

Washington Honor Medal. In addition, Mr. St. John, Mr. Fabbri, and Mr. Shaw were awarded the Medal of Honor by the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution. In 2007, Mr. St. John was inducted into the Connecticut American Legion Hall of Fame as part of its inaugural class.

Last Saturday, as on the 240 Saturdays prior, one flag was retired and another was raised in Bantam. We celebrate and remember the lives of not only the 2 veterans honored at the ceremony, but all those who have participated over the years.

TRIBUTE TO CONGRESSMAN JOSEPH D. EARLY IN RECOGNITION OF HIS ROLE IN LAUNCHING THE LIFE SCIENCE INDUSTRY IN WORCESTER, MA

HON. JAMES P. McGOVERN

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 28, 2009

Mr. MCGOVERN. Madam Speaker, I rise today to congratulate my hometown of Worcester, Massachusetts on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the life sciences industry as a major economic force within the city and the entire region. Due to scheduled votes here in the House of Representatives, I regret that I am unable to attend tonight's celebration of this occasion which has been organized by the Massachusetts Biomedical Initiatives (MBI) and will be hosted by Abbot Laboratories in Worcester's Biotechnology Park. I am personally grateful to Kevin O'Sullivan and the leadership of MBI for ensuring this important milestone did not pass without properly recognizing the many individuals who had the foresight to realize the limitless potential of this fledgling industry and who in turn planted a flag in the heart of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts announcing to the world that biotechnology will be the future of our proud city. I particularly want to acknowledge the extraordinary contributions of my friend Governor Michael Dukakis and the late William Short to this effort which now, a quarter century later, has spawned thousands of jobs and remarkable advances in healthcare right in Worcester, Massachusetts.

I am, however, especially pleased that my predecessor, friend and colleague, Congressman Joseph D. Early, is also being honored tonight for the absolutely pivotal role he played in the creation of Worcester's biotechnology cluster. In his own quiet but effective way, Congressman Early relentlessly championed federal funding on the House Appropriations Committee for both the biotech park and for medical research at the National Institutes of Health (NIH). Before anyone else, Congressman Early understood that the local economy of his beloved city was in need of a transformation from a rich heritage of heavy manufacturing towards a new 21st century industry that would produce the next generation of highly skilled jobs. His prescient vision and dogged determination forced Worcester to confront a harsh reality at that time; the city's future prosperity was directly dependent upon the ability to marry the immense intellectual capital at the University of Massachusetts

Medical School and the city's other fine colleges and universities with its renowned tradition of industrial innovation. Due in large part to Congressman Early's leadership, that marriage took the shape of Worcester's Biotechnology Park and its success today is part of his unrivaled legacy of service to his district and the untold number of constituents who have benefited from his advocacy.

Madam Speaker, all of us in elected office hope one day to be remembered not so much for the votes we have taken or the speeches we have given but for the very real, tangible and enduring examples of our public service. In that spirit, Congressman Joe Early's fingerprints are all over Worcester's Biotechnology Park and the rapidly expanding life science industry our city now enjoys. In as much as Congressman Early is a household name in Worcester, he remains a revered figure to those crusading pioneers at the National Institutes of Health who still remember and desperately miss his fierce commitment to federal funding for medical research.

As he modestly accepts the honor bestowed upon him tonight, I want Congressman Early to personally know how much I truly admire him for the contributions he has made to the life sciences in Worcester and around the world. He inspires me to work all that much harder to support and promote biotechnology in Worcester and I will forever be grateful for the example he has given me.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. MICHAEL E. CAPUANO

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 28, 2009

Mr. CAPUANO. Madam Speaker, last week and earlier this week I missed several rollcall votes and I wish to state for the record how I would have voted had I been present: rollcall No. 812—"yes"; rollcall No. 813—"yes"; rollcall No. 814—"yes"; rollcall No. 815—"yes".

HONORING FRIENDS OF CHILDREN WITH SPECIAL NEEDS

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, October 28, 2009

Mr. STARK. Madam Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Friends of Children With Special Needs (FCSN), a nonprofit organization dedicated to providing support, friendship, and life skills training to developmentally disabled individuals and their families. Formed in 1996, FCSN is based in Fremont, California.

FCSN offers special needs children an accepting, educational, and fun environment. The organization provides resources and information for families with special needs children and advocates for full-inclusion educational systems that allow special needs children to interact with their peers. FCSN also educates family members, friends, and students to promote better understanding of developmental disabilities.

The organization assists thousands of special needs individuals each year. In 2006, FCSN opened the Dream Center in Fremont, California, which now serves over 250 children and adults with autism, Down's syndrome, and cerebral palsy. In May 2008, FCSN began offering programs in San Jose to support the South Bay community. There are plans to transform the South Bay Center into another fully operative Dream Center in 2010. These centers allow FCSN to provide additional services, such as job training, therapeutic modalities and day programs.

FCSN's mission is to "help children with special needs and their families find hope, love, respect, and support through integrated community involvement." I applaud everyone who has come together to support the continuing success of Friends of Children With Special Needs as they strive to meet these goals.
