

Our legislation helps families avoid foreclosure in the future by improving loan disclosures and transparency during the original loan financing process—something Jack Reed has advocated for some time.

Finally, it amends the Bankruptcy Code to allow home loans on a primary residence to be modified, only in certain circumstances with very strict guidelines.

Those are the five things. If the minority was serious about doing something with this legislation, they could offer amendments. If they don't like the bankruptcy provision, which they profess not to, let them move to strike it, let them move to modify it in some way. If they don't like any of these other four provisions—money for counselors, making it more transparent—let them offer amendments to strike them. I can't advocate strongly enough that if they don't like what we have, they can move to change it.

I have people on my side who would like to improve our bill. We can offer amendments. As I said, we can offer three, five on each side. It seems fair. But sadly, when the press conference was held last week on the Republicans' proposal to take care of the housing crisis, they want to lower taxes and they want to have tort reform.

To talk about our budget expending more taxpayers' dollars, we need only go back and look at how I started my remarks today. Today, we will spend $400 million on the war in Iraq, borrowed money. We don't have enough money under the present standard to have more than one person looking at the consumer safety commission—toys, for example, that come into this country. So we are willing to work. We are willing to legislate. It has been extremely difficult with 72 filibusters so far this Congress. But maybe today will bring a new day. Maybe we can move to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, which is a bipartisan piece of legislation, by the way. I would hope after that we don't have to use up the 30 hours. We can start this afternoon offering amendments on this legislation, doing opening statements. But maybe if we spend a couple days on this legislation, we can spend the rest of the week—if the Republicans finally decide what they want to do on the housing stimulus package—and finish that before we start the budget battle next week.

I thank the Chair.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Republican leader.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, the Washington Post just this morning—and I think we can all stipulate the Washington Post is not exactly a mouthpiece for Republicans or conservatism—began their editorial related to the housing issue this way:

It's much easier to identify well-intentioned housing policy proposals that might make a situation worse than to craft ones that will help. An example is the Democratic plan.

This is the Washington Post this morning taking a look at the proposal my good friend, the majority leader, discussed extolling the virtues of.

Now, look, there is a great opportunity to make matters worse. A good way to avoid that is to continue the discussions we can have not actually out here on the floor but the kind of discussions we have every day about a process for getting some kind of bipartisan approach on this bill.

I noted with interest that my good friend, the majority leader, the other day had his chart up with 72 filibusters on it. He is setting a record of his own, voting to cut off debate the first day a bill or resolution reaches the floor more than any previous majority leader, Republican or Democrat. During the first session of the 110th Congress, Senator REID filed cloture on the same day a bill or resolution was introduced nine times. This is three times more than Majority Leaders Frist, Daschle, Lott, Mitchell, and BYRD ever did in a first session of Congress and nine times more than in the first session of the 109th Congress.

Among these 72 Republican filibusters—and I guess, by the way, the vote this afternoon, which is probably going to be close to unanimous, will also make the list of filibusters and make it 73—includes Democratic filibusters—for example, Senator DODD's filibuster of the FISA bill last year; Democrats' filibuster of the McConnell-Stevens troop funding bill last November; Democrats' filibuster of Judge Leslie Southwick. Cloture motions that were filed by Republicans in an effort to end Democratic obstruction are also included. In fact, on more than half of the 72 Republican filibusters, Senate Democrats either voted to filibuster or voted with Republicans. On five of the filibusters, the vote was unanimous. On four of the filibusters, Democrats nearly unanimously voted against cloture themselves. Half the votes described as filibusters were actually successful votes where cloture was invoked and the bill was actually moved forward.

So if we are going to talk about this kind of thing, we at least need to get our facts right. Everybody is entitled to their own opinion, but they are not entitled to their own sets of facts. Those are the facts related to times in which we have had cloture votes in this 110th Congress.

So, Mr. President, back on the issue of housing, I think the best way forward, obviously—even though the Washington Post this morning is suggesting maybe we should delay for a while and see whether the administration's efforts produce some positive results—I think the best way forward in the Senate, as always, is to sit down and talk about some kind of process for going forward. I think the majority leader and I can do that as we do every day on every issue. I would look forward to having further discussions with him on how we might go forward and maybe come up with a bipartisan housing bill that will actually improve the situation.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the 72 filibusters are Republican filibusters, not Democratic holds of any kind, like Southwick, like FISA.

I would say this: Of course, Democrats voted many times with Republicans to invoke cloture on motions to proceed. We had no choice. The purpose of the filibusters on motions to proceed is to slow things down here. Once cloture is invoked, then they wait for 30 hours, and we can try to do something else after that.

Now, I am told—I learned right here today—that it will be near unanimous that people vote to go forward on consumer product safety. Why couldn't we have, Friday, avoided this vote and just moved to the bill today? That is what has ordinarily been done in the past. The reason we hold the record for moving forward on cloture is because we have had so many objections on so many things, such as the motion to proceed, which has caused us to waste huge amounts of time.

Now, as to the merits of the Washington Post and various newspapers, Mr. President, we have newspapers all over the country, including the New York Times, which say we should do something on housing. They even support our provision dealing with changing the Bankruptcy Code to help people who are in such a desperate situation.

So if the Republicans want to do something on the housing crisis, we are ready to work with them. If they want to do something on consumer product safety, why don't we start legislating and by consent move to it right now. We can avoid the vote this afternoon. We do not need the vote this afternoon. We should not have had to file cloture on it in the first place. It is a tremendous delay. We could have legislated on this Friday afternoon, all day Monday morning.

We are willing to work with the minority. I hope there is a new day, that we do not have to go through all these procedural hurdles every time. But we have had no opportunity to legislate the old-fashioned way here because every step of the way has been procedurally blocked. That is why it has been necessary that we file cloture 72 times on Republican filibusters.
