, human induced global climate change, is real; the conclusion that it is real and they have come to the conclusion that it is serious.

They have not yet come to the conclusion that it is harmful. I would argue that it is costly and deadly. They have not come to the conclusion that there is something we can do about it. But, indeed, I would argue that there is a great deal we can do about it. Some damage has been done.

There is much more we can do.

Mr. INSLEE. We want to turn to the things that can be done, because one of the messages of the new Apollo Project that we are taking steps, the first step.

The first conversation I had last week was with a woman who was a leader in the first city in the United States that is being relocated as a result of global warming. That is the village of Shishmaref in Alaska; it is on the Arctic coast of Alaska. This woman told me that last week the city voted to move their city, I think it is about 13 miles off of a coastal barrier island, that is disappearing because sea levels are rising, the tundra is melting, and the ice that serves as a barrier protecting their village is melting, and their island is disappearing, right literally underneath them.

They are having to move their whole city at a cost of $150 million, onto an inland area, that is Shishmaref, Alaska. When we have to start moving cities in this country to start dealing with global warming, it is time to have a new energy policy.

Second, I had a conversation with the president of the Marshall Islands. It is an independent nation in the South Pacific of 60,000 people. The president of the Marshall Islands told me that they are in an emergency situation because of the rising seas and the increasing frequency of big storms which are literally overtopping their islands, which are just a few feet. They are built on coral reefs. Their coral reefs are dying because the oceans are becoming warmer and more acidic due to global warming. We have a whole country that may go under water as a result of global warming.

The third conversation I had last week was with a woman who was a climatologist, I may have butchered that word, meteorologist. She is an expert on the Arctic, basically. The University of Washington just published a study that said with a fairly high degree of probability the Arctic ice pack will have disappeared in months of September, disappeared with just marginal little bits of it hanging on to the coastline by the year 2050, with all of the changes that portends, including the disappearance of the polar bear, that even the current legislation under George Bush agrees should be listed as a threatened species because the Arctic ice is going to disappear.

I just note these because since Mr. HOLT and I last discussed this in the Congress 2 months ago, there are already showing signs of changing. That is what we mean when I say this is very clearly and even deadly.

It is not just inconvenient. It does not just mean that, well, they are going to start growing sugar cane in Minnesota as the climate warms up. No, it means that lives will be lost and huge expenses will be incurred.

So that is the point. Let me just finish the two further steps we need to take in public understanding and, I would say, in legislative understanding. Since we recognize that we have conducted climate changes, that it is real, that it is serious, that it is costly, and that something can be done, we have to figure out what those things are, and the new Apollo Energy Act of the last Congress that we will get in shape for this Congress will give you some of those ideas. I think. But then we have to convince ourselves that it is worth doing these things, that the benefits will be greater than the cost.

To do that, I can assure you the cost will be great. But even more, we can make this a winner by stopping climate change, and we are in the best position in the world of all countries to do that. because we have set the pattern for energy use for a century, and we can set the pattern for the coming century.

We are behind other countries, are doing more, we are buying windmills from Europe, not the United States, just to give one example, but we can go on and on. We could take the lead, and I can assure you, I can assure the gentleman from Washington, and anyone else, that it will be better to sell these to the world than to buy them, and there is going to be a huge market for alternative sustainable technologies.

Mr. INSLEE. That point of being able to sell American technology to the world, I want to mention two companies, their CEOs I have talked to in the last month. One I talked to this morning is called Greenpoint Energy. It is a company in Boston that has developed a way to take coal and to process it into a small gas, that is, you can burn gas in a way that eliminates the mercury emissions that typically come out of a coal stack, eliminates the sulfurous dioxide that comes out of a smokestack and most importantly reduces carbon dioxide, the global warming gas by 60 to 65 percent.

Now, when I asked this young entrepreneur, who formerly did very well in the software industry, and is now into energy, what he saw as the future of this, he said it is unlimited. The reason it is unlimited is that we can take this technology that we build here, we can build these plants and sell them to China.

China is building one dirty coal plant a week, a 500-megawatt coal plant a week in China, which is creating massive CO_{2} contributing to global warming. Here is a company right now, they have got 25 employees right now, and it is only a few thousand at some point when we start selling this technology to the Chinese.

Another company called Nanosolar in Silicon Valley, California, they developed a way to make solar cells using a thin cell material that can increase the efficiency, or at least decrease the cost at least by 40 to 50 percent of solar energy, using a thin cell that is about 5 percent of the current thickness of a silicon-based solar cell. They want to sell this technology when we develop it. We have the first 450-megawatt capacity plant they are building right now, as we speak tonight. They want to start selling these around the world.

So here is a tremendous opportunity for America to reverse our balance-of-payments problem and start selling things to the world rather than buying them.

Mr. HOLT. The Chinese will be buying technology. There is no question. They would prefer not to pollute their skies. They are trying to clean up for the Olympics; but they are growing fast, they need the power, they would welcome cleaner power. As evidence of that, I would say that their auto fleet is already more efficient than ours.

Because the technology is available, that is what they are buying. It would apply across the board in energy technologies: China, Southeast Asia, India, yes, and Europe.

The gentleman from Washington spoke about American ingenuity. You know we in Jersey call it Yankee ingenuity. It is the new wave from Southern States or Western States. That is what it was known as, or good old American know-how. We can do it.

The new Apollo Energy legislation that I joined the gentleman in the last Congress, talked about incentives, demonstration projects and investments and research and development. They are, indeed, investments that would pay off big.

Mr. INSLEE. You mentioned transportation. I just want to note what I consider to be a very exciting development in the last 7 days in this country in transportation. I want to yield to a real leader in there, Mr. BLUMENAUER.

But when it comes to cars, we have not improved the efficiency of our cars in 25 years. We get less mileage today in our cars than we did 25 years ago. But in the last 30 days something very dramatic happened in the auto industry.

General Motors announced that they were going to start developing a plug-in vehicle in the next 5 years where you can go home at night, plug in your car, charge your batteries off your electrical grid from one to two cents, effectively, plug-ins are not spending ten to fifteen. For one to two cents a mile off the grid, you can run your car for, we hope, for the first 20 miles. Then after you run out of juice, if you drive more than 20 miles, and 60 percent of our trips a day are less than 20 miles, but if you go more than 20 miles then you start burning either the gas or the ethanol that you got from corn and soybeans and rye grass. You have a flex-fuel vehicle, you plug it in at night, you are off to the races. That is the first.

The second thing is the Department of Energy last week issued a study which concluded that there is enough energy-generating capacity in the United States, excuse me, it was a Pacific Northwest laboratory out in Washington State, actually, an arm of the Department of Energy. They concluded there was enough electrical generating capacity today to fuel 85 percent of our cars and trucks using a plug-in battery system and not build a single new generating plant.

In other words, we could fuel 85 percent of all of our cars once we get a plug-in battery system developed without building a single new dirty plant coal or even a clean coal, for that matter, because you have all of this excess capacity at night that is sitting there that we don’t use. We have all these plants that just sit there unused at night. We can use them to charge our cars. These are two very exciting developments.

If Congress acts to move these subsidies away from the oil and gas industry, as Speaker PELOSI pledged to do today, and move them into support for these new businesses and consumers to get the new end higher energy.

I want to yield to Mr. EARL BLUMENAUER, who has been a real leader in trying to bring transportation, particularly public transit which is a very effective way of reducing our pollution and making our transportation more efficient.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. I appreciate your courtesy, Mr. INSLEE, in permitting me to speak on this. I appreciate you continued that you are spot-lighting issues of global warming, energy efficiency, and the difference it will make for Americans across the country.

I too was impressed today with the clear, articulate vision set forth by our new Speaker, NANCY PELOSI, reemphasizing the commitment that the Democratic leadership and our caucus has to deal meaningfully with problems of global warming, energy independence and efficiency.

Having an opportunity this evening to focus on this is important because for the first time in a dozen years we won’t just be talking about this. We have legislative leadership that is committed to action, to dealing with the redirection of vast subsidies that have been given to people who need them the least, and, instead, rationalizing investments in areas that you have championed with alternative energy, wind, solar, biomass and, particularly, conservation.

You are right, tracking the problems of transportation is central to dealing with greenhouse gases, global warming and our alarming dependence on oil imported from increasingly unstable areas of the world.

I appreciate the conversation that you and Mr. HOLT have had about the positive impact, the President and the Republican leadership in the last half dozen years have been baring their teeth with problems of global warming, climate change, energy conservation because of the economic disruption.

You have cited examples from our Pacific Northwest where there are entrepreneurs ready to go, rolling up their sleeves, with things that will make a difference, creating jobs in this country, that will, in fact, conserve resources and save money.

Our ability to invest in wise, diverse transportation choices for the American public has the opportunity to put money in the pockets of Americans while it fights greenhouse gas. We consume approximately 10 percent of the world’s petroleum supply each year driving our SUVs to work and back. The commitment to make sure that the Arctic wildlife refuge is the last place we drill, not the next, that makes common sense to conservation more available to Americans, and unlocks the economic potential of a whole array of new technologies and products.
I look forward to continuing our conversation here over the next few minutes. I, personally, am committed to continuing, as I have in both of your districts in the past. I know you both have constituents that are concerned about transportation choices. This Congress could make things possible, to do something to provide equity, for instance, for cyclists, people who burn calories instead of petroleum, but are treated differently in our Tax Code for their commuting costs, for instance. I look forward to working with you to make these a reality and make a difference to enhance the planet, protect our national security and put money in the pockets of the American taxpayer.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. HOLT. If the gentleman would yield, I would like to elaborate on a point that Mr. BLUMENAUER made about transportation. Not only do we use a lot of energy going to and from work, we waste a lot of energy that no one wants, because of its commuting costs. There are some parts of the country, we certainly see it in my State of New Jersey, where an enormous amount of energy is lost. And if we could avoid that congestion, it would make everyone more productive and get more done, at a sense of savings, but it would remove the aggravation.

Well, it is a whole lot easier to move electronics than it is to move chunks of metal. Smart transportation systems that take account of where the traffic is and where it can go, and compute in real time where you should go, rather than you running a car-sized computer system where you are trying this and you are trying that and you have got a million cars in this computer system in real-time trying to figure out the best routes. You can do that with smart transportation system cheap, relatively, save energy, save money, save aggravation. That is just one example of what is possible with smart transportation systems.

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. HOLT would yield. Mr. HOLT is talking about a point that Mr. BLUMENAUER made about transportation. have four plants being built now, both soy diesel and corn-based ethanol within our radius of 25 miles of our major community of Toledo, and in fact, some of them right in Toledo.

And I wanted to just take a few minutes, if I may, and I thank Congressman BLUMENAUER and Congressman HOLT. These gentlemen who are with us tonight are really the new age energy thinkers for our country, and I am really so happy to join you on this first night that we are here together.

And I just wanted to put on the record some interesting information that I have been sharing in the committees that I serve on. This particular chart talks about total petroleum consumption in our country, and looks at the growing share of imported petroleum as a percentage of everything that we consume.

And of course, since the beginning of the Obama administration, America is consuming one billion more barrels of oil per year, largely imported. Imports now constitute nearly three-quarters of what we use in this economy. Americans need to understand that. And after a period of time, from the beginning of the 90s, the share of imports has just risen until where now it comprises a majority of what we consume. This is a diminishing resource. Actually it is a dirty resource.

And I wish to place on the record tonight an article that was in The Financial Times back in December that lists the major companies in the world that are privately held. And I won't read the whole list tonight, except to say, of the top 20 companies, three-quarters are all oil companies and they are not based in the United States. So all this money that the United States is spending on an imported product could be invested here at home in the new technologies that these fine gentlemen and I are talking about tonight.

Just to give you an idea, Saudi Aramco is number one on the list. Its value, estimated market value, is three-quarters of $1 trillion. $701 billion. And of course, Saudi Arabia has been a very important back up supplier to our country. I wish it were not so, but we have become very addicted to that supplier.

Petroleos Mexicanos, that oil and gas company worth $415 billion, our hard earned dollars flowing to that privately held company. I won't go through all of them, but the next, Number 3 on the list, and the gentleman discussed Latin America, is Venezuelan Petroleum, valued at $388 billion.

Go down to Kuwait Petroleum, Number 4, $378 billion. Malaysian Petroleum, $232 billion. The idea is you go down and then you get into the companies financing this import, such as the Carlisle Group which has moved up now at $71 billion to Number 22 on the list. So I would like to submit this to the RECORD. The top three-quarters of these companies, the top 20 largest privately held companies in the world are all oil and gas. I wanted to make sure this was placed on the RECORD tonight, and to say that as the author of the first title in any farm bill in American history, a biofuels title, Title IX, we have been incentivizing at a very small level, about $23 million, not billion, $23 million dollars a year, efforts to try to help agriculturalists across this country own the future. It has been such a fight. And I heard the gentleman saying earlier this evening, finally, I think Mr. BLUMENAUER said, after 12 years, we finally have a chance to uncorck this really developing answer for our Nation. And we hope that with the new farm bill and with the leadership of Congressman Colin Peterson, who is the right man at the right time in the right committee in the right country, from the Red River Valley of Minnesota, in the farm bill that will be produced this year, that we will be able to piece together the solutions that we know exist.

Ms. KAPTUR. I will attest and sort of end with this. In our district today, Dr. Al Campaan, the head of Physics at the University of Toledo, has a solar-powered house from equipment made in Toledo. He takes his truck, with six batteries home, maybe eight, every night. He drives it from the university back home and he plugs it into his house. The technology exists in Toledo, Ohio. He drives it the next morning, a fully charged truck, back into the University of Toledo.

As we move to develop the technology of future, I would just recommend to those who are listening tonight, here in the Chamber and elsewhere, a wonderful book by a former decorated CIA agent, Robert Baur, for whom I have great admiration. He retired. He is in his 50s. We have probably had no better human intelligence officer throughout the Middle East and Central Asia. He wrote a book, Sleeping with the Devil.

When I read that book, I thought I have to meet this man, because he is speaking my language. The life he lived is very different than the life that we have lived, but he looked the problem straight in the eye. The subtitle of the book is: "Washington Became Addicted to Saudi Crude."

And I think it is important to note that the American people know this. They want us to do something. They want us to help transform the country. And I thank all my dear colleagues for allowing me these few minutes on the floor this evening. I was not intending to come here, but you have hit sort of the bull's eye of what this Member of Congress has been involved in for several years, and you could not be on a more important job creation, environmentally right set of initiatives for this country, and it will be a joy to be here working with you on this.

Mr. INSLEE. We appreciate the gentlewoman from the State of Ohio. We know the State of Ohio is going to do some great work on energy under the leadership of the new governor, Ted Strickland, who is committed to this agenda. And he would have been here tonight, but he is serving as governor, or will be in about a week.

I want to make two comments on the transition to a biofuels economy in the United States. First off, some people have said, well, we should not use fiber or plants for fuel. We have to use it only for food. I want to point out the fallacy of that argument. Right now we are exporting an enormous percentage of the foodstuffs we grow. We send it around the world and they send us the cash. What do we do? We take the cash and send it to Saudi Arabia.

Let us cut out the middleman. Let us grow our own. This is the time to grow our own. We are sending it all over the world and then sending the cash to Riyadh and Saudi Arabia. Let us keep it right here. Let us grow our own fuel.

By the way, this is no pie in the sky. The Department of Agriculture has concluded we could have 30 percent of our fuel easily in the next 20 years, easily, using very conservative efforts. This is a very achievable goal.

The second point I want to make is that this may happen eventually without Congress’s help, but it will be too late. Brazil took 30 years to make this transition to an energy independent condition using their biofuels. They use sugar cane there. They took 30 years. We do not have 30 years to wait. We have to do this. By the way, by the middle of the night, we have trouble with global climate change tonight, and we have trouble with a loss of a manufacturing base in America tonight. We do not have 30 years. So we need to act and we need to act now that this is going on, not just Congresses and the current administration have not done.

Let me just mention three of them. Number one, they have not given loan guarantee assistance to get some of these plants going. The first cellulosic plant in the world, commercial cellulosic plant in the world is a company called Logen. They are ready to build a plant. They have contracts with 300 farmers to grow a plant using the leavings of wheat to use cellulosic ethanol in Idaho, but they can not get the loan guarantee to get the job done.

We want to get that job done and get that plant up and running in Idaho. And this is going to be three or four more times effective per acre with increasing profits to farmers as a consequence.

Second, to give Americans this freedom to choose what fuel to use, they have to have cars that burn both gasoline and diesel and, frankly, the industry has not been willing to do that. So we need to have some requirement to make sure that they make cars that burn gasoline or ethanol. They make a car for less than $100 to burn either one, so it is basically nothing to the manufacturer to require that to be done. Now, they say they are going to do more of them in years, but we do not have years.

Third, we need the pumps that pump either gasoline or ethanol made from midwest corn or wheat or cellulosic. But the folks in Brazil will tell you that companies do not like putting those pumps in, because now you’re competing with their gas and oil. They have a monopoly on gas and oil, and they are not crazy about putting in a pump that competes with them.

So we are going to need to require that Americans be given a choice in pumps. Maybe we start by saying 10 percent of the stations have to have an alternative pump of ethanol, if you have 25 stations. We do not want the moms and pops that have to do this, if they cannot afford it. But if you have a big chain, why not have 10 percent of your stations put an ethanol pump so Americans can have that choice.

We took the first step in this journey tonight when Speaker Pelosi said we are going to start making a shift from giveaways to towards these new clean energy futures, and I am looking forward to making progress.

And I yield to Mr. Blumenauer.

Mr. Blumenauer. Thank you. And I am intrigued with the conversation, the way that it is going at this point.

We talked a moment ago about giving Americans more choices as to how they transport themselves. We can avoid the disastrous policies of this administration and the past congressional leadership of picking winners and losers and picking the wrong ones to win.

What you have described I have seen in my own State. There are people going gung ho in terms of biomass, in terms of wave energy, and technology that is emerging around the country in colleges and universities, in small businesses and large to take advantage of the opportunity.

If we just level the playing field, if we shift the massive subsidies away from those that do not need it and do not deserve it, and help level the playing field for these emerging technologies dealing with biomass from any of a variety of fuel stocks, dealing with electrical, solar, wind, wave, if we level the playing field, if we give them a fair and predictable tax treatment, which we do not do now, we can take these subsidies that are frankly not buying us anything.

It was interesting, the report that was suppressed by the administration for a year, that revealed we actually would have done more for energy supplies in this country, rather than lavishing tax breaks on the most profitable corporations in the world, the oil companies, selling the most profitable product, oil and gas, we would have been farther ahead just buying it up.

By our redirecting these investments, we can help this nascent technology grow around the country and we can have use of the potential of making a difference and allowing the free market to work after we level the playing field, after we enable them.

As you indicated, we are probably going to need to have some rules of the game to be able to jump-start these markets. But I really appreciate what you are talking about here.

I was in over a dozen States this last fall working on behalf of a number of our new colleagues, including in Ohio. I am intrigued that they to a person are concerned about global warming, to a person they understand before they become Members of this body what you are talking about here, and it makes me think that we have a real opportunity to tap some creative energy in this body to finally, as I say, stop talking about it and actually do something.

Mr. Inslee. I would like to note that when Mr. Blumenauer talks about leveling the playing field, I think that is very, very important. Because when you look at these entrepreneurs, small businessmen and women that maybe have 10, 15, or 20 employees who are looking at their garage or a little warehouse they have rented somewhere and they are developing some new way. For instance, there is a company called Fiber Forge in Colorado, they are developing a new way to use composites to build the body of an automobile that can be four times stronger than steel and weigh 30 to 40 percent as much.

Now, the challenge in doing this, we are building a composite airplane, the first one, the Boeing 787. The challenge is how do you do that quickly in mass manufacturing, because it takes a lot of hand labor right now. Well, here is a little company called Fiber Forge and they are doing a way to manufacture this using mass production methods that will decrease the cost so you can build cars someday, the body of a car, out of composites that are stronger and weighs about half as much. Do not hold me to that exact number, but significantly less. But they are not getting subsidies, tax breaks, or help, whereas the giant oil companies of the world are getting those huge tax write-offs given to them by Congress.

I want to mention two other subsidies the oil and gas companies have that these new competitor businesses do not have. Subsidy number one. Probably a third of our defense budget is dedicated to the protection of our oil lanes to protect the oil these companies get and then sell to us at $3 or $2.50 a gallon. That is a multibillion dollar subsidy to the oil and gas industry that solar, wind, biofuels, clean coal so we can do it all and we do not get that subsidy at all. That is number one.

Subsidy number two. The solar people, the wind people, the clean coal people, the wave power people, the transit people, people who do not put carbon dioxide in the air, they are competing with a company that is using the atmosphere as a free dump. The oil and gas companies today, and those using dirty coal today, are using the atmosphere as a free dumping ground to put their carbon dioxide in and they are not paying a penny for it. These other business people do not have that subsidy.

We have to do something about that so that there is some cost associated with using the air we breathe as a private dumping facility. When you go to the garbage dump now it costs us $25 but you can dump anything, not just your pickup into the dump, but these industries can put it into our air for free.
Now, we fixed that with sulfur dioxide and we fixed that with nitrous oxide, we have a cap and trade system, but there is a giant loophole, a giant loophole that these companies use for carbon dioxide. It is the most serious pollutant in the world today, but there is a bill in our laws that does not impose any cost associated with putting that pollutant into our atmosphere. That needs to get fixed as well.

Now, we are going to have a long discussion about the best way to do that, but we have to do it.

Those who came before us were on this track but got derailed from it. In the early part of the 20th century, in our district, we had a car that was kind of famous called the Clyde car. It was built by the Clyde Bicycle Works, and it was built around 1898 or 1902, somewhere, there's a Clyde. Get this Clyde, look and you look at the steering wheel and it has two levers on it. One lever is for alcohol-based fuel. You know, they knew how to build stills back then. And the other is for petroleum-based fuel. And people are still amazed to open the trunk of the car and see two different fuel tanks and think, my gosh, how did we move from that, which was what the gentleman was talking about, choice at the pumps and choice of vehicles, and where we are today. Because certain people made certain choices. I just mention that particular example and say that as our industries and our small businesses try to bring up these new technologies, what the gentlemen are saying tonight, Mr. INSLEE, Mr. HOLT, about financing and the tax aspects of this, if one on the Agriculture Committee. It is amazing that we may not know, in terms of row crop production, how to get the most yield out of a carbohydrate-based plant and a planting system that does the least damage to the atmosphere and yields the most combustible product.

For example, everyone is into ethanol from corn because we have subsidized corn up to here. But what about beans that have more oil? What about canola? What about castor? We stopped growing castor beans because of the by-product of ricin. But could we bio-generically take ricin out of castor beans and make an alternative? We have got to do the science of planting, and we are just at the beginning of that age. We only have a glimpse of what that could be like. This is a major area for research where we could make a huge difference.

Mr. INSLEE. I just want to comment on this. I think basically a way to say this is that our current biofuels economy, which is very productive, and I believe is at least a small improvement on net CO₂, is really a first generation of biofuels. We have a second and third generation that are very close to coming.

One of them is this cellulosic ethanol that I have talked about. There is a company called Logen, there are several other companies doing this, to use a cellulosic method in an enhanced way of breaking open the cell to get at the carbohydrates. When we do this, this second generation of biofuels is really going to kick in and make this competitive.

I want to mention one thing before I yield to Mr. HOLT, and that is we have just Democrats participating in this discussion. But our fellow Republicans are also involved in this discussion. I have listened to some of our Republican colleagues, developing a bill to try to enhance this second generation of ethanol.

We do want to make this, and believe we can make this, a bipartisan effort now that we have a huge difference. I yield to Mr. HOLT, Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. For years, ethanol was dismissed as a net energy loser. It cost more energy to grow the crops and ferment them and produce useful fuel; it took more fuel than it provided. It was a net energy user. So it was easy to dismiss that and not invest much money in distribution systems and so forth.

But then, because there were not distribution systems, there was not much motivation to develop more efficient catalytic processes, to work with the waste, as you would be doing with cellulosic ethanol, for example. It really was if we may make a metaphor here, a chicken and egg problem, and we need to step in.

This is the sort of thing that the government can do at low cost without picking winners and losers by actually providing more choice, by making it possible for people to distribute the fuel as the new technology makes it economical and efficient to produce that fuel. It is a matter of investment in research and investment in infrastructure. Some of this is done through demonstration projects, some of it is done through direct investment of research and development. We can break out of this self-defeating chicken and egg cycle, or chicken and egg restriction.

Mr. INSLEE. I want to note too, as we do that, we want to do it in a way that is fiscally responsible. One of the things we have done is to pay for these things by repealing some of these tax breaks that have gone to the oil and gas companies, and then shifting them over to these investments, to do this in a fiscally responsible way.

We also want to do it in a way that helps businesses rather than hurts them. Some of the incentive programs that have been done in the past have been done in a way to ensure their failure.

For instance, some previous Congresses have been in the terrible habit when they do tax incentives that are intended to help businesses grow, they have done it for one year at a time or two years at a time to capitalists, and I have talked to many of them, say we are not going to make multibillion dollar investments, realizing the rug can be pulled out from under us.

That has been done because Congress has tried to hide the deficit, so they have tried to make these things seem like they are short term.

We only have about two more minutes, I would just like to say to anyone who has a closing comment.

Mr. BLUMENAUER. If I could briefly comment. I appreciate what you have each indicated in terms of the new generation of dealing with biofuels. I think that is an example of how we move forward.

You are absolutely right in terms of being able to zero in on the research, to squeeze out of this, to have tax incentives that are uniform, predictable and deal with the second and third generation of ethanol development and dealing with what might happen in terms of unlocking the power of biology here.
I have been struck by how there are many opportunities for us in the new farm bill to redirect, what is it, $23 billion of subsidy at this point that flows increasingly to a very small number of farmers, often corporate farms or large ones in a small limited area in a small, limited neighborhood. We have the opportunity to unlock that, help farmers with their energy production, allow more farmers into it and find out how we unlock the power of this ingenuity.

Mr. INSLEE. We just have a few seconds, I would like to just make a closing comment.

First, I would thank my colleagues and say that I really do believe this is a historic moment for the industrial base and agricultural base of America, which is today’s date, to start to move to a new base away from just a dirty fossil fuel-based system to a clean energy system. We are starting to do this starting today. We are going to join Republicans, hopefully, in finding a bipartisanship way to do it.

We can tell people that the genius of Americans is in these new wind sources, wind turbines, solar cells, transit, flex-fuel vehicles, plug-in vehicles, cellulosic ethanol, wave power, geothermal, fuel efficient appliances, energy efficient homes; this job is going to get done by a new Congress and it is a bright day for the country.

THE OFFICIAL TRUTH SQUAD

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BOUCHER). The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. PRICE) is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate once again the opportunity to come to the floor of the House, and I am pleased to do it on the first day of the 110th Congress. It is an exciting day, a historic day.

I want to thank the leadership for allowing the opportunity to host an hour of the Official Truth Squad. We started this 2 years ago, and did so because there were many of us who were concerned about the fact that on the floor of the House oftentimes the words that were spoken and the presentations made oftentimes bore little resemblance to the truth. So we began 2 years ago to institute the Official Truth Squad, to try to come to the floor like this every so often and try to do it once a week to bring light to issues of concern to the American people.

Today is no different. This is a historic day, the first day of the 110th Congress. It was an exciting day. The first day is always exciting. It is full of families and celebration and children on the floor of the House sharing the remarkable experiences of Members being sworn in, oftentimes new Members, of which we have today. Mr. Speaker, as you know, over 50 new Members in the House of Representatives. So it is an important occasion.

We heard a lot of discussion leading up to today, and that discussion was culminated in November by a vote by the American people, and the American people voted and changed the majorities in the House of Representatives. And in terms of the American people’s decision, it was the right decision for them because it was the decision that they made at the polls. It was important for us, it is important for all of us to appreciate that, yes, they did, the American people spoke.

I think one of the things that they said is that they want a different process here. They were tired of some of the things that had gone on here in the past, so they spoke and said a different process is needed.

Many of my friends on the other side of the aisle, Mr. Speaker, as you well know, talked as we led up to the November elections about the need for civility in Congress, which we believe wholeheartedly, about the need for improvement, with what we would like to have in our system of government, openness, and then fiscal responsibility, kind of three tenets that they brought to the American people. I would concur with each and every one of those.

I would suggest, Mr. Speaker, that those principles by the now-majority party ought to last longer than one day of speeches. So we have some concerns about what we heard some dictators already, and we would like to share some of those with the American people as we are presenting things to the House of Representatives this evening.

Now, in pointing these out, the purpose is not to say how good it was when we were in the majority, because it can always be better. As many of us talked in the election process, the campaign process, we talked about the kinds of improvements, with what we would like to see. The purpose is to shed light on both word and deed, and it is important, because what folks say and what they do, it is important for the American people to know that those two things are the same.

In our system of government, we have elections where people go to the polls and vote. They vote based on a lot of things, but probably most importantly they base their vote on the fact that they believe that the person that they voted for and what they said they were going to do was in fact what they were going to do. So when individuals say things that they are going to do once they are in office and then they break those promises, then it is important for people to be held accountable. The American people do that time and again.

It is also important as a Member of the minority party for us to hold the majority party accountable. One of the responsibilities we have in our dynamic form of government is to hold them accountable, and we do this as a matter of principle. It is a matter of principle, and we believe it is a matter of principle that elected officials ought to be held accountable for not just what they say, but also what they do.

To that end, I would like to share, Mr. Speaker, some quotes. We are going to talk a fair amount tonight about what individuals have said in the past, oftentimes the recent past, and what we have some concerns with in terms of their action.

This first quote is from the “Declaration on Honest Leadership and Open Government,” which was one of the Democrat Party’s publications that they had prior to the election. The quote there is from the now-Speaker. It says: “Our goal is to restore accountability and honesty at all levels of government.” It is a noble goal. It is a noble goal. We would agree with that. It is just important that when one says that that is your goal and that is your purpose that, in fact, you comply with that.

The Washington Post on December 17, 2006, said Speaker PELOSI is determined to try to return the House to what it was in an earlier era “where you debated ideas and listened to each other’s arguments.” Where you debated and listened to each other’s arguments. That is important as we go through the process of what is of concern to many of us here in the House of Representatives about how the process is already being implemented.

This is a quote from July of 2005 from Representative RAINFOREST EMANUEL, now the chairman of the Democrat Caucus, and he voiced some frustration about the inability to have either an amendment or a vote on the floor. He said, “Let us have an up and down vote. Don’t be scared. Don’t hide behind some little rule. Come on out here. Put it on the table and let us have a vote. Don’t hide behind the rule. If this is what you want to do, let us have an up and down vote.”

It is important to remember that the purpose of that was to say that every Member of the House of Representatives ought to have the opportunity to in fact offer amendments and have their opportunity for people to say, yes, I agree with you and your amendment or your bill, or, no, I don’t.

Here is a quote from Representative STENY HOYER, now the majority leader, in October of 2005. The one that I would like to highlight here is a quote where he said these provisions are an outrage, talking about the rules that were in place: “These provisions are an outrage and this process is an outrage. As one Member of this body complained, once again the vast majority of Americans are having their representatives in Congress gagged by the closed rule committee.”

Now, we will talk a fair amount this evening about what a closed rule is and why Representative HOYER in October 2005 would have made that comment, saying that the representatives were being in effect disenfranchised in the House of Representatives.
This quote comes from our now Speaker, Speaker PELOSI, who, in a letter to then-Speaker DENNY HASTERT in October of 2006 said, and this is an important quote, because this is one of those promises that were made prior to the election and that I believe affected individual voters in this Nation about what they were going to do when they went to the polls in November.

This, again, is from now-Speaker PELOSI to then-Speaker HASTERT. And what this says is, More than two years ago, I first sent you Democratic proposals to restore civility to the Congress. I reiterate my support for these proposals today. We must restore bipartisanship to the administration of the House, reestablish regular order for considering legislation, and we will talk about what that means, and ensure the rights of the minority, whatever party is in the minority. Restore the rights of the minority, whichever party is in the minority. "The voice of every American has a right to be heard."

We would certainly concur with that. And, again, we will point out some of the concerns and disappointments that many of us have about the process that we had played out in place today.

This quote here, Mr. Speaker, is from a Washington Post article of January 2, 2007, 2 days ago. And it says, "As they prepare to take control of Congress this week and face up to the campaign pledges to restore bipartisanship and ethics rules are planned to largely sideline Republicans from the first burst of lawmaking. Instead of allowing Republicans to fully participate in deliberations as promised after the Democrats victory in the November 7 midterm elections, Democrats now say they will use House rules to prevent the opposition from offering alternative measures."

And so we think it is important for people to be held accountable for what they say and what they do. Mr. Speaker, as a matter of principle for people to do what they say they are going to do, especially elected officials.

So, Mr. Speaker, I place into the Record an article which appeared in The Washington Post on January 2 that included this quote, in addition to that an editorial which appeared in The Washington Post yesterday entitled, "A Fairer House, But Not Quite Yet."

"Democrats To Start Without GOP Input: QUICK PASSAGE OF FIRST BILLS SOUGHT

(From Lyndsey Layton and Juliet Eilperin) As they prepare to take control of Congress this week and face up to campaign pledges to restore bipartisanship and openness, Democrats are planning to largely sideline Republicans from the first burst of lawmaking.

House Democrats intend to pass a raft of popular measures as part of their well-publicized plan for the first 100 hours. They include tightening ethics rules for lawmakers, raising the minimum wage, reducing the interest on student loans. But instead of allowing Republicans to fully participate in deliberations, as promised after the Democratic victory in the Nov. 7 midterm elections, Democrats say they will use their majority to allow the opposition to offer alternative measures, assuring speedy passage of the bills and allowing their party to trumpet early victories.

Nancy Pelosi, the Californian who will become House speaker, and Steny H. Hoyer of Maryland, who will become majority leader, will calibrate the new order of the House in a flurry of conference calls and meetings with other party leaders. A few Democrats, worried that the party will be criticized for reneging on pledges, argued unsuccessfully that they should grant the Republicans greater latitude when the Congress convenes on Thursday.

The episode illustrates the dilemma facing the new party in power. The Democrats must demonstrate that they can break legislative gridlock and govern after 12 years in the minority, while honoring their pledge to make the 110th Congress a civil era in which Democratic and Republicans work together to solve the nation's problems. Hoping to pass laws key to their prospects for winning reelection and expanding their majority, the Democrats may have to resort to some of the same tough measures Republicans used in the past several years.

Democratic leaders say they are torn between giving Republicans a say in legislation and shutting them out to prevent them from derailing Democratic bills.

"There is going to be a tension there," said Rep. Chris Van Hollen (Md.), the new chairman of the Congressional Campaign Committee. "My sense is there's going to be a testing period to gauge to what extent the Republicans want to join us in a constructive effort or whether they intend to be disruptive. It's going to be a work in progress.

House Republicans have begun to complain that Democrats are backing away from their pledge to allow Republicans every possible opportunity to participate. They are working on their own strategy for the first 100 hours, and part of it is built on the idea that they might be able to break the Democrats' weaker majority by wooing away some conservative Democrats.

Democrats introduce their first bills within hours of taking the oath of office on Thursday. The first legislation will focus on the behavior of lawmakers, banning travel on corporate jets and requiring lawmakers to attach their names to special spending directives and to certify that such earmarks would not financially benefit the lawmaker or the lawmaker's spouse. That bill is aimed at bringing legislative transparency that Democrats said was lacking under Republican rule.

Democrats also are not going to allow Republican input into the ethics package and other early legislation, because several of the bills have already been debated and voted on in the Ethics Committee. Democrats are holding votes to raise the minimum wage, which passed the House Appropriations Committee in the 109th Congress, said Brendan Daly, a spokesman for Pelosi.

"We've talked about these things for more than a year," he said. "The members and the public know what we're voting on. So in the first 100 hours, we're going to pass these bills."

But because the details of the Democratic proposals have not been released, some language could be new. Daly said Democrats are still committed to sharing power with the minority down the line. "The test is not the first 100 hours, it's the first 6 months or the first year. We will do what we promised to do."

For clues about how the Democrats will operate, the spotlight is on the House, where the new 16-seat majority will hold absolute power over the way the chamber operates. Majority control over key House action is expected to stem from the House.

"It's in the nature of the House of Representatives for the majority to be dominant and control the agenda and limit as much as possible the influence of the minority," said Ross B. Baker, a political scientist at Rutgers University. "Almost counter to the essence of the place for the majority and minority to share responsibility for legislation."

In contrast, the Democrats will have less control over business because of their razor-thin 51-to-49-seat margin and because individual senators wield substantial power. Senate Democrats will allow Republicans to make amendments to all their initiatives, starting with the first measure — ethics and lobbying reform, said Jim Manley, spokesman for the incoming majority leader, Harry M. Reid (D-Nev.).

Some Democrats, who campaigned on the need for change, will kick off the new Congress with a closed meeting of all senators in the Capitol. Manley said the point of the meeting is to figure out ways both parties can work together.

In the House, Louise M. Slaughter (D-N.Y.), who will chair the Rules Committee, said she intends to bring openness to a committee that used to meet in the middle of the night. In the new Congress, the panel—which sets the terms of debate and how time is used on the floor—will convene at 10 a.m. before a roomful of reporters.

"It's going to be open," Slaughter said of the process. "Everybody will have an opportunity to participate."

At the same time, she added, the majority would grant Republicans every possible chance to alter legislation. That means Democrats will allow Republicans greater latitude when the Congress convenes on Thursday. The Democrats will allow Republicans to make amendments, not all of them, Slaughter said.

So for several reasons, House Democrats are assiduously trying to avoid some of the heavy-handed tactics they resented under GOP rule. They say they want to prove to voters they are setting a new tone on Capitol Hill. But they are also convinced that Republicans lost the midterms in part because they were perceived as too negative.

"We're going to make an impression one way or the other," said one Democratic leadership aide. "If it's not positive, we'll be out in three years."

"If they've got ideas that will make our legislation better, we ought to consider them," said Rep. Allen Boyd Jr. (D-Fla.), leader of the Blue Dogs. "But if their idea is to try to split a group off to gain power, that's what they've been doing for the past 6 years."

To keep her sometimes-fractious coalition together, Pelosi has been distributing the Republican leaders, who were only too happy to strong-arm and ignore Democrats when the GOP was in the majority, are now, of course, moaning about being abused. In a nice bit of irony, columnist George Will today wrote that Ms. Pelosi’s own “Minority Bill of Rights” from 2004, which would provide, for among other things, “open, full and fair debate consisting of a full amendment process,” is something that Democrats say they’ll adhere to once in the majority. But if they don’t reconsider, they will set an unfortunate precedent that fairness will be offered on sufferance, when the majority is willing to renege on it as a matter of principle. That would not be a good start for the 110th Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased tonight to be joined in our discussion about truthfulness and our discussion about keeping promises and our discussion about the rules process by a couple of my colleagues, and others may join. And I would like to ask first for a comment or two from Congressman McHenry from North Carolina.

Congressman McHenry is an individual that came to Congress with me after the 2004 election, and has shown just great perspective and great work ethic in making certain that he understands and appreciates all of the nuances of the process. In fact, he has championed ethics reform in this House. And so I thank you so much for joining us tonight for the Official Truth Squad and look forward to your comments on the ethics that we have seen, and also on the minority bill of rights that we have co-authored together.

Mr. McHenry. Thank you, Congressman Price. I appreciate your leadership, friendship, and support in our first term in Congress and as we begin our second. And I appreciate you pulling together the Official Truth Squad and taking this from an idea and actually making it into reality. After all, that is what this legislative process and indeed the Representatives is all about, is taking an idea, a powerful idea and making it happen for the American people.

To that end, the Official Truth Squad is here to make sure that the American people know what happens here in these hallowed halls of Congress. And I think it is important, what you point out today from the Democrat leaders’ words and actions on their opening day and the lead-up to taking control of this new Congress. It is indeed a new day here, and the American people know that. And I think what the American people see is that the Democrats worked very hard in the campaign and were rewarded by taking control of this wonderful Congress of us, the people’s House, and they campaigned on a number of things. But one of the key tenets and key principles upon which they ran their campaigns and the rhetoric they used during the campaign was about openness, honesty, and fairness.

This openness idea, it is a wonderful thing to talk about and I think it is something that I stand for and I know my colleague from Georgia does as well, and we have worked very hard during our times in public service to provide this for the American people. But it was their number one tenant in the campaign, their number one principle: Openness.

Well, on the opening day of Congress, we were hoping as the new minority that this new Democrat majority would ensure openness and fairness. And what the Pelosi minority bill of rights is, in essence, is what all fifth graders in America are taught: It is the legislative process that, when you file a bill in this House, it goes to committee or subcommittee, and it is heard, it is debated, it is amended, it is crafted, and there is compromise in the process. All sides, Democrats, Republicans, compromisers, moderates, liberals, they are all heard. And then it comes to this House floor, where it again goes through that very same process of compromise and input. What we want is what the Pelosi minority bill of rights is all about. And what we offered as the minority bill of rights and what we offered here on the House floor today with our two procedural votes today, was ensuring that these principles, that then minority leader NANCY PELOSI, now Speaker PELOSI, advocated just 3 years ago.

So what we offered was, in fact, the Pelosi minority bill of rights. It is not simply a Republican idea, it is actually the minority leader herself who advocated her ideas on the way this place should be governed. And when we offered it here on the floor, it was flatly rejected. So it became clear here on the opening day, the opening hours of this new Democratic majority, that they really advocated openness, that they really advocated closed process and they only want their ideas, their few ideas heard. They don’t want any input or any dissenting opinion.

The bottom line is that Speaker PELOSI thinks that Minority Leader PELOSI was wrong. I think some people call that hypocrisy, some call it ironic to campaign on that. I think it is ridiculous on the opening day of Congress, after a new majority is elected on openness, that they cram down the throats of all the Members of this House a closed rule that does not allow for input, does not allow for amendment, doesn’t allow for any input, and fair debate, on their opening day of their first act as a majority. That is what is so egregious about what we saw here on the House floor.

In fact, this type of abuse has never been seen before in the history of the U.S. House of Representatives, the idea that you put a rule out, a rule forward that closes it off on debate on an unknown bill. We can’t even see the text of the bills that they are offering in their 100-page proposal. They have closed it off from minority view. Simply because I have an “R” beside my name, they believe that I am not able to view it.
Well, I have got news for them. I have got news for this new Democrat majority. 140 million Americans voted for a Republican for U.S. Congress. They are not simply silencing a Member of Congress from North Carolina or a Member of Congress from Georgia; they are silencing the constituents who elected me. That is not fair. That is not openness. That is not a new way of operating. In fact, it is a very old way of operating that the Democrats used when they were in the majority before. So I am going to be the first day and be hopeful for a second day and a new beginning. We like second chances as Americans. Let’s give the Democrats a second chance for true openness, input, and dialogue in a bipartisan basis; not simply use it as a rhetorical device during the campaign, but to actually govern that way, to actually do it, make sure it happens here on this House floor, not for us as Members of Congress, but for our constituents and the American people.

As I mentioned before, the purpose of this rules package, as far as I can tell, was to de-legislate the American people. Mr. PRICE of Georgia. I appreciate those comments so much, because they really bring into focus and clarity exactly what happened today.

As I mentioned before, the purpose of this rules package, as far as I can tell, was to de-legislate the American people. Mr. PRICE of Georgia. I appreciate those comments so much, because they really bring into focus and clarity exactly what happened today.

The purpose is to say the promises that were made to the American people and decisions that the American people made upon those promises are not being followed. And when they are not being followed, what that means when it comes to rules, it means that the individuals who represent those 140 million people are not allowed a voice, which means in essence that those 140 million people have no voice in the House of Representatives as it relates to the rules that have been put in place.

I also think it is important to talk about the fact that it never happened before. And I am not trying to end this general sense by some that this is just business as usual. Well, it is not business as usual. And one of my colleagues who knows better than most, who understands and appreciates that, is my good friend from Georgia, fellow colleague from Georgia, Congressman GINGREY, who is a former member of the Rules Committee, who I think has a wonderful perspective on the rule that will enact bills in place on this floor of the House without any review by committee. You may buy anything for more than potentially, I guess the Speaker, and that may be it.

So, I am so pleased that you joined us this evening to talk about what is a closed rule within a closed rule and to talk about the ill effects and the consequences of that for the American people. I welcome my good friend, Congressman GINGREY.

Mr. GINGREY. I thank my colleague from Georgia (Dr. PRICE) for yielding, and I am happy to yield my friend from North Carolina (Mr. MCHenry), the two co-authors of the minority bill of rights. I am a proud co-sponsor of that, and I am proud of their ethics in regard to that.

And also, Mr. Speaker, let it be known to our colleagues that this Official Truth Squad of the former freshman Members, now sophomore Members, this is not something they just dream up tonight. This is something that they have been doing for the entire 109th Congress and putting some sunshine out there on a lot of these issues and shining that light of day, and this is, of course, part of a continuing process.

Dr. PRICE and Mr. MCHENRY are exactly right; I was enjoying very much being on that select powerful, powerful Rules Committee, and had that opportunity to go home and tell the folks back home that I am a member of the powerful Rules Committee. And as a member, many times I had an opportunity to hear the minority, the current chairman, Ms. SLAUGHTER, the vice chairman, Mr. McGovern, the senior members, Mr. Hastings and Ms. Matsui, talk about the process and talk about this idea, the appalling idea of a closed rule as Congressmen PRICE points out, and what they are doing in this rules of the House package that they are sort of forcing upon us in asking us to vote on with much less than 24-hour notice.

Just listen to some of the quotes of the former four minority members of the Rules Committee who are now running the show and driving this package that contains not one significant piece of legislation, but five pieces of legislation, including the minimum wage bill, the stem cell research bill, which indeed is truly life and death issues, the 9/11 Commission Report, completing the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission. I mean, these are not naming of post offices, Mr. Speaker and my colleagues. We all know that and we know the significance. But listen to what my colleagues would say and did say many times in regard to one piece of legislation.

First of all, let me quote Ms. SLAUGHTER: “If we want to foster democracy in this body, we should take the time and thoughtfulness to debate all major legislation under an open rule. Mr. Speaker, not just appropriations bills which are already restricted. An open process should be the norm and not the exception.” This is from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of June 14, 2005.

Listen to what my good friend, Mr. McGovern, had to say on September 28, 2006: “If the Republican leadership does not agree with bipartisan substitute, then they should defeat it on the House floor after a full and open debate. Instead, they cover behind procedural tricks, parliamentary sleight of hand and closed rules. No wonder the American people are so disgruntled with the Republican Congress. Bipartisan friends; I want this trend of closed rules, no amendments, no democracy in the House to continue, then by all means vote for this rule. Just go along to get along. But if you believe, as I do, that the monopoly on good ideas is not held by a few members of the leadership in a closed room, then vote ‘no.’ Have the guts to vote ‘no.’”

That was Representative Jim McGovern.

Listen to what our good friend, a senior member on the Rules Committee, Mr. ALCEE HASTINGS, had to say on September 28, 2006: “I have said it before and I will say it again today: the House is shameful. It is hypocritical, it is un-American, it is undemocratic, and it happens every single day that we have a closed rule. The American people are disgusted with the Republican majority. It is time for the American people to wake up to the fact that the principle of open public debate and the right of every American to know what is happening in the Congress and in government is being denied to the American people today by the Republican majority in the House.”

Mr. Speaker, I could go on, but I think you get my drift. They are doing exactly what they railed against us about. The righteous indignation that we heard on a continuing basis in the Rules Committee, and here they come with the rules of the House, and they have used it five pieces of legislation with no rules whatsoever. What do we get? A motion to recommit. Mr. MCHENRY. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman’s quotes are quite illuminating about the rhetoric that the Democrat Members used versus their actions on opening day. Your expertise on the Rules Committee is quite prescient.

There are three additional quotes that come to mind from earlier today. In the new Speaker’s speech today, her rare and elaborate radical, bold, without the agenda for this new Congress, she said three things that are of importance to what we are talking about here. She said first, respect for every American. That is about the rhetoric that the Democrat Members used versus their actions on opening day. Your expertise on the Rules Committee is quite prescient.

Those are wonderful things and wonderful ideals that this House should live up to. But as my colleague from Georgia said, it shouldn’t be simply a slogan; it should be reality. It should be the practice of this House to seek common ground to work for all of America, even... those that didn’t vote for the Democrat majority, all of America, and respect every voice, even if you have an “R” beside your name, respect for every idea that comes out of this place so that we can do what is best and right for America. It is not simply about process.

I think my colleague from Georgia said that very well. It is not about process. It is about the effects that that process have on public policy and the outcomes. If you rig the process, which I think there are countries around the world that rig their voting process, that is not true democracy. Fairness and openness, that is what brings about the best result for all of America. It is not about a Democrat idea or a Republican idea; it is about doing what is right on a bipartisan basis for the American people.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. I appreciate those comments, and I appreciate the comments of the gentleman from Georgi(a) (Mr. GINGREY).

I think it is appropriate now to ask my good friend, the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Ms. FOXX), to make some comments about civility. Congresswoman FOXX is a dear friend and has been a friend about the important place of discourse in this House of Representatives, has participated actively in the Official Truth Squad. I know you had some comments that you wanted to make about the level of civility and the importance of that in this House. Ms. FOXX. I want to thank you, Congressman Price, for bringing the Truth Squad back. It is unfortunate that we had to do it on the first day of session, but it was necessary to do that. As some folks know who may have seen us in the 109th Congress, and you know to me it seems like it was only yesterday we were here. It does not seem like a while ago.

We began the Official Truth Squad because the colleagues on the other side of the aisle were constantly saying things that we knew were not true, and we felt that somebody needed to respond to them. It fell to a group of primarily freshmen Members to form the Truth Squad, although we had great help from some of our colleagues, some of whom are here tonight, to talk about the truth.

Unfortunately, a lot of what our colleagues said in the 108th Congress, some of which was that were true, were believed by the American people, and they believed a lot of the things that they said that were not true about the economy, about things that were happening in the government; but they believed them on their promises of what they said they would do. They offered to make changes, and we know that there were some Republicans who didn’t do all they should have done, not just in the last Congress but in others. And it was the American people who held our feet to the fire on this. I think we came back here, though, with a very positive spirit and we all came in today knowing it was going to be a very historic day, but we were going to celebrate the very positive day that we have here.

All of us are very grateful for the wonderful opportunity to serve in the Congress of the United States, and we somehow feel that we were going to solve problems that all Americans face. We see that happening in our communities every day. We see Democrats and Republicans working together side by side in many different ways.

I marvel every time I go to a parade or to some fair or some event that is put on by a community and how the people have worked together to do that, very often without any support from any government body because they put aside political differences for the good of the community. That is obviously what we Republicans want to be happening in the 110th Congress.

We believe that the American people are united in their desire for peace and prosperity, not just Republicans who believed in problems, not partisan bickering that only creates deadlocks and no solutions.

Again, the people in our communities do that every day, and we looked forward to that promise of the new majority to restore the House to civility, to restore open debate so that ideas can be examined, always reviewed and respected. And as Leader Boehner said today in his speech, “May the best idea win.”

We are here to debate ideas. We want to put the best ideas out there and know that if we put our good ideas out there and get them up for a vote, many times they are going to win; and many times we are going to vote for the ideas that the Democrats bring up. But we should be united in a common goal, although they are different perspectives. All Members agree they should be able to voice their opinions on behalf of their constituents and that sent them here to represent them.

We are going to hold the Democrats accountable to their promises, just as the Truth Squad during the 109th Congress and in brought in the facts. And we are not going to compromise our ideals or principles, but we are going to do everything we can to make America better.

We want open debate on legislation. We want Members to be able to voice their opinions on behalf of their constituents, and the wonderful words and focus that you bring to the need for civility and appropriateness in terms of word and deed on the floor of the House and in actions throughout our careers as elected officials.

I am so pleased to be joined by another good friend and colleague from Tennessee, Congresswoman MARSHA BLACKBURN, who has participated actively in the Official Truth Squad. I greatly admire her from the wonderful words and focus that you bring to the need for civility and appropriateness in terms of word and deed on the floor of the House and in actions throughout our careers as elected officials.

As we are reminded again today, this House has been here for a long time and will be here for a long time to come. We want to make sure that it is strengthened and not weakened in what we do.

I don’t believe there was a direct mandate in this last election. Folks lost races and won races for lots of different reasons; but I do believe the American people want change in the way we operate.

As I said the other day in our conference, as I have heard the rhetoric and seen the actions of our Democratic colleagues, the North Carolina State motto kept going over and over in my head. The North Carolina State motto is “esse quam videri” which means: to be rather than to seem.

What we want to make sure is that our Democratic colleagues don’t try to pull the wool over the eyes of the American people by seeming rather than being. And what we have seen on the first day is the seeming rather than the being.

So we want to do what I think the American people want us to do, to find solutions to the problems we face. We don’t think that is going to be done behind closed doors and legislation ramrodded through here because of the majority. We don’t want Members stripped of the ability to address the solutions to the problems and principles of amendments. Those things don’t affect us individually as much as they affect our constituents.

So I am going to remind our colleagues over and over again of North Carolina’s motto and say to them we hold you to the principles of doing what you said you were going to do and being rather than seeming.

Again, I want to thank my colleague from Georgia for organizing the Truth Squad in the 110th Congress, and I look forward to working with you, although I hope we are not going to have to be here too many nights a week.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. I thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina and the wonderful words and focus that you bring to the need for civility and appropriateness in terms of word and deed on the floor of the House and in actions throughout our careers as elected officials.

As we are reminded again today, this House has been here for a long time and will be here for a long time to come. We want to make sure that it is strengthened and not weakened in what we do.

I don’t believe there was a direct mandate in this last election. Folks lost races and won races for lots of different reasons; but I do believe the American people want change in the way we operate.

As I said the other day in our conference, as I have heard the rhetoric and seen the actions of our Democratic colleagues, the North Carolina State motto kept going over and over in my head. The North Carolina State motto is “esse quam videri” which means: to be rather than to seem.

What we want to make sure is that our Democratic colleagues don’t try to pull the wool over the eyes of the American people by seeming rather than being. And what we have seen on the first day is the seeming rather than the being.

So we want to do what I think the American people want us to do, to find solutions to the problems we face. We don’t think that is going to be done behind closed doors and legislation ramrodded through here because of the majority. We don’t want Members stripped of the ability to address the solutions to the problems and principles of amendments. Those things don’t affect us individually as much as they affect our constituents.

So I am going to remind our colleagues over and over again of North Carolina’s motto and say to them we hold you to the principles of doing what you said you were going to do and being rather than seeming.

Again, I want to thank my colleague from Georgia for organizing the Truth Squad in the 110th Congress, and I look forward to working with you, although I hope we are not going to have to be here too many nights a week.

Mr. PRICE of Georgia. I thank the gentlewoman from North Carolina and the wonderful words and focus that you bring to the need for civility and appropriateness in terms of word and deed on the floor of the House and in actions throughout our careers as elected officials.
Now, I can tell you one thing for certain. I don’t know a lot, but one thing I do know is that the people of the Seventh District of Tennessee do not want to be forking over another $80 billion a year.

What they did vote for this November was to see government spending reduced, and that is where they want our emphasis to be. It is important that we spell this out for our constituents, for the American people, for them to know what is transpiring as we come into this 110th Congress.

Words are important and it is important that we provide the clarification that is there and that is needed. And as I have viewed the package that we have debated some today and will debate tomorrow, I have come to realize that one of the things our colleagues across the aisle, the Democrats, have said is that they want government that is more accountable. We want government that is more open. We want government that is more responsive to the needs of our constituents. We want government that is going to work more effectively and more efficiently for the American people.

And the very first vote that is taken on the rules package presented in the people’s House today is a vote that would eliminate recorded votes in the Rules Committee.

Now, in my great State of Tennessee, we have had this discussion, and in our general assembly in the great State of Tennessee, we have had this debate, and people said over and over again we want those votes recorded. We want sunshine. We want openness. And that is something that needs to be highlighted with our constituents. They need to realize the format that they are wanting to push forward would deny them the opportunity to hear, have their amendments heard in the Rules Committee. Dr. Gingrich has highlighted some of the provisions, and he does such a wonderful job with our Rules Committee and the concerns that we have with the format that would go before the Rules Committee that would deny recording some of these votes, which means there is less accountability. So it is our responsibility to come and highlight those things.

You know another thing that the people did not vote for this November was to raise their taxes. They did not go to the poll and vote saying, “Representatives, we want you to make it easier to raise the taxes on us.” And one of the things that we find with the PAYGO rules is that it is basically pay as you go on a spending spree. Even the Concord Coalition has estimated that this 100 hours would cost $300 billion over 10 years. That is $50 billion a year for 10 years, $80 billion a year additional, additional, new spending.

Mr. GINGREY. I thank the gentleman from Georgia for yielding and giving me an opportunity to talk about that a little bit because at the beginning of my remarks, I talked about the powerful Rules Committee. And, Mr. Speaker, it is a powerful Rules Committee in that you decide how long you can talk on an issue. That is, you limit the number of debates. You have the power to make amendments in order to give a Member on either side of the aisle, majority or minority, an opportunity to come and talk about their amendment on the floor. They may get beat 434–1, but they have that opportunity.

As an all powerful member of the Rules Committee, as Representative Price was just saying, all of a sudden, in this rules package, they are saying that one of these all powerful members can make these votes, can set this time of debate, can deny the amendment opportunity for Members on either side of the aisle and then not take a public vote, not take a roll call vote, and not go home and face their constituents, these all powerful members of the Rules Committee, not answer to their constituents for why they denied maybe a Member of their own party a good idea to debate on the House floor, this day.

And I am going to tell you the rhetorical question Dr. Price asked, was why would this new majority do this? I can offer a suggestion. They now, of course, have nine members. The four that were in the minority are now the majority including the chairman of the Rules Committee and the vice chairman of the Rules Committee, but they also have an additional five seats, which they are filling with some of their newly elected freshmen Democrats who can go home in these marginal districts, these red Bush districts, if you will, and say that I am an all powerful member of the Rules Committee, re-elect me, but yet not have to answer for these difficult decisions that they took probably in opposition to what their constituents would want them to do.

So I thank you for giving me the opportunity to explain the rhetorical question of why they might want to do that.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. And if the gentleman would yield, if my memory is correct, in 1995, when Speaker Gingrich and the House Republicans set the rules, that was at the time that they started recording those votes; is that not correct?

Mr. GINGREY. I think the gentlewoman from Tennessee is absolutely correct on that.

Mrs. BLACKBURN. And before that, the votes were not recorded and it was the process. That is why I say we are returning to the way we were, the way it was, when the way business was conducted from 1995 until now. And I think that is an important distinction for our constituents who have stopped us on the campaign trail and stopped us as we have prepared to come in and take our solemn oath of office today and have said we want to be certain that this Congress is going to function in an open, down or is closed, we use that term of the process of legislation. And when elections, but they trust the outcome people trust the outcome. but what it does do is it ensures that areas, I think you get a better product, and that process the people, has an opportunity to have important is because everybody that is an develops policy. And the reason it is imperative and has folks vote on it and say “yes” or “no,” they believe that is the case, that has never been brought to the results in the best work product that is available for a bill and for ultimately a law. And from the rumors that we hear, and we only hear rumors because we don’t have the legislative language, because we don’t have to do anything to be in that bill, but from the rumors that we hear, the heart of that bill will be a decrease in the kinds of medications that are available to the American people.

That may go into effect without anybody in this House of Representatives ever having an opportunity to affect that outcome.

Some on the majority side would say, well, it has been talked about for a long time. It was voted on, the Medicare prescription drug program was voted on in 2003, got a lot of hearings then. There were a lot of people that talked about it and voiced their opinion on it at that time. That is true, Mr. Speaker, but what hasn’t happened is that every single freshman Member of this House was duly elected in their districts and has a right, a right, under our system of government to have input into a bill that comes out of the House of Representatives. Every single freshman will have no input into that bill or into the as it relates to minimum wage, as it relates to stem cell research or anything else that was included in the rules package today. Never.

That has never been done, as my colleagues said before, never been done in the history, in the history of this Nation, to have that kind of substantive legislation dealt with in a way that does not allow that kind of input. Mr. Speaker, that kind of rule, that kind of process, which is difficult to get your arms around, but that kind of process, I would suggest to you, is an absolute abhorrence. Our job, on the minority side, is to hold people accountable for their actions and for their decisions.

It is important that the American people understand and appreciate that these decisions that were made on the very first day, which, by and large, are procedural issues, that are difficult to get folks interested in, but they not only set the tone for this Congress, but they also determine how we make major decisions that will affect the American people as it relates to their income, as it relates to their security, and as it relates to their health. Nothing, nothing could be more important.

Mr. Speaker, this is indeed a historic day. But it is also a day of concern. It is a day of concern, because what goes on here is extremely important. Within these walls we can effect change that will benefit citizens all across our Nation. We can also effect change that will harm citizens all across our Nation. If we work together, we will do much more of the former and very little of the latter.

I too close by just saying, Mr. Speaker, as I have said before, the challenges that we face in this Nation are huge. They are immense. But they are not Republican challenges, and they are not Democrat challenges. They are American challenges.

If we work together as a body of elected representatives from all across this wonderful and glorious Nation, we will come up with the best product, the best legislation, the best laws that will result in the most amount of benefit to our citizens all across this Nation. So I challenge, I challenge my Democrat colleagues to fulfill the promises that they made on the election, during the election campaign, to fulfill the promises that they made, to fulfill the promises that they made when they talked to citizens in their districts all across this Nation about openness and about civility and about fiscal responsibility. That challenge, that challenge making certain that you fulfill those promises is what will ring true to the American people.

I appreciate once again, Mr. Speaker, the opportunity to come to the floor tonight.

A NEW CONGRESS

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I appreciate everyone's courtesy. This is the first experience of mine to go through these procedures. It wasn't as smooth as clockwork, but with staff help it was smooth enough. So I very much appreciate everyone's cooperation as we look forward to this new Congress.

The future lies with those wise political leaders who realize that the great public is interested more in Government than in politics.

Franklin Roosevelt, 1940.

I have chosen this line to open this new session of the Senate because the wisdom it imparts is as relevant today as it was 67 years ago.

The future lies with those wise political leaders who realize that the great public is interested more in Government than in politics.

The American people are expecting positive results from this 110th Congress, not more partisan rancor. We stand today at the cusp of a new Congress, ready to write a new chapter in our country's great future. It is a time of hope and promise for our Nation. The elections are over, and the next Senate campaigns have yet to begin.

Today we are not candidates; we are U.S. Senators. We represent different people, we represent different political parties, but we share the same mission: keeping our country safe and providing a Government that allows people to enjoy the fruits and prosperity, and, of course, our economic freedom.

Last November, the voters sent us a message. They sent this message to Democrats and they sent this message to Republicans: The voters are upset with Congress and the partisan gridlock. The voters want a Government that focuses on their needs. The voters want change. Together, Democrats and Republicans must deliver that change.

No longer can we waste time here in the Capitol while America struggle to get ahead. No longer can we here in the Capitol to pass the problems of today to Congresses of tomorrow. Those problems, for example, are from keeping families safe to raising the minimum wage. Instituting new ethical reforms. We can and we must get to work.

As the new Congress begins, the challenges facing America are complex. They range from a contracted war in Iraq to health care here at home, from a middle class that is squeezed to an energy policy that is warming our globe, from a higher education system that has exploded in costs to jobs where benefits have all but disappeared. We Senators can make a difference in each of these areas if we remember we are here to fight for our country, not with each other.

The majority, my party, holds a very slim margin—51 to 49. Some may look at this as a composition for gridlock, a recipe for gridlock, but I see this as a unique opportunity. I guarantee everyone in this Chamber that the American people are hoping it is a unique opportunity—an opportunity for Democrats, an opportunity for Republicans—to debate our differences and seek common ground. We must turn the page on partisanship and usher in a new era of bipartisanship progress. How can we achieve progress? By doing things differently than they have been done in recent years.

One, we must—I repeat again and again—work together.

Second, we are going to have to work here in Washington, in the Senate, longer hours. Factory workers, shopkeepers, small businesses, and America's crisis right here—schoolteachers, police officers, miners, welders, and business men and women work at least 5 days a week. Shouldn't we be here in Washington, where we do our business, in this laboratory we call the Senate, do the same?

Three, we will achieve progress by working on an agenda that reflects not the needs of Democrats, not the needs of Republicans, but the needs of the people of this great country.

Today Democrats may be in charge of the Senate and the House of Representatives, but we in the Senate are committed to bipartisanship. We found that a one-party town simply doesn’t work. We know from experience that majorities come and they go. Majorities are very fragile, and majorities must work with minorities to make that lasting change.

In both in our U.S. Senate, nothing can be accomplished unless we reach across the aisle—not one way but both ways. It is because when our Founding Fathers created the Senate 219 years ago, they carved out a special place for the minority. See, the Framers of this Constitution knew that majorities can always take care of themselves. Majorities didn’t need help as defined in the Constitution. But this Constitution takes care of minorities because they can’t always take care of themselves. The Founding Fathers created an institution that protects this minority, and we will respect our Constitution and those protections.

I have talked with Senator Mitch McConnell, the senior Senator from the great State of Kentucky. He is the minority leader. He is my friend. In the months and years that go forward, we will become even closer because he has learned, and I have learned, through adversity we grow together. I am committed to working with him, and I know he is committed to working with me. We as Democrats are committed to working with Republicans and Republicans are committed to working with us.

Does this mean there are going to be no bumps in the road? Of course there will be bumps in the road. We are in the Senate. The Founding Fathers wanted bumps in the road.

This morning, at 9 o’clock in the Old Senate Chamber, we held a rare joint caucus. It was an opportunity for us to look across the rows at each other and understand that the Senate is a place where we have to work in a bipartisan fashion.

We in the majority, we Democrats, are committed to working with our President, President Bush. He has pledged to work with Democrats. He has pledged to me personally that he will be listening very closely to President Bush’s plan next week. The President’s plan must ensure that Iraq takes his plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week. The President’s plan next week.

As all my Democrats know, when I assumed the job as Democratic leader, I told every ranking member that those commitments and I was going to let them function, and I have done that for 2 years. Now there is going to be more time for them to produce legislation. They are no longer ranking members, they are Chairs, but they work with their ranking members.

Our committees will have the time to do a number of tasks, but the one item they need to do is conduct strong oversight. In the Armed Services Committee, Oversight is good. It is important to find out what Federal agencies are doing, to listen to what the people who work there have to say. Congressional oversight is a responsibility that has been abdicated in recent years. Oversight is important for our country, not so we can point fingers or cast blame, but answer difficult questions and find lasting solutions to the enormous challenges we face. Everyone focuses on Iraq—of course, that is a very difficult problem—but there are many other problems that face this great country. The war in Iraq will cast a long shadow over the Senate’s work this year. No issue in our country is more important than finding that war. We will be listening very closely to President Bush when he comes forward with his plan next week. The President’s new plan must ensure that Iraq takes responsibility for its own future and remove our troops from this civil war. Completing the mission in Iraq is the President’s job and we will do everything to assist the Commander in Chief to ensure his responsibilities.

Finally, the Senate will achieve progress for our Nation by ensuring the Senate calendar reflects America’s needs. In the weeks ahead, I look forward to receiving input from the minority. This afternoon, as is the tradition in the Senate, I will present an overview of the Democrats’ legislative agenda, bills S. 1 through S. 10. Following the tradition of the Senate, my friend, the distinguished minority leader, Senator McConnell, will offer bills and amendments.

In the first 10 bills we will introduce this afternoon, and in our ongoing oversight of the war in Iraq, we intend to address these priorities. Basically three of them: one, providing real security; two, restoring transparency, accountability, and responsibility in the United States Government; and three, helping working Americans get ahead.

We begin with S. 1, our plan to change the way Washington works. It was late 2005 when scandals involving ethics and lobbying shook the very core of this Nation. Despite the Senate’s best attempts on a bipartisan basis, here we are 2 years later and still no reform of ethics, lobbying, and earmarks. The American people deserve better. That is why as our first order of business we will seek to give Americans the open and accountable government they deserve. We will start Monday with a bipartisan bill cosponsored by Reid and McConnell. I think that is a very good step to start with the ethics bill that passed the Senate last year. Now, had that bill passed, which it didn’t, it would have been the most significant reform since Watergate in lobbying and ethics reform.

This legislation will include reforms to slow the revolving door between Government jobs and lucrative employment with special interests. It will eliminate gifts paid for by lobbyists and interests that hire lobbyists. It will limit privately funded travel such as that of the notorious golf junkets to Scotland. It will increase disclosure requirements so the public will be better informed about the activities of lobbyists. And it will increase penalties for those who seek to break the rules. I lay and spread across this RECORD how grateful I am that the distinguished minority leader, Senator McConnell, will initiate this legislation. I think it sends the right message to America.

With these reforms, which I am confident will pass, we will help ensure that America has a government that is good and honest as it serves the people it serves.

Mr. President, I send S. 1 to the desk and ask for its appropriate referral.
The bill is at the desk. I am told that the bill is at the desk and we choose not to rule XIV it at this stage.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be received and appropriately referred.

Mr. LEVIED. Mr. President, S. 2 is our plan to increase the wages of working families by raising the minimum wage to $7.25 an hour. It has been 10 years since the minimum wage was last increased. In that time, the cost of gas, to$30,000. But through all of this, the minimum wage has stayed the same. It is long past time America's workers received a raise as well.

Today, a mother or father can work full time for the minimum wage but still live $5,000 below the poverty level. Adjusted for inflation, the minimum wage is at its lowest level since 1955. S. 2 will directly raise the pay of nearly 7 million Americans by more than $4,000 and by setting a new salary floor that will lift millions of families out of poverty. That increase is enough to provide nearly 2 years of child care, full tuition for a community college degree, over a year's worth of heat and electricity or more than $4,000 for millions of workers. That increase is more than enough to make America safe.

We have work to do, and this legislation will step toward in fulfilling the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission. Specifically, it will reinvigorate the war on terror, restructure the Department of Defense, al-Qaeda, and the ideologies of violent extremists. It will enhance the security of our transportation system and our ports. It will provide America's first responders with the technology they need to aid one another during a crisis, and it will make it a priority to secure loose nukes around the world.

Finishing the job of implementing 9/11 Commission recommendations will not by itself win the war on terror or guarantee 100-percent complete security for the people of our country, but we hope with our legislation to improve on the worst of those grades, those Ds and Fs and incompletes. The America we have every confidence that Congress and the White House are taking every step—every step possible—to keep America safe. S. 4 is at the desk.

S. 3 is the College Opportunity Act, our plan to make college more affordable for middle-class families. In America today, a college education is more important than ever. Unfortunately, it is also far more expensive than ever. During the minimum wage debate we will also likely consider giving small businesses some tax relief. In fact, as we speak, Senator MCCONNELL's staff and my staff are working, along with Senator ENZI, Senator GRASSLEY, Senator KENNEDY, and Senator BAUCUS, to see if we can have a minimum wage bill that he and I will cosponsor and bring before the Senate. We are working on that.

S. 2 is at the desk, and it will be reported at the appropriate time.

S. 3 is our plan to reduce drug costs for seniors. The flaws in the Medicare drug program are well documented, but many can be traced back to one simple fact: The law as written puts drug companies ahead of America. The Senate adopted in the last 10 years have increased 9 times, by more than $30 billion for Exxon and the other companies, international cartels, not far behind. We have allowed Exxon's bottom line to take priority over families struggling at the gas pump and the harmful effects of global warming. So in an effort to begin to solve this energy crisis, our sixth bill takes an aggressive approach to reducing America's dependence on oil, especially foreign oil, and putting more advanced technologies in the hands of consumers. It will boost production of electricity from solar, geothermal, and other renewable resources that are abundant in States such as Nevada, and it will allow our Nation to take the energy jobs and manufacturing base.

S. 7 is the College Opportunity Act, our plan to make college more affordable for middle-class families. In America today, a college education is more important than ever. Unfortunately, it is also far more expensive than ever. Today, too many families are being squeezed trying to put their children through school. In the last 6 years, the cost of college has increased by 52 percent. Federal assistance has declined, especially in the last 3 years. Our legislation will reverse this trend by raising the maximum Pell grant award. It will also assist families by lowering interest rates for student loans and expanding tax breaks for college costs. S. 7 is at the desk.

S. 8 is Rebuilding America's Military Act. As we speak, there is not a single nondeployed Army unit that is battle ready. The wars in Afghanistan and in Iraq, the war on terror, are terribly devastating to our military. These brave men and women have done the very best any fighting force could do. But because of Iraq and Afghanistan, the U.S. military is strained to its limits. While our troops remain the finest in the world, infrastructure is crumbling around them. Nearly all of our combat divisions have been deployed and two-thirds of our Army combat brigades are not ready for combat. Peter Schoomaker, the Chief of Staff of the Army, testified last month, ‘At this pace...we will break the active component’ of the U.S. Army.
We, also, have National Guard, Reserve and Active-Duty veterans coming back in droves to America without sufficient help for their health care and certainly not their education.

If we want real security, we must rebuild the military and defense. National Security remains the best fighting force in the world. S. 8 is at the desk.

S. 9 will secure America by undertaking comprehensive immigration reform. As I had friends and colleagues, staff, ask: Why are you bringing up this controversial subject on the first day of Congress? It has to be brought up. Immigration is a problem that affects this Nation. Last year, we passed a solid immigration bill in the Senate. There are parts of that bill I didn’t like, but we passed a bill. Unfortunately, it fell victim to politics, again in the other body. Immigration reform is too vital to our security and our economy to fall by the wayside, so we must deal with it again this year. Our immigration system is broken. Does anyone dispute this? Our borders remain unsecured. Does anyone dispute that? Our laws remain underenforced. Does anyone dispute that? Does anyone dispute that? Does anyone dispute that? As we have 11 million people with bad papers who are here illegally, does anyone dispute that? No.

So our bill will take a comprehensive approach to repairing this broken system. With tough and smart reforms, it will secure the borders, crack down on enforcement, and lay down a path to earned legalization for undocumented immigrants already living here. There is no amnesty. If there were ever an example of the need for bipartisanship, it is on immigration because it is going to be hard, but it is something that we have to do. S. 9 is at the desk.

Finally, S. 10 will reinstate pay-as-you-go rules to the budget process. This does not sound very politically sexy, to talk about pay as you-go. But you-go rules to the budget process. It is a simple proposition demanded that the Senate Republican conference is for the majority in the new Congress. I believe we had an excellent leader, describe the first 10 bills of the majority in the new Congress. I would say for the information of all of our colleagues, the procedure in the Senate is that the Majority Leader, in this case, the Senate President pro tempore, to designate our first 10 bills. We will be doing that at a meeting to occur in the next few weeks. We have essentially reserved the numbers S. 11 through S. 20 which will reflect our priorities for this Congress.

Let me say at the outset, before giving my opening remarks, how much I value the friendship and relationship I have with the distinguished majority leader. I believe we had an excellent session this morning in the old Senate Chamber, and we look forward to getting on to a good start.

Today is the 110th time in our Nation’s history that we begin a new session of Congress. This is a day to renew our purpose, to set a sturdy course for the important work ahead, and to ask ourselves: What will future generations say of the 110th Congress? Is this the first day of that Congress. What will they say of us on the last day?

The Senate has a unique role in our Government from all over history. The place where the two great political parties must work together if a common goal is to be reached. It is the legislative embodiment of individual and minority rights, a place where the careful design, crafted by our Founding Fathers, is rather than much operate today the way they planned it 220 years ago.

We saw this 43 years ago with the Civil Rights Act of 1968. Two parties forged a difficult alliance to reach a great goal. Segregated buses and lunch counters are difficult to fathom now, but their end only came about through the kind of cooperative resolution that has marked this body from the start.

At its best, the Senate is a workshop where difficult challenges, such as civil rights, are faced squarely—and addressed—with good will and careful, principled agreement. At a time such as our own, when so many issues of consequence press upon us, it must be nothing less.

Yet the challenges ahead will not be met if we do nothing to overcome the partisanship that has come to characterize this body over the past several years. A culture of partisanship over principle represents a grave threat to the Senate’s best tradition as a place of constructive cooperation. It undermines the spirit and the purpose of this institution, and we must do something to reverse its course.

The Senate can accomplish great things over the next 2 years, but this opportunity will surely slip from our grasp if we do nothing ourselves to a restoration of civility and common purpose. So as we open this session, I stake my party to a pledge: When faced with an urgent issue, we will act; when faced with a problem, we will seek solutions, not mere political advantage.

The Framers thought a lot about the kind of people who would sit behind these desks on the floor and they set down some simple rules. Senators should be older than their House colleagues. They should serve longer terms and proportion ensures that all States have an equal say, regardless of size. The Senate was also conceived to be a place of civil debate and good will.

Mike Mansfield showed grace and humility in his efforts to expand civil rights. Working with Republicans to offset resistance in his own party, he guided passage of the great Civil Rights Act of the 1960s and even let a Republican take the credit. In fact, today the name Everett Dirksen may actually be better known, but historians know better.

Mansfield’s collegial spirit didn’t just surface when it served his purposes. Historians tell us his first appointment each day was breakfast with Senator George Aliken, a Republican from Vermont. The two men met when one of Aliken’s aids spotted Mansfield alone, pushing a tray down the cafeteria line in the Capitol. She asked the next Senator if he wanted to join her and Aliken thought, so. The two men remained close friends for 25 years. A small act of kindness set the tone.
Cooperation among parties is not so distant a memory that some of us can’t recall Democrats and Republicans working together to pass President Reagan’s tax cuts in the early 1980s. That common effort led to the greatest economic expansion of our history—the American miracle, they called it.

We saw the spirit of cooperation again in the 1990s, when a Republican-led Senate worked with the Democrats, including President Clinton, to reform welfare, and we have seen it for countless years, though less frequently, on issues such as tort reform and the Medicare prescription drug benefit.

We used to say that Senators were friends after 5 o’clock. We need more of that if we are going to restore this body to its high purpose. The Senate is not a club nor a clique. It is a group of men and women charged with the solemn duty to support and defend the Constitution against its enemies. George Mitchell once called the Senate a single body made up of 100 independent contractors. Yet he earned the respect of his colleagues by his willingness to listen, to work together, to take risks. He knew when to put self-interest aside. He knew the role of the Senate.

The risks we face today are grave, and facing them will require greater unity and civility than we have been used to. And here lately. But drawing on the examples of the past and conscious of this body’s historic role, we can again rise out of our party trenches and work together for the good of all after 5 o’clock. We need more of that if we are going to restore this body to its high purpose. The Senate is not a club nor a clique. It is a group of men and women charged with the solemn duty to support and defend the Constitution against its enemies. The work of restoration should start with the things that are easiest to do because a victory in small things now will lead to big victories later. The Senate has not approved a minimum wage increase in more than a decade, but we are willing to work together toward that end. We believe that an increase needs to help both the workers who earn it and the small businesses that pay it.

It just makes sense to pair the increased wage with tax and regulatory relief, so the small businesses that create new jobs in this country can remain competitive and employ even more people. We can get this done.

The voters told us in November that they expect more from us. One concrete thing we can do to restore trust is common sense lobbying reform. The first bill I will sponsor as the Republican leader, in cooperation with the majority leader, is aimed at precisely that. The voters want honest government. We can get this done too. Two issues. Two issues we can move on carefully but quickly. Let’s get them done.

After that, I challenge this body to be daring. The Senate has no claim on greatness unless its power is put to great ends. Divided government demands that we must work together. So let us do so not only for ends that are easily within our grasp, but for those worthy things that have just eluded us in the past.

Social Security is an issue on which Americans demand action—yet many fear what action might mean.

Our job is not to play into those fears but to erase them. To show voters that the greatest cause for fear is the system in its current, unsustainable form. Everyone in this Chamber knows the facts. So let’s be honest brokers—and strengthen Social Security before this Congress ends.

Today, the 110th Congress begins. But before it ends, the first great wave of baby boomers will retire. Over the next two decades, more than 77 million people will leave the workforce even as fewer new workers arrive. And by the time they all leave, there will be only two American workers supporting each retiree.

This is clearly unsustainable. Unless we reform the system, we have a choice: Either our children—far longer or harder or our parents live with less.

The Senate cannot sit idly by as this demographic reality takes shape. Rather, we must do the hard work we were elected to do. We must make our money work harder for our parents and our children, and so we need to reform Social Security now.

The Framers knew we would have to make tough decisions. That’s why they didn’t want Senators to be elected by popular vote. The system they devised had its own problems, so we changed it. But the principle was sound: the right decision is not always the easiest one. We have an obligation to address the important issues of the day, in spirit of cooperation and courage, and with a goal of accomplishment for all Americans.

Immigration is one the most pressing issues of our day. We should be daring about immigration reform—and act on it soon. The voters demand it. We have a duty to deliver.

Americans are generous, eager to welcome strangers and happy when they prosper. Yet we know that the blessings of our respect for the law and a common national culture. We can ensure both even as we welcome those who come here looking for a better life.

Laws that are generous need not be lax. And a country that is not secure at its borders is not secure in its laws. Border security and other law enforcement professionals must have the tools they need to keep our borders—and our laws—strong.

America has not seen a domestic terrorist attack since we committed ourselves to the global war on terror. That is not an accident, some quirk of fate. Rather, it is due to the hard work of spotting and disrupting threats before they strike.

The indisputable success of these efforts is the greatest argument we have to continue to support them—and to make sure those who secure the homeland also provide the outstanding work they have done.

One of the principles that has guided our efforts in the war on terror is that terrorism must be fought at a distance or it will be fought on our soil. This policy has worked—and we must ensure that it continues to work by giving the men and women who carry out that mission every day all the tools they need.

One of those tools is the terrorist surveillance program. If terrorists are calling the United States, we should know what they’re talking about. This program has saved lives. And we would endanger others by ending it.

We must use all the tools we have: diplomacy, intelligence, economic and military might. The men and women of the Armed Forces have sacrificed much in battle. Their families have made great quiet sacrifices at home. We will honor both by pledging that the American Armed Forces will remain the best equipped, best trained, and best prepared in the world.

And very soon, we will return to the issue of Iraq. It is my hope, and my challenge to this body, that the debate will be based on what’s best for the future of our Nation and for Iraq—not what’s best for the Republican party or the Democratic party.

The Senate must be bold in preparing Americans for the struggle ahead. Our Nation’s security depends on secure borders and a strong fighting force. It also depends on energy independence. So we must continue to work hard to decrease our reliance on foreign sources of energy.

We laid a solid foundation during the last Congress, with passage of the Energy Policy Act of 2005 and, just last month, with the enactment of the Gulf of Mexico Energy Security Act. Both measures were passed with bipartisan support, and both will decrease our dangerous dependence on foreign oil and gas.

There is more that we can do both to increase our domestic supply and decrease our demand for foreign energy. The United States has an abundance of coal and remains a leader in nuclear technology. We should focus attention on using these natural resources safely, cheaply and effectively.

We cannot go back on the gains we made in the last Congress. And I will work with my colleagues to continue this vital work.

If the restoration of our purpose does not lead those of us in the Senate to be daring, then our prosperity should.

Republicans presided over 4 years of economic growth; the biggest housing
I believe the state exists to serve individuals and families, not the other way around.
I believe everyone fortunate enough to call himself or herself an American should be able to pursue their dreams freely.
I believe God has blessed this country richly, and that the proper response to the gift of freedom is to defend it.
And I believe that the first duty of Government is the defense and protection of its citizens.
So I am eager to work with my colleagues to find bold solutions to big problems. Yet on some things I will not yield.
I will never agree to proposals that weaken the security of our citizens at home or the capabilities of our Armed Forces abroad.
I will never agree to a tax increase on working families or small businesses.
Our economy is strong because of the hard work and enterprise of Americans. We will not undermine that spirit by taxing it.
I will never agree to retreat from our responsibility to confirm qualified judicial nominees.
Bipartisanship, cooperation and accomplishment—yes. Civility, yes. But we will remain true to our principles.
Henry Clay was a great Kentuckian. He spent the last 2 years of his life using the tools of the Senate to save his country. His devotion to the cause of national unity was so great that one rival called it “a crowning grace” to Clay’s public life.
Clay shows us that divided government need not be divisive. Indeed, it often leads to historic agreements that unity governments have little incentive to achieve.
And so, working together, forgetting past grievances, forging new alliances, we can solve the difficult issues of the day. This is the purpose of the Senate and the privilege of its Members.
If our step is guided by this simple principle, then this 110th Congress will have met its responsibility on behalf of all Americans, and strengthened this institution for the unseen challenges that will always lie ahead.
I yield the floor.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

MORNING BUSINESS
Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that the next 2 hours of morning business be controlled as follows: the first 60 minutes under the control of the majority, the second 60 minutes under the control of the minority, with Senators therein limited to 10 minutes each.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
The assistant majority leader.

A NEW DIRECTION FOR AMERICA
Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, it is my honor to follow the speeches that have been given by my new majority leader, Senator HARRY REID of Nevada, and my new Republican leader, Senator MITCH McCONNELL of Kentucky. It is a great honor for me to stand this day in the Senate as the assistant Democratic leader. I cannot express my gratitude to both gentlemen for entrusting me with this responsibility.
I come to this moment with a sense of amazement. Some 40 years ago, as a college student in this town, I first set foot in the old Senate office building as an intern, never dreaming that 40 years later I would be standing on the floor of the Senate in this capacity. It is indeed a great honor.
I do not know how many men and women have lived in the United States of America in our history—hundreds of millions, for sure. Today there are some 300 million who count America as their home. In the entire history of the United States of America, from its creation, as of today, as of this moment in our history, 1,895 men and women have held the high honor of serving in the Senate. Today, we were joined by 10 more.
Their life stories, like the stories of many of us, are the stories of America: stories of immigrant families, stories of struggle, stories of sacrifice and heroism that finally resulted in an election to this great body in the Senate.
I imagine if you called on some of the experts in U.S. history—even those who served for quite a few years in the Senate, and asked some of the 1,895 Senators who have served here could remember, they would be hard pressed to come up with a long list. As it happens in most walks of life, a few people stand out in history. But most are part of a parade, a parade that passes by many times anonymously.
In the desk drawers of each of our desks here there is a quaint little Senate custom. I was talking to Senator John Glenn of Ohio about it today. Senators who have served here, despite what they were told by their teachers in grade school, are encouraged to scratch their names in the bottom of the desk drawer. I happen to be sitting at the desk of former Senator John Glenn of Ohio, and my former mentor and inspiration, Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois. I would imagine if you look in these desk drawers, there will be many many names you do not recognize. The point I am trying to get to is this: Members of the Senate, men and women, come and go, but, thank God, this Nation endures. And it endures because of the sacrifice each makes for the common good of this Nation.
We have weathered so many storms—9/11 the most recent but, of course, the Civil War, which almost tore us apart—and time and again throughout our history men and women in this body, in the Senate, have decided the good of the Nation in this capacity. It is in the best interest of the United States to have as many women as possible serving in the Senate. We have another similar moment in history. It is interesting how critical Americans are of their politicians; and that is a healthy thing. We do not assume that those elected to public office are part of any gifted class or any special group. We just assume they are people who are like us and fortunate enough to get elected. But over the years a lot of people have questioned us, whether the people who have voted a good part of our lives to public service truly have the public interest in mind.

The skepticism grew last year with the scandal of corruption, the announcements of indictments, prosecutions, resignations, not just among public officials but those who work in the Halls of the Capitol. And the skepticism and cynicism about public life grew as people heard more and more of public officials but those who work in the culture of corruption, the anemic issue of ethics and honesty in Government—there could be many stories. That is why it is so important we reflect on what Senator REID said earlier about our agenda. The first item on our agenda—and there could be many—is to address this issue of ethics and honesty in Government. The American people voted for people who are like us and fortunate in public life. Two people who brought me here—Paul Douglas and Paul Simon, both Senators—were literally paragons of public virtue.

Paul Douglas, as Senator from Illinois, was my mentor in life, felt the same, followed in the Douglas tradition, and started me on a long road of disclosing in complete detail every year my income taxes and total net worth. I had that early in my married life when Loretta and I had very little to claim as earthly possessions and filed a net worth which was pretty embarrassing. Things are a little better now, and I have continued the tradition.

But when Senator REID talks about changing the Senate rules, to start with, as the first item of business, I think what he is trying to do on behalf of Democrats and Republicans in this bipartisan bill is to address the issue of the public in the Senate. Before we roll up our sleeves and take on the issues that count for every family across America, let’s take on the issue of restoring the integrity of the Senate. That is why this is a bill that is high on our list and the first we will consider.

The American people voted for change in this last election in many ways. They certainly want us to move forward. Some of our advisers use the term “bipartisanship” has too many syllables and is unintelligible to the average person. I am not sure. But people do understand the words “co-operation” and “compromise.” And I think people across America said to us in the last election: We want you to compromise. We want you to find solutions. We do not want you to play to a draw with nothing to show for it.

The question the people of Illinois to whom I speak is this war in Iraq. In the first week of October, I went to Iraq with Senator Jack Reeds of Rhode Island. We visited Afghanistan and have a chance. We deposited their dictator, put him to trial, saw his execution, gave them a chance for constitutions and governments, gave them all these opportunities, and now it is their turn. We cannot impose democracy on them. That appetite for democracy has to spring from their souls, and they have to want it badly enough to work out political compromises to disband the militia, to show the kind of leadership which will give them a nation in fact rather than just in words. That will be one of the big issues we debate here.

Some have criticized us this week for not talking about Iraq enough. I can understand it. When I hear the mothers of fallen soldiers say that should be our priority. I think they understand, as we do, there is nothing more important that ever happened in their lives. This assurance I can give: Next week, when this Senate convenes, both the Armed Services Committee and the Foreign Relations Committee will begin hearings on Iraq. The debate will really begin in earnest, as it should, as the American people expect. And we will have a responsibility to come up with the best answer for our Nation, for our troops.

There are so many other issues we face. One near and dear to my heart is the cost of college education. This young boy from East Saint Louis, IL, could never have attended Georgetown University had not the Government loaned me the money, paid it back, and believed in my future. So many students across America today wonder if they will ever be able to borrow enough to go to school. Some of them drop out because of debt. Some of them change their life plans because of paying off student debt.

Well, last year, we decided to make it more difficult. The President signed a bill that raised interest rates on student loans, making it more difficult for the kids of working families to go to school. One of our first priorities is to reduce the cost of college education expenses so young people with great dreams and limited means have a chance to succeed. That is one of our priorities as Democrats, and one I totally support.

I also think we have to restore some basic economic justice in America. How can you possibly explain that over 10 years we have not raised the Federal minimum wage? These people get up and go to work every day, many of them raising children, struggling to... survive, going to soup kitchens and pantries to supplement their income.

Over the Christmas holidays—as many of us do—I visited some of those places, and I met a lot of people who work 40 hours a week. They come to the soup kitchens and they come to the pantries because that is the one way to supplement their income. Well, we can do better. We need to increase the Federal minimum wage. And as Senator REID said, it is one of our highest priorities.

Senator McCONNELL said, a few moments ago, when it comes to the Medicare prescription Part D program, he will not stand by and allow us to scrap the program. I say: Hear, hear. We do not want to scrap the program. It is long overdue. Prescription drugs under Medicare keep our seniors healthy, independent, and strong. But, sadly, we know the reality that when that bill was passed, it was written by our pharmaceutical industry. It took competition out of the program so they could charge higher prices. It created a maze of opportunities, but a maze of choices for many seniors who were bewildered by what the created a doughnut hole, a period of time where seniors who were the sickest had no coverage whatsoever.

So I would say to my colleague on the other side of the aisle, we are not going to scrap it. We are going to do our best to improve it. And we can improve it, bring in some competition so we have reasonable cost drugs, so we have more coverage for seniors across America.

There is an old saying that there is no education in the second kick of a mule. No matter what side of the aisle we are on, there is a lesson for all of us. The American people have given us today a mandate. They have given us an order, too, to chart a better course for this Nation. They have given us an order, too, to get to work on issues that matter to them on a daily basis: making them more secure, lifesaving medical research, fair wages, comprehensive immigration reform, energy independence, and affordable education and prescription drugs. They want us to go to work for them again. That is what we are going to do.

The 10 bills we have introduced are all aimed right at the heart of the average American in the sense of saying to the average American: We do know what you need, we are going to do, and we are going to do our best to help you.

Make no mistake; overall, families are doing quite well, but they are beginning to hurt in certain ways: high gas prices, skyrocketing tuition, prescription drugs. These are all things the average person worries about that they probably didn’t worry about 10 years ago. These first 10 bills that we are going to introduce represent the Democratic priorities for the Senate and the country. These bills take aim at making education and prescription drugs more affordable. They address our goals for energy independence, better homeland security, innovative medical research, a modernized military, and comprehensive immigration reform—priorities that have been neglected for far too long.

I first want to express my enthusiastic support for our bill to address college affordability, S. 7, which my colleagues will also address. We know we must make it easier for families to send their kids to college. As tuition costs rise, it gets harder and harder for them to do it. As college becomes more of a necessity, it also becomes less affordable. That is the dilemma we face. We are facing a critical time with this challenge coming, when a college education is vital not only to one’s individual future but to our Nation’s prosperity and independence.

We are competing now in a global market connected by technology, and we need a well-educated workforce. That is why I introduced upon arriving in the Senate a bill to permit a college tuition tax deduction. I have worked to support it ever since. We must ensure that this deduction does not expire, as it nearly did in December, by making it permanent. And we must do more. Just getting by is not enough when it comes to sending our kids to college. We must address the catastrophic increase in college costs, including Pell grants, loans, and lowering interest payments on loans. I know my colleague, Senator
KENNEDY, has big plans for addressing these issues. Just as I will work hard on the Finance Committee on the tuition issue, he, in the HELP Committee, will be leading many of my colleagues on those issues there.

When Mr. President asked to spend a few minutes to talk about is S. 4, a bill to implement the recommendations of the national commission on terrorist acts, the 9/11 Commission. It has now been over 5 years since the tragedy and devastation of September 11. On that day, our Nation changed irrevocably with the knowledge that terrorist forces, motivated by hatred, have the determination and ability to threaten America on our own soil. My own city of New York knows this devastation and tragedy well. On that day, and in the days following, we lost thousands of our friends and family members, including hundreds of brave firefighters and police officers who died trying to save others. We owe it to all those who lost their lives on that day to take up and implement the commission’s recommendations.

On that day, it was clear that much needed to be done to improve the security of our homeland. The President and Congress responded in part by establishing the 9/11 Commission. This bipartisan commission did its work thoroughly and well, devising 41 core recommendations to prevent, defend against, and respond to the threat of future attacks. Each one of the recommendations was a vital part of the Commission’s charge to Congress and the President. Yet Americans have not just been gravely disappointed but also endangered by the failure to implement all of the recommendations of the 9/11 Commission. It is high time for this failure to be rectified.

S. 4 expresses the sense of Congress that we must immediately work toward passage of legislation that will, after careful consideration, implement the solutions carefully crafted at our request. As the committee puts together a final detailed bill, S. 4 will serve as an important symbol of our priority for securing our Nation by implementing the recommendations. We have made some improvements since 9/11, but we still have so far to go.

America simply cannot wait any longer to fully protect our homeland. Whether it is improving communications and responding to the terrorist threat in real time, ensuring that law enforcement shares information about threats, or securing our transportation systems, which I know my colleague from Washington has worked on, we have a whole lot to do. We cannot wait longer for decisive action to stop weapons of mass destruction from falling into the hands of terrorists entering our country or being built by those who would destroy us. We cannot wait any longer to better combat the violent extremism that is growing around the globe.

This is only the beginning of the work that remains to be done. We have heard so much talk about homeland security in the years and days since 9/11, but in all this time we have seen far too little action. In the 110th Congress, at last that shameful state of affairs must and will come to an end.

In conclusion, the voters in November made it clear that we have a humbling responsibility. We must now rise to meet that responsibility by returning the focus of our work to the basic needs of American families. Today is the first and important step toward meeting that responsibility.

So as we come to order, Mr. President, I look forward to working with our Republican colleagues and the President to deliver these priorities for American families. Those families deserve no less.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SALAZAR). The Senator from Washington is recognized.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I am honored to join with my Democratic colleague today. I listened to the Senator from New York talk about our top 10 priorities. Senator REID, our new majority leader, and Senator DURBIN before me talked about how we now in this new majority are going to focus on the American families. I congratulate Senators REID, the new majority leader, and MCCONNELL, the Republican leader, for setting the right tone today by bringing us together this morning and reminding us that it is time for us to work on a very important agenda for the American people. We will have our disagreements, our partisan battles, but at the end of the day we have to move legislation forward because if there was any message to me out of the November election that brought us to the majority now, it was that people want us to get past the partisan rancor on the floor of the Senate. They want us to get past the bickering. They expect debate, they like that, but at the end of the day they want us to move forward.

Across this country today, American families are struggling to send their kids to college, struggling to get health care, struggling with their pensions, struggling with their salaries, and they expect us, the 100 leaders of the Senate, to be here together to solve those issues in a way that moves them forward and gives promise and hope to the next generation.

Mr. President, what I am talking about is the top 10 priorities that our new majority leader set out for us today. They are bills that focus on bringing back hope and opportunity for the thousands of American families that are hoping today that we have heard them and that we will respond and work hard to make sure their lives are better.

I am pleased that we are beginning next week with ethics reform. I think it is important to start with a strong message that we understand we have a responsibility to uphold the honor of this Senate, not just for today but for many years to come. I am very excited that within a few weeks we will be talking about the minimum wage for the families out there who are struggling so hard to make sure they do the right thing for their kids and to send them a message that we understand and we are going to do a little bit to help them.

Senator SCHUMER talked about the 9/11 Commission and implementing their report—something we should have done long ago. The security of this Nation, people’s fear about where we are, is a message that we need to understand. I am pleased that is part of the top 10 priorities of this new Congress. In dealing with the Medicare prescription drug plan, I have met with many seniors in my home State and they are confused and frustrated. They are angry as they fall into the doughnut hole and realize that the promise we have given them of prescription drugs is not meeting that expectation, and we have a responsibility to do better. I hope that we can.

Senator MCCONNELL a short while ago say he didn’t want us to tear apart the Medicare prescription drug plan. Nobody does. We want to make it work. I hope we can work together in cooperation and make that happen. Senator MCCONNELL from Iowa will be speaking in a few minutes. He has been a leader on that issue. It is about promise and hope for so many American families. I hope we can move it quickly through the Senate, through the Finance Committee, and then to the President’s desk. If we have to, I hope we have the votes to override. Far too many families struggling today, and we should at least send them the promise of the future as generations before did for us. Energy independence is critical in my State and across the Nation. It is something I hear about everywhere I go.

Strengthening our military: Certainly, that is important today, as we know we face terrorism across the globe and we have a military force in Iraq. We have to make sure that we work together in a bipartisan manner to strengthen our military not just for today but for those who come behind us.

Included in that for me is taking care of those who have served us, our veterans, keeping the promise we made to them when they served us overseas, that we will be there when they come home. We cannot tolerate the long waits for our veterans, the fact that they are coming home and cannot get a job; that the unemployment rate for 18- to 24-year-olds who served in Iraq and Afghanistan is three times the national average. We have a lot of work to do there. I am pleased that our leader has put our nation’s direction. This is an issue the Senate has worked through. It is a tough one, but it is one that, if we work together, we can move forward.

Many other issues are coming before us, but one I want to mention, in my last few minutes, is the issue of education. That is the backbone of our country, it always has been: making

We have much work ahead of us. We do need to work together. Mr. Presi-dent, 51 to 49 in the Senate is very close, but we know that these issues in this country and in our country are counting on us. I look forward to working with all of my colleagues to achieve an agenda that sends that promise of hope once again. I yield the floor. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa. Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I wish to pick up where Senator MUR-REY’s remarks and talk about S. 5, the stem cell bill, that was also introduced today by the majority leader, Senator REID. Stem cell research, when it is stripped of all the phony arguments and rhetoric, is basically about hope. It is hope for people with Lou Gehrig’s disease. It is hope for people with spinal cord injuries, hope for kids suffering from juvenile diabetes, hope for people with Parkinson’s disease. In the One Club we are going to bring those hopes one giant step closer to reality. At long last, hopefully, we will lift the President’s restrictions on stem cell research and finally give our Nation’s best scientists the tools they need to produce treatments and cures. The bill we have introduced today, S. 5, the Stem Cell Research Enhancement Act of 2007, is the exact same bill that passed both Houses last year with strong bipartisan support. The House passed the bill 226 to 194. The Senate passed it 63 to 37. Regrettably, the President chose to exercise his first and only veto of his administration in vetoing this bill. And with his veto, the President ignored the will of the American people, he ig-nored scores of Nobel laureates, he igno-red top scientists at the National In-stitutes of Health, and with one stroke of his pen, he dashed the hopes of millions of Americans suffering from dis-eases that could be cured or treated through stem cell research. But now we are back, it is a new Congress, and the voices of hope are stronger than ever. In November, the American people elected many new Members of Congress who support stem cell research. I replaced me as a former Member of Congress who opposed this research. As a result, we will pass this bill again this year, and the margins of victory will be even wider. Let me spend a moment reviewing what S. 5 would provide. More than 7 years ago, the President announced in a speech that federally funded sci-entists could conduct research only on embryonic stem cell lines that were derived prior to 9 p.m. on August 9, 2001. The President gave his speech that evening, August 9, 2001. He said all of those stem cell lines derived before 9 p.m., that was OK, but if they were derived after 9 p.m., they could not be used with Federal funds. And we understood that. Why was it 9 p.m.? Why wasn’t it 9:15 p.m. or maybe 8:45, 9:13? Why was it 9 p.m.? At the beginning, one has to question the logic of why 9 p.m. was the time barrier. When the President announced his policy, he said that 78 stem cell lines were eligible for research. We now know that is not so. Only 21 are eligi-ble, not nearly enough to reflect the genetic diversity of this Nation. What is more, every one of those lines, all 21 of those lines are contami-nated with mouse cells. They were grown on mouse cells, so they are all contaminated. So none of them will ever be used for any kind of human treatment. Meanwhile, hundreds of new stem cell lines have been derived since the President’s arbitrary deadline. Many of these lines are uncontaminated, they are healthy, but they are totally off limits for federally funded scientists. That is really a shame because if we are serious about realizing the promise of stem cell research, our scientists need access to the best stem cell lines possible. We need a stem cell policy that offers true and meaningful hope. That is what S. 5 would provide. Under this bill, federally funded re-searchers could study any stem cell line, regardless of the date it was de-duced, as long as certain strong ethical guidelines are met. I point out, again, as I have in the past and I will con-tinue to point out, that the ethical guidelines in S. 5 are stronger than the ethical guidelines under the existing policy. What are those guidelines? One, no money can be exchanged. No one can ever be paid for donating em-bryos. Second, these embryos can only be used for stem cell research and for nothing else. And third, the donors have to give in-formed consent for them to be used. The final point is most important. The only way a stem cell line could be eligible for this federally funded re-search, is if it were grown from a human embryo that was otherwise going to be discarded. Let me, again, say what that means. There are more than 400,000 embryos frozen in in vitro fertilization clinics all over the country over 400,000. Right now, the only thing that can happen to those is that they be dis-carded. They are thrown away every day. Every day embryos are discarded in in vitro fertilization clinics all over America. The donors have no other choice. They could not have children. They fi-nally went to an IVF clinic.
didn’t work. They went to another one. Now she is pregnant, and they are going to have twins. They may have one or two more children—I don’t know—but there are going to be some of those embryos left over. Right now my friend’s only choice is to have them discarded. That is her only choice. But as she said to me: I would love, after I have my children and my family, if there are embryos left over, I would love to be able to donate them for stem cell research to help cure disease and to help other people who are sick.

Right now she cannot do that. Neither she nor her husband can do that. Our bill would allow them to have that option. No one is forced to do anything, but it would allow them to have that option.

I also, wish to point out again one of the misconceptions. These are embryos. They are blastocysts. They have about 100 cells. I always do this: I put a dot on a piece of paper, hold it up and say: can anybody see that? That is what we are talking about. It is about the size of a period at the end of a sentence. There is a lot of misinformation about what we are talking about.

As I said before, Congress is going to pass this bill. That is certain. Sadly, some are already predicting the President will veto it for a second time. I hope they are wrong. I hope the President will respect the will of the people and sign the stem cell research bill. But if he does veto it, we will persist. We will use every legislative means at our disposal to make sure S. 5 is enacted into law, and it will happen during this Congress.

My nephew Kelly is one of the millions of Americans whose hopes depend on stem cell research. Kelly was in the Navy. He had a terrible accident on an aircraft carrier, and he has been basically a paraplegic now for 28 years. But he has kept his hopes alive that our scientists will be able to find a cure. Stem cell research offers the best hope for people suffering from spinal cord injuries.

Now is the time to give them the hope, to lift the ban on stem cell research. As I said, we will do that in this Congress. It will be one of the first bills we pass. I hope the President will sign it and we can move on. But if not, for Kelly and for so many millions of Americans, we hope the long wait is almost over. I predict that hope will prevail in this Congress to see that.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

CESAR CHAVEZ

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President I will speak briefly. One of the things I am going to do today is join the distinguished President Officer, Senator SALAZAR—in fact, I should note that this is the first time I have seen the distinguished President Officer in the chair. He looks as though he was born to preside here, and he does it well. I am going to join him in introducing a bill to include Cesar Chavez among the names of the great civil rights leaders we honored in the title of last year’s Voting Rights Act Reauthorization and Amendments Act of 2006.

When we were considering this legislation in the Senate Judiciary Committee, Senator SALAZAR made a compelling argument why that name, an American hero’s name, should be added to the bill. He testified and sacrificed his life to empower the most vulnerable in America, as did Fannie Lou Hamer, Rosa Parks, and Coretta Scott King.

Cesar Chavez’s name should be added to the law as an important recognition of the broad landscape of political inclusion made possible by the Voting Rights Act. This bill would not alter the act’s vital remedies to address continuing discrimination in voting, but rather it is overdue recognition of the importance of the Voting Rights Act to Hispanic-Americans.

I offered Senator SALAZAR’s amendment in the Judiciary Committee. The amendment I mentioned to do was so compelling that in a committee often fractured, it passed unanimously. It was included. It was not included in the final bill because as we were nearing the ending time, we did not want to have the bill go back and forth to the other body again because we wanted to get it on the President’s desk in time. I committed to the distinguished Senator from Colorado that I would join him again this year, and I am very pleased that the Senate Judiciary Committee will move very rapidly with that issue this year. I have the commitment of the new chairman backing that up, as does he have mine. And so I urge the Senate to quickly take up and pass this measure as we convene the new Congress and commit ourselves once again to ensuring that the great promises of the 14th and 15th Amendments are kept for all Americans.

COMPREHENSIVE IMMIGRATION REFORM

Mr. President, as this new Congress begins, we have a tremendous opportunity before us to enact fair, comprehensive immigration reform. It is time for bipartisan action. So I join with Senators with whom I sit on both sides of the aisle to call for comprehensive immigration reform, and I will work to enact it. We have to put aside the mean-spiritedness and shortsighted policies driven by fear and recognize the dignity of those whose work contributes to reinvigorating America. Consistent with our heritage as a nation of immigrants, we need to bring people out of the shadows. My maternal grandparents were immigrants to this country, my husband’s parents came as immigrants to this country. We are a nation of immigrants. And those of us who are here now should not think that somehow we got here differently. We are the same as the rest. That is not the American way.

Through comprehensive immigration reform, we can increase the opportunities for American businesses to obtain the workers they need while ensuring that priority is given to willing workers already in this country, from dairy farms in Vermont to multinational corporations. We have been told of the plight of American farmers from New York to California. We have seen the pictures of the piles of rotting fruit that have gone unharvested. We hear American technology companies lamenting lost opportunities and the loss of skilled innovators to other countries. Dairy farmers are yearning for more available legal workers in my own State of Vermont. But worse yet, others have watched families in their employ be torn apart through piece meal, inconsistent, sometimes heavy-handed enforcement efforts. I have met some of those families. I have talked to people who were fifth, sixth, seventh generation Vermonters who say how unfair it is to see these good families torn apart by seemingly arbitrary immigration enforcement.

No American farmer, no business, should be put in the position of having to choose between obeying the law or losing their livelihood.

We must streamline and reform our visa system for low-skilled workers so we can help reduce the crippling backlogs that affect American businesses. And we must increase the number of low-skilled work visas issued each year to keep up with the needs of our economy. We should enact stronger, consistent employer verification procedures. We should impose penalties for those employers who flout the law and exploit those who work here. We can do this by working together and enacting comprehensive reform.

Through comprehensive and smart reforms we can increase our security. Let us work to focus enforcement efforts and protect, our citizens from those who seek to do us harm. Let us put an end to the enforcement conditions that end in too many needless deaths in the deserts of the Southwest, families—spouses and children—who desperately try to seek the promise of America. We also have to take a smart approach in dealing with the millions of people already here, one that does not divide families and make instant criminals out of millions of people but rather honors our Nation’s best traditions. When we enact reforms to bring the millions of undocumented people of this country out of the shadows, greater accountability will follow. When we provide incentives for undocumented people to enter a path to citizenship, let us do it in a way that will live up to our traditions of citizenship and civic responsibility. When we endow those who seek to better their lives and the lives of their families with the tools to do so legally, we help instill in them a sense of belonging, of patriotism, of opportunity. Those who decry this aspect of immigration reform must carefully consider the alternative path. Among many people under ground, we foster a culture of lawlessness and mistrust.

We can’t wall ourselves off from the world. A 700-mile fence on a 2,000-mile border is not the answer. Last fall, the Republican Congress rushed through a bill to build 700 miles of fencing and did so against the advice of the Department of Homeland Security. That fence bill was neither fair nor comprehensive. I share the disappointment of tens of millions of Americans who had hoped President Bush would have exercised his constitutional authority to veto that costly, cobbled-together and mean-spirited law. Instead, the President seemed to have abandoned his principles in signing the Secure Fence Act: legislation that will cost between $2 billion and $9 billion and fail to perform as advertised to seal our southern border. Scarring our southwestern landscape with a symbol of fear, pandering to the worst instincts of those who are looking for willing workers. In numerous statements, including a speech in Mission, TX, in August 2006, he recognized that without all components of comprehensive reform working together, immigration reform will not work.

So I will continue working to enact legislation to secure our borders and strengthen our economy and bring about a realistic solution for the millions of undocumented immigrants in this country and at the same time meet the needs of millions of others who are looking for willing workers. In numerous statements, including a speech in Mission, TX, in August 2006, he recognized that without all components of comprehensive reform working together, immigration reform will not work.

Let me talk briefly about five key issues.

Let me talk briefly about five key issues. First, America needs a realistic immigration reform that will reflect the America that is a diverse country made up of people of diverse backgrounds. We will be stronger and better for it.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, before the Senate from Vermont leaves the floor, let me commend him for his remarks and the passion he brings to this subject which is based on his own personal experience but which reflects the experience of the large majority of Americans. I just want to tell him how much we all look forward to his leadership on this and so many other issues.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, might I thank the distinguished senior Senator from Michigan. He and I have been dear friends for years and years. I thank him for those words. I am also happy to see the gavel of the Armed Services Committee go into his hands.

Mr. LEVIN. I thank my dear friend from Vermont. I join him also in telling the Senate just how pleased we are to see the Presiding Officer sitting where he is. We have worked together on many issues. We have traveled together. His courage and critical issues as immigration, environment, economy, and a number of other issues has made a real difference. He is a very quick study and a quick learner, as noted when we traveled together to Iraq over to the Iraqis, but also he indeed fits the chair which he is sitting and it is a pleasure to look at him as I address the Senate for a few minutes this afternoon.

REBUILDING AMERICA’S MILITARY ACT OF 2007

Mr. President, I join my major leadership, Senator REID, in introducing S. 8, the Rebuilding America’s Military Act of 2007. Every Member of the Senate, every Democrat, every Republican, strongly supports our men and women in uniform and is committed to providing them the best equipment, and support they need and deserve. I commend Senator HARRY REID for recognizing that much needs to be done in this regard and that we need to commit ourselves to doing what needs to be done.

As the situation in Iraq has grown steadily worse over the last 3 years, our military commitments in that country have placed an increasing strain on our Armed Forces. For example, combat with the Taliban and other protective equipment have left some of our troops vulnerable in combat. Failures to fully fund special replacement and repair of equipment that has been damaged and destroyed in the course of ongoing operations endanger our troops. The decision to send our best and most ready equipment to Iraq has left the military’s nondeployed ground forces with a declining and dangerously low level of readiness to meet their wartime missions.

Let us move to the future. Let us move to the future. First, I would like to commend the Chairman and the Committee for the diligent work done in the process of this legislation. This legislation is a total unacceptable situation relative to the readiness of our forces. The repeated deployments and a sustained high operational tempo have placed increasing strains on members of the Armed Forces and their families.

It is my hope that we will change course in Iraq for many reasons, but one of them is that such a change will help address many of the problems that I have identified here in these few minutes. Placing the responsibility for the future of Iraq in the hands of the Iraqis and beginning a phased withdrawal of our troops from that country in the next 4 to 6 months would be an important step toward turning responsibility for the future of Iraq over to the Iraqis, but also a critically needed step toward rebuilding our own military. We must act to ensure that our troops have the training, equipment, and support they need to remain the strongest and best military force in the world.

Senator REID’s S. 8, Senate bill 8, the Rebuilding America’s Military Act of 2007, commits us to taking such action. I am confident that we can do so on a bipartisan basis, and I look forward to proceeding in that manner as the weeks and months unfold.

I again thank the Chair. I again commend him for the way in which he has proceeded as a Senator in so many ways and for his friendship.

I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho is recognized.

Mr. CRAIG. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. CRAIG pertaining to the introduction of S.J. Res. 1 are located in today’s RECORD under “Statements on Introduced bills and Joint Resolutions.”)

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I ask each side, the Democratic and Republican sides, be given an additional 10 minutes in this period, I will take the first 5 minutes of that, and then my colleague from California, Senator BOXER, will take the second 5 minutes of the Democratic time remaining for us.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NATIONAL ENERGY AND ENVIRONMENT SECURITY ACT OF 2007

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to cosponsor S. 6, which is the National Energy and Environment Security Act of 2007. This is a message bill that Senator Reid introduced earlier today. It lays out a number of important goals that will guide our thinking and action on energy-related matters, including the issue of global warming, in the 110th Congress.

Let me talk briefly about five key goals that are mentioned in the bill. These goals will be subject to much discussion in the weeks and months to come.

1. Let us move to the future.

Let us move to the future. Let us move to the future. First, I would like to commend the Chairman and the Committee for the diligent work done in the process of this legislation. This legislation is a total unacceptable situation relative to the readiness of our forces. The repeated deployments and a sustained high operational tempo have placed increasing strains on members of the Armed Forces and their families.

Placing the responsibility for the future of Iraq in the hands of the Iraqis and beginning a phased withdrawal of our troops from that country in the next 4 to 6 months would be an important step toward turning responsibility for the future of Iraq over to the Iraqis, but also a critically needed step toward rebuilding our own military. We must act to ensure that our troops have the training, equipment, and support they need to remain the strongest and best military force in the world.

Senator REID’s S. 8, Senate bill 8, the Rebuilding America’s Military Act of 2007, commits us to taking such action. I am confident that we can do so on a bipartisan basis, and I look forward to proceeding in that manner as the weeks and months unfold.

Mr. CRAIG. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. CRAIG pertaining to the introduction of S.J. Res. 1 are located in today’s RECORD under “Statements on Introduced bills and Joint Resolutions.”)

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I ask each side, the Democratic and Republican sides, be given an additional 10 minutes in this period. I will take the first 5 minutes of that, and then my colleague from California, Senator BOXER, will take the second 5 minutes of the Democratic time remaining for us.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
The first goal of the bill is to reduce our dependence on foreign and unsustainable energy sources. Any national energy strategy to reduce that dependence will have to maintain our domestic production of oil and gas as well as three basic initiatives. The first of those initiatives is to greatly increase the efficiency of the cars and trucks that we put on the road in this country. There are a lot of ideas on how to do this. They include several proposals for increased CAFE standards already called for by many—standards that send signals to the market to encourage the production and sale of high efficiency vehicles. I look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to try to move those proposals forward.

Another way to reduce our dependence is to further develop alternative fuels, particularly biofuels. In that regard we need to focus on broadening the base of biological feedstocks that are used as fuels such as ethanol. This is an issue we will be focusing on in the Energy Committee.

A third way is to look at the other new technologies to power our cars and our trucks. There is much promise in hybrid technologies with larger batteries that can be charged overnight, so-called plug-in hybrids. This sort of technology can help reduce demand for gasoline for short trips and deserves further attention.

The second goal in the bill is to reduce our exposure to the risks of global warming. While there are several Senate committees with great interest in this issue, obviously the Environment Committee has a primary role and the primary jurisdiction. But over 95 percent of the U.S. carbon dioxide emissions and nearly 85 percent of all U.S. greenhouse gas emissions come from energy production, distribution, and use. We want to work with other committees to come up with the best way to deal with this important issue and to balance environmental imperatives with the need for reliable and affordable energy into the future.

The third goal in the bill is to diversify and expand our use of secure, efficient, and environmentally friendly energy supplies and technologies. Efficiency is a key element in our energy policy. It deserves more attention in this Congress than we have been able to give it in the past. There are outstanding opportunities to reduce the demands of our future energy system by being more efficient and effective in the ways we distribute and use energy.

As one example, most incandescent light bulbs are only 5 percent efficient, so they waste 95 percent of the energy that goes into them. Fluorescent lighting is only 20 percent efficient. There is no fundamental scientific reason why lighting has to waste so much energy. New technologies are on the horizon that can make them as efficient as 100 percent efficiency. Even if we were to make all lighting in the United States just 50 percent efficient, we would eliminate the need for the equivalent of 70,000 megawatt nuclear power plants. Examples like this present a compelling case for pushing energy efficiency, and I expect that we will have a strong focus on these opportunities in this Congress.

A fourth goal of the bill is to reduce the burdens on consumers of rising energy prices. We need to make sure that programs such as the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program are fully funded and targeted at low-income and working families. The fifth goal in the bill is to eliminate unnecessary tax giveaways and prevent energy price gouging and manipulation. We need to take a broad look at the incentives we have in place for energy production on both the tax side and the royalty side, to ensure that we have the most effective mix of incentives going forward. We are all agreed that those are issues that need attention.

The United States has one of the most favorable set of fiscal policies for production of oil and gas in the world today. Some of those fiscal incentives may be redundant at the price levels we are currently seeing. There are big problems in the royalty system being managed by the Department of the Interior, with some companies getting royalty treatment that Congress never intended them to receive. We will be looking at these issues closely in this new Congress. We will be examining how to rebalance the system, both from the perspective of having fair and effective royalty and tax policies for oil and gas and from the perspective of having effective tax and other incentives to promote other forms of energy, such as production of electricity from wind solar, geothermal, and renewable sources.

All of this is a tall order for Congress. I predict instead of seeing just one big energy bill, we will be addressing these issues through multiple bills that move through the Senate as issues and proposals for addressing these issues become ripe for action. In the Senate we will not make much progress on energy or environment unless we can develop a strong bipartisan approach on the issues. The Committee on Energy and Natural Resources has a strong tradition of bipartisan accomplishment that I plan on continuing in this new Congress. I look forward to working with my colleagues, Senator PETE DOMENICI, and all members of the committee as we forge an effective path forward to promote our energy and energy-related environmental security.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, it is wonderful to see you sitting there and to tell you, as I know you will be very pleased with this news, that S. 6, which has been introduced by Leader Reid, is called the National Energy and Environmental Security Act of 2007. That means Senator REID is sending a signal to all of us here, both sides of the aisle, that we are going to put the environmental issue back front and center and we are going to put the energy issue front and center and we are going to do everything we can do to become energy independent and to preserve this planet for future generations.

This is a very emotional day for me in a very good way because I am assuming the Chair of the Environment and Public Works Committee, which is a dream come true for me. Since I started my career, the environment has always been one of my favorite issues. In California it is a bipartisan signature issue. We all work together, Republicans and Democrats and Independents, because we understand that the health of our planet and the health of our families is very important. America has always taken the lead. Somehow, recently, we have lost our way.

Often times when I speak about the environment, people are stunned to see that, indeed, Republican Presidents have taken the lead on the environment. Dwight Eisenhower set aside the area that is now part of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and said we should not destroy this beautiful part of the world. Richard Nixon created the Environmental Protection Agency, and then you look at Jimmy Carter who I believe created Superfund. Presidents of both parties worked with Congress to write the Clean Air Act, the Safe Drinking Water Act—it has been, I think, a backpedaling of environmental laws and regulations that has undermined the bipartisan issue of the environment.

I have three goals for this committee. No. 1 is to protect this planet. I think that is our moral obligation. I view it as a spiritual obligation. No. 2 is to protect the health of our families, the health of our children. I view that as a moral obligation and a spiritual obligation. My third goal for the committee is to bring back bipartisanship. We have had, in this great committee, great leaders from both parties. Already I have begun reaching out to Republican friends. Of course we know there will be disagreements. But I can tell you, and I want to reassure the American people that we are working together. Today I had an open house at the committee room and in walked my Democratic colleagues and my Republican colleagues. My former chairman, JAMES INHOFE, was the first Senator to come by and we had a series of Senators come by—Senator ISAiSON, Senator OBAMA, Senator LOT~ENBERG, Senator AL~EXANDER, Senator VIT~TER, and Senator WARNER. It was a wonderful experience for me to sit there and see that in fact we are getting off on the right foot.

I want to tell you how good I feel about S. 6 because it lays down a marker and it says we have to do something about energy efficiency and we have to do something about global warming. If we do not act on global warming, our children and our grandchildren will wonder why we walked away from them. How could we have walked away from them? We do not want to walk away from them. I don’t know any Member of this Senate who would knowingly walk away from their future family. Scientists are telling us we need to take action soon in order to avoid dangerous global warming. If we fall to act, we could reach the tipping point with irreversible consequences.

I argue on both sides of the aisle, today I believe we have no choice but to act to slow global warming. We should look at our actions as an insurance policy. Yes, scientists will disagree. Some will say horrific things will happen. I don’t know of any respected scientist who thinks nothing will happen. But for bad things or horrific things, we need an insurance policy. We need to be conservative. We need to do what we can to protect those future generations so when they look back at us, they will say: They stepped up and did the right thing.

It is hard to persuade people to act when the consequences of inaction lie down the road. But we are smart enough, we are wise enough to do something about global warming.

Here is the good news. Whatever we do about global warming, to reduce greenhouse gases, has a beneficial effect on our society. That is why it is something I think we can wrap our arms around. When we do something for energy efficiency, to cut back on the carbon dioxide, what does it mean? It means we save money in our pockets, if we drive fuel-efficient automobiles, alternative fuel vehicles, hybrid vehicles, cellulosic fuel vehicles. It helps us keep money in our pockets. It says we don’t have to rely on foreign countries to make ends meet and sense. It means we will be developing technologies that we can export to the rest of the world.

Today, as the incoming Chair of the Environment and Public Works Committee, I am embarrassed to say to the people of the United States that of the 56 emitters of greenhouse gases in the order of what they have done to help solve the problem, we are 53 out of 56. Only a few countries have done less than we have done and those countries are China, Malaysia, and Saudi Arabia. I am embarrassed to stand here and say that to the American people, but I must speak the truth to the American people. We are the No. 1 emitter of greenhouse gases and we are 53rd out of 56 countries in doing something about it.

All this is going to change. I think it is going to change because the people want us to change. The people want us to lead.

I look around and see, for example, Wal-Mart—Wal-Mart, with whom I have disagreed on so many labor issues I can’t even start to tell you the story about that, but here is what they are doing. They want to sell millions and millions of energy-efficient lightbulbs. These lightbulbs will save so much energy, these lightbulbs will save the consumer so much money, and I am very pleased to see that business is stepping up to the plate.

I am also pleased to see the State of California passing landmark legislation to fight global warming—my State—and doing it on such a bipartisan basis. This is very exciting for me.

We have a great bill that will be introduced by the Senator from Vermont, Mr. SANDERS. That will be the same bill written by former Senator JEFFORDS, a great leader on the Committee on Environment and Public Works, before retirement. I have to try to fill his shoes. This great bill is modeled after the California bill and will tackle this issue in a way which will be good for the environment, good for the health of the Senate, good for our foreign policy, and good for the export of new technologies, meaning more jobs here. We can do this. We can reduce costs for consumers, for businesses.

Energy efficiency is the name of the game. It is the easiest way to get more energy.

Everyone who knows me knows I want to pass the greatest bill in the history of mankind to fight global warming. Everyone knows I want to do that because I know it is going to go as far as we can go. I am an idealist when it comes to this, but I am also a pragmatist. So we will work our colleagues in the Senate, both sides of the aisle, Republicans, Independents, and Democrats. We will open the committee to all the Senators. We will listen to their ideas. We will listen to their views. We will take the best of those ideas, we will sit down, and we will work hard and get a bill. That day will come in the near future. At that time, the faith the people have placed in Congress, once again, that faith will be restored. Some of it was lost because in many ways we took our eye off of what we had to do.

When people ask me, What is it like in the Congress, what do you like to do in the Congress, I say, Let’s face it, the easiest thing is to do nothing. When you do something, somebody gets nervous about it, but when we have an issue such as global warming, which is a national security threat—and the Pentagon has told us it is a national security threat because if waters rise and there are refugees all over the world, the instability that will follow will be absolutely enormous; it will create a threat. There are predictions that if we have bad global warming, we will have weather extremes with droughts and floods and all the problems we have been getting a little look at through the lens of the last couple of years.

I know that. I can tell you, I say to my friends on the other side of the aisle. You never know when you will be born or whom you will come to know.

I have gotten to know the Senator presiding. I am fortunate to have friends on both sides of the aisle. I am fortunate to have the State that has as its core value protecting God’s green Earth and this planet. I am going to bring all that enthusiasm to the committee. I am going to be patient. We are going to listen. We are going to write a bill and bring it here.

I say to Majority Leader REID, it means so much to me to have as one of the top bills a bill that uses the word ‘environment’ in the title. I cannot state how long I have been waiting for that. We have it in S. 6. It is called the National Energy and Environment Security Act of 2007. It is an apt name because when we take care of the environment, we are taking care of our own security and the health of our families. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AGENDA FOR COLORADO

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, today we start the 110th Congress of the United States. We embark on a 2-year journey to submit, consider, debate, improve, and eventually pass legislation on behalf of the greater good of our constituents and the American people. Accordingly, I have here today a package of legislative proposals which I believe will benefit Colorado and the country. This package is the first chapter of what I hope becomes a legislative agenda for Colorado and the Nation. These 15 bills address matters from healthcare to housing, land usage to veterans, and Homeland Security to drug trafficking prevention.

firstly, let me congratulate the presiding officer for having assumed position today at this hour. this senator has long-term admiration for senator from illinois, great work he has done, and for contributions to this body. let me also say that come here today, i congratulate both our majority leader, senator reid, for his leadership, and senator mconnell, for his leadership as minority leader, and for having brought the members of this body together to start new beginning, which is based on a sense that we should do better by working together, and that the politics of division of past are politics that we will be able to transcend and move forward with a positive and strong agenda that will make our country and the world a stronger and safer place.

i also congratulate senator reid and the leadership for the 10 bills introduced today. i believe those bills we discussed about giving the opportunity to find that new beginning for issues that urgently need to be addressed by the congress and by this president. i am hopeful that in the days and weeks and months ahead, we will, in fact, be the kind of senate and congress that gets results on these important initiatives.

i don't want to comment on all 10 pieces of legislation today, but i will make reference to a couple of them. first, with respect to energy, i think all of us in this body recognize that it is time for us to embrace a true ethic of energy independence. for a long time, we have given rhetoric to the issue of energy and our overdependence on oil from the middle east and other places. i think today republicans and democrats, and the americans, have come together to say we know what the answer is to this. it is not as difficult as other areas we have to deal with, such as health care. the national renewable energy lab in my home state of colorado is working with us. if we put our minds together, we can produce 30 to 40 percent of our energy from renewable energy sources. we can use new technologies that are out there to get to energy independence.

the only thing lacking, really, has been the will of the leadership of america to move forward to get us to that energy independence. in my view, it is important that we do so, first, because our national security is dependent upon our being energy independent. we ought not to be in a position where the national sovereignty and security of this nation is held hostage to the whims of the middle east and those who happen to have oil wealth under their sand. secondly, it is important for the economic security of our country that we move forward with energy independence because we move forward, we will find economic opportunity, including economic opportunity for rural america, to help us grow our way to energy independence. finally, we will be able to deal with the environmental security issues that are very much at stake in this energy debate.

i want to comment on the importance of education and the college affordability act, which has been presented today by senator reid. for many of us who know the promise of america, we know that promise of america has come about through the educational opportunities we receive. for many of us in this chamber, including senator murray, who spoke a few minutes ago—she talked about the promise of america delivered through the educational opportunities which she had. even though she was one of seven children and had a father who had multiple sclerosis, she achieved the highest level of the american dream because that educational opportunity was given to her. i and others have gone through similar circumstances. in my own case, in colorado, my father and mother never had an opportunity to get a college degree. we were poor, and that didn't have electricity and a telephone.

yet the promise of america and the promise of education was something that was constantly talked about to us by our parents. i often remember my father going around the table at our ranch making sure all eight of his children were doing their homework because he knew that education would allow them to seek horizons and get to places he had not been able to reach. over time, all eight of his children became first-generation college graduates.

i hope we can embrace electively as a senate moving forward in a comprehensive way.

finally, let me make a quick remark on the issue of immigration reform. we spent a lot of time on immigration here in the senate. a few months ago, a successful bipartisan compromise to move forward. i am hopeful that as we look at the months ahead, we are able to work with president bush and our democratic and republican colleagues to fashion a comprehensive immigration reform package that will deliver an effective immigration law for our country.

in my view, that immigration reform package has to have three principles at its center. first, we have to secure our borders. i believe that introduced today will, in fact, help us make sure our borders are secure. we as a sovereign nation have to make sure we are securing our borders. secondly, we need to enforce our laws within our country. for too long we have looked the other way and the laws of immigration in our country simply have not been enforced. the measure we passed last year put together the pieces to allow us to enforce our immigration laws. finally, from both a human and a moral and economic perspective, we need to find ways of bringing the 12 million people who now live in the shadows of America out into the sunlight of America. Those people are here working today, as they have been for many years. Their reality has in fact been recognized but somehow ignored. We need to find a way to make sure that we bring those people from the shadows into the sunlight, and the only way we will be able to do that is with a comprehensive immigration reform package that we pushed forward last year and, hopefully, we will have another push this year to put forward in the manner of the bill introduced today by Senator Reid.

I very much look forward to working with my colleagues, both Democrats and Republicans, in this body as we address the major issues facing our Nation and our world. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma is recognized.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be recognized for such time as I may consume.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION APPROPRIATIONS

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I have a couple of concerns here. One is a driving concern. After having served on the House Armed Services Committee before and for the last 12 years on the Senate Armed Services Committee, I am deeply distressed that we did not get our MilCon Appropriations bill passed. I don’t think a lot of people realize how significant it is that we get it passed for this fiscal year, 2007.

The partisan issues that some people are trying to tie up on the floor are nowhere near as important as this issue, and I am talking about some of the other bills. It is true that we need to have a good national defense appropriation bill, but it is not life-threatening and certainly not going to result in the loss of lives of our fighting troops. Labor-HHS is important but not as important as this bill. Commerce-State-Justice—a lot of those items can be put into a CR. I would have no problem with a continuing resolution. But as far as this bill is concerned, if we don’t do it now, there are a lot of items in conjunction with our BRAC process that are not going to happen and have to happen and are life-threatening to our troops.

I compliment Senator Hutchinson, who was chairman of the Subcommittee on Military Construction. She tried so hard in the last 2 days of the last session to get this bill through. Quite frankly, it wasn’t really a problem in the Senate as much as it was in the other body. We tried very hard. We talked with a number of people and were unable to get that bill done.

Over the past few years, the military has sought to reshape itself out of a Cold War footing into a modern, more modular force. It has tried to reconstitute its equipment, while at the same time fighting a war in Iraq and Afghanistan. It has been forced to come to Congress for supplements to meet just the bare minimum requirements of fighting the war and rebuilding the military infrastructure.

So we have stretched them every way we can. We have cut into almost every program, essential initiatives such as the Future Combat System. That is a recognition, after the 1990s, when we let our modernization slide and a lot of our equipment—out of our inventory so that when we send our kids into battle, we send them with the very best of equipment. If we look at some of our ground equipment, such as our artillery pieces, it is World War II technology. It is the old Paladin where they actually have to swab the breech after every shot.

The Future Combat System came up, and there was a recognition that we should have an army, a ground force that is faster, more agile, more transportable, more modern than it is today. Every week that goes by that we don’t get this done, it is causing the Future Combat System—there are about 19 elements of it—to move to the right and delay this from being a reality.

The fiscal year 2007 Military Construction Appropriations bill was not passed into law. The continuing resolution, as currently enacted, does not allow the Department of Defense to proceed with billions of dollars in new construction and BRAC projects authorized by Congress in the 2007 authorization bill.

Let me mention what will happen if we don’t do this. There are so many things having to do with the BRAC process. I opposed the last BRAC round. We went ahead and had it, and I think that is probably the last we will have for a long period of time. It has a deadline of 2011. If we don’t get this bill passed, S. 113, we have a number of cosponsors. Most of the Republican members of the Senate Armed Services Committee are on it.

The 1st Armored Division will have to stay in Germany if we don’t get this passed. If that happens, we are not going to be able to have the two modular combat brigade teams we so critically need on the front lines. We are talking about the war that is taking place right now and why we need to get this MILCON appropriations bill passed.

The Army National Guard and Reserve lack $1.1 billion to construct and replace aviation support facilities. They cannot function without these facilities. The postponement of construction of 250 new homes at the naval base in Guam and the Marine Corps logistics base in Barstow, CA, are just some of the housing needs that will not be able to be continued. Of course, they will cost more money the longer we put them off.

We opened up some serious shortfalls in our UHF—that is, ultra high frequency—satellite communications capabilities. Two of the $6.5 million mobile user objective systems ground control tracking stations were slated for Hawaii and Sigonella, Italy. Without the stations, the already-funded satellites have the satellites ready to go—cannot launch until we get this bill passed.

We went through months of agonizing discomfort in deciding what are we going to do with the F-22, C-17, C-5, C-9, F-16. Some in terms of the locations. That has all been determined. It has been outlined in BRAC, but we can’t do it until we have the hangars to take care of them, to get them into the new areas.

What we are talking about are items that directly affect the warfighting effort. The Predator, for example, has the tactical air control program that should be supporting the Army brigade combat teams.

I think we all know our ground forces have to have support, either close air support or artillery support. We can’t do the close air support if we don’t have the appropriations bill passed.

The Predator mission—a lot of people are not aware of this; they think of it as being intelligence-gathering agencies and a communications system targeting and retargeting on the ground. What is that is very important and it has to be done, a lot of people don’t realize the Predator also has the capability of firing a rocket. So we need to have that program. We cannot have it unless we get this bill passed.

The military is going to lose a lot if we don’t get this bill passed. We look at the military construction that is going on in the continental United States and we see the community support—in my State of Oklahoma, we have five major military installations. They are located near major cities. Vance Air Force Base is in Enid, OK. Then we have Altus, Lawton, McAlester, Oklahoma City, and Mid- west City. We have a bill in our BRAC process because we have greater community support than most other installations. But when you have a community that has made a commitment toward MILCON, it is dedicated to the assumption that we are going to pass our Military Construction appropriations bill and then we don’t do it, they could very well renege on their commitment for housing, hospitalization, and childcare. It is far more significant than most people realize. If we don’t pass the needed funding, the results will be very serious.

I have in front of me a letter signed by Army Secretary Harvey and General Schoomaker: The potential negative effects on operational readiness cannot be overemphasized; the Army’s ability to prosecute the Global War on Terrorism and to prepare for future conflicts would be gravely hampered. If we don’t pass the needed funding, the results will be very serious.

Another letter from Navy Secretary Donald Winter and Marine Corps Commandant GEN James T. Conway and ADM Michael G. Mullen:
The lack of construction money—"is precluding our ability to modernize, govern-ment owned or privatized quality housing to our Sailors, Marines and their families at a time when the War on Terror is placing enormous stress on our military and our military families."

I am going to be looking for every op-portunity to get this bill up for consid-eration. Again, I am concerned about all legislation bills, and a con-tinuing resolution, as far as I am con-cerned, at least is going to take care of those needs. But the one thing it can-not do is take care of the military con-struction needs we will have to ad-dress.

That bill is S. 113. I look forward to it coming up for consideration. We al-ready have, as I mentioned, most mem-bers of the Armed Services Committee cosponsoring this legislation.

POLAR BEARS

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I do not see anyone else in the Chamber right now. I wish to speak on a totally dif-ferent subject.

Up until yesterday, turn-of-day, as the Presiding Officer knows, I have chaired the Environment and Public Works Committee for 4 years. I have enjoyed that very much. I will be turn-ing that over now to Senator BARBARA BOXER. We will still be working very closely together.

One thing that happened a few days ago that I think is worth getting on the record and talking about a little bit, because this is something which is going to come up in our discussions in that committee, is, as you probably no-ticed, Mr. President, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service recently took some ac-tion to begin formal consideration of whether to list the polar bear as a threatened species under the Endan-gered Species Act. The Service then extrapolates that the polar bear population is 20,000 to 25,000 bears, whereas in the fifties and sixties, the estimates were as low as 5,000 to 10,000 bears, and most of that was due to sport hunting at that time, and most of that has been banned.

A 2002 U.S. Geological Survey study of wildlife in the Arctic Refuge Coastal Plain noted that the polar bear popula-tions many now be near historic highs.

So if the number of polar bears does not appear to be in decline, then why are we considering listing the species as threatened? Because the Endangered Species Act is broken. It needs to be fixed. We tried to fix it for the past 4 years. We have been unable to reach a consensus.

The ESA allows the Fish and Wildlife Service to list the entire range of polar bears as threatened and thereby extend a wide array of regulatory restrictions to them and their habitat despite the dearth of data and a lack of scientific evidence that polar bears are, indeed, in trouble.

The law also allows for the Fish and Wildlife Service to justify its proposal on a sample from a single population in western Hudson Bay in Canada where the populations have decreased by 259 polar bears in the last 17 years. Stop and think about this. This is the western Hudson Bay in Canada, 1 of 19 sites.

The population has decreased by 259 polar bears in the last 17 years; how-ever, the figures that the International Union of Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources says that 234 bears have been killed in the last 5 years alone. If you figure that 234 have been killed in the last 5 years, the total in the last 17 years is 259, you have to as-sume that more than the 259 were actu-ally shot. Ironically, Canada now is lib-eralizing a lot of their hunting in that area, and it is going to allow more hunting. This is something they need to address.

At this point, I would like to say that while I support hunting as a general matter, we need to fully understand its impact in the population before we blame global warming for changes in bear population. I already said we can document pretty well—scien-tifically it is documented—that the num-ber of bears has actually increased in some areas where hunting is more prevalent.

I think there are a lot of people who want to somehow insert global warm-ing as a crisis in everything and use polar bears for that reason, and we are not going to let that take place.

The Fish and Wildlife Service asserts that the reason for the decline in the western Hudson Bay population is cli-mate-change-induced ice melting. To make that assertion, they rely on hypo-thetical climate change computer models showing massive loss of ice and irreparable damages in the polar bear’s habitat.

The Service then extrapolates that reasoning to the other 18 popu-lations of polar bears. There are 19 popu-lations in total. 1 of those 18 is in trouble, but they use that as the model, and they take that and apply that same extrapo-lation to the other 18 populations of polar bears, making the assumption all bears in these populations will eventually decline and go extinct.

Again, this conclusion is not based on field data but hypothetical mod-eling, and that is considered perfectly acceptable scientific evidence under the Endangered Species Act.

That is why it should be changed. I do not believe our Fish and Wildlife Service to justify its proposal on a hypothet-ical computer projections because the stakes of listing a decision under ESA could be extremely high. The list-ing of the polar bear is no exception. The ESA is the most effective Federal tool to usurp local land use control and undermine private property rights. As landowners and businesses have known for decades, when you want to stop a development project or just about any other activity, find a species on that land to protect and things will slow down and many times they stop. It could be the bearing beetle, the Arkan-sas shiner, and now it could be the polar bear. This is because section 7 of the ESA requires that any project that affects an endangered or threatened species or its habitat concerns of polar bears to glob-alize and determine if the project may affect an endangered or threatened spe-cies.

So in the case of the polar bear listing, oil and gas exploration in Alaska, which accounts for 85 percent of the State’s revenue and 25 percent of the Nation’s domestic oil production, is immediately called into question. Likewise, the State’s shipping, high-way construction or fishing activities will also be subject to Federal scrutiny under section 7.

Furthermore, because the Fish and Wildlife Service has linked the icefloe habitation concerns of polar bears to glob-alization, the Federal Government around the country could be chal-lenged. Some would say this isn’t pos-sible or that I am exaggerating. But if
Mr. Taylor tells us that in many parts of Canada, "polar bears are very abundant and productive. In some areas, they are overly abundant. I understand that people not living in the North have difficulty grasping the concept of too many polar bears, but those who live here have a pretty good grasp of what that is like." Those cuddly white bears are the Earth's largest land carnivores.

There is no doubt that higher temperatures threaten polar bear habitat by melting sea ice. Mr. Kempthorne says he had little choice because the threshold for triggering a study under the Endangered Species Act is low. The Bush Administration was correct to be wary of the unusual specter of a president staking his political career on making this decision, which means that Interior will now conduct a year-long review before any formal listing decision is made. Nonetheless, the bears seem to have survived despite many other severe warming and cooling periods over the last few thousands of years. Polar bears are also protected from poaching and environmental damage by the Marine Mammal Protection Act, so there is little extra advantage to the bears themselves from being reclassified.

All of which suggests that the real story here is a human one, namely about the politics of global warming. Once a plant or animal is listed under the Endangered Species Act, the government must also come up with an elaborate plan to protect its habitat. If the polar bear is endangered by warmer temperatures and hence endangered by human actions, the government will have to think — and say — the right things.

The Presiding Officer. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD as follows:

(From the Wall Street Journal, Jan. 3, 2007)

POLAR BEAR POLITICS—USING AN "ENDANGERED" SPECIES TO CHANGE ENERGY POLICY

Unless you've been hibernating for the winter, you have no doubt heard the many alarms about global warming. Now even the Bush Administration is getting into the act, at least that's the plan by Interior Secretary Dirk Kempthorne to recommend that the majestic polar bear be listed as "threatened" under the Endangered Species Act. The blower you inspect this decision, however, the more it looks like the triumph of politics over science.

"We are concerned," said Mr. Kempthorne, that "the polar bears' habitat may literally be melting" due to warmer Arctic temperatures. However, when we called Interior spokesman Hugh Vickery for some elaboration on this "enhanced design, as categorical, even a tad defensive. The "enhanced" designation is based less on the actual number of bears in Alaska than on "projections into the future." Mr. Vickery said, adding that the "projection models" are "tricky business."

Apparently so, because there are in fact more polar bears in the world now than there were 40 years ago, as the nearby chart shows. The main threat to polar bears in recent decades has been from hunting, with estimates as low as 5,000 to 10,000 bears in the 1950s and 1960s. But thanks to conservation efforts, and some cross-border cooperation among the U.S., Canada and Russia, the best estimate is that the polar bear population is 20,000 to 25,000.

It also turns out that most of the alarm over the polar bear's future stems from a single, peer-reviewed study, which found that the bear population had declined by some 250, or 25 percent, in Western Hudson Bay in the last decade. But the polar bear's range is far more extensive than Hudson Bay. A 2002 U.S. Geological Survey of wildlife in the Arctic Refuge Coastal Plain concluded that the ice bear populations "may now be near historic highs." The leading expert on the polar bear, Mitchell Taylor, the manager of wildlife resources for the Nunavut territory in Canada, has found that the Canadian polar bear population has actually increased by 25 percent—to 15,000 from 12,000 over the past decade.

Mr. Kempthorne announced his study than Mr. Chafee, the ranking Democrat on the Marine Mammal Protection Act, so there is little extra advantage to the bears themselves from being reclassified.

All of which suggests that the real story here is a human one, namely about the politics of global warming. Once a plant or animal is listed under the Endangered Species Act, the government must also come up with an elaborate plan to protect its habitat. Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Kentucky, Mr. BUNNING, I thank the Chair.

RESTORING FISCAL DISCIPLINE

ACT OF 2007

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, on this very first day of the first session of the 110th Congress, I am proud to introduce, with Majority Leader REID, the Restoring Fiscal Discipline Act of 2007.

The act includes this act in our top 10 legislative priorities. Democrats are sending a message. We are saying to the Nation that it is time to restore fiscal discipline in Washington.

Unfortunately, we are inheriting a fiscal mess. It is a fiscal mess of historic proportion. The head of the Government Accountability Office, General Walker, has told us:

The U.S. Government is on an imprudent and unsustainable fiscal path.

General Walker is right. General Walker is the head of the Government Accountability Office. He is the person responsible for reporting to Congress on our fiscal condition, and he is warning us of the serious course correction that is required. As General Walker has said, as I agree, our budget outlook is far worse than what has been claimed. The increase in debt in 2006 is far greater than the reported deficit.

But it is very interesting how the media reports these things to the American people. They say to the American people that the deficit last year was $238 billion. That is true. What they do not tell the American people, what is not said, is the debt last year increased by $546 billion—almost $300 billion more than the stated deficit. This is an utterly unsustainable course. To add almost $550 billion of debt in 1 year after having done about that amount each of the last 5 years has put us on a course that is utterly unsustainable. It fundamentally threatens America's economic security.

Read the reports. Yesterday and today in the national newspapers you saw stories about the declining value of the dollar. The dollar has been in a deep slide for 3 months. There are reports of countries, one after another, announcing that they intend to diversify their investments out of dollar-denominated securities. There is a massive move to all currencies. There is a warning, a warning, a warning of America's preeminent position in the financial world being threatened. It is being threatened by a mountain of debt.

I have tried to put into visual terms how dramatically the change in debt has been in just the last few years. When this President came to office, after his last full year, the debt stood at $5.8 trillion. We do not hold him responsible for his first year because obviously he was operating under the budget of the previous administration. But look what has happened since. The debt has skyrocketed to $8.5 trillion. If the President's course is pursued, over the next 5 years the debt will rise inexorably to $11.6 trillion, and all of this at the worst possible time, before the baby boom generation retires. This is a time we should be paying down debt, not exploding debt. There is no sober or objective observer who does not recognize the fundamental threat to our economic security caused by these budget policies. We must change course.

The result of this rising debt is that increasingly we are borrowing the funds to float this boat from abroad. In 2005, our Nation borrowed 65 percent of all the money that was borrowed in the world by countries. Let me repeat that. In 2005, our Nation borrowed 65 percent of all the money that was borrowed by countries in the world. The second biggest borrower was Spain. They borrowed one-tenth as much.

As we look back, this is a historic time with great challenges. The question before this body and the Congress of the United States and this President will have to face honestly with the American people about the extent of our financial problems. This is a moment of testing. Will we be honest? Will we be truthful? Will we make the tough choices that are required?

In recent years, foreign holdings of our debt have doubled. In other words, it took 42 Presidents 224 years to run up $1 trillion of U.S. debt held abroad. That amount has more than doubled in just the last 5 years. This is a course that cannot be sustained. It must be changed.

I come to the floor today to offer an important measure, a measure to restore fiscal discipline, by reimposing the pay-go rule that was so effective in the 1990s at helping us get back on track after the record deficits of the 1980s.

We know that pay-go works. It was instrumental in our turning deficits into surpluses in the 1990s. The pay-go rule worked: If you want more tax cuts you have to pay for them. If you want new mandatory spending you have to pay for it. If you do not pay for it, you have to muster a supermajority vote on the floor of the Senate for more tax cuts or new mandatory spending to go forward.

That is a good rule, but it will not solve the problem. No one should over-promise. No one should overstate. It is going to take serious, consistent discipline on spending, on revenue, and on entitlement reform for us to truly make progress.

In the joint caucus this morning, the leadership called on all of us to set aside partisanship to make genuine progress. This is going to be an area in which we have that opportunity. We have a window of opportunity, before we get into the next election cycle, to face up to these fiscal challenges. One part of a successful strategy is to reimpose the pay-go discipline. It is not the only thing, but it is a beginning.

In addition to reestablishing the pay-go rule, the legislation I am offering today prohibits the use of the fast-track reconciliation process for any legislation that would add to the deficit. Reconciliation is a big word; it is a fancy word. It confuses people, but it is a special process in the Senate to go around the standard rules of this body to pass legislation. It circumscribes Senate members’ ability to offer amendments. It sets a strict time limit on debate. The only reason those procedures were ever adopted in this body—the only reason—was to reduce budget deficits. Unfortunately in the last 6 years those special procedures have been used to increase deficits, not to reduce deficits. That stood the whole rationale for reconciliation on its head.

It is time for us to go back to the reconciliation process that was intended and only use those extraordinary procedures for reducing deficits, not for increasing them.

(Mrs. MURRAY assumed the Chair.)

Mr. CONRAD. I note the very distinguished Member of the Senate, the Senator from the State of Washington and a member of the Senate Budget Committee, who understands full well the subject we are discussing today and the critical need for our Nation to return to a sound fiscal course. I offer this measure today to restore fiscal discipline. I ask my colleagues to bring their ideas to the Senate floor. You have my commitment as the incoming chairman of the Senate Budget Committee to do my level best to bring our country back. Our country needs us now. Our country needs us to be truthful and honest and to work together.

I felt, in the Senate Chamber this morning, a new spirit, a new sense of possibility—perhaps the chance that we can come together in a way that would make us all proud.

I very much hope we seize that opportunity. I look forward to working with my colleagues to achieve that result.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to close the roll.

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

REINTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, on the first day of the 110th Congress, it is an appropriate time to reintroduce legislation which was introduced in the 109th Congress which was not enacted. I have a number of legislative proposals to introduce today and to discuss.

The remarks of Mr. SPECTER pertaining to the introduction of S. 186, S. 186, and S. 187 are located in today’s Record under “Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.”

STEM CELL RESEARCH

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, I strongly support legislation introduced earlier today which would permit Federal funding to be used for embryonic stem cell research. That is a subject which has been at the top of my agenda since November of 1998 when stem cells were first exposed. In December 1998, the Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health, Human Services and Education held the first hearing to explore the potential of embryonic stem cell research. In the intervening years the committee has held some 19 hearings exploring this issue in some great detail.

The Specter-Harkin bill was passed last year, vetoed by the President, and the bill is back before the Congress this year where it may be possible to override a Presidential veto. That depends upon how much public support there is—really, how much public clamor there is—for this legislation to be enacted.

Embryonic stem cells have the potential to replace diseased cells. They are a veritable fountain of youth. They have enormous potential in Parkinson’s, Alzheimer’s, cancer, heart disease, and almost all of the known maladies. I don’t know of any malady where they are not a potential for a cure because the cells in a person’s body become diseased, and if the embryonic stem cell can replace the diseased cell, there is a potential for a cure.

There is opposition to this legislation on the ground that it would destroy life. That is factually not correct because there are some 400,000 embryos created for in vitro fertilization which are going to be destroyed. When the issue was raised about destroying a life, the subcommittee took the lead and appropriated $2 million to facilitate adoptions. There have only been about 100 adoptions in the past several years, so there is a fear that using some of these embryonic stem cells will not destroy life because they will not be used to create life. If there were any chance they would create life, I would not consider utilizing them for medical research.

When the alternative is to throw them away or to use them, it seems to me a clear choice to utilize them to save lives and fight disease. That is the thrust of this legislation.
Constitution says that we present a bill to the President; he either signs it or vetoes it. His veto is subject to override on a two-thirds vote. But, the President cannot pick and choose among the provisions of the act.

When we passed the PATRIOT Act, there were provisions very carefully negotiated as to congressional oversight. No objection had been raised by the Department of Justice in our discussions as we negotiated about the bill. And then, when the President signed the bill, the President specifically said that he would not pay attention to those provisions if he felt that his Executive power would be impinged upon. If he disagreed with the provisions, he should have told us before we legislated.

Similarly, in the McCain Anti-Torture legislation, which passed the Senate to 9 to 9, a compromise was struck between the White House and Senator McCain. And here again, the President signing statement seemed to undermine the compromise that was struck.

I am not going to reintroduce the legislation now because we are discussing some modifications with some of my Senate colleagues, and I am going to defer for a brief period of time to see if we can get additional cosponsors.

JUDICIAL NOMINATIONS

Mr. SPECTER. Madam President, finally, a brief comment on judicial nominations. During the course of the 109th Congress, the Senate confirmed two Supreme Court Justices, Chief Justice Roberts and Justice Alito, 16 Court of Appeals judges, 35 District Court judges, and 1 Court of International Trade judge. At the close of the 109th Congress, there were 13 District Court nominees on the Executive Calendar, but we held up on a technicality. I am pleased to say that Senator Leahy advised me earlier today he is going to put those 13 nominees on the first executive session of the Judiciary Committee next week, so they will be confirmed. There was no objection raised to them in the last Congress, except they were tied up on a concern raised by one Senator about a nominee for the Western District of Michigan.

In the last Congress, we were able to confirm a number of circuit judges, who have been held up for a long period of time: Priscilla Owen, pending since 2001; Janice Rogers Brown, pending since 2003; William Pryor, pending since 2003; Brett Kavanaugh, pending since 2003. So in the last Congress we managed to move to a vote on many long languishing nominees. We also moved expeditiously on new nominations. It was my practice as chairman of the Judiciary Committee to conduct hearings on every judicial nomination as soon as all necessary materials were received and the nominee was prepared to move forward. Once given a hearing, every nominee was placed promptly on the Committee’s agenda for consideration. I believe our practice, while avoiding unnecessary delay, also ensured that every nomination was thoroughly vetted so that the Senate had the information it needed to come to a vote.

In the last Congress, the Senate, by following regular order, carried out our Constitutional responsibilities. As a result, the federal court vacancy rate fell to as low as 4.8% during my tenure as Chairman. This is among the lowest vacancy rates in the last 20 years. Unfortunately, in part because of our failure to confirm the 13 district court nominees in the last Congress, the vacancy rates have increased during the fall and winter.

I cite this recent history and these statistics as an example of how in this body when we work hard and put fairness ahead of partisanship, I committed myself to this principle as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. I continue to work in this vein during the 110th Congress under the Chairmanship of Senator Leahy. Working together, I believe we can avoid some of the acrimony that has poisoned the nominations process in recent years.

In fact, I want to give Senator Leahy a good bit of credit. He worked cooperatively with us to ensure that nominees were moved during the 109th Congress. There were times when senators across the aisle could stymie our efforts to process nominees, but Senator Leahy worked with me to enable the Senate to carry out its constitutional responsibilities.

That is why I am troubled by recent suggestions that it is appropriate to dramatize the confirmation of circuit court nominees during the last two years of a president’s term. Our Constitutional duties remain, despite the fact that we are now beginning a President-elect election cycle. Last Congress had been very productive on judicial nominations during President Clinton’s final two years in office.

Just last year, the Senate confirmed numerous district court nominees from Pennsylvania to the Western District of Michigan. There were some provisions very carefully negotiated as to congressional oversight. No objection had been raised by the Department of Justice in our discussions as we negotiated about the bill. And then, when the President signed the bill, the President specifically said that he would not pay attention to those provisions if he felt that his Executive power would be impinged upon. If he disagreed with the provisions, he should have told us before we legislated.

Similarly, in the McCain Anti-Torture legislation, which passed the Senate to 9 to 9, a compromise was struck between the White House and Senator McCain. And here again, the President signing statement seemed to undermine the compromise that was struck.

During the course of the 109th Congress, the Senate confirmed two Supreme Court Justices, Chief Justice Roberts and Justice Alito, 16 Court of Appeals judges, 35 District Court judges, and 1 Court of International Trade judge. At the close of the 109th Congress, there were 13 District Court nominees on the Executive Calendar, but we held up on a technicality. I am pleased to say that Senator Leahy advised me earlier today he is going to put those 13 nominees on the first executive session of the Judiciary Committee next week, so they will be confirmed. There was no objection raised to them in the last Congress, except they were tied up on a concern raised by one Senator about a nominee for the Western District of Michigan.

In the last Congress, we were able to confirm a number of circuit judges, who have been held up for a long period of time: Priscilla Owen, pending since 2001; Janice Rogers Brown, pending since 2003; William Pryor, pending since 2003; and Brett Kavanaugh (pending since 2002). So in the last Congress we managed to move to a vote on many long languishing nominees. We also moved expeditiously on new nominations. It was my practice as chairman of the Judiciary Committee to conduct hearings on every judicial nomination as soon as all necessary materials were received and the nominee was prepared to move forward. Once given a hearing, every nominee was placed promptly on the Committee’s agenda for consideration. I believe our practice, while avoiding unnecessary delay, also ensured that every nomination was thoroughly vetted so that the Senate had the information it needed to come to a vote.

In the last Congress, the Senate, by following regular order, carried out our Constitutional responsibilities. As a result, the federal court vacancy rate fell to as low as 4.8% during my tenure as Chairman. This is among the lowest vacancy rates in the last 20 years. Unfortunately, in part because of our failure to confirm the 13 district court nominees in the last Congress, the vacancy rates have increased during the fall and winter.

I cite this recent history and these statistics as an example of how in this body when we work hard and put fairness ahead of partisanship, I committed myself to this principle as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. I continue to work in this vein during the 110th Congress under the Chairmanship of Senator Leahy. Working together, I believe we can avoid some of the acrimony that has poisoned the nominations process in recent years.

In fact, I want to give Senator Leahy a good bit of credit. He worked cooperatively with us to ensure that nominees were moved during the 109th Congress. There were times when senators across the aisle could stymie our efforts to process nominees, but Senator Leahy worked with me to enable the Senate to carry out its constitutional responsibilities.

That is why I am troubled by recent suggestions that it is appropriate to dramatize the confirmation of circuit court nominees during the last two years of a president’s term. Our Constitutional duties remain, despite the fact that we are now beginning a President-elect election cycle. Last Congress had been very productive on judicial nominations during President Clinton’s final two years in office.

Just last year, the Senate confirmed numerous district court nominees from Pennsylvania to the Western District of Michigan. There were some provisions very carefully negotiated as to congressional oversight. No objection had been raised by the Department of Justice in our discussions as we negotiated about the bill. And then, when the President signed the bill, the President specifically said that he would not pay attention to those provisions if he felt that his Executive power would be impinged upon. If he disagreed with the provisions, he should have told us before we legislated.

Similarly, in the McCain Anti-Torture legislation, which passed the Senate to 9 to 9, a compromise was struck between the White House and Senator McCain. And here again, the President signing statement seemed to undermine the compromise that was struck.

I am not going to reintroduce the legislation now because we are discussing some modifications with some of my Senate colleagues, and I am going to defer for a brief period of time to see if we can get additional cosponsors.
nominees with well-known credentials. Many of these nominees were confirmed relatively late in the year. Between June 1 and September 1, 1980, the Senate confirmed 29 Circuit Court nominees and 15 District Court nominees, including then-ACLU General Counsel Ruth Bader Ginsburg, who was confirmed June 18, 1980. After September 1, 1980, the Senate confirmed two more Circuit Court nominees and eleven District Court nominees. The first Circuit Court nomination, Stephen Reinhardt of the Ninth Circuit, who is now thought to be one of nation’s most liberal jurists, was confirmed on September 11, 1980.

More remarkable is the second Circuit Court nominee, that of Stephen Breyer to the First Circuit. Justice Breyer was then Senator Kennedy’s Chief Counsel. He was nominated by President Carter on November 13, 1980, after Carter had lost the election to Ronald Reagan. The Senate, which was also about to switch party control, held a swift confirmation hearing and voted to confirm Breyer on December 9, 1980.

The presidential election year of 1980 was not an aberration, the pattern continued in subsequent election years. In 1988, President Reagan’s last year in office, the Senate confirmed seven Circuit Court nominees and 33 District Court nominees. In 1992, President George H.W. Bush’s last year in office, the Senate confirmed eleven Circuit Court nominees and 53 District Court nominees. In 2000, President Clinton’s last year in office, the Senate confirmed 36 Circuit Court nominees and 31 District Court nominees.

Furthermore, many of these presidential election year confirmations occurred late in the year. Since 1980, 110 judges were confirmed after July 1st of a presidential election year, 17 of those were confirmed to Circuit Courts. In the same period, 63 judges were confirmed after September 1st of presidential elections years, twelve of those to Circuit Courts. In short, there does not appear to be any historical basis for the so-called “Thurmond Rule.” The Senate has confirmed numerous nominees during presidential election years, and I expect that with Senator Leahy and I working together, we will do so again next year.

In fact, I think it’s time to move beyond some of the more acrimonious judicial battles of this country and look at the best when the Senate fulfills its constitutional duty and votes on the President’s nominees.

I called on the White House to consult with Senator Leahy and Leader Reid during the nomination process. I have also worked to ensure that judicial nominees are afforded prompt consideration and fair treatment by the Judiciary Committee. I plan to continue to do that as the Ranking Member and am confident that under Senator Leahy’s leadership, the committee will fairly and expeditiously consider judicial nominees.

Aside from the responsibility the Senate has to vote up or down on the President’s nominees, we cannot forget that these people who have agreed to undertake important government service, have family considerations and professional lives that are often adversely impacted when their careers are out on hold because of a pending nomination. We should not forget that these nominees, whether a Member decides ultimately to support them or not, are deserving of our thanks for their willingness to undergo this process and to consider their lives to the American people. They deserve fair treatment by this body.

I trust that during the 110th Congress the Senate will work productively to ensure that nominees are treated fairly and that judicial vacancies are filled as soon as possible. I look forward to working with the White House and with Chairman Leahy to that end. I yield the floor.

WORKING TOGETHER

Mr. KYL. Madam President, this has been a good day. It is a day on which many of us were sworn in and a day that the Senate began again to function in this Congress. It began with a rather historic meeting called by the new majority leader, HARRY REID, in the Old Senate Chamber, a place which I explained to my family is so imbued with the history of the United States and the history of the Senate that one cannot but help feel a sense of responsibility, a special sense of duty when functioning as a Senator in that Old Senate Chamber. Frequently there are people there who remind us of some of the history to call on us to try to rise to the same level to which many of the great Senators in the history of this country rose in the most difficult and challenging times of our country.

I believe it was Senator KENNEDY who reminded us that exactly on this day, at the very beginning of the Civil War, the Senators from the South left the Senate Chamber for the last time. They did not meet with the Senate thereafter because of the beginning of the Civil War, and that is when the Senate moved from the Old Senate Chamber to the Chamber we are now in—here.

The purpose for the meeting was to begin this new Congress thinking about something that we have tended to forget in recent months and years. I would say 2 years, that is the degree to which Senators had in the past worked together to get the people’s business done.

Unlike under the rules of the House of Representatives in which the majority pretty much rules and the minority has very little power, in the Senate the minority and the majority must work together to get anything done because of the rules. With a 51–49 division right now, incentives for both sides to try to work with each other to get things done. The reputation of Democratic Senators and Representatives will depend to some extent on how much they can accomplish. They will have to have Republican help to accomplish things. The last 2 years of the Bush Presidency will depend a great deal on how much he, working with the Congress, can get done in these 2 years. He can’t do anything on his own. He has to sign bills that he has passed. So working with us, meaning that Republicans working with him also have to reach across the aisle and work with our colleagues in the Democratic Party in the sense that the Republicans are under the control of the Republican leader, MITCH McCONNELL, said today were especially appropriate in this regard. I want to close our day today, reiterating some of the thoughts he expressed with which I am in total agreement. He said this:

The Senate can accomplish great things over the next 2 years, but this opportunity will surely slip from our grasp if we do not commit ourselves to a restoration of civility and cooperation.

New Democratic colleague BERNIE SANDERS from Vermont, with whom I served in the House—we got re-acquainted today—said, Are you enjoying it over here? I hesitated. And he laughed. We had a discussion about the fact that it can be very enjoyable when you work together to try to get something done. You have to work with
Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise to pay tribute to SGT James P. Musack of Riverside, IA, who tragically died as a result of a noncombat related incident while serving his country in Iraq. I am sure that all Iowans and others shared the same sense of sadness I felt when learning of the death of this young Iowa native. According to family and friends, he had found his calling in the military and all Americans owe him our deepest thanks for his service.

Everyone joining the military knows the risks involved, but all Americans are indebted to brave patriots like James Musack who voluntarily assume those risks in order to defend our freedom. My prayers go out to his mother Yvette, his father Jim, and all his family and friends.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise to pay tribute to SGT Paul J. Finken who has given his life for his country while serving in Iraq. He was 48 years old. Paul Finken was raised in Earling, IA, and I know all Iowans share my pride as we also mourn his loss. As a career Army officer, Lieutenant Colonel Finken had dedicated his life to the service of his country. We can never thank him enough for his service and his final sacrifice on behalf of our freedom.

In remembering Paul Finken, his family said, “Paul was a devoted husband, loving father and respected leader. He loved being a soldier and respected the soldiers he worked with. He always set the example and would never ask his soldiers to do anything he wouldn’t do himself. He will be greatly missed by his country and our whole nation.”

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I come today to discuss the Colorado and surrounding States that has captured national attention. Over the last few weeks Colorado and its neighbors have experienced two record-setting blizzards. In some parts of Colorado these storms dropped almost 5 feet of snow and have created a nightmare situation for many in rural America. Thousands of head of cattle and other livestock are currently stranded without food or water. Only recently have some of these animals been given relief with supply drops via helicopter.

The aftermath of these devastating blizzards continues to paralyze many... counties in Colorado and the West. Thousands of local men and women have banded together and are working to provide relief to their neighbors and to the tens of thousands of livestock facing starvation. Dozens of communities have experienced severe economic damage and loss as a result of these blizzards. These storms have created a dire situation.

In the tradition of the West local individuals have pulled together and have spent much of their holiday season to reach stranded livestock. Locals are doing all that they can, and I am grateful for the assistance that the National Guard has provided. Unfortunately more needs to be done. I am introducing legislation today that will help provide Federal resources to the backbone of America; our producers. The legislation that I introduce today will reauthorize the Livestock Compensation Program and direct the Secretary of Agriculture to allocate funds to it from the Commodity Credit Corporation to help eligible producers that have suffered a loss from these blizzards.

I am hopeful that the Senate will act swiftly on this important legislation that will get vital help to America's farmers and ranchers.

TRIBUTE TO ANTHONY J. ZAGAMI

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I rise today in recognition of Anthony J. "Tony" Zagami, who retired from the U.S. Government Printing Office, GPO, on January 3, 2007. Mr. Zagami has been a true public servant, having served over 40 years in Federal service and earned the distinction as the longest serving general counsel in the history of the GPO.

Mr. Zagami started his government service as a Senate page in the 1960s. He continued his service to Congress while working his way through college and law school. He received his bachelor of science degree from the University of Maryland School of Business and Public Administration, and his juris doctor from the George Mason University School of Law.

After working 25 years in the Congress, he left to become the general counsel of the Government Printing Office in 1990. The GPO, among other things, is responsible for producing the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. During his time at the GPO, he was instrumental in transforming it into the modern digital information processing organization that it is today.

Throughout his career, both in the Congress and at the GPO, Mr. Zagami was known for his dedication and commitment to public service and received numerous awards and recognitions for his achievements. As a tribute to his outstanding performance, the GPO named him General Counsel Emeritus—the first time such a title has been bestowed upon an individual in the GPO’s 145-year history.

As he ends a distinguished career, I would like to take this opportunity to thank Tony Zagami for his many years of public service to our Nation and wish him and his family the very best in all future endeavors.

IN MEMORY OF BRYAN TUVERA

• Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, it is with a heavy heart that I ask my colleagues to join me today in honoring the memory of a courageous man, Police Officer Bryan Tuvera. Officer Tuvera was a member of the San Francisco Police Department who died in the line of duty on December 23, 2006. He was 28 years old.

Officer Tuvera was a 4½-year veteran of the San Francisco Police Department. He served with distinction and relative newness to police work during his tenure. He was shot and killed during the pursuit of an escaped convict. He died on the tenth anniversary of his beloved father’s death, who had worked as a police dispatcher with the San Francisco Police Department.

Before joining the San Francisco Police Department on July 1, 2002, Officer Tuvera received his degree in criminal justice from San Francisco State University. He is a 1996 graduate of South San Francisco High School.

His wife Salina Tuvera 2 months ago. They had been preparing for their first Christmas together. He is remembered by friends and colleagues as a dedicated and professional police officer and a good friend who loved his job and was always a "class act."

Bryan Tuvera risked his life every day to make San Francisco safer. We will always be grateful for Officer Tuvera’s heroic service protecting his community.

Bryan Tuvera is survived by his wife and fellow police officer, Salina Tuvera; his mother Sandy; his sister Tracee; and his grandparents Shirley and Stanley Scovill.

IN MEMORY OF ELIZABETH TERWILLIGER

• Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, it is with a heavy heart that I ask my colleagues to join me today in honoring the memory of an extraordinary Californian, Elizabeth Terwilliger.

To the Marin County community, Elizabeth Terwilliger was a renowned naturalist and educator, beloved by schoolchildren and adults, who leaves an amazing environmental legacy. She died on November 27, 2006 at the age of 97. She is survived by her daughter Lynn, her son John, and several grandchildren.

Elizabeth Cooper was born in Hawaii in 1909. She moved to the mainland to attend Stanford University in New York and then attended Stanford nursing school. While at Stanford, she met her husband, Dr. Calvin Terwilliger. After World War II, the couple settled in Mill Valley, California where they raised two children.

Elizabeth took her children on nature walks through Marin County. Soon, she was leading nature walks for local Girl Scout and Boy Scout troops. Her unique hands-on style and story-telling ability became known throughout the community and soon she began leading field trips for area schools and groups each other each weekend. Standing such trips 5 days a week became her life's work.

For the 50 years that followed, every child growing up in Marin County knew Mrs. Terwilliger. She was a famous and beloved educator who traveled across the county in her familiar van filled with life-like animal models to teach school children about nature. Upon sight of her characteristic floppy straw hat, children would run over to her and quickly follow her through the woods with excitement and adoration. They would soak up her stories and bring them home to teach their parents.

Those who knew Mrs. Terwilliger well recount her mesmerizing personality, her passion for the nature and wildlife, and her openhearted way with children and adults alike.

In 1984, President Ronald Reagan honored Mrs. Terwilliger as an outstanding volunteer. While accepting the award at the White House, she shared one of her famous stories about "Mr. Vulture." and had President Reagan holding his arms over his head in the "V" position, representing a vuluture in flight.

In addition to leading nature education programs, Mrs. Terwilliger was an advocate for environmental conservation and open space. She campaigned for a monarch butterfly preserve, bicycle paths, wetlands and open space conservation. She received numerous awards and has two preserves named after her: Terwilliger Marsh in Mill Valley and Terwilliger Butterfly Grove at Muir Beach.

She inspired Joan Linn Bekins to create the Elizabeth Terwilliger Nature Education Foundation, which later became known as WildCare. Using educational programs developed by Mrs. Terwilliger, the center provides nature programs for over 40,000 Bay Area schoolchildren each year. The center also treats thousands of wildlife each year, rehabilitating them and returning them to their natural environment.

Mrs. Terwilliger often said, "while you're learning, you're living." Her life's passion was to teach people how to love and protect nature. She was a local treasure and a wonderful, inspiring woman.

I knew Mrs. Terwilliger and respected and admired her greatly. She will be deeply missed.

For those of you who were fortunate to know her, we take comfort in knowing that schoolchildren will continue to learn from Mrs. Terwilliger's unique educcational style at WildCare. Her vision, her passion and her spirit will remain in the countless lives she touched.

Mr. President, I now ask my fellow colleagues join me in thanking Beth for her dedication and commitment to the education of America's future. In order for our society to continue to advance in the right direction, we must have teachers like Beth McWhirt in our public schools.

RECOGNIZING THE BOISE STATE UNIVERSITY BRONCOS
Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, if a football victory on New Year's Day is a harbinger of things to come, 2007 looks to be a thrilling year marked by success and celebration. Most of my colleagues here know that Boise State University won the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl on New Year's Day. This bowl victory completes an undefeated football season, 13 to 0, thanks to the hard work and dedication of the game by the Boise State football players, fans, coach Chris Petersen, his staff, the athletic department, and the university administration. They all worked very hard to reach this remarkable achievement and I take this opportunity to congratulate Coach Petersen, President Bob Kustra, Athletic Director Gene Bleymaier, the entire team, loyal students, alumni, and fans on their collective victory which all Idahoans enthusiastically share. I am confident that their fine program will continue its tradition of excellence. And I offer this statement as a friendly notice to my colleagues from Oklahoma, and I am confident that their fine program will continue its tradition of excellence. And I offer this statement as a friendly notice to my colleagues from States that are home to traditional college football powerhouses: that thunder you hear is from our charging Broncos. I look forward to another great season this fall when the Broncos will run again.

Marvin Van Haften is stepping down from his distinguished position as director of the State of Iowa's Office of Drug Control Policy. By assuming this position and attending the National Sheriffs' Association and served as its President.

TRIBUTE TO JUSTIN MINKEL

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. President, it is with the greatest pleasure that today I honor Justin Minkel, a second grade teacher at Harvey Jones Elementary School in Springdale, AR, who was named as recipient of the 2006 Milken Family Foundation National Educator Award.

Since the inception of the Milken Foundation National Educator Awards Program in 1988, over 220 outstanding men and women have been named Milken Educators. They are honored with both public recognition and financial reward for their exceptional educational talent and positive results in the classroom.

Justin Minkel teaches in a classroom where English is the second language for the majority of his students. His students have flourished under his instruction, with nearly a third becoming bilingual. He uses his hands-on experiences to show the relevance of math concepts, and makes subjects such as science, social studies and literature more meaningful by associating them with real-world experiences. He has shared these strategies with other professionals throughout his district and has also mentored student teachers from a local university.

During the 2007–2008 school year, Mr. Minkel will serve as an ex-officio member of the Arkansas State Board of Education. He will travel the State providing professional and technical assistance to other teachers.

My home State of Arkansas is fortunate to have men and women like Justin Minkel, educators who devote their lives to providing quality education for our children. He exemplifies the commitment and energy that will help to build a brighter future for the generations to come, and I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Justin Minkel on receiving the 2006 Milken Family Foundation National Education Award. This is a well deserved honor.

Ms. Collins. Mr. President, I rise today to join my colleagues in cosponsoring S. 1, a bill to provide greater transparency in the legislative process.

The recent elections sent a clear message to Congress that the American people have lost confidence in their government. Without the support of the people, we cannot tackle the difficult issues that this Congress must face. This bill, then, is a critical part of restoring the people’s trust in reforming ethics and lobbying rules.

It is important to remember that the conduct of most Members and their staffs is beyond reproach. Likewise, it is important to recognize that lobbying—whether done on behalf of the business community, an environmental organization, a children’s advocacy group, or any other cause—can provide us with useful information and analysis that aids, but does not dictate, the decision-making process. Unfortunately, in the minds of many Americans, “lobbying” has come to be associated with expensive paid vacations masquerading as fact-finding trips, special access to Members and staff that an ordinary citizen could never hope to have, and undue influence that leads to decisions made in the best interest of the lobbyist and his or her client instead of the American people.

S. 1, newly identical to a bill that was the product of bipartisan efforts by the Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs and the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration and that was passed by this Senate just last year, includes a number of important provisions that will help to restore the public image of the United States Congress.

S. 1 bans gifts from lobbyists. This is clear, brightline rule that diminishes the appearance of impropriety that gifts can create.

S. 1 requires greater disclosure of the sponsors of and the purposes for earmarks included in a bill so that the people can know where tax dollars are being spent. Why?

S. 1 eliminates floor privileges for former Members who are seeking to lobby other members. They will enjoy no more access to Senators and Congressmen than any other citizen.

S. 1 eliminates the practice of anonymous bills in the Senate so that we can bring debate into the open and not simply kill a bill with a secret hold.

S. 1 will require enhanced disclosure of the activities of groups lobbying Congress so that the public can easily find out which interests are trying to influence the decisions we make.

S. 1 will slow the revolving door between the Hill and the private sector by limiting the ability of departing Members and staff to lobby their former colleagues.

While I am pleased to be a cosponsor of this bill, I believe strongly that it would be improved by the addition of an independent Office of Public Integrity within the Legislative Branch. This Office would be able to conduct nonpartisan investigations of possible ethics violations. These investigations would help to promote public confidence in the enforcement of any laws that we pass to enhance congressional ethics. During debate on this bill last year, an amendment that Senator Lieberman, Senator McCain, and I offered to create this Office was defeated. However, I hope my colleagues have taken the lessons of the recent elections to heart and that the idea of an Office of Public Integrity will be approved this year. To that end, I am also cosponsoring Senator McCain’s lobbying reform package, which he has introduced today and which contains a number of the provisions of S. 1 as well as creating an independent Office of Public Integrity.

I once again commend my colleagues on recognizing the importance of this issue by making it our first priority in the 110th Congress. I urge the Senate to finish so that we can move on from the 110th Congress to the 111th Congress assembled, and all to adopting a bill that was the product of bipartisan efforts by the Senate Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

Title IX—FUNDING FOR RESEARCH, PROGRAMS, AND SERVICES

Sec. 901. The Congress finds as follows:

(1) Healthy People 2010 sets forth a reduction of unintended pregnancies as an important health objective for the Nation to achieve over the first decade of the new century, a goal first articulated in the 1979 Surgeon General's Report, Healthy People, and continued in Healthy People 2010: National Health Promotion and Disease Prevention Objectives.

(2) Although the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (referred to in this section as the "CDC") included family planning in its published list of the Ten Great Public Health Achievements in the 20th Century, the United States still has one of the highest rates of unintended pregnancies among industrialized nations.

(3) In 2004, 34,400,000 women ages 15 through 44 were in need of contraceptive services and supplies to help prevent unintended pregnancy, and nearly half of those were in need of public support for such care.

(4) The United States has the highest rate of infection with sexually transmitted diseases of any industrialized country. In 2005, there were approximately 19,000,000 new cases of sexually transmitted diseases, almost half of them occurring in young people ages 15 to 24. According to the CDC, these sexually transmitted diseases impose a tremendous economic burden with direct medical costs of $24 billion and $14 billion per year.

(5) Increasing access to family planning services will improve women's health and reduce the rates of unintended pregnancy, abortion, and infection with sexually transmitted diseases. Contraceptive use saves public health dollars. For every dollar spent to increase funding for family planning programs under title X of the Public Health Service Act, $3.80 is saved.

(6) Contraception is basic health care that improves the health of women and children by enabling women to plan and space births.

(7) Women experiencing unintended pregnancy are at greater risk for physical abuse and women having closely spaced births are at greater risk of maternal death.

(8) A child born from an unintended pregnancy is at greater risk than a child born from an intended pregnancy of low birth weight and suffering from the first year of life, being abused, and not receiving sufficient resources for healthy development.

(9) Providing the ability to delay pregnancy allows couples to achieve economic stability by facilitating greater educational achievement and participation in the workforce.

(10) In 2004, 34,400,000 sexually active women has an 85 percent chance of becoming pregnant within a year.

(11) The percentage of sexually active women ages 15 through 44 who were not using contraception increased from 5.4 percent to 7.4 percent in 2002, an increase of 37 percent, according to the CDC. This represents an approximate 320,000 women and could raise the rate of unintended pregnancy.

(12) Many poor and low-income women cannot afford to purchase contraceptive services and supplies on their own. In 2003, 20.5 percent of all women ages 15 through 44 were uninsured.

(13) Public health programs, such as the Medicaid program and family planning programs under title X of the Public Health Service Act, provide high-quality family planning services and other preventive health care to underinsured or uninsured individuals who may otherwise lack access to health care.

(14) The Medicaid program is the single largest source of public funding for family planning services and HIV/AIDS care in the United States. Half of all public dollars spent on contraceptive services and supplies in the United States are provided through the Medicaid program and more than 6,000,000 low-income, unreimbursed contraceptive services and supplies. This provides such program for their basic health care needs.

(16) Each year, family planning services provided under title X of the Public Health Service Act enable people in the United States to prevent approximately 1,000,000 unintended pregnancies, and one in three women aged 15-44 who abstained from sex in 2005, such clinic provided 2.5 million Pampers, over 5.3 million sexually transmitted disease tests, and over 6.2 million HIV tests.

(17) The combination of an increasing number of uninsured individuals, stagnant funding for family planning, health care inflation, and new and expensive contraceptive technologies, increasing costs of contraceptives, and improved but expensive screening and treatment for cervical cancer and sexually transmitted diseases, has diminished the ability of many low-income individuals who obtain contraceptive care, unneeded or treatment for sexually transmitted disease does so at a clinic receiving funds under title X of the Public Health Service Act to adequately serve all individuals in need of services of such clinics. Taking inflation into account, funding for family planning programs under such title declined by 59 percent between 1980 and 2005.

(18) Medicaid program remains the largest source of subsidized family planning services, States are facing significant budgetary pressures to cut their Medicaid programs, putting many women at risk of losing coverage for family planning services.

(19) In addition, eligibility under the Medicaid program in many States is severely restricted. Despite receipt of family planning services financially out of reach for many poor women. Many States have demonstrated tremendous success with Medicaid family planning waivers that allow States to expand access to Medicaid family planning services. However, the administrative burden of applying for a waiver poses a significant barrier to States that would like to expand their coverage of family planning programs through Medicaid.

(20) As of December of 2006, 24 States offered family planning and waiver benefits as a result of Medicaid family planning waivers. The cost-effectiveness of these waivers was affirmed in an evaluation of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services. This evaluation of six waivers found that all family planning programs under such waivers are able to serve an estimated 300,000 women to the Federal and State governments. Moreover, the researchers found measurable reductions in unintended pregnancy.

(21) Over the past several years, health plans have improved coverage of contraceptive services and supplies, largely in response to State contraceptive coverage laws, there is no longer a group that can afford contraceptives. The ongoing lack of coverage in health insurance plans, particularly in self-insured and individual plans, continues to place effective forms of contraception beyond the financial reach of many women.

(22) Including contraceptive coverage in private health care plans saves employers money. Not covered contraceptive services on employee health plans costs employers 15 to 17 percent more than providing such coverage.

(23) Approved for use by the Food and Drug Administration, sexually transmitted disease is a safe and effective way to provide unintended pregnancy after unprotected sex. New research confirms that easier access to emergency contraception results in decreased instance of unintended pregnancy.

(24) The available evidence shows that many women do not know about emergency contraception, do not know where to get it, or are unable to access it. Overcoming these barriers is important, as all women use emergency contraception consistently and correctly.

(25) A November 2006 study of declining pregnancy rates suggested that the reduction in teen pregnancy between 1995 and 2002 is primarily the result of increased use of contraceptives. As such, it is critically important to provide contraceptive, unbiased information about contraception.

(26) The American Medical Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, the American Public Health Association, and the Society for Adolescent Medicine, support responsible sexuality education that includes information about both abstinence and contraception.

(27) Teens who receive comprehensive sexuality education that includes discussion of contraception as well as abstinence are more likely than those who receive abstinence-only programs to have fewer partners, and to use contraceptives when they do become sexually active.

(28) Government-funded abstinence-only- until-marriage programs are predicated on discussing contraception except to talk about failure rates. An October 2006 report by the Government Accountability Office found that the Department of Health and Human Services does not review the materials of recipients of grants administered by their Department for scientific accuracy and requires grantees to review their own materials for scientific accuracy. The GAO also reported on the Department’s lack of appropriations to determine if funded programs are effective. In addition, a separate letter from the Government Accountability Office found that the Department of Health and Human Services is in violation of Federal law by failing to enforce a requirement under the Public Health Service Act that Federally-funded grantees working to address the prevention of sexually transmitted diseases, including abstinence-only-until-marriage programs, must provide medically accurate information about contraception. The GAO also reported on the Department’s lack of appropriations to determine if funded programs are effective.

(29) Recent scientific reports by the Institute of Medicine, the American Medical Association, the National Academy of Sciences, and the AIDS Policy stress the need for sexuality education that includes messages to delay sex, to have fewer partners, and to use contraceptives when they do become sexually active.

(30) A November 2006 study of declining pregnancy rates suggested that the reduction in teen pregnancy between 1995 and 2002 is primarily the result of increased use of contraceptives. As such, it is critically important to provide contraceptive, unbiased information about contraception.

(31) A November 2006 study of declining pregnancy rates suggested that the reduction in teen pregnancy between 1995 and 2002 is primarily the result of increased use of contraceptives. As such, it is critically important to provide contraceptive, unbiased information about contraception.

By Mr. WEBB:

S. 22. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to establish a program of educational assistance for members of the Armed Forces who serve in the Armed Forces after September 11, 2001, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. WEBB. Mr. President, I rise today to speak in support of a bill that I am introducing, entitled the Post-9/11 Veterans Educational Assistance Act of 2007. This bill is designed to expand the educational benefits that our Nation offers to the brave men and women who have served us so honorably since the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001.

As a veteran who hails from a family with a long history of military service, I am proud to offer this bill as my first piece of legislation in the United States Senate.

Most of us know that our country has a tradition—since World War II—of offering educational assistance to returning veterans. In the 1940s, the first G.I. bill helped transform notions of equality in American society. The G.I. bill program was designed to help veterans readjust to civilian life, avoid high levels of unemployment, and give veterans the opportunity to receive the education and training that they missed while bravely serving in the military.

When we think of the post-World War II G.I. bill paid for veterans’ tuition, books, fees, and other training costs, and also gave a monthly stipend. After World War II, 7.8 million veterans used the benefits given under the original G.I. bill in some capacity. Currently, veterans’ educational benefits are administered under the Montgomery G.I. bill. This program periodically adjusts veterans’ educational benefits, but the program is designed primarily for peacetime—not wartime—service.

Yet, now our Nation is fighting a worldwide war against terrorism. Since 9/11, we have witnessed a sharp increase in the demands placed upon our military. Many of our military members are serving two or three tours of duty in Iraq and Afghanistan. In light of these immense hardships, it is now time to implement a more robust educational assistance program for our heroic veterans who have sacrificed so much for our great Nation.

The Post-9/11 Veterans Educational Assistance Act of 2007 does just that. It is designed to give our returning troops educational benefits identical to the benefits provided to veterans after World War II.

The new benefits package under the bill I am introducing today will include the costs of tuition, room and board, and a monthly stipend of $5,000. By contrast, existing law under the Montgomery G.I. bill provides educational support of up to $1,000 per month for four years, totaling $9,000 for each academic year. This benefit simply is insufficient after 9/11, when 800,000 veterans may be in college.

For example, costs of tuition, room, and board for an in-state student at George Mason University, located in...
Fairfax, Virginia, add up to approximately $14,000 per year. In addition, existing law requires participating service members to pay $1,200 during their first year of service in order to even qualify for the benefit.

Let me briefly summarize some of the points that are contained in the bill I am introducing today.

First, these increased educational benefits will be available to those members of the military who have served on active duty since September 11, 2001. In general, to qualify, veterans must have served at least two years of active duty, with at least some period of active duty time served beginning on or after September 11, 2001.

Next, the bill provides for educational benefits to be paid for a duration of time that is linked to time served in the military. Generally, veterans will not receive assistance for more than a total of 36 months, which equals four academic years.

Third, as I mentioned a moment ago, my bill would allow veterans pursuing an approved program of education to receive payments covering the established charges of their program, room and board, and a monthly stipend of $1,000. Therefore, the bill would allow additional payments for tutorial assistance, as well as licensure and certification tests.

Fourth, veterans would have up to 15 years to use their educational assistance benefits. But veterans would be barred from receiving concurrent assistance from this program and another similar program, such as the Montgomery G.I. bill program.

Finally, under this bill, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs would administer the program, promulgate rules to carry out the new law, and pay for the program from funds made available to the Department of Veterans Affairs for the payment of readjustment benefits.

Again, I note that the benefits I have outlined today essentially mirror the benefits allowed under the G.I. bill enacted after World War II. That bill helped spark economic growth and expansion for a whole generation of Americans. The bill I introduce today likely will have similar beneficial effects. As the post-World War II experience so clearly indicated, better educated veterans have higher income levels, which in the long run will increase tax revenues.

Moreover, a strong G.I. bill will have a positive effect on military recruitment, broadening the socio-economic makeup of the military and reducing the direct costs of recruitment.

Perhaps more importantly, better-educated veterans have a more positive readjustment experience. This experience lowers the costs of treating post-traumatic stress disorder and other readjustment-related difficulties.

The United States has never erred when it has made sustained new investments in higher education and job training. Enacting the Post-9/11 Veteran Educational Assistance Act of 2007 is not only the right thing to do for our men and women in uniform, but it also is a strong tonic for an economy plagued by growing disparities in wealth, stagnant wages, and the outsourcing of American jobs.

Mr. President, I am a proud veteran who is honored to serve this great Nation. As long as I represent Virginians in the United States Senate, I will make it a priority to help protect our brave men and women in uniform.

Mr. President, I am honored to be a defender and advocate of our veterans. The Majority Leader has included the concepts of the bill I introduce today in his leadership bill designed to rebuild the United States military. Additionally, I plan to work closely with Veterans’ Affairs Committee Chairman Akaka—and all of my Senate colleagues— to statutorily update G.I. benefits.

Together, we can provide the deserving veterans of the 9/11 with the same program of benefits that our fathers and grandfathers received after World War II.

Mr. President, I ask that the bill I introduce today—the Post-9/11 Veterans Educational Assistance Act of 2007—be printed in the RECORD along with this statement.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Post-9/11 Veterans Educational Assistance Act of 2007”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) On September 11, 2001, terrorists attacked the United States, and the brave members of the Armed Forces of the United States were called to the defense of the Nation.

(2) Service on active duty in the Armed Forces has been especially arduous for the members of the Armed Forces since September 11, 2001.

(3) The United States has a proud history of offering educational assistance to millions of veterans, as demonstrated by the many “G.I. Bills” enacted since World War II. Educational assistance for veterans helps reduce the costs of war, assist veterans in readjusting to civilian life after wartime service and boost the United States economy, and has a positive effect on recruitment for the Armed Forces.

(4) The current educational assistance program for veterans is outdated and designed for peacetime service in the Armed Forces.

(5) The people of the United States greatly value military service and recognize the difficult challenges involved in readjusting to civilian life after wartime service in the Armed Forces.

(6) It is in the national interest for the United States to provide veterans who served on active duty in the Armed Forces after September 11, 2001, with enhanced educational assistance benefits that are worthy of such service and are commensurate with the educational assistance benefits provided by a grateful Nation to veterans of World War II.

(a) EDUCATIONAL ASSISTANCE AUTHORIZED.—

This page contains a section of a bill, specifically discussing provisions related to educational assistance. The text is a continuation of a previous section and introduces new concepts and details about the eligibility and availability of educational assistance under different provisions of title 38 of the United States Code. It references the Armed Forces, individuals making elections, and the conditions under which certain benefits can be transferred or revoked. The section also mentions the applicability of these provisions to individuals under chapter 30 of title 38.

The text is a continuation of discussions on educational assistance, including the ability to transfer entitlements, the conditions under which these transfers can occur, and the obligation of the Department of Veterans Affairs to pay to each individual described in subparagraph (A) who is entitled to educational assistance under chapter 30 of title 38, United States Code, for basic educational assistance under chapter 30 of title 38, United States Code, as applicable, and the requirements of such section shall be deemed to be no longer applicable to such person.
OBAMA of Illinois, in introducing the Biofuels Security Act of 2007. This bill directly addresses one of the most critical pieces of a sound national energy transition policy. It charts a clear path forward for significantly increasing our nation’s renewable fuel supplies over the next 24 years, reaching a total of 30 billion gallons per year by 2020, and 60 billion gallons per year by 2030. That latter figure represents about one-third of our nation’s current annual fuel use for highway transportation. The production of the two most common forms of biofuels, ethanol and biodiesel, is expanding rapidly. We have reason to believe that this provision will provide strong impetus to increasing biofuels’ production and use because it is an extension of the renewable fuels standard that I promoted in the Energy Policy Act of 2005. That standard mandates using a total of 7.5 billion gallons of renewable fuels by 2012, and already we are on a path to exceed that requirement by 2008. Thus, we can be very optimistic about the success of setting these longer term and more aggressive targets. This bill also will ensure that the vehicles to use these renewable fuels are readily available by requiring auto manufacturers over time to produce and sell increasing numbers of dual-fuel vehicles—that is, vehicles that can be fueled by gasoline or gasoline/ethanol blends. Because the turnover of vehicles on the highway takes many years, our bill requires the fraction of dual-fuel vehicles to increase from 10 percent in 2008 up to 100 percent in 2017 and beyond. In order to assure availability of alternative fuels, our bill requires installation of increasing numbers of E-85 pumps by major oil companies at fueling stations that they own or license under their brand. These pumps will dispense E-85, a blend of 85 percent ethanol and 15 percent gasoline, which is a very popular renewable fuel because of its high ethanol content. The bill will require 50 percent of such owned and licensed stations to have pumps dispensing E-85 fuel by 2017. In addition, the bill includes a clause to ensure geographic distribution of such E-85 marketing stations.

Today I urge my Senate colleagues to join us in taking action to boost the transition to a cleaner, more resilient, and more secure energy economy. I request your support for this bill and its rapid enactment.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

(C) Geographic Distribution.—

(i) In general.—Subject to clause (ii), in promulgating regulations under subparagraph (B), the Secretary shall ensure that each major oil company described in subparagraph (B) installs or otherwise makes available 1 or more pumps that dispense E-85 fuel at not less than a minimum percentage (specified in the regulations) of the wholly-owned stations and the branded stations of the major oil company in each State.

By Mrs. BOXER (for herself, Mr. FEINSTEIN, and Mr. LAUTENBERG):
S. 24. A bill to amend the Safe Drinking Water Act to require a health advisory and monitoring of drinking water for perchlorate; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I am introducing a bill that would require that perchlorate be tested for perchlorate, and would ensure the public’s right to know about perchlorate in their drinking water. I am pleased that the senior Senator from California, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and the senior Senator from New Jersey, Mr. LAUTENBERG, have joined me in sponsoring this measure.

This toxin is a clear and present danger to California’s and much of America’s health, and EPA needs to get moving and protect our drinking water now. But until a perchlorate tap water standard is set, something must be done.

Therefore, my perchlorate monitoring and right to know bill will require that: EPA first swiftly set a health advisory for perchlorate that protects pregnant women, infants, and children; second, that EPA order monitoring of drinking water for perchlorate until an enforceable standard is set; and, third, that the public be told about perchlorate and its health effects, if it is detected in their drinking water supply.

Drinking water sources for more than 20 million Americans are contaminated with perchlorate. The Government Accountability Office (GAO) says that perchlorate contamination has been found in water and soil at almost 400 sites in the U.S., with levels ranging from 4 parts per billion to millions of parts per billion. Perchlorate has polluted 35 States and the District of Columbia, and is known to have contaminated 133 public water systems in 26 States.

As we know, perchlorate can harm human health, especially that of pregnant women and children. Therefore, all citizens whose tap water system contains perchlorate have a right to know about that contamination, and about its potential health consequences. Only if tested, and only if all systems are obligated to disclose the contamination and its health effects, will we be assured that the public is given the information that they deserve to protect themselves and their families.

EPA’s original 1999 rule for monitoring of tap water for unregulated contaminants ordered testing for perchlorate. Just last year, on August 22, 2005, EPA proposed to extend the requirement that perchlorate be monitored and protect our drinking water. However, on December 20, 2006, the Administrator reversed himself and signed a final rule removing perchlorate from the list of contaminants for which monitoring is required under the Unregulated Contaminant Monitoring Regulation. I was shocked by this action.

As a result of this new rule, Americans will not be assured of up-to-date information on whether their tap water is contaminated with this toxin. Until EPA sets a tap water standard for perchlorate, at the very least we should know if it’s in our drinking water.

My bill will ensure that EPA acts swiftly to require water systems to test for and to inform the public about this threat to our health and welfare. I look forward to working with my colleagues to pass this important legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the Record, as follows:
below the levels of the women in the study may affect the production of hormones by who were exposed to perchlorate; and hormones in women with low iodine levels increased learning capability; and pectant mothers or infants may result in effects of perchlorate in drinking water.

The regulation shall be in consistent with guidance issued by the Administration, and for other purposes;—

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I rise today on the first day of this new Congress to introduce the Citizen Petition Fairness and Accuracy Act of 2007. This legislation will help speed the introduction of cost-saving generic drugs by preventing abuses of the Food and Drug Administration citizen petition process.

Consumers continue to suffer all across our country from the high— and ever-rising—cost of prescription drugs. A recent independent study found that prescription drug spending has more than quadrupled since 1990, and now accounts for 11 percent of all health care spending. At the same time, the pharmaceutical industry is one of the most profitable industries in the world, returning more than 15 percent on their investments.

One key method to bring prescription drug prices down is to promote the introduction of generic alternatives to expensive brand name drugs. Consumers realize substantial savings once generic drugs enter the market. Generic drugs cost on average 63 percent less than their brand-name equivalents. One study estimates that every 1 percent increase in the use of generic drugs could save $4 billion in health care costs.

This is why I have been so active in pursuing legislation designed to combat practices which impede the introduction of generic drugs. The legislation I introduce today, which I first introduced last year with Senator LEAHY in last Congress, targets one particularly pernicious practice by brand name drug companies to impede or block the marketing of generic drugs— the abuse of the FDA citizen petition process.

FDA rules permit any person to file a so-called “citizen petition” to raise concerns about the safety or efficacy of a generic drug that a manufacturer is seeking FDA approval to bring to market. While this citizen petition process was put in place for a laudable purpose, unfortunately in recent years it has been abused by frivolous petitions submitted by brand name drug manufacturers for individual (or, their behest) whose only purpose is to delay the introduction of generic competition. The FDA has a policy of not... granting any new generic manufacturer’s drug application until after it has considered and evaluated any citizen petitions regarding that drug. The process of resolving a citizen petition (even if ultimately found to be groundless) can delay the approval by months or years. Indeed, brand manufacturers often wait to file citizen petitions until just before the FDA is about to grant the application to market the new generic drug solely for the purpose of delaying the introduction of the generic competitor for the maximum amount of time possible. This gaming of the system should not be tolerated.

In recent years FDA officials have expressed serious concerns about the abuse of the citizen petition process. In 2005, FDA Chief Counsel Sheldon Bradshaw noted that “[t]he citizen petition process is in some cases being abused. Sometimes, stakeholders try to use this mechanism to unnecessarily delay approval of the petitioner’s product.” He added that he found it “particularly troublesome” that he had seen several examples of citizen petitions that appear designed not to raise timely concerns with respect to the legality or scientific soundness of approving a drug application, but rather to delay approval by compelling the agency to take the time to consider the arguments raised in the petition, regardless of their merits, and regardless of whether the petition was made by those very arguments months and months before.”

And a simple look at the statistics gives credence to these concerns. Of the 21 citizen petitions for which the FDA has reached a decision since 2003, 20—95 percent of them—have been found to be without merit. Of these, ten were identified as “eleventh hour petitions”, defined as those filed less than 6 months prior to the estimated entry into generic competition of the drug. Of these ten “eleventh hour petitions” were found to have merit, but each caused unnecessary delays in the marketing of the generic drug by months or over a year, causing consumers to spend millions and millions of dollars for their prescription drugs than they would have spent without these abusive filings.

Despite the expense these frivolous citizen petitions cause consumers and the FDA under current law the govern- ment has absolutely no ability to sanction or penalize those who abuse the citizen petition process, or who file citizen petitions simply to keep competition off the market. Our legislation will correct this obvious shortcoming and give the Department of Health and Human Services—the FDA’s parent agency the power to sanction those who abuse the process.

Our bill will, for the first time, require all those who file citizen petitions to affirm certain basic facts about the truthfulness and good faith of the petition, similar to what is required of every litigant who makes a filing in court. The party filing the citizen petition will be required to affirm that the petition is well grounded in fact and warranted by law; is not submitted for an improper purpose, such as to harass or cause unnecessary delay in approval of competing drugs; and does not contain a materially false, misleading or fraudulent statement. The Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services is empowered to investigate a citizen petition to determine if it has violated any of these principles, was submitted for an improper purpose, or contained false or misleading statements. Further, the Secretary is authorized to penalize anyone found to have submitted an abusive citizen petition. Possible sanctions include a fine up to one million dollars, a suspension or permanent revocation of the right of the violator to file future citizens’ petition, and a dismissal of the petition at issue. HHS is also authorized to refer the matter to the Federal Trade Commission so that the FTC can undertake its own investigation as to the competitive consequences of the frivolous petition and take any action it finds appropriate. Finally, the Secretary may dismiss a citizen petition if all citizen petitions be adjudicated within six months of filing, which will put an end to excessive delays in bringing needed generic drugs to market because of the filings of these petitions.

While our bill will not have any effect on any person filing a truly meritorious citizen petition, this legislation will serve as a strong deterrent to attempts by brand name drug manufacturers or any other party that seeks to abuse the citizen petition process to thwart competition. It will thereby remove one significant obstacle exploiting by brand name drug companies to prevent or delay the introduction of generic drugs. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The petition shall include a statement of the factual information supplied by the petitioner. (viii) The Secretary may promulgate regulations to carry out this subparagraph, including to determine whether petitions filed under such section 10.30 or section 10.35 (or any successor regulation) merit enforcement action by the Secretary under this subparagraph.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself and Mr. BOXER):

S. A bill to authorize the implementation of the San Joaquin River Restoration Settlement; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that will bring to a close 18 years of litigation between the Natural Resources Defense Council, the Friant Water Users Association, and the U.S. Department of the Interior. It is identical to the bill that we introduced in the waning days of the 109th Congress.

This historic bill will enact a settlement that restores California’s second longest river, the San Joaquin, while maintaining a stable water supply for the farmers who have made the Valley the richest agricultural area in the world.

Without this consensus resolution to a long-running western water battle, the parties will continue the fight, resulting in a court-imposed settlement.

To my knowledge, every farmer and every environmentalist who has considered the possibility of continued litigation believes that an outcome imposed by a judge is likely to be worse for everyone on all counts: more costly, riskier for the farmers, and less beneficial for the environment.

The Settlement provides a framework that the affected interests can accept. As a result, this legislation has the strong support of the Bush Administration, the Schwarzenegger Administration, the environmental and fishing communities and numerous California water districts, including all 22 Friant water districts that have been part of the litigation.

In announcing the signing of this San Joaquin River settlement in September, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior praised it as a “monumental agreement.” And when the Federal Court then approved the Settlement in late October, Secretary of the Interior Dirk Kempthorne further praised Settlement for launching “one of the largest environmental restoration projects in California’s history.” The Settlement further observed that, “This Settlement closes a long chapter of conflict and uncertainty in California’s San Joaquin Valley . . . and open[s] a new chapter of environmental restoration and water supply certainty for the farmers and their communities.”

I share the Secretary’s strong support for this balanced and historic agreement, and以此 my honor to join Senator Boxer and a bipartisan group of California House Members in introducing legislation to approve and authorize this Settlement.

The legislation indicates how the settlement’s forgivable is going to be implemented. It involves the Departments of the Interior and Commerce, and essentially gives the Secretary of the Interior the additional authority to: take the actions to restore the San Joaquin River; reintroduce the California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook Salmon; minimize water supply impacts on Friant water districts; and avoid reductions in water supply for third-party water contractors.

Some of the major benefits of this settlement is the restoration of a long-lost salmon fishery. The return of one of California’s most important salmon runs will create significant benefits for local communities in the San Joaquin Valley. AND REMEMBER: belatedly, gerrymandered fishing industry while improving recreation and quality of life.

The legislation provides for improvements to the San Joaquin river channel to allow salmon restoration to begin in 2014. Beginning in that year, the river would see an annual flow regime mandated by the Settlement, with pulses of additional water in the spring and greater flows available in wetter years. There is flexibility to add or subtract up to 10 percent from the annual flows, as the best science dictates.

A visitor to the revitalized river channel in a decade will find an entirely different place providing recreation and additional flows to the small towns like Mendota, and a refuge for residents of larger cities like Fresno.

The legislation I am introducing today includes provisions to benefit the farmers of the San Joaquin Valley as well as the salmon. In wet years, Friant contractors can purchase surplus flows at $10 per acre-foot for use in dry years, far less than the approximately $35 per acre-foot that they would otherwise pay for this water.

The legislation further authorizes the Secretary to authorize new restoration flows from the Delta via the California Aqueduct and the Cross-Valley Canal to provide additional supply for Friant.

Today’s legislation also includes substantial protections for other water districts. California were not party to the original settlement negotiations. These other water contractors will be able to avoid all but the smallest water impacts as a result of the settlement, except on a voluntary basis.

In addition, the restoration of flows for over 150 miles below Friant Dam, and reconnecting the upper River to the critical San Joaquin-Sacramento Delta, will be a welcome change for more than 22 million Californians who rely on that crucial source for their drinking water.

Finally, restoring the San Joaquin as a living salmon river may ultimately help struggling fishing communities on California’s Delta and even into Southern Oregon. The restoration of the San Joaquin and the government’s commitment to reintroduce and rebuild historic salmon populations provides a rare bright spot for these communities.

In addition to congratulating the parties for making a settlement that will enable the long-sought restoration of the San Joaquin River, I am mindful of and remain committed to progress in implementing and funding the December 19, 2000, Trinity River restoration record of decision and the Hoopa Valley Tribe’s co-management of the decision’s important goal of restoring the fishery resources that the United States holds in trust for the Tribe.

Support of this agreement is almost as far reaching as its benefits. This historic agreement would not have been possible without the participation of a remarkably broad group of agencies, environmental organizations, and other stakeholders came together and spent countless hours with legislators in Washington to ensure that we found a solution that the large majority of those affected could support.

In November of last year, California voters showed their support by approving Propositions 84 and 1E that will help pay for the Settlement by committing at least $100 million and likely $200 million or more toward the restoration costs. Indeed, this legislation includes a diverse mix of approximately $200 million in direct Water User payments, new State payments, $240 million in dedicated Friant Central Valley Project capital repayments, and future Federal appropriations limited to $250 million. This mix of funding sources is intended to ensure that the river restoration program will be sustainable over time and truly a joint effort of Federal, state and local agencies.

I would like to emphasize that the Federal funding in the bill is for implementation of both the Restoration Goal to reestablish a salmon fishery in the river, and the Water Management Goal to avoid or minimize water supply losses supplied to Friant Water Districts. It is critical to recognize that these efforts are of equal importance.

At the end of the day, I believe that this agreement is something that we can all feel very proud of, and I urge my colleagues in the Senate to move quickly to approve this legislation and provide the Administration the authorization it needs to fully carry out its statute, and (c) compensation for any agreements reached with sellers any property, interests in property, or improvements retained. For purposes of this subsection, the term “environmental review” includes any consultation and planning necessary to comply with subsection (a).

SEC. 5. ACQUISITION AND DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY; TITLE TO FACILITIES.

(a) TITLE TO FACILITIES.—Unless acquired pursuant to subsection (b), title to any facility or facilities, stream channel, levees, or other real property modified or improved in the course of implementing the Settlement authorized by this Act, and title to any modifications or improvements of such facility or facilities, stream channel, levees, or other real property;

(c) DISPOSAL OF THE SETTLEMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Upon the Secretary’s determination that retention of title to property or interests in property acquired pursuant to this Act is no longer needed to be held by the United States for the furtherance of the Settlement, the Secretary is authorized to dispose of such property or interest in property on such terms and conditions as the Secretary deems appropriate and in the best interest of the United States, including possible transfer of such property to the State of California.

(2) RIGHT OF FIRST REFUSAL.—In the event the Secretary determines that property acquired pursuant to this Act through the exercise of its eminent domain authority is no longer necessary for implementation of the Settlement, the Secretary shall provide a right of first refusal to the property owner from whom the property was initially acquired, or his or her successor in interest, on the same terms and conditions as the property is being offered to other parties.

(d) DISPOSITION OF PROCEEDS.—Proceeds from the disposal by sale or transfer of any such property or interests in such property shall be deposited in the fund established by this section.

SEC. 9. APPROPRIATIONS; SETTLEMENT FUND.

(a) In General.—(1) The costs of implementing the Settlement shall be covered by payments or in kind contributions made by Friant Division long-term contractors and other non-Federal parties, including the funds provided in paragraphs (1) through (5) of subsection (c), estimated to total $440,000,000, of which the non-Federal payments are estimated to total $200,000,000 (at October 2006 price levels) and the amount from repaid Central Valley Project capital obligations is estimated to total additional Federal appropriation of $250,000,000 authorized pursuant to subsection (b)(1), and such additional funds authorized pursuant to subsection (b)(2), subject to subsection (d), that the Secretary is implementing the provisions of section 4(a)(1) shall be shared by the State of California pursuant to the terms of a Memorandum of Understanding executed by the State of California and the Parties to the Settlement on September 13, 2006, which includes at least $110,000,000 of State funds.

(b) Requirements.—(A) In General.—The Secretary shall enter into 1 or more agreements to fund or implement improvements on a project-by-project basis in California.

(B) Requirements.—Any agreements entered into under subparagraph (A) shall provide for consideration of either monetary or in kind contributions toward the State of California’s share of the cost of implementing the provisions of section 4(a)(1).

(c) Limitation.—Except as provided in the Settlement, to the extent that costs incurred solely to implement this Settlement would not otherwise have been incurred by any entity or public or local agency or subdivision of the State of California, such costs are not borne by any such entity, agency, or subdivision of the State of California, unless such costs are incurred on a voluntary basis.

(d) In General.—In addition to the funds provided in paragraphs (1) through (5) of subsection (c), there are also authorized to be appropriated not to exceed $250,000,000 (at October 2006 price levels) to implement this Act and the Settlement, to be available until the end of the fiscal year following the date of enactment of this Act, for the purpose of implementing the Settlement, that the Secretary is authorized to spend such additional appropriations only in amounts equal to the amount of funds deposited in the Fund (not including in-kind contributions (c)(2)) proceeds under subsection (c)(3) other than an amount equal to what would otherwise have been deposited under subsection (c)(1) in the absence of the bond, and proceeds under subsection (c)(4), the amount of in-kind contributions, and other non-Federal payments actually committed to the implementation of this Act or the Settlement.

(2) Other Funds.—The Secretary is authorized to accept payments made pursuant to section 3407 of the Reclamation Projects Authorization and Adjustment Act of 1992 (Public Law 102–575; 106 Stat. 4721) for purposes of this Act.

(f) No Additional Expenditures Required.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to require a Federal official to expend Federal funds not appropriated by Congress, or to seek the appropriation of additional funds by Congress, for the implementation of the Settlement.

(g) Reach 4B.—(1) Study.—(A) In General.—In accordance with the Settlement and the Memorandum of Understanding executed pursuant to paragraph 6 of the Settlement, the Secretary shall conduct a study that specifies—

(i) the costs of undertaking any work required under paragraph 11(a)(3) of the Settlement to increase the capital repayment obligation of such contractors under such contracts shall be reduced by an equivalent amount.

(ii) the impacts associated with reinitiation of such flows; and

(iii) measures that shall be implemented to mitigate the impacts.

(B) Deadline.—The study under subparagraph (A) shall be completed prior to reinitiation of any other Interim Flows.

(2) Report.—(A) In General.—The Secretary shall file a report with Congress not later than 90 days after issuing a determination, as required by the Settlement, on whether to expand channel conveyance capacity to 4500 cubic feet per second in Reach 4B of the San Joaquin River, or use an alternate route for pulse flows, that—

(i) explains whether the Secretary has decided to expand Reach 4B capacity to 4500 cubic feet per second; and

(ii) addresses the following matters:

(I) the basis for the Secretary’s determination that the other set out initial review documents or otherwise, as to whether the expansion of Reach 4B would be the preferable means to achieve the Restoration Flows as provided in the Settlement, including how different factors were assessed as comparative biological and habitat benefits, comparative costs, relative availability of other appropriate cost-sharing funds, and the comparative benefits and impacts on water temperature, water supply, private property, and local and downstream flood control.

(B) Time Limit.—The Secretary’s final cost estimate for expanding Reach 4B capacity to 4500 cubic feet per second, or any alternative route selected, as well as the alternative cost estimates provided by the Governor, the Restoration Administration, and by the other parties to the Settlement.
There is a need to cover the higher estimated Federal costs. The applicable authorization ceiling provided by Congress must have increased the applicable authorization ceiling. Federal funds dedicated, and all new funds authorized by this Act and separate from all commitments of State and other non-Federal funds and in-kind commitments, then before the Secretary commences actual construction work in Reach 4B (other than planning, design feasibility, or other preliminary measures) to expand capacity to 4500 cubic feet per second to implement this Settlement, Congress must have increased the applicable authorization ceiling. The Secretary shall, to the extent feasible, make the Secretary's estimated Federal cost for expanding Reach 4B in paragraph (2), in light of the Secretary's funding plan set out in paragraph (2), exceed the reporting on the existing population of the San Joaquin River below Friant Dam.

(III) The Secretary's plan for funding the costs of expanding Reach 4B or any alternative route selected, whether by existing Federal funds provided under this Act, by non-Federal funds provided under this Act, by grants, or by a combination of such sources.

(B) DETERMINATION REQUIRED.—The Secretary, in proposing an actual construction plan set out in paragraph (2), shall provide a determination in subparagraph (A) prior to undertaking any substantial construction work to increase capacity in Reach 4B.

(2) ISSUANCE.

(a) FINDING.—Congress finds that the implementation of the Settlement will resolve 18 endangered species under the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) for other species listed pursuant to subsection (18) of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1539(a)(1)(A)).

(b) REINTRODUCTION IN THE SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY SPRING RUN CHINOOK SALMON.

(1) IN GENERAL.—With regard to California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook salmon reintroduced pursuant to the Settlement, the Secretary of Commerce shall exercise its authority under section 18 of the Federal Power Act (16 U.S.C. 811) solely for other anadromous fish species because those prescriptions provide incidental protections for California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook salmon.

(2) EFFECT OF SUBSECTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall preclude the Secretary of Commerce from imposing prescriptions pursuant to section 18 of the Federal Power Act (16 U.S.C. 811) for other anadromous fish species because those prescriptions provide incidental protections for California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook salmon.

(c) FINAL RULE.

(1) PROTECTION OF THIRD PARTY.—For the purpose of this subsection, the term "third party" means persons or entities diverting or receiving water pursuant to applicable State and Federal law and shall include Central Valley Project contractors outside of the Friant Division of the Central Valley Project and the State Water Project.

(2) REQUIRED COMPONENTS.—The rule issued under paragraph (1) shall provide that the reintroduction will not impose more than de minimus: water supply reductions, additional storage releases, or bypass flows on unwilling third parties due to such reintroduction.

(3) APPLICABLE LAW.—Nothing in this section shall diminish the statutory or regulatory protections provided in the Endangered Species Act for any species listed pursuant to section 4 of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1533) other than the reintroduced population of California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook salmon, including protections against办公 opinions or new biological opinions issued by the Secretary or Secretary of Commerce; or

(B) precludes the Secretary or Secretary of Commerce from imposing prescriptions under the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) for other species pursuant to section 4 of that Act (16 U.S.C. 1533) because of the Secretary's or Secretary of Commerce's development of incidental benefits to such reintroduced California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook salmon.

(d) REPORT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than December 31, 2024, the Secretary of Commerce shall report to Congress on the progress made on the reintroduction set forth in this section and the Secretary's plans for future implementation of this section.

(2) INCLUSIONS.—The report under paragraph (1) shall include—

(A) an assessment of the major challenges, if any, to successful reintroduction;

(B) an evaluation of the effect, if any, of the reintroduction on the existing population of the San Joaquin River or its tributaries; and

(C) an assessment regarding the future of the reintroduced California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook salmon.

(e) FERC PROJECTS.

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) an assessment of the major challenges, if any, to successful reintroduction;

(B) an evaluation of the effect, if any, of the reintroduction on the existing population of the San Joaquin River or its tributaries; and

(C) an assessment regarding the future of the reintroduced California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook salmon.

(f) EFFECT OF SECTION.

(1) IN GENERAL.—Nothing in this section is intended or shall be construed to modify the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) or to establish a precedent with respect to any other application of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1539(a)(1)(A)).

(2) EFFECT OF SUBSECTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall preclude the Secretary of Commerce from imposing prescriptions pursuant to section 18 of the Federal Power Act (16 U.S.C. 811) for other anadromous fish species because those prescriptions provide incidental protections for California Central Valley Spring Run Chinook salmon.

(i) EFFECT OF SECTION.—Nothing in this section is intended or shall be construed to modify the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq.) or to establish a precedent with respect to any other application of the Endangered Species Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1539(a)(1)(A)).

By Mr. KOHL:

S. 28. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to require the use of generic drugs under the Medicare part D prescription drug program when a prescription drug plan selects a brand-name drug that is determined to be medically necessary, to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Generics First Act. This legislation requires the use of available generic drugs under the Medicare Part D prescription drug program, unless the brand-name drug is determined to be medically necessary by a physician.

Everywhere I go in Wisconsin, I see how prescription drug costs are a drain on seniors, families, and businesses that are struggling to pay their health care bills. They want help now and we can respond by expanding access to generic drugs. Generics, which on average cost 80 percent less than their brand-name counterparts, are a big part of the solution to health care costs that are spiraling out of control.

The private and public sectors, as well as individuals, are seeking relief from high drug costs, and Senate Speaker Arlen Specter and I have heard some remarkable success stories from some who have turned to generic drugs.

Last year, General Motors testified that, in 2005, they spent $1.9 billion dollars on prescription drugs, 40 percent of their total health care spending. Their program to use generics first, when a generic drug is available, saves GM nearly $400 million a year.

Last year, millions of seniors exceeded the initial $2,250 Medicare drug benefit and fell into the “donut hole,” where they had to pay the full price of their medications. Using generics first, which are equally effective, generic drugs will keep seniors out of the “donut hole” longer and help them survive the gap in coverage.

Generic drugs approved by the FDA must meet the same rigorous standards as their brand-name drugs. In addition to being safe and effective, the generic must have the same active ingredient or ingredients, be the same strength, and have the same labeling for the approved uses as the brand drug. Generics perform the same as their respective brand name product.

Modeled after similar provisions in many state-administered Medicaid programs, this measure would reduce the high costs of the new prescription drug program and keep seniors from reaching the current $2,250 “donut hole” by guiding beneficiaries toward cost-saving generic drug alternatives.

We know generic drugs have the potential to save seniors thousands of dollars, and curb health spending for the Federal Government, employers, and families. And every year, more blockbuster drugs are coming off patent, setting up the potential for billions of dollars in savings. This legislation is one piece of a larger agenda I’m pushing to remove the obstacles that prevent generics from getting to market, and making sure that every senior, every family, every business, and every government program knows the value of generics and uses them to bring costs down. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Generics First Act of 2007.”

SEC. 2. REQUIRED USE OF GENERIC DRUGS UNDER THE MEDICARE PART D PRESCRIPTION DRUG PROGRAM.

(a) In general.—Section 1860D-2(e)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395w-102(e)(2)) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(C) NON-Generic DRUGS UNLESS CERTAIN REQUIREMENTS ARE MET.—

(i) In general.—Such term does not include a drug that is a nongeneric drug unless—

(I) no generic drug has been approved under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act with respect to the drug; or

(ii) the nongeneric drug is determined to be medically necessary by the individual prescribing the drug and prior authorization for the drug is obtained from the Secretary.

(ii) Definitions.—In this subparagraph:

(I) GENERIC DRUG.—The term generic drug means a drug that is the subject of an application approved under subsection (b)(2) or (j) of section 505 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, for which the Secretary has made a determination that the drug is the therapeutic equivalent of a listed drug under section 505(f)(7) of such Act.

(II) NON-Generic DRUG.—The term nongeneric drug means a drug that is the subject of an application approved under—

(aa) section 505(b)(1) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act; or

(bb) section 505(b)(2) of such Act and that has been determined to be not therapeutically equivalent to any listed drug.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to drugs dispensed on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

By Ms. LANDRIEU:

S. 29. A bill to clarify the tax treatment of certain payments made to homeowners by the Louisiana Recovery Authority and the Mississippi Development Authority; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, at the end of the 109th Congress, I learned that the Internal Revenue Service had a tax surprise for citizens in my state of Louisiana and in Mississippi who are trying to rebuild after Katrina. This tax surprise will set back our recovery and discourage our citizens from coming home.

Let me explain to my colleagues what I am talking about. Both Louisiana and Mississippi have established programs to help families rebuild their homes and their lives after Katrina and Rita. Congress appropriated the money for these initiatives—more than $10 billion in all, and we are very grateful for the assistance. The Louisiana program is called the “Road Home” and it is administered by the Louisiana Recovery Authority (LRA). The program is now starting to get going. Homeowners are eligible to receive grants from the Road Home of up to $150,000 to help them rebuild their homes. Rental properties are also eligible. Grants can also be used to buy out homes. The Louisianians who were displaced by the storms want to go home and the Road Home program will get them there.

But the IRS has dug a big pothole in the middle of the Road Home by making some of these payments taxable. The work of tax enforcement is by requiring the person who is claiming to be a hurricane victim who claimed a casualty loss deduction for damage to their home on their tax return for 2005 will have to reduce that loss by the amount of any payment from the LRA. So if they had their taxes due in April, they wrote their homes, and a Road Home grant the next year, they have to essentially eliminate any benefit of the earlier casualty loss deduction. Their taxes will go up.

Now I realize that under normal circumstances, when a person’s home burns down, the roof caves in, or they are a victim of theft, they can take a casualty loss deduction, provided it meets certain requirements. The loss must exceed ten percent of the taxpayer’s adjusted gross income, with a $500 per loss floor of $100. In some circumstances, taxpayers are permitted to include a current-year casualty loss on an amended prior year return.

Immediately after Katrina, we enacted the Katrina Emergency Tax Relief Act (KETRA) that suspended the ten percent floor for casualty losses incurred in the Hurricane Katrina disaster area, including those claimed on amended returns. The purpose of the change in KETRA was simple: we wanted to put money in the hands of Katrina victims as quickly as possible. Essential encouragement taxpayers to take this casualty loss, even by amending a past return. The IRS would then provide them with a refund.

This was a very helpful proposal in the days immediately following Katrina, but my President. Hurricane victims needed that money. If you had lost your home, that money could help you buy a new home. If you hurricane victims lost their jobs and needed this money to see them through until they started working again. They used the money to begin the rebuilding of their lives.

Congress encouraged people to take the new deduction by changing the law. Now the IRS wants to take it back.

I fully understand the policy behind what the IRS is doing. Casualty loss deductions are normally reduced by the amount of any insurance or other recovery they make on the loss. In fact, at the time the taxpayer makes the deduction he or she is supposed to reduce the amount of the loss by any insurance recovery they reasonably expect to receive. If you receive a large payment than you expected at a future time, you must claim it on your income tax return when you receive it.

The problem is that this policy will encourage people to leave Louisiana. If you took the casualty loss on your return, you would receive a $150,000 Road Home payment to rebuild your house, you will have a tax consequence. But if you took the casualty loss and sold your house to the LRA for the $150,000 payment, it is treated like a home sale and there is no tax. This policy creates a disincentive to recovery. The Road Home will become the Road Out.

Congress has done a tremendous job passing legislation to help the victims and the rebuilding of the Gulf Coast. At the end of the last session we passed a tax extenders bill that contained a two-year extension of the bonus depreciation for investment in the most seriously damaged areas in the Gulf Zone. That provision is supposed to attract businesses and people to Louisiana and the Gulf. The IRS’s actions will only keep people away. We should not put road blocks in the way of the Road Home.

Today, I am introducing legislation to eliminate this road block to our recovery and to clarify that Road Home payments are not to be taxed. The hurricanes in 2005 were remarkable events causing unprecedented damage. As Congress has done in the past, we must continue to respond in unprecedented and innovative ways. I encourage my colleagues to support this bill.

By Mr. BAUCUS:

S. 41. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide incentives to improve America’s research competitiveness, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, back in 1962, Marshall McLuhan wrote: “The new electronic interdependence recreates the world in the image of a global village.” Certainly, 40 years later, that concept is truer than ever. As we prepare for the future in this global village, we need to affirm America’s leadership role in the world.

The United States accounts for one-third of the world’s spending on scientific research and development, ranking first among all countries. While this is impressive, relative to GDP, though, the United States falls to sixth place. And the trends show that maintaining American leadership in the future depends on increased commitment to research and science.

Asia has recognized this. Asia is pouring more funding into science and education. China, in particular, understands that technological advancement means security, independence, and economic growth. Spending on research and development has increased by 140 percent in China, Korea and Taiwan. In America, it has increased by only 34 percent.

Asia’s commitment is already paying off. More than a hundred Fortune 500 companies have opened research centers in India and China. I have visited some of them. I was impressed with the level of skill of the workers I met there.

China’s commitment to research, at $60 billion in expenditures, is dramatic. China, in the last few years, China has doubled the share of its economy that it invests in research. China intends to double the amount... committed to basic research in the next decade. Currently, only America beats out China in numbers of researchers in the workforce. Today, I am pleased to introduce the Research Competitiveness Act of 2007. This legislation will help to further our research competitiveness in four major areas. All four address incentives in our tax code. Government also supports research through federal spending, but I am not addressing those areas today.

First, my bill improves and simplifies the credit for applied research in section 41 of the tax code. This credit has grown to be overly complex, both for taxpayers and the IRS. Beginning in 2008, my bill would create a simpler 20 percent credit for qualifying research expenses that exceed 50 percent of the average expenses for the prior 3 years.

And just as important: The bill makes the credit permanent. Because the credit has been temporary, it has simply not been as effective as it could be. Since its creation in 1981, it has been extended 11 times. Congress even allowed it to lapse during one period. The credit last expired in December of 2005. After much consternation and delay, a one-year extension just last month, extending the credit for 2006 and 2007. These temporary extensions have taken their toll on taxpayers. In 2005, the experts at the Joint Committee on Taxation wrote: “Perhaps the greatest criticism of the R&E credit among taxpayers regards its temporary nature.” Joint Tax went on to say, “A credit of longer duration may more successfully induce additional research than would a temporary credit, even if the temporary credit is periodically renewed.”

Currently, there are three different ways to claim a tax credit for qualifying research expenses. First, the “traditional” credit relies on incremental expenses compared to a mid-1980s base period. Second, the “alternative incremental” credit measures the increase in research over the average of the prior 4 years.

Both of these credits have base periods involving gross receipts. Under the new tax bill enacted last month, a third formula was created, which does not rely on gross receipts and is available only for 2007. My bill simplifies these credits by using this new credit only in the form known as “Alternative Simplified Credit.” Based on research spending without reference to gross receipts. The current formulas hurt companies that have fluctuating sales. And it hurts companies that take on a new line of business not dependent on research.

This new, simpler formula in my bill would not start until 2008. That start date would give companies plenty of time to adjust their accounting. The main complaint about the existing credits is not that they are very complex, particularly the reference to the 20-year-old base period. This base period creates problems for the taxpayer in trying to calculate the credit. And it creates problems for the IRS in trying to administer and audit those claims.

The new credit focuses only on expenses, not gross receipts. And it is still an incremental credit, so that companies can only increase research spending over time. Further, this bill adds a mandate for a Treasury study to look at substantiation issues and ensure that current recordkeeping requirements assist the IRS without unduly burdening the taxpayer.

A tax credit is an effective way to promote R&E. A report by the Congressional Research Service finds that without government support, investment in R&E would fall short of the socially optimal amount. Thus CRS endorses Government policies to boost private sector R&E.

Also, American workers who are engaged in R&E activities benefit from some of the most intellectually stimulating, high-paying, high-skilled jobs in the economy.

My own State of Montana has excellent examples of this economic activity. During the 1990s, about 400 establishments in Montana provided high-technology services, at an average 20 percent credit for qualifying research expenses under the regular credit.

My research bill would also establish a uniform reimbursement rate for all contract and consortia R&E. It would provide that 80 percent of expenses for research performed for the taxpayer by other parties count as qualifying research expenses under the regular credit.

Currently, when a taxpayer pays someone else to perform research for the taxpayer, the taxpayer can claim a credit only in order to determine how much the taxpayer can include for the research credit. The lower amount is meant to assure overhead expenses that normally do not qualify for the R&E credit are not counted. Different rates, however, create unnecessary complexity. Therefore, my bill creates a uniform rate of 80 percent.

The second major research area that this bill addresses is the need to enhance and simplify the credit for basic research. Both universities and other entities committed to basic research. And it benefits the companies or individuals who donate to them. My bill provides that payments under the university basic research credit would count as contractor expenses at the 20 percent.

The current formula for calculating the university basic research credit— defined as research “for the advancement of science with no specific commercial or industrial objective”—is complex than the regular traditional R&E credit. Because of this complexity, this credit costs less than one-half of 1 percent of the cost of the regular R&E credit. It is completely underutilized. It needs to be simplified to encourage businesses to give more for basic research.

American universities have been powerful engines of scientific discovery. To maintain our premier global position in basic research, America relies on sustained high levels of basic research funding and the ability to recruit the most talented students in the world. The gestation of scientific discoveries can be long. America cannot forget the commercial applications of a discovery. But America leads the world in biotechnology today because of support for basic research in chemistry and physics in the 1960s. Maintaining a commitment to scientific inquiry, therefore, must be part of our vision for sustained competitiveness.

Translating university discoveries into commercial products also takes innovation, capital, and risk. The Center for Strategic and International Studies recently asked what kind of government intervention can maintain technological leadership. One source of technological innovation that provides America with comparative advantage is the combination of university research, programs, entrepreneurs, and risk capital from venture capitalists, corporations, or governments. Research clusters around Silicon Valley and North Carolina’s Research Triangle exemplify this sort of combination.

The National Academies reached a similar conclusion in a 2002 review of the National Nanotechnology Initiative. In a report, they wrote: “To enhance the transition from basic to applied research, the committee recommends that industrial partnerships be stimulated and nurtured to help accelerate the commercialization of national nanotechnology developments.”

To further that goal, the third major area that this bill addresses is the creation of research parks. This part of the bill would benefit state and local governments and universities that want to create research centers for businesses incubating scientific discoveries with promise for commercial development.

Stanford created the nation’s first high-tech research park in 1951, in response to the demand for industrial land near the university and an emerging Silicon Valley industry tied closely to the School of Engineering. The Stanford Research Park traces its origins to a business started with $538 in a Palo Alto garage by two men named Bill Hewlett and Dave Packard. The Park is now home to 140 companies in electronics, software, biotechnology, and other high tech fields.

Similarly, the North Carolina Research Triangle was founded in 1959 by university, government, and business leaders with money from private contributions. It now has 112 research and development organizations, 37,600 employees, and capital investment of more than $2.7 billion. More recently, Virginia has fostered a research park now housing 53 private-sector companies, nonprofits, VCU research institutes, and state laboratories. The Virginia park employs more than 1,300 people.

The creation of these parks would seem to be an obvious choice. But it takes a significant commitment from a range of sources to bring them into being. To foster the creation and expansion of these successful parks, my bill will encourage their creation through the use of tax-exempt bond financing. Allowing tax-exempt bond authority would bring down the cost to establish such parks.

Foreign countries are emulating this successful formula. They are establishing high-tech clusters through government and university partnerships with private industry.

Back in 2000, a partnership was formed to foster TechRanch to assist Montana State University and other Montana-based research institutions in their efforts to commercialize research. But TechRanch is desperately in need of some new high-tech facilities. It could surely benefit from a provision such as this. I encourage my colleagues to visit research parks in their states to see how my bill could be helpful in fostering more successful ventures.

A related item is a small fix to help universities that use tax-exempt bonds to build research facilities primarily for federal research in the basic or fundamental research area. Some of these facilities housing federal research—mostly NIH and NSF funded projects—are in danger of losing their tax-exempt bond status. Counsel have notified some state officials that they may be running afoul of a prohibition on "private use" in the tax code, because one private party has a superior claim to others in the use of inventions that result from using the tax-exempt bonds to lose their tax-exempt status. Counsel have notified some state officials that they may be running afoul of a prohibition on "private use" in the tax code, because one private party has a superior claim to others in the use of inventions that result from using the tax-exempt bonds to lose their tax-exempt status. My bill directs the Treasury Department to do so. I understand that the Treasury Department is aware of this significant concern. Whether or not Congress enacts my legislation, I hope that the Treasury Department will clarify the situation soon.

The fourth major area that my bill addresses is innovation at the small business level. Last year, representatives of the United States of America in Congress appeared... health care providers lack preventive care training opportunities.

Interdisciplinary preventive training of rural health care providers must be encouraged. Through such training, rural health care providers can build a strong educational foundation from the behavioral, biological, and psychological sciences. Interdisciplinary team prevention training will also facilitate operations at sites with both health and mental health clinics by facilitating routine consultation between groups in the mental health disciplines and their services as part of the health care team will contribute to the overall health of rural communities.

The Rural Preventive Health Care Training Act would implement the risk-reduction model described in the IOM study. This model is based on the identification of risk factors and targets specific interventions for those risk factors. The human suffering caused by health is immeasurable, and places a huge financial burden on communities, families, and individuals. By implementing preventive measures to reduce this suffering, the potential psychological and financial savings are enormous.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):

S. 54. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to provide for coverage of services provided by nursing school clinics under State Medicaid programs; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce the Nursing School Clinics Act. This measure builds on our concerted efforts to provide access to quality health care in America by offering grants and incentives for nursing schools to establish primary care clinics in underserved areas where additional medical services are most needed. In addition, this measure provides videoconferencing authority for nursing schools to enhance the scope of student training and education by providing firsthand clinical experience in primary care facilities.

Primary care clinics administered by nursing schools at public or non-profit primary care centers developed in collaboration with universities serving the communities they serve. These centers are staffed by faculty and staff who are nurse practitioners and public health nurses. Students supplement patient care while receiving preceptorships provided by college of nursing faculty and primary care physicians, often associated with academic institutions, who serve as preceptors with nurse practitioners. To date, the comprehensive models of care provided by nursing clinics have yielded excellent results, including significantly fewer emergency room visits, fewer hospital patient days, and less use of specialists, compared to conventional primary health care.

This bill reinforces the principle of combining health care delivery in underserved areas with the education of advanced practice nurses. To accomplish these objectives, Title XIX of the Social Security Act would be amended to designate that the services provided in these nursing school clinics are reimbursable under Medicaid. The combination of grants and the provision of Medicaid reimbursement furnishes the financial incentives for clinic operators to establish the clinics.

In order to meet the increasing challenges of bringing cost-effective and quality health care to all Americans, we must consider a wide range of proposals, both large and small. Most importantly, we must approach the issue of health care with creativity and determination, ensuring that all reasonable avenues are pursued. Nurses have always been an integral part of health care delivery. The Nursing School Clinics Act recognizes the central role nurses can play as care givers to the medically underserved.

I am pleased to note that the text of this bill will be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

“(2) by redesigning paragraph (28) as paragraph (29); and

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 1902(a)(10)(C)(iv) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396a(a)(10)(C)(iv)) is amended by adding “(28)” after “(27)”.

By Mr. BAUCUS (for himself, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. KYL, and Mr. CRAPO):

S. 55. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the individual alternative minimum tax; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, there is a monster in the tax code. Like Frankenstein, the Alternative Minimum Tax brings back to life higher taxes. Higher taxes that families had been told not to worry about are coming back because of the Alternative Minimum Tax, or AMT. It is a monster that really cannot be improved. It cannot be made to work right. It is time to draw the curtain on this monster.

That is why I am pleased to join with my friend Chuck Grassley, and our fellow Committee colleagues, Senators Schumer, Kyl, and Crapo to introduce legislation that will repeal the individual AMT. Our bill simply says that beginning January 1, 2007, individuals will owe zero dollars under the AMT. Further, our bill provides that individuals with AMT credits can continue to use those credits up to 90 percent of their regular tax liability.

If we don't act, in 2007, the family-unfriendly AMT will hit middle-income families earning $61,000 with three children. What was once meant to ensure that a handful of millionaires did not eliminate all taxes through excessive deductions is now meaning millions of working families, including thousands in my home State of Montana, are subject to a higher stealth tax. It is truly bizarre that we've designed a tax that deems more children "excessive deductions" and punishes duly paying your State taxes. Already, 5,000 Montana families pay a higher tax because of the AMT. But this number could multiply many times over if we don't act soon.

Not only is the AMT unfair and poorly targeted, it is an awful mess to figure out. The National Taxpayer Advocate has singled out this item as causing the most complexity for individual taxpayers.

Of course, repeal does not come without cost and that cost is significant even if we assume the 2001 and 2003 tax cuts aren't extended. We are committed to working together to identify reasonable offsets. Certainly, I don't think we want a tax system unfairly placing a higher tax burden on millions of middle-income families with children. But it doesn't serve those families either if our budget deficit is significantly worse.

Like with Einstein's monster, the AMT brings a most unpleasant reaction from those whom it encounters. It is time we end this drama and repeal the AMT.

By Mr. Reid (for Mr. Inouye):

S. 56. A bill to provide relief to the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada for settlement of certain claims against the United States; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. Inouye. Mr. President, almost twelve years ago, I stood before you to introduce a bill "to provide an opportunity for the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada to have the merits of their claims determined by the United States Court of Federal Claims."

That bill was introduced as Senate Resolution 223, which referred the Pottawatomi's claim to the Chief Judge of the United States Court of Federal Claims and required the Chief Judge to report back to the Senate and provide sufficient findings of fact and conclusions of law to enable the Congress to determine whether the claim of the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada is legal or equitable in nature, and the amount of damages, if any, which may be legally or equitably due from the United States.

Seven years ago, the Chief Judge of the Court of Federal Claims reported back that the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada has a legitimate and credible legal claim. Thereafter, by settlement stipulation, the United States has chosen to accept the settlement, that the settlement would be "fair, just and equitable" to settle the claims of the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada for the sum of $1,830,000. This settlement amount was reached by the parties after seven years of extensive, fact-intensive litigation. Independently, the court concluded that the settlement amount is "not a gratuity" and that the settlement was predicated on a credible legal claim. Pottawatomi Nation in Canada, et al. v. United States, Cong. Ref. 94-1037X at 28 ( Ct. Fed. Claims December 15, 2000) (Report of Hearing Officer).

The bill I introduce today is to authorize the appropriation of those funds that the United States has concluded would be "fair, just and equitable" to the Pottawatomi Nation. If enacted, this bill will finally achieve a measure of justice for a tribal nation that has for far too long been denied.

For the information of our colleagues, this is the historical background that informs the underlying legal claim of the Canadian Pottawatomi.

The members of the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada are one of the descendents of the Pottawatomi, a tribe of the historical Pottawatomi Nation and their claim originates in the latter part of the 18th century. The historical Pottawatomi Nation was aboriginal to the United States. They occupied and possessed a vast expanse in what is now the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin. From 1795 to 1833, the United States annexed most of the traditional land of the Pottawatomi Nation through a series of treaties of cession—many of these cessions were made under extreme duress and the threat of military action. In exchange, the Pottawatomis were repeatedly made promises that the remainder of their lands would be secure and, in addition, that the United States would pay certain annuities to the Pottawatomis.

In 1829, the United States formally adopted a Federal the policy of removal—an effort to remove all Indian tribes from their traditional lands east of the Mississippi River to the west. As part of that effort, the government increasingly pressured the Pottawatomis to cede the remainder of their traditional lands—some five million acres in and around the city of Chicago and remove themselves west. For years, the Pottawatomis resisted and refused to cede the remainder of their tribal territory. Then in 1833, the United States, pressed by settlers seeking more land, sent a Treaty Commission to the Pottawatomis with orders to extract a cession of the remaining lands. The Treaty Commissioners spent 2 weeks using extraordinarily coercive tactics—including threats of war—in an attempt to get the Pottawatomis to agree to cede their territory. Finally, those Pottawatomis who were present relented and on September 26, 1933, they ceded their remaining tribal estate through what would be known as the Treaty of Chicago. Seven members of the Pottawatomi Nation signed the Treaty of Chicago. Members of the "Wisconsin Band" were not present and did not assent to the cession.

In exchange for their land, the Treaty of Chicago provided that the United States would give to the Pottawatomis 5 million acres of comparable land in the new state of Missouri. The Pottawatomis were familiar with the Missouri land, aware that it was similar to their homeland. But the Senate refused to ratify that negotiated agreement and unilaterally switched the land to five million acres. The Treaty Commissioners were sent back to acquire Pottawatomis assent to the Iowa land. All but seven of the original 77 signatories refused to accept the change even with promises that if they were dissatisfied "justice would be done."

Treaty of Chicago, as amended, Article 4. Nevertheless, the Treaty of Chicago was ratified as amended by the Senate in 1834. Subsequently, the Pottawatomis sent a delegation to evaluate the land in Iowa. The delegation reported back that the land was "not fit for snakes to live on."

While some Pottawatomis removed westward, many of the Pottawatomis—particularly the Wisconsin Band, whose leaders never agreed to the Treaty—refused to do so. By 1836, the United States began to forcefully remove Pottawatomis who remained in the lower Great Lakes region. As is true with many other American Indian tribes, the forced removal westward came at great human cost. Many of the Pottawatomis were forcefully removed by mercenaries who were paid on a per capita basis government contract. Over one-half of the Indians removed by these means died en route. Those who reached Iowa were almost immediately removed further to inhospitable parts of Kansas against their will and without the necessary to flee to Canada. They were often pursued to the border by government troops, government-paid mercenaries or both. Official files of the Canadian and United States governments indicate that many Pottawatomis were forced to leave their homes without their horses or any of their possessions other than the clothes on their backs.
By the late 1830s, the government refused payment of annuities to any Pottawatomi groups that had not removed west. In the 1860s, members of the Wisconsin Band—those still in their traditional territory and those forced to move to the east—petitioned the Congress for the payment of their treaty annuities promised under the Treaty of Chicago and all other cession treaties. By the Act of June 25, 1864 (13 Stat. 172) the Congress declared that the Wisconsin Band did not forfeit their annuities by not removing and directed that the share of the Pottawatomi Indians who had refused to relocate to the west should be retained for their use in the United States Treasury. (H.R. Rep. No. 470, 64th Cong., p. 5, as quoted on page 3 of memo dated October 7, 1949.) Nevertheless, much of the money was never paid to the Wisconsin Band.

In 1903, the Wisconsin Band—most of whom lived in three areas, the States of Michigan and Wisconsin and the Province of Ontario—petitioned the Senate once again to pay them their fair portion of annuities as required by the law and treaties. (Sen. Doc. No. 185, 57th Cong., 2d Sess.) By the Act of June 21, 1906 (31 Stat. 380), the Congress directed the Secretary of the Interior to investigate claims made by the Wisconsin Band and establish a roll of the Wisconsin Band Pottawatomis that still remained in the East. In addition, the Congress established the Secretary of the Interior to determine "the[] Wisconsin Bands' proportionate share of the annuities, trust funds, and other moneys paid to or expended for the tribe to which they belong in which the claimant Indians have not shared, and[] the amount of such monies retained in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the claimant Indians as directed the provision of the Act of June 25, 1864.

In order to carry out the 1906 Act, the Secretary of the Interior directed Dr. W.M. Wooster to conduct an enumeration of Wisconsin Band Pottawatomis in both the United States and Canada. Dr. Wooster documented 2007 Wisconsin Pottawatomis: 457 in Wisconsin and 1550 in Canada. He also concluded that the proportionate share of annuities for the Pottawatomis in Wisconsin and Michigan was $477,339 and that the proportionate share of annuities due the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada was $1,830,000.

The Court of Claims concluded that the proportionate share of unpaid annuities from 1838 through 1907 due under various treaties, including the Treaty of Chicago and entered judgment for the American Wisconsin Band Pottawatomis for any monies not paid. Still the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada was not denied.

Undaunted, the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada came to the Senate and after careful consideration, finally gave them their long-awaited day in court through the congressional reference process. The court has now reported back to us that their claim is meritorious and that the payment that this bill would make constitutes a "fair, just and equitable" resolution to this claim. The Pottawatomi Nation in Canada has sought justice for over 150 years. They have done all that we asked in order to establish their claim. Now it is time that we fulfill our obligation and that the United States is done with what we can to see that justice—so long delayed is now denied.

Finally, I would just note that the claim of the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada is supported through specific resolutions by the National Congress of American Indians, the oldest, largest and most-representative tribal organization here in the United States, the Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies (which includes all recognized tribal entities in Canada), and each and every of the Pottawatomi tribal groups that remain in the United States today.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(1) be made in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Stipulation for Recommendation of Settlement dated May 22, 2000, entered into between the Pottawatomi Nation in Canada and the United States (referred to in this Act as the "Stipulation for Recommendation of Settlement")

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE): S. 57. A bill to amend title 38, United States Code, to deem certain service of the organized military forces of the Government of the Commonwealth of the Philippines and the Philippine Scouts to have been active service for purposes of benefits under programs of the Department of Veterans Affairs; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs; to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, many of you know of my continued support and advocacy on the important issues concerning the plight of Filipino World War II veterans. As an American, I believe the treatment of Filipino World War II veterans is bleak and shameful. The Philippines became a United States possession in 1898, which was established by the Syllabus of Errors in the Spanish-American War. In 1934, the Congress enacted the Philippine Independence Act, Public Law 73-127, which provided a 10-year time frame for the independence of the Philippines. Between 1934 and final independence in 1946, the United States retained certain powers over the Philippines including the right to call military forces organized by the newly-formed Commonwealth government into the service of the United States Armed Forces.

The Commonwealth Army of the Philippines was called to serve with the United States Armed Forces in the Far East during World War II under President Roosevelt’s July 26, 1941 military order. The Filipinos who served in World War II have been deemed to be entitled to full veterans benefits by reason of their active service with our armed forces. Hundreds were wounded in battle and many hundreds more died in battle. Shortly after Japan’s surrender, the Congress enacted the Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act of 1945 for the purpose of sending Filipino troops to occupy enemy lands, and to oversee military installations at various overseas locations. These troops were authorized to receive pay and allowances for services performed throughout the Western Pacific. Little has changed since then. Our Armed Forces veterans, Filipino veterans, have been treated worse than the members of our Armed Forces of the United States, serve in harm’s way, and lack basic access to health care, particularly for non-service-connected disabilities, and pension benefits. Section 107 also limited service-connected disability and death compensation for Filipino veterans to 50 percent of what their American counterparts receive.

On May 27, 1946, the Congress enacted the Second Supplemental Surplus Appropriations Rescission Act, which duplicated the language that had eliminated Filipino veterans’ benefits under the First Rescission Act. Thus, Filipino veterans who fought in the service of the United States during World War II have been precluded from receiving most of the veterans’ benefits that had been available to them before 1946, and that are available to all other veterans of our armed forces regardless of race, national origin, or citizenship status.

The Filipino Veterans Equity Act, which I introduce today, would restore the benefits due to these veterans by granting full recognition of service for the sacrifices they made during World War II. These benefits include veterans health care, non-service connected disability compensation, dependent indemnity compensation, death pension, and full burial benefits. Throughout the years, I have sponsored several measures to rectify the lack of appreciation America has shown to these gallant men and women who stood in harm’s way with our American soldiers and fought the common enemy during World War II. It is time that we as a Nation recognize our long-standing history and friendship with the Philippines. Of the 120,000 that served in the Commonwealth Army during World War II, there are approximately 60,000 Filipino veterans currently residing in the United States and the Philippines. According to the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Filipino veteran population is expected to decrease to approximately 20,000 or roughly one-third of the current population by 2010.

Heroes should never be forgotten or ignored; let us not turn our backs on those who sacrificed so much. Let us instead work to replay all of these brave men for their sacrifices by providing them the veterans, benefits they deserve.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT BY SENATOR DANIEL K. INOUYE RE: THE TAX TREATMENT OF CERTAIN HOSPITAL SUPPORT ORGANIZATIONS AS QUALIFIED ORGANIZATIONS FOR PURPOSES OF DETERMINING ACQUISITION INDENTURENESS

Mr. President: The legislation I have introduced will extend to qualified teaching hospital support organizations the existing debt-financed safe harbor rule. Congress enacted that rule to support the public service activities of tax-exempt schools, universities, pension funds, and consortia of such institutions. Our teaching hospitals require similar support.

A New York Times article on June 21, 2002, described the financial problems which non-profit hospitals are facing to modernize their facilities and meet the growing demand for charitable medical care. The problems have grown more urgent since that article appeared.

On November 22, 2006, the Wall Street Journal noted the rising numbers of uninsured patients who fill hospital emergency rooms without paying their bills. In 2005, 46.6 million Americans had no health insurance. Compounding the growing demand for charitable care, a new safety and infection-prevention standards require hospitals to undertake massive improvements.

As a result, the article stated, for-profit hospitals are moving from older areas to affluent locations where residents can afford to pay for treatment. These private hospitals, the reporter pointed out, typically have no mandate for community service. In contrast, non-profit hospitals must fulfill a community service requirement. They must stretch their resources to provide increased charitable care, update their facilities, and maintain skilled staffing. Both the Wall Street Journal and the New York Times noted the resulting closures of non-profit hospitals due to this financial strain.

The problem is particularly severe for teaching hospitals. As the Times article said, non-profit hospitals provide nearly all the postgraduate medical education in the United States. Post-graduate medical instruction is by nature not profitable. Instruction in the treatment of mental disorders and trauma is especially costly.

Despite their financial problem the Nation’s non-profit hospitals strive to deliver a very high level of service. A study in the December 2006 issue of Archives of Internal Medicine had surveyed hospitals’ quality of care in four areas of treatment.

It found that non-profit hospitals consistently outperformed for-profit hospitals. It also found that teaching hospitals had a higher level of performance in treatment and diagnosis. It said that investment in technology and staffing leads to better care. And it recommended that alternative payments and sources of payments be considered to finance these improvements.

The success and financial constraints of non-profit teaching hospitals is evident in the work of the Queen’s Health Systems in my state. This non-profit organization maintains the largest, private, non-profit hospital in Hawaii. It serves as the primary teaching facility for the University of Hawaii’s medical residency programs in medicine, general surgery, orthopedic surgery, obstetrics-gynecology, pathology, and psychiatry. It conducts educational and training programs for nurses and allied health personnel. It operates the only trauma unit as well as the chief behavioral.
services. To help pay for these community programs without triggering the tax on unrelated business activities, nonprofit teaching hospitals have the same if not more pressing needs as universities, schools, universities, and pension trusts. The same safe harbor rule should be extended to teaching hospitals.

My bill would allow the support organizations for teaching hospitals to engage in limited borrowing to enhance their endowment income. The proposal for teaching hospitals is actually more restricted than current law. It does not use the real estate exemptions, under safeguards developed by the Joint Committee on Taxation to support a teaching hospital's capital development. The proposal is tied directly to the organization endowment. The staff's revenue estimate shows that the provision would generate an endowment capital budget to help a number of teaching hospitals.

The U.S. Senate several times has acted favorably on this proposal. The Senate adopted a similar provision in H.R. 1836 Economic Growth and Tax Relief Act of 2001. The House conference on that bill, however, objected that the provision was unrelated to the bill's focus on individual tax relief and the conference deleted the provision from the final legislation. Subsequently, the Finance Committee included the provision in H.R. 3824 which the Senate passed in 2002. In December 2003, the Joint Committee on Taxation scored the proposal.

As the Senate Finance Committee's recent hearings show, substantial health needs would go unmet if not for our charitable hospitals. It is time for the Congress to assist the Nation's teaching hospitals in their charitable educational service.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the Record.
Children, indicated that our Nation is not as well prepared as once we thought. Only 6 percent of all emergency departments have the essential pediatric supplies and equipment necessary to manage pediatric emergencies. Many of the providers of emergency care have received fragmented and little training in the skills necessary to resuscitate this specialized population. Even our disaster preparedness plans have not fully addressed the unique needs posed by children injured in such disasters.

EMSC remains the only federal program dedicated to examining the best ways to deliver various forms of care to children in emergency settings. Re-authorization of EMSC will ensure that children’s needs will be given the due attention they deserve and that coordination and expansion of services for victims of life-threatening illnesses and injuries will be available throughout the United States.

I look forward to re-authorization of this important legislation and the continued advances in our emergency healthcare delivery system.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Wakefield Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) There are 31,000,000 child and adolescent visits to the nation’s emergency departments every year, with children under the age of 3 years accounting for most of these visits.

(2) Ninety percent of children requiring emergency care are seen in general hospitals, with one-quarter to one-third of the patients being children in the typical general hospital emergency department.

(3) Severe asthma and respiratory distress are the most common emergencies for pediatric patients, representing nearly one-third of all hospitalizations among children under the age of 15 years, while seizures, shock, and airway obstruction are other common pediatric emergencies, followed by cardiac arrest and severe trauma.

(4) Up to 20 percent of children needing emergency care have underlying medical conditions such as asthma, diabetes, sickle-cell disease, low birthweight, and bronchopulmonary dysplasia.

(5) Significant gaps remain in emergency medical care delivered to children, with 43 percent of hospitals lacking cervical collars (used to stabilize spinal injuries) for infants, less than half (47 percent) of hospitals with no pediatric intensive care unit having a written transfer agreement with a hospital that has such a unit, one-third of States lacking a physician available on-call 24 hours a day to provide medical direction to emergency medical technicians or other non-physician emergency care providers, and even those States with such availability lacking full State coverage.

(6) Providers must be educated and trained to manage children’s unique physical and psychological needs in emergency situations, and emergency systems must be equipped with the resources and support services necessary to cover this especially vulnerable population.

(7) The Emergency Medical Services for Children (EMSC) Program under section 1910 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300w-9) is the only Federal program that focuses specifically on improving the pediatric components of emergency medical care.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this Act to reduce child and youth morbidity and mortality by supporting improvements in the quality of all emergency medical care children receive, through the promotion of projects focused on education and improvement of emergency medical care, including those in rural areas and those for children with special healthcare needs. In carrying out this purpose, the Secretary shall:

(1) develop and present scientific evidence on pediatric emergency medical care

(2) promote existing and innovative technologies appropriate for the care of children;

(3) provide information on health outcomes and effectiveness and cost-effectiveness;

(4) The program established under this section shall:

(A) strive to enhance the pediatric capability of emergency medical service systems originally designed primarily for adults; and

(B) in order to avoid duplication and ensure that Federal resources are used efficiently and effectively, be coordinated with all research, evaluations, and awards related to similar programs and services of States and other Federal agencies and to the extent practicable, be designed to work in partnership with State programs.

(Signed)
Despite their financial problem the nation’s nonprofit hospitals strive to deliver a very high level of service. A study in the December 2006 issue of Archives of Internal Medicine had surveyed hospitals’ quality of care in four areas of treatment. It found that nonprofit hospitals consistently outperformed-for-profit hospitals. It also found that teaching hospitals had a higher level of performance in treatment and diagnosis. It said that investment in their hospitals was so large and leads to better care. And it recommended that alternative payments and sources of payments be considered to finance these improvements.

The success and financial constraints of nonprofit teaching hospitals is evident in the work of the Queen’s Health Systems in my State. This 146-year-old organization maintains the largest, private, nonprofit hospital in Hawaii. It serves as the primary clinical teaching facility for the University of Hawaii’s programs in medicine, general surgery, orthopedic surgery, obstetrics-gynecology, pathology, and psychiatry. It conducts educational and training programs for nurses and allied health personnel. It is the primary teaching unit as well as the chief behavioral health program in the State. It maintains clinics throughout Hawaii, health programs for Native Hawaiians, and a small hospital on a rural, economically depressed island. Its medical reference library is the largest in the State. Not the least, it annually provides millions of dollars in uncompensated health services. To help pay for these community benefits, the Queen’s Health Systems, as other nonprofit teaching hospitals, relies significantly on income from its endowment.

In the past, the Congress has allowed tax-exempt schools, colleges, universities, and pension funds to invest their endowment income so as to better meet their financial needs. Under the tax code these organizations can incur debt for real estate investments without triggering the tax on unrelated business activities. If the Queen’s Health Systems were part of a university, it could borrow without incurring an unrelated business income tax. Not being part of a university, however, a teaching hospital and its support organization run the risk of becoming prohibited from borrowing. Nonprofit teaching hospitals have the same if not more pressing needs as universities, school, and pension trusts. The same safe harbor rule should be extended to teaching hospitals.

My bill would allow the support organizations for qualified teaching hospitals to engage in limited borrowing to enhance their endowment income. The proposal for teaching hospitals is actually more restricted than current requirements for educational and training programs, law schools, and pension trusts. Under safeguards developed by the Joint Committee on Taxation staff, a support organization for a teaching hospital can not buy and develop land on a commercial basis. The proposal is tied directly to the organization’s general endowment. The staff’s revenue estimate show that the provision with its general application will help a number a teaching hospitals.

The U.S. Senate several times has acted favorably on this proposal. The Senate adopted a similar provision in H.R. 1836 the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Act of 2001. The House followed suit that has been enacted that the provision was unrelated to the bill’s focus on individual tax relief and the conference deleted the provision from the final legislation. Subsequently, the Finance Committee included the provision in H.R. 7 the CARE Act of 2002 and in S. 476 the CARE Act of 2003 which the Senate passed. In the last Congress S. 6 the Marriage, Opportunity, Relief, and Empowerment Act of 2005, which the Senate leadership introduced, also included the proposal.

As the Senate Finance Committee’s recent hearings show, substantial health needs would go unmet if not for our charitable hospitals. It is time for the Congress to assist the nation’s teaching hospitals in their charitable, educational service.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. TREATMENT OF CERTAIN HOSPITAL
SUPPORT ORGANIZATIONS AS QUALIFIED ORGANIZATIONS FOR PURPOSES OF DETERMINING ACQUISITION INDEBTEDNESS.

(a) In general.—Subparagraph (C) of section 514(c)(9) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to real property acquired by a qualified organization) is amended by striking ‘‘or’’ and adding at the end the following new clause: ‘‘(iv) a qualified hospital support organization (as defined in subparagraph (I)).’’

(b) Qualified Hospital Support Organizations.—Paragraph (9) of section 514(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by adding at the end the following new sub-paragraph:

‘‘(I) Qualified hospital support organizations.—For purposes of subparagraph (C)(iv), the term ‘qualified hospital support organization’ means, with respect to any eligible indebtedness (including any qualified real estate investment of such eligible indebtedness), a support organization (as defined in section 509(a)(3)) which supports a hospital described in section 118(d)(4)(B) and with respect to which—

‘‘(i) more than half of its assets (by value) at any time since its organization—

‘‘(I) were acquired, directly or indirectly, by testamentary gift or devise; or ‘‘(II) consisted of real property, and

‘‘(ii) the fair market value of the organization’s real estate acquired, directly or indi-directly, by gift or devise exceeded 20 percent of the fair market value of all investment assets held by the organization immediately prior to the time that the eligible indebtedness was incurred.

For purposes of this subparagraph, the term ‘eligible indebtedness’ means indebtedness secured by real property acquired by the organization, directly or indirectly, by gift or devise, the proceeds of which are used exclusively to acquire any leasehold interest in such the care or improvements on, or repairs to, such real property. A determination under clauses (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph shall be made each time such an eligible indebtedness (or the qualified refinancing of such an eligible indebtedness) is incurred. For purposes of this subparagraph, a refinancing of such an eligible indebtedness shall be considered qualified if such refinancing does not exceed the amount of the indebtedness was incurred.

(a) in General.—Section 186f-2(g)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ccc-2(2)) is amended by striking ‘‘physician’’ in paragraph (1), except that a patient receiving qualified psychologist services (as defined in subsection (g)(2)(B)) may be under the care of a psychologist with respect to such services to the extent permitted under State law and except that a patient receiving clinical social worker services (as defined in subsection (g)(3)(B)) may be under the care of a clinical social worker with respect to such services to the extent permitted under State law.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall be applied to services provided on or after January 1, 2008.

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to indebtedness incurred on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):
S. 63. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to remove the restriction that a clinical psychologist or clinical social worker provide services in a comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facility to a patient only under the care of a physician; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce legislation to authorize the autonomous functioning of clinical psychologists and clinical social workers within the Medicare comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facility program.

In my judgment, it is unfortunate that Medicare requires clinical supervision of the services provided by certain health professionals and does not allow them to function to the full extent of their state practice licenses. Those who need the services of outpatient rehabilitation facilities should have access to a wide range of social and behavioral science expertise. Clinical psychologists and clinical social workers are recognized as independent providers of mental health care services under the Federal Employee Health Benefits Program, the TRICARE Military Health Program of the Uniformed Services, the Medicare (Part B) Program, and numerous private insurance plans. This legislation will ensure that these qualified professionals achieve the same recognition under the Medicare comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facility program.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

SEC. 2. REMOVAL OF RESTRICTION THAT A CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGIST OR CLINICAL SOCIAL WORKER PROVIDE SERVICES IN A COMPREHENSIVE OUTPATIENT REHABILITATION FACILITY TO A PATIENT UNDER THE CARE OF A PHYSICIAN.

(a) in General.—Section 186f(c)(2)(E) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ccc-2(2)(E)) is amended by striking ‘‘physician’’ in paragraph (1), except that a patient receiving qualified psychologist services (as defined in subsection (g)(2)(B)) may be under the care of a psychologist with respect to such services to the extent permitted under State law and except that a patient receiving clinical social worker services (as defined in subsection (g)(3)(B)) may be under the care of a clinical social worker with respect to such services to the extent permitted under State law.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall be applied to services provided on or after January 1, 2008.

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to indebtedness incurred on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

S. 64. A bill to amend title VII of the Public Health Service Act to ensure that social work students or social work schools are eligible for support under certain programs to assist individuals in pursuing health careers and programs grants for training residents in geriatric care and to establish a social work training program to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, on behalf of our Nation’s clinical social workers, I am introducing legislation to amend the Social Security Act to remove the restriction that a clinical psychologist or clinical social worker provide services in a comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facility to a patient only under the care of a physician; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce legislation to authorize the autonomous functioning of clinical psychologists and clinical social workers within the Medicare comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facility program.

In my judgment, it is unfortunate that Medicare requires clinical supervision of the services provided by certain health professionals and does not allow them to function to the full extent of their state practice licenses. Those who need the services of outpatient rehabilitation facilities should have access to a wide range of social and behavioral science expertise. Clinical psychologists and clinical social workers are recognized as independent providers of mental health care services under the Federal Employee Health Benefits Program, the TRICARE Military Health Program of the Uniformed Services, the Medicare (Part B) Program, and numerous private insurance plans. This legislation will ensure that these qualified professionals achieve the same recognition under the Medicare comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facility program.

This bill may seem familiar: I have introduced similar legislation in the past two Congresses and I am dedicated to ensuring its passage this year. And it has never been more urgent.

We cannot continue to allow our FAA to force the retirement of America’s most experienced commercial pilots at the ripe young age of 60 while they say to their counterparts flying for foreign flags “Welcome to our airspace.”

Many of these great American pilots are veterans who have served our country and the flying public for decades. Many of them have suffered wage concessions and lost their pensions as the airline industry has faced hard times and bankruptcies. But these American pilots are not asking for a handout. They are just saying to the FAA: “Give me the same right you granted our foreign counterparts with the stroke of a pen this November. Let us continue to fly, continue to work, continue to conform to an additional 5 years.” We join them and echo their sentiments to FAA Administrator Blakey. As far as we are concerned, that is the least we can do for America’s pilots, who are considered the best and the safest pilots in the world.

Most nations have abolished mandatory age 60 retirement rules. Many countries, including Canada, Australia, and New Zealand have no upper age limit and consider an age-based retirement rule discriminatory. Sadly though, the United States was one of only four member countries of ICAO, along with Pakistan, Colombia, and France, to dissent to the ICAO decision to increase the retirement age to 65 last year. The Age 60 Rule has no basis in science or safety and never has. The Aerospace Medical Association says that “There is insufficient medical evidence to discontinue the use of pilot certification based upon age alone.”

Similarly, the American Association of Retired Persons, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Seniors Coalition, and the National Institute of Aging of NIH all agree that the Age 60 Rule is simply age discrimination and should end. My colleagues and I agree. When the rule was implemented in 1960 life expectancies were much lower than today. The FAA’s own data shows that pilots over age 60 are as safe as, and in some cases safer than, their younger counterparts. In the process of adopting the new international standard, ICAO studied more than 3,000 over-60 pilots from 54 nations, totaling at least 15,000 pilot-years of flying experience and found the risk of medical incapacitation “a risk so low that it can be safely disregarded.”

Furthermore, a recent economic study force the retirement of American pilots by the FAA. This result shows that allowing pilots to fly to age 65 would save almost $1 billion per year in added Social Security, Medicare, and tax payments and...
Currently, retired members of the Armed Services are permitted to travel on a space-available basis on non-scheduled military flights within the continental United States, and on scheduled overseas flights operated by the Military Airlift Command. My bill would authorize travel for veterans with 100 percent service-connected disabilities.

We owe these heroic men and women who have given so much to our country a debt of gratitude. Of course, we can never repay them for the sacrifices they have made on behalf of our Nation, but we can surely try to make their lives more pleasant and fulfilling. One way in which we can help is to extend military travel privileges to these distinguished American veterans. I have received numerous letters from all over the country attesting to the importance attached to this issue by veterans. Therefore, I ask that my colleagues show their concern and join me in saying 'thank you' by supporting this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, as follows:

S. 67

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

By Mr. KOHL (for himself and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 69 A bill to authorize appropriations for the Hollings Manufacturing Extension Partnership Program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Kohl-Snowe legislation which would fund the Manufacturing Extension Partnership Program, for fiscal year 2008-2012. I am a long-time supporter of the MEP program and believe manufacturing is crucial to the U.S. economy. American manufacturers are a cornerstone of the American economy and embody the best in American values. A healthy manufacturing sector is key to better jobs, rising productivity and higher standards of living in the United States. Every company benefits from manufactured goods. In addition, innovations and productivity gains in the manufacturing sector provide benefits far beyond the products themselves. Small- and medium-sized manufacturers face unprecedented challenges in today's global economy which threaten the existence of manufacturing jobs in the United States. If it isn't China pirating our technologies and promising a low-wage workforce, it is soaring health care and energy costs that cut into profits. Manufacturers today are seeking ways to level the playing field so they can compete globally.

One way to level the playing field is to increase the competitiveness of American businesses—by supporting the MEP program. MEP streamlines operations, integrates new technologies, shortens production times and lowers costs, leading to improved efficiency by offering resources to manufacturers, including organized workshops and consulting projects. In Wisconsin, three of our largest corporations—John Deere, Harley-Davidson, and Oshkosh Truck—are working with Wisconsin MEP centers to develop domestic supply chains.

Manufacturing is an integral part of a web of inter-industry relationships that create a stronger economy. Manufacturing sells goods to other sectors in the economy and, in turn, buys products and services from them. Manufacturing spurs demand for everything from raw materials to intermediate components to software to financial, legal, health, accounting, transportation, and other services in the course of doing business. The future of manufacturing in the United States will be largely determined by how well small- and medium-sized companies cope with the changes in today’s global economy. To be successful, businesses need state-of-the-art technology that allows companies to remain competitive. At a time when economic recovery and global competitiveness are national priorities, I believe MEP continues to be a wise investment.

S. 70. A bill to restore the traditional day of observance of Memorial Day, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, in our efforts to recognize many Americans by making Memorial Day the last Monday in May, we have lost sight of the significance of this day to our Nation. My bill would restore Memorial Day to May 30 and authorize our flag to fly at half mast on that day. In addition, this legislation would authorize the President to issue a proclamation designating Memorial Day and Veterans Day as days for prayer and ceremonies. This legislation would help restore the recognition our veterans deserve for the sacrifices they have made on behalf of our nation.

S. 71. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for improved reimbursement for clinical social worker services under the medicare program to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to amend Title XVIII of the Social Security Act to correct discrepancies in the reimbursement of clinical social workers covered through Medicare, Part B. The three proposed changes contained in this legislation clarify the current payment process for clinical social workers and establish a reimbursement methodology for the profession that is similar to other health care professions reimbursed through the Medicare program.

First, this legislation sets payment for clinical social worker services according to a fee schedule established by the Secretary. Second, it explicitly states that services and supplies furnished by a clinical social worker are covered Medicare expense, just as these services are covered for other mental health professionals in Medicare.

Third, the bill allows clinical social workers to be reimbursed for services provided to a client who is hospitalized.

Clinical social workers are valued members of our health care provider network. They are legally regulated in every state of the union and are recognized as independent providers of mental health care throughout the health care system. It is time to correct the disparate reimbursement treatment of this profession under Medicare.

(b) DEFINITION OF CLINICAL SOCIAL WORKER SERVICES EXPANDED.—Section 1861(h)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395xx(h)(2)) is amended by striking “services performed by a clinical social worker (as defined in paragraph (1))” and inserting “such services and such services and supplies furnished as an incident to such services performed by a clinical social worker (as defined in paragraph (1))”;

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):

S. 73. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for patient protection by establishing minimum nurse staffing ratios at certain Medicare providers, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce the Registered Nurse Safe Staffing Act. For over four decades I have been a committed supporter of nurses and the delivery of safe patient care. With these important improvements will help to ensure patient safety, the complexity and variability of today’s hospitals require that staffing patterns be determined at the hospital and unit level, with the professional input of registered nurses. More than a decade of research demonstrates that nurse staffing levels and the skill mix of nursing staff directly affect the clinical outcomes of hospitalized patients. Studies show that there are inadequate numbers of registered nurses, there are lower mortality rates, shorter lengths of stay, reduced costs, and fewer complications.

A study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association found that the risks of patient mortality rose by 7 percent for every additional patient added to the average nurse’s workload. In the midst of a nursing shortage and increasing financial pressures, hospitals often find it difficult to maintain adequate staffing.

While nursing research indicates that adequate registered nurse staffing is vital to the health and safety of patients, there is no standardized public reporting mechanism, nor enforcement of adequate staffing plans. The only regulations addressing nursing staff exists vaguely in Medicare Conditions of Participation which states: “The nursing service must have an adequate number of licensed registered nurses, licensed practice (vocational) nurse, and other personnel to provide nursing care to all patients as needed”.

This bill will require Medicare Participating Hospitals to develop and maintain reliable and valid systems to determine the adequacy of registered nurse staffing. Given the demands that the healthcare industry faces today, it is our responsibility to ensure that patients have access to adequate nursing care. However, we must ensure that the decisions by which care is provided are made by the clinical experts, the registered nurses caring for these patients. Support of this bill supports our nation’s nurses during a critical shortage, but more importantly, works to ensure the safety of their patients.

I do not consent to the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE. This Act may be cited as the “Registered Nurse Safe Staffing Act of 2007”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS. Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Registered nurses working in the United States that have inadequate staffing of registered nurses to protect the well-being and health of the patients.

(2) Studies show that the health of patients in hospitals is directly proportionate to the number of registered nurses working in the hospital.

(3) There is a critical shortage of registered nurses in the United States.

(4) The effect of that shortage is revealed in unsafe staffing levels in hospitals.

(5) Patient safety is adversely affected by these unsafe staffing levels, creating a public health crisis.

(6) Registered nurses are being required to perform professional services under conditions that do not support quality health care or a healthful work environment for registered nurses.

(7) As a payer for inpatient and outpatient hospital services for individuals entitled to benefits under the Medicare program established by the Social Security Act, the Federal Government has a compelling interest in promoting the safety of such individuals by requiring any hospital to ensure appropriate staffing levels for patient care.

SEC. 3. ESTABLISHMENT OF MINIMUM STAFFING RATIOS BY MEDICARE PARTICIPATING HOSPITALS.

(a) REQUIREMENT OF MEDICARE PROVIDER AGREEMENT.—Section 1886(a)(1) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395cc(a)(1)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (U), by striking “and” at the end;

(2) in subparagraph (V), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; and”;

(3) by inserting after subparagraph (V) the following new subparagraph:

“(W) in the case of a hospital, to meet the requirements of subsection 1890;”;

(b) REQUIREMENTS OF MEDICARE PARTICIPATING HOSPITALS.—Section XVIII of the Social Security Act is amended by inserting after section 1890 the following new section:

The evaluation shall be conducted by a joint nursing and medical staff committee comprised of at least 50 percent of registered nurses who provide direct patient care.

(A) RESPONSIBILITY.—The Secretary shall enforce the requirements and prohibitions of this section in accordance with the procedures for enforcement of this subsection.

If不免 the violation for which the penalty was imposed, and such additional information as the Secretary determines appropriate.

“(2) CHANGE OF OWNERSHIP.—With respect to a participating hospital that had a change in ownership, as determined by the Secretary, penalties imposed on the hospital while under previous ownership shall no longer be published by the Secretary of such Internet site after the 1-year period beginning on the date of change in ownership.

“(D) PROSECUTIONS.—

“(1) PROHIBITION OF DISCRIMINATION AND RETALIATION.—A participating hospital shall not discriminate in any way against any patient or employee of the hospital because that patient or employee, or any other person, has presented a grievance or complained of or cooperated in any investigation or proceeding of any kind, relating to the staffing system or other requirements and prohibitions of this section.

“(2) RELIEF FOR PREVAILING EMPLOYEES.—An employee of a participating hospital who has been discriminated against or retaliated against in employment, because of the exercise of the rights under this section may initiate judicial action in a United States district court and shall be entitled to reinstatement, reimbursement for lost wages, and work benefits caused by the unlawful acts of the employing hospital. By Mr. AKAKA (for himself and Mr. LAUTENBERG):

S. 82. A bill to reaffirm the authority of the Comptroller General to audit and evaluate the programs, activities, and financial transactions of the intelligence community, and for other purposes; to the Select Committee on Intelligence.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I rise to introduce ‘‘The Intelligence Community

nity Audit Act of 2007,’’ with Senator LAUTENBERG. This legislation reaffirms the authority of the Comptroller General of the United States and head of the Government Accountability Office (GAO) to audit the financial transactions and evaluate the programs and activities of the intelligence community (IC).

Our bill is identical to S. 3968, introduced in the last Congress by Senator LAUTENBERG and myself, and to H.R. 6252, introduced in the House by Representative BENNY GILDERETH. The need for more effective oversight and accountability of our intelligence community has never been greater. In the war against terrorism, intelligence agencies are both the spear and the shield: the first line of our attack and the barrier of our defense. Failure can bear terrible consequences.

Congress has two responsibilities: the first is to ensure that our intelligence community is performing its mission effectively, and the second is to ensure that in performing its mission, the intelligence community is not infringing on the constitutional rights of individual Americans.

Yet the ability of Congress to ensure that the intelligence community has sufficient resources and capability of performing its mission has never been more in question. The establishment of the Department of Homeland Security and the passage of the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004 created a new institutional landscape littered by new intelligence agencies with ever increasing demands and responsibilities. These new agencies became members of an already populated club of organizations performing intelligence related functions.

The intelligence community today consists of 19 different agencies or components: the Office of the Director of National Intelligence; Central Intelligence Agency; Department of Defense; Defense Intelligence Agency; National Security Agency; Departments of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; Department of Energy; Department of Justice; Federal Bureau of Investigation; National Reconnaissance Office; National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency; Coast Guard; Department of Homeland Security, and the Drug Enforcement Administration.

Congress too has increased its oversight responsibilities. Committees other than the intelligence committees of the House and Senate have jurisdiction over such departments as Homeland Security, State, Defense, Justice, Energy, Treasury, and Commerce.

But all of these ‘‘non-intelligence’’ committees are restricted in their ability to conduct effective oversight of intelligence functions of these agencies. As Oversight Committee, we find it increasingly difficult to fulfill our responsibilities. Fortunately, the intelligence community now has the Government Accountability Office (GAO) when committees of jurisdiction request that GAO investigate problems. This is happening despite the clear responsibility of Congress to ensure that these agencies are operating effectively to protect America.

It is inconceivable that the GAO—the audit arm of the U.S. Congress—has been unable to conduct evaluations of the CIA for over 40 years. If the GAO had been able to conduct basic auditing functions reasonably within the CIA, perhaps some of the problems that were so clearly exposed following the terrorist attacks in September 2001 would have been resolved. And yet, it is extraordinary that five years after 9–11, the same problems persist.

Two recent incidents have made this situation disturbingly clear. At a hearing entitled, “Access Delayed: Fixing the Security Clearance Process, Part II,” before my Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management, the Federal Workforce, and the District of Columbia, on November 9, 2005, GAO was asked about steps it would take to ensure that the Office of Personnel Management, the Office of Management and Budget, and the intelligence community met the goals and objectives outlined in the OPM security clearance strategic plan. Fixing the security clearance process, which is on GAO’s high-risk list, is essential to our national security. But as GAO observed in a written response to a question raised by Senator Voinovich, “while we have the authority to do such work, we lack the cooperation we need to get our job done in that area.”

A similar case arose in response to a GAO investigation for the Senate Homeland Security Committee and the House Government Reform Committee on how agencies are sharing terrorism-related and sensitive but unclassified information. The report, entitled “Information Sharing, the Federal Government Needs to Establish Policies and Processes for Sharing Terrorism-Related and Sensitive but Unclassified Information” (GAO-06-385), was released in March 2006.

At a time when Congress is criticized by members of the 9–11 Commission for failing to implement its recommendations, we should remember that improving terrorism information sharing among agencies was one of the critical recommendations of the Commission. Moreover, the Intelligence Reform and Terrorism Prevention Act of 2004 mandated the terrorism information through the creation of an Information Sharing Environment. Yet, when asked by GAO for comments on the GAO report, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence refused, stating that “OPM, the Office of Management and Budget review of intelligence activities is beyond GAO’s purview.”

A Congressional Research Service memorandum entitled, “Overview of ‘Classified’ and ‘Sensitive but Unclassified’ Information,” concludes, “It appears that OPM, the OMB, and the DNI—three elements of the intelligence community—have, in some instances, had the effect of deterring information sharing for homeland security.”

Unfortunately I have more examples that predate the post 9–11 reforms. Indeed, in July 2001, in testimony, entitled “Central Intelligence Agency, Observations on GAO Access to Information on CIA Programs and Activities” (GAO-01-975T) before the House Committee on Government Reform, the GAO noted, as a practical manner, “our access is generally limited to obtaining information on threat assessments when the CIA does not perceive [sic] our audits as oversights of its activities.”

The bill I introduce today does not detract from the authority of the intelligence committees. In fact, the language makes explicit that the Comptroller General may conduct an audit or evaluation of intelligence sources and methods or covert actions only upon the request of the intelligence committees or at the request of the congressional majority or minority leaders. The measure also prescribes for the security of the information collected by the General.

As both House Rule 48 and Senate Resolution 400 establishing the intelligence oversight committees state, “Nothing in this charter shall be construed as amending, limiting, or otherwise changing the authority of any standing committee of the House or Senate, to obtain full and prompt access to the product of the intelligence activities of any department or agency of the Government relevant to a matter otherwise within the jurisdiction of such committees.”

Despite this clear and unambiguous statement, the ability of non-intelligence committees to obtain information, no matter how vital to improving the security of our nation, has been restricted by the various elements of the intelligence community.

My bill reaffirms the authority of the Comptroller General to conduct audits and evaluations—other than those relating to sources and methods, or covert actions—relating to the management and administration of elements of the intelligence community in areas such as strategic planning, financial management, information technology, human capital, knowledge management, information sharing, and change management for other relevant committees of Congress.

As I mentioned earlier in my statement, Congress also has the responsibility of ensuring that unfettered intelligence collection does not trample civil liberties. New technologies and new personal information data bases threaten our individual right to a secure private life, free from unlawful government invasion. We must ensure that private information collected by the intelligence community is not misused and is secure. Intelligence agencies have a legitimate mission to protect our national security against threats. However, Congress’ role is to ensure that their mission remains legitimate.

Attached is a detailed description of the legislation that I ask unanimous consent be printed in the RECORD.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this legislation. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the legislation I am introducing be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Report I

Section 1 of the Act provides that the Act may be cited as the “Intelligence Community Audit Act of 2007.”

Section 2(a) of the Act adds a new Section 3523a to title 31, United States Code, with respect to the Comptroller General’s authority to audit or evaluate activities of the intelligence community. New Section 3523a(b)(1) reaffirms that the Comptroller General possesses, under his existing statutory authority, the authority to perform audits and evaluations of financial transactions, programs, and activities of elements of the intelligence community and to obtain access to records for the purposes of such audits and evaluations, which should be done upon the request of the congressional intelligence committees or any committee of jurisdiction of the House of Representatives or the Senate (including committees on Homeland Security of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs of the Senate), or at the Comptroller General’s initiative, pursuant to the existing authorities referenced in new Section 3523a(b)(1). New Section 3523a(b)(2) further provides that these audits and evaluations under the Comptroller General’s existing authority may include, but are not limited to, matters relating to the management and administration of elements of the intelligence community in areas such as strategic planning, financial management, information technology, human capital, knowledge management, information sharing, and change management. These audits and evaluations would be accompanied by the safeguards that the Government Accountability Office (GAO) has in place to protect classified and other sensitive information, including physical security arrangements, classification and sensitivity reviews, and restricted distribution of certain products.

This reaffirmation is designed to respond to the Executive Branch assertion that GAO does not have the authority to review activities of the intelligence community. To the contrary, GAO’s current statutory audit and access authorities permit it to evaluate a wide range of activities in the intelligence community. To further ensure that GAO’s authorities are appropriately construed in this regard, the new Section 3523a(b) (as described below) makes clear that nothing in this or any other provision of law shall be construed as restricting or limiting the Comptroller General’s authority to audit and evaluate, or obtain access to the records of, elements of the intelligence community absent specific statutory language restricting or limiting such audits, evaluations, or access to records.

New Section 3523a(c)(1) provides that Comptroller General may conduct audits and evaluations of intelligence sources and methods, or covert actions may be undertaken only upon the request of the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate, or the Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives, or the majority or the minority leader of the Senate or the House of Representatives. The bill is intended to recognize the heightened sensitivity of audits and evaluations relating to intelligence sources and methods, or covert actions.

The new Section 3523a(c)(2)(A) provides that the results of such audits or evaluations under Section 3523a(c) shall be communicated to the original requestor, the Director of National Intelligence, and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community. Since the methods GAO uses to communicate the results of its audits or evaluations vary, this provision restricts the dissemination of the results of an audit or evaluation under Section 3523a(c), whether through testimony, oral briefings, or written reports, to only the original requestor, the Director of National Intelligence, and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community. Similarly, under new Section 3523a(c)(2)(B), the Comptroller General may only provide information to the Chief Executive Officer or to an audit or evaluation to the original requestor, the Director of National Intelligence, and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community.

The new Section 3523a(c)(3)(A) provides that notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Comptroller General may inspect records of any component of the intelligence community relating to intelligence sources and methods, or covert actions in order to perform an audit or evaluation under Section 3523a(c). The Comptroller General’s access extends to any records which belong to, or are in the possession and control of, the element of the intelligence community regardless of who was the original owner of such information. Under new Section 3523a(c)(3)(B), the Comptroller General may enforce the access rights provided under this subsection pursuant to section 716 of title 31. However, before the Comptroller General files a report pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 716(b)(1), the Comptroller General must consult with the original requestor concerning the Comptroller General’s intent to file a report.

The new Section 3523a(c)(4) reiterates the Comptroller General’s obligations to protect the confidentiality of information and adds special safeguards to protect records and information obtained from elements of the intelligence community for audits and evaluations performed under Section 3523a(c). For example pursuant to new Section 3523a(c)(4)(B), the Comptroller General is to maintain confidentiality for information subject to audit or evaluation, all workpapers and records obtained for the audit or evaluation under Section 3523a(c)(4)(C), the Comptroller General is directed, after consulting with the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives, to establish procedures to protect from unauthorized disclosure all classified and other sensitive information obtained from the Comptroller General under Section 3523a(c). Under new Section 3523a(c)(4)(D), prior to initiating an audit or evaluation under Section 3523a(c), the Comptroller General shall provide to the Director of National Intelligence and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community with the name of each officer or employee of the Government Accountability Office who has obtained appropriate security clearances.

The new Section 3523a(e) provides that elements of the intelligence community shall cooperate fully with the Comptroller General and provide timely responses to Comptroller General requests for documentation and information. The new Section 3523a(e) makes clear that nothing in this or any other provision of law shall be construed as restricting or limiting the Comptroller General’s authority to audit and evaluate, or obtain access to the records of, elements of the intelligence community absent specific statutory language restricting or limiting such audits, evaluations, or access to records.

SECURITY CLASSIFIED INFORMATION

Current security classification arrangements, prescribed by an executive order of President Franklin D. Roosevelt as E.O. 8831, were set out below.

The new Section 3523a(c) reiterates the Comptroller General’s obligations to protect the confidentiality of information and adds special safeguards to protect records and information obtained from elements of the intelligence community for audits and evaluations performed under Section 3523a(c). For example pursuant to new Section 3523a(c)(4)(B), the Comptroller General is to maintain confidentiality for information subject to audit or evaluation, all workpapers and records obtained for the audit or evaluation under Section 3523a(c)(4)(C), the Comptroller General is directed, after consulting with the Select Committee on Intelligence of the Senate and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence of the House of Representatives, to establish procedures to protect from unauthorized disclosure all classified and other sensitive information obtained from the Comptroller General under Section 3523a(c). Under new Section 3523a(c)(4)(D), prior to initiating an audit or evaluation under Section 3523a(c), the Comptroller General shall provide to the Director of National Intelligence and the head of the relevant element of the intelligence community with the name of each officer or employee of the Government Accountability Office who has obtained appropriate security clearances.

The new Section 3523a(e) provides that elements of the intelligence community shall cooperate fully with the Comptroller General and provide timely responses to Comptroller General requests for documentation and information. The new Section 3523a(e) makes clear that nothing in this or any other provision of law shall be construed as restricting or limiting the Comptroller General’s authority to audit and evaluate, or obtain access to the records of, elements of the intelligence community absent specific statutory language restricting or limiting such audits, evaluations, or access to records.

CONGRESSIONAL RESEARCH SERVICE

July 18, 2006

From: Harold C. Bleyea, Specialist in American National Government, Government and Finance Division

Subject: Overview of “Classified” and “Sensitive but Unclassified” Information

Prescribed executive policies may require the protection of, or a privileged status for, particular kinds of information. This memorandum provides a brief introduction to, and overview of, two categories of such information policy. The first category is demarcated largely in a single policy instrument—presidential executive order and directive—by clear, specific, and considerable definitions for classification: the national security information in terms of three degrees of harm the disclosure of such information could cause to national defense interests, or to foreign relations, or to the national security of the United States. The second category is defined in, and governed by, the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), and is based on a delimitation between what is “classified” and what is not. In addition to the two definitions provided in new Section 3523a(c). changing world conditions: the democratization of many eastern European countries, the demise of the Soviet Union, and the end of the Cold War. Accountability and cost considerations also signaled significant changes. In 1985, the temporary Department of Defense (DOD) Security Review Commission, chaired by retired General Richard G. Stilwell, reported that there were verifiable figures as to the amount of classified material produced in DOD and in defense industry each year. Nonetheless, it concluded that information required to be classified and much at higher levels than is warranted. In October 1983, the cost of the classification program came under intense scrutiny when the General Accounting Office (GAO) reported that it was “able to identify government-wide costs directly applicable to the production of security information totaling over $50 million for 1992.” After breaking this figure down—it included only $6 million for declassification work—the report added that “the U.S. government also spends additional billions of dollars annually to safeguard information, personnel, and property.”

E.O. 12586 set limits for the duration of classification and prohibited the reclassification of properly classified records, authorized government employees to challenge the classification status of records, reestablished the 1952 order of E.O. 12065, eliminating the need to protect information vis-à-vis the public interest in its disclosure, and created the Interagency Security Classification Appeals Panel on classification and declassification actions and one to advise on policy and procedure. Most recently, in March 2003, President George W. Bush issued E.O. 13292, amending E.O. 12586. Among the changes made by this order were adding infrastructure vulnerabilities or capabilities, protection services, and weapons of mass destruction to the categories of classified information; easing the reclassification of classified records; postponing the automatic declassification of protected records 25 or more years old, beginning in mid-April 2003 to the end of December 2006, eliminating the requirement that agencies prepare plans for declassifying records; and permitting the Director of Central Intelligence to block declassification actions of the Interagency Security Classification Appeals Panel, unless overruled by the President.

The security classification program has evolved over the past 56 years. It does not agree with all of its rules and requirements, but attention to detail in its policy and procedure result in a significant management and administrative order, as amended, defines its principal terms. Those who are authorized to exercise original classification authority are identified. Executive orders of classified information are specified, as are the terms of the duration of classification, as well as classification prohibitions and limitations. Classified information is required to be marked appropriately along with the identity of the original classifier, the agency or office of origin, and a date or event for declassification. Authorized holders of classified information who believe that its protected status is improper are “encouraged and expected” to challenge that status through prescribed arrangements. Mandatory declassification reviews are also authorized to determine if protected records merit continued classification at their present level, a lower level, or at all. The panel has said that “classified” and mandatory declassification reviews are subject to review by the Intragency Security Classification Appeals Panel. General restrictions on classified information are prescribed, as are distribution controls for classified information. The Information Security Oversight Office (ISOO) within the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) is mandated to provide central management and oversight of the security classification program. A recently created entity finds that a violation of the order or its implementing directives has occurred, it must be reported to the head of the agency, and the head must then order notification to the designated agency so that corrective steps, if appropriate, may be taken.

While Congress, thus far, has elected not to create a defined authority for classification policy and procedures, the option to do so has been explored in the past, and its legislative authority to do so has been recognized by the Supreme Court. However, it has established protections for certain kinds of information—such as Restricted Data in the Atomic Energy Acts of 1946 and 1954, and military intelligence and special security information in the National Security Act of 1947—which have been realized through security classification arrangements. It has acknowledged, with a view to efficiency and economy, as well as with a view to consistency, that all members of Congress, on various occasions, have conducted oversight of security classification policy and practice, and have been assisted by GAO and CRS in this regard.

SENSITIVE BUT UNCLASSIFIED INFORMATION

The widespread existence and use of information control markings other than those prescribed for the security classification of information came to congressional attention in March 1972 when a subcommittee of what is now the House Committee on Government Reform launched the first oversight hearings on the effect of the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). Enacted in 1966, FOIA had become operative in July 1967. In the early months of 1972, the Nixon Administration was developing new security classification policy and procedure, which would be prescribed in E.O. 11652, issued in early March. Preparatory to this hearing, the panel had surveyed the departments and agencies in August 1971, asking, among other questions, “What legend is used by your agency to identify records which are not classified but which are not available outside the government?" The most common were For Official Use Only (11 agencies); Limited Official Use (nine agencies); Official Use Only (eight agencies); Restricted (five agencies); and administrative restrictions (four agencies); Formerly Restricted Data (four agencies); and Nodis, or no dissemination (four agencies). Seven other markings were used by two agencies in each case. A CRS review of the agency responses to the control markings question prompted the following comments:

Often no authority is cited for the establishment or origin of these labels; even when some reference is provided it is a handbook, manual, administrative order, or a circular but not statutory authority. Exceptions to this are the Atomic Energy Commission, the Defense Department and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. These agencies cite the Atomic Energy Act, N.A.T.O. related laws, and international agreements as a basis for certain additional information control markings. The Arms Control and Disarmament Agency acknowledged it honored and adopted State and Defense Department labels.

Over three decades later, it appears that agencies have a wide array of these information control markings in use; that the majority of them are administratively, not statutorily, prescribed; and that many of them have an inadequate management regime, particularly when compared with the detailed arrangements which govern the classification of national security information. A recent press account illustrates another problem. In late January 2005, GCN Update, the online, electronic news service of Government Computer News, reported that ""documents of classified Homeland Security Department documents"" had been accidently made available on a public Internet site for several days to an apparent security glitch at the Department of Energy. Describing the contents of the compromised materials and reactions to the breach, the account stated the “documentation basically includes "the lowest secret-level classification." The documents, of course, were not security classified, because the marking cited is not authorized by E.O. 12958. Interestingly, however, in view of the fact that this misinterpretation appeared in a story to which three reporters contributed, perhaps it reflects, to some extent, the current confusion of these information control markings with security classification designations.

Broadly considering the contemporary situation in regard to protective markings, a recent information security report by the JASON Program Office of the MITRE Corporation proffered the following assessments:

The status of sensitive information outside of the present classification system is murkier than ever. ‘‘Sensitive but unclassified’’ data is increasingly defined by the eye of the beholder. Lacking in definition, it is correspondingly lacking in policies and procedures for protecting (or not protecting) it, and regarding how and by whom it is generated and used.

A contemporaneous Heritage Foundation report appeared to agree with this appraisal, saying:

The process for classifying secret information in the federal government is disciplined and explicit. The same cannot be said for unclassified but security-related information for which there is no usable definition, no common understanding about how to control it, no agreement on what significance it has for U.S. national security, and for adjudicating concerns regarding appropriate levels of protection.

Concerning the current Sensitive but Unclassified (SBU) marketplace set by the Federal Research Division of the Library of Congress commented that guidelines for its use are needed, and noted that “a uniform definition of the term SBU is not applicable to all Federal government agencies does not now exist.” Indeed, the report indicates that SBU has been utilized in different contexts with little precision as to its scope or meaning, and, to add a bit of chaos to an already confusing situation, is “often referred to as Sensitive Homeland Security Information.”

Assessments of the variety, management, and impact of information control markings, other than those prescribed for the classification of national security information, have been conducted by CRS, GAO, and the National Security Archive, a private sector research and resource center located at The George Washington University. In March 2006, GAO indicated that, in a recent survey, 26 federal agencies reported using 56 different information control markings to protect sensitive but unclassified information. Of these markings, only one had a legal definition, and 45 were based on a handbook, manual, administrative order, or a circular, but not statutory authority. Some, such as Nodis, which once was mandated by the Information Management and Oversight Office, but not currently, were included for reasons of cost savings. The committee noted that the trend toward using such markings was a policy decision of the agencies to balance the need to protect proprietary information with the need to share information with the public. These are the Atomic Energy Commission, the Defense Department, and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. These agencies cite the Atomic Energy Act, N.A.T.O. related laws, and international agreements as a basis for certain additional information control markings. The Arms Control and Disarmament Agency acknowledged it honored and adopted State and Defense Department labels.

numbers are important in terms of the variety of such markings. GAO explained this dimension of the management problem. There are at least 15 agencies that use the term "For Official Use Only" (FOUO), but there are at least five different definitions of FOUO. At least seven agencies or agencies that use the term "Forensics". This definition includes the National Science Foundation (NSF), the Department of Energy (DOE), the Department of Justice (DOJ), the National Institutes of Health (NIH), the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), the Department of the Interior (DOI) and the Department of Transportation (DOT).

They result in a lack of coordination and a lack of uniformity in the way these markings are used. This was reflected in the report of the National Commission on Terrorist Attacks Upon the United States, which recommended the creation of a single government agency to coordinate the use of these markings.

There are no government-wide policies or procedures that describe the basis on which these markings are used. The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has issued guidance, but it is not clear how this guidance is implemented by the agencies that use these markings.

There are also concerns about the use of these markings in the context of the implementation of the Intelligence Community Restructuring Act of 2004 (ICRA). This act was passed in response to the September 11th terrorist attacks, and it was intended to create a more efficient and effective intelligence community. However, some have raised concerns that the use of these markings could be used to obscure the sharing of information that is important for understanding the terrorist threat.

In addition, there is a lack of coordination and a lack of uniformity in the way these markings are used. The Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has issued guidance, but it is not clear how this guidance is implemented by the agencies that use these markings.

The importance of information sharing is critical in the context of homeland security. However, there are concerns about the use of these markings in the context of the implementation of the Intelligence Community Restructuring Act of 2004 (ICRA). This act was passed in response to the September 11th terrorist attacks, and it was intended to create a more efficient and effective intelligence community. Both resolutions also direct that the membership of each intelligence committee include representatives of the respective standing committees that historically have been involved in intelligence oversight. The respective resolutions designate the following committees in this capacity: Appropriations, Armed Services, Judiciary, and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House International Relations Committee.

Although each resolution directs that such cross-over members be designated, neither specifies whether cross-over members are to play any additional role beyond serving on the intelligence committees. For example, neither resolution outlines whether cross-over members are to inform colleagues on standing committees they represent. Rather, each resolution directs only that the "intelligence committee" shall promptly call such matters to the attention of standing committees and the respective chambers if the committees determine that they require further attention by those entities.

SUMMARY CONCLUSIONS

Although the President is statutorily obligated to keep the congressional intelligence committees fully and currently informed of intelligence activities, the statute does not specify how the intelligence committees are to inform the respective chambers or standing committees of such activities, if either of the two committees determine that further oversight attention is required.

Further, resolutions establishing the two intelligence committees make clear that the intelligence committees share intelligence oversight responsibilities with other standing committees, to the extent that certain intelligence activities affect matters that fall under the jurisdiction of a committee other than the intelligence committees.

Finally, the resolutions establishing the intelligence committees provide for the designation of "cross-over" members representing certain standing committees that played a role in intelligence oversight prior to the establishment of the intelligence committees in the 1970s. The resolutions, however, do not specify what role, if any, these "cross-over" members play in keeping standing committees on which they serve informed of certain intelligence activities. Rather, the resolutions state that the respective intelligence committee shall make that determination.

"3523a. Audits of intelligence community: audits and requesters"

By Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. BIDEN, and Mr. LIEBERMAN):

S. 83. A bill to provide increased rail transportation security; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined today by Senators SNOWE, BIDEN, and LIEBERMAN in introducing the Rail Security Act of 2007. This legislation is nearly identical to the rail security measures approved by the Senate during both the 108th and 109th Congresses. Unfortunately, the House of Representatives has yet to act. on rail security legislation. I remain hopeful that rail security will be made a top priority for the 110th Congress.

We have taken important steps and expended considerable resources to secure the homeland since 9/11. I think all would agree that air travel is safer than it was five years ago. And we have worked to address port security in a comprehensive manner. However, we need to do more to better secure other transportation modes, a fact well documented by the 9/11 Commission. Unfortunately, only relatively modest sources have been dedicated to rail security in recent years. As a result, our Nation’s transit system, Amtrak, and the freight railroads remain vulnerable to terrorist attacks.

The Rail Security Act would authorize a total of almost $1.2 billion dollars for rail security. More than half of this funding would be authorized to complete tunnel safety and security improvements at New York’s Penn Station, Amtrak, over 600,000 train stations, commuter, and intercity passenger stations each workday. The legislation would also establish a grant program to encourage security enhancements by the freight railroads, Amtrak, shippers of hazardous materials, and local governments with responsibility for passenger stations. It would help to address identified security weaknesses in a manner that also seeks to protect the taxpayers’ interests.

As we continue to fight the War on Terror, we need to do what we can to address our vulnerabilities. We have witnessed the tragic attacks on rail systems in other countries, including the cities of London, Mumbai and Madrid, and the devastating consequences of those attacks. It is essential that we move expeditiously to protect all the modes of transportation from potential attack, and this legislation will help to do just that.

As I mentioned earlier, the Senate has consistently supported legislation to promote rail security. Most recently, rail security provisions were adopted last Fall as part of the port security legislation. But again, the House failed to allow these important security provisions to move ahead, and the provisions were stripped from the conference agreement. As a result, our rail network continues to remain vulnerable to terrorist attack. That is unacceptable in my judgment.

I urge the Senate to move quickly to again pass this important legislation.

Mr. McCaIN (for himself, Mr. STEVENS, and Mr. DORGAN):

S. 94. A bill to establish the United States Boxing Commission to administer the Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. McCaIN. Mr. President, today I am pleased to be joined by Senators STEVENS and DORGAN and in introducing the Professional Boxing Amendments Act of 2007. This legislation is virtually identical to a measure approved unanimously by the Senate in 2005. I remain committed to moving the Professional Boxing Amendments Act through the Senate and I trust that my colleagues will once again vote favorably on this important legislation. Simply put, this legislation would better protect professional boxers, establish a Federal regulatory entity to oversee professional boxing, and very good reason. With rare exception, professional boxes come from the lowest rung on our economic ladder. Often they are the least educated and most exploited athletes in our nation. The Professional Boxing Safety Act of 1996 and the Muhammad Ali Boxing Reform Act of 2000 established uniform health and safety standards for professional boxing, as well as basic protections for boxers against the sometimes coercive, exploitative, and unethical business practices of promoters, managers, and sanctioning organizations. But further action is needed.

The Professional Boxing Amendments Act would strengthen existing Federal boxing law by improving the basic health and safety standards for professional boxers, establishing a centralized medical registry to be used by local commissions to help identify professional boxers, reducing the arbitrary practices of sanctioning organizations, and enhancing the uniformity and basic standards for professional boxing contracts. Most importantly, this legislation would establish a Federal regulatory entity to oversee professional boxing and set basic uniform standards for certain aspects of the sport.

Current law has improved to some extent the state of professional boxing. However, we know as do many others, that the sport remains at risk. In 2003, the Government Accountability Office (GAO) spent more than six months studying ten of the country’s busiest State and tribal boxing commissions. Government auditors found that many State and tribal boxing commissions still do not comply with Federal boxing law, and that there is a troubling lack of enforcement by both Federal and State officials.

Ineffective and inconsistent oversight of professional boxing has contributed to the continuing scandals, controversies, unethical practices, and unnecessary deaths in the sport. These problems have led many in professional boxing to conclude that the only solution is an effective and accountable Federal boxing commission. The Professional Boxing Amendments Act would create such an entity.

Professional boxing remains the only major sport in the United States that does not have a strong, centralized association, league, or other regulatory body to establish and enforce uniform rules and practices. Because a powerful few benefit greatly from the current system of patchwork compliance and enforcement of Federal boxing law, a national self-regulating organization though preferable to Federal government oversight is not a realistic option.

This bill would establish the United States Boxing Commission, USBC or Commission. The Commission would be responsible for protecting the health, safety, and general interests of professional boxers. The Commission would also be responsible for ensuring uniformity, fairness, and integrity in professional boxing. More specifically, the Commission would administer Federal boxing law and coordinate with other Federal regulatory agencies to ensure that this law is enforced; oversee all professional boxing matches in the United States; and work with the boxing industry and local commissions to improve the safety, integrity, and professionalism of professional boxing in the United States.

The USBC would also license boxers, promoters, managers, and sanctioning organizations. The Commission would have the authority to revoke such a license for violations of Federal boxing law, to stop unethical or illegal conduct, to protect the health and safety of a boxer, or if the revocation is otherwise in the public interest.

Mr. President, it is important to state clearly and plainly for the record that the purpose of the USBC is not to interfere with the daily operations of State and tribal boxing commissions. Instead, the Commission would work in consultation with local commissions, and it would only exercise its authority when reasonable grounds exist for such intervention. In point of fact, the Professional Boxing Act of 2000 explicitly states that it would not prohibit any boxing commission from exercising any of its powers, duties, or functions with respect to the regulation or supervision of professional boxing.

Let there be no doubt, however, of the very basic and pressing need in professional boxing for a Federal boxing commission. The establishment of the USBC would address that need. The problems that plague the sport of professional boxing undermine the credibility of the sport in the eyes of the public and—more importantly—compromise the safety of boxers. The Professional Boxing Amendments Act provides an effective approach to curbing these problems. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

By Mr. McCaIN (for himself, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. REID, Mrs. FEINGOLD, Mr. STEVENS, and Mr. BAUCUS):

S. 85. A bill to amend the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 to clarify that territories and Indian tribes are eligible to receive grants for confronting the use of methamphetamine; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, today I am introducing the Indian Tribes Methamphetamine Reduction Grants Act of 2007. This bill is S. 4113, a bipartisan measure that was passed by unanimous consent in the Senate on December 8, 2006, the last day of the 109th Congress. The legislation would allow Indian tribes to be eligible for funding through the Department of Justice to eradicate the scourge of methamphetamine use, sale and manufacture in Native American communities. I am pleased to be joined by Senators DORGAN, BAUCUS, GRASSLEY, REID, FEINSTEIN, and FEINGOLD in introducing this important legislation.

The impacts of methamphetamine use on communities across the Nation are well known and cannot be overstated. Methamphetamine is the leading drug of concern in our communities. It is a drug of choice for young people linked to methamphetamine use. Following our hearings, I was pleased to work with Senators DORGAN, SESSIONS, BINGAMAN and others in improving upon our legislation to assist Indian Country in fighting this terrible drug epidemic.

To avoid any potential misinterpretation of the intent of this legislation, this bill includes language developed and agreed to during the last Congress that is designed to clarify the intent of the bill. This clarifying language provided in section 2(a)(4) of the bill, is intended to make it clear that by authorizing the Department of Justice’s Bureau of Justice Assistance to award grant funds to a state, territory or Indian tribe to “investigate, arrest and prosecute individuals” involved in illegal methamphetamine activities, the legislation does not somehow authorize a grantee state, territory or Indian tribe to pursue law enforcement activities that it otherwise has no jurisdiction to pursue. Similarly, this provision also clarifies that an award or denial of a grant by the Bureau of Justice Assistance does not somehow allow a state, territory or Indian tribe to pursue law enforcement activities that it otherwise lacks jurisdiction to pursue. For example, a law enforcement agency in one state, territory or Indian reservation is not somehow enabled by this section, or by an award made pursuant to this section, to prosecute a methamphetamine crime arising in another jurisdiction unless that agency already has such jurisdiction.

The legislation further clarifies that authority under the bill to award grants would have no effect beyond simply authorizing, awarding or denying a grant of funds to a state, territory or Indian tribe. So, for example, if a state, territory or Indian tribe is awarded or denied a grant of funds under this section, that award or denial has no relevance to or effect on the eligibility of the state, territory or Indian tribe to participate in any other program or activity unrelated to the award or denial of grants as permitted under this legislation. The award or denial of a grant under this subsection, in other words, is relevant only to the award or denial of the grant under this subsection, and nothing else.

I am introducing today a small step on the long journey toward our fight against methamphetamine. I encourage my colleagues to support it.

S. 86. A bill to designate segments of Fossil Creek, a tributary to the Verde River in the State of Arizona, as wild and scenic rivers; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to provide the Senate with an opportunity to reintroduce a bill to designate Fossil Creek as a Wild and Scenic River. A companion measure is being introduced today by Congressmen RENZI and others and members of the Arizona congressional delegation.

Fossil Creek is a thing of beauty. With its picturesque scenery, lush riparian ecosystem, unique geological features, and deep blue pools and waterfalls, this tributary to the Wild and Scenic Verde River and Lower Colorado River Watershed stretches 14 miles through east central Arizona. It is habitat to a wide variety of wildlife, home to multiple threatened or endangered species. Over 100 bird species inhabit the Fossil Creek area and use it to migrate between the range lowlands and the Mogollon-Craddock Plateau highlands. Fossil Creek also supports a variety of aquatic species and is one of the few perennial streams in Arizona with multiple native fish.

Fossil Creek was named in the 1800’s when early explorers described the fish-like appearance of creek-side rocks and vegetation coated with calcium carbonate deposits from the creek’s water. In the early 1900’s, pioneers recognized the potential for hydroelectric power generation in the creek’s constant and abundant spring fed baseflow. They claimed the channel’s water rights and built two generating facilities known as the Childs-Irving hydro-project. Over time, the project was acquired by Arizona Public Service (APS), one of the state’s largest electric utility providers serving a majority of customers. Because Childs-Irving produced less than half of 1 percent of the total power generated by APS, the decision was made ultimately to decommission the aging dam and restore Fossil Creek to its pre-settlement conditions.

APS has partnered with various environmental groups, federal land managers, and state, tribal and local governments to safely remove the Childs-Irving power generating facilities and restore the riparian ecosystems. In 2005, APS removed the dam system and returned full flows to Fossil Creek. Researchers predict Fossil Creek will soon become a fully regenerated Southwest native fishery providing a valuable opportunity to reintroduce at least six Threatened and Endangered native fish species as well as rebuild the native populations presently living in the creek.

There is a growing need to provide adequate protection and adequate staffing and management at Fossil Creek. Recreational visitation to the riverbed is expected to increase dramatically, and by the Forest Service’s own admission, they aren’t able to manage current levels of visitation or the pressures of increased use. While responsible recreation and other activities at Fossil Creek are to be encouraged, we must also ensure the long-term success of the ongoing restoration efforts. Designation under the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act assures that the appropriate level of protection and resources are devoted to Fossil Creek. Already, Fossil Creek has been found... eligible for Wild and Scenic designation by the Forest Service and the proposal has widespread support from surrounding communities. All of the lands potentially affected by a designation are owned and managed by the Forest Service and will not affect private property.

Fossil Creek is a unique Arizona treasure, and would benefit greatly from the protection and recognition offered through Wild and Scenic designation. I urge my colleagues to support this bill.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself, Mr. KENNEDY, Ms. CANTWELL, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. LUTENBERG, and Mrs. MURRAY):

S. 95. A bill to amend titles XIX and XXI of the Social Security Act to ensure that every uninsured child in America has health insurance coverage, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today the first bill I am introducing in the 110th Congress is the Kids Come First Act, legislation that would ensure every child in America has health care coverage. The Kids Come First Act was also the first bill I introduced in the 109th Congress and I feel just as strongly today as I did at the beginning of the last Congress that insuring all children must be a top agenda item. In the two years since I last introduced this bill, the number of children uninsured in the world, children in this nation has actually worsened.

The 110th Congress faces many challenges, from the war in Iraq to lobbying reform. But perhaps no issue bears more directly on the lives of more Americans than health care reform. Today 47 million Americans are uninsured, including 11 million under age 21. Health care has become a slow-motion Katrina that is ruining lives and bankrupting families all over the country. We cannot stand by as the ranks of the uninsured rise and American families find themselves in peril.

A recent Census Bureau report revealed that for the first time in almost a decade the number of uninsured children increased. In 2005 there were 361,000 children under the age of 18 added to the uninsured rolls. And the number of Americans without health care continues to rise.

The Kids Come First Act calls for a Federal partnership to mandate health care coverage to every child in America. The proposal makes the states an offer they can’t refuse. The federal government will pay for the most expensive part: enrolling all low-income children in Medicaid, automatically. The states will pay to expand coverage to higher income children. In the end, states across the country will save more than $6 billion a year, and every child will have health care.

It is totally unacceptable that, in the greatest country in the world, millions of children are not getting the health care they need. The Kids Come First Act expands coverage for children up to age of 21. Through expanding the programs that work, such as Medicaid and SCHIP, we can cover all eleven million children uninsured children.

Insuring children improves their health and helps families cover the spiraling costs of insuring them. Covering all kids will reduce avoidable hospitalizations by 22 percent and replace expensive critical care with inexpensive preventative care. Also, when children get the medical attention they need, they pay much better attention in the classroom. Studies show their performance improves.

To pay for the expansion of health insurance for children, the Kids Come First Act includes a provision that provides the Secretary of Treasury with the authority to raise the highest income tax rate of 35 percent to a rate not higher than 39.6 percent in order to offset the costs. Prior to the enactment of the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Act Reconciliation Act of 2001, the top marginal rate was 39.6 percent. Less than one percent of taxpayers pay the top rate and for 2007, this rate only affects individual with income above $349,700.

The health care of our children is a priority that we must address and it can be done in a fiscally responsible manner. I will continue to work to find ways to offset the cost of my proposal. The wealthiest of all Americans do not need a tax cut when 11 million children are without health insurance. President Bush has called for this rate cut to be made permanent, but I believe it would be a better use of our resources to invest in our future by improving health care for children.

Since I first introduced the Kids Come First Act in the 109th Congress, more than 500,000 people have shown their support for the bill by becoming Citizen Cosponsors and another 20,000 Americans called into our “Give Voices to Our Children” hotline to share their personal stories. In addition, a coalition of 24 non-profit organizations representing 20 million people from across the country have endorsed Kids Come First, including the National Association of Children’s Hospitals, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Academy of Family Physicians, March of Dimes, the Small Business Service Bureau, AFL-CIO, SEIU, and AFSCME.

It is clear that providing health care coverage for our uninsured children is a priority for our nation’s workers, businesses, and health care community. They know, as I do, that further delay only results in graver health problems for America’s children. Their future, and ours, depends on us doing better. I urge my colleagues to support and help enacting the Kids Come First Act of 2007 during this Congress.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the Kids Come First Act of 2007 be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:
(1) NEED FOR UNIVERSAL COVERAGE.—
(A) Currently, there are 9,000,000 children under the age of 19 that are uninsured. One out of every 8 children are uninsured while 1 in 5 Hispanic children and 1 in 7 African American children are uninsured. Three-quarters, approximately 6,800,000, of these uninsured children are eligible but not enrolled in the Medicaid program or the State Children’s Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). Long-range studies found that 1 in 3 children went without health insurance for all or part of 2002 and 2003.

(B) Low-income children are 3 times as likely as children in higher income families to be uninsured. It is estimated that 65 percent of uninsured children have at least 1 parent working full time over the course of the year.

(C) It is estimated that 50 percent of all legal immigrant children in families with income that is less than 200 percent of the Federal poverty line are uninsured. In States without programs to cover immigrant children, 57 percent of noncitizen children are uninsured.
(D) Children in the Southern and Western parts of the United States were nearly 1.7 times more likely to be uninsured than children in the Northeast. In the Northeast, 9.4 percent of all uninsured children lived in the Midwest, 8.3 percent are uninsured. The South’s rate of uninsured children is 14.3 percent while the West has an uninsured rate of 15 percent.

(E) Children’s health care needs are neglected in the United States. One out of every 5 children has problems accessing needed health care. A quarter of young children in the United States are not insured. About 1 in 4 children in the United States have not had a well-child visit in the past year. One in 6 uninsured children had a delayed or unmet medical need in the past year. Children are less likely to receive proven treatments such as prescription medications to treat chronic disease.

(G) There are 7,600,000 young adults between the ages of 19 and 20. In the United States, approximately 28 percent, or 2,100,000 individuals, of this group are uninsured.

(H) Child poverty and disability among children are on the rise. Children most at risk for chronic illness and disability are children who are most likely to be poor and uninsured.

(2) ROLE OF THE MEDICAID AND STATE CHILDREN’S HEALTH INSURANCE PROGRAMS.—

(A) The Medicaid program and SCHIP serve as a crucial health safety net for 30,000,000 children. During the recent economic downturn, and the highest number of uninsured individuals ever recorded in the United States, the Medicaid program and SCHIP offset losses in employer-sponsored coverage. While the number of children living in low-income families increased between 2000 and 2005, the number of uninsured children fell due to the Medicaid program and SCHIP.

(B) 26,000,000 children are enrolled today in the Medicaid program and SCHIP. The number of children enrolled in the Medicaid program and SCHIP is more than just fill in the gaps. Gains in public coverage have reduced the percentage of low-income uninsured children by 1/3 from 2005 to 2007. A recent study finds that publicly-insured children are more likely to obtain medical care, preventive care, and dental care than similar low-income privately-insured children.

(D) Publicly funded programs such as the Medicaid program and SCHIP actually improve children’s health. Children who are currently enrolled in Medicaid and SCHIP have lower hospitalization rates and are less likely to be overweight than they were a year ago. Expansion of coverage for children and pregnant women under the Medicaid program and SCHIP reduces rates of avoidable hospitalizations by 22 percent and has been proven to reduce childhood deaths, infant mortality rates, and the incidence of low birth weight.

(E) Studies have found that children enrolled in public insurance programs experienced a 68 percent improvement in measures of school readiness.

(F) Despite the success of expansions in general under the Medicaid program and SCHIP, due to current budget constraints, many states have delayed doing outreach and have raised premiums and cost-sharing requirements on families under these programs. In addition, 8 States stopped enrollment in SCHIP for a period of time between April 2003 and July 2004. As a result, SCHIP enrollment fell by 200,000 children for the first quarter after the first time.

(G) It is estimated that nearly 15 percent of children covered through SCHIP do not remain in the program due to disenrollment. Approximately 14 and 15 percent of these children are “lost” in the system. Difficult renewal policies and disenrollment barriers make seamless coverage difficult. Studies indicate that as many as 67 percent of children who were eligible but did not enrolled for SCHIP had applied for coverage but were denied due to procedural issues.

(H) While the Medicaid and SCHIP expansions to date have done much to offset what otherwise would have been a significant loss of coverage among children because of declining access to employer coverage, the shortcomings of previous expansions, such as the failure to enroll all eligible children and lapses in enrollment in SCHIP because of under-funding, also are clear.

TITLE I—EXPANDED COVERAGE OF CHILDREN UNDER MEDICAID AND SCHIP

``In the case of taxable years beginning during calendar year 2007 and thereafter, the final item in the fourth column in the preceding table shall be applied by substituting for "35.0%" a rate equal to the lesser of 39.6% or the rate the Secretary determines is necessary to provide sufficient revenues to offset the Federal outlays required to implement the provisions of, and amendments made by, the Kids Come First Act of 2007."

By Mr. KERRY. S. 96. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to ensure a fairer and simpler method of taxing controlled foreign corporations of United States shareholders, to treat certain foreign corporations managed and controlled in the United States as domestic corporations, to codify the economic substance doctrine, and to eliminate the top corporate income tax rate, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I am introducing the "Export Products Not Jobs Act." This proposal is complicated. In 1991, the IRS estimated that a family that itemized their deductions and had some interest and capital gains would spend 11 1/2 hours preparing their Federal income tax return. A decade later in 2004, this time has increased to 45 hours and 45 minutes. It is time for Congress to pass bipartisan tax legislation in the style of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, which greatly simplified the tax code. And our tax reform should be based upon the following three principles: fairness, simplicity, and opportunity for economic growth.

Citizens and businesses struggle to comply with rules governing taxation of business income, capital gains, income phase-outs, extenders, the myriad savings vehicles, and recordkeeping for itemized deductions, the alternative minimum tax (AMT), and the earned income tax credit (EITC), and taxation of foreign business income. I believe that our international tax system needs to be simplified and reformed to encourage businesses to remain in the United States. And today, I am introducing legislation that I hope will be fully considered as we continue our discussions on tax reform.

Presently, the complexities of our international tax system actually encourage U.S. corporations to invest overseas. Current tax laws allow companies to defer paying U.S. taxes on income earned by their foreign subsidiaries, which provides a substantial tax advantage to companies that move investment and jobs overseas. Today, under U.S. tax law, a company that is trying to decide where to locate production or services—either in the United States or in a foreign low-tax haven—is actually given a substantial tax incentive not only to move jobs overseas, but to reinvest profits permanently, as opposed to bringing the profits back to re-invest in the United States.

Recent press articles have revealed examples of companies taking advantage of this perverse incentive in our tax code. For instance, some companies have taken advantage of this initiative by opening subsidiaries to serve markets throughout Europe. Much of the profit earned by these subsidiaries will stay in the European countries and the companies therefore avoid paying U.S. taxes. Other companies have announced the expansion of jobs in India. This reflects a growth pattern among some U.S. multinational companies of shifting software development and call centers to India, and this trend is starting to expand include the shifting critical functions like design and research and development to India as well. Some companies are even outsourcing the preparation of U.S. tax returns.

The Export Products Not Jobs Act would put an end to these practices by eliminating tax incentives that encourage companies to move jobs overseas and by using the savings to create jobs in the United States by repealing the top corporate rate. This legislation ends tax breaks that encourage companies to move jobs overseas and provides the ability of companies to defer, paying U.S. taxes on foreign income; 2. closing abusive corporate tax loopholes; and 3. repealing the top corporate rate. It removes the incentive to shift jobs overseas and provides the ability of companies that pay taxes on their international income as they earn it, rather than being allowed to defer taxes.
Last Congress, the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Revenue held a hearing on international tax laws. Stephen Shay, a former Reagan Treasury official, testified that our tax rules “provide incentives to locate business activity outside the United States.” Furthermore, he testified that tax capital gains of U.S. shareholders under an expansion of Subpart F would be a “substantial improvement” over our current system. The Export Products Not Jobs Act does just that.

Our current tax system punishes U.S. companies that choose to create and maintain jobs in the United States. These companies pay higher taxes and suffer a competitive disadvantage with a company that chooses to move jobs to a foreign tax haven. There is no reason why our tax code should provide an incentive that encourages investment and job creation overseas. Under my legislation, companies would be taxed the same whether they invest abroad or at home; they will be taxed on their foreign subsidiary profits just like they are taxed on their domestic profits.

This legislation reflects the most sweeping simplification of international taxes in over 40 years. Our economic power in the last 40 years and our tax laws need to be updated to keep pace. Our current global economy was not even envisioned when existing law was written.

My Export Products Not Jobs Act will improve our global competitiveness. Companies will be able to continue to defer income they earn when they locate production in a foreign country that serves that foreign country’s markets. For example, if a U.S. company wants to open a hotel in Bermuda or a car factory in India to sell cars, foreign income can still be deferred. But if a company wants to open a call center in India to answer calls from outside India or relocate abroad to cut costs back to the United States or Canada, the company must pay taxes just like call centers and auto manufacturers located in the United States.

Currently, American companies allocate their revenue not in search of the highest return, but in search of lower taxes. Eliminating deferral will improve the efficiency of the economy by making taxes neutral so that they do not encourage companies to overinvest abroad to take advantage of lower foreign taxes. The Congressional Research Service stated in a 2003 report that, “According to traditional economic theory, deferral thus reduces economic welfare by encouraging firms to undertake overseas investments that are less productive—before taxes are considered—than alternative investments in the United States.” Additionally, a 2000 Department of Treasury study on deferral stated, “[a]mong all of the options considered, ending deferral would also yield the most positive long-term effect on economic efficiency and welfare because it would do the most to eliminate tax considerations from decisions regarding the location of investment.”

The “Export Products Not Jobs Act” would modify the rules for determining residency for publicly-traded companies by basing a corporation’s residency on the location of its primary place of management and control. This will prevent companies from locating in tax havens, but basically maintaining their operations in the United States. This provision should not hinder foreign investment in the United States or the companies that are incorporated in foreign countries with a comprehensive tax treaty with the United States will not be affected by this provision.

Massachusetts is an example of a state that benefits from foreign investment. Two foreign companies have recently expanded investment in Massachusetts. Our tax system should not discourage foreign investment, but it should not encourage companies to locate in tax havens.

The revenue raised from the repeal of deferral and closing corporate loopholes would be used to repeal the top corporate tax rate of 35 percent. The tax differential between U.S. corporate rates and foreign corporate rates has grown over the last two decades and the repeal of the top corporate rate is a start in narrowing this gap.

The Export Products Not Jobs Act would promote equity among U.S. taxpayers by ensuring that corporations could no longer systematically reduce taxation of foreign income by separately incorporating their foreign operations. This legislation will eliminate the tax incentives to encourage U.S. companies to invest abroad and reward those companies that have chosen to invest in the United States. I urge my colleagues to join me in this effort, and I ask unanimous consent that summary of the Export Products Not Jobs Act, as well as the text of the legislation, be printed in the Record. There being no objection, the text of the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Export Products Not Jobs Act

OVERVIEW

The Export Products Not Jobs Act makes sweeping changes to the current international tax laws by: (1) ending tax breaks that encourage companies to move jobs overseas by eliminating the ability of companies to defer foreign income; (2) simplifying current-law Subpart F rules; (3) closing abusive corporate tax loopholes; and (4) repealing the top corporate tax rate. Currently, U.S. companies can defer paying U.S. taxes on income earned by their foreign subsidiaries, providing a substantial tax break for companies to move investment and jobs overseas. Except as provided under the Subpart F rules, American companies generally do not have to pay taxes on their active foreign income until they repatriate it to the United States.

The Export Products Not Jobs Act eliminates deferral so companies will be taxed on their foreign subsidiary profits in the same way they pay their domestic profits. This new system will apply to profits in future years. In order to ensure that American companies can compete in international markets, income companies earn when they locate production in a foreign country that serves that foreign country’s home markets could still be deferred.

The Subpart F rules which govern the taxation of foreign subsidiaries controlled by American companies are increasingly complicated over time, adding to the overall complexity of the tax code and making it easier for companies to exploit loopholes to escape paying taxes. Under this bill, the complexity created by the current Subpart F rules will be eliminated and a simpler, more transparent system will be put into place.

In a tax system without deferral, U.S.-based multinational corporations might be tempted to locate their top-tiered entity overseas to avoid tax on the income of a foreign subsidiary. This legislation would strengthen the corporate residency test by preventing companies from incorporating in a foreign jurisdiction to avoid U.S. taxation on a worldwide basis. The current law test that is based solely on where the company is incorporated is artificial, and allows foreign corporations that are economically similar to American companies to avoid being taxed like American companies. Determining residency based on the location of a company’s primary place of management and control will provide a more meaningful standard.

In order to prevent abusive tax transactions, the legislation contains a provision that would codify the judicially-developed economic substance test, which disallows transactions where the profit potential is insubstantial compared to the tax benefits. This proposal is identical to the economic substance provisions that have been passed repeatedly by the Senate.

The revenue saved from ending deferral, strengthening the corporate residency test, and shutting down abusive tax shelters will be used to repeal the top corporate tax rate from 35 percent to 34 percent. The tax differential between U.S. corporations and foreign corporate rates has grown over the last two decades. This proposal, in combination with the deduction for domestic manufacturing activity when fully phased-in in 2009, will result in a corporate tax rate of 31 percent for domestic corporate activity.

The “Export Products Not Jobs Act” moves in the right direction towards narrowing this gap.

SUMMARY OF PROVISIONS

1. Reform and Simplification of Subpart F Income
   - Subpart F Income Defined
     - Present law
     - Generally within the U.S., 10-percent shareholders of a controlled foreign corporation (CFC) are taxed on the pro rata shares of certain income referred to as Subpart F income. A CFC generally is defined as any foreign corporation that (directly, indirectly, or constructively) owns more than 50 percent of the corporation’s stock (measured by vote or value), taking into account only those U.S. persons that own at least 10 percent of the stock (measured by vote only). Typically, Subpart F income is passive income or income that is readily movable from one taxing jurisdiction to another. Subpart F income is defined in code section 952 as foreign base company income, insurance income, and certain income relating to international trade and other violations of public policy.

Export Products Not Jobs Act

This legislation strikes code section 952 and replaces it with a new definition of Subpart F income. Subpart F income is defined as all gross income of the controlled foreign corporation with exceptions for certain types of income. Subpart F income of a CFC for any taxable year is limited to the earnings and profits of the CFC for that taxable year. Subpart F will continue to include income related to international boycotts.

Exceptions to Subpart F Income

Subpart F income is defined in the code rather narrowly and the definition lists the income that Subpart F income is excepted for including foreign operations generally is subject to U.S. tax only when the income is earned in a country to the United States.

Temporary Active Financing Exception

Under current law, there are temporary exceptions from the Subpart F provisions for certain active financing income, which is income derived in the active conduct of a banking, financing, or similar business, or in the conduct of an insurance business. This temporary exception expires at the end of 2008. This exception allows for the conduct of any debt-financed activities generally is subject to U.S. tax only when the income is earned in a country to the United States.

Export Products Not Jobs Act

Under the legislation, Subpart F income is generally treated as income from a CFC except for active home country income of the CFC. Active home country income constitutes qualified property income or qualified service income and is defined as the active and regular conduct of one or more trades or businesses within the home country. The home country is defined as the country in which the CFC is created or organized.

Qualified property income is defined as income derived in connection with: (1) the manufacture, production, growth, or extraction of property wholly or partly in the home country of the CFC; or (2) the resale in the home country of the CFC of personal property which is produced, grown, or extracted within the home country of such corporation for the resale of such property by the CFC in the home country. The property has to be sole for this or consumption within the home country in either case.

Qualified services income is defined as income derived in connection with the providing of services to customers who, at the time the services are provided, are located in the home country. Services are required to be used in the home country and to be used in the active conduct of trade or business by the recipient where substantially all of the activities in connection with the trade or business are conducted by the recipient in the home country.

Under the “Export Products Not Jobs Act,” the current-law temporary active financing exception is repealed. The legislation includes a de minimis exception providing that if the Subpart F income of a CFC is less than the lesser of five percent of gross income or less than $10 million, the Subpart F income of the CFC is zero for that taxable year.

For purposes of calculating the Subpart F income of a CFC, properly allocated deductions are allowed. A CFC can elect to be treated as a domestic corporation. The election will apply to the taxable year for which it is made and all subsequent taxable years unless revoked with the consent of the Secretary. If a CFC chooses to make an election to be treated as a domestic corporation, pre-2008 earnings and profits are not included in gross income.

Captive Insurance Income

Under current law, special rules apply to captive insurance companies that have related person insurance income which is defined as any insurance income attributable to a policy of insurance or reinsurance with respect to which the person (directly or indirectly) has an insurable interest in the foreign corporation or a related person to such a shareholder. These companies are formed to insures the risks of the owners. Under current law, the lower ownership threshold applies to determine whether a captive insurance company is treated as a CFC subject to the current-law income inclusion rules of Subpart F. Under this lower ownership threshold, a captive insurance company is treated as a CFC if 25 percent or more of the stock is owned by U.S. persons.

Export Products Not Jobs Act

The bill retains, in simplified form, the present-law concept of related person insurance income, and also retains the lower ownership threshold for captive insurance companies that are treated as CFCs. Captive insurance income that meets the requirements of the active home exception, like other active home country services income, however, can be deferred.

Effective Date

The above described provisions apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2007.

II. Corporate Residency Definition

Under the legislation, a corporation is defined as the place where the strategic, financial, and operational decision-making for the company, (including direct and indirect subsidiaries).

Effective Date

The proposal would be effective for taxable years beginning on or after two years after the date of enactment. The bill retains, in simplified form, the present-law concept of related person insurance income, and also retains the lower ownership threshold for captive insurance companies that are treated as CFCs. Captive insurance income that meets the requirements of the active home exception, like other active home country services income, however, can be deferred.

Export Products Not Jobs Act

The bill amends the rules for determining corporate residency for publicly-traded companies incorporated or organized in a foreign country, by basing such corporation’s residence on the location of its primary place of management and control. A company incorporated or organized in the United States of America is still considered a domestic corporation in any event. Primary place of management and control is defined as the place where the executive officers and senior management of the corporation exercise day-to-day responsibility for the strategic, financial, and operational decision-making for the company (including direct and indirect subsidiaries).

Effective Date

The proposal would be effective for taxable years beginning on or after two years after the date of enactment. A corporation that is incorporated in a country in which the United States has a comprehensive tax treaty is not affected by this provision.

III. Shutdown of Abusive Tax Shelters

Clarification of Economic Substance Doctrine

Under current law, there are specific rules regarding the computation of taxable income. In addition to these statutory provisions, courts have developed several doctrines that can be applied to deny the tax benefits of motivated transactions, even though the transaction meets the requirements of a specific tax provision. Generally, courts have been willing to deny the tax benefits if the transaction lacks economic substance independent of tax considerations.
this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

The document contains detailed provisions related to the tax treatment of income derived from foreign countries and controlled foreign corporations. The sections include definitions, rules, and exceptions to the taxation of foreign income. The text is structured to provide clarity on how foreign income should be characterized and taxed, with specific provisions for various types of income, such as property income, services income, and active home country income. The document also includes provisions for the treatment of controlled foreign corporations and their income in the United States tax system. The language is technical and requires a thorough understanding of tax law to fully comprehend its implications.

S. 97. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to replace the Hope and Lifetime Learning credits with a partially refundable college opportunity credit; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I am introducing the College Opportunity Tax Credit Act of 2007. This legislation creates a new tax credit that will put the cost of higher education in reach for American families.

An October 2006 College Board report found that this year tuition and other costs at public and private universities rose faster than inflation. And, according to the report, tuition and fees at public universities rose more in the past five years than at any other time in the past 30 years, increasing by 35 percent to $5,836 this academic year. Over the same time period, tuition and fees at private universities increased 22 percent to $22,218.

Unfortunately, the average student aid funds nor family incomes are keeping pace with increasing tuition and fees. In my travels around the country, I frequently hear from parents concerned they will not be able to pay for their children’s college. These parents know that earning a college education will result in greater earnings for their children and they desperately want to ensure their kids have the greatest opportunities possible.

In 1997, we implemented two new tax credits to make college affordable—the HOPE Credit and the Lifetime Learning Credit. These tax credits were important and have put college in reach for families, but I believe we can do more. In December, the Senate Finance Committee held a hearing on tax incentives for higher education in which we learned that the existing tax credits are not reaching enough students, particularly lower-income students who are most severely impacted by rising tuition.

The HOPE and Lifetime Learning credits are not refundable, and therefore a family of four must have an income over $30,000 in order to receive the maximum credit. Almost half of families with college students fall to receive the full credit because their income is too low. In order to receive the full benefit of the Lifetime Learning credit, a student has to spend $10,000 a year on tuition and fees. This is nearly double the average annual public four-year college tuition and four times the average annual tuition of a community college. Over 80 percent of college students attend schools with tuition and fees under $10,000.

In 2004, I proposed a refundable tax credit to help pay for the cost of four years of college. Currently the HOPE Credit applies only to the first two years of college. The College Opportunity Tax Credit Act of 2007 (COTC) helps students and parents afford all four years of college. It also builds on the proposal I made in 2004 by incorporating some of the suggestions made by experts, including those at this week’s Finance Committee hearing. My legislation creates a new credit that replaces the existing HOPE credit and Lifetime Learning credit and ultimately makes these benefits more generous. The COTC has two components. The first provides a refundable tax credit for a student enrolled in a degree program at least on a half-time basis. It would provide a 100 percent tax credit for the first $1,000 of eligible expenses and a 50 percent tax credit to the next $3,000 of expenses. The maximum credit would be $2,500 each year per student. The second provides a nonrefundable tax credit for part-time students, graduate students, and other students that do not qualify for the refundable tax credit. It provides a 40 percent credit for the first $1,000 of eligible expenses and a 20 percent credit for the next $3,000 of expenses.

Both of these credits can be used for expenses associated with tuition and fees. Income limits that apply to the HOPE credit and the Lifetime Learning credit apply to the COTC; the COTC will be phased out ratably for taxpayers with income between $45,000 and $55,000 ($90,000 and $110,000 for married taxpayers). These amounts are indexed for inflation, as are the eligible amounts of expenses.

The College Opportunity Tax Credit Act of 2007 simplifies the existing credits that make higher education more affordable and will enable more students to be eligible for tax relief. I understand that many of my colleagues are interested in making college more affordable. I look forward to working with my colleagues to make a refundable tax credit for college education a reality this Congress. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

By Mr. KERRY (for himself and Ms. LANDRIEU):

S. 98. A bill to foster the development of minority-owned small businesses; to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship.

By Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that this statement be printed in the record. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Minority Entrepreneurship Development Act of 2007. At the beginning of a new Congress it is important to set priorities for the nation because every new Congress brings with it the hope for a brighter future. One of the ways that this is lead is by Minority entrepreneurship in minority communities. It’s vital that current and future entrepreneurs from minority communities are given the opportunity to build their own piece of the American dream. I believe that this legislation the Minority Entrepreneurship Development Act of 2007 will help in that effort.

I want to take a moment and tell you why it’s so important to expand the numbers of entrepreneurs in the minority community. As a member of the Senate Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I have received firsthand testimony and countless reports documenting the positive economic impact that occurs when we foster entrepreneurship in under-served communities. There are significant economic returns when minority businesses are created and are able to grow in size and capacity. Between 1987 and 1997, income from minority owned firms rose by 22.5 percent, an increase of an annual growth rate of 10 percent. Employment opportunities within minority owned firms increased by 23 percent during that same period. There is a clear correlation between the growth of minority owned firms and the economic viability of the minority community.

Although these economic numbers tell a significant part of the story they don’t tell the whole story of what these firms mean to the minority community. Many of our forefathers were first generation immigrants; many are first generation business owners and many represent, for those in their communities, what hard work, determination and patience can do. We must encourage those kinds of values in our minority communities and, quite frankly, in our nation as a whole. For generations, millions have come to our shores in search of a better life. Many of these were brought here by force and for years were not given a voice in how their lives would turn out. But, how ever we got here, we all have become branches of this great tree we call America. This tree is still nourished by roots planted by our forefathers more than 200 years ago. Those men and women planted the roots of hard work, innovation, faith and risk taking.

When you think about it, those words are the perfect description of an entrepreneur. It is the spirit of entrepreneurship that has made our nation great. And that is why it is absolutely imperative that we continue to support and develop that spirit in our minority communities. To that end, this legislation provides several tools to help minority entrepreneurs as they develop and grow their businesses.

First, this legislation will create an Office of Minority Business Development of the Small Business Administration. One of its primary functions will be to increase the number of small business loans that minority businesses receive. Latinos, African-Americans, Asian-Americans and women have been receiving far fewer small business loans than they reasonably should.

To ensure that this trend is reversed and minorities begin to get a greater share of loan dollars, venture capital investments, counseling, and contracting opportunities, this bill will give the new office the authority to monitor the outcomes for SBA’s Capital Access, Entrepreneurial Development, and Government Contracting Programs. This Office will be headed by the Minority Entrepreneurship and Innovation Pilot Program.

Second, this legislation will create the Minority Entrepreneurship and Innovation Pilot Program. This program will offer competitive grants to Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Tribal Colleges, and Hispanic-Serving Institutions to create an entrepreneurship curriculum at these institutions and to open Small Business Development Centers on those campus’ to serve local businesses.

The goal of this program is to target students in highly skilled fields such as engineering, manufacturing, science and technology, and guide them to careers in entrepreneurship as a career option. Traditionally, minority-owned businesses are disproportionately represented in the service sectors. Promoting entrepreneurial education to undergraduate students will help expand business ownership beyond the service sectors to higher yielding technical and financial sectors.

Third, this legislation will create the Minority Access to Information Distance Learning Pilot Program. This program will offer competitive grants to well established national minority non-profit and business organizations to create distance learning programs for small business owners who are interested in doing business with the federal government.

The goal of this program is to provide low cost training to the many small business owners who cannot afford to pay a consultant thousands of dollars for advice or training on how to prepare themselves to contract with the Federal Government. There are thousands of small businesses in this country that are excellent and efficient. They are primed to provide the goods and services that this nation needs to stay competitive. This program will help prepare them to do just that.

Finally, this legislation will extend the Socially and Economically Disadvantaged Business Program which expired in 2003. This program provides a price evaluation adjustment for socially and economically disadvantaged businesses as a way of increasing their competitiveness when bidding against larger firms. This is one more tool to increase opportunities for our minority small business owners.

I have outlined several ways that we can create a more positive environment for our minority small business community. These are reasonable steps that we ought to take without delay. Moreover, these are important steps that will help bolster a movement that is already underway. According to U.S. Census data, Hispanics are opening businesses 3 times faster than the national average. Also, business development and entrepreneurship have played a significant role in the expansion of the black middle class in this country for over a century. These business owners are embodying the entrepreneurial spirit that our forefathers carried with them as they established this nation.

With this legislation and in my role as incoming Chair of the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I hope to play a part in helping to extend that spirit to the next generation of entrepreneurs. Not only is this vital for our minority communities, but it is vital for America. I urge my colleagues to join with me in support of the Minority Entrepreneurship Development Act of 2007.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the legislation be printed in the Record.

By Mr. KERRY:

S. 99. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide a refundable credit for small business employee health insurance expenses; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I am introducing the Small Business Health Care Tax Credit Act which would provide small businesses with a refundable credit to help with the cost of providing employees with health insurance. Recent studies show that certain groups of individuals are less likely to have employer-provided health insurance. The 2006 Kaiser Family Foundation Employer Health Benefits Survey showed that in 2006 the number of firms offering health benefits has declined from 69 percent to 61 percent in 2006. This decline in coverage is more prevalent in small businesses. Only 48 percent of the firms with fewer than 50 employees offer health insurance whereas, 90 percent of the firms with 50 or more employees offer health benefits. Approximately 32 million Americans work for firms with fewer than 50 employees.

The April 2006 Commonwealth Fund Biennial Health Insurance Survey concluded that 41 percent of working-age Americans with incomes between $20,000 and $40,000 were uninsured for at least part of the past year. This reflects a dramatic increase in this income range, up from 28 percent in 2001.

The survey found that of the 48 million American adults who were uninsured in the past year, 67 percent were in families where at least one person worked full time.

My legislation provides a refundable tax credit to small businesses designed to help provide coverage to those who are currently uninsured. Small businesses with less than 50 employees may use part of their credit to help with the cost of health care premiums for employees making more than $5,000 and less than $50,000 a year. To be eligible for the credit, the employer must pay at least 50 percent of the health care insurance premium. The credit for business with fewer than 10 employees will be capped at 50 percent of the cost of the premium, and the credit amount decreases for larger businesses.

Last year, Leonard Burman, Co-director of the Tax Policy Center, testified before the Senate Finance Committee and suggested a refundable tax credit as an incremental option to help defray higher administrative costs faced by small employers in purchasing health care. This credit will help small businesses afford health care premiums. It is a refundable credit, so it will help new businesses that do not have taxable income be able to offer health care to struggling businesses with assistance so that they can offer health care.

This tax credit will cut the cost of health insurance by up to 50 percent for small business owners. It will enable small businesses to provide health insurance for their low- and moderate-income employees. Until we can agree on a comprehensive proposal that will help reduce the cost of health care premiums for small businesses, this legislation provides an appropriate option for increasing health insurance coverage for small businesses and their employees.

I ask for unanimous consent that the text of the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

“(D) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT.

“Section (a) or (b) of section 52 or subsection (A) of section 111(b) shall have meaning given such term by section 1271(b).”

“S. 100. A bill to encourage the health insurance coverage and health promotion of children by promoting better nutrition and increased physical activity, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

“Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce the Healthy Students Act, a bill that addresses the rising epidemic of childhood obesity.

“Over the past 30 years, obesity rates have doubled for teenagers and tripled for children ages 6 to 11. Today, more than 30 percent of children in America are overweight and more than 15 percent are obese. And yet, those children are suffering from traditionally adult diseases—including type 2 diabetes, hypertension and high cholesterol—and putting their health in great danger.

“While the reasons for the growing number of obese children problems are complex, the underlying problem is simple. Children are becoming obese because they are eating too much unhealthy food and getting too little exercise.

“Vending machines are in too many of our schools. Children today eat five times as much fast food as they did 30 years ago. And the number of students who eat green vegetables ‘nearly every day or more’ has dropped to only 30 percent.

“Children are getting too little exercise. Nearly 23 percent of children ages 9-13 do not engage in any free-time physical activity during the school day, and nearly 60 percent do not participate in any kind of organized sports or physical activity program outside of school.

“Also, the lack of qualified health professionals (school nurses)—compounded with the access to them—is taking an adverse toll on children’s health in our public schools. With just one licensed nurse for every 1,155 students, too many children don’t have access to a caring health care professional who can diagnose illness, administer medicine, handle emergencies, or treat injuries.

“We should ensure that during the school day, children have access to better nutrition and health care, more physical activity, and the skills necessary for a lifetime of good health. And that’s what the Healthy Students Act will do.

“First, the bill creates a commission of children’s health experts to review existing school nutrition guidelines and develop new, healthier standards that provide more fresh fruits and vegetables and eliminate food of minimal nutritional value.

“Second, the bill creates a grant program for school nutrition pilot programs that promote alternative healthful food promotion in its curriculum and lunch program.

“I have seen firsthand what can be accomplished with such innovative programs. For example in Berkeley, California, the ‘Edible Schoolyard’ program is changing the way kids eat and learn about nutrition. Schools in the Edible Schoolyard program maintain an organic garden and integrate the garden into both the curriculum and lunch program. This hands-on approach educates students on healthy eating—from planting, to harvesting, to their plates. By teaching kids about the connection between what they eat and where it comes from, we can help them develop good nutrition habits that will last a lifetime.

Third, the bill creates a “Healthy Hour” pilot program that provides funding for an additional hour to the school day either before, after or during school—set aside specifically for physical activity. As more and more schools have cut recess and physical education classes, the bill provides funding for programs that extend physical activity time and highlight the importance of exercise for children in schools across the country.

Fourth, to make sure that children have the equipment they need, the bill provides tax incentives to individuals and businesses to donate exercise and gymnasia equipment to schools and organizing students.

And fifth, to address the shortage of qualified health care professionals in schools, the bill creates a tuition loan forgiveness program for those who earn a degree in nursing and make a minimum commitment to serve in a public elementary or secondary school. We are saying to prospective nurses: If you make an investment in helping kids, then we will make an investment in you.

Childhood obesity is a growing epidemic that we must address now. I urge my colleagues to support the Healthy Students Act to ensure that all children have the health they need to achieve their dreams.

By Mr. KERRY:

S. 102. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to extend and expand relief from the alternative minimum tax (AMT) for 2007. Last Congress, a choice was made to extend lower capital gains and dividends for 2009 and 2010; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation which addresses the individual alternative minimum tax (AMT) for 2007. Last Congress, a choice was made to extend lower capital gains and dividends rates that do not expire until the end of 2008 rather than address the AMT for 2007. My preference was to address the AMT for 2007 and I believe we still must take action to prevent taxpayers never intended to pay the AMT from being penalized this year.

I opposed the Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005 because it contained the wrong priorities for America leaving behind working families and substantially adding to the deficit. This law extended the lower rates on capital gains and dividends for 2009 and 2010, but only addressed the individual AMT for 2006. Action by the Joint Committee on Taxation, those earning $200,000 or more will receive 84 percent of the benefit of the capital gains tax cut and 63 percent of the benefit of the dividends tax cuts. According to the Congressional Budget Office, 42.8 percent of taxpayers with income between $50,000 and $100,000 will be impacted by the AMT if the AMT is not fixed for 2007 a number that escalates to 63 percent by 2010. The Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005 extends a tax cut that does not expire to the end of 2008 with a price tag of $50 billion, but fails to protect the hard working families that will be impacted by the AMT. These families already pay more income tax intended to be impacted by the AMT, a tax originally designed to prevent a small number of high-income taxpayers from avoiding taxation.

Today, I am introducing legislation that will address the AMT for 2007 and repeal the lower tax rates on capital dividends for 2009 and 2010. To calculate the AMT, individuals add back certain “preference items” to their regular tax liability. These include personal exemptions, itemized deduction for state and local taxes. From this amount, taxpayers subtract the AMT exemption amount, commonly referred to as the “patch” which reverted to lower levels at the start of 2006. The Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005 increased and extended the patch for 2006. The patch was increased in order to hold the same number of taxpayers harmless from the AMT in 2006 as in 2005. The problem with the AMT is that while the regular tax system is indexed for inflation, the AMT exemption amounts and tax brackets remain constant. This has the perverse consequence of punishing taxpayers for the mere fact their incomes rose due to inflation.

In 2001 Congress opted to provide more tax cuts to those with incomes of over $1 million rather than fix a looming tax problem for the middle class. The Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001 did include a small adjustment to the AMT, but it was not enough. And we knew then that the number of taxpayers subject to the AMT would continue to rise steadily because the combination of tax cuts and a minor adjustment to the AMT would cause the AMT to explode. We are rapidly approaching this explosion and without immediate action America’s middle class will be harmed. My legislation extends and expands the AMT exemption amount for 2007 to prevent additional taxpayers from being impacted by the AMT. Without increasing and extending the AMT exemption for 2007, an additional 19.5 million taxpayers will be impacted by the AMT in 2007. Large families, with incomes as low as $49,438, will be hurt by the AMT. My legislation will allow nonrefundable personal credits such as the higher education tax credits and the Hope and Lifetime Learning credits against the AMT for 2007. This legislation is offset by repealing the lower rates on capital gains and dividends.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle have argued that the extension of the capital gains and dividends benefits is necessary to provide investor certainty. But I believe that the certainty of working families worried about paying the AMT should come first.

About a third of long-term capital gains are reported by taxpayers who are impacted by the AMT and due to the interaction of the AMT, they do not fully benefit from the lower rates. Thus, taxpayers forced to carry the AMT burden will not benefit from the lower capital gains and dividends rate.

The AMT is a looming problem that is impacting hard-working families and for each year that we fail to address the AMT, it gets worse and more expensive. At a minimum we must address the AMT for 2007. My legislation is not a long-term cure to the AMT crisis, but it will provide certainty for 2007 to hard working families who will be impacted by the AMT just because of where they live and the number of children they have, and it will address the AMT in a revenue neutral manner for 2007 as well.

We agree that the AMT should not be impacting families with incomes below $100,000. My bill fixes the AMT for 2007 in a timely and fiscally responsible manner and gives Congress time to work in a bipartisan manner to find a fiscally responsible permanent solution to the AMT.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SEC. 3. REPEAL OF EXTENSION OF LOWER RATES

The amendment made by section 102 of the Tax Increase Prevention and Reconciliation Act of 2005 is repealed and the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall be applied as if such amendment had never been enacted.

By Mr. KERRY (for himself, Mrs. Feinstein, and Mr. Wyden):

S. 103. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide that major oil and gas companies will not be eligible for the effective rate reduction enacted in 2004 for domestic manufacture of natural gas. This legislation repeals the manufacturing deduction for big oil and gas companies that was enacted by Congress in 2004. I introduced this legislation in the 109th Congress and Congressman McDermott introduced companion legislation in the House.

The domestic manufacturing deduction was designed to replace export-related tax benefits that were successfully challenged by the European Union. Producers of oil and gas did not benefit from this tax break. Initial legislation proposed to address the repeal of the export-related tax benefits and to replace them with a new domestic manufacturing deduction. That legislation only provided the deduction to industries that benefited from the export-related tax benefits. However, the final product extended the deduction to include the oil and gas industry as well.

My bill repeals the manufacturing deduction for oil and gas companies because these industries suffered no detriment from the repeal of export-related tax benefits. At a time when oil companies are reporting mind-boggling record profits, there is no reason to reward them with a tax deduction.

Like me, many Members of Congress support a windfall profits tax on big oil and gas. Providing this deduction to oil and gas companies actually functions as a reverse windfall profits tax. This deduction lowers the tax rates on the windfall profits that they are currently enjoying. And without Congressional action this benefit will increase: upon enactment, the domestic manufacturing deduction was three percent, but it increased to six percent in 2007 and is scheduled to increase to nine percent in 2010.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation. We owe it to the American people to eliminate tax benefits to the oil industry at a time of record profits, record gas prices, and record deficits.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 103

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Restore a Rational Tax Rate on Petroleum Production Act of 2007”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that—

(1) like many other countries, the United States has long provided export-related benefits under its tax law,

(2) producers and refiners of oil and natural gas were specifically denied the benefits of these export-related tax provisions,

(3) those export-related tax provisions were successfully challenged by the European Union as being inconsistent with our trade agreements,

(4) the Congress responded by repealing the export-related benefits and enacting a substitute benefit that was an effective rate reduction for United States manufacturers,

(5) producers and refiners of oil and natural gas were made eligible for the rate reduction even though they suffered no detriment from repeal of the export-related benefits, and

(6) the decision to provide the effective rate reduction to producers and refiners of oil and natural gas has operated as a reverse windfall profits tax on the windfall profits they are currently enjoying.

SEC. 3. DENIAL OF DEDUCTION FOR INCOME ATTRIBUTABLE TO DOMESTIC PRODUCTION OF OIL, NATURAL GAS, OR PRIMARY PRODUCTS THEREOF.

(a) In General.—Subparagraph (B) of section 199(c)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to exceptions) is amended by striking “or” at the end of clause (ii), by striking the period at the end of clause (iii) and inserting “,” and “or”, and by inserting after clause (iii) the following new clause:

“(iv) in the case of any major integrated oil company (as defined in section 167(h)(5)(B)), the production, refining, processing, transportation, or distribution of oil, natural gas, or any primary product thereof during any taxable year described in section 167(h)(A).”.

(b) Conforming Amendments.—Section 199(c)(4) of such Code is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A)(iii) by striking “electricity, natural gas,” and inserting “electricity, natural gas,” and

(2) in subparagraph (B)(ii) by striking “electricity, natural gas,” and inserting “electricity”.

(c) Effective Date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2006.

By Mr. REID (for Mr. INOUYE):

S. 106. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to provide for the establishment of a National Center for Social Work Research; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation to amend the Public Health Service Act for the establishment of a National Center for Social Work Research. Social workers provide a multitude of health care delivery services throughout America to our children, families, the elderly, and persons suffering from various forms of abuse and neglect. The purpose of this center is to support and disseminate information about basic and clinical social work research, and training, with emphasis on service to underserved and rural populations.

While the Federal Government provides funding for various social work research activities through the National Institutes of Health and other Federal agencies, there presently is no coordination or direction of these critical activities and no overall assessment of needs and issues for empirical knowledge development. The establishment of a Center for Social Work Research would result in improved behavioral and mental health care outcomes for our nation’s children, families, the elderly, and others.

In order to meet the increasing challenges of bringing cost-effective, research-based, quality health care to all Americans, we must recognize the important contributions of social work researchers to health, law and the central role that the Center for Social Work can provide in facilitating their work.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 106

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “National Center for Social Work Research Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) social workers focus on the improvement of individual and family functioning and the creation of effective health and mental health prevention and treatment interventions in order for individuals and families to become more productive members of society;

(2) social workers provide front line prevention and treatment services in the areas of school violence, aging, teen pregnancy, child abuse, domestic violence, juvenile crime, and substance abuse, particularly in rural and underserved communities; and

(3) social workers are in a unique position to provide valuable research information on these complex social concerns, taking into account a wide range of social, medical, economic, cultural, and historical perspectives and opportunities from an interdisciplinary, family-centered and community-based approach.

“S. 107. A bill to amend title VII of the Public Health Service Act to make certain graduate programs in professional psychology eligible for direct loans in various health professions loan programs; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

“S. 107. A bill to amend title VII of the Public Health Service Act to make certain graduate programs in professional psychology eligible for direct loans in various health professions loan programs; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.
Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation today to modify Title VII of the U.S. Public Health Service Act in order to provide students enrolled in graduate psychology programs with the opportunity to participate in various health professions loan programs.

Providing students enrolled in graduate psychology programs with eligibility for financial assistance in the form of loans, loan guarantees, and scholarships will facilitate a much-needed infusion of behavioral science expertise into our community of public health providers. There is a growing recognition of the valuable contribution being made by psychologists toward solving some of our Nation’s most distressing problems.

The participation of students from all backgrounds and clinical disciplines is vital to the success of health care training. The Title VII programs play a significant role in providing financial support for the enrollment of minority women, men, and individuals from economically disadvantaged backgrounds. Minority therapists have an advantage in the provision of critical services to minority populations because they often can communicate with clients in their own language and cultural framework. Minority therapists are more likely to work in community settings where ethnic minority and economically disadvantaged individuals are most likely to seek care. It is critical that loan support be provided for the training of individuals who provide health care services to underserved communities.

S. 109. A bill to recognize the organization known as the National Academies of Practice; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation that would provide a Federal charter for the National Academies of Practice. This organization represents outstanding health care professionals who have made significant contributions to the practice of applied psychology, medicine, dentistry, nursing, optometry, osteopathic medicine, pharmacy, podiatry, social work, and veterinary medicine. When fully established, each of the five academies will possess 150 distinguished practitioners selected by their peers. This umbrella organization will be able to provide the Congress of the United States and the executive branch with considerable health policy expertise, especially from the perspective of those individuals who are in the forefront of actually providing health care.

As we continue to grapple with the many complex issues surrounding the delivery of health care services, it is clearly in our best interest to ensure that the Congress has direct and immediate access to the recommendations of an interdisciplinary body of health care practitioners.

S. 110. A bill to amend title XIX of the Social Security Act to provide 100 percent reimbursement for medical assistance provided to a Native Hawaiian through a federally-qualified health center or a Native Hawaiian health care system; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, today I introduce the Native Hawaiian Medicaid Coverage Act of 2007. This legislation would authorize a Federal Medicaid Assistance Percent, FMAP, of 100 percent for the payment of health care costs of Native Hawaiians who receive health care from Federally Qualified Health Centers or the Native Hawaiian Health Care System.

This bill was originally a provision within the Medicare Prescription Drug Bill, which the Senate passed by an overwhelming majority of 76 to 21, but was dropped from the final Medicare Prescription Drug Conference Report. This bill is modeled on the Native Alaskan Health Care Act, which provides for a Federal Medicaid Assistance Percent, FMAP, of 100 percent for payment of health care costs for Native Alaskans by the Indian Health Service, an Indian tribe, or a tribal organization.

Community health centers serve as the “safety net” for uninsured and medically underserved Native Hawaiians and other United States citizens, providing comprehensive primary and preventive health services to the entire community. Outpatient services offered to the entire family include comprehensive primary care, preventive health maintenance, and education outreach in the local community. Community health centers, with their multi-disciplinary approach, offer cost-effective integration of health promotion and wellness with chronic disease management and primary care focused on serving vulnerable populations.

SEC. 2. 100 PERCENT FMAP FOR MEDICAL ASSISTANCE PROVIDED TO A NATIVE HAWAIIAN THROUGH A FEDERALLY-QUALIFIED HEALTH CENTER OR A NATIVE HAWAIIAN HEALTH CARE SYSTEM UNDER THE MEDICAID PROGRAM.

(a) MEDICAID.—The third sentence of section 1905(b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1396(b)) is amended by inserting “and with respect to medical assistance provided to a Native Hawaiian (as defined in section 12 of the Native Hawaiian Health...” after “(a) MEDICAID.”
Care Improvement Act) through a federally-qualified health center or a Native Hawaiian health care system (as so defined) whether directly, by referral, or under contract or other arrangement between a federally-qualified health center or a Native Hawaiian health care system and another health care provider, as the case may be.

By Mr. OBAMA (for himself and Ms. SNOWE): S. 117. A bill to amend titles 10 and 38, United States Code, to improve benefits and services for members of the Armed Forces, veterans of the Global War on Terrorism, and other veterans, to require reports on the effects of the Global War on Terrorism, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

Mr. OBAMA. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that is significant both in the problems it seeks to address and the man it seeks to honor.

Since the day he arrived in Congress more than two decades ago, Lane Evans was a tireless advocate for the men and women with whom he served. When Vietnam vets started falling ill from Agent Orange, he led the effort to get them compensation. Lane was one of the first in Congress to speak out about the health problems facing Persian Gulf War veterans. He worked to help veterans suffering from Traumatic Stress Disorder, and he also helped make sure thousands of homeless veterans in our country have a place to sleep. Lane Evans fought these battles for more than 20 years, and even in the face of his own debilitating disease, he kept fighting. Today, veterans across America have Lane Evans to thank for reminding this country of his duty to take care of those who have risked their lives to defend ours.

It is a real honor today to introduce the Lane Evans Veterans Healthcare and Benefits Improvement Act of 2007. This bill honors a legislator who left behind an enduring legacy of service to our veterans. The legislation also is an important step towards caring for our men and women who are currently fighting for us.

I am being joined today by Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE, the lead cosponsor of this bill. Senator SNOWE has long been an advocate in her state for veterans and I have been honored to work with her in the past on veterans issues. We have fought to reduce the backlog of disability claims at the Veterans Benefits Administration and to improve the military's ability to identify and treat Traumatic Brain Injury. Our introduction of the Lane Evans Bill is a continuation of these efforts.

Today, more than 1.5 million American troops have been deployed overseas as part of the Global War on Terror. These troops, who so bravely protected us are beginning to return home. Six hundred thousand people who served in Iraq and Afghanistan are now veterans, and more than 185,000 have already received treatment at the VA. That number is increasing every day. Many of these fighting men and women are coming home with major injuries. As a country, we are only beginning to understand the true costs of the Global War on Terrorism.

The Government Accountability Office reported that VA has faced $3 billion in budget shortfalls since 2005 because it underestimated the costs of caring for Persian Gulf War veterans. The VA wasn’t getting the information it needed from the Pentagon and was relying on outdated data and incorrect forecasting models. We cannot let these kinds of bureaucratic blunders get in the way of the care and support we owe our servicemembers.

To avoid these costly shortfalls in the future, we have to do a better job keeping track of veterans. That’s why the first thing the Lane Evans Act does is to establish a system to track Global War on Terrorism veterans. The VA has established a similar data system following the Persian Gulf War. That effort has been invaluable in budget planning as well as in monitoring emerging health trends and diseases linked to the Gulf War. The Department of Defense’s Information System also has been important to medical research and improved care for veterans.

The sooner we begin keeping accurate track of our fighting men and women, the better and more efficiently the military has up to two years to walk into a VA facility and get care, no matter where a soldier is deployed in a war zone. The electronic data will also provide helpful in future generations when family members of veterans seek information about service, awards, and wartime deployment that go well beyond the existing single sheet DD-214 discharge certificate, which is all veterans currently receive.

Finally, the legislation improves the transition assistance that National Guard and military reservists receive when they return from deployment. A 2005 GAO report found that because mobilization for guard and reserve units get abbreviated and perfunctory transition assistance including limited employment training, VA should provide equal briefings and transition services for all service members regardless of their duty status.

Lane Evans dedicated his life to serving this country and serving veterans. The legislation Senator SNOWE and I are introducing today is a fitting tribute to a man whose unflattering efforts on behalf of our nation’s veterans went unmatched.

I also applaud Senator OBAMA for introducing this vital legislation at a time when traumatic brain injury, and most recently, we have fought to reduce the backlog of claims at the Veterans Benefits Administration, VBA. Once again,
I thank Senator Obama for his continuing resoluteness and advocacy for our veterans.

Since the beginning of conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan, nearly 1.5 million brave Americans have deployed overseas in the global war on terror. Of those 1.5 million Americans, at least 184,400 have already received medical treatment from the Department of Veterans Affairs, VA. It is time the VA and the Department of Defense, DOD, have the capability to provide incoming veterans with timely and efficient medical treatment and postdeployment services. For too long now, provision of these critical services has been hampered by a lack of resources and policy restructuring.

In 2005, the Government Accountability Office revealed that the VA faced a budget shortfall of $3 billion, due to the agency’s inability to correctly gauge the benefits for Iraq and Afghanistan veterans. As a result of spending shortfalls, the VA was forced to dip into contingency funds that could have compromised the funding for other vital veterans programs. In order to remedy these unacceptable deficiencies within the veterans’ benefit system, this legislation will significantly enhance the ability of the DOD and the VA to accurately track veterans of Iraq and Afghanistan, by creating a data registry that will hold a comprehensive list of VA health care and military personnel. I remind my colleagues that a similar data system was established in 1998 for Gulf War I Veterans, and has been invaluable in assessing the necessary budgetary planning for our injured veterans from that conflict.

However, not all combat wounds are caused by bullets and shrapnel. Several studies have indicated that due to the nature of warfare in Iraq—with its intense urban fighting, terrorism and civilian casualties—the prevalence of post traumatic stress disorder, PTSD. According to the Veterans’ Health Administration, as of October 2006, of the 184,524 Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom veterans who have sought care from the VA, 20,041 have been diagnosed as having probable symptoms of PTSD.

I strongly believe that we have a commitment to ensure that veterans with PTSD receive compassionate, world-class health care and appropriate disability compensation determinations. It is imperative that we do all we can to detect, diagnose, and treat our veterans suffering from PTSD as quickly as possible, in order to help our veterans and their families move beyond the psychological trauma of war and lead healthy, productive lives.

This legislation’s proposed data registry will further assist the VA with ongoing medical research into mental health, traumatic brain injury, and many other conditions. This legislation will also require the Department of Defense to conduct in-person physical and mental health exams with every service member 30 to 90 days after deployment to war zone, in order to ensure that potential cases of PTSD are identified and treated in a timely manner. By making the exams mandatory, the stigma associated with health screening and treatment can be eliminated. Additionally, multiple deployments to combat zones may factor into a higher susceptibility to PTSD, stressing the necessity for mental screening prior to redeployment, in order to ensure that no one suffering from PTSD is returned to duty without treatment. If the VA and the DOD continues its current mental health screening policy, non-disclosures of PTSD symptoms will continue to deter early intervention and future VA mental health services.

This legislation addresses the difficulties associated with PTSD symptoms that develop over prolonged periods of time. Currently, the window for PTSD diagnosis to receive care at the VA is 2 years. However, in many circumstances, it takes years for PTSD symptoms and other problems related to mental health to emerge. Therefore, this legislation will extend the window for veterans to receive VA mental health care from 2 years to 5 years, ensuring the necessary mental health treatment for all veterans who are struggling to recover from the traumas of war.

Further, this legislation will take large steps towards improving the transfer of military and medical records in order for veterans to receive the health care and benefits they deserve. This bill requires DOD to provide each separating service member a full electronic copy of all military and medical records at the time of discharge. By facilitating the enhanced use of electronic records, veterans will be assured the proper access and management of their required care. Currently, the transfer of military and medical records and medical records has hampered the VA’s ability to treat veterans in need of care in a timely and effective manner.

According to a December 2006 GAO report, while verifying veterans claims of PTSD, regional VA offices are unable to directly access and search an electronic library of medical and service records for all service branches, and therefore, must rely on a DOD research report which is slow to respond. By providing the need time to regional office requests is nearly 1 year. Clearly, such a processing delay is not only inexcusable, it is potentially harmful to the veteran and his or her family. Increased access to electronic records will allow the VA to quickly identify the occurrence of stressful events or experiences that may lead to the necessary treatment for PTSD.

Finally, this legislation will also require the VA to provide equal briefings and transition services for all service members regarding VA health care, disability compensation, and other benefits, regardless of status. Often times, guardsmen and reservists receive limited transition assistance and employment training, largely due to their accelerated demobilization. Thus, this legislation will provide equitable and fair transition services for all returning veterans, regardless of their service branch, component or military status.

I have nothing but the utmost respect for those brave Americans who served in uniform with honor, courage, and distinction. The obligation our nation has to the men and women who served is continuous, and it is an obligation that must be fulfilled every day. Since the attacks of September 11, millions of brave American men and women have answered our nation’s call to service. Congress must now do everything in its power to answer our veterans’ call, to ensure that they receive the medical care and treatment that they rightly earned and rightly deserve.

Once again, I am pleased to join Senator Pryor in introducing S. 118, because I believe it is crucial to the welfare of our Nation’s veterans, and I urge my colleagues to voice their support.

By Mr. LEAHY (for himself and Mr. PYOR):

S. 118. A bill to give investigators and prosecutors the tools they need to combat public corruption; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with Senator Pryor to introduce the “Effective Corruption Prosecutions Act of 2007,” a bill to strengthen the tools available to Federal prosecutors in combating public corruption. This bill gives investigators and prosecutors the statutory tools and the resources they need to ensure that serious and insidious public corruption is detected and punished.

In November, voters sent a strong message that they want an atmosphere of culture of corruption. From war profiteers and corrupt officials in Iraq to convicted Administration officials to influence-peddling lobbyists and, regrettably, even Members of Congress, too many supposed public servants were serving their own interests, rather than the public interest. The American people staged an intervention and made it clear that they would not stand for it any longer. They expect Congress to take steps to restore the people’s trust by acting to clean up the people’s government.

The Senate’s new leadership is introducing important lobbying reform and ethics legislation. Similar legislation passed the Senate last year, but stalled in the House. This is a vital first step.

But the most serious corruption cannot be prevented only by changing our own rules. Bribery and extortion are committed by people bent on getting around the rules and ranking that they won’t get caught. These offenses are very difficult to detect and even harder to prove. Because they attack the core of our democracy, these offenses must be found out and punished. Congress must send a signal that it will not tolerate this corruption by providing better tools for federal prosecutors to combat it. This bill will do exactly that.

First, the bill extends the statute of limitations for the most serious public corruption offenses. Specifically, it extends the statute of limitations from five years to eight years for bribery, deprivation of honest services, and extortion by a public official. This is an important step because public corruption cases are among the most difficult and time-consuming cases to investigate and prosecute. They often require use of informants and electronic monitoring, as well as review of extensive financial and electronic records, techniques which take time to develop and implement.

Bank fraud, arson, and passport fraud, among other offenses, all have 10-year statutes of limitations. Since public corruption cases are so important to our democracy and these cases are so difficult to investigate and prove, a more modest extended statute of limitations for these offenses is a reasonable step to help our corruption investigators and prosecutors do their jobs. Corrupt officials should not be able to get away with their ill-gotten gains just by waiting out the investigators.

This bill also facilitates the investigation and prosecution of an important offense known as Federal program bribery, Title 18, United States Code, section 666. Federal program bribery is the key Federal statute for prosecuting bribery involving state and local officials, as well as officials of the many organizations that receive substantial Federal money. This bill would allow agents and prosecutors investigating this important offense to request authority to conduct wiretaps and to use Federal program bribery as a basis for a racketeering enterprise.

Wiretaps, when appropriately requested and authorized, are an important method for agents and prosecutors to gain evidence of corrupt activities, which can otherwise be next to impossible to prove without an informant. The Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations (RICO) statute is also an important tool which helps prosecutors target organized crime and corruption. Agents and prosecutors currently request authority to conduct wiretaps to investigate many serious offenses, including bribery of federal officials and even sports bribery, and may predicate RICO charges on these offenses, as well. It is only reasonable that these important tools also be available for investigating the similar and equally important offense of federal program bribery.

Lastly, my bill authorizes $25 million in additional Federal funds for each of the next four years to give federal investigators and prosecutors needed resources to go after public corruption. Last month, FBI Director Mueller in written testimony to the Judiciary Committee called public corruption the FBI’s top criminal investigative priority. However, a September 2005 Report by Department of Justice Inspector General Fine found that, from 2000 to 2004, there was an overall reduction in public corruption cases handled by the FBI. The report also found declines in resources dedicated to investigating public corruption, in corruption cases initiated, and in cases forwarded to US Attorney’s Offices.

I am heartened by Director Mueller’s assertion that there has recently been an increase in the number of agents investigating public corruption cases and the number of cases investigated, but I remain concerned because the FBI in recent years has diverted resources away from criminal law priorities, including corruption, into counterterrorism. The FBI may need to divert further resources to cover the additional public corruption cases and to continue their data management system. The Department of Justice has similarly diverted resources, particularly from United States Attorney’s Offices.

Additional funding is important to compensate for this diversion of resources and to ensure that corruption offenses are aggressively pursued. My bill will give the FBI, the United States Attorney’s Offices, and the Public Integrity Section of the Department of Justice new resources to hire additional public corruption investigators and prosecutors. They can finally have the manpower they need to track down and make these difficult cases, and to root out the corruption.

If we are serious about addressing the egregious misconduct that we have recently witnessed, Congress must enact meaningful legislation to give investigators and prosecutors the resources they need to enforce our public corruption laws. I strongly urge Congress to do more to increase the public’s trust in their government.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 119. A bill to prohibit profiteering and fraud relating to military action, relief, and reconstruction efforts, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, today I am reintroducing a bill that creates criminal penalties for war profiteers and cheats who use taxpayer-funded efforts in Iraq and elsewhere around the world. Last year, despite the mounting evidence of widespread contractor fraud and abuse in Iraq, the Republican-controlled Senate would not act on it. Instead, the Congress appropriated $20 billion to end the work of the Special Inspector General for Iraq Reconstruction. I have been proposing versions of this bill since 2003, when it did pass the Senate. Unfortunately, this crucial provision was stripped out of the final version of a bill by a Republican-controlled conference committee.

There is growing evidence of widespread fraud in Iraq. In 2005, Halliburton took in approximately $3.6 billion from contracts to serve U.S. troops and rebuild the oil industry in Iraq. Halliburton executives have agreed to pay financial penalties since 2000, to resolve allegations of bid rigging, fraud, delivery of faulty military parts and environmental damage. Seven other companies with Iraq reconstruction contracts have agreed to pay financial penalties without admitting wrongdoing.

In 2005, Halliburton took in approximately $3.6 billion from contracts to serve U.S. troops and rebuild the oil industry in Iraq. Halliburton executives say that the company received about $1 billion a month for Iraq work in 2006. In addition, last month, we learned of new plans to spend hundreds of millions more to create jobs in Iraq.

Last year, the Special Inspector General for Iraq Reconstruction found that millions of U.S. taxpayer funds appropriated for Iraq reconstruction have been lost and diverted. Yet we continue to send more taxpayer funds to Iraq, without accountability.

'The money we are sending is unaccounted for, and many of the facilities and services that these funds were supposed to pay for are still nonexistent. We in Congress must ask—where did all the money go? We need to press for more accountability over the unaccounted for billions of taxpayers' dollars sent as development aid to Iraq, not less.

A new law to combat war profiteering in Iraq and elsewhere is sorely needed and long overdue. Although there are laws to support against the waste of U.S. tax dollars at home, no law expressly prohibits war profiteering or expressly confers jurisdiction on U.S. federal courts to hear fraud cases involving war profiteering committed overseas.

The bill I introduced today would criminalize 'war profiteering'—overcharging taxpayers in order to defraud the United States of a war, a military action, or reconstruction efforts. It would also prohibit any fraud against the United States involving a contract for the provision of goods or services in connection with a war, military action, or reconstruction activities. This crime would be a felony, subject to criminal penalties of up to 20 years in prison and fines of up to $1 million, or twice the illegal gross profits of the crime.

The bill also prohibits false statements connected with the provision of goods or services in connection with a war or reconstruction effort. This crime would also be a felony, subject to criminal penalties of up to 10 years in prison and fines of up to $1 million, or twice the illegal gross profits of the crime.

The measure also addresses weakness in the existing laws used to combat war profiteering, by providing clear authority for the Government to seek criminal penalties to recover excessive profits for war profiteering overseas. These are strong and focused sanctions that are narrowly tailored to punish and deter fraud or excessive profiteering in contracts, both at home and abroad.

The message sent by this bill is clear—any act to exploit the crisis situation in Iraq or elsewhere overseas for exorbitant gain is unacceptable, reprehensible, and criminal. Such deceit demeanes and exploits the sacrifices that our military personnel are making in Iraq and Afghanistan, and around the world. This bill also builds on a strong legacy of historical efforts to stem war profiteering. Congress implemented numerous laws and contract renegotiation laws after both World Wars, and again after the Korean War. Advocating exactly such an approach, President Roosevelt once declared it our duty to ensure that 'a few do not gain from the sacrifices of the many.'

Our Government cannot in good faith ask its people to sacrifice for reconstruction efforts that allow some to profit unfairly. When U.S. taxpayers have been deceived into paying billions of dollars under a contract that provides a profit to the contractor, the result is a fraud on the public and on the military.

Combating war profiteering is not a Democratic issue, or a Republican issue. Rather, it is a cause that all Americans can support. When I first introduced this bill in 2003, it came to be cosponsored by 21 Senators. The Senate Appropriations Committee also unanimously adopted these provisions during a Senate Appropriations Committee markup of the $87 billion appropriations bill for Iraq and Afghanistan for Fiscal Year 2004, and this provision passed the Senate. Passing bipartisan war profiteering prevention legislation was the right thing to do then, and it is the right thing to do now.

I am hopeful that in a new year, and with a new Congress, we can make a fresh start and forge a bipartisan partnership on this important issue that will result in passage of this bill. I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the measure I have introduced be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. BAUCUS (for himself and Mr. COLEMAN):

S. 122. A bill to amend the Trade Act of 1974 to extend benefits to service sector workers and firms, enhance certain trade adjustment assistance authorities, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I am pleased today to introduce the Trade Adjustment Assistance Improvement Act of 2007 with my good friend and colleague, Senator COLEMAN.

In 2006, the United States passed, signed or concluded fewer than five new free trade agreements. This June, the President’s authority to negotiate trade agreements will expire. Congress should allow the President’s authority to negotiate these deals. But when we do, we must raise the bar higher than before. Each deal must surpass the last, in order to take advantage of and adjust to changes in the global marketplace, and affect American businesses and workers. Congress will consider these agreements on their merits. In most cases, these deals will mean more access for American producers and service providers. In some few cases, these agreements could mean more and fiercer competition for producers and providers here at home.

Competition is the engine that drives market economies like ours. It spawns innovation, creates new jobs. But just as jobs are created in new sectors of our economy, jobs are also lost in other sectors which experience sudden or unfair competition from abroad.

Whether and how effectively we help those firms and workers who feel the negative effects of our national trade policy will, in large part, determine whether and how effectively we can move a trade agenda forward this year.

During the last several Congresses, we have witnessed unprecedented change in the global marketplace and in our labor market at home. I have worked to raise the bar on our efforts to help workers affected by these changes. Today, I propose again, more urgently than ever, that Congress and the administration work together to adapt our national worker adjustment strategies to the challenges of globalization. The Trade Adjustment Assistance Improvement Act is a first and necessary step in that direction.

The Trade Adjustment Assistance Improvement Act includes many proposals that Congress should consider before the program expires this September. The Act extends coverage to more of the workers who are affected by trade and globalization. And the Act will improve the overall efficiency and effectiveness of the program.

For more than a century, the manufactured products sector has been and continues to be an important part of the American economy. So, when President Kennedy decided to open the American economy to more trade, he established the Trade Adjustment Assistance program to help workers in the manufacturing sector adjust to change.

Today, our economy depends upon service exports. More than 75 percent of the American labor force work in services. While many service sector jobs cannot be outsourced, technology change makes it possible to provide many services remotely, in such fields as accounting, healthcare, and computers and information technology. So when a large call center left Kalispell, Montana, three years ago for Canada, the Montana workers left behind did not benefit from $50 million in benefits that workers laid off from the Columbia Falls Aluminum manufacturing plant did. They should have.

Last year, the Department of Labor agreed, for the first time ever, that workers producing an intangible product, should be eligible for Trade Adjustment Assistance. That was a step in the right direction. We should take the next step this year. We should finally extend coverage to more American workers. That is what my bill proposes.

Trade Adjustment Assistance certification takes place on a case-by-case, plant-by-plant basis. This means that while two factories producing the same products may both experience foreign competition that leads to layoffs, often only one of those factories’ laid off workers gets certified as eligible for the program.

Consider the softwood lumber industry. At least 12 out of 33 Trade Adjustment Assistance petitions filed by workers in Montana’s softwood lumber industry over the last 7 years were denied by the Department of Labor. Yet, all of these mills were similarly affected by the same market conditions—dumped and subsidized Canadian imports. The International Trade Commission found that Canadian imports injured or threatened to injure the softwood lumber industry on a national scale.

But the Department of Labor’s certification process does not take into account the bigger—and often more meaningful—picture. It simply relies on data provided by individual companies that lay off the workers to make its case-by-case determinations.

The legislation that I introduce today makes industry-wide certification automatic for workers anywhere in the United States. If the President, the International Trade Commission, or another qualified Federal agency determines that imports are harming that industry. My bill also authorizes, but does not require, the Secretary of Labor to make industry-wide determinations if she receives three or more petitions in one industry within one 6-month period, or if the Senate Finance Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee pass a resolution requiring such an investigation. Yet, small programs that can help prevent displacements and shifts in production to overseas is the TAA for Firms program of the Department of Commerce. The Firms program reaches out to companies that have experienced decreasing sales or production due to import competition and have laid off or expect to lay off workers.

This program is chronically under-funded, and it should also be available to service sector firms. This bill would authorize the President’s authority to negotiate new free trade agreements to reach more small- and medium-sized businesses across the nation before they are forced to lay off their American workers and close their doors.

This bill also moves the Firms program from the Economic Development Administration at Commerce back into the International Trade Administration. That’s where it was previously. And frankly that’s where it ought to have remained. Despite the Firms program’s proven track record, Congress has cut the program from the Economic Development Administration and income assistance often have less access to good training or simply cannot afford to be out of work during their training. Wage insurance provides an incentive for employers to hire long-term idle and older workers and train them on the job.

In practice, I have been disappointed with the Department of Labor’s implementation of the wage insurance proposal that we crafted in 2002. In a 2004 review by the Government Accountability Office, the Department of Labor’s implementation of the benefit came up far short of the mark. Last year, the Government Accountability Office once again found that the Department needed to improve its implementation, focusing specifically on its outreach to and direction of state employment service offices.

I have worked with the Department of Labor on strategies that will improve its outreach. Wage insurance can help put people back to work, and can even save money over traditional Trade Adjustment Assistance. But it cannot fix all of those things if no one knows about the benefit.

This bill streamlines the process to qualify for wage insurance, and lowers the eligible age from 50 to 40. Wage replacement should be available to younger workers who would re-enter the workforce more quickly if they could afford the often steep wage cut.

Another key component of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Reform Act was the heat on health care tax credit to help displaced workers and some retirees maintain access to health insurance coverage. As health costs grow, losing health insurance can be as financially devastating to workers as losing a job. While I believe that the TAA health care tax credit holds promise, this is clearly an area where reforms are needed to help the credit achieve its purpose.

Today, the TAA health care tax credit helps only a fraction of the hundreds of thousands eligible for assistance. In its first 2 years, less than 6 percent of eligible workers and retirees enrolled. A GAO report released last year studying five major plant closings in 2003 and 2004 found that only 3 to 12 percent of eligible workers enrolled. More than half of the workers studied didn’t sign up for the tax credit because the 65 percent subsidy was too low to make health care affordable.

The tax credit also suffers from complexity and administrative red tape. More than half of eligible workers in GAO’s recent study didn’t even know about the benefit. About a third of workers who knew about the benefit decided not to enroll because it was too confusing. Even those who understand it have to navigate complex rules and requirements to get the benefit.

We need to make this program simpler, more affordable, and more seamless so that more workers can take it up in the years ahead. We need to improve the information that workers and retirees get about the program and create an incentive that they want it. We need to cut down on the red tape. And we need to look at options to make this benefit more affordable so that we can truly reach the hundreds of thousands eligible for this benefit that Congress intended to help when we enacted these reforms 4 years ago. I plan to introduce a bill later in the year that will achieve these goals for re-forming the health care tax credit and will look forward to working with Senator Coleman and other colleagues in this effort.

The forces of globalization, like trade and technology change, have created tremendous opportunities for American businesses and workers, from cutting the cost of living to increasing the margin of profit. Trade accounts for a quarter of our gross domestic product. The adjustments we have made to maximize trade’s benefits save the average American household $9,000 annually.

But we must also make adjustments to respond to the challenges that come with globalization. American businesses in the 21st century face rapidly changing consumer preferences and ever-swifter technological advances. Global competition is fierce. Innovation is the key to these companies’ continued prosperity.

The same holds true for American workers. They know that they must adjust to changes in the labor market if they are to maintain their place in it. Workers must be prepared for one or more career shifts before retirement. They must acquire more skills, and re-fresh their skills in the workplace.

We can help American companies adapt, and regain their competitive edge in the global marketplace. We can help more trade-displaced workers get back into the workforce. We should help these workers adapt not only to trade displacement, but to all the other aspects of globalization as well.

American workers and the companies that employ them must each continually adjust to a changing world marketplace. So too should our worker adjustment strategy.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

By Ms. LANDRIEU:

S. 123. A bill to authorize the project for hurricane and storm damage reduction, Morganza to the Gulf of Mexico, Louisiana; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

By Ms. LANDRIEU:—

Mr. President, Hurricane Katrina and Rita revealed the Gulf Coast’s vulnerability to storms and flooding. With the help of generous Americans, the people of the gulf coast have been working hard over the last year and a half to rebuild their economy, their communities, and their lives.

Since these devastating storms struck in 2005, Congress directed the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to provide protection for this region. Yet Congress’s failure to pass a Water Resources Development Act WRDA, has delayed much of the needed protection. Of all of the many worthy projects throughout the Nation awaiting WRDA passage, there is one hurricane protection project that stands out and cries for immediate congressional authorization with or without a WRDA bill. Accordingly, I am introducing legislation to singularly authorize this long overdue project known as “Morganza to the Gulf of Mexico Protection.”

This project includes a series of levees, locks and other systems through Terrebonne and Lafourche Parishes in Louisiana. When complete, the Morganza to the Gulf project will protect about 120,000 people and 1,700 square miles of land against storm surges such as those caused by Hurricane Katrina and Rita.

The Morganza to the Gulf project is distinguished from all other projects under WRDA because it was originally authorized in the last enacted WRDA bill in 2000, with the requirement that the Army Corps of Engineers deliver a favorable feasibility report by December 31 of that year.

The Corps eventually submitted its report more than a year late, causing the authorization to expire despite the Corps’ favorable recommendation.

Though repeated attempts have been made, Congress has been unable to deliver a new WRDA bill since 2000. As a result, vital hurricane protection for a portion of southeast Louisiana that the Corps recommends after years of environmental and economic analysis is awaiting congressional action, and an area of America’s gulf coast remains needlessly vulnerable. Notably, every failed WRDA bill that the Senate, the House, and its committees have separately passed since 2000 has authorized the Morganza to the Gulf Hurricane Protection project. Simply stated, there is no other item in WRDA that has been kicked down the road as many times as this.

This bill that I introduce today fully authorizes the Morganza to the Gulf project in accordance with the plans and subject to the conditions of the Corps’ report.

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and ask unanimous consent that the copy of my amendment and the bill appear in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. MORGANZA TO THE GULF OF MEXICO PROJECT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of the Army shall carry out the project for hurricane and storm damage reduction, Morganza to the Gulf of Mexico, Louisiana, substantially in accordance with the plans, and subject to the conditions, described in the Reports of the Chief of Engineers dated August 23, 2002, and July 22, 2003, at a total cost of $886,700,000, with an estimated Federal cost of $575,355,000 and an estimated non-Federal cost of $310,345,000.

(b) APPROPRIATIONS.—The Secretary shall credit to the non-Federal share of the cost of the project elements the cost of design and construction work carried out by the non-Federal interest before the date of the partnership agreement for the project elements if the Secretary determines that the work is integral to the project elements.

(c) OPERATIONS AND MAINTENANCE.—The operation and maintenance, repair, rehabilitation, and replacement of the Houma Navigation Canal lock complex and the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway floodgate features of the project described in subsection (a) that provide for inland waterway transportation shall be a Federal responsibility, in accordance with section 102 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (33 U.S.C. 2212).
The problem is this: cable and satellite subscribers in two southern Colorado counties are forced by current law to receive New Mexico television stations. Lately, I hear almost every day from my constituents that they would prefer to receive Colorado television over New Mexico television.

The problem stems from the fact that these two Colorado counties are located in the Albuquerque designated market area, as determined by Nielsen Media Research. As a matter of fairness, Colorado should be eligible to receive Colorado TV. Consumers should choose which television stations they receive, especially since they are the ones paying for it.

The bill I am introducing does just that. It makes a commonsense change to the law that allows citizens of La Plata and Montezuma Counties to receive television stations from Denver, not Albuquerque.

I hope that my colleagues will join me in supporting this bill that is nearly identical to laws enacted in previous Congresses that addressed similar problems in other States.

By Mr. ALLARD:
S. 125. A bill to establish the Granada Relocation Center National Historic Site as an affiliated unit of the National Park System; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am introducing a bill dealing with the Granada Relocation Camp, also known as Camp Amache. It played an important, but sad, part in United States history. Camp Amache, one of 10 internment camps in the Nation, was established in August 1942 by the U.S. Government during World War II as a place to house the Japanese from the west coast and was closed on August 15, 1945. This is a significant part of American history and it should be preserved. My bill today will designate the Granada Relocation Center as a national historic site in Colorado.

By Mr. ALLARD (for himself and Mr. SALAZAR):
S. 126. A bill to modify the boundary of Mesa Verde National Park, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, another piece of legislation I am introducing today is the bill dealing with the expansion of the boundary of Mesa Verde National Park. The boundary adjustment will allow for the incorporation of 324 acres of land owned by the Henneman family, which is being purchased by the Conservation Fund for conveyance to the park, as well as a 38-acre parcel that will be donated to the park by the Mesa Verde Foundation.

Mesa Verde National Park protects some of the best preserved and most notable archaeological sites in the world. The park has over 4,000 known archaeological sites in the park, including 600 cliff dwellings. These sites were constructed by ancestral Puebloans, who occupied this area for over 700 years, from 600 A.D. to 1300 A.D.

S. 127. A bill to amend the Great Sand Dunes National Park and Preserve Act of 2000 to explain the purpose and provide for the administration of the Baca National Wildlife Refuge; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, the Baca National Wildlife Refuge Purpose bill will give the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service management tools that will allow the agency to acquire the Baca National Wildlife Refuge in a way that achieves the most beneficial use of this wonderful natural resource. The Baca National Wildlife Refuge consists of 92,500 acres of wetlands, sage brush, and riparian lands adjacent to the Great Sand Dunes National Park in southern Colorado. I, along with my colleague from Colorado’s 3rd Congressional District, U.S. Representative Scott McInnis, sponsored the legislation that converted the Sand Dunes from a monument to a park. This legislation also authorized the Federal acquisition of the Baca Ranch lands and I remain actively interested in the area’s management.

By Mr. ALLARD (for himself and Mr. SALAZAR):
S. 128. A bill to amend the Cache La Poudre River Corridor Act to designate a new management entity, make certain technical and conforming amendments, enhance private property protections, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am introducing legislation which will extend congressional authorization for the Cache la Poudre Heritage Area in northern Colorado and will give local citizens greater management authority over the area. The legislation, authored by former Colorado Senator Hank Brown, the Secretary of Interior was to appoint a commission to work with the National Park Service and manage the area, but because of a technicality, the Secretary was unable to appoint the commission. In response, local citizens stepped up and formed the Poudre Heritage Alliance to support the Heritage Area until an official commission could be named. This legislation would rectify this, and empower local residents to continue the work they have been doing on behalf of the heritage area.

By Mr. ALLARD:
S. 129. A bill to study and promote the use of energy-efficient computer servers in the United States; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am introducing a bill that will authorize the EPA to conduct a study of the growth in energy consumption by computer data centers operated by the Federal Government and by private corporations. The study will also examine industry movement toward energy efficient microchips and computer servers, potential cost savings associated with the movement to more efficient machines and what, if any, impacts to performance come with increased efficiency. The results of the study will allow us to more fully understand the impact that the growing number of computers in use throughout the country, has on energy use. This information will better position Congress to make recommendations to Federal agencies on their energy use and computer selection.

It will also provide private industry with information that will allow them to choose computer models that will decrease their energy consumption, making their companies more efficient and profitable.

By Mr. ALLARD (for himself and Mr. SALAZAR):
S. 130. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to extend reasonable cost contracts to Medicare; to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, currently American seniors enjoy Medicare health plans called cost contracts. Under legislation I am introducing seniors will be able to continue utilizing these value health plans.

Medicare cost contract plans are vital to America. Cost contracts provide Medicare beneficiaries in many rural areas and states and even to Hawaii, America with an affordable, high-quality option to the traditional Medicare fee-for-service plan. For many of these beneficiaries, Medicare Advantage plans do not provide access to physicians in the community.

Medicare cost contracts are managed care plans that are reimbursed on a cost basis for providing health services. Under current law, cost contracts are one option for Medicare beneficiaries. Under legislation I am introducing seniors with cost contracts can use any Medicare provider regardless of whether they participate in the health plans network. This is critical in rural areas where physicians are scarce.

Cost contracts are vital to seniors who have them. From New York to Oregon, and even to Hawaii, America’s seniors are enrolled in cost contract plans. Cost contracts are especially important in rural Colorado. Of the Coloradans with cost contract plans, 89 percent live in rural Colorado, where few physicians will see patients under straight Medicare or Medicare Advantage.

Many beneficiaries who are enrolled in Medicare cost contract plans live on limited incomes. Under the traditional Medicare program, beneficiaries incur considerable out-of-pocket expenses. In addition, Medicare supplemental insurers frequently age-adjust premiums and either refuse coverage or impose coverage restrictions for pre-existing conditions. Medicare cost contract plans provide an affordable alternative.

Unfortunately, under current law cost contracts soon will terminate. I believe Congress should work to extend Medicare cost contracts further. My bill, the Medicare Cost Contract Extension and Refinement Act of 2007, would accomplish this by extending by five years the cost contract sunset date of December 31, 2007, to December 31, 2012.

Cost contracts have been a bipartisan issue, with bipartisan support in the past. Senator Wyden of Oregon worked to get an extension for cost contracts in the 109th Congress, and I look forward to working with him again during the 110th.

By Mr. ALLARD: S. 131. A bill to extend for 5 years the Mark-to-Market program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I turn now to housing. Congress created the Mark-to-Market Program in 1997 to reduce Section 8 costs while preserving the affordability and availability of low-income rental housing. The purpose of the program is to reduce property rents to market level while simultaneously restructuring property debt to prevent FHA defaults. Studies seem to show that the program has been an overwhelming success. Nearly 250,000 units of affordable housing have been preserved due to the Mark-to-Market Program. This is affordable housing that would have been permanently lost as affordable otherwise. According to HUD, the program has also saved taxpayers more than $2 billion.

The original legislation authorized the Mark-to-Market Program for 4 years, which was subsequently extended for 5 additional years. Therefore, the Mark-to-Market program authority was scheduled to expire on September 30, 2006. Fortunately, the program authority was temporarily extended under the continuing resolutions.

When the program was extended in 2001, it appeared that 9 additional years would be an adequate amount of time for nearly all eligible properties to complete the Mark-to-Market process. However, more recent projections show that nearly 78,000 properties will face rent reductions over the next 5 years. It is important to note that even though the program will expire, these Section 8 properties with above market rates will still be required to have their rents reduced to market levels. Without the proper tools to also restructure the debt, many owners will lack sufficient funds to pay the new mortgage payments. Because many Section 8 properties are also FHA insured, this will result in a significant number of claims against FHA, in addition to many tenant displacements.

Clearly, no one finds this a desirable scenario. Failure to extend the Mark-to-Market Program would be bad for tenants and bad for taxpayers. Thus, I am pleased to introduce Senator Reed of Rhode Island in reintroducing the Mark-to-Market Extension Act of 2007. Our bill would extend the program for 5 additional years to allow the remaining properties to go through the Mark-to-Market process. Frankly, I can see no downside to extending the program: It maintains affordable housing for less money.

I am pleased to work with industry groups and with my colleagues to see that this very worthwhile program is extended for an additional 5 years.

By Mr. ALLARD: S. 132. A bill to end the trafficking of methamphetamines and precursor chemicals across the United States and its borders; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, the first bill I present today is to address one of the biggest current scourges of our communities—the meth abuse.

Just this week, a report published by Colorado’s Meth Task Force cited Denver as a major distribution center for meth in the U.S.

Our Nation has been hard hit by the illegal trafficking of meth across U.S. borders. This is a national issue that is growing at a rate that constantly presents a challenge to our talented law enforcement officials. Through our work on the Combat Meth Act, we have provided them with many tools to fight the domestic production of meth. We are now called upon to respond to the issue of foreign produced meth as it presents a growing threat to the U.S.

In just 10 years, meth has become America’s worst drug problem—worse than marijuana, cocaine, or heroin. My home state of Colorado, like the rest of the Nation, faces challenges associated with the growing epidemic. Although the number of meth labs in the state is on the decline, meth distribution remains rampant because of Denver’s location at the intersection of two major interstate highways, both of which serve as pipelines for the distribution of meth after it enters our country.

This evidence is echoed by the many local drug enforcement officials, and District Attorneys who are tasked with tackling meth within our communities and who I have worked with on this issue.

According to estimates from the DEA, almost 80 percent of the meth used in the United States comes from larger labs, increasingly abroad, while only 20 percent of the meth consumed in this country comes from small laboratories.

Therefore, I propose that we improve efforts to curb the flow of meth both within and across our borders. We must take steps to expand enforcement to reduce the amount of meth being trafficked into the United States by establishing stricter penalties for meth offenders, improving coordination with foreign law enforcement officials, and examining the serious meth problems faced by Indian reservations.

The Methamphetamine Trafficking Enforcement Act of 2007 that I am introducing today is a first step to fighting the trafficking of this drug. My bill addresses the distribution issue by dramatically lowering the quantity and dollar amount thresholds for federal criminal prosecution of leaders of methamphetamine distribution rings.

The trafficking of meth across our borders makes Federal action necessary, but this is not our war to fight alone. This bill also presses upon the United States Trade Representative, the Secretary of State, the Attorney General, and the Secretary of Homeland Security to include new ways to curb the illicit use and shipment of pseudoephedrine, ephedrine, and similar chemicals in multilateral and bilateral negotiations. Federal law enforcement officials will collaborate with their foreign counterparts to fight meth internationally. Working together, we can find a long term solution.

According to the U.S. Department of Justice, the use, production and distribution of meth on Indian lands has increased in the past decade. With limited numbers of tribal law enforcement officials, meth can easily flow into and be trafficked out of many Indian reservations. This bill urges the Attorney General to research and report to Congress the challenges faced by all Indian reservations and make recommendations to help them address meth trafficking and abuse.

We must recognize the immediacy of the issue of methamphetamine trafficking. It is important that we protect the U.S. and its borders to ensure national security and the safety of our children, and to ensure that our necessary, but this is not our war to fight alone. This bill also presses upon the United States Trade Representative, the Secretary of State, the Attorney General, and the Secretary of Homeland Security to include new ways to curb the illicit use and shipment of pseudoephedrine, ephedrine, and similar chemicals in multilateral and bilateral negotiations. We must recognize the immediacy of the issue of methamphetamine trafficking. It is important that we protect the U.S. and its borders to ensure national security and the safety of our children, and to ensure that our widely anticipated that ethanol production will surpass the target for the year 2012 by the end of this year, five years early.

Clearly, it is time to increase the RFS targets. I am pleased to be an original cosponsor of this bill introduced today by my colleagues, Senator Harkin and Senator Lugar, that will increase those targets to 30 billion gallons by the year 2020 and 60 billion gallons by the year 2030. I hope my colleagues will support the provisions of this bill.

But for an expanded RFS to be successful, we must lay further groundwork. We cannot meet the targets and ensure the success of this bill by the year 2020 and 60 billion gallons by 2030. We must expand to cellulosics and biobutanol feedstocks. Our vocabulary must expand to cellulosics and biobutanol feedstocks. Our vocabulary will support the provisions of this bill. We cannot meet the targets and ensure the success of this bill by the year 2020 and 60 billion gallons by 2030. We must lay further groundwork by the year 2020 and 60 billion gallons by 2030.

To oversee these efforts, we create a Director of Energy Security in the Office of the President to ensure that our massive investment in domestically produced fuels get the national security leadership and coordination it requires.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.

S. 134. A bill to authorize the construction of the Arkansas Valley Conduit in the State of Colorado, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am introducing the Arkansas Valley Conduit bill, which will ensure the construction of a pipeline that will provide the small, financially strapped towns and water agencies along the lower Arkansas River with safe, clean, affordable water. This project was originally authorized by Congress in 1962, over 40 years ago, as a part of the Fryingpan-Arkansas Project. Due to several long years of drought and increasing Federal water quality standards, current water delivery methods are not enough. By creating an 80-percent Federal, 20-percent local cost share formula to help offset the construction costs of the conduit, this legislation will protect the future of southeastern Colorado’s drinking water supplies and prevent further economic hardship.

By Mr. ALLARD:

S. 135. A bill to authorize the Secretary of the Army to acquire land for... the purposes of expanding Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, another bill dealing with the large military presence also relates to the expansion of the Army’s Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site. Due to an emphasis on rapid mobility, modularity, and maneuverability in recent years, the Army’s ability to project force across the world has increased exponentially. As such, the Army’s transformation is also driving higher their requirement for training space.

With its close location to Fort Carson, Pinon Canyon was perfectly suited for the Army’s training needs 20 years ago. However, with the arrival of 10,000 new soldiers to Fort Carson, the Army has determined that the size of the site needs to be increased in order to meet Fort Carson’s new operational training requirements.

I have been told repeatedly by Army officials that the genesis of Fort Carson’s expansion proposal occurred when several landowners approached Fort Carson and expressed their strong desire to sell. I also understand that sufficient willing sellers exist to support a significant expansion of the site. However, many in the community surrounding Pinon Canyon have major questions that need to be answered.

In order to get some of these major questions answered, a reporting requirement was placed in the 2006 Defense Authorization bill, approved by both the Senate and the House. However, the Department of Army is restricted on communicating about any specific land acquisition proposal until a waiver for that site has been granted by the Secretary of Defense, which has yet to be granted. Thus, the Army’s hands were tied and they were unable to meet the full reporting requirement in the 2006 Defense authorization. I understand the difficult position the Army is on this issue, but I believe it is absolutely necessary that they provide the information to the community and to Congress prior to any acquisition of property.

The leadership at Fort Carson has done a great job of reaching out and providing what information it could to the local communities. However, the Pentagon has not been as forthcoming. I believe the Congress and, more importantly, the local communities in Southeastern Colorado need more information before we can decide whether this proposed expansion is necessary and appropriate.

With these objectives in mind, today I am introducing a bill that clearly defines the process under which the Army can expand the Pinon Canyon Maneuver Site. This legislation prohibits the use of eminent domain, requires the Army to pay fair market value. Most importantly, the bill does not allow the Army to proceed with land acquisition until it delivers the answers previously sought on the environmental and economic impacts of expansion and also must offer options for compensating the loss of property tax revenue.

It is vital that the Army take the time to answer these important questions to help alleviate the affected communities concerns. A number of counties and small towns in Southeastern Colorado could be adversely affected by this expansion, and this study will help us better understand the extent of impacts and provide options for mitigating them.

By Mr. ALLARD:

S. 136. A bill to expand the National Domestic Preparedness Consortium to include the Transportation Technology Training Center; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, in another area, the events of the past several years remind us of the vital role of first responders in responding to natural disasters and terrorists attacks. It is important that our first responders receive the training needed to make critical life-saving decisions during emergency circumstances. I believe that an essential element of preparing for and responding to these events is strengthening the capacity of local first responders. The National Domestic Preparedness Consortium is uniquely positioned to teach emergency preparedness within the railroad and mass transit environment.

The importance of real world training was called to my attention by a visit to the Transportation Technology Training Center, TTC, in Pueblo, CO. There, I witnessed first hand the tools and services available for the training of TTC. The training they need, specifically in the context of rail and mass transit. But our national training consortium does not currently include a facility that is uniquely focused on emergency preparedness within the railroad and mass transit environment. The center’s training mission includes the delivery of training solutions that are consistent with the requirements and in furtherance of the goals of providing quality care and containing costs under this part.

The ERTC was established to fill a critical gap in its current training agenda. TTC is a federally owned, 52-square-mile multimodal testing and training facility in Pueblo, CO, operated by the Association of American Railroads, AAR. Each year, an average of 1,700 first responders travel to Pueblo, CO, to participate in TTC’s training program. The facility has trained more than 20,000 students in its 20-year history.

The ERTC is regarded as the “graduate school” of hazmat training because of its focus on hands on, true to life, training exercises on actual rail vehicles, including tank cars and passenger rail cars. The ERTC is uniquely positioned to teach emergency response for railway-related emergencies. It is for these reasons that today I introduce a bill authorizing the National Domestic Preparedness Consortium, as expanded to include the Transportation Technology Center in Pueblo, CO, and providing for its coordination and use by the Department of Homeland Security in training the Nation’s first responders.

By Mrs. BOXER:

S. 146. A bill to require the Federal Government to purchase fuel efficient automobiles, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, last year many Americans paid over $3—and in some places in California, $4—for a gallon of gasoline.

At the same time, oil companies made record profits. Enough is enough! We need to help the American public and reduce our dependence on oil. The Federal Government should be taking the lead on this issue. Sadly, it is not.

In 2005, the Federal Government purchased 64,000 passenger vehicles. According to the U.S. Department of Energy, the average fuel economy of the new vehicles purchased for the fleet in 2005 was an abysmal 21.4 miles per gallon.

Today, hybrid cars on the market can achieve over 50 miles per gallon and SUVs can obtain 36 miles per gallon. The Government’s average of 21.4 miles to the gallon is too low.

Instead, our government needs to purchase fuel-efficient cars, SUVs, and light trucks. This can be done today. I drive a Toyota Prius that gets over 50 mpg. The Ford Escape SUV can get 36 mpg.

The Federal Government should be a leader in protecting our environment and national security.

That is why I am reintroducing the Government Fleet Fuel Economy Act.

This legislation requires federal government to purchase vehicles that are fuel-efficient to the greatest extent possible.

Mr. LUTENBERG. Mr. President, I rise today with great pride to reintroduce legislation which would create a national park in my hometown of Paterson, NJ. The Paterson Great Falls National Park, which I first introduced last year, would bring long-deserved recognition and accessibility to one of our Nation’s most beautiful and historic landmarks. I am pleased that my colleague from New Jersey, Senator MENENDEZ, is cosponsoring this legislation.

The Great Falls are located where the Passaic River drops nearly 80 feet straight down, on its course towards New York Harbor. It is one of the tallest and most spectacular waterfalls on the east coast, but the incredible natural beauty of the falls should not overshadow its tremendous importance as the powerhouse of industry in New Jersey and the infant United States. Indeed, in 1778, Alexander Hamilton visited the Great Falls and immediately realized the potential for the falls for industrial applications and development. Hamilton was instrumental in creating the planned community in Paterson—the first of its kind nationwide—centered on the Great Falls, and industry flourished along the river generated by the falls. Rogers Locomotive Works, the premier steam locomotive manufacturer of the 19th century, was... located in the shadow of the falls, as were many other vitally important manufacturing enterprises.

President Ford recognized the importance of the area by declaring the falls and its surroundings a "National Historic Landmark" in 1976; he called the falls "a symbol of the industrial might which helps to make the United States the most powerful nation in the world." Now, it is time that we recognize the importance of this historic area by making it New Jersey's first national park. It would be of special importance because so few of our national parks are in urban areas. I believe that it is time we acknowledge that many of our most significant national treasures are located in densely populated areas, and creating a national park in Paterson is an ideal opportunity to do just that.

I grew up in Paterson, and I have appreciated the majesty and beauty of the Great Falls for many years. By creating a national park in Paterson, more Americans can be exposed to the exceptional cultural, natural, and historic significance of the Great Falls, and that is why I will passionately advocate for the passage of this bill. I have the opportunity to work with my friend, Congressman BILL PASCRELL—another longtime resident of Paterson—on this issue, as well as with a bipartisan group of lawmakers from my home State, all of whom believe strongly in this cause. I urge my colleagues to support the passage of this legislation, which is so important to New Jersey and all of America.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

"There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 148

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Paterson Great Falls National Park Act of 2007".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The Great Falls Historic District in Paterson, New Jersey is the site Alexander Hamilton selected to implement his vision of American economic independence and transform a rural agrarian society based on slavery into one based on freedom.

(2) President Ford announced the designation of the Historic District as a National Historic Landmark in 1976 and declared it "a symbol of the industrial might which helps to make America the most powerful nation in the world".

(3) The Historic District was established as a National Historic Landmark in 1966.

(4) Exceptional natural and cultural resources make the Historic District America's only National Historic District that contains both a National Historic Landmark and a National Natural Resource.

(5) The Historic District embodies Hamilton's vision of an American economy based on trade.

(A) diverse industries to avoid excessive reliance on any single manufactured product;

(B) innovative engineering and technology, including the successful use of water, a renewable energy source, to power industry and manufacturing;

(C) industrial production of goods not only for domestic consumption but also for international trade; and

(D) meritocracy and opportunities for all.

(6) Pierre L'Enfant designed and implemented an integrated power system at Great Falls and the buildings erected around it over two centuries constitute the finest and most extensive remaining example of his integrated urban planning, historical structures, and natural beauty. These works span the entire period of America's growth into an industrial power.

(7) A National Park Service unit in Paterson is necessary to give the American people an opportunity to appreciate the physical beauty and historical importance of the Historic District.

(8) Congress and the National Park Service recognized the national significance of the Historic District through listing on the National Register of Historic Places and designation as a National Historic Landmark and a National Historic District.

(9) The Historic District is suitable for addition to the National Park System because—

(A) the national park will promote themes not adequately represented in National Park System, including aspects of African-American history and the inspiration Great Falls has been for renowned American writers and artists;

(B) the national park will promote civic engagement by attracting and engaging people who currently feel little or no connection to National Parks or the founding fathers;

(C) the national park will interpret America's developing history in the historical and global context; and

(D) the national park will foster partnerships among federal, state and local governments and private donors and non-profit organizations.

(10) The Historic District is a physically and fiscally feasible site for a national park because—

(A) all of the required natural and cultural resources are on property largely owned by local government entities;

(B) it is of a manageable size; and

(C) much of the funding will come from private donors and New Jersey, which has committed substantial sums of money to fund a state park that will assist in the fund the national park.

(11) The national park provides enormous potential for public use because its location and urban setting make it easily accessible for millions of Americans.

(12) The historic Hinchliffe stadium, adjacent to the Historic District, was home to the New York Black Yankees for many years and is the site of the Colored Championship of the Nation, and it was added to the National Register of Historic Places by the National Park Service in 2004.

(13) The Hinchliffe Stadium both as a star high school athlete and again as Negro League player, shortly before becoming the first African-American to play in the American League.

(14) A National Park Service unit, in partnership with private donors and state and local governments, represents the most effective and efficient method of preserving the Historic District for the public.

(15) A National Park Service unit in Paterson is necessary to give the Historic District a national presence and promote the American spirit. The State alone cannot preserve the Historic District and present it to the public without a National Park System unit in Paterson.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act and the National Park Service unit established under this Act are—

(1) to establish a unit of the National Park System in Paterson, New Jersey, consisting of approximately 118 acres, as specified in the National Register of Historic Places.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today I am pleased to join Senator Sessi

S. 1. A bill to re-introducing the “Preserving Crime Victims’ Restitution Act.” The Act would clarify the rule of law and procedures that should be applied when a defendant, such as former Enron CEO Kenneth Lay, dies after he has been duly convicted, but before his appeals are final.

This bill passed the Senate unanimously at the end of the 109th Congress, but unfortunately it was not taken up by the House. Except for minor, technical corrections, this new bill is the same as what the Senate passed in the last Congress, and I urge my colleagues to speedily pass this bill, as you did before, so that it can be enacted into law.

As I mentioned when I introduced this bill last fall, we have worked closely with the Department of Justice in crafting this legislation, and have relied on the views of experts, including DOJ.

and suggested that a conviction untested by appellate review is unreliable and illegitimate. This notion runs contrary to the traditional rule applied in virtually every other context—where a jury’s findings are typically respected under the law.

Of course a defendant is presumed innocent at the outset of his case. After a jury has deliberated and unanimously issued a formal finding of guilt, however, that presumption of innocence no longer stands.

The concept “finality” rationale even raises the possibility that a defendant who fully admitted his wrongdoing and pleaded guilty, but who then died while an appeal of his sentence was pending, could have his entire criminal conviction erased.

In fact, that has already occurred, in the 1994 case of United States v. Pogue, where the D.C. Circuit ordered the dismissal of a conviction of a defendant whose appeal was pending. Although the docketing statement had said that the defendant intended to challenge only his sentence, and not his underlying conviction.

Following Judge Lake’s decision, I sent a letter to the Attorney General, asking him to appeal the order and continue the fight for Enron victims. Unfortunately, the Justice Department decided in November to withdraw its opposition to this legislation. This legislation offers a fair solution and orderly process in the event that a criminal defendant dies prior to his final appeal.

The time has come for Congress to end this injustice—hopefully, by acting quickly enough to assist these Enron victims, but in any event in a way that will solve the problems that the Lay dismissal so starkly illustrated. I urge my colleagues in the Senate to quickly pass this bill, as you did in the 109th Congress, so that we can enact it into law in the 110th Congress.

By Mrs. BOXER (for herself, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and Mr. LAUTENBERG):

S. 150. A bill to amend the safe Drinking Water Act to protect the health of pregnant women, fetuses, infants, and children by requiring a health advisory and drinking water standard for perchlorate; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation that would order EPA to promptly establish a health advisory and then a drinking water standard for perchlorate. I am pleased that the Senior Senator from California, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, and the Senior Senator from New Jersey, Mr. LAUTENBERG, have joined me as original cosponsors of this measure.

This legislation will require the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to establish a standard for perchlorate contamination in drinking water supplies by January 3, 2007. EPA still has not committed to establishing a tap water standard for this widespread contaminant, decades after learning that perchlorate is a problem in our drinking water.

Perchlorate is a clear and present danger to California’s and much of America’s health. We cannot wait any longer to address this threat. EPA needs to get moving and protect our drinking water now.

Drinking water sources for more than 20 million Americans are contaminated with perchlorate. Perchlorate is the main ingredient in rocket fuel, which accounts for 90 percent of its use. Perchlorate is also used for ammunition, fireworks, highway safety flares, air bags, and fertilizers. It dissolves readily in many liquids, including water, and moves easily and quickly through the ground.

Perchlorate was first discovered in drinking water in 1967, and at the latest in the mid-1980s, EPA was aware that perchlorate contaminates drinking water. Since 1997, when California developed a new, more sensitive testing method that can detect perchlorate down to 4 parts per billion, perchlorate has been found in source groundwater, and surface water throughout the U.S.

According to a May 2005 report from the Government Accountability Office, perchlorate contamination has been detected in water and soil at almost 400 sites in the U.S with levels ranging from 4 parts per billion to millions of parts per billion.

GAO also said that limited EPA data show that perchlorate has polluted 35 States and the District of Columbia, and is known to have contaminated 133 public water systems in 26 States. Those data likely underestimate total exposure, as illustrated by the finding of the California Department of Health Services that perchlorate contamination has affected at least 276 drinking water wells sources and 77 drinking water systems in California alone.

The Food and Drug Administration and other scientific researchers have detected perchlorate in the United States food supply, including in lettuce, milk, cucumbers, tomatoes, carrots, cantaloupe, wheat, and spinach, and in human breast milk.

Perchlorate can harm human health, especially in pregnant women and children, by interfering with thyroid hormone production, which is needed to produce important thyroid hormones that help control human health and development. The thyroid helps to ensure children’s proper mental and physical development, in addition to helping to control metabolism. Thyroid problems in expectant mothers or infants can affect babies, and result in delayed development and decreased learning capability.

The largest and most comprehensive study to date on the effects of low levels of perchlorate exposure in women was recently published by researchers from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). CDC found that there were significant changes in thyroid hormones in women with low iodine levels who were exposed to perchlorate. The CDC researchers also found that even small increases in low-level perchlorate exposure may affect the thyroid’s production of hormones in iodine deficient women. About 36 percent of women in the U.S. have iodine levels equal to or below those of the women in the study.

EPA has not established a health advisory or national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate. Instead, the agency has established a ‘Drinking Water Equivalent Level’ (DWEL) of 24.5 parts per billion for this toxin. The agency’s DWEL does not take into consideration all routes of exposure to perchlorate, and has been criticized by experts for falling to sufficiently consider the body weight, unique exposure, and vulnerabilities of certain pregnant women and fetuses, infants, and children. It is based primarily upon a small human study by Greer et al., which tested a small number of adults. The DWEL also does not take into account the new much larger studies from CDC, and other data indicating potential effects at lower perchlorate levels than previously found.

Alarming levels of perchlorate have been discovered in Lake Mead and the Colorado River, the drinking water source for millions of Southern Californians. Communities in the Inland Empire, San Gabriel Valley, Santa Clara Valley, and the Sacramento area are also grappling with perchlorate contamination.

My bill will ensure that EPA acts swiftly to address this threat to our health and welfare. I look forward to working with my colleagues to pass this important piece of legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the “Protecting Pregnant Women and Children From Perchlorate Act of 2007”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.
(a) Findings.—Congress finds that—
(1) perchlorate is a chemical used as the primary ingredient of solid rocket propellant;
(2) perchlorate is also used in fireworks, road flares, and other applications;
(3) waste from the manufacture and improper disposal of chemicals containing perchlorate is increasingly being discovered in soil and water;
(4) the Government Accountability Office has determined that the Environmental Protection Agency does not centrally track or monitor perchlorate detections or the status of perchlorate cleanup, so a greater number of contaminated sites may already exist;
(5) according to the Government Accountability Office, limited Environmental Protection Agency data show that perchlorate, has been found in 35 States and the District of Columbia and is known to have contaminated 133 public water systems in 26 States; and
(6) those data are likely underestimates of total drinking water exposure, as illustrated by the findings of the California Department of Health Services that perchlorate contamination sites have affected approximately 276 drinking water sources and 77 drinking water systems in the State of California alone.
(b) Purpose.—The purposes of this Act are—
(1) to require the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to establish, by not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, a health advisory for perchlorate in drinking water that fully protects pregnant women, fetuses, infants, and children, taking into consideration body weight and exposure patterns and all routes of exposure to perchlorate;
(2) to require the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to establish promptly a national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate that fully protects pregnant women, fetuses, infants, and children, taking into consideration body weight and exposure patterns and all routes of exposure to perchlorate;
(3) according to the Government Accountability Office, there were significant changes in thyroid function in women with low iodine levels, which is necessary to produce important hormones that help control human health and development;
(4) in adults, the thyroid helps to regulate metabolism;
(5) in children, the thyroid helps to ensure proper mental and physical development; and
(6) impairment of thyroid function in expectant mothers or infants may result in effects including delayed development and decreased learning capability;

(c) Perchlorate—
(i) Schedule, health advisory, and standard.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the Administrator shall publish a health advisory and promulgate a national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate, in accordance with the schedule and provisions established by this subparagraph, that fully protects pregnant women, fetuses, infants, and children, taking into consideration body weight and exposure patterns, and all routes of exposure.
(ii) Health advisory.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this subparagraph, the Administrator shall publish a health advisory for perchlorate in accordance with clause (i).
(iii) Proposed regulations.—Not later than August 1, 2007, the Administrator shall propose a national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate in accordance with clause (i).
(iv) Final regulations.—Not later than December 31, 2007, after providing notice and an opportunity for public comment, the Administrator shall promulgate a national primary drinking water regulation for perchlorate in accordance with clause (i)."

By Mrs. BOXER.
S. 152. A bill to amend the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 to establish a program to help States expand the educational system to include at least 1 year of early education for children, and for other purposes. (Security and Education Enhancement Act of 2007)
Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, today I rise to reintroduce the Early Education Act. This bill will enable children across our nation to be prepared with the initial skills and abilities to successfully begin their education.

I strongly believe that there should be a national commitment to establish that all children have access to high quality prekindergarten programs. This bill is a step forward in making that possible.

Of the nearly 8 million and 3- and 4-year-olds that could be in early education, fewer than half are enrolled in an early education program. In my State of California alone, just 65 percent of 4-year-olds are in preschool.

The result is that too many children come to school ill-prepared to learn. They lack language and social skills. Almost all experts now agree that an early education experience is one of the most effective strategies for improving later school performance.

Research has discovered that children have a learning capacity that can and should be developed at a much earlier age than was previously thought. The National Research Council reported that prekindergarten education opportunities are critical in developing early language and literacy skills and preventing reading difficulties in young children.

Furthermore, studies have shown that children who participate in prekindergarten programs are less likely to be held back a grade, show greater learning retention and initiative, have better social skills, are more enthusiastic about school, and are more likely to have good attendance records.

In fact, prekindergarten programs pay for themselves in long-term benefits. It is estimated that for every dollar invested in early education, about $7 are saved in later costs.

My bill, the Early Education Act, would create a program in at least 10 States to provide one year of prekindergarten early education in the public schools. There is a 50 percent matching requirement, and the $300 million authorized annually under this bill would be used by States to supplement—not supplant—other Federal, State or local funds. This bill would serve approximately 136,000 children.

Our children need a solid foundation that builds on our current education system by providing them with early learning skills. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

By Mrs. BOXER:

S. 154. A bill to promote coal-to-liquid fuel activities; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Coal-to-Liquid Fuel Promotion Act of 2007.

For too long, America has ignored its energy security. Many of us can remember the energy crises of the 1970s. We were held ransom by a monopolistic oil cartel and forced to endure shortages, gas lines, and high prices. In the early 1980s, just as America began to invest in alternative fuels, the oil-producing states of the world crashed the price of oil. America has seen oil prices rise dramatically in the last few years. But investors are concerned that oil prices could drop to the low levels of the 1980s and make CTL plants un-competitive again. I believe oil prices will stay above the price range that keeps CTL profitable, which is estimated to be between $40 and $50 per barrel. But even if oil prices were to drop that low in the next few decades, I believe CTL would more than pay for itself by insulating us from supply shocks and providing a secure domestic fuel supply for the military.

The Federal Government must act to help industry overcome these hurdles. This legislation will provide a combination of incentives to create a net-works of coal-to-liquid production in the United States.

The Coal-to-Liquid Fuel Promotion Act of 2007 has three parts. First, this bill addresses the need to pull together the investors and the billions of dollars required to build a CTL plant. It expands and enhances the Department of Energy’s loan guarantee program included in the Energy Policy Act we passed in 2005.

By Mr. BUNNING (for himself, Mr. OBAMA, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. PORY, Ms. MURKOWSKI, Mr. BOND, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. ENZI, Miss LANDRIEU, and Mr. CRAIG):

S. 154. A bill to promote coal-to-liquid fuel activities; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.
DOE to administer loan guarantees for the Nation’s first CTL plants. These plants must be large scale, which is a minimum production of 10,000 barrels a day of liquid fuel. This program is only for the first 10 commercial plants. By then, we could have proven the economics of the technology and no further incentives will be needed.

It also provides a new program of matching loans. The loans are capped at $20 million and must be matched dollar-for-dollar by non-Federal money. They must be repaid as soon as the plants are financed.

Second, this legislation would fundamentally alter the economics of CTL plants during and after construction. It expands the investment tax credits and expensing provisions enacted in the Energy Policy Act of 2005. It increases the 20-percent tax credit for CTL plants to a maximum of $200 million for each of the first 10 CTL plants. It also extends the expiring exploration of the fuel excise tax for CTL from 2009 to 2020. The current provisions will expire long before the first CTL plant is even operational. This extension will provide a meaningful timeframe for CTL plants to benefit from the same tax incentives we offer renewable and hydrogen fuels.

This bill also provides an incentive for CTL plants to capture carbon emissions. We can use CO2 to produce oil in depleted wells or extract coalbed methane.

Third, this bill provides the Department of Defense the funding to purchase, test, and integrate CTL fuels into the military. In the last few months, the Air Force has successfully tested CTL fuels in B-52 bombers. These tests are proving to the DOD and to industry that CTL fuels are as safe and reliable as the fuels produced today.

This legislation also instructs the DOD to conduct a study on CTL fuel storage and its inclusion in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. It authorizes the construction of storage facilities for CTL fuel and allows the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to hold up to 20 percent of its stock in the form of CTL-finished fuels.

By combining the abilities of the Department of Energy and the Department of Defense with incentives in the Tax Code, I am confident this legislation will help Kentucky, and America, become the world leaders in coal-to-liquid fuel promotion. This coal-to-liquid fuel legislation made headlines during the summer of 2006 when gas prices were at a near record high. Yet when prices fell, the pressure to pass this legislation also decreased. We have been very lucky that a mild winter has held down demand. We will not always be this lucky.

No matter what energy prices are, America needs a domestic source of fuel. The last time we were $250 billion to foreign countries, mostly in the Middle East, just to buy oil. Imagine what we could have done here at home with trillions of dollars we have spent on oil in the last few decades.

There is no room for politics in energy security. In the 110th Congress, Senator Obama and I will work hard with all of our colleagues to pass this important legislation. I especially look forward to working with my new chairman in the Energy Committee, Senator Bingaman, and my ranking member, Senator Domenici, on this important bill.

I now send to the desk the Coal-to-Liquid Fuel Promotion Act of 2007 and the related Coal-to-Liquid Fuel Energy Act of 2007. I ask unanimous consent these two bills be printed with my remarks in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER, without objection, the bills will be received and appropriately referred.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, first I commend my colleague from Kentucky for his legislation. This is an area in which I have had a continuing interest as well. I salute him because one of the great challenges facing our Nation is to dramatically reduce our dependence on foreign energy. That is in our energy interest, it is in our economic interest, it is in our vital security interest. I commend my colleague from Kentucky for coming to the floor and offering his proposal on what we could do to make progress. I thank the Senator.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

By Mr. REID (for Mr. Wyden (for himself), Mr. McCain, and Mr. Sununu). A bill to make the moratorium on Internet access taxes and multiple and discriminatory taxes on electronic commerce permanent; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, today I am reintroducing in this new Congress a bill to advance a cause for which I have been fighting for over 10 years now. The Permanent Internet Tax Freedom Act would extend the current Internet tax moratorium, so that the Internet can remain free from burdensome and discriminatory taxes.

Legislation to keep the Internet free from these taxes has passed the Senate 3 times since 1998 with sunset dates that required consecutive extensions. A permanent moratorium on Internet taxation passed through both the Commerce and Finance Committees in the 109th Congress yet failed to get action on the Senate floor.

I come to the Floor again, bringing up Internet Taxation, because the moratorium on Internet Taxation is set to expire on November 1st of this year. In only 11 months, if Congress does not act, the moratorium on Internet taxation that has allowed the Internet and e-commerce to flourish will cease to protect American consumers and American businesses.

I don’t want those who use the Internet to end up like our ancestors: they were told the Spanish-American War telephone tax was “temporary,” and that the tax was just needed to pay for the war. That war ended two centuries ago, and Congress is just now getting around to getting rid of the tax.

The Taxed, the Internet shows no sign of riding off into the sunset, or becoming obsolete. You can bet that since discriminatory taxes are slapped on Internet users, those discriminatory taxes won’t be going away any time soon either.

If you want to figure out how much discriminatory taxes could be, just look at your phone bill. Taxes and government fees now roil commerce with as much as 20 percent in surcharges to consumer’s telephone bills.

If you take a gallon of milk to the checkout counter and pay tax on the purchase, the clerk can’t turn around and charge you another tax if you’re going to use the milk in your cereal and another tax if you’re going to put milk in your coffee. But that’s what will happen to the Internet if the ban is not made permanent. You’d still pay all the telephone taxes and all the franchise fees on cable, but on top of those you’d pay even more taxes for the same service when you sign on to the Internet.

Discriminatory and double taxation of the Internet has been banned for 8 years now. In all that time no one has ever come forward with evidence to show that the failure to impose discriminatory taxes has hurt them. No one has demonstrated why taxes that cannot be imposed in the offline world should be imposed on identical online transactions.

Western Civilization may not end if the Permanent Internet Tax Freedom Act is not passed, but you have to ask how many times Congress has to revisit, re-legitate and re-approve a law that has been this effective. It is time to make the Internet Tax moratorium permanent.

I want to thank my colleagues, Mr. McCain from Arizona and Mr. Sununu from New Hampshire for introducing this legislation with me today. They both fought tirelessly alongside me and our former colleague, Mr. Allen from Virginia, to get the moratorium extended in 2003. I am pleased to see that they are now replacing Mr. Allen as my bipartisan partner.

This legislation is set to expire November 1, 2007. Our legislation, the Permanent Internet Tax Freedom Act of 2007, would make the moratorium permanent.

Today, the U.S. stands 12th in the world in per capita Internet access, lagging behind competitors South Korea, the United Kingdom and Canada. This is absolutely unacceptable for a country that leads the world in technological innovation, economic development, and international competitiveness. We certainly cannot afford to make Internet access more difficult to obtain if we want to become more internationally competitive.

There is little doubt that the development and growth of the Internet was aided by the tax moratorium. In 1998, the year the moratorium was first enacted, 36 percent of U.S. adults reported using the Internet. In 2006, that number grew to 12 percent of online high according to an April 2006 Pew Internet & American Life Project Report. However, the report also found that Americans in the lowest income households are considerably less likely to be online. Just 55 percent of adults living in households with less than $30,000 annual income go online, versus 73 percent of those whose income is between $30,000–$50,000. This “digital divide” needs to be closed immediately.

Continuing Congress to work to reduce the cost of Internet access, by preventing the service from being taxed, is one step we can take now to close the “digital divide.”

As use of the Internet has grown, so has e-commerce. According to the most recent comScore Networks report, Americans spent over $100 billion on Internet purchases during 2006, a major milestone for retailers and the World Wide Web. This legislation would ensure that online transactions are not taxed higher than other sales transactions. Again, the goal of this legislation is to make the Internet affordable to all

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.
This Act may be cited as the “Permanent Internet Tax Freedom Act of 2007.”

SEC. 2. PERMANENT MORATORIUM ON INTERNET ACCESS TAXES AND MULTIPLE AND DISCRIMINATORY TAXES ON ELECTRONIC COMMERCE.

Section 101(a) of the Internet Tax Freedom Act (47 U.S.C. 151 note) is amended by striking “taxes” in subsections (b), (c), and (d), and inserting “taxes.”
Americans and foster the growth of the Internet.

With respect to the question of whether it is wise to make Internet access tax free, Congress has a long history of giving tax incentives to commerce that we believe could help our society. The Internet is a technology that is a source of and vehicle for significant economic benefits. The proponents of this legislation strongly believe the Internet clearly merits the tax incentives provided by this bill. I recognize that there are some who wish to continue to make the Internet tax moratorium temporary. Their premise is that the Internet will continue to evolve and thus Internet access may develop into a service the States and localities would wish to tax. I believe that this moratorium should be permanent to continue encouraging those very Internet-related innovations. By making the moratorium permanent, I believe Americans will invest in and provide Internet access will be able to operate in a predictable tax environment. This will result in continued investment in this very important social, political and economic medium.

Congress now has the opportunity to extend permanently the Internet tax moratorium and assure consumers that taxes will not inhibit the offering of affordable Internet access. By supporting this legislation, we can continue to promote Internet usage by Americans as well as encourage innovation relating to this technology. For these reasons, I ask my colleagues to support this pro-consumer, pro-innovation, and pro-technology bill.

By Ms. COLLINS (for herself and Ms. LANDRIEU):

S. 158. A bill to expand access to affordable health care and to strengthen the health care safety net and make health care services more available in rural and underserved areas; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with my colleague from Louisiana, Senator LANDRIEU, in introducing the Access to Affordable Health Care Act, a comprehensive plan that builds on the strengths of our current public programs and private health care system to make affordable health care available to millions more Americans.

One of my priorities in the Senate has been access to affordable health care. There are still far too many Americans without health insurance or with woefully inadequate coverage. As many as 46 million Americans are uninsured, and millions more are underinsured.

Maine is in the midst of a growing health insurance crisis, with insurance premiums rising at alarming rates. Whether I am talking to a self-employed fisherman, a displaced worker, the owner of a struggling small business, or the human resource manager of a large company, the soaring costs of health insurance is a common concern.

These cost increases have been particularly burdensome for small businesses, the backbone of the Maine economy. Maine small business owners want to provide coverage for their employees, but they are caught in a cost squeeze. They know that if they pass on premium increases to their employees, more of them will decline coverage. Yet these small businesses simply cannot afford to absorb double-digit increases in their health insurance premiums year after year.

The problem is even more acute for individuals and families who must purchase health insurance on their own. Monthly health insurance premiums in Maine often exceed a family’s mortgage payment. Clearly, we must do more to make health insurance more available and affordable.

The Access to Affordable Health Care Act, which we are introducing today, is a seven-point plan that combines a variety of public and private approaches. First, it builds on three existing initiatives: one, to expand access to affordable health care for small businesses; two, to make health insurance more affordable for individuals and families purchasing coverage on their own; three, to strengthen the health care safety net for those without coverage; four, to expand access to care in rural and underserved areas; five, to increase access to affordable long-term care; six, to promote healthier lifestyles; and seven, to provide increased emergency care.

The Access to Affordable Health Care Act will also expand access to affordable health care for small employers, businesses that invest in and operate in a predictable tax environment. This will result in continued investment in this very important social, political and economic medium.

The legislation would also create a new program to encourage innovation by awarding demonstration grants in up to 10 States conducting innovative coverage expansions, such as alternative group purchasing or pooling arrangements, individual or small group market reforms, or subsidies to employers or individuals purchasing coverage. The Access to Affordable Health Care Act also gives States a number of new tools to strengthen the health care safety net, including Maine.

Our legislation also builds on the success of the SCHIP program and gives States a number of new tools to increase participation. The bill authorizes new grants for States and non-profit organizations to conduct innovative outreach and enrollment efforts to ensure that all eligible children are covered. States would also have the option of covering the parents of the children who are enrolled in programs like MaineCare. In many cases, the costs of providing care through these centers are a critical part of our health care safety net.

Public housing and homeless health care centers, however, simply do not have adequate coverage, so some sites may not need a particular type of provider on a full-time basis. Our bill therefore gives the provinces designed to promote healthy lifestyles. An ever-expanding body of evidence shows that investments in health promotion and prevention offer returns not only in reduced health care costs, but in longer life and increased productivity. The legislation will provide grants to States to assist small businesses wishing to establish “worksite wellness” programs for their employees. It would also authorize grants to establish or expand existing “community partnerships,” such as the Healthy Community Coalition in Maine’s Franklin County, to promote healthy lifestyles among hospitals, employers, schools and community organizations. And, it would provide funds for States to establish or expand comprehensive school health education, including, for example, physical education programs that promote lifelong physical activity, healthy food service selections, and programs that promote healthy and safe school environment.

And finally, to help make health coverage more affordable for low and middle-income individuals and families who do not have employer-provided coverage and who are not eligible for the expanded programs, our legislation would provide an advanceable, refundable tax credit of up to $1,000 for individuals earning up to $30,000 and up to $3,000 for families earning up to $60,000. This tax credit coverage and up to six million Americans who would otherwise be uninsured for one or more months and will help many more working lower-income families who currently purchase private health insurance with little or no government help.

To strengthen our nation’s health care safety net, the Access to Affordable Health Care Act calls for a doubling of funding over five years for the Consolidated Health Centers program, which includes community, migrant, public housing and homeless health centers. These centers, which operate in underserved urban and rural communities, provide critical primary care services to millions of Americans, regardless of their ability to pay. About 20 percent of the patients treated in Maine’s community health centers have heart disease, cancer, diabetes and other chronic conditions.

The problem of access to affordable health care services is not limited to the uninsured. It is also shared by many Americans living in rural and underserved areas where there is a shortage of health care providers. The Access to Affordable Health Care Act therefore calls for increased funding for the National Health Service Corps program, which supports doctors, dentists, and other clinicians who serve in rural and inner city areas.

The legislation will also give the program additional flexibility by allowing National Health Service Corps participants to fulfill their commitment on a part-time basis. Current law requires all National Health Service Corps participants to serve full-time. Many rural communities, however, simply do not have enough volume to support a full-time health care practitioner. Moreover, some sites may not need a particular type of provider on a full-time basis. Our bill therefore gives the program additional flexibility to meet community needs.

As the Senate co-chair of the bipartisan Congressional Task Force on Alzheimer’s Disease, I am particularly sensitive to the long-term care needs of patients with chronic diseases like Alzheimer’s and their families.

Long-term care is the major catastrophic health care expense faced by many millions of Americans. The costs of long-term care can be tremendous or even catastrophic. The Access to Affordable Health Care Act outlines a blueprint for reform based on principles upon which I believe a bipartisan majority in Congress could agree. The plan takes significant strides toward the goal of universal health care coverage for millions more Americans into the insurance system and by strengthening the health care safety net.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I am pleased to join with my colleague from Maine, Senator Snowe, in introducing the Access to Affordable Health Care Act. The latest available Census figures show that 46.6 million people in our country—including almost 19 percent of the people in my home State of Louisiana—are without health insurance.

This statistic has been referred to so often in the media and in this body that it is almost possible to hear it without realizing the full impact of such uncertainty on one’s day-to-day life. 46.6 million people without health insurance means 36.3 million families struggling with the knowledge that they may be just one hospitalization away from bankruptcy. It means 9.3 million children who are not able to access the care they need to prevent increasingly common and often debilitating chronic illnesses such as diabetes and asthma, adversely affecting them for the rest of their lives. It means 27.3 million Americans with jobs, who work everyday knowing that they still may not be able to provide for their families in their time of need.

Across the country, small business owners and families are struggling with the high cost of health care. This is particularly true in Louisiana and across the Gulf coast, where recovery from the 2005 hurricanes has already placed heavy burdens on thousands of families trying to rebuild and businesses working to reopen. Since 2000, the number of employees nationwide receiving health insurance through their employers has actually decreased, reversing the progress we saw in the 1990s. Small businesses create two out of every three new jobs in America and employ nearly half of America’s overall employment. Yet only 26 percent of businesses with fewer than 50 employees can offer health insurance.
LANDRIEU and VITTER to introduce a bipartisan proposal, the Small Business Hurricane Relief and Reconstruction Act of 2006 S. 1807. This proposal was opposed by the administration. In June, I introduced the Small Business Disaster Assistance and Improvements Act of 2006, S. 3487 which once again attempted to comprehensively address the shortcomings of the SBA’s Disaster Assistance program. Again, the administration opposed this effort. And after a final bipartisan amendment, the Senate passed S. 3778, the Small Business Reauthorization and Improvements Act of 2006, which again put forward a bipartisan, comprehensive fix for this program. Finally, in December, just prior to the adjournment of the 109th Congress, yet another attempt was made at reaching a bipartisan consensus with the introduction of S. 4097, the Small Business Disaster Response and Loan Improvements Act of 2006. The administration maintained its opposition to the fixes proposed in this bill.

Now, on the first day of this new Congress, I am introducing the Small Business Disaster Response and Loan Improvements Act of 2007. Once again, this proposal is supported by the chair and the ranking minority member of the Senate Small Business Committee, as well as by the Democratic and Republican Senators of Louisiana, whose constituents continue to wait for the Government to respond appropriately. I am introducing this bill on the first day of the 110th Congress because as the incoming chair of the Senate Small Business Committee, improving the Disaster Assistance program at the SBA is among my top priorities.

This bill includes directives for the SBA to create a private disaster loan program, to allow for lenders to issue disaster loans. To ensure that these loans are borrower-friendly, we provide a three-year grace period for disaster loans so that the agency can subsidize the interest rates. In addition, the administrator is authorized to enter into agreements with private contractors in order to expedite loan application processing for direct disaster loans. The bill also includes language directing SBA to create an expedited disaster assistance loan program to provide businesses with short-term loans so that they may keep their doors open until they receive long-term forms of assistance. The days immediately following a disaster are crucial for business owners—statistics show that once they close their doors, they likely will not open them again. These short-term loans should help prevent those doors from closing.

A presidential declaration of Catastrophic National Disaster will allow the administrator to offer economic injury disaster loans to adversely affected business owners beyond the geographic reach of the disaster area. In the event of a large-scale disaster, businesses located far from the physical reach of the disaster can be affected by the magnitude of a localized destruction. We saw this when the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001 affected businesses from coast to coast, and we saw it again with the 2005 Gulf Coast hurricanes. Should another catastrophic disaster strike, the President should have the authority to provide businesses across the country with access to the same low-interest economic injury loans available to businesses within the declared disaster area.

Non-profit entities working to provide services to victims should be rewarded and given access to the capital they require to continue their services. To this end, the administrator is authorized to make disaster loans to non-profit entities, including religious organizations.

Construction and rebuilding contracts being awarded are likely to be larger than the current $2 million per contract limit of the Small Business Administration’s Surety Bond Program, which helps small construction firms gain access to contracts. This bill increases the guarantee against loss for small business contracts up to $5 million and allows the administrator to increase that level to $10 million, if deemed necessary.

The bill also provides for Small Business Development Centers to offer business counseling in disaster areas, and to travel beyond traditional geographic boundaries to provide services during declared disasters. To encourage Small Business Development Centers located in disaster areas to keep their doors open, the maximum grant amount of $100,000 is waived.

So that Congress may remain better aware of the status of the administration’s disaster loan program, this bill directs the administration to report to the Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship of the Senate and to the Committee on Small Business of the House of Representatives regularly on the fiscal status of the disaster loan program as well as the need for supplemental funding. The bill is also directed to report on the number of Federal contracts awarded to small businesses, minority-owned small businesses, women-owned businesses, and local businesses during a disaster declaration.

Finally, gas prices continue to fluctuate, and fuel-dependent small businesses are struggling with the cost of energy. This bill provides relief to small businesses by raising the ceiling of above average energy price increases, authorizing energy disaster loans through the Small Business Administration and the United States Department of Agriculture to companies that are dependent on energy.

In the 16 months since Katrina struck, I have visited New Orleans three times. I have met with the life-blood of that city—its small business owners—the shopowners on Bourbon Street and on Magazine Street who make that city unique. The people of New Orleans are resilient, and they remain hopeful; they are keeping their businesses open despite tourism that has been slow to return and despite a government response that was painfully slow to arrive. Sixteen months is too long a time to wait to reform and improve a program that could have breathed relief into this city’s economy during a time of desperation. As this new Congress begins, I call on my colleagues to support this legislation, a bipartisan labor of more than a year’s worth of negotiations. The tools offered within this bill will go a long way toward heading off another Katrina-like response to any future catastrophic disaster.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

By Mr. KENNEDY:
S. 164. A bill to modernize the education system of the United States; to establish the Commission on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. KENNEDY. President, few things are more indispensable to the United States than good schools. Today more than ever, a quality education and performance standard, meeting the American dream and the best guarantee of equal opportunity for all our people, good citizenship, and an economy capable of mastering modern global challenges.

In 1983, as part of the War on Poverty, President Johnson signed into law the landmark Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the goal of which was to strengthen America by allocating substantial Federal resources to public schools for the first time.

In the bipartisan No Child Left Behind Act of 2002, we reauthorized this landmark legislation, and for the first time made a commitment that every child—black or white, Latino or Asian, native-born or an English language learner, disabled or non-disabled—would be part of an accountability plan that holds schools responsible for the progress of all students. It required every State to implement content and performance standards specifying what children should know and be able to do, and urged States to create high-quality assessments so that students’ progress toward meeting those standards could be accurately measured. It provided funding to support early reading and literacy skills and offered extra tutoring to students in struggling schools. It sought to improve the quality of instruction by requiring all schools to provide a highly-qualified teacher for every child.

We know these reforms can work. But good results are not possible without adequate investments. The No Child Left Behind Act recognized that to move forward with these dramatic changes in our public schools the continued infusion of Federal resources, because the cost was obviously too great for States and local governments to bear alone.

Today, because of budget cuts and poor implementation, we still have much to do to ensure that no child is left behind. President Bush has shortchanged the promise made in the law by nearly $56 billion, leaving millions of children without the resources needed to reduce class sizes, improve teaching, and ensure that our schools are capable of mastering today’s global economy.

There are watchlists in their States and need Federal support and extra assistance to bridge the learning gaps of their students.

The No Child Left Behind Act is again scheduled for reauthorization this year, and we must ensure that its promise is fulfilled. Aside from additional funding, one of our priorities must be to ensure that the standards and assessments used to measure progress are fair and reliable. Accountability is only as good as the tests to measure progress, and many States use tests that need substantial improvement.

We need to shift our understanding of the Act away from the idea that it labels and penalizes schools, and toward a more productive framework that helps schools and States reach higher, not lower. We should use the well-regarded National Assessment of Educational Progress the “Nation’s report card” to provide a benchmark for all States.

Mr. Chairman, the fact is that many States and local governments have manufactured artificially high test score gains by lowering standards and adjusting test scores in order to avoid unfavorable consequences under the law’s accountability framework.

We need to move our thinking away from the concept that the No Child Left Behind Act is a failing system and toward a more productive framework that helps schools and States reach higher, not lower. We should use the well-regarded National Assessment of Educational Progress the “Nation’s report card” to provide a benchmark for all States.

The legislation under consideration this year, the “No Child Left Behind” Act, would require States to align their elementary and secondary school standards with their standards for college entrance and success, creating seamless systems that guide students from the beginning of their education through the achievement of a college degree.

The SUCCESS Act I am introducing today would assist States in these efforts. As the name suggests, it would provide Federal support for States to improve the quality of instruction and to assist States that wish to improve the assistance provided under such section 321(a), if any.

The SUCCESS Act would add critical resources to States to create “P-16” Preparedness Councils that will engage members of the early childhood, K-12 and higher education communities, along with the business and military communities, and other stakeholders to identify the education gaps in student performance on state-level assessments and NAEP assessments, and to assist States that wish to analyze how their standards and assessments compare to the benchmark.

standards and assessments meet international benchmarks to improve instruction and student achievement and prepare students to contribute in the global economy. It also provides funds to encourage collaboration among States in raising the bar for student achievement. The legislation provides for States working together to establish common standards and assessments that are rigorous, internationally competitive, and aligned with postsecondary demands.

I look forward to working with my colleagues on this and other important proposals as we move toward the reauthorization of the No Child Left Behind Act. In the coming weeks, our Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions will hold a series of hearings and roundtable discussions to hear from experts and those dealing with the challenges of the current law on a daily basis. Our goal is to work on a bipartisan basis with all our colleagues in the Senate and in the House and with the Administration to develop a strong bipartisan bill that builds on the positive aspects of the law, addresses the concerns about its implementation, and encourages reforms that we know will work to help students succeed.

Teachers deserve the resources they need to help students achieve at higher levels. In many schools, the most valuable resource that teachers require is time. Teachers need time to look at the challenges their students face and develop effective strategies. They need time to collaborate with colleagues and to observe and learn from one another. They need time to develop their own expertise and skills in teaching.

We must also ensure that students in high poverty schools have access to good education. We should create incentives to attract the best teachers to the neediest schools, including increased salaries for teachers and principals with strong track records of success who work in hard-to-staff schools. And by creating ‘career advancement systems’ in which highly effective teachers serve as instructional leaders for new or less successful teachers, we can help improve the quality of education for all children.

We should also help parents by replicating Boston’s successful initiative to place parent-family outreach coordinators in every high-poverty school, and offer grants to school districts to support community programs that address children’s social, emotional and other non-academic needs.

We must invest in these and other reforms to give schools the resources they need to close the achievement gap and ensure that all students can stay on track to graduate and succeed.

Experience shows that each year yields greater success when policy-makers and educators commit in the long term to higher standards, better teacher training, stronger accountability, and extra help for students in need. The initial implementation of the No Child Left Behind Act has been flawed, but we can’t abandon its vision of all child achieving success who work in hard-to-staff schools, and secondary student skills and curricula, especially with respect to reading, mathematics, science, and technology education. The 21st century workforce, and the Armed Forces, in order to ensure that greater number of students, especially low-income minority students, complete secondary school with the coursework and skills necessary to enter—

(A) credit-bearing coursework in higher education without remediation;
(B) high-paying employment in the 21st century workforce; or
(C) the Armed Forces.

To establish a system that encourages local educational agencies to adopt a curriculum that meets State academic content standards and student academic achievement standards and prepares all students for success in elementary school, secondary school, and post-secondary endeavors in the 21st century.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Throughout our Nation’s history, the skills and education of our workforce have been a major determinant of the standard of living of the people of the United States.

(2) Accordingly, the most recent National Assessment of Educational Progress, only 36 percent of the students in grades 4 and 30 percent of the students in grade 8 reach the proficient level in mathematics. In reading, only 31 percent of the students in grades 4 and 8 reach the proficient level. In science, only 29 percent of the students in grades 4 and 8 reach the proficient level.

(3) A State-by-State comparison of the 2005 National Assessment of Educational Progress shows that while students in 31 States—more than 1/2 of the States in the Nation—scored more than 10 points (about 1 grade level) below the highest scoring State, Massachusetts.

(4) Student achievement in mathematics and science in elementary school and secondary school in the United States lags behind other nations, according to the Trends in International Mathematics and Science study and other studies, including the Program for International Student Achievement (PISA) conducted by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, the United States ranked 11th among industrialized nations in the number of days children attend school. Innovative approaches are needed to extend the school day and year in high-need schools. We should recruit Americorps volunteers to coordinate academically oriented extended-day programs for students and assist teachers during the school day.

(5) According to a report released in August, 2006, the Nation loses more than $5,700,000,000 a year in the costs of remedial education and in individuals’ reduced earning potential because students are not learning the basic skills they need to succeed after high school.

SEC. 3. PURPOSES.

The purposes of this Act are the following:

(1) To ensure students receive an education competitive with other industrialized countries.

(2) To assist States in improving the rigor of standards and assessments.

(3) To provide for the establishment of pre-kindergarten through grade 16 student preparedness councils to better link early childhood education and school readiness with elementary school success. State and secondary student skills in success in secondary school, and secondary student skills and curricula, especially with respect to reading, mathematics, science, and technology education, the 21st century workforce, and the Armed Forces, in order to ensure that greater number of students, especially low-income minority students, complete secondary school with the coursework and skills necessary to enter—

(A) credit-bearing coursework in higher education without remediation;
(B) high-paying employment in the 21st century workforce; or
(C) the Armed Forces.

(4) To establish a system that encourages local educational agencies to adopt a curriculum that meets State academic content standards and student academic achievement standards and prepares all students for success in elementary school, secondary school, and post-secondary endeavors in the 21st century.

in introducing the Cell Phone Tax Moratorium Act of 2007. This bill would put a stop to new discriminatory taxes on cell phone services for a period of 3 years.

The average general sales tax in the U.S. is six percent, but the average State and local taxes and fees on cell phone service comes in at about 17 percent. Consumers are left paying a hefty portion of their monthly cell phone bill to the Government for what many believe is their most important communications device.

The National Conference of State Legislatures and the National Governors’ Association have issued policy positions calling for states to eliminate excessive and discriminatory taxes on communications services. State and local governments have been working with the telecommunications industry to find a solution to these excessive taxes, but no agreement has been reached. During the three year moratorium on these taxes, I hope that federal, state, and local governments—in cooperation with industry—will work to eliminate discriminatory taxes and fees on wireless services.

Excessive taxes dampen innovation, and are regressive, hitting the most vulnerable customers the hardest. Although more than 72 percent of all Americans own a cell phone, 26 percent said they could not live without it because it is their only communications source. Cell phone owners—a large bloc of whom are low income and elderly—are finding it difficult to afford a wired and a wireless phone. Additionally, according to the same report, 74 percent of the Americans say they have used their cell phone in an emergency and gained valuable assistance.

Some State and local governments cannot move beyond the idea that wireless services are some kind of luxury item that can be taxed at a higher rate. These services have been a luxury item many years ago, but due to deregulation wireless services are more affordable than ever and even necessary for personal or business reasons. This is why it is perplexing that some States burden cell phone subscribers with taxes and fees that could be as high as 24 percent of a consumer’s total bill.

Tax rates as high as this are generally associated with cigarettes, alcohol, and known as sin taxes’ as signed to reduce consumption. I cannot imagine it is the intention of states and localities to reduce consumption of wireless services.

Mindful of the revenue requirements of States and localities, this bill does not eliminate existing discriminatory taxes. Nor does the bill prohibit states and localities from imposing new taxes on wireless services that are not discriminatory. The bill simply puts a stop to the creation of new discriminatory taxes on cell phone services.

Last year I introduced similar legislative language during a mark-up in the Senate Commerce Committee. The amendment passed with a vote 21-1. I am hopeful that this bill will once again be supported by the Commerce Committee and that it will be approved by the full Senate. I ask my colleagues to join me in ending the discriminatory sales taxes and very popular communications service.

By Mrs. BOXER:

S. 167. A bill to amend the Clean Air Act to require the Secretary of Energy to provide grants to eligible entities to carry out research, development, and demonstration projects of cellulosic ethanol and construct infrastructure that enables retail gas stations to dispense cellulosic ethanol for vehicle fuel to reduce the consumption of petroleum-based fuel; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Cellulosic Ethanol Development and Implementation Act of 2007.

As a Nation, we should be striving for greater energy independence and for more environmentally friendly sources of fuel for our automobiles. Cellulosic ethanol is made from cellulosic biomass, a sugar derived from the cellulose in biomass. It is chemically identical to ethanol made from food crops like corn and sugar cane. Cellulosic ethanol is more difficult to make, because cellulose is a tough structural material that gives plants strength.

However, making ethanol from cellulose lets us tap into a much larger source of sugars, and, therefore, potentially make much larger amounts of fuel ethanol, tens of billions of gallons or more. An additional benefit is that cellulosic ethanol made from biomass is likely to produce smaller amounts of greenhouse gases than corn ethanol, and far less greenhouse gases than gasoline it will replace. With continued technology improvements, it should be not only cheaper than gasoline, but also cheaper than any of these groups, would be able to compete for funds.

My bill would also create a new pilot program for the installation of ethanol fuel pumps at gas stations or any other needed infrastructure required to dispense ethanol fuel, such as a storage tank, for example. Funded at $1 billion over 6 years, the same entities that would participate in the research section of the bill would also be able to compete for funds under this program. Successful applicants would have to provide 20 percent of the grant in matching funds.

Finally, my bill also extends the authorization for the original cellulosic grant program that is currently authorized in EPAct 05. The authorization expires at the end of this year, and the bill I introduce today would extend it at $400 million per year thru 2010. This extension will ensure the program continues.

As Chair of the Environment and Public Works Committee, I believe that our Nation’s energy policy must focus on conservation, improvements in energy efficiency, and the development of clean, renewable energy technology. I continue to support measures to accomplish these goals, including the promotion of cellulosic ethanol. I believe this bill is an important next step in achieving these objectives. I ask content that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Cellulosic Ethanol Development and Implementation Act of 2007”.

SEC. 2. CELLULOSIC ETHANOL FUEL DEVELOPMENT AND IMPLEMENTATION PROGRAM.

Section 212 of the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7602) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(c) CELLULOSIC ETHANOL FUEL GRANT PROGRAM—

S. 168. A bill to direct the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to establish a national cemetery for veterans in the Pikes Peak Region of Colorado; to the Committee on Veterans’ Affairs.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I am reintroducing legislation to establish a National Veteran’s Cemetery in the Pikes Peak Region of Colorado in order to meet the needs of veterans in southern Colorado. This legislation is similar to what I have introduced and supported in the past, and seeks to fill a void for many veterans and their families. Colorado’s fifth Congressional District contains the third highest concentration of military retirees in the nation. Recent estimates show that there are as many as 175,000 veterans in the area, when including all of southern Colorado. This legislation will allow thousands of eligible southern Colorado military personnel, both active duty and retired as well as the many veterans living in the area, to have a chance to find their final resting place so many of them have come to love and appreciate.

This legislation has been influenced by the growing military retiree and veterans populations in the Pikes Peak region as well as community leaders and local Veterans Service Organizations who have repeatedly brought this issue to my attention over the last several years. It is important to note the passion and perseverance of those that have supported a National Veteran’s Cemetery and have worked tirelessly on the issue. This legislation is truly citizen-generated and is a testament to the dedication of veterans in the community.

S. 169. A bill to amend the National Trails System Act to clarify Federal authority relating to land acquisition from willing sellers for the majority of the trails in the System, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, the National Trails System Willing Seller Act will pave the way for the completion of our Nation’s most outstanding national trails. This legislation will amend the National Trails System Act of 1968 to make clear that the Federal Government may purchase land to complete several national trails from willing sellers. The legislation specifically names nine trails that are spread across the nation. The Continental Divide trail, stretching from Mexico through Colorado to the Canadian border, is among the trails that await completion.

I was successful in gaining Senate passage of this legislation in the 108th Congress and am hopeful that both the House and Senate will act on the bill this year.

By Mr. INHOFE (for himself and Mr. COBURN):

S. 171. A bill to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 301 Commerce Street in Commerce, Oklahoma, as the “Mickey Mantle Post Office Building”; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I rise today along with my colleague, Tom Coburn, to proudly introduce legislation to designate the facility of the United States Postal Service located at 301 Commerce Street in Commerce, OK and name it “Mickey Mantle Post Office Building.”

Mickey Mantle emulates the Oklahoma spirit of hard work, charity, and sportsmanship. He is a shining example of how commitment and dedication can lead to great success. I seek to name the post office in Commerce, Oklahoma, in Mickey Mantle’s honor. He is still known to Commerce by the nicknames “ Commerce Comet” or “Commerce Kid.”

At age 4, Mickey Mantle moved with his family to Commerce where he grew up, having been born in Spavinaw, OK. By his father who was an amateur player and fervent fan, Mickey Mantle was named in honor of Mickey Cochrane, the Hall of Fame catcher for the Detroit Tigers.

Signing with the New York Yankees in 1949, Mantle made his Major League Debut in 1951. He played his entire Major League career with the Yankees. He was a twenty-time All Star and named American League MVP three times. Mantle was a part of 12 pennant winners and 7 World Championship clubs. Some of Mantle’s records still hold today. He holds the record for most World Series home runs 18, runs batted in 46, runs 42, walks 43, extra-base hits 26, and total bases 123.

Mantle announced his retirement on March 1, 1969. In actually retired on Mickey Mantle Day, June 8, 1969. In addition to the retirement of his uniform number 7, Mantle created a plaque that would hang on the center field wall at Yankee Stadium, near the monuments to Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Miller Huggins. In 1974, as soon as he was eligible, he was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame, demonstrating his importance to baseball and community.

Sadly, Mickey Mantle’s father died of cancer at the age of 39, just as his son was starting his career. Mantle said one of the great heartaches of his life was that he never told his father he loved him.

After a bout with liver cancer himself, Mickey Mantle was given a few precious extra weeks of life due to a liver transplant. The baseball great was overwhelmed by the selfless gift of a liver from a stranger; therefore, Mickey became determined to give something back at the end of his life. Thus, in 1995, the year he died, the Mickey Mantle Foundation was established to promote American League MVP three times, and Mickey Mantle will be remembered for something more than his heroic baseball career.
I encourage my colleagues to join me in support of this legislation as we commemorate an outstanding athlete so that future generations will be inspired by his example of sportsmanship and charity as we have been.

By Mr. INHOFE (for himself and Mr. DEMINT):

S. 173. A bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to establish Medicare Health Savings Accounts, to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I introduce a bill to establish Medicare Health Savings Account, HSAs. This bill will make HSAs available under Medicare in lieu of Medicare Medical Savings Account, MSAs. I have long been dedicated to quality health care and believe that seniors should have the ability to make their own decisions regarding their health care, so they can receive the health care they need and deserve as a senior myself. I appreciate how imperative it is that we seniors be provided with a wide array of choices.

My desire to see my fellow Oklahomans and all Americans receive the best possible care is evidenced by my involvement in various health-related issues. I have always been a champion of rural health care providers. In 1997, I was one of the few Republicans to vote against the Balanced Budget Act because of its lack of support for rural hospitals. At that time, I made a commitment to not allow our rural hospitals to be closed and am pleased we finally addressed that important issue in the Medicare Modernization Act of 2003 by providing great benefits for rural health care providers as well as a voluntary prescription drug benefit to seniors. In 2003, I also co-sponsored the Health Care Access and Rural Equity Act, to protect and preserve access of Medicare beneficiaries to health care in rural regions.

In order to assist my State and other States suffering from large reduction in their Federal Medical Assistance Percentage, FMAP for Medicaid, I introduced a bill in the 109th Congress to apply a State's FMAP from fiscal year 2005 to fiscal years 2006 through 2014. The purpose of this legislation is to prevent drastic reductions in FMAP while revision of the formula itself is considered.

I am a strong advocate of medical liability reform and have consistently been an original cosponsor of the Medical Care Access Protection Act and the Healthy Mothers and Healthy Babies Access to Care Act. These bills protect patients' access to quality and affordable health care by reducing the effects of excessive liability costs. I am committed to this vital reform that would alleviate the burden placed on physicians and patients by excessive medical malpractice lawsuits.

I have been privileged to work with officials from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, CMS to expand access to life-saving Implantable Cardiac Defibrillators and many other numerous regulations that would affect my rural State such as the 250 yard-rule for Critical Access Hospitals.

As a supporter of safety and medical research, I have co-sponsored legislation to increase the supply of pancreatic islet cells for research and a bill to take the abortion pill RU-486 off the market in the United States.

In response to the shortages of flu vaccines experienced in years past, I introduced the Flu Vaccine Incentive Act to help prevent any future shortages in flu vaccines in both the 108th and 109th Congresses. My bill removed suffocating price controls from government purchasing of the flu vaccine while encouraging more companies to enter the market. Also, my bill freed American companies to enter the flu vaccine industry by giving them an investment tax credit towards the construction of flu vaccine production facilities.

As a result of my sister's death from cancer and a treatment we learned about not accessible in the United States that might have saved her life, Senator Sam BROWNBACK and I introduced the Access, Compassion, Care and Ethics for Palliative Patients Act, ACCESS, in the 109th Congress. This bill offered a three-tiered approval system for treatments showing efficacy during clinical trials, for use by the seriously ill patient population. Seriously ill patients would be exhausted all alternatives and are seeking new treatment options, would be offered access to these treatments with the consent of their physician. I was pleased to learn that the Food and Drug Administration has announced a proposal to offer expanded access to drugs to terminally ill patients.

My resolution to designate April 8, 2006, as "National Cushing's Syndrome Awareness Day" was passed by unanimous consent in the 109th Congress. The intent of this resolution is to raise awareness of Cushing's Syndrome, a debilitating disorder that affects an estimated 10 to 15 people per million. It is an endocrine or hormonal disorder caused by prolonged exposure of the body's tissue to high levels of the hormone cortisol.

It was brought to my attention thanks to a staffer with Celiac Disease and an Oklahoma Celiac Support Group in my State, that there is a great need to raise awareness of celiac disease; therefore, I worked to get my resolution passed by unanimous consent to designate September 13, 2006 as National Celiac Disease Awareness Day. Celiac disease is an autoimmune disorder and a malabsorption disease, that affects an estimated 2.2 million Americans. Celiac disease is, essentially, intolerance to gluten, a protein found in wheat, rye, oats and barley, as well as some medicines and vitamins.

Ad Hoc HSA Acting Chairman have consistently co-sponsored yearly resolutions designating a day in October as "National Mammography Day" and a week in August as "National Health Center Week" to raise awareness regarding both these issues and have supported passage and enactment of numerous health-care-related bills, such as the Rural Health Care Capital Access Act of 2006, which extends the exemption requiring reinsurance payments to patients due to critical access hospitals under the federal hospital mortgage insurance program.

As the Federal Government invests in improving hospitals and healthcare initiatives, I have fought hard to ensure that Oklahoma gets its fair share. Specifically, over the past 3 years, I have helped to secure $5.2 million in funding for the Oklahoma Medical Research Foundation, the Oklahoma State Department of Health planning initiative for a rural telemedicine system, the INTEGRIS Healthcare System, the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center, the Oklahoma Center for the Advancement of Science and Technology, St. Anthony's Heart Hospital, the Hillcrest Healthcare System and the Morton Health Center.

As a long supporter of HSAs, I believe all people should have access to them since they provide great flexibility in the health market and allow individuals to have control over their own health care. Medicare MSAs have existed since January 1, 1997, revised in December of 2003, but they have not worked. No insurer whatsoever has yet offered any Medicare MSA under the current law. To fix this problem, my legislation creates a new HSA program under Medicare that incorporates a high deductible health plan and an HSA account while dissolving the existing Medicare MSA.

In tandem with my efforts, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Service, CMS, are launching an HSA demonstration project that allowing health insurance companies to offer Medicare beneficiaries products similar to HSA. This activity points to the Administration's support of HSAs and desire to see all seniors receive the best possible coverage.

As the July 13, 2006 edition of The Hill, explains, "no legislation is pending that would integrate HSAs into the Medicare program . . ." Thus, my legislation is necessary because real Medicare HSA reform is needed in order for seniors to have true flexibility and freedom of choice in their health care.

Under my bill, beneficiaries who choose the HSA option will receive an annual amount that is equal to 95 percent of the annual Medicare Advantage MA, capitation rate with respect to the individual's MA payment area. These funds provided through the Medicare HSA program can only be used by the beneficiary for the following purposes: as a contribution into an HSA or for payment of high deductible plan. Additionally, the individual also has the opportunity to deposit personal funds in to the Medicare HSA.
my bill also guarantees that seniors be notified of the amount they will receive 90 days before receipt to ensure they have time to determine the best and most appropriate HSA to accommodate needs. The bill also allows the Secretary of Health and Human Services to work with federal appropriately and requires providers to accept payment by individuals enrolled in a Medicare HSA just as they would with an individual enrolled in traditional Medicare.

Please join me in supporting this important legislation to give our seniors more choices regarding their health care.

By Mr. INHOFE:

S. 174. A bill to amend the Head Start Act to require parental consent for nonemergency intrusive physical examinations; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I introduce legislation requiring parental consent for intrusive physical exams administered under the Head Start program.

Young children attending Head Start programs should not be subjected to these intrusive physical exams without the prior knowledge or consent of their parents. While the Department of Health and Human Services has administered general exam guidelines to agencies, the U.S. Code is not clear about prohibiting them without parental consent. To clarify the Code, my bill will not allow any non-emergency intrusive exam by a Head Start agency without parental consent. This would not include exams such as hearing, vision or scoliosis screenings.

This issue was brought to my attention by some of my constituents from Tulsa, OK, who felt their rights were violated when their children were subjected to genital exams and blood tests without their consent. I am pleased to see that the Rutherford Institute has taken an interest in this crucial issue and are representing my constituents.

As a father and grandfather, I believe it is vital for parents to be informed about what is happening to their children in the classroom. I hope that my colleagues will join me in support of this important bill.

By Mrs. HUTCHISON (for herself, Mr. CORNYN, Mr. ALEXANDER, Mr. ENSIGN, Mr. ENZI, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. THUNE, and Mr. STEVENS):

S. 180. A bill to provide a permanent deduction for State and local general sales taxes; to the Committee on Finance.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce a bill to permanently correct an injustice in the tax code that has harmed citizens in many States of this great Nation repeatedly.

State and local governments have various alternatives for raising revenue. Some levy income taxes, some use sales taxes, and others use a combination of the two. The citizens who pay State and local income taxes have been able to offset some of their federal income taxes by receiving a deduction for those State and local income taxes. Before 1986, taxpayers also had the ability to deduct their sales taxes.

The philosophy behind these deductions is simple: people should not have to pay taxes on their taxes. The money that people paid to one level of Government should not also be taxed by another level of Government.

Unfortunately, citizens of some States were treated differently after 1986 when the deduction for State and local sales taxes was eliminated. This discriminated against those living in States, such as my home State of Texas, with no income taxes. It is important to remember the lack of an income tax does not provide the same level of Government services, while not doing the same for citizens from other States. Federal tax law should not treat people differently on the basis of State residence and differing tax collection methods, and it should not provide an incentive for States to establish income taxes over sales taxes.

This discrepancy had a significant impact on Texas. According to the Texas Comptroller, the sales tax deduction saves a family of four $310 a year, or a total of about $1 billion each year for the State’s residents who itemize deductions. The ability of taxpayers to deduct their sales taxes will lead to the creation of more than 16,500 new jobs and the addition of $920 million in State economic activity.

Recognizing the inequity in the tax code, Congress reinstated the sales tax deduction in 2004 and authorized it for two years. Unfortunately, the deduction in 2004 expired the sales tax deduction for an additional two years. As a result of our efforts, the 55 million of us in the eight States with a sales tax but no income tax are no longer discriminated against in the tax code. Unfortunately, the deduction is only in effect through 2007, and we must act to prevent the inequity from returning.

The legislation I am offering today will fix this problem for good by making the State and local sales tax deduction permanent. This will permanently end the discrimination suffered by my fellow Texans and citizens of other States who do not have the option of an income tax deduction.

This legislation is about reestablishing equity to the tax code and defending the important principle of eliminating taxes on taxes. Last year, the Senate voted 75–25 to instruct committees to make this deduction permanent. I hope my fellow Senators will once again support this effort and pass this legislation.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself, Mr. CORNYN, Mr. BUNNING, Mr. ENSIGN, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. VITTER, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. STEVENS, and Mr. BROWNBACK):

S. 181. A bill to provide permanent tax relief from the marriage penalty; to the Committee on Finance.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I am pleased to introduce a bill to provide permanent tax relief from the marriage penalty—the most egregious, anti-family provision that has been in the tax code. One of our priorities in the United States Senate has been to relieve American taxpayers of this punitive burden.

We have made important strides to eliminate this unfair tax and provide marriage penalty relief by raising the standard deduction and enlarging the 15 percent tax bracket for married joint filers to twice that of single filers. Before these provisions were changed, 44 million married couples, including 2.4 million Texas families, paid an average penalty of $1,480.

Enacting marriage penalty relief was a giant step for tax fairness, but it may be fleeting. Even as married couples use the money they now save to put food on the table and clothes on their children, a tax increase looms in the future. Since the 2001 tax relief bill was restricted, the marriage penalty provisions will only be in effect through 2010. In 2011, marriage will again be a taxable event and 43 percent of married couples will again pay more in taxes unless we act decisively. Given the challenges many families face in making ends meet, we must make sure we do not backtrack on this important reform.

The benefits of marriage are well established, yet, without marriage penalty relief, the tax code provides a significant disincentive for people to walk down the aisle. Marriage is a fundamental institution in our society and should not be discouraged by the IRS. Children living in a married household are less likely to live in poverty or to suffer from child abuse. Research indicates these children are also less likely to be depressed or have developmental problems. Scourges such as adolescent drug use are less common in married families, and married mothers are less likely to be victims of domestic violence.

We should celebrate marriage, not penalize it. The bill I am offering would make marriage penalty relief permanent, because marriage should not be taxed. Now the Senate to finish the job we started and make marriage penalty relief permanent today.

By Mrs. FEINSTEIN (for herself, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. LEAHY, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. KENNEDY, and Mr. DURBIN):

S. 182. A bill to authorize the Attorney General to make grants to improve... the ability of State and local governments to prevent the abduction of children by family members, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join Senators HUTCHISON, FEINGOLD, LEAHY, SNOWE, KENNEDY and DURBIN in reintroducing the “Family Abduction Prevention Act,” a bill to help the thousands of children who are abducted by a family member each year.

We introduced this legislation last Congress, and it passed the Senate by unanimous consent, but unfortunately, the bill was never taken up by the House. This is important and needed legislation.

Family abductions are the most common form of abduction, yet they receive little attention, and law enforcement agencies too often don’t treat them as the serious crimes that they are—too often dismissing the seriousness of these cases as family disputes.

The Family Abduction Prevention Act of 2007 would provide grants to States for the costs associated with family abduction prevention. Specifically, it would assist States with costs associated with the extradition of individuals suspected of committing the crime of family abduction, costs borne by State and local law enforcement agencies to investigate cases of missing children, training for local and State law enforcement agencies in responding to family abductions, outreach and media campaigns to educate parents on the dangers of family abductions, and assistance to public schools to help with costs associated with “flagging” school records.

Each year, over 300,000 children—78 percent of all abductions in the United States—are kidnapped by a family member, usually a non-custodial parent.

More than half of the abducting parents have a history of domestic violence, substance abuse, or a criminal record.

Unfortunately, many State and local law enforcement agencies frequently treat these abductions as personal, family disputes. Approximately 70 percent of law enforcement agencies lack written guidelines on responding to family abduction and many are not informed about the Federal laws available to help in the search and recovery of an abducted child.

Too often law enforcement assumes that a child is not in grave danger if the abductor is a family member. Unfortunately, this is not always true, and this assumption can endanger a child’s life. Research has shown that the most common motive in family abduction cases is revenge against the other parent for the child.

The effects of family abduction on children are often traumatic. Abducted children suffer from severe separation anxiety. To break emotional ties with the kidnapper, some abducted children will coach a child into falsely disclosing abuse by the other parent to perpetuate their control during or after the abduction. And in many cases, the child is told that the other parent is dead or did not really love them.

For example, on Takeroot.org, a website devoted to the victims of family abductions, a young lady named Kelly tells the story of how her family was going through a bitter divorce and custody battle when she was nine, and her brother was six. Her dad picked them up for a regular visit, but then just kept on driving.

Kelly says, “If I close my eyes, I can still see my mother waving goodbye as we watched her from the rear window of our father’s truck. . . . Little did we know that it would be close to a year before we would talk to each other again.”

Days later, Kelly started asking her father why they were continuing to drive—and why they were sleeping in the truck. After a while, her father finally broke his silence and screamed at her that her mother had given him the children because she didn’t love them and that they would just have to learn to deal with it.

For the next eleven months, they lived like fugitives on the run, often dirty and hungry, “with very little money and even less love,” according to Kelly. “We left in the middle of the night, never saying goodbye to friends we may have made or people we met. I still see those people in my mind’s eye. I miss them. . . . Mostly, I miss the child I was, the child I lost.”

The harm caused by these abductions cannot easily be put into words. In many family abduction cases, children are given new identities at an age when they are still developing a sense of who they are. In extreme cases, the child’s gender is masked to further avoid detection.

Abducting parents also often deprive their children of education and much-needed medical attention to avoid the risk of being tracked via school or medical records.

As the child adapts to a fugitive’s lifestyle, deception becomes an integral part of their life. The child is taught to fear those that one would normally trust—doctors, teachers and counselors. Even after recovery, the child often has a difficult time growing into adulthood.

In some cases, the abducting parent leaves the child with strangers, or locates the story of how her parent and other basic needs may be extremely compromised.

For example, in Lafayette, CA, two girls abducted by their mother ended up under the control of a convicted child molester. When Kelli Nunez abandoned her daughters, 6-year-old Anna and 4-year-old Emily, in violation of court custody orders, she drove her daughters cross-country, and then onto Congress, where she handed the children to someone holding a coded sign at the airport. The person holding the sign belonged to a helpful-sounding organization called the California Family Law Center—but the organization was actually led by Florencio Maning, a convicted child molester. For six months, Maning orchestrated the concealment of the Nunez girls with help from other people.

Luckily, police were able to track down the girls, and they were successfully reunited with their father. That success may have been due to the fact that California has been the Nation’s leader in fighting family abduction.

In my State, we have a system that places the responsibility for the investigation and resolution of family abduction cases with the County District Attorney’s Office. Each California County District Attorney’s Office has an investigative unit that is focused on family abduction cases. These investigators only handle family abduction cases and become experts in the process.

However, most States lack the training and resources to effectively recover children who are kidnapped by a family member. According to a study conducted by Plass, Finklehor and Hotaling, 62 percent of parents surveyed said they were "somewhat" or "very" dissatisfied with police handling of their family abduction cases.

The “Family Abduction Prevention Act of 2007” would be an important first step in addressing this serious issue.

I urge my colleagues to pass this important legislation, just as you did in the 109th Congress.

By Mr. STEVENS:

S. 183. A bill to require the establishment of a corporate average fuel economy standard for passenger automobiles of 40 miles per gallon 2017, and for other purpose; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, the bill that I introduce today features language that would remove the legal ambiguity that for years has Inhibited the Secretary of Transportation’s ability to rais ing fuel economy standards for passenger cars, and the measure would mandate that a fuel economy standard for passenger cars be set at 40 miles per gallon by model year 2017. By providing authority to increase standards for passenger cars, and requiring a specific fuel economy standard target, this bill would provide consumers with fuel savings at the pump, limit the Nation’s dependence on foreign oil, and significantly reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

The bill would remove from the current Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) statute the requirement that the Secretary of Transportation submit to Congress any proposal to increase or decrease fuel economy standards. This requirement has been deemed unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court. This legal hurdle, coupled with years of Federal funding legislation that has precluded Congress from reviewing CAFE, has prevented increases in fuel economy in the domestic passenger vehicle fleet.
The Secretary recently completed a dramatic reform of the fuel economy standards for the light-truck fleet, and he might have made similar reforms to the passenger fleet but for the statutory ambiguity of the current CAFE statute. I applaud the Secretary for his recent CAFE rule for light trucks, and I commend the administration for its seven light truck CAFE increases in the last six years. But the time has come for the Secretary to increase fuel economy standards for passenger cars as well.

In 2000, the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) issued a report that concluded that the benefits resulting from CAFE since its implementation in 1978 clearly warrant Government intervention to ensure fuel economy levels beyond what may result from market forces alone. Time and again, NAS found that CAFE has led to marked improvements in reducing greenhouse gas emissions, fuel consumption, and dependence on foreign oil.

Mr. President, the United States imports almost 11 million barrels of crude oil every day, compared with only five million barrels a day 30 years ago. In fact, 92% of the 2.7 million barrels per day imported into the United States are made up of crude oil. We have become enmeshed in a cycle of dependence for both oil and energy security. This is why I believe the increased fuel economy standards included in the Energy Policy Act of 2005 are so important.

Unfortunately, the 2005 Act did not go far enough. It allowed the President to exempt up to 4 million barrels of oil for newly built facilities, and we know that this one exemption will delay the United States from meeting our goal of energy independence. So, in January, I introduced legislation to require that CAFE stay constant for one or more model years, and I commend the administration for the same reform.

(1) No across-the-board increases.—When the Secretary prescribes a standard, or prescribes an amendment under this section that changes a standard, the standard may not be expressed as a percentage increase from the fuel-economy performance of automobile classes or categories already achieved in a model year by a manufacturer.

(b) Exemption Criteria.—The first sentence of section 201 of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking “exemption would result in reduced” and inserting “manufacturer requesting the exemption will transfer”;

By Mr. INOUYE (for himself, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. PITYOR, Mr. CARPER, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. BAUCUS, Mrs. CLINTON, and Mr. SCHUMER):
S. 184. A bill to provide improved rail and surface transportation security; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, last year we made significant improvements to the Nation’s transportation security system by enacting the SAFE Port Act, which strengthened the security of our Nation’s ports and maritime vessels. Yet, during the conference on this important bill, the Congress failed to seize the opportunity to enact comprehensive transportation security legislation that would have provided real homeland security for the entire transportation system. The Senate-passed version of the SAFE Port Act contained essential provisions that would have strengthened security in all of the surface modes of transportation, including passenger and freight rail, public transit, trucking, intercity bus and pipelines. But jurisdictional infighting and a lack of political will kept the leadership of the House of Representatives from agreeing to, or even attempting to consider, these provisions in conference.

Given the urgent need for surface transportation security improvements, Cochairman STEVENS and I are introducing the Surface Transportation and Rail Safety Act of 2007, or STARS Act, to once again offer the Congress an opportunity to enact a comprehensive transportation security bill. We have all seen the possible consequences of an attack on critical surface transportation systems in Madrid and London. We have all heard about possible threats and foilled plots aimed at our rail tunnels and stations here at home.

The time has come for us to address these vulnerabilities and risks in a comprehensive and coordinated way that ensures that in the rush to protect one mode of transportation we don’t shift vulnerability towards other, less secure, transportation modes.

The STARS Act combines the rail, truck, bus, pipeline and hazardous materials security provisions that were included in the Senate-passed SAFE Port Act into a stand-alone bill, which the Commerce Committee will soon consider. These provisions were endorsed unanimously by the Senate during consideration of the SAFE Port Act, and the House of Representatives overwhelmingly voted to instruct its conferees to include these provisions in the Conference Report—advice the House leadership declined to accept. Additionally, the rail security portion of this package has already passed the Senate twice in prior Congresses and has been endorsed by railroads and labor leaders.

This bill reflects the Commerce Committee’s substantial expertise over the issues of transportation security. The time has come to advance these improvements, and protect the vital surface transportation assets that grant us the quality of life and economic health that we all cherish. Our legislation presents an opportunity to make immediate progress on transportation security, and it is my sincere hope that my colleagues will join me in supporting consideration and passage of this measure as soon as possible.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Any statutory limitation on the number of employees in the Transportation Security Administration does not apply to the extent that any such employee is responsible for implementing the provisions of this Act.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, over five years since 9/11, much of our Nation’s transportation systems remain vulnerable to attack. There are many reasons for the lack of action by the Federal Government, but we can no longer simply look the other way. Last year, the Congress had an opportunity to make significant strides to improve the security of the commuter and passenger rail systems, highways, public transit systems, trucking and intercity bus operations, and pipeline systems. The Senate passed my amendments and amendments by other Senators to the SAFE Ports Act to address the security of these important modes of transportation. In fact, the House of Representatives overwhelmingly voted to instruct its conferees to include these provisions in the final conference report of the SAFE Ports Act.

Unfortunately, House Republican leaders stripped them out of the final version of the bill behind closed doors, instead enacting a ban on internet gambling. The actions by the House Republican leadership are further delayed real progress in securing our homeland from terror. I believe the Federal Government must take a leadership role in securing our country from terrorism. States cannot on their own be left responsible for securing these interstate modes of transportation.

That is why I am proud to be an author of the Surface Transportation and Rail Security Act of 2007. I have worked with my committee co-chairman, Senator Inouye and Senator Stevens—to ensure this bill gets quickly considered. Its provisions are not new to anyone. They were considered, and agreed to, merely four months ago by the Senate. I am hopeful that they will again be quickly considered and adopted.

This bill specifically requires accountability from the Department of Homeland Security, by ensuring that our rail systems have been analyzed for security risk. It authorizes necessary funding for making these security improvements and specifically includes $400 million for tunnel security improvements in the New Jersey/New York region.
January 4, 2007

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE S179

York region. I will seek further Federal funding for improving security of the New Jersey/New York region’s tunnels and bridges in additional legislation to be introduced this month, by working with my colleagues on the appropriate committees in the Senate.

Last month, the Bush Administration proposed certain improvements to our nation’s rail systems, but these proposals fell far short of what is needed to secure our country. For instance, the Administration proposal fails to take steps to improve the security of railroad stations, bridges, and tunnels. More people use Amtrak’s Penn Station in New York City than use all three major New Jersey-New York region airports, Newark Liberty International, JFK, and LaGuardia airports, every day. This bill takes a much more comprehensive approach, by authorizing the funding needed to make these important security improvements.

Our Nation’s freight rail systems move some 12 billion tons of cargo, but we are not doing enough to protect those systems. Some of this cargo includes hazardous chemicals and other dangerous materials which travel within our communities, in freight cars, hospitals, neighborhoods, and snake right through the middle of our cities. The potential for disaster looms large, as the misuse of these shipments can produce an effect that a weapon of mass destruction would on our communities. Clearly much more must be done to put into how we move this dangerous cargo, and the Federal Government must be involved. The Bush Administration must agree with this assessment, as their proposal would strictly forbid states or communities from acting on their own to protect their residents from these risks.

I look forward to working with my colleagues to ensure that this important legislation gets considered and enacted as quickly as possible, so we might see any further these vital security improvements to our country.

Mr. SPECTER (for himself and Mr. LEAHY):

S. 185. A bill to restore habeas corpus for those detained by the United States; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I will introduce legislation denominated the Habeas Corpus Restoration Act. Last year, in the Military Commissions Act, the constitutional right of habeas corpus was attempted to be abrogated. I fought to pass an amendment to strike that provision of the Act which was voted 51 to 48, I say “attempted to be abrogated” because, in my legal judgment, that provision in the Act is unconstitutional.

It is hard to see how there can be legislation to eliminate the constitutional right to habeas corpus when the Constitution is explicit that habeas corpus may not be suspended except in time of invasion or rebellion, and we do not have either of those circumstances present, as was conceded by the advocates of the legislation last year to take away the right of habeas corpus.

We have had Supreme Court decisions which have made it plain that habeas corpus is available to not citizens and that habeas corpus applies to territories controlled by the United States, specifically, including Guantanamo. More recently, however, we had a decision in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia applying the habeas corpus provision of the Military Commissions Act, but I believe we will see the appellate courts strike down this legislative provision.

The contention that the gravamen or the substance of habeas corpus is provided by the statutory review to the Circuit Court of the District of Columbia is fallacious on its face. All the statute does is allow for a review of the regularity of proceedings. In my prepared article on this subject, starting on January 4, 2007

HABEAS CORPUS RESTORATION ACT OF 2007

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I seek recognition today to introduce the “Habeas Corpus Restoration Act of 2007.” Last September, during debate on the Military Commissions Act, I introduced an amendment to strike section 7 of the Act and thereby preserve the constitutional right of habeas corpus for the approximately 450 individuals detained at Guantanamo Bay. Because my amendment was not agreed to, by a narrow vote of 51 to 48, the right of habeas corpus was denied to those detainees. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus has thus been denied.

On December 5, with my colleague Senator Leahy, I introduced the “Habeas Corpus Restoration Act of 2006” to restore the right of habeas corpus and bring our Nation back into compliance with the United States Constitution. After all, the United States Constitution is unambiguous in Article 1, Section 9, that privilege of the Writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in Cases of Rebellion or Invasion the public safety may require it. Today, along with Senator Leahy, I am reintroducing this important legislation.

The Habeas Corpus Restoration Act is very simple. It strikes the federal habeas corpus limitations imposed by the Military Commissions Act and the Detainee Treatment Act. It restores basic constitutional habeas corpus rights and the U.S. Constitution draws no distinction between American citizens and aliens held in U.S. custody.

While some argue that the Combatant Status Review Tribunals, commonly referred to as “CSRTs,” are an adequate and effective means to challenge an individual’s status, I disagree with the Supreme Court’s decision in Swain v. Pressley. I could not disagree more. In my view, CSRTs are a sham. We have a great deal about the cursory review provided by these tribunals at Guantanamo Bay. They operate with very little information. Someone is picked up on the battlefield. There is no record preserved as to what that individual did. If there was a weapon involved, it was collected and mixed with in many other weapons. There is no chain of custody or record of weapons. CSRTs are not adequate to substitute for habeas corpus rights and the U.S. Constitution does not have the right to know what evidence there is against them. As Justice O’Connor wrote in her plurality opinion in Hamdi v. Rumsfeld, “the Court’s conclusion by one’s captor, however effective an intelligence-gathering tool, hardly constitutes a constitutionally adequate factual basis for a neutral decisionmaker.” It is essential that we provide an adequate means to challenge an individual’s continued detention.

Typically, the CSRT will advise the detainee that the evidence against them is

We have eliminated basic legal and human rights for the 12 million lawful permanent residents who live and work among us, to say nothing of the millions of other legal immigrants and visitors who we welcome to our shores each year. We have removed a vital check against the government arbitrarily detaining people for life without charge. We may well have also made many of our remaining limits against torture and cruel and inhuman treatment obsolete because they are unenforceable. We have removed the mechanism the Constitution provides to check government overreaching and lawlessness.

"This is wrong. It is unconstitutional. It is un-American. It is designed to ensure that the Bush-Cheney Administration will never again be embarrassed by a United States Supreme Court decision reviewing its unlawful abuses of power. The conservative Supreme Court, with seven of its nine members appointed by Republican Presidents, has been the only check on this Administration’s lawlessness. Certainly the last Congress did not do it. With passage of the Military Commissions Act, the Republican Congress completed the job of eviscerating its role as a check and balance on the Administration."

Some Senators uneasy about the Military Commissions Act’s disastrous habeas provision took solace in the thought that it would be struck down by the courts. The fact is, however, that courts will uphold the provision, a federal court in the District of Columbia, upheld the provision. We should not outsource our moral, legal and constitutional responsibility to the courts. Congress must be accountable for its actions and we should act to right this wrong.

Abolishing habeas corpus for anyone who the Government thinks might have assisted enemies of the United States is absolutely wrong. It is a betrayal of the most basic values of freedom for which America stands. It makes a mockery of the administration’s lofty rhetoric about exporting freedom across the globe.

We should take steps to ensure that our enemies can be brought to justice efficiently and quickly. I introduced a bill to do that back in 2002, as did Senator SPECTER, when we each proposed a federal court to consider that provision, a federal court in the District of Columbia, and we each introduced a federal court to consider that provision.

The Administration’s new McNulty memorandum, which replaces the Thompson Memorandum, which allows prosecutors to request that companies under investigation waive their attorney-client privilege, and that, absent such a waiver, prosecutors may consider the company’s refusal to waive privilege in the charging process. As a result, the legal and business community complained that, if the attorney-client privilege is not waived, the corporation and individuals may get a stiffer charge.

The Department of Justice has recently revised the Thompson Memorandum, with Deputy Attorney General McNulty substituting what is now known as the McNulty Memorandum. Prior to the release of the McNulty Memorandum, I had a number of discussions with Department of Justice officials, and I thank the Department of Justice for the effort which they have made, but it is not sufficient.

The new memorandum is inadequate in its protection of the attorney-client privilege.

That provision of the earlier Thompson Memorandum was declared unconstitutional in a case in the Southern District of New York.

The Administration has made it clear that they intend to use every expansive definition and unchecked power given to them by the new law. November’s Justice Department brief made clear that any of our legal immigrants could be held without recourse in court. Earlier in November, the Justice Department went to court to say that detainees who had been held in secret CIA prisons could not even meet with lawyers because they might tell their lawyers cruel and inhuman treatment techniques used against them. In other words, if our Government tortures somebody, that person loses his right to a lawyer because he might tell the lawyer about having been tortured. A law is a result, the Administration is told that the Government should defend our values and our Constitution. It takes commitment to those values to demand accountability from the Government. In standing up for American values and security, I will keep working on this issue until we restore the checks and balances that are fundamental to preserving the liberties that define us as a nation. We can ensure our security without giving up our liberty.

By Mr. SPECTER:

S. 186. A bill to provide appropriate protection to attorney-client privileged communications and attorney work product; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, the legislation which I am introducing is the Attorney-Client Privilege Protection Act. This legislation was previously introduced in the 109th Congress.

In 2003, the Department of Justice adopted the provisions of the so-called Thompson Memorandum, which allowed prosecutors to request that companies under investigation waive their attorney-client privilege, and that, absent such a waiver, prosecutors may consider the company’s refusal to waive privilege in the charging process. Mr. President, again, I ask unanimous consent that the full text of my statement be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the material ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE PROTECTION ACT OF 2006

By Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I seek recognition today to introduce the `Attorney-Client Privilege Protection Act of 2007," which remains necessary despite Deputy Attorney General Paul McNulty’s issuance of a new attorney-client protection guidelines on December 12 of last year. Although the new McNulty memorandum, which replaces the memorandum issued by former Deputy Attorney General Larry Thompson, makes some improvements, the revision continues to erode the attorney-client relationship by allowing prosecutors to request privileged information backed by the hammer of prosecution if the request is denied. This eviscerates the sanctity of the attorney-client relationship by prohibiting federal prosecutors and investigators from requesting waiver of attorney-client privilege and work product protections in corporate investigations. The bill would similarly prohibit the government from conditioning charging decisions or any adverse treatment on the provision of employee legal fees, invocation of the attorney-client privilege, or agreement to a joint defense agreement. This bill will hopefully force Justice to recognize the meaningful change to its corporate charging policies beyond the changes in the McNulty Memorandum, which came “a day late and a dollar short” according to Frederick Krebs, the president of the Association of Corporate Counsel.

There is no need to wait to see how the McNulty memorandum will operate in practice. The flaws in that memorandum are already apparent. Moreover, before the issuance of the McNulty memorandum, last month, the Thompson memorandum has been undermining the attorney-client relationship in the corporate context for nearly 4 years. In the same speech, Attorney General Larry Thompson issued a memorandum to all Justice Department components throughout the United States entitled “Principles of Federal Prosecution of Business Organizations.” This memorandum, which was prepared on the heels of the establishment of the President’s Corporate Fraud Task Force, set forth various factors for federal prosecutors and investigators from considering when to prosecute corporations or other business organizations. The so-called “Thompson memorandum” lists a corporation’s “cooperation and voluntary disclosure” as one of the chief factors to be considered in making a charging decision. Just as the Thompson memorandum was issued with laudable goals in mind, the McNulty memorandum was, no doubt, the product of good intentions. Nevertheless, it continues to erode the viability of the attorney-client privilege in business organizations by allowing prosecutors to request privilege waiver upon a finding of “legitimate investigative need.” This leaves federal prosecutors and investigators for the most basic of prosecutorial requests, not sensitive requests for privileged information.

Just as the standard is inadequate, so is the level of internal review. Although the McNulty memorandum establishes some internal review for such waiver requests, it does so in a way that diminishes the importance of a corporate client’s ability to communicate with its lawyers. The memo creates two different categories of privileged information for this purpose: a privilege that is a little more than a form of client communications to the attorney while providing significant protection and DOJ internal review for attorney communications to the client. The memo identifies the two subcategories of privileged information as: (1) “purely factual information,” which consists of witness statements, interview summaries, and reports containing investigatory facts documented by counsel; and (2) attorney advice to the client, including attorney recommendations, and notes.

The first category of information, formally labeled Category 1 information by DOJ, may be requested with approval at the U.S. Attorney-level. It contains witness statements, internal and external corporate communications, factual chronologies and summaries, and reports containing investigative facts documented by counsel and court decisions or transcripts. The second subcategory of privileged information is attorney-related documents that are outside of the attorney-client privilege. If the second subcategory of privileged information is needed at all, prosecutors do not need to seek waiver of the privilege in the first instance by raising it as a defense.

As noted above, the new McNulty memo does not embed the attorney-client privilege and work product protections during government investigations. The McNulty memorandum protects Category 1 information by making clear that it may be sought only if the prosecutor thinks Category 1 information provides an incomplete basis for the investigation. If such a request is deemed necessary, the request for Category 2 information must be approved by the Deputy Attorney General.

Although the McNulty memo provides greater protection for Category 2 information, the memo does not explain why such information is needed for the prosecutor outside of attorney advice in furtherance of a crime or fraud or where the advice is subject to an advice of counsel defense, both of which are exempted from the waiver request process outlined in the memorandum. Thus, the only two types of attorney advice that are likely to be relevant in a criminal investigation are exempted from the memo’s coverage. With that exception, I fail to see why Category 2 information is needed at all. Prosecutors do not need to seek waiver of the privilege in the first instance by raising it as a defense.

In the name of its federal corporate prosecution guidelines, the Administration needs to look in the mirror. If the President refused to disclose documents or information after invoking a claim of executive privilege, it would not consider itself to be “uncooperative.” Rather, the executive would simply by uncooperative. Yet, when the tables are turned, the Justice Department has memorialized a policy instructing its prosecutors to discourage attorneys from waiving the privilege.

The right to counsel is too important to be passed over for prosecutorial convenience. It has been engrained in American jurisprudence since the 18th century when the Bill of Rights was adopted. The 6th Amendment is a fundamental right afforded to individuals charged with a crime and guarantees proper representation by counsel throughout a prosecution. However, the right to counsel is largely ineffective unless the confidential communications made by a client to his or her attorney is protected by law. As the Supreme Court observed in Upjohn Co. v. United States, “the attorney-client privilege is the oldest of the privileges for confidential communication of which the public has a common right.” When the Upjohn Court affirmed that attorney-client privilege protections apply to corporate internal legal dialogue, the Court manifested in the law the importance of the attorney-client privilege in encouraging full and frank communication between attorneys and their clients. As the modern world becomes more connected, the broader public interests of the privilege serves in fostering the observance of law and the administration of justice. The Upjohn Court accordingly concluded that the “right to advocate and to seek a fair trial is integral to the American scheme of justice; and this right depends upon the power of the law, and advocacy depends on the lawyer having been fully informed by the client.”

As a former prosecutor, I am acutely aware of the enormous power and tools a prosecutor is armed with at his or her disposal. As former Supreme Court Justice and then Attorney-General Robert Jackson stated in his 1930 speech, “Law is not a public servant of the law, but a public servant of justice, and justice is not public service, but a public servant of law.”

The Justice Department’s new corporate charging guidelines for federal prosecutors fall short of what is needed to prevent further erosion of fundamental attorney-client privilege, work product protections during government investigations and the related work product doctrine, which derive from it.” — Karen Mathis, ABA President.

“While containing some improvements, this new policy does not adequately protect the attorney-client privilege, work product protections during government investigations and, the related work product doctrine, which derive from it.” — Martin Pinales, President, National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers.

“[T]his memo is a day late and a dollar short. Asking prosecutors to get permission before formally requesting that companies provide their attorney-client privilege, work product protections during government investigations and, the related work product doctrine, which derive from it.” — Martin Pinales, President, National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers.

“Deputy Attorney General Paul McNulty’s memorandum is a disappointment. It perpetuates the culture of waiver, which is the practice of waiving the attorney-client privilege to voluntarily waive their rights in order to get favorable treatment or to avoid the

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Attorney-Client Privilege Protection Act of 2007”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Justice is served when all parties to litigation are represented by experienced diligent counsel.

(2) Protecting attorney-client privileged communications from compelled disclosure fosters voluntary compliance with the law.

(3) The purpose of the attorney-client privilege, attorneys and clients must have a degree of confidence that they will not be required to disclose privileged communications.

(4) The ability of an organization to have effective compliance programs and to conduct comprehensive internal investigations is enhanced when there is clarity and consistency regarding the attorney-client privilege.

(5) Prosecutors, investigators, enforcement officials, officers or employees of Government agencies have been able to, and can continue to, conduct their work while respecting attorney-client and work product protections of individuals, including seeking and discovering facts crucial to the investigation and prosecution of organizations.

(6) No matter the existence of these legitimate tools, the Department of Justice and other agencies have increasingly used tactics that undermine the adversarial system of law enforcement. For example, determining that an organization has engaged in wrongdoing or to cloak advice on evading the law.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this Act to provide clear and practical limits designed to preserve the attorney-client privilege and work product protections available to an organization and preserve the constitutional rights and other legal protections available to employees of such an organization.

SEC. 3. DISCLOSURE OF ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE OR ADVANCEMENT OF COUNSEL FEES AS ELEMENTS OF COOPERATION.

(a) In General.—Chapter 201 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 3013 the following:

“(b) IN GENERAL.—In any Federal investigatory or criminal or civil enforcement matter, an attorney or attorney of the United States shall not—

“(1) demand, request, or condition treatment on the disclosure by an organization, or person affiliated with that organization, of any communication protected by the attorney-client privilege or any attorney work product;

“(2) condition a civil or criminal charging decision relating to a organization, or person affiliated with that organization, on, or use as a factor in determining whether an organization, or person affiliated with that organization, is cooperating with the Government—

“(A) any valid assertion of the attorney-client privilege or privilege for attorney work product;

“(B) the provision of counsel to, or contribution to the legal defense fees or expenses of, an organization or person affiliated with that organization;

“(C) the entry into a joint defense, information sharing, or common interest agreement with an employee of that organization if the entry into that agreement has a common interest in defending against the investigation or enforcement matter;

“(D) the sharing of information relevant to the investigation or enforcement matter with an employee of that organization; or

“(E) a failure to terminate the employment of or otherwise sanction any employee of that organization because of the decision by that employee to exercise the constitutional rights or other legal protections of that employee in response to a Government request; or

“(3) demand or request that an organization, or person affiliated with that organization, not take any action described in paragraph (2) of this subsection.

“(c) INAPPLICABILITY.—Nothing in this Act shall prohibit an agent or attorney of the United States from requesting or seeking any communication or material that such agent or attorney reasonably believes is not entitled to protection under the attorney-client privilege or attorney work product doctrine.

“(d) VOLUNTARY DISCLOSURES.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent any organization from making, or an agent or attorney of the United States from accepting, a voluntary and unsolicited offer to share the internal investigation materials of such organization.”

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 201 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“§ 3014. Preservation of fundamental legal protections and rights in the context of investigations and enforcement matters regarding organizations.”

By Mr. SPECTER:

S. 187. A bill to provide sufficient resources to permit electronic surveillance of United States persons for foreign intelligence purposes to be conducted pursuant to approved court-issued orders for calls originating in the United States, to provide additional resources to enhance oversight and streamline the procedures of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978, to ensure review of the Terrorist Surveillance Program by the United States Supreme Court, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I am reintroducing the text of S. 401, which I originally introduced on November 14 of last year. And the title articulates it in a succinct way, so I will read that. It is: A bill to provide sufficient resources to permit electronic surveillance of United States persons for foreign intelligence purposes to be conducted pursuant to individualized court-issued warrants for calls originating in the United States, to provide additional resources to enhance oversight and streamline the procedures of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978, to ensure review of the Terrorist Surveillance Program by the United States Supreme Court.

I made a number of efforts in the 109th Congress to subject the President’s surveillance program to judicial review in accordance with the existing law that a search-and-seizure warrant or a wiretap ought not to be issued without a judge making a finding of probable cause and authorizing that kind of a search and seizure or that kind of a wiretap.

Without going into the entire history, that bill was refined to the point where it is articulated in S. 401 of the 109th Congress, which would provide for individualized warrants for calls originating in the United States and going out. That can be accomplished, according to the CIA, if there are additional resources, which this bill provides, and if the time for retroactive approval is extended from 3 days to 7 days.

With respect to calls originating outside the United States and coming in, we are advised there are simply too many of those to cover, so that on those calls the bill would expedite the judicial review which is currently in process.

A Federal court in Detroit has declared President Clinton’s program unconstitutional, and it is now pending in the Sixth Circuit. This bill would mandate review by the Supreme Court of the United States and would put review in the Federal courts on an accelerated timetable.

There are objections to proceeding with legislation along this line because of an interest in having hearings. Well, we have had a whole series of hearings, and the administration has refused to tell the Judiciary Committee the details of the program. Under our division of authority, it is the Intelligence Committee which has jurisdiction over this kind of a program.

But, we could proceed with hearings and still enact legislation which would provide some protection for calls originating in the United States, which is the more serious category. Citizens here, people here in the United States, would have individual warrants and a judicial determination of probable cause. The surveillance and the wiretaps were put into effect.

Meanwhile, the program goes on. It has been going on since late 2001. It has been known to the public since December 16, 2005. And each day that passes, there are more searches and seizures, there is more surveillance, which may not comport with constitutional provisions.

There may be the motivation to show that the President has broken the law. And there is no doubt that the surveil-

I do not like to repeat—he may have the constitutional authority for the surveillance program, but that has to be determined by a judicial proceeding. Mr. President, I ask unanimous content that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the mate-

tial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 188. A bill to revise the short title of the Fannie Lou Hamer, Rosa Parks, and Coretta Scott King Voting Rights Act Reauthorization and Amendments Act of 2006; to include Mr. Menendez.

Mr. SALAZAR. Mr. President, I arise today to speak on behalf of legislation I am introducing today, which has the support and co-sponsorship of several of my colleagues including Senators REID, LEAHY, FEINSTEIN, BOXER and MENENDEZ.

This is a simple, straightforward measure to include the name of César E. Chávez, a truly remarkable civil rights leader and American, into the title of the reauthorization of the Voting Rights Act. With my bill, the title of this Act would be referred to as the Fannie Lou Hamer, Rosa Parks, Coretta Scott King, and César E. Chávez Voting Rights Act Reauthorization and Amendments Act of 2006.

With my bill, the title of this Act would be referred to as the Fannie Lou Hamer, Rosa Parks, Coretta Scott King, and César E. Chávez Voting Rights Act Reauthorization and Amendments Act of 2006. I am proud to have been part of a unanimous Senate that reauthorized this landmark piece of civil rights legislation. Reauthorizing the Voting Rights Act extended the open door for every American to exercise their right to participate in the representative democracy founded by our Constitution, and cherished by our people. In that spirit, it is fitting that César Chávez’s name be included with the other names honored in this bill—as pioneers who helped pave the way to ensure that all Americans have a voice in electing their Government at the ballot box.

César Chávez is an American hero. Like the venerable American leaders who are now associated with this effort, he sacrificed his life to empower the most vulnerable in America. For this reason, he continues to be an important part of our country’s journey on the path to a more inclusive America. César Chávez believed strongly in our American democracy and saw the right to vote as a fundamental cornerstone of our voting. I believe it is fitting that his name be a part of the reauthorization of the Voting Rights Act.

President Lyndon Johnson once stated, “Every vote is the voice of those who are not in the majority.” With his simple but powerful slogan “Si Se Puede” or yes, it can be done, César Chávez reminded us of this truth. Still, throughout our history and even today, many Americans have been shut out of our most fundamental right—the right to vote. When President Johnson signed the Voting Rights Act of 1965 into law, he restored the faith of millions of African Americans, Hispanic Americans, Native Americans, and others who had historically been kept from voting.

As our Nation moved forward in the next chapter of civic equality and inclusion with the reauthorization of the Voting Rights Act last year, we demanded to reauthorize the Voting Rights Act of 1965. For this incredibly American Chávez’s continued commitment to safeguarding their right to vote. To include César E. Chávez’s name to that commitment today is an important change because of the message it sends Hispanic Americans. It serves as a signal of Congress’ commitment to an inclusive America that brings all Americans into our democratic process.

This past November, more than 86 million Americans voted all across the country. Fifty years ago, before the enactment of the Voting Rights Act, many would not have been able to do so. It is important and fitting that we honor those civil rights leaders whose sacrifices and compromises paved the way for today’s more inclusive democracy, and it is fitting that the name of César E. Chávez be included with them in the title of last year’s Voting Rights Act reauthorization. I look forward to working with my colleagues on this small change, and am hopeful that they will approve my proposal to revise the official title of this

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

By Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Ms. COLLINS, and Mr. FEINGOLD):

S. 192. A bill providing greater transparency with respect to lobbying activities, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined by Senators FEINGOLD, COLLINS, and LIEBERMAN in introducing a bill to provide greater transparency into the process of influencing our Government, and to ensure greater accountability among public officials.

The legislation proposes a number of important and necessary reforms. It would provide for faster reporting and greater public access to reports filed by lobbyists and their employers under current law. It would require greater disclosure of lobbyists’ contributions and payments, and of travel and entertainment expenses associated with them, as well as fundraising and other events they host.

The bill would also require greater disclosure from both lobbyists, and Members and employees of Congress, of travel that is arranged or financed by a lobbyist or his client.

To address the problem of the revolving door between Government and the private sector, the bill would strengthen the lobbying restrictions on former senior members of the Executive Branch, former Members of Congress, and former senior congressional staff. It would require that Members publicly disclose negotiations they are having with prospective private employers to ensure there is no conflict of interests. The bill would modify the provision in current law that exempts former Federal employees who go to work for Indian tribes as outside lobbyists.

The bill would prohibit all gifts from lobbyists to lawmakers and their staff. To ensure that such a ban is not circumvented, the bill would require Members of Congress and their staff to pay the fair market value for travel on private planes and the fair market value of sports and entertainment tickets. Members and staff would also have to post the details of their privately-sponsored work trips on-line for public inspection.

The bill would establish an independent, non-partisan Office of Public Integrity. Armed with a number of investigative tools, the Office of Public Integrity would investigate alleged misconduct by Members and their staff and make appropriate recommendations to the Senate Ethics Committee for final disposition.

Finally, the bill would help us combat wasteful, porkbarrel spending. It would amend Congressional rules to allow lawmakers to challenge unauthorized appropriations, earmarks, and policy riders in appropriations bills.

Mr. President, when I introduced similar legislation over a year ago, I emphasized the need for a ban on such earmarks. I voted against the bill that was ultimately passed in the Senate because it lacked a number of elements essential to true reform.

Unfortunately, the need for such reform has only become more acute. The American people’s faith and confidence in this venerable institution has steadily eroded. The day after the midterm elections, CNN reported that, according to national exit polls, voters were concerned about corruption and ethics in Government more than any other issue.

I can tell you the polls, if not on spot, are not far off.

During my travels around the country last year, it quickly became clear that there is a deep perception that we legislators do not act on the priorities of the American people, that special interests, and not the people’s interests, guide our legislative hand. This loss in confidence is not limited to a single party or ideology; rather, it cuts across the spectrum. It is a perception bred by recent Congressional failures and scandals, which I need not chronicle here.

We can begin to restore faith in this institution by divesting ourselves of some of the privileges that have somehow crept into public service. Take, for example, free meals and sports and entertainment tickets. The American people have rightfully come to see the abuse of such perks as a corrupting influence. In a string of guilty pleas last year, several lobbyists, former congressional aides, and a congressional executive admitted that such gifts were used as bribes. Quite frankly, there is no good reason why Members of Congress and their staff cannot forgo such gifts.

A total gift ban would go a long way towards restoring the public’s confidence in us.

Another critical aspect requiring reform is the ability of a Member to travel on a corporate jet and only pay the rate of a first class plane ticket. This bill requires Senators and their employees who use corporate or charter jets to pay the fair market value for that travel. While I appreciate that such a change is not popular with some of my colleagues, the time has come to fundamentally change the way we do things in this town. Much of the public views our ability to travel on corporate jets, often accompanied by lobbyists, while only reimbursing the first-class rate, as a huge loophole in the current gift rules. And they are right—it is.

I have no doubt that the average American would love to fly around the country on a corporate-owned aircraft and only be charged the cost of a first-class ticket. It is a pretty good deal we have got going here. We need to face the fact that the time has come to end this Congressional perk.

At a time when the public is questioning our integrity, the Senate needs to more aggressively enforce its own rules. We can do that by making more public the work that the Senate Ethics Committee currently undertakes, but by addressing the conflict that is inherent in any body that regulates itself. That is why I am again proposing the creation of a new Office of Public Integrity with the capacity to initiate and conduct investigations, uncolored by partisan concerns and unconstrained by collegial relationships.

Finally, Mr. President, if we are truly serious about reform, we need to address what some have coined the currency of corruption—earmarks. In 1994, there were 4,126 earmarks. In 2005, there were 15,877—an increase of nearly 400 percent! But there was a little good news for 2006 solely due to the good sense that occurred when the Labor HHS appropriations bill was approved with almost no earmarks, an amazing feat given that there were over 3,000 earmarks the prior year for just that bill. Yet despite this first reduction in 12 years, it does not change the fact that the largest number of earmarks have still occurred in the last three years—2004, 2005, and 2006.

Now, let us consider the level of funding associated with those earmarks. The amount of earmarked funding increased from $323.2 billion in 1994 to $64 billion in FY 2006. Remarkably, it rose by 34 percent from 2005 to 2006, even though the number of earmarks decreased! Earmarked dollars have doubled just since 2000, and more than tripled in the last 10 years. This explosion in earmarks led one lobbyist to deride the appropriations committees as favor factories. The time for us to fix this broken process is long overdue.

Mr. President, this past election, the American people spoke loud and clear: clean up the way business is done in our capital. As faithful public servants, we are obligated to respond. Let us respond meaningfully, to assure the American people that we are here promoting the interests of Main Street over that of K Street, and that we are more interested in public service than the perks and privileges offered us. Let us also remind ourselves that we came here in the sincere belief that public service is a noble calling, a reward unto itself. I therefore urge my colleagues in joining me on this bill. I think our Nation and this venerable institution will be all the better for it.

By Mr. CRAIG:

S.J. Res. 1. A joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States relative to requiring a balanced budget and protecting Social Security and Medicare; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, today I am reintroducing the balanced budget amendment to the Constitution of the United States. I, for some years, along with my colleagues in a bipartisan way, have spoke to this issue. Today, in a new year and in a new Congress, Americans are eager to see a new direction to our Federal budget. They have seen Federal spending increase by $200 billion from fiscal years 2005 to 2006. They have watched the Federal deficit swell into hundreds of billions of dollars, and they have borne the costs. Our spending system is broken, and, in my opinion, so is our Tax Code.

The new year is a time for new solutions to this problem. When new solutions that draw upon old principles of limited government and fiscal responsibility and tax simplicity and fairness are how you approach a problem, I think Americans once again will listen, and they will allow us to build a system that increasingly builds faith, and they will allow us to build a system that reforms what we have made—

In other words, over the last several years a balanced budget amendment would not have deterred us from funding, as appropriate and necessary, our engagement in Iraq and to make sure the men and women who are there on the front lines today are adequately provided with the necessary tools.

Thomas Jefferson said it so well, and he said this:...with respect to future debt, would it not be wise and just for that nation to declare in the constitution that they may validly contract more debt than they may pay?

His logic is simple. His logic is right. I urge you to join me in making fiscal responsibility constitutionally acceptable—and a habit—of this Nation’s Capitol.

With the first piece of legislation I introduce to the 110th Congress, I call on the Senate to pass a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, a bill of economic rights for our future and our children.

I ask unanimous consent that a copy of this joint resolution proposing a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution be printed in the Record. Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the joint resolution be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the joint resolution was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SENATE RESOLUTION 18—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING DESIGNATION OF THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER “NATIONAL MILITARY FAMILY MONTH”

Mr. REID (for Mr. Inouye) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on armed Services:
Whereas military families, through their sacrifices and their dedication to the United States and its values, represent the bedrock upon which the United States was founded and upon which the country continues to rely in these perilous and challenging times; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That—

(1) it is the sense of the Senate that the month of November should be designated as "National Military Family Month"; and

(2) the Senate encourages the people of the United States to observe "National Military Family Month" with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

Mr. INOUYE, Mr. President, today I rise to honor all our military families by submitting a Resolution to designate November as National Military Family Month. As we all know, memories fade and the hardships experienced by our military families are easily forgotten unless they touch our own immediate family.

Today, we have our men and women deployed all over the world, engaged in this war on terrorism. These far-ranging military deployments are extremely difficult on the families who bear this heavy burden.

To honor these families, the Armed Services YMCA has sponsored Military Family Week in late November since 1996. However, due to frequent "short week" conflicts around the Thanksgiving holidays, the designated week has not always afforded enough time to schedule observances on and near our military bases.

I believe a month long observation will allow greater opportunity to plan events. Moreover, it will provide a greater opportunity to stimulate media support.

A resolution will help pave the way for this effort. I ask my colleagues to join me in supporting this tribute to our military families.

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) recognizes that Wesley Autry acted heroically by putting his own life at risk to save that of his fellow citizen; and

(2) expresses its deep appreciation for Wesley Autry’s example and the values that his actions represent.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 1—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS THAT AN ARTISTIC TRIBUTE TO COMMEMORATE THE SPEECH GIVEN BY PRESIDENT RONALD REAGAN AT THE BRANDENBURG GATE ON JUNE 12, 1987, SHOULD BE PLACED WITHIN THE UNITED STATES CAPITOL

Mr. ALLARD submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Rules and Administration:

Whereas the people of the United States successfully defended freedom and democracy for over 40 years in a global Cold War against an aggressive Communist tyranny;

Whereas President Ronald Wilson Reagan’s demonstration of unwavering personal conviction during this conflict served to inspire millions of people throughout the United States.
States and around the world to seek democracy, freedom, and greater individual liberty; and

Whereas President Reagan’s determined stand against the Soviet Union during his 8 years as President served as the catalyst for the collapse of the Soviet Union: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring). That it is the sense of Congress that an artistic tribute to commemorate the speech given by President Ronald Reagan at the Brandenburg Gate on June 12, 1987, during which he uttered the immortal words, ‘Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this wall!’, should be placed within the United States Capitol.

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, finally, I would like to note that nearly 20 years ago, on June 12, 1987, President Ronald Reagan stood at the Berlin Wall, at the Brandenburg Gate, and issued his—issued liberty’s—famous challenge to Soviet tyranny:

Mr. Gorbachev, tear down this Wall!

I am submitting a resolution today calling for an artistic rendering of that moment in time to be painted into the Capitol, along with the other significant scenes of our Nation’s past. As we walk through the building today, we can see scenes from the Nation’s founding, from the Civil War, our westward expansion, even the Moon landing and Challenger astronauts. I would like to also see Reagan at the Brandenburg Gate. I think it would be entirely appropriate to have this image added. It would be an important reminder of the struggle this Nation undertook. It would stand for the millions of Americans who did their part for nearly half a century in that struggle, both military and civilian. And it would testify to the greatness of our Nation, and the greatness of our 40th President.

MEASURES READ THE FIRST TIME—S. 1, S. 2, S. 5, S. 113

Mr. REID. Madam President, it is my understanding there are four bills at the desk. I ask for their first reading, en bloc.
Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask for a second reading in order to place the bills on the calendar under the provisions of rule XIV, and having done that, I object to my own requests en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

The bills will receive their second reading on the next legislative day.

ROBERT T. STAFFORD WHITE ROCKS NATIONAL RECREATION AREA

Mr. REID. Madam President, I ask consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. 159 which was introduced earlier today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 159) to redesignate the White Rocks National Recreation Area in the State of Vermont as the Robert T. Stafford White Rocks National Recreation Area.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. LEAHY. Madam President, it is with a heavy heart that I rise today to bid a final goodbye to one of Vermont’s most distinguished public servants. On Saturday, December 23, just before Christmas, former Senator Bob Stafford from Vermont passed away at the venerable age of 93. He leaves behind a tremendous legacy of which he and his family and fellow Vermonters and all Americans should be exceptionally proud. I take this opportunity to pay tribute to Robert Stafford, an extraordinary Vermont, and especially a very dear and close friend.

He will be greatly missed by me, my wife Marcelle, and by so many other Americans all across our country. We send our condolences to his wife Helen and his family.

Born in Rutland in 1913, Senator Stafford attended his hometown’s public schools. He completed his undergraduate work at one of our Nation’s finest undergraduate institutions, Middlebury College. He briefly attended the University of Michigan Law School but ultimately earned his law degree from Boston University School of Law in 1938.

Bob was a remarkable person not only because of his service as a statesman and as service in the military. He is a prime example of what has been so aptly named the “greatest generation.”

Senator Stafford courageously stepped forward to serve our Nation during not one but two foreign wars. In 1942, he enlisted in the U.S. Navy and served on active duty from 1942 to 1946. Again, when the Korean war began, he served from 1951 to 1953 as an officer in the Navy. Bob later became the first commander of the Navy Reserve Center in Rutland. When Senator Stafford moved to White River Junction in 1995, and I was pleased to recommend to the Navy that the new facility be named the Robert T. Stafford Naval Reserve Center. They happily obliged. Throughout his life, Bob remained extremely proud of his Navy career. I still remember that beautiful day when we opened the new Naval Reserve facility named in honor of the senator.

Indeed, the recently completed Lake Champlain Navy Memorial was dedicated in his honor by the unanimous recommendation of its founding committee, made up of Navy veterans, retirees, and reservists.

Bob Stafford was an absolute giant in Vermont politics. He spent almost 30 years representing our great State, first in the U.S. House of Representatives, and then in the U.S. Senate. Prior to his arrival in Washington in the early 1960s, he served his fellow Vermonters closer to home, holding a number of prominent State positions.

He served as Rutland County State’s attorney and deputy state’s attorney general, and finally as our State attorney general. From 1957 to 1959, Bob Stafford held the post of Lieutenant Governor. In 1959, he went on to become Governor of Vermont.

In 1960, Bob Stafford was elected to Vermont’s sole seat in the U.S. House of Representatives. He won five successive re-elections. In September of 1971, he resigned his House seat to accept an appointment to the U.S. Senate, following the death of Senator Winston Prouty.

After he won a special election in January 1972, Bob proceeded to represent Vermont in the Senate during the next 17 years. In the Senate, he established the tradition. I was the only Democrat to serve in the Senate during the Carter administration. Senator Stafford courageously stepped forward to serve our Nation during the Carter administration. Senator Stafford made sure they were progressive on education, Federal disaster relief programs, and Federal emergency assistance. In 1988, President Reagan recognized the importance of moderating compromise, the Senate Stafford Student Loan Program has made higher education more accessible for millions of Americans, even for some who work in my office today.

Bob Stafford fought hard for the issues that mattered most to him. He believed passionately that higher education should be more accessible to all Americans, regardless of their socioeconomic status, and he was instrumental in creating the student loan program which today bears his name. The Stafford Student Loan Program has made higher education more accessible for millions of Americans, even for some who work in my office today. Bob was a champion of vocational education and training. Today the Stafford Technical Center, located in his hometown of Rutland, serves the needs of hundreds of students in Rutland County.

Bob Stafford also played an important role in another issue of enormous relevance today, Federal emergency assistance. In 1988, President Reagan signed into law the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act, a bill which provides the statutory authority for Federal disaster response activities pertaining to FEMA programs.

While his achievements in the areas of education and Federal disaster relief are certainly of note, perhaps his most enduring legacy will be for the work he did in protecting the environment and public health. He helped... shape and strengthen some of our Nation’s most critical environmental laws for over two decades.

As chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee from 1981 to 1986, Bob Stafford was instrumental in persuading Congress to expand and strengthen the Superfund law to watch cleanup law in the mid-1980s. It was in large part due to Robert Stafford’s unwavering commitment to this bill in 1980 that the Superfund Act became law at all. As many of us know, this law was an indispensable in forcing industry polluters to contribute money to finance cleanup and restoration of contaminated wastelands.

Bob Stafford believed passionately in the Federal Government’s commitment to improving the quality of our Nation’s air. This was never more evident than in his steadfast work to uphold the Clean Air Act when it was under attack during the 1980s. He did not shirk from taking on his friend President Reagan on one-on-one time with President Reagan. The Reagan administration amazed many of their members afterward that Bob would back off at all. He came back and kept on protecting the environment.

In fact, I remember talking to him once. They were so anxious to get him to change and let these rollbacks go through that they invited him down to the White House, to spend some one-on-one time with President Reagan. The Reagan administration amazed many of their members afterward that Bob would back off at all. He came back and kept on protecting the environment.

I said to him: Bob, what happened when you went down there to talk with President Reagan?

He said: Well, the President had notes of what he was supposed to say and he said it. Then he looked at me and he said: Bob, you’re probably not going to give in, are you? Bob said: No, no, I’m not, Mr. President, but I certainly appreciate the time to be with you.

I said then: What did you talk about the rest of the time?

Oh, we talked about our kids, we talked about sports, we talked about a lot of other things. He said: I had a wonderful conversation with President Reagan. But he did not budge on the environment, something no Vermonter would do.

His concern about the contamination of our water was truly remarkable. The consistent and clear manner in which he spoke about the danger of ozone depletion, acid rain, and the release of greenhouse gases related to global warming, during a very difficult period, was a source of inspiration to so many of his colleagues on both sides of the aisle. It certainly was an inspiration to me.

As EPW chairman, Senator Stafford also led the fight to improve the quality of our water. Working closely with Senator John Chafee and others on both sides of the aisle, his leadership was critical in reauthorizing the Clean Water Act in 1987. Bob cited the passage of this act as the culmination of one of the greatest bipartisan efforts in protecting our Nation’s environment. It really was. Republicans and Democrats came together. It gave me enormous pride to see him appear 3 years ago before the Senate in celebrating the anniversary. Thanks to Bob’s leadership during those difficult years of deregulation, our Nation was able to make great strides in reducing the levels of pollutants and contaminants in our water.

Even after leaving Congress, he served Vermont in many ways. He was a member of the University of Vermont’s School of Natural Resources Advisory Committee and attended the day-long hearings with his wife Helen up to just a few years ago. He also lectured at UVM, Norwich University, and Castleton State College. In 2003, his old alma mater, Middlebury College, honored both Bob and his wife Helen, also a Middlebury graduate, by inquiring on the occasion the Robert Stafford Professorship in Public Policy. Two people who had been together almost all their lives are together in this professorship.

Also in retirement, Bob continued to fight for clean air. In 1995, he joined forces with his friend and former colleague, Senator Edmund Muskie, in incorporating the Clean Air Trust, a non-profit organization dedicated to upholding and enforcing clean air legislation.

He leaves so many impressive achievements for his lifelong work in public service. But outside these public accomplishments, Senator Stafford was also a man of many personal hobbies and interests. It kind of reflects who he is. On weekends, he liked to slip out of Washington with his wife Helen and enjoy time on his boat, a full Moon, cruising down the Chesapeake Bay. Marcelle and I were fortunate enough to join them one occasion. He loved being out there. He loved everything about sailing. You can tell why the Navy holds him in such high regard back home.

He took flying lessons as a young man. He eventually got his pilot’s license in the early sixties. In fact, he would pilot a leased Cessna back and forth between Washington and Vermont.

It was a mark of this unique Senator that he welcomed and helped the first Senator of the other party to be elected in Vermont. I will always remember and cherish the walks we took down the halls and the times we would sit and talk at lunch. People thought we were talking so much about politics. We were talking about Vermont. We were talking about whether the foliage season was going to start early or late, and we would make a determined judgment when it would be. Heck, we had not the foggiest idea but, boy, we had fun determining when it would start.

No Senator could have learned as much from his fellow Senator as I did, nor could a senior Senator be so patient and understanding with his junior. Throughout our time together, when I had been inclined to move impulsively, it would be Bob Stafford who would help me decide what was truly in the best interest of the country and the people who had sent him to the unflappable person I have ever known.

I remember flying to Vermont with him once on a commercial airline. The plane hit a tremendous amount of turbulence. We suddenly found ourselves high in the air thousands of feet. At least one person was airborne in the cabin, and things were flying around. I knew my pulse raced ever so fast. When the pilot finally got control of the plane with a shuddering, barely managed to land, I was able to laugh until it hurt, and I did laugh.

Bob Stafford was a man who dedicated his entire adult life to public service because he deeply believed in the value of public service. And no matter where life took him, Bob stayed close to his Vermont roots. He never forgot the people he served. While many younger Vermonters and Americans may not know about Bob Stafford, his public service and leadership are examples for all of us. Our country would do well to stop and take notice of his life and reflect on how we should all serve our Nation better with his bipartisan leadership style.

It is with tremendous sadness that I say goodbye to this truly distinguished American, more importantly to an exceptionally dear friend. To honor Robert Stafford’s legacy, Senator Sanders and I along with U.S. Senator Peter Welch from Vermont, introduced a bill to rename the White Rocks National Recreation Area. This is an area Senator Stafford created in 1984. We are naming it after him. White Rocks was among his most beloved natural areas in our State. We know that he and Helen could actually see the towering white cliff face of White Rocks Mountain from their home. This will remind generations of future Vermonters of Senator Stafford’s leadership, achieving achievements and the humanity of his spirits.

I hope all my colleagues will support this legislation.

• Mr. SANDERS. Madam President, on the last day of the 110th Congress, I pay tribute to a former Member of this esteemed Chamber. On December 23, 2006, Senator Robert Stafford passed away. This was a tremendous loss for both Vermont and the country. There is no doubt, however, that his accomplishments in many areas will continue to be felt across this great Nation for countless years to come.
A native of Rutland, VT, Senator Stafford was born in 1913. Before representing Vermont in Washington, Bob Stafford spent years serving the people of our State, including as Attorney General. In 1960 he began service as Vermont’s lone voice in the U.S. House of Representatives, where he remained until 1971, when he became a Member of this hallowed body. During his 17 years in the United States Senate, Senator Stafford was known for his commitment to bipartisanship and congeniality.

Senator Stafford left his mark on our country in more ways than can be mentioned here today. He had an unwavering dedication to making education within reach of all our country’s citizens and today, countless Americans—maybe even some of the younger members in this Chamber—have benefited from the Stafford Student Loan program. Additionally, his commitment to the environment and public health was unshakable. Bob Stafford, from his position as Chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee from 1981 until 1986, worked tirelessly to address both air and water quality issues, even when it meant doing so against the wishes of his leaders in the highest levels. His courage on all of these issues, and so many others, will never be forgotten.

Leaving the Senate did not stop Bob Stafford from continuing to the common good. In fact, he remained active at the state level and continued to fight for protection of the environment. I can only hope that I will be as engaged for as long as he was.

To honor Senator Stafford, Senator Leahy and I, along with Representative Welch, introduced a bill today to authorize a project and to ask for the adoption of that resolution; that upon the adoption of the resolution, the preamble be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

I further ask consent that not-withstanding the adjournment of the Senate on Friday, January 5, S. 1 be considered to have received its second reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER FOR MONDAY, JANUARY 8, 2007

Mr. Reid. Madam President, it is my understanding that there are a couple of Senators who wish to speak. We will take care of that in a minute.

I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand adjourned until 11:30 a.m., on Monday, January 8, that following the prayer and the pledge, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in that day, and that the time until 12 noon be equally divided and controlled between the two leaders; that the resolution be adopted at noon, the Senate proceed to the consideration of S. Res. 19, a resolution celebrating the life of the late President Gerald R. Ford; that once the resolution is reported, the Senate then vote, without intervening objection or debate, on adoption of that resolution; that upon the adoption of the resolution, the preamble be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. Reid. Today was a good day in the Senate. The spirit of bipartisanship is in the air. I look forward to working with the Republican leaders and Members of Congress as we move ahead and forward in this Congress, the 110th Congress.

For the information of Members, the first vote next week is Monday, January 8, at 12 noon. Therefore, Members should be prepared to be here and ready to vote. Time will show what we will do, but votes will be a lot quicker than they used to be. We will not wait around for long times. Most of the votes are not very close, and it is not fair to keep Members from their constituents and other work in their office. If some people are not here, they will not be recorded within a reasonable period of time after the vote is called.

We hoped to proceed to S. 1. We do not have consent to move forward on that yet, but we are confident we will.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. Reid. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I ask unanimous consent the Senate stand adjourned under the previous order, following the remarks of Senator Landrieu for 10 minutes and Senator Coburn for 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

AUTHORIZATION OF MORGANZA TO THE GULF OF MEXICO HURRICANE PROTECTION PROJECT

Ms. Landrieu. Madam President, I come to the floor briefly to speak about a bill I introduced today on the first day of this 110th Congress to signify its importance to our State and to speak about that for a moment.

But before I do, I want to give my public congratulations to the new leadership of this Chamber, to thank the Senator from Nevada and the Senator from Kentucky, the majority leader and the minority leader, for their gathering together of all our leaders today, as the Presiding Officer also attended—a quite historic meeting of almost 100 of us in the Old Senate Chamber—and their commitment to us and to the Nation, although it was a private meeting, to work in a more collegial, cooperative way as this Congress begins and to try to forge the bipartisan solutions that we are calling for as a reflection of the outcome of the last elections.

I, for one, publicly want to commit myself to that endeavor and to work toward that end, as I continue to work across the aisle with many in the other party, and even Members such as the Presiding Officer in our own party, in the Democratic Party, to get the job done for our States.

In that regard, I introduced this bill today to authorize a project and to ask for special consideration for this very important levee and hurricane protection project in the State of Louisiana called Morganza to the Gulf. As today we look forward into what we are going to do with this new hope and new spring and new era of cooperation, that is terrific. But we also need to think about looking a little bit backward as to what we did not do in the last Congress or the Congresses before so we can pick up that work and move forward.

This initiative, Morganza to the Gulf, would fall into that category of a project that was actually approved not only by the last Congress, the 109th Congress, but the 108th and the 107th, and started back actually decades ago. And because of just a few technical glitches resulting in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers’ failure to timely complete its report, Congress extended authorization of the Morganza project expired. Eventually, the Corps submitted its report more than a year late and recommended authorization of the project.

Madam President, this project when completed will protect 120,000 people in south Louisiana, many of whom were devastated by two of the worst storms and flooding in the history of our country only 2 years ago, in 2005. However, these people are left vulnerable without this project being completed. It was part of a major WRDA bill, the Water Resources Development Act, of which this Congress worked together in quite an extraordinary bipartisan effort, as the Presiding Officer knows. You have been a part of that effort.

It comes out of the EPW Committee, the Environment and Public Works Committee. Democrats on that committee and Republicans worked very hard, into the late hours of the night, trying to get that bill through. But for a number of reasons, this massive bill, with billions of dollars of projects, could not be done in final hours.

But this one project, of all of the projects in the Nation, I believe deserves special attention, not because it is in Louisiana, not because Senator Vitter and I represent this, and not only late last year but late an authorization from Katrina and Rita but because this is one hurricane protection project that actually had been approved in the last WRDA bill. But because of untimeliness on the part of the Committee on Appropriations, we could not get it authorized in the last bill, and it should be first to be approved now.

I do not know what is going to happen with our WRDA bill. I am certain the Senator from California, who has pledged her support, and the ranking member of that committee, Senator Inhofe from Oklahoma, who is familiar with this, understand the special nature of this issue. Whether we can move this independently, I do not know. But I am going to ask, until we are told no, we are going to try. Senator Vitter is not here to speak for himself, but I know he feels very strongly about this, as indicated by his own actions and strong words he has put in the Record. Our House Members, both Republicans and Democrats, could make the same arguments on the House side. I know people may be tired of seeing the Senators from Louisiana and Mississippi come down and talk about the gulf coast. But it is America’s energy coast. It is a working coast. There are working people who live in real communities, large and small, whose homes have been devastated, whose churches have been destroyed, whose schools have been destroyed, and who still look to us to help them, to not waste their money or others’ money in the relief, to get it wisely and well and to provide at least the Federal partnership for these hurricane protection levees. And that is what this is.

The communities of Lafourche and Terrebonne Parishes, located in southeast Louisiana, which are the heart of America’s energy coast, are willing and able to do their engineering, to put up their own money, to make sure that the projects are done in an expedited fashion. But they cannot begin without this Federal authorization.

So I have introduced as stand-alone legislation, the Morganza to the Gulf of Mexico Hurricane Protection Project, as my first bill, to indicate the continued need throughout south Louisiana and the gulf coast for more protection from hurricanes and smart engineering, to stop asking for the things we think are most certainly meritorious of this Congress’s attention and to continue to say that with all the challenges of housing, health care, education, small business recovery, et cetera, that hurricane protection for levees and coastal restoration remains a constant need for the gulf coast and, I would predict, for other coasts around the country that need to wake up to the dangers of rising tides, of whatever, tsunamis on the west coast, hurricanes on the east coast, as a potential, and get serious about the business of stronger infrastructure and better planning about where and where not to build cities, the coastline.

But again, these are working communities that are there—not sunbathing, not condos—running ports, laying pipelines, and giving the Nation the energy infrastructure it needs. These people, just like in the big cities of New Orleans and Baton Rouge and Lafayette and Lake Charles—these small communities of Houma and Lafourche and Cocodrie and Golden Meadow and places that no one in Washington has ever heard of, but we visit all the time, deserve the protection of their Federal Government based on what they contribute to the Nation.

So I thank the Presiding Officer for letting me speak for the RECORD on this issue. I thank the leadership for giving me this time and commend it for the Senate to consider. Hopefully, we can pass it within the first weeks of this Congress.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. LANDRES). The Senator from Oklahoma.

STEWARDSHIP OF THE TAXPAYER’S MONEY

Mr. COBURN. Madam President, I want to spend a few minutes today to kind of summarize some of the events of the past year and kind of also to put the Senate on notice that what this election was about is us being good stewards of the taxpayers’ money.

I appreciate the distinguished Senator from Louisiana. I happen to be the Senator who held that bill up in the wee hours of the morning. There were some real good reasons why I did that. It is that time of the year that we have to change. There is no question that levee system needs to be authorized, and it will be authorized this year. There is no question. But there was a drudging component that was added to that bill. Nobody knew what it was going to cost, at least $100 million. That portion had not cleared the committee, and it was important that we not have habits such as that, to authorize programs that we do not have any idea what they cost.

We have heard a lot of talk about bipartisanship. We can all be partisan for America. If you go on the Federal Government’s Web site and go to the Comptroller General, David Walker, and you read what is there—I would encourage every American and every Senator to go read it—what you will find is on an absolute course. And the problems are bad now. Madam President, we have a $260 billion deficit this year with “Enron” accounting statistics, about a $360 billion accounting deficit by real accounting statistics, that is billion. That means if we are going to authorize a new program, we need to make sure a couple things happen. One is we need to make sure it does not duplicate something that is already there. And if it does, we need to eliminate what it duplicates if, in fact, it is better because there is an opportunity cost of funding two programs that we do the same thing. If it does it better, so every dollar you spend on the one that does it less well costs us money in terms of the value for our children.

Let me give you a couple other examples, things where our rules kind of mess us up. Because of the budgetary rules, Federal buildings in this country are no longer owned by the Federal Government—new ones. Why is that? For any other business, any individual would, if they were to lease a building, try to lease it. Because of our accounting rules, we lease them. Because if we lease purchase, then the agency has to show the entire cost of the building in their budget the year.

Well, it does not make accounting sense. I happen to have a degree in accounting. It is crazy accounting. But what it does is force us to make bad financial choices on things assets for the Federal Government. We cannot get rid of the buildings that we don’t want now. We spend $6 billion—that is billion with a “b”—a year maintaining buildings the Federal Government does not need. That goes $6 billion. The Pentagon spends $3 billion. That is a total of $9 billion.

So if we had the $9 billion, if we could get rid of the buildings we wanted to by streamlining that process, we could save $9 billion a year. Madam President, $9 billion would do a whole lot for the people of Louisiana as far as this levee system repair.
We know we can save about $30 billion every 5 years by having the buildings we acquire or lease become lease purchase because then the taxpayer gains from the real estate rise in value associated with those buildings. We have a lot to change in what we do. I am not a partisan Republican, but I am very partisan about the future of this country and what has to change to do that.

Some other examples I would want the American public to know that we could do something about tomorrow: We have an earned-income tax credit that has a 40-percent error rate on it. That means billions of dollars every year get paid to people who do not quality for their earned-income tax credit, but we do not fix it. We have not fixed it. Shame on us. We have $350 billion a year that is owed in taxes to the Federal Government—that is what the tax gap is this year—that will not be collected.

As a matter of fact, last year, the IRS, through incompetency, was putting on board a new program. They threw away their old program. But the new program was not ready, so they do not have a way to go back and track the problem tax payments. That is going to cost us $50 billion, $60 billion in lost revenues—one stupid error after another.

We have a program to help people with food called food stamps, except we have an error rate there, where we give out $1.6 billion to people who are absolutely not eligible for that program every year. In this very short conversation of what we have talked about, we have talked about over $400 billion that we would have. We would not be running a deficit now if we did some things efficiently.

In the last 2 years, the subcommittee I chaired, along with Tom Carper, the Senator from Delaware, had 46 hearings overseeing Federal financial management. We came up with, either from waste, fraud or duplication—not counting the tax gap, not counting any of these other things; I have talked about—$200 billion of fraudulent, wasteful or duplicative programs associated with the Federal Government.

What the American people ought to be asking us is, rather than creating new programs, fix the ones we have. Make them efficient. Eliminate the duplications.

I am planning, when I come back, to send a letter to my colleagues outlining what my procedures plan to be in terms of blocking new bills to the floor. I thought I would read it into the RECORD tonight so that if anybody has any disagreement with it, they would come speak with me.

First is for me to agree to a unanimous consent on legislation in the 110th Congress, the bill has to conform to the vision of the limited Federal Government set forth by the Constitution and our Founding Fathers. In other words, it has to be constitutional.

Second, if it creates or authorizes a new Federal program or activity, it must not duplicate an existing program or activity.

Third, if a bill authorizes new spending, it must have reductions in real spending elsewhere.

If a program or activity currently receives funding from sources including, but not limited to, the Federal Government, the bill shall not increase the Federal Government’s share of that spending.

Finally, if a bill establishes a new foundation, museum, cultural or historic site, or other entity that is not an agency or a department, the Federal funding should be limited to the initial start-up cost plus an endowment that can be added to through private funding.

The way we get out of the problems facing our country starting in 2012 is to endow the future rather than expand it. If we start endowing things—one of the former Presiding Officers, the Senator from Arkansas, had a plan to honor Bill Clinton’s birthplace home. I am not against that at all. But the average cost to the American taxpayer for every President’s birthplace home—and there are only 22 of them—is a million dollars a year. Divide that out for a minute. That is $3,000 a day to take care of a birthplace home. Most Americans would kind of like to have that to care for their home.

The answer to that is to create an endowment with a million dollars, set it up as a fund for the Bill Clinton birthplace home endowment. It can never be touched. People can give money to that, and they can care for that.

The earnings of that fund will be about $60,000 a year. That is about $200 a day, or about $5,000 a month. Most people in America—as a matter of fact, the vast majority of people in America don’t come close to spending that on maintaining their home in a year. So we can generously endow what needs to happen for the future and use the power of compound interest to help secure the future for our kids.

My hope is that this spirit of bipartisanship we are starting off with will lead us to do the things the American people want us to do, and that is to get control of this behemoth we call the Federal Government. We can do it if we work together and if we are partisan for our children, partisan for the future of our country, and if we will do the oversight. If our oversight is going to point at what President Bush did wrong rather than what we can do right to fix programs, eliminate inefficiencies and fraud and waste, we will do much more for the country.

I hope the words we have heard today will be acted on the entire 2 years of the 110th Congress. If they are and we follow these guidelines, we will see a surplus much sooner than 2012. We can do that but not without the hard work and dedication that says future generations are worth it, worth us doing what we need to do to make the difference. We could take care of every need of the people in Louisiana because we have tons of waste where we are spending in the wrong way, whether it is bridges to Alaska or railroads across Mississippi or financing defense contractors when insurance is going to pay their bill anyway; we could do it.

We have to stop playing the game and start thinking about the long term. My hand is out to work with anybody, whether on this side of the aisle or the other side, who wants to solve the fiscal problems facing this country. Then we can get about solving health care and retirement programs associated with Social Security and Medicare.
