

The WASPs flew military aircraft in noncombat roles, and they served as instructors for male pilots. When the WASP program was created, it was intended that these women would receive full military status. Sadly, this goal has not been achieved. That is why H.R. 4336 is so important. It overturns a previous Army directive and restores the burial rights in Arlington National Cemetery for WASP veterans.

I ask that all of my colleagues join me in supporting these women's rights of putting them in the place they need to be and in receiving those full military benefits.

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from the Second District of Texas (Mr. POE).

Mr. POE of Texas. I thank the chairman for yielding time.

Mr. Speaker, during the peak of World War II, Sandy Thompson, now a Houston resident, left her teaching job and received her aviation wings on September 11, 1943. She had just volunteered for the Women Airforce Service Pilots, known as the WASPs.

These pilots had towed targets for live anti-aircraft practice. Think about that, Mr. Speaker. They are in the air, and these young teenagers are learning how to shoot anti-aircraft guns and to aim them at the targets behind these female pilots who are pulling these—a dangerous occupation. These pilots helped deliver planes to overseas bases, and they tested new aircraft that was used in the Pacific and used in Europe, and, of course, they trained male pilots who went overseas.

Of the 1,000 women who were WASPs, 38 were killed during their missions, and 16 of these original pilots of World War II now live in my State of Texas.

They were considered civilians until 1977. Then Congress gave them veteran status. In 2002, the WASPs were allowed to be cremated and have their ashes placed in Arlington National Cemetery—right down the street from this building. Now bureaucrats have decided that these veterans are not worthy of a proper military burial, and they have revoked the burial rights at Arlington because of space. This is disgraceful, shameful, and is a sorry excuse to dishonor them.

Find space to permanently honor these women. As a former member of the United States Air Force Reserves, I urge that we show respect to these pilots—give them proper burials, and pass this legislation.

And that is just the way it is.

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. FUDGE).

Ms. FUDGE. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, first, let me thank all of the men and women who have sacrificed and served this Nation.

I can't imagine why any person of sound mind would deny women the right to the same benefits, to the same recognition that men get who serve this Nation. I would think that not one person would deny them this right. I cannot imagine why those who serve would have to fight for the dignity that each and every single person who serves this country should have.

I support this legislation, and I support the people who support it. Anybody who doesn't should not be in this building.

Mr. MILLER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from the 27th District of the Lone Star State, Texas (Mr. FARENTHOLD).

Mr. FARENTHOLD. I thank the chairman.

Mr. Speaker, it shouldn't take an act of Congress for these women to be interred in Arlington National Cemetery. We have heard from numerous people on both sides of the aisle that this is simply the right thing to do. The Army should have just said, "Yes, let's get them buried there." The President should have used his pen and phone and ordered the Army to do it if they wouldn't. Guess what. We are here now, and it is going to take an act of Congress, and it is going to be a very strong act of Congress. I can't imagine not passing this out of this House unanimously, and I suspect we will see similar results in the Senate.

The remains of this woman should not have to rest in her granddaughter's closet. They should be interred in Arlington now. I urge my colleagues to pass this bill unanimously. I urge the Senate to act quickly. I urge President Obama to sign this into law. It is, simply, the right thing to do. We have just got to do it.

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

In recent hearings, many of the service organizations have indicated that this was one of their top priorities. Women have served in every single war in this country, and they deserve the same benefits and recognition as men.

I urge my colleagues to support this important and timely bill in order to honor those brave women and others whose efforts were essential in the victory of World War II.

I yield back the balance of my time.

□ 1445

Again, I encourage all my fellow colleagues to support H.R. 4336, as amended.

I yield back the balance of my time.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4336, "Women Airforce Service Pilot Arlington Interment Restoration Act of 2016" which directs the Department of the Army to ensure that the cremated remains of persons who served as Women's Air Forces Service Pilots are eligible for interment in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors.

I support this legislation sponsored by Congresswoman MARTHA MCSALLY of Arizona, because the women who have devoted their lives to the armed services deserve appropriate recognition and praise for their sacrifice.

This important bill provides the remains of a person who dies on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, and whose service has been determined to be active duty, eligibility for interment in Arlington National Cemetery.

The Secretary of the Army shall submit to the Committees on Veterans' Affairs and the Committees on Armed Services of the House of Representatives and the Senate a report on the interment and interment capacity of Arlington National Cemetery.

With respect to the unique and iconic meaning of the cemetery to the United States, the Secretary of the Army determines necessary considerations beyond the current boundaries of the cemetery.

The Secretary of the Army must submit the estimated date the cemetery will reach maximum interment and interment capacity.

The Secretary of the Army has the ability to redefine eligibility criteria for interment and interment in the cemetery.

Implementation of the arrangements necessary to facilitate the burial of the cremated remains should be a priority.

It is our responsibility to ensure that the suitable recognition is provided to Americans who have devoted their time and physical assistance towards our freedom.

This bill actively displays our gratitude towards all who participated in the armed services.

Even after death, we reflect on their contributions with our hearts and minds for those who put themselves in harm's way to protect our nation.

I urge all Members to join me in voting to pass H.R. 4336.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MILLER) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 4336, as amended.

The question was taken.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Ms. MCSALLY. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.
