

Isaiah was born into the shadows of life. Leukemia could not overtake him, but the shadows could, and they did.

I am not blind to Isaiah's responsibilities; nor was he. He was embarrassed by his failures; he fought against his addictions, his disorganization, and his temptations. He tried. I know that he tried. To say that the cards were stacked against him is too glib; others might have been able to play his hand better. I know that; and he knew that.

But to ignore Isaiah's condition not of his choosing, the harvest of racism, the frailty of the safety net, the vulnerability of the poor, is simply wrong. His survival depended not just on proper chemotherapy, but, equally, on a compassionate society.

I am not sure when the moral test was put on hold; when it became negotiable; when our nation in its political discourse decided that it was uncool to make its ethics explicit and its moral commitments clear—to the people in the dawn, the twilight, and the shadows. But those commitments have never in my lifetime been both so vulnerable and so important.

You are not confused; the world is. You need not forget your purpose, even if the world does. Leaders are not leaders who permit pragmatics to quench purpose. Your purpose is to heal, and what needs to be healed is more than Isaiah's bone marrow; it is our moral marrow—that of a nation founded on our common humanity. My brother, a retired schoolteacher, tells me that he always gets goose bumps when he reads this phrase: "We, the people . . . We—you, and me, and Isaiah—inclusive.

It is time to recover and celebrate a moral vocabulary in our nation—one that speaks without apology or hesitation of the right to health care—the human right—and, without apology or hesitation, of the absolute unacceptability of the vestiges of racism, the violence of poverty, and blindness to the needs of the least powerful among us.

Now you don your white coats, and you enter a career of privilege. Society gives you rights and license it gives to no one else, in return for which you promise to put the interests of those for whom you care ahead of your own. That promise and that obligation give you voice in public discourse simply because of the oath you have sworn. Use that voice. If you do not speak, who will?

If Isaiah needs a bone marrow transplant, then, by the oath you swear, you will get it for him. But Isaiah needs more. He needs the compassion of a nation, the generosity of a commonwealth. He needs justice. He needs a nation to recall that, no matter what the polls say, and no matter what happens to be temporarily convenient at a time of political combat and economic stress, that the moral test transcends convenience. Isaiah, in his legions, needs those in power—you—to say to others in power that a nation that fails to attend to the needs of those less fortunate among us risks its soul. That is your duty too.

This is my message from Isaiah's life and from his death. Be worried, but do not for one moment be confused. You are healers, every one, healers ashamed of miseries you did not cause. And your voice—every one—can be loud, and forceful, and confident, and your voice will be trusted. In his honor—in Isaiah's honor—please, use it.

Donald M. Berwick, MD, MPP

NAVY CAPTAIN HENRY
DOMERACKI

HON. JOHN R. CARTER

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 17, 2012

Mr. CARTER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to honor United States Navy Captain Henry Domeracki. Captain Domeracki has made countless sacrifices throughout his 36 years of dedicated service to the defense of our great nation. He is an American hero who has received numerous medals and recognitions for his dedicated service. As such, I am proud of his achievements and congratulate him on his recent retirement.

Captain Domeracki was recalled to active duty during the Gulf War in 1991, and served as a Counter-Terrorism Officer/Agent in Europe for six months. In 2004, he was mobilized again for Operation Iraqi Freedom and served as the Chief of Operations for the Coalition Provisional Authority—Baghdad Central in Baghdad, Iraq. During this time, Captain Domeracki built the financial structure for the Baghdad Provincial government and reestablished financial operations for the City of Baghdad. He aided in rebuilding the country of Iraq by managing over $100 million in business development projects and capital outlays.

In 2009, he was mobilized to fill the U.S. Army Civil Affairs' billet. He served as the Chief of Operations for the Multi-National Forces Iraq—Civil Military Operations Directorate and was in charge of the development and vocational training programs and projects for the entire country of Iraq. Captain Domeracki's actions also enabled thousands of militia-aged Iraqis to be employed. He was able to facilitate this through personally coordinating three international conferences and over $2.1 billion in private sector funds from companies in the United Arab Emirates. These funds were invested in business development projects in the various regions of Iraq and enabled the building of ten vocational training schools with over 10,000 students enrolled. Additionally, over 70 agri-businesses and cooperatives, ranging from commercial milk processing to date production, and industrial-level honey processing, were created through these efforts.

In conjunction with his military achievements, Captain Domeracki has thirty-two years of municipal government management experience and has served as the Chief Financial Officer of the Texas Municipal League Intergovernmental Risk Pool for the past twenty years.

Captain Domeracki's awards include the Bronze Star, Defense Meritorious Service Medal (3rd Award), Meritorious Service Medal (4th Award), Joint Service Commendation Medal, Navy & Marine Corps Commendations Medals (3rd Award), Army Commendation Medal, Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal (3rd Award), Army Achievement Medal and the Combat Action Ribbon.

Mr. Speaker, thank you for the opportunity to recognize this great American. His selfless service and duty to this country are an inspiration to us all.

IN HONOR OF THE SIGNIFICANT CONTRIBUTIONS OF TAMARA
ZAHN TO THE CITY OF INDIAN-APOLIS

HON. ANDRÉ CARSON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 17, 2012

Mr. CARSON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to express my gratitude to Tamara Zahn for her considerable achievements over the past two decades as President of Indianapolis Downtown, Inc. Her vision, leadership and tireless determination have helped transform downtown Indianapolis into a first-class destination for visitors and Hoosiers alike.

Our "Hoosier Hospitality," in combination with our well-deserved reputation as a premier location for sports fans, has made the City of Indianapolis a model for other municipalities looking to rejuvenate their image and grow their local economy.

Under the tenure of Tamara Zahn, our city has witnessed unprecedented growth and a staggering transformation of downtown Indianapolis. Our once sleepy, urban center is now an attractive and pedestrian friendly destination, complete with highly-regarded attractions like the Indianapolis Cultural Trail, Victory Field, White River State Park, and the Eiteljorg Museum, along with first-class accommodations for visitors on any budget. Ms. Zahn's ability to communicate her vision helped make the construction of world-class facilities like Lucas Oil Stadium, Circle Center Mall, and the Indiana Convention Center a reality.

Tamara Zahn was one of the principal drivers of this remarkable transformation. Over the past 19 years, she has galvanized the respective talents and resources of private enterprise and federal, state, and local officials for the purpose of revitalizing our city.

Ms. Zahn's incredible success is testament to her skill and vision as an urban planner, leader and innovator. Her considerable achievements have not gone unrecognized. She has been named one of the "Most Influential Women in Indianapolis" and was awarded the prestigious Sagamore of the Wabash award.

Today, I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Tamara Zahn for her exceptional service to Indianapolis.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE 100TH AN-NIVERSARY OF WEST TECH HIGH SCHOOL

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 17, 2012

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of the 100th anniversary of West Tech High School.

West Tech opened its doors to 224 students on February 15, 1912. In 1931, with an enrollment of 4,000 students, West Tech was distinguished as the largest school in all of Ohio. West Tech graduated more than 40,000 students between 1912 and 1995, when it closed as an operational high school.

West Tech is known for offering the first driver's education classes and the first auto