IN HONOR OF 2011 BRAIN
AWARENESS WEEK

HON. RUSS CARNAHAN
OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 17, 2011

Mr. CARNAHAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate Brain Awareness Week and the benefits of this informative week in educating students on brain science in my congressional district and across the country. During Brain Awareness Week, which is held March 14–20, neuroscientists around the globe educate K–12 students, senior citizens and the public at large on the wonders of the human brain. These activities include tours of neuroscience laboratories, museum exhibitions and classroom discussions on the elements of the human brain.

In my congressional district, neuroscientists at Washington University recognized Brain Awareness Week during their annual NeuroDay on March 5. Nearly 5,000 of my constituents walked through the St. Louis Science Center to learn about brain research and treatments in the area. The daylong event included exhibits called Hands-on Human Brains, The Buzz about the Electric Dish, Spying Tips from Horseshoe Crabs, The Teenage Brain on Prism Goggles, and The 6th Sense.

Today, in recognition of Brain Awareness Week, I would like to highlight a devastating neurological condition that affects millions of Americans: Multiple Sclerosis, MS. As a co-chair of the Congressional Multiple Sclerosis caucus, I understand firsthand how this devastating and chronic disease can rob people of their ability to walk, talk, or even tie their shoes. Today, MS is the most common central nervous system disease among young adults after epilepsy and is a lifetime ailment of unknown origin that affects more than 400,000 Americans. MS is diagnosed mainly in individuals between the ages of 20 and 50, with 2 of 3 cases occurring in women. Although a cause has yet to be found, MS is thought to be an autoimmune disease in which the body's natural defenses react against the myelin and nerve fibers in the central nervous system as though they were foreign tissue.

Mr. Speaker, both genetic and environmental factors are probably involved in the cause. Previous studies had suggested that MS susceptibility peaked before the age of 15; more recent, larger studies suggest that there is no exact age cutoff. Thanks to research conducted through the National Institutes of Health, NIH, and the National Science Foundation—our premier scientific enterprises—which continue to provide hope to the 50 million Americans who suffer from neurological disorders annually. For example, the NIH is leading the way to promising new treatments for MS. One NIH-funded study showed that so-called “progenitor” cells in the brain might be used to help regenerate areas of the brain that have lost myelin.

I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing Brain Awareness Week and the contributions that scientists who study the brain and nervous system are making to understanding more about the onset of MS and the innovation of potential treatments that can more effectively ease the pain and suffering of individuals who grapple with this crippling illness during the prime of their lives.

IN RECOGNITION OF BOY SCOUT
TROOP 1818 AND CUB SCOUT
PACK 1818

HON. GERALD E. CONNOLLY

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. CONNOLLY of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Pack 1818 and Troop 1818, the Jewish Cub Scout Pack and Boy Scout Troop that are based in my neighborhood in Mantua in Fairfax. Cub Scout Pack 1818 now boasts 34 boys ranging from Grade 1 to Grade 5. Chartered by the Olam Tikvah Men's Club since 2000, Pack 1818 provides an opportunity for these boys to take in a variety of sports, crafts, and outdoor activities, like hiking and camping.

This year, Tiger Cubs include: Jacob Boyett, Elijah Fischer, Benjamin Golden, Ari Pearlstein, Nathan Rothberg, Isaac Saiger, and Matthew Wurmser. Wolf Cubs include Jacob Book, Nathan Chernys, Ben Engler, Daniel Fertel, Alex Frame, Zach Grossman, Sebastian Jones, Aidan Jupiter, Jacob Hemmerdinger, Rueben Hemmerdinger, Solomon Hutchins, Ben Neifeld, and Zachary Shmargal-Ellison. Bear Cubs include Mitchell Akawie, Samuel Goldberg, Jared Johnson, Michael Krasovskiy, Ilan Nabathkhorian, Lars Rosen, and Jacob Rutzick. First year Webelos include Solomon Jones while second year Webelos include Joshua Ackerman, Kenny Book, David Chernys, Daniel Dorlester, Jordan Lamar, and Aaron Shurberg.

I am especially pleased to note that these last six boys—the second year Webelos—will transition to Boy Scouts during a ceremony this evening. Each of those boys has earned the Arrow of Light award.

After they become Boy Scouts, the number of Boys in Troop 1818 will equal 18, which in Jewish tradition corresponds to Life. Troop 1818, which is only three years old, has emerged as an important force for so many boys' lives. Troop 1818 provides opportunities to build lifelong skills and values, and make lasting friendships through weekly activities and a variety of outdoor programs. The boys have a chance to earn merit badges in such diverse areas as engineering, camping, orienteering, nuclear science, and first aid. This past year, boys from Troop 1818 got to learn CPR, build and sleep in a snow igloo, and attend the 100th anniversary National Jamboree with Scouts from around the country and world.

Troop 1818 currently includes Benjy Ackerman, Max Chernys, Jamie Frame, Josh Hone, Casey Lamar, Ezra Lapidus, Levi Meerovich, Josh Rutzick, Sam Rutzick, Ezra Postelnek, Yosef Postelnek, and Zach Watts. These boys have made significant accomplishments over the past year—earning merit badges and multiple rank advancements—which they will receive at their semi-annual Court of Honor this weekend.

Finally, I'd like to also recognize Robert Book, who founded Troop 1818 and current serves as Committee Chair for Pack 1818. An Eagle Scout himself, Robert is being recognized this weekend for his accomplishments by being presented with the Shofar Award.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to rise and join me in congratulating these scouts and also in thanking the troop leaders, parents and families for their dedication to our youth.
