

members of the Judiciary Committee would work with us in considering the nominations of this Republican President. We have had the nominations of Kevin O'Connor to be Associate Attorney General, the number three position at the Department, and Gregory G. Katsas, to be Assistant Attorney General of the Civil Division, on our agenda since the middle of February. Three weeks ago, I placed the O'Connor and Katsas nominations on the committee's agenda but Republican members of our committee did not show up to make a quorum at that meeting or at our meeting last week. I adjourned both our February 14 and February 28 meetings for lack of a quorum. At the first meeting, only one Republican Senator was present. At the latter, the ranking member chose to leave. I hope we will be able to act on those nominations this week.

Of course, we could have made even more progress had the White House sent us timely nominations to fill the remaining executive branch vacancies with nominees who will restore the independence of Federal law enforcement. There are now 19 districts across the country with acting or interim U.S. attorneys instead of Senate-confirmed, presidentially appointed U.S. attorneys, and for which the administration has still failed to send the Senate a nomination. For more than a year I have been talking publicly about the need to name U.S. attorneys to fill these vacancies to no avail and urging the President to work with the Senate.

I was disappointed but not surprised to see the administration return to tired political attacks. What better time than right now, when the economy is slipping farther off the tracks, when the President's budget shows record annual triple-digit deficits, when al-Qaida is stronger and more virulent than ever, according to General Hayden and Director McConnell, and with Osama bin Laden still at large, when gas prices and unemployment are rising, and a mortgage crisis grips many parts of the country. I wish the President would put aside his partisan playbook and work with us.

I trust that Mark Filip understands that the duty of the Deputy Attorney General is to uphold the Constitution and the rule of law not to work to circumvent it. Both the President and the Nation are best served by a Justice Department that provides sound advice and takes responsible action, without regard to political considerations—not one that develops legalistic loopholes to serve the ends of a particular administration.

I congratulate Judge Filip and his family on his confirmation.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume legislative session. The Senator from Texas.

172ND ANNIVERSARY OF TEXAS INDEPENDENCE DAY

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I rise today because it is the 172nd anniversary of Texas Independence Day.

I wish to take a moment to read a letter that is such an important part of the history of Texas. It is the letter of William Barrett Travis from the Alamo. This is a tradition I have continued that was started by my colleague and friend, Senator John Tower, to commemorate Texas Independence Day every year, which is March 2. Now, of course, March 2 was yesterday, which is Sunday, so I always try to do it as close to March 2 as I can, as Senator Tower did when he was serving in this body.

The Texas Declaration of Independence was a document that was signed by, among others, my own great, great grandfather, Charles S. Taylor, as well as his great friend, Thomas Rusk, who became one of the first two Senators from Texas and whose seat I hold today. They both hailed from Nacogdoches, which is the oldest town in Texas. It is the town where my mother grew up and where my great, great grandfather was a delegate to the convention that declared independence from Mexico for the territory that was Texas. It is a historic time for Texas. We celebrate Texas Independence Day every single year because we know fighting for freedom has made a difference in what Texas is. We love our history. We fought for freedom and we were a republic, an independent nation for 10 years. Then, we came into the United States under a treaty as a State.

The defense of the Alamo by 189 courageous men, who were outnumbered 10 to 1, was a key battle in the Texas revolution. The sacrifice of COL William Barrett Travis and his men made possible GEN Sam Houston's ultimate victory at San Jacinto, which secured independence for Texas. That is where Santa Anna, the general in charge of the Mexican Army, formally surrendered and that was end of the fight for Texas independence.

Colonel Travis wrote to his countrymen a letter asking for reinforcements:

Fellow citizens and compatriots: I am besieged by a thousand or more of the Mexicans under Santa Anna. I have sustained a continual bombardment and cannonade for 24 hours and have not lost a man—the enemy has demanded a surrender at discretion; otherwise, the garrison is to be put to the sword if the fort is taken. I have answered the demands with a cannon shot and our flag still waves proudly from the wall. I shall never surrender or retreat.

Then, I call on you in the name of liberty, of patriotism and of everything dear to the American character, to come to our aid with all dispatch. The enemy is receiving reinforcements daily and will no doubt increase to 3,000 or 4,000 in 4 or 5 days. If this call is neglected, I am determined to sustain myself as long as possible and die like a soldier who never forgets what is due to his own honor and that of his country—victory or death.

William Barrett Travis, LT. COL. Commander.

That was the letter he wrote from the Alamo. He did not get reinforcements. Those brave 189 men did, in fact, fight against what is estimated to be 4,000 or 5,000 Mexican soldiers, but they held long enough for GEN Sam Houston to muster his strength and add to his Army. Then, about a month later, in April, the San Jacinto battle did take place against the Mexican Army and Santa Anna surrendered. So it was an important part in Texas history which we value and celebrate very thoroughly every March 2nd. I will continue the tradition of Senator Tower as long as I am in the Senate, and I hope it can continue.

I yield the floor.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Illinois is recognized.

MORTGAGE CRISIS

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, last week we had a debate on the floor of the Senate about three different measures. The frustration was that at the end of the week, nothing happened. Now a lot of people who watch C-SPAN and observe the Senate in session wonder if anything ever happens. It seems as though there are a lot of gaps in activity here—so-called quorum calls—that seem to go on and on and on, and then you switch to another channel. Of course, if you are a Member of the Senate, there is a frustration about this if you came here and believed part of your job is to try to solve problems facing this country.

Early in the week, we tried to start a debate on the policy on the war in Iraq. It was an important debate. It is one we have tried to initiate many times over. Under the way the Senate rules are written, the minority party—the Republican Party—can “filibuster” is what they call it around here, which means stretch out the debate until there is no end in sight, and then you file what is called a cloture motion to close down the debate to get to a vote, but you need 60 votes to close down the debate. So these cloture motions to stop filibusters are brought to the floor, and if you don't have 60 Senators who will say close down the debate and get to a vote, you have to move to something else. The filibuster worked. Last week, three times the Republicans had successful filibusters, stopping us from debating a change in the policy in the war in Iraq to start to bring American soldiers home.

Then, the second vote was a report from the Bush administration on the progress that is being made to capture Osama bin Laden and to stop worldwide terrorism. They filibustered that too. They didn't want the administration to report.

Then came the housing bill to deal with the mortgage crisis around America, and we had six very sound and good ideas to try to deal with it. They filibustered that, too, and they stopped it. What a frustration. At the end of
