

economy. One example of CPBR's research is the current use of Miscanthus as a feedstock for bio-ethanol and other industrial chemicals—a discovery which is currently used to reduce pollution from petroleum-based products throughout the energy industry. This is a clear example of the contributions which this group has made in moving our nation toward energy independence and improved technological efficiency.

We are all aware that advancing energy technology is one of the most important issues we face today. It is an issue that many feel very passionate about and affects the pockets of all of us and our constituents.

So it is essential that we continue to support activities of worthy organizations such as CPBR.

Mr. Chair, in closing, the enormity and size of the challenges facing communities impacted by the energy crisis is overwhelming. Funding for the work of the CPBR is worthy of continuation, and I would urge my colleagues to oppose the Flake amendment.

HONORING TEXAS COACH NEAL QUILLIN

HON. TED POE

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 17, 2009

Mr. POE of Texas. Madam Speaker, every day America's youth are guided, counseled and taught life lessons by their school coaches. These kids learn what it means to persevere through the tough times and the difference between right and wrong from these revered advisors.

Coach Neal Quillin is one such coach. He has any been a pillar of the Houston area community for years and has pushed many young men and women to be the best and never take losing for an answer. A true Texan Hero, Coach Quillin grew up in the Lone Star State and received his BA and Masters from Stephen F. Austin University. He has a list of honors and awards that any coach would dream of including a 4A State Football Championship, multiple state football tournament appearances, and has won 11 district championships. He has received the honor of Coach of the year multiple times by the Houston Chronicle, the Houston Post, and the Houston Touchdown Club. The most outstanding thing about this man is not his own accomplishments—it is what he has done for his players and students. Coach Quillin has coached ten NFL players and has served as a mentor to Texas' students for 44 years. Coach Quillin has served 12 Texas schools as a Coach and was at Humble High School for 15 years. He is currently the defensive line coach at Atascocita High School.

Today, July 22, Coach Quillin will receive one of the biggest honors a coach can—he will be inducted into the Texas High School Coaches Association. I would like to congratulate Coach Neal Quillin on his lifetime of community service and thank him for helping to make Texas a great place for students to learn and athletes to excel.

And that's just the way it is.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE
REUNIFICATION OF CYPRUS

HON. ED WHITFIELD

OF KENTUCKY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 17, 2009

Mr. WHITFIELD. Madam Speaker, there is no doubt that a historic opportunity to unify the island Cyprus was missed on April 24, 2004 when 76 percent of Greek Cypriots in separate simultaneous referenda in both sides of the island rejected the U.N. comprehensive settlement plan, known as the Annan Plan.

After the referenda, the Greek Cypriots became a full member of the European Union, while the social, economic and political isolation of the Turkish Cypriots still continues despite their affirmative vote in the referenda with a 65 percent majority.

Until the recent change in leadership in South Cyprus in February 2008 the issue was at a virtual standstill; however, in September 2008, Greek Cypriot leader Demetris Christofias and Turkish Cypriot leader Mehmet Ali Talat, launched full-fledged negotiations to find a comprehensive settlement to the Cyprus problem. The negotiations which were revived thanks to the insistence of the Turkish Cypriot side have been welcomed by the international community, including the United States, the European Union and others.

Hopes are high among the international community that a mutually acceptable settlement might be reached. In order to promote the spirit of goodwill generated during the recent meetings, I encourage this body to support the two Cypriot leaders as they work toward reunification.

On July 20th the Turkish Cypriots commemorate the 35th anniversary of the Turkish peace operation which prevented an attempt by Greece to annex the island. Although peace prevails in Cyprus today, the social, economic and political development of the Turkish Cypriots have been restricted for more than four decades.

Despite their continued commitment to achieving a just and lasting settlement that respects the political equality of the two peoples on the island, the Turkish Cypriot people are still waiting for the international community to honor the promises it made to them that their isolation would be lifted.

Madam Speaker, if the process is to move forward toward a lasting settlement it is important that the United States Congress recognize the unwavering commitment of the Turkish Cypriot people to unify the island and encourage the lifting of the isolation.
