

Under Bishop's tenure as Sevierville City Administrator, he brought an events center and key infrastructure like water plants, fire stations and sewer systems.

Doug's values and characteristics embody that of a true Tennessee Volunteer. When attending college during the Vietnam War, he left to join the Air Force where he served in Vietnam and Thailand.

Doug Bishop's service to the United States, Tennessee, and Sevierville should not go unnoticed.

Madam Speaker, I ask that the House join me today in honoring the life of Doug Bishop and offering our sympathies to his family and friends. He was a dedicated member of the community who loved his family to no end. His service to the City of Sevierville is greatly treasured and he will be deeply missed.

PAYING TRIBUTE TO THE COMMON GOALS OF PEACE, DEMOCRACY, AND JUSTICE BETWEEN CYPRUS AND THE UNITED STATES

HON. MAURICE D. HINCHEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 24, 2008

Mr. HINCHEY. Madam Speaker, Cyprus and the U.S. share a deep and long-lasting commitment to upholding the ideals of freedom, democracy, justice, human rights, and the international rule of law. The international community has an obligation to stand with Cypriots to reunify their island and take the necessary steps towards reconciliation and peace.

The 34th commemoration of the Turkish invasion of Cyprus reminds us to recognize those who lost their lives in the invasion and to condemn the ongoing Turkish occupation. The solution of the Cyprus problem must be based on a bi-communal, bi-zonal federal State of Cyprus with a single sovereign entity and a single citizenship. This arrangement must comprise of two politically equal communities, as described by the relevant UN Security Council Resolutions, and protect the independence and territorial integrity of the nation. It must reunite the island, its people, its institutions and its economy.

The Republic of Cyprus has a long history of working cooperatively with the United States on issues of international concern and it is my belief that the United States Government, including Congress, should work to continue and expand that relationship and work towards a united, peaceful, and prosperous Cyprus.

HONORING SILAS NYRICK

HON. SAM GRAVES

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 24, 2008

Mr. GRAVES. Madam Speaker, I proudly pause to recognize Silas Nyrick of Blue Springs, Missouri. Silas is a very special young man who has exemplified the finest qualities of citizenship and leadership by taking an active part in the Boy Scouts of America, Troop 1605, and earning the most prestigious award of Eagle Scout.

Silas has been very active with his troop, participating in many scout activities. Over the many years Silas has been involved with scouting, he has not only earned numerous merit badges, but also the respect of his family, peers, and community.

Madam Speaker, I proudly ask you to join me in commending Silas Nyrick for his accomplishments with the Boy Scouts of America and for his efforts put forth in achieving the highest distinction of Eagle Scout.

HOUSING AND ECONOMIC RECOVERY ACT OF 2008

SPEECH OF

HON. BETTY MCCOLLUM

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 23, 2008

Ms. MCCOLLUM of Minnesota. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the American Housing Rescue and Foreclosure Prevention Act, H.R. 3221, and to congratulate Chairman FRANK and Speaker PELOSI for their quick action to help American families.

The dream of homeownership has become a nightmare for too many people in our country. Nationally, between 7,000 and 8,000 people a day are filing for foreclosure, and estimates show that over 28,000 Minnesotans will lose their homes to foreclosure in 2008. Foreclosures hurt our families, neighborhoods, and communities. I saw the impact of the foreclosure crisis firsthand when visiting the east side neighborhoods in St. Paul who are hit hardest by this crisis. Foreclosures result in lost tax revenue for local governments, reduced property values for neighbors, and can often contribute to criminal activity.

Congress must act to protect families and neighborhoods from a further expansion of this crisis, which is why I strongly support H.R. 3221. This legislation is a comprehensive response that will help families facing foreclosure keep their homes, help other families avoid foreclosures in the future, and help communities harmed by empty homes in the foreclosure process.

Specifically, H.R. 3221 expands a Federal Housing Administration program to allow borrowers in danger of losing their home to refinance into lower-cost Government-insured mortgages they can afford to repay. This voluntary program is not a bailout. Mortgage investors must take significant losses by reducing the loan principal, borrowers must share any profit from the resale of the home, and only primary residences are eligible. In addition, this bill provides $4 billion in emergency assistance, CDBG Funds, to communities hit hardest by the foreclosure and sub prime crisis to purchase, rent, or rehabilitate vacant foreclosed homes with the goal of occupying them as soon as possible.

This bill provides new tax incentives to increase home buying, which will not only help families build wealth, but could also create jobs in our communities. For those who cannot buy a home, H.R. 3221 creates a new Housing Trust Fund to increase the Nation's stock of affordable rental housing at no cost to the taxpayer. The legislation protects veterans and returning soldiers from foreclosure by increasing the VA loan limit, lengthening the time a lender must wait before starting foreclosure when a soldier returns, and increasing benefits to adapt the homes of veterans with service-related disabilities.

H.R. 3221 also responds to the financial crisis facing Government Sponsored Enterprises or GSEs by giving the Secretary of the Treasury the authority to buy stock in those companies to restore confidence in the financial and housing market and ensure the safe and sound operation of these enterprises. These GSEs are central to the housing market and the economy as a whole, as they are the largest sources of mortgage finance in the United States—buying more than two-thirds of new mortgages in the first three months of 2008. While recognizing this necessity, this legislation will also protect taxpayers by requiring that taxpayers are paid back before shareholders, adding restrictions on executive compensation, and strengthening oversight by putting an independent new regulator in charge. These measures will help safeguard the interests of the American taxpayer and ensure the availability of affordable home loans, while also strengthening the regulation of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac and raising the GSE loan limit.

Our priority as a community must be to get the economy moving, provide opportunities to succeed, and to restore the United States as a global leader. H.R. 3221 is a comprehensive response and will make a real difference for families and communities. And ending the foreclosure crisis—ensuring that families have access to safe and stable housing—is vital to the recovery of the American economy.

We need this legislation to get this country back on the right track. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and move our housing policy in a new direction.

REMEMBERING THE FALL OF ZEPA—ONE OF SIX U.N. DECLARED "SAFE HAVENS" IN BOSNIA

HON. CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 24, 2008

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Madam Speaker, on July 25, 1995, Zepa, one of the six "safe havens" that the U.N. declared during the 1992–1995 war in Bosnia and Herzegovina, fell to the Army of Republika Srpska. This happened 2 weeks after U.N. forces abandoned the Srebrenica "safe haven" to the same force, which committed genocide by killing 8,000 Bosniak men and boys, and raping an unknown number of Bosniak women.

Madam Speaker, before the war Zepa was a village of great natural beauty. Three thousand people lived there, and 750 children attended its primary school. Today the village is a standing reminder of the evil history of ethnic cleansing: only about 500 returnees live there and most of them are unemployed.

On July 11th of this year hundreds of diplomats and members of the international community joined thousands of Bosnian mourners and elected officials to mark the 13th anniversary of the fall of Srebrenica. Madam Speaker, tomorrow let us mark July 25th with the same solemnity and remember the victims of Zepa. Let us share the painful memories of the horror that befell the village 13 years ago and let us never forget that only justice and democratic governance will lead to a stable and prosperous Bosnia and Herzegovina.

INTRODUCTION OF H.R. 6525, THE AMERICAN HISTORY AND CIVIC ACHIEVEMENT ACT

HON. BETTY McCOLLUM

OF MINNESOTA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 24, 2008

Ms. McCOLLUM, of Minnesota. Madam Speaker, last week I introduced the American History and Civic Achievement Act to renew our national commitment to teaching history and civics in America's schools. This legislation is a companion to S. 1414, a bill authored by Senators KENNEDY and ALEXANDER, and it will help ensure that our schools maintain their important civic role in creating the next generation of engaged and informed citizens.

Social studies education is a vital mission of our public schools. With our rapidly changing world and all the challenges we must face as an international community, it is more important than ever that children grasp basic concepts about history, civics, geography and economics. These core disciplines help students understand the world today and give them the ability to think about possibilities for making things better tomorrow.

It is alarming that studies indicate that too many students do not know history and geography or understand basic facts about government and economics. According to the most recent National Assessment of Education Programs (NAEP) for U.S. History and Civics, nearly 75 percent of eighth graders cannot explain the historical importance of the Declaration of Independence. Even more eighth graders do not know why America was involved in the Korean War or how the fall of the Berlin Wall affected U.S. foreign policy.

These trends threaten the future vitality of our democracy. While we are making some progress thanks to the hard work of many history and civics teachers in classrooms across America, we must do more. Additionally, underfunding is prompting many school districts to cut resources for social studies instruction.

H.R. 6525 takes important steps to improve social studies education by making changes to the National Assessment of Education Programs (NAEP). This continuing assessment, also known as "The Nation's Report Card," can currently evaluate social studies subjects—but only "to the extent time and resources allow." While social studies testing is on the NAEP schedule, it has recently been targeted for elimination due to funding challenges. My legislation protects this important study in several ways: Requires a national assessment of students in American history under the NAEP at least every four years; creates new 10-state pilots to assess history and civics under NAEP to provide quality information and comparable results across states for educators; provides funding to ensure a quality assessment.

This legislation will allow more effective analysis of social studies in classrooms across America. The future of our democracy relies on having well-educated, highly skilled citizens with the ability to think critically, which is why

I urge my colleagues to support this legislation.

IN HONOR OF ANNETTE MORMAN

HON. SANFORD D. BISHOP, JR.

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 24, 2008

Mr. BISHOP of Georgia. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Annette Morman, a member of the Georgia Municipal Association, the Mitchell County Hospital Authority, and a citizen of the Second Congressional District of Georgia, which I am privileged to represent.

Annette Morman is a native of Baconton, Georgia. She attended Dent-Reynolds Elementary School and graduated from Camilla Consolidated High School in 1966. She then furthered her education by attending both the Albany Technical College and Albany State University.

Ms. Morman is a very dedicated woman in many aspects of her life. She helps the children of her community through her job as a caseworker for the Mitchell County Department of Family and Children Services. For 34 years, she has guaranteed children in the area are protected and receive proper care. She truly epitomizes the motto, "no child left behind."

In addition to her service to children throughout the county, Ms. Morman leads her community through civic involvement. She has served on the Baconton City Council for 14 years in the same seat that her father, James E. Morman, once held. While on the council, she has served on the Recreation Committee, Budget Committee, and Chaired the Grand Opening Dedication of the Jackson Davis House.

Ms. Morman also serves on the Workforce Investment Board, the Mitchell County Democratic Executive Committee, and the Mitchell County School Board Facility Committee. Ms. Morman is also a devoted member of St. James Missionary Baptist Church, where she has served in numerous capacities.

Ms. Morman is the loving mother of two children: Olivia Dionne Morman and Dexter Dwayne Morman and the proud grandmother of five grandchildren.

Madam Speaker I am so pleased to honor this great woman who not only exemplifies the qualities of a dedicated activist for children, the community, and the church, but also epitomizes everything great about the United States of America.

HONORING VINE VILLAGE OF NAPA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

HON. MIKE THOMPSON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 24, 2008

Mr. THOMPSON of California. Madam Speaker, I rise today to honor Vine Village of Napa County on the occasion of their 35th anniversary. Vine Village has done visionary work to provide people with developmental disabilities a comfortable place to call their home.

Thirty-five years ago, Grace Kerson, George Kerson and Dante Bagnani looked around at the options they had for their developmentally disabled children: virtual isolation in an independent living situation, or institutionalization. They concluded that there had to be a better way; that people with developmental disabilities could have a comfortable home that allowed them social interaction and the same quality of life as their non-handicapped peers while still meeting their care needs.

The fruit of their ingenuity and compassion is Vine Village in Napa, California. Today at Vine Village, 19 developmentally disabled adults live full-time on a beautiful 25 acre ranch in the Cameros region amongst the animals and vineyards. They also maintain a day arts and recreation program that can be attended by any developmentally disabled person in the community.

The Kerson family remains the main benefactors of Vine Village. Grace and George's son, Michael and his wife, Nancy have directed Vine Village since 1973, and their daughter, Saanen, joined the staff in 2007. Debbie Kerson remains a resident.

Madam Speaker, it is appropriate at this time that we thank the Kerson family and everyone at Vine Village for the remarkable work they have done for our community. Only through the hard work and generous contributions of countless members of our community has this program thrived for the past 35 years, and I know that we will see much more progress in the years to come.

HONORING NEAL THOMAS

HON. SAM GRAVES

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 24, 2008

Mr. GRAVES. Madam Speaker, I proudly pause to recognize Neal Thomas of Blue Springs, Missouri. Neal is a very special young man who has exemplified the finest qualities of citizenship and leadership by taking an active part in the Boy Scouts of America, Troop 1696, and earning the most prestigious award of Eagle Scout.

Neal has been very active with his troop, participating in many scout activities. Over the many years Neal has been involved with scouting, he has not only earned numerous merit badges, but also the respect of his family, peers, and community.

Madam Speaker, I proudly ask you to join me in commending Neal Thomas for his accomplishments with the Boy Scouts of America and for his efforts put forth in achieving the highest distinction of Eagle Scout.

HONORING THE FBI ON ITS 100TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. FRANK R. WOLF

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, July 24, 2008

Mr. WOLF. Madam Speaker, I had the privilege of attending the 100th anniversary commemoration event for the Federal Bureau of Investigation on July 17 at the National Building Museum.

I insert for the record the remarks of Robert S. Mueller III, who was appointed the sixth director of the Bureau just one week before the
