The Senate met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Honorable Luther Strange, a Senator from the State of Alabama.

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:
Let us pray.
O God, our shield, look with favor upon us. Lord, You have told us in James 4:2 that we have not because we ask not. We therefore continue to ask You to place Your healing hand on Senator John McCain. Astound us with Your power.

Today, we also pray that You would guide our lawmakers around the obstacles that hinder their progress, uniting them for the common good of this great land. Lord, enable them to go from strength to strength, as they fulfill Your purposes for their lives. Strive to please You, help them to stand strong, and go forward for the common good of this great land. Lord, enable them to go forward.

We pray in Your powerful Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The Presiding Officer led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

APPOINTMENT OF ACTING PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will please read a communication to the Senate from the President pro tempore (Mr. Hatch).

The senior assistant legislative clerk read the following letter:

U.S. SENATE,
PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE,

To the Senate:
Under the provisions of rule I, paragraph 3, of the Standing Rules of the Senate, I hereby appoint the Honorable Luther Strange, a Senator from the State of Alabama, to perform the duties of the Chair.

Orin G. Hatch,
President pro tempore.

Mr. Strange thereupon assumed the Chair as Acting President pro tempore.

RECESS SUBJECT TO THE CALL OF THE CHAIR
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. In my capacity as a Senator from the State of Alabama, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate recess subject to the call of the Chair.

There being no objection, the Senate, at 10:03 a.m., recessed subject to the call of the Chair and reassembled at 10:11 a.m. when called to order by the Acting President pro tempore.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

THOUGHTS AND PRAYERS FOR SENATOR MCCAIN
Mr. McConnell. Mr. President, Senator McCain is an American hero. He is a hero to our conference. He is a hero to our country. Here in the Senate, he is a friend to almost all of us. Our collective prayers are with him now. We are thinking of Cindy and the rest of his family as well, along with his staff and the people of Arizona.

Senator McCain, as we all know, has never shied away from a fight, and I assure you he isn’t going to back down now. I know the Senator from Arizona will confront this challenge with the same extraordinary courage that has characterized his entire life, and he should know that we are all in his corner, every single one of us.

We look forward to seeing our friend again soon, and we hope he will be back in the very near future.

HEALTHCARE
Mr. McConnell. Mr. President, I thank the President for having our conference over to the White House yesterday. The President and his administration understand the American people are hurting under ObamaCare. They have been long engaged in the effort to bring relief. Nobody could have been more involved in this effort than the President, the Vice President, and the entire team, with numerous phone calls and meetings. They have been all in, and I want the President and his entire team to know how much we appreciate their deep involvement in this and their commitment to getting an outcome.

Dealing with this issue is what is right for the country. The fight to move beyond the status quo of ObamaCare was certainly never going to be easy, but we have come a long way, and I look forward to continuing our work together to finally bring relief.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. Enzi. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.
CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS
The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Morning business is closed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will proceed to executive session to resume consideration of the Bush nomination, which the clerk will report.

The senior assistant legislative clerk read the nomination of John Kenneth Bough to serve on the Sixth Circuit.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for a few minutes in morning business.

HEALTHCARE

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, my colleagues and I have been on this floor for the last 7 years talking about the problems with ObamaCare and the need to address it. In Wyoming, we lost our insurance companies. We had only one carrier. We lost the others to the private insurance market.

In the early days, when ObamaCare was still being cobbled together, we talked about individuals losing their coverage. Promises were made that if you liked the plan you had, you could keep it. That turned out to be a broken promise.

In 2009 and 2010, we talked about premiums skyrocketing. Today, we are still talking about it. Premiums are more than 100 percent higher in Wyoming today than they were when the law was passed. Our insurer has fortunately been more conservative in their approach. So premiums didn’t spike the way they did in other States.

I usually enjoy being right, but in this case, I am very sad to have watched the worst possible scenario play out. Time after time, President Obama was faced with problems in implementation and in outcomes, and he would dismiss them by saying: “It just needs a tune up.”

We and the American people gave it time and money—specifically, 7 years and hundreds of billions of dollars. We are now left trying to pick up the pieces in the private insurance markets all across the country.

You can see here that this ambulance is ObamaCare. Behind it is its engine and other key components, and they have completely fallen apart. That is the private insurance market today. The part you don’t see here is that there is a patient in the back of this ambulance. This isn’t just about politics. This is about real people and whether they can afford an insurance premium that is in some cases higher than their rent or their mortgage payments each month.

Even before its passage, my Republican colleagues and I talked about the danger that ObamaCare posed to private insurance markets. Insurers have already left the market in droves. In Wyoming, we are down to one carrier. We lost the others to the economics of ObamaCare, and we will be lucky to keep the one we have. I know many people in our country are going to be in the position of having no insurers offering plans in their county.

How could this happen? It has happened because of politics being put before economics to take on the hard task of fixing something that you have sold as the perfect solution.

I can tell you that healthcare isn’t a simple issue. It is incredibly complex and, really, there is no one right way to tackle it. I was the ranking member of the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee when ObamaCare passed. We worked hard to find common ground. When it became clear that there was not a reciprocal commitment to that common ground on the other side of the aisle, we did work hard to try to stop it.

Now we are finally in a position to do so. We have a President in the White House who is committed to repealing and replacing ObamaCare with a plan that actually provides better care before more irreparable harm is done. Republicans have been working on an approach that attempts to address both the short-term and long-term problems caused by ObamaCare.

We do not have a plan to solve everything. We are proposing to stabilize insurance markets in the short term and to get insurance costs on a more manageable trajectory over the longer term. We are striking at the heart of ObamaCare by removing its mandates and taxes while striking at the heart of ObamaCare by removing its mandates and taxes while putting Medicaid on a more sustainable footing.

Doing this isn’t easy. You may have read a little something about the challenges of moving a healthcare bill forward in the Senate. The task is to do what our colleagues on the other side of the aisle have done for 7 years and watch ObamaCare crater. We don’t think that is the right thing to do. We think we have an obligation, even if it is not an easy vote, to salvage our insurance system.

Getting something done in Washington isn’t always a pretty process, but I am proud to be working with the women and men in my conference who see that there is something larger at stake than themselves and who know that setting this out means more harm and, perhaps, harm that can’t be undone later.

I will keep working. I am committed to passing the best product that we can deliver for the people of Wyoming and for our whole country. I look forward to continuing to work together to repeal ObamaCare and replace it with policies that will truly improve healthcare in America. I hope my colleagues will join me in this worthy endeavor.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The ACTING PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SULLIVAN). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, yesterday, several of my Democratic colleagues and I raised concerns about the nomination of John Bush to serve on the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. They were particularly concerned about his activities outside of the courtroom, especially his personal blog posts. The comments of my friend, the junior Senator from Minnesota, were representative of their concern.

He reminded us that he has been serving on the Judiciary Committee for 8 years. He said that by confirming Mr. Bush to the bench, Mr. Bush, who has blogged about controversial political and policy matters, the Senate would be doing something unprecedented. Specifically, my friend from Minnesota—in angst—said, “I don’t think we have been here before.”

I don’t think we have been here before,” he said. I would encourage my friend to think a little harder about his tenure on the Judiciary Committee.

Just a few years ago, the Senate considered President Obama’s nomination of Stephen Bough to serve on the bench in Missouri. Mr. Bough had been quite an active blogger himself. His blogging and online commentary were not simply confined to political satire and sarcasm. His blogging didn’t use merely flippant or intemperate language. His blogging demonstrated a real and palpable animus toward conservatives and Republicans in general, toward elected Republicans in particular, and by name—by name. He insulted and impugned people in opposition to his economic agenda. Such as Senators, his Governor, the President of the United States, and a Republican nominee for President, just to name a few.

Mr. Bough’s posts were truly mean-spirited. It wasn’t just that he called Republicans “knuckleheads”—which he did. That was when he was feeling especially kind. No, he said specific Republicans were “corrupt.” They had done “evil things”—“evil things.” I could go on and on about his corrosive rhetoric.

He approvingly posted an article describing how San Francisco was contemplating naming a sewage plant after President Bush as a suitable legacy for the President and posted another saying that his Governor was highly “ignorant.” His invective was not reserved to members of the political branches. He said that his State supreme court was the most corrupt in the history of the State. I am not making this up. He is an officer of the court, calling the supreme court the most corrupt in the history of his State.
For my Democratic colleagues who now profess to care about the judgment of judicial nominees who blog, I submit that impugning the integrity of the tribunal that has jurisdiction over their professional conduct and law license, as Mr. Bough did, is more than a few tweeps shy of exhibiting sound judgment.

Mr. Bough also implied that President Bush made his Supreme Court appointments as some sort of quid pro quo. He harshly criticized sitting Supreme Court justices by name, and he claimed that the Republican nominee for President wanted only Federal judges who would disregard the law and rule in favor of the “religious right” and that he was “sucking up.” He made a crude comment about women that I will not repeat.

Now, some of our Democratic colleagues have criticized John Bush because he said that he would try hard to be impartial as a judge. By contrast, in one of his blog posts, Stephen Bough flat-out said that he, himself, “shouldn’t be a judge.” This is commentary on himself. But every one of our Democratic colleagues on the Judiciary Committee at the time, including our friend from Minnesota, obviously disagreed with his own judgment about himself. They all voted for him, which is especially curious in hindsight, given the superior weight our Democratic colleagues now place on blog posts. Only one Member of the Democratic conference voted against Mr. Bough. These are many of the same Democrats, of course, who are supposedly aghast—aghast—at the Bush nominination. Mr. Bough is now Federal District Court Judge Stephen Bough.

Finally, I would like to set the record straight on the subject of the slur. Mr. Bush did not use the slur in a blog post, and he did not use it flippantly. In fact, he said he has never used this term and would not today.

Rather, Mr. Bush quoted by name someone else—a prominent author who had used the slur. Mr. Bush quoted him to show how various authors had viewed our hometown of Louisville over time—both those who praised it and those who criticized it. In short, Mr. Bush said that he used it to show “the good, the bad, and the ugly.”

So who was the author he quoted verbatim and by name? Why, it was noted liberal author Hunter Thompson. I note that he was not quoting any literary or historical source for the same slur, in fact. The judicial nominee used it flatly and cavalierly. Who was the judicial nominee? It was President Obama’s judicial nominee and current Federal District Court Judge Stephen Bough, who sits on the bench right now for life, after being confirmed by the votes of our Democratic colleagues.

I hope I have at least refreshed the memory of my friend from Minnesota and some of my other Democratic colleagues.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader is recognized.

THOUGHTS AND PRAYERS FOR SENATOR MCCAIN

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, first, on a sad note but one always of hope when it comes to Senator McCain, his cancer diagnosis sent a shock wave through the Senate last night. He is brave. He is a dear friend to many in this body, and from the bottom of my heart, I wish him and his family well. So does every Member of this Chamber. The respect that this man has is broad and deep, both based on his service and on what he has done here in this Chamber.

I agree with what the majority leader said earlier, in that John McCain is an American hero. There is no one who has done more to serve his country and this Chamber than Senator McCain. There is no one who is more passionate in the defense of our soldiers and in our defense than Senator McCain.

The same courage that he showed as a soldier he showed here. John McCain and I led health care reform. He had to take so many tough positions to do what was right. He was fearless. His word was good. He was good at compromising, and he was good at making his views known.

With that bill, which passed this body with 67 or 68 votes—a large number of Democrats and Republicans—had it become law, our country’s economy would have been better, and our security would have been better because it was so tough on the border. We would have been in a better place for it had that bill passed.

The point I want to make is not with regard to the bill but to McCain—how we were in rooms for hours and hours, day after day, and we got to see the mettle of the man. Hey, the more you knew him, the better he looked, and the better he was.

So we know that, against this new battle, Senator McCain will fight in the only way he knows how—with every fiber of his being. We wish him our prayers. We pray for him and his family. We hope that he joins us very soon because this country needs John McCain now more than ever. seen that that failed approach does not work. I outlined three specific, non-ideological proposals yesterday that we could work on together, right now, to stabilize the marketplaces and help bring down premiums. I believe they would work quickly. My Republican friends do not seem to know what to do. My suggestion is to drop these failed ideas and work with Democrats on the commonsense, nonideological solutions that we Democrats have offered.

Here is one more point. I have heard some of my colleagues say they may vote for the motion to proceed next week because they are in favor of debate. I will remind them that the rules under reconciliation only allow for 20 hours of debate to be equally divided between the parties and 1 minute of debate allowed per amendment. That is not debate. The idea that you would vote on the motion to proceed in order to have the debate is absurd. If my colleagues want to debate healthcare, they should vote no on the motion to proceed and urge their leader to hold a real debate—in committees, in public hearings, on the floor, and in subcommittee. We need to have real, a process that they have spurned for 7 months—not 10 hours for each party, with 1 minute per amendment, on such an important proposal. That is not a debate. It is the legislative equivalent of “Beat the Clock.” This is serious business—the health and welfare of the American people—not some game of ping pong.

TRADE AND OUTSOURCING

Mr. President, just as the administration is flailing and failing on healthcare, they are failing on trade and outsourcing as well. I read today that the administration has failed to secure any concessions from China on its dumping of excess steel and aluminum in our markets, which is killing jobs in my State and in many others. As well, today, the Carrier plant at which President-Elect Trump tweeted about saving jobs just laid off 300 workers in Indiana and moved the positions to Mexico. It is exactly 6 months to the day since President Trump took office. It is a shame that we are losing these good-paying American jobs. Despite all of the President’s tough talk on trade and his Commerce Secretary’s “100 days of trade talks” plan, the loss of these jobs shows that, in 6 months, the Trump administration has been unable to actually take strong action, not go to one plant. You need policies that will protect millions of workers from the rapacious policies of China and other countries. Making America great again requires more than 140 characters per issue. The 338 jobs that are leaving Car- rier today is just the start. When it comes to actual substance and policy, the Trump administration has done very little to change the game on trade to keep jobs in the United States—another broken promise to the American worker.

Mr. President, I reiterate my remarks from yesterday on the nomination of John Bush to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. Many of my colleagues have been down on the floor and have expressed just how distressing and damaging this nomination will be. His extreme record demonstrates that John Bush simply does not have the temperament to be an impartial Federal judge—the very least our system requires. I urge my colleagues to oppose his confirmation. Thank you.

HEALTHCARE

Mr. President, I also share Leader SCHUMER’s remarks and concerns about the current status of the healthcare bill as we understand it. I urge my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to vote down the motion and go forward so that we can have regular order and so that we can hear from stakeholders and the American people about how changes in healthcare would impact them and what ideas they have for us to be able to lower costs and make sure that all Americans have access to truly affordable, high-quality care. Mr. President, I also rise to oppose the nomination of Attorney John K. Bush to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. An independent and impartial judici- ary is critical to our democracy and to our march toward progress. Our Found- ers established our court system to serve as an independent arbiter that would protect the rights of every American and ensure equal justice under our laws. Unfortunately, it is clear that Mr. Bush lacks the impartiality and commitment to equal jus- tice for every American that is needed to qualify for a lifetime appointment on the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. President Trump’s nomination of Mr. Bush represents yet another attempt by this administration to undermine the rights of American women to make their own healthcare decisions and to control their own destinies. To fully participate not only in our economy but also in our democracy, women must be recognized for their capacity to make their own health care deci- sions just as men are, and they must have the full independence to do so, just as men do. Mr. Bush has made it clear that he fundamentally disagrees with that principle and that he does not think a woman’s constitutionally protected right to have a safe and legal abortion. Hiding behind a pseudonym on an online blog, Mr. Bush has gone so far as to compare a woman’s right to make her own reproductive health de- cisions to slavery, saying they are “the two greatest tragedies in our country.” The fact that someone nominated for the bench would believe something like this is nothing short of appalling.

Mr. Bush has also criticized essential programs that women and their fami- lies depend on, referring to programs like the Women, Infants, and Children Program—otherwise known as WIC—and grants to combat violence against women as “wasteful.” Mr. Bush has real concerns with Mr. Bush’s record when it comes to the rights of LGBTQ Americans. Mr. Bush has made clear that he is vehemently opposed to marriage equality, calling it a “no-compromise” position. In 2011, Mr. Bush criticized the State Department for an announcement that led to more equal treatment of same-sex parents, and he has even used an offensive, anti-gay slur in a quote that he chose to use in public remarks.

Mr. Bush’s deeply offensive public statements and his record indicate that he is an individual who is focused on extreme partisanship and who does not recognize the basic equality of all Americans. His statements and his ac- tions tell us that he is not committed to the concept of equal justice under our laws. This is unacceptable for someone seeking a lifetime appoint- ment to a job that requires sound judgment, objectivity, and, more than any- thing else, an essential commitment to fairness.

I will oppose Mr. Bush’s nomination to the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Thank you, Mr. President. I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. I ask unanimous consent to be allowed to speak as in morning business for up to 15 minutes. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CLIMATE CHANGE

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, to the disappointment of the American
The United States Chamber of Commerce is the largest lobbying organization in the country. The Center for Responsive Politics (OpenSecrets) is a non-partisan research group that tracks the effects of money and lobbying, showing that in 2015 alone, the Chamber spent roughly $85 million on lobbying efforts, more than twice the amount spent by the second-highest organization (the National Association of Realtors). During the 2013–2014 election cycle, the Chamber spent $43 million on campaign expenditures (through super PACs, 501(c) organizations, and/or political party committees) that were “outside” or independent of candidates’ campaign committees.

The Chamber has used its considerable resources to fight legislation and government action on tobacco and climate change at home and abroad. A series of 2015 New York Times articles exposed the Chamber’s aggressive activities helping the tobacco industry fight international antismoking laws, regulations, and policies, and described the organization’s systematic efforts to undermine the Environmental Protection Agency’s (EPA) efforts to address climate change and carbon pollution.

While the Chamber claims that it “reflects the grassroots views of the entire business community” and that it represents the “interests of more than three million businesses of all sizes, sectors, and regions” when it interacts with Congress, its positions and actions on tobacco and climate change do not appear to reflect or communicate the positions of many of its member companies. The following analysis shows that approximately half of the companies on the Chamber’s Board of Directors have publicly taken positions on tobacco and climate change that are in conflict with the Chamber’s actions and positions. This calls into question the Chamber’s allegedly transparent decision-making process, and suggests that the Chamber does not accurately represent the positions of its member companies.

Moreover, the Chamber’s lobbying is at odds with its own public positions. The organization has strongly pushed the anti-to- tobacco, saying that it “is not in the business of promoting cigarette smoking at home or abroad.” It also claims to support the environment, saying that in public documents, Hill letters and testimony, supported efforts to reduce greenhouse gas emissions in the atmosphere, and calling for a “comprehensive climate change law.”

Plainly, there is a broad gap between the Chamber’s stated policies, its Board members’ positions, and its actual lobbying activities.

III. THE CHAMBER’S LOBBYING ON TOBACCO AND CLIMATE ISSUES

When the Chamber weighs in, many in Washington, D.C., listen. The Chamber is the largest lobbying organization in the country and claims to represent the “interests of more than three million businesses of all sizes, sectors, and regions” when it interacts with Congress. OpenSecrets, a nonprofit, non-partisan research group that tracks the effects of money and lobbying, showed that in 2015 alone, the Chamber spent roughly $85 million on lobbying efforts, more than twice the amount spent by the second-highest organization (the National Association of Realtors). During the 2013–2014 election cycle, the Chamber spent $43 million on campaign expenditures (through super PACs, 501(c) organizations, and/or political party committees) that were “outside” or independent of candidates’ campaign committees.

The Chamber’s decision-making process is not transparent. Ten Chamber Board members roles as liaisons to Congress, the Chamber’s positions and actions on tobacco and climate are not at odds with the Chamber’s stated policies, its Board members’ positions, and its actual lobbying activities.

that were “outside” or independent of candidates’ campaign committees.

The Chamber has attacked U.S. climate policies with similar zeal. According to The New York Times, in early 2014, a group of 50 corporate lawyers, coal lobbyists, and Republican political strategists gathered at the Chamber to develop strategies to dismantle the President’s Clean Power Plan—before President Obama had even introduced a draft proposal of it. The Chamber and its members have vociferously opposed its efforts to address carbon pollution and emissions.

Comparative to reduce [its] environmental impact, so that [it] can contribute to addressing the climate change. The Chamber’s efforts are directed to reduce its carbon footprint and to combat diseases directly correlated with climate change.” Sanofi says that it has reduced its transportation costs by 50 percent, and has set a goal of reducing its water consumption by 25 percent between 2010 and 2020.

Climate Change Findings

Almost half of the Chamber Board members (52 of 108, 48%) have taken public positions supporting efforts to reduce carbon emissions and address climate change, including eight of the companies that responded to the Senate inquiry on Chamber climate policies (see Appendix V). The remaining Board member companies appear to have no public position on climate change as a public health or environmental issue.

These 52 companies that support efforts to address climate change, have undertaken their own initiatives to reduce carbon emissions, support the EPA’s work on climate change, or have publicly committed to support of the Paris Agreement.

Indeed, the American business icons are national and international leaders on this issue. For example:

Allstate is a member of the Cores Company Network, a group of companies that have agreed to improve their environmental and social performance, publicly report on their sustainability practices, and continuously improve their performance and disclosure on sustainability issues. Allstate was also named to the Climate Disclosure Leadership Index for 2014 for its efforts to reduce its carbon footprint and transparency on its climate change adaptation.

AT&T is one of more than 150 companies to have signed on to the American Business Act on Climate Pledge. AT&T has committed to reduce its direct greenhouse emissions by 20 percent and reduce its electricity consumption by 10 percent. BMO Financial Group stated that it is “focused on reducing our environmental footprint, its goals and commitments to maintaining carbon neutrality across our entire enterprise.” Las Vegas Sands was named to the CDP’s “A list” for its reported carbon and disclosed corporate climate change information.

Ryder received the EPA SmartWay Excellence Award in 2013 and 2014 in recognition of its efforts to address carbon pollution and emissions.

Sanofi strives to reduce [its] environmental impact, so that [it] can contribute to addressing the climate change. The Chamber’s efforts are directed to reduce its carbon footprint and to combat diseases directly correlated with climate change.” Sanofi says that it has reduced its transportation costs by 50 percent, and has set a goal of reducing its water consumption by 25 percent between 2010 and 2020.

VI. CONCLUSION

The Chamber claims that it “reflects the grassroots views of the entire business community when the organization testifies before Congress or regulatory agencies, disseminates reports or statements to the media, or sends comments or letters to Capitol Hill and to policymakers.” It states that “everyone involved in the process must help develop positions that benefit the entire business community, rather than any given narrow interest . . . . The process must be open and above board.”

But this investigation finds these claims to be plainly untrue. Despite its claims of a representative process, the Chamber does not speak for many of its Board members on two of the most pressing public health issues of our time. The discrepancy between the Chamber and its Board members act on tobacco and climate is stark. Bloomberg columnist Barry Ritholtz contends that it is easy for the Chamber to “ignore its member companies that oppose its stance because one third of its revenue comes from just 19 companies, many of them in the energy industry.”

Indeed, based on the responses of Chamber Board member companies, the Chamber seems to act at will, without broadly consulting its leading members about fundamental policy positions on which it spends millions of dollars in collected dues. The Chamber has long demonstrated leadership by disaffiliating themselves from the Chamber over fundamental policy positions. Sanofi, and Pacific Gas and Electric (PG&E), have left the Chamber over its destructive climate policies. Nike left the Board for similar reasons, America’s largest tobacco company, Philip Morris, and Microsoft—publicly disagree with and distance themselves from the Chamber’s climate position. And CVS Health withdrew leadership from the Chamber last year due to the group’s tobacco lobbying.

Many Chamber members do good work to address the risks of tobacco and climate change, but too many of these members quietly disapprove of the Chamber’s positions without taking action. As long as these Chamber members lend their tacit support to an organization that spearheads systematic efforts against policies to limit tobacco and climate change, it is difficult to accept their claims that they are anti-tobacco or good on climate.

We encourage Chamber Board members to stop looking the other way where there is evidence of a clear position, and dedicate that Chamber membership as supporting free speech. This positioning makes it appear as though Chamber Board members both support and diminish their credibility and efforts in support of positive action. These companies should take responsibility for the positions and actions of their members. Chamber Board members must express their opposition as an opportunity to shift the tenor of a powerful lobbying force away from harmful public health and towards positions that help reduce tobacco use and address the risks of climate change.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. When President Trump announced his withdrawal from the Paris Agreement, he used these alternative facts from that chamber’sDirec- tory report. Here is what Trump said:

COMPARATIVE to the Tobacco and Climate Letters and public positions and policies of Board members, the report finds that:

Approximately half of the companies on the U.S. Chamber of Commerce’s Board of Directors have anti-tobacco and/or pro-climate policy positions.

None of the respondents to the Tobacco and Climate Letters expressed explicit support for the Chamber’s activities, and numerous Chamber Board members distanced themselves from Chamber activities on tobacco and climate.

The remaining Board member companies appear to have no public position on climate change as a public health or environmental issue.

taken by anyone to comply with the Paris Agreement, but that was what they used. Second, NERA only modeled the cost side.

You have heard the phrase “cost-benefit equation.” They only looked at the cost side but never looked at the benefit side. This is phony accounting when you only look at one side of the ledger.

NERA, of course, has a history of producing misleading reports for its industry clients. In 2015, it released a report for the National Association of Manufacturers on the proposed ozone standard, claiming it would cost as much as $110 billion per year. On the cost side, EPA estimated it would cost a fraction of what NERA estimated, less than 12 percent. The economic consulting firm Synapse analyzed the NAM report and found it “grossly overstated compliance costs, due to major flaws, math errors, and unfounded assumptions... these assumptions and others have led NERA to overstate compliance costs by more than 700 percent.”

That is just on the cost side. Once again, they didn’t even bother to look at the benefits. It is a one-side-of-the-ledger policy analysis. Of course, the chamber commissioned NERA to do the same thing for it on climate: overestimate the costs and ignore the benefits.

In this world of climate denial, this is a classic maneuver.

Sen. Chuck Grassley cited the NERA report in his CNN op-ed urging President Trump to pull the United States out of the Paris Agreement a day before President Trump cited these stats in his withdrawal speech.

Cruz, Trump, and the chamber ignored more than 1,000 companies that supported the United States remaining in the Paris Agreement, including several chamber member companies. Some of these have publicly distanced themselves from the chamber as a result of the President’s decision. A recent Bloomberg news article was headlined, “Paris Pullout Pits Chamber Against Some of Its Biggest Members.”

Citigroup said: “We have been outspoken in our support for the Paris agreement and have had a dialogue with the Chamber about how its views and advocacy on climate policy are inconsistent with Citi’s position.” Similar distancing came from Dow and Ford.

Over the weekend, the Washington Post ran a piece, “Is the most powerful lobbyist in Washington”—that is the so-called U.S. Chamber of Commerce—“losing its grip,” exploring this tension around climate in more detail. The article said: “Perhaps the most nettlesome issue for the Chamber has been climate change.” It calls out the chamber’s claims to be neutral on the Paris Agreement, while actually providing “ammunition for foes of the agreement.”

The article highlights the chamber’s climate denial efforts, including its 2009 proposal to hold a public trial on climate science—what it dubbed “the Scopes monkey trial of the 21st century.” New Mexico-based utility PNM Resources actually quit the chamber because that idea was so preposterous.

The Washington Post identified 8 of the 25 companies that signed an ad in the New York Times supporting the Paris Agreement as chamber members, including GE, Microsoft, and Walt Disney. The CEOs of these companies publicly criticized President Trump’s decision.

Microsoft’s Brad Smith said: “We’re disappointed with the decision to exit the Paris Agreement. Microsoft remains committed to doing our part to achieve its goals.”

GE’s Jeff Immelt said: “Disappointed with today’s decision on the Paris Agreement. Climate change is real. Industry must now lead and not depend on government.”

Walt Disney’s Bob Iger said: “As a matter of principle, I’ve resigned from the President’s Council over the #ParisAgreement withdrawal.”

The chamber is out of step with its own members on climate change, maintaining a scientifically untenable position as ever more of our State universities know. Who is pulling the chamber’s chain? It is hard to tell since the chamber hides from the public who its donors are, but I suspect the answer is the same as to why the Republicans continued to revive the hated, zombie healthcare bill despite huge public disfavor for it.

Mr. President, that brings me to the nomination of John Bush to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. The chamber’s rigid anti-climate stance is part of a fossil fuel political program that holds this Chamber in a state of intimidation and inaction on climate change. As Congress cowers before this fossil fuel political presence, we are now advancing the nomination of a climate denier to the Federal bench.

John Bush was not nominated because of any track record of distinguished performance or demonstrated commitment to public service. To the contrary, his most notable achievements seem to be a series of wildly offensive blog postings and public statements, denying that climate change is real and mocking it, comparing a woman’s right to choose to the evil of slavery, casually using vile slurs against gay people. On and on goes the list.

Bush has written a number of posts dealing with environmental issues in which he insists on placing the terms “global warming” and “climate change” in quotation marks, insinuating that they do not really exist. Tell that to your home State universities.

With this appalling track record, why was he nominated? It is not hard to figure out that he is here because through his blog posts and byflagging himself as a loyal climate denier, he signals himself as a willing foot soldier of the big special interests. These big special interests are intent on capturing our courts, just as they have captured so much of Congress.

Judicial nominees like Mr. Bush are exactly what these special interests want, to make sure they can, first, maintain their dark money influence. That is their most particular key. That is the mother ship off of which all the other special interests’ mischief they perform comes from and of course to see to it that these big interests are never held accountable to the American people. That is the signal he sends.

Bush has flagged that he will rule the right way for the big special interests that fund the Republican Party, and the special interests’ big reward is his nomination and confirmation. He has shown that he is familiar with the recipes when it comes time to cook the decisions.

My Democratic colleagues and I respect any President’s desire and prerogative to fill the vacancies in the executive and judicial branches. Even though I understand we will not see eye to eye with our colleagues across the aisle on every nominee, Senate Democrats have given the President’s nominees a very fair shake. This is no normal nominee. This is a freak who lowers the bar on judicial nominees forever.

If Mr. Bush wants to exercise his Full Authority right to spout offensive, ignorant, and hateful nonsense as some kind of nutty Breitbart blogger, he is free to do so, but that is not the measure—or has not until today been the measure of a Federal judge for the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Mr. Bush is patently unqualified for this position, well outside any version of the mainstream, and his appointment can reasonably be predicted to bring dishonor and preordained partiality to the judiciary. I regret we are at this point.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. Fischer). Under the previous order, all post cloture time has expired.

The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the Bush nomination?

Mr. SASSE. Madam President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays will be recorded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. CORNYN. The following Senator is necessarily absent: the Senator from Arizona (Mr. McCain).

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Michigan (Ms. Stabenow) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 51, nays 47, as follows:
The nomination was confirmed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. ENZI. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the motion to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table and the President be immediately notified of the Senate’s action.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. ENZI. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate stand in committee of the whole and take up the nomination of David Bernhardt, of Virginia, to be Deputy Secretary of the Interior.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida.

Mr. NELSON. Madam President, I want to discuss this nomination.

I am here to add my voice to those of my colleagues who oppose the nomination of David Bernhardt to be Deputy Secretary of the Interior. There are a host of reasons—from his history of censuring scientists to his denial of climate change—but I am going to limit my remarks to his allegiance to the oil industry and, specifically, his disregard for the importance of a moratorium on any drilling in the eastern Gulf of Mexico.

During his confirmation process, he gave some very troubling responses to questions about the moratorium from the ranking member, Senator CANTWELL. She asked: “Do you support the current moratorium in relation to offshore drilling in the Eastern Gulf of Mexico?”

He responded:

“I am aware that, in response to the President’s recent Executive Order on the Outer Continental Shelf, Secretary Zinke issued a Secretarial Order 3550 directing the Bureau of Ocean Energy Management to review and develop a new five-year plan. I support the President’s and the Secretary’s actions to examine new leasing opportunities within the OCS in order to advance the Administration’s energy agenda.”

Then Senator CANTWELL asked him: “Do you support extending this moratorium?”

He responded: “I support the President’s and the Secretary’s actions aimed at increasing offshore production while balancing conservation objectives.”

First of all, when it comes to the eastern gulf, there is no good way to increase offshore production while balancing environmental concerns. The gulf—the eastern gulf is still recovering from the horrific 2010 Deepwater Horizon explosion, which fouled the gulf all the way east into most of the Panhandle of Florida.

Secondly, as I have explained time and again, it makes no sense to drill in an area that is critically important to the U.S. military and is the largest testing and training area for the U.S. military in the world, where we are testing our most sophisticated weapons systems and where we are sending our fighter pilots who need the open space to train. That is why they have the F–22 training at Tyndall Air Force Base. That is why they have training for pilots on the F–35 at Eglin Air Force Base. That is also why the Chief of Staff of the Air Force wrote in a letter just recently, “The moratorium is essential for developing and sustaining the Air Force’s future combat capabilities.”

I ask unanimous consent to have the two letters printed in the RECORD. There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE GAETZ: Thank you for your letter dated March 24, 2017, regarding maintaining the moratorium on oil and gas activities in the Gulf of Mexico beyond 2022. Since signing the 1983 “Memorandum of Agreement Between the Department of Defense and the Department of the Interior on Mutual Concerns on the Outer Continental Shelf,” the two departments have worked cooperatively to ensure offshore resource development is compatible with military readiness activities. During recent discussions between the DoD and the Department of the Interior’s Bureau of Ocean Energy Management, a question arose concerning whether Congress intended the moratorium to prohibit even geological and geophysical survey activities in the eastern Gulf. We would welcome clarification from Congress concerning this matter.

On behalf of the Secretary, I appreciate your interest in sustaining our testing and training activities in the eastern Gulf of Mexico.

Sincerely,

A.M. KURTA,
Performing the Duties of the Under Secretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness.

DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE,
Hon. BILL NELSON,
United States Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR NELSON: I write this letter in whole-hearted support of a proposal seeking to extend the moratorium on leasing, preleasing, or any other related activity in any area east of the Military Mission Line in the Gulf of Mexico. I understand this proposal is being considered in the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2018.

The Air Force fully supports the development of our nation’s domestic energy resources in a manner that is compatible with the military testing, training, and operations. The complex of eastern Gulf of Mexico operating areas and warning areas provides critical opportunities for advanced weapons testing and joint training exercises. The moratorium on oil and gas leasing, preleasing, and other related activities ensures that these vital military readiness activities may be conducted without interference and is critical to their continuation. Of course, we are always willing to work with the appropriate agencies to see how we may explore for energy without hampering air operations.

The moratorium is essential for developing and sustaining the Air Force’s future combat capabilities. Although the Gulf of Mexico Energy Security Act’s moratorium does not expire until 2022, the Air Force needs the certainty of the proposed extension to guarantee long-term capabilities for future tests. Emerging technologies such as hypersonics, 5th generation fighters, and advanced subsurface systems will require enlarged testing and training footprints, and increased Air Force reliance on the moratorium far beyond 2022.
Please don’t hesitate to contact me if you have any questions. I look forward to continuing our work with you to ensure America’s Air Force remains the very best.

Sincerely,
DAVID L. GODFREY, General, USAF, Chief of Staff.

Mr. NELSON. The letters—one from the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the other from General Goldfein, the Chief of Staff of the Air Force—state they are needing to put a major investment of telemetry into the eastern gulf range for all of these sophisticated weapons systems, and they don’t want that to be out of the inventory with the moratorium ending in the year 2022. They want to extend the moratorium for another 5 years, to 2027. That is a reasonable request by the Department of Defense and the Department of the Interior.

For example, a test can start way down in the South, off of Key West, and a cruise missile could go all the way, 300 miles, because of the size of this test range, and then it could have a land impact on Eglin Air Force Base. That is part of our testing regime.

One could ask, Why couldn’t the cruise missile weave around oil rig activities? Well, look at the new miniature that are out there. It is not one, but a swarm, which takes up a big footprint that we are testing. This is just one example of a weapons system that needs a lot of open space. This is a national asset. We don’t want to give it up. That is why the top brass in the Air Force is asking that we extend this moratorium so that those expensive investments in telemetry can be made.

We should not put someone in charge at the Department of the Interior if he has an open objection to what is obviously needed for national security and if he has demonstrated a history of siding just with special interests. It would be a bad decision when it comes to the national security of this country. I am going to oppose the nomination, but that is just one reason, one item, on an ever-growing list of concerns that this Senator has with the Department of the Interior these days.

On June 29, Secretary Zinke announced that the Department was seeking public comment on a new 5-year plan for offshore oil and gas leasing. In case anyone has forgotten, the current 5-year plan was just finalized 6 months ago. It is not supposed to go through 2022. Why would the Department spend more taxpayer money to go through the whole process all over again? The only reason this Senator can see is that the oil industry wants more acreage. They are going after the eastern Gulf of Mexico, despite the fact that the Department of Defense is asking for exactly the opposite.

By the way, they ought to take from the very productive sections of the Gulf of Mexico off of Louisiana. There are actually under lease, but of all those acres under lease, how many are actually drilled and/or in production? It is a small percentage of the acreage under lease that is actually drilled. So why don’t we take advantage of the existing leases, particularly in the central gulf, which is where the oil is? That is where all the sediments over millions of years came down the Mississippi River, settled in what is today the Eastern Gulf, compacted it, and made it into oil. That is where the oil is.

Now, remember, also out there in the eastern gulf, this is the area that is off limits. This is the Eglin Gulf Test and Training Range. The Air Force wants to extend that moratorium from 2022 by 5 years—out to 2027—in order to protect it for all of these reasons we have been discussing. It is all of that open space, and we ought not give it up.

I will give you another example of the short memories over at the Department of the Interior.

After the 2010 BP oil spill, it became clear that the relationship between the oil industry and the Department of the Interior was a problem so the Minerals Management Service was divided into two separate agencies in the Department of the Interior—the Bureau of Ocean Energy Management, which regulates lease sales, and the Bureau of Safety and Environmental Enforcement, which is supposed to ensure that safety standards are followed. Less than a decade later, people seem to have forgotten all of that, and they want to put the two back together again. It is another example of what is going on. Now the administration is trying to roll back the safety rules, like the well control rule that was finalized in November of last year. This long-overdue rule seeks to prevent what went so tragically wrong on the Deepwater Horizon rig from ever happening again.

Every day, it seems like the administration is coming up with a new way to put the gulf at risk and Florida’s coastline and tourism-driven economy at risk. It is not just the National security of the country by messing up the largest testing and training range for the U.S. military and the world. It is utilized by all branches of service. As a matter of fact, when they stopped the Atlantic fleet of the Navy from doing all of its training off of Puerto Rico on the Island of Vieques, all of that training came to the gulf. The Navy squadrons come down for 2 weeks at a time to the Naval Air Station Key West, with the airport actually between Key Largo and Key West, and when they lift off on the runway, with in 2 minutes, those F/A–18s are over restricted airspace so they do not have to spend a lot of time and fuel in getting to their training area.

I have heard from business owners, and I have heard from residents across the entire State of Florida. They do not want drilling in the eastern gulf. They have seen what can happen when the inevitable spill happens. We lose an entire season of tourism, and all of that revenue goes away, along with that loss. Why do they know that?

The BP oil spill was off of Louisiana, but the winds started carrying the oil slicks to the east. It got as far east as Pensacola Beach, and the white, sugary sands of Pensacola were covered in black oil. That was the photograph that went around the world. The winds to put it in the tar balls came over and got onto the beach at Destin. We were desperately trying to keep the oil from going into the Choctawhatchee Bay at Destin like it had already gone into the Santa Rosa Bay at Pensacola. The winds kept pushing it to the east, and the tarballs ended up all over the tourist beaches of Panama City.

Then the winds did us a favor—they reversed, and they started taking it back to the west.

So there was oil on some of the beaches, but what happened for an entire year of the tourist season? The tourists did not come to the gulf beaches, not only in Northwest Florida but down the peninsula, all the way down to Marco Island, for an entire tourist season. That is why people are so upset about any messing around.

This Senator brings this to us as I have spoken of what has happened and have stood up for over the last four decades in order to fight to prevent those kinds of spills from happening again off the coast of the State of Florida.

Yet now we have, right here, an issue in front of us, something that could threaten the Department of Defense’s mission for being ready to protect this Nation. In that case, my recommendation to the Senate is not to vote for the nomination for Deputy Secretary of the Interior because of his history and because of how he responded to Senator CANTWELL in the committee.

I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. ERSKINE). The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. CANTWELL. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. CANTWELL. What is the pending business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Bernhardt nomination is pending.

Ms. CANTWELL. I thank the Chair. Madam President, I rise today to speak about the Bernhardt nomination to be Deputy Secretary of the Interior.

The Deputy Secretary plays an important role in forming and carrying out the administration’s policy on a broad range of issues. These issues include our Nation’s public lands, our national parks, our national wildlife refuges, our water resources, mineral and energy development on public lands and Federal waters, carrying out our trust responsibilities to our Tribal nations, and working with our Territories and Freely Associated States.

The Deputy Secretary also performs very important functions as it relates to the Secretary or in the Secretary’s absence. In virtually all matters, the Deputy Secretary has the authority of the Secretary. That is why I look at this position with such an important critique, because we know in past positions there have been conflicts, and we know we need to have important policies to discuss, and we need to make sure we have no conflicts of interest.

I have made no secret that I have concerns about this nomination. Mr. Bernhardt is no stranger to this body and to the Inspector General. He held a number of senior political positions in the Department during the Bush administration beginning in 2006.

After leaving the Department in 2009, he returned to a successful private practice. For 8 years, he has represented a wide range of clients, including oil and gas companies, mining companies, and water supply interests in California, just to name a few. If he is confirmed to oversee the same companies at the Department of the Interior, that is, he will be making decisions on the same things that he lobbied for at the agency, and now he will be on the other side of the table and be able, period of time, to make decisions in those areas.

So, as I said at his confirmation hearing—I’m not suggesting that just working for the private sector disqualifies someone, but when you have a wide range of issues that you have worked on in the private sector and now you are going to be on the other side of the table, it brings up concerns.

The President of the United States traveled the country when he was campaigning and said he wanted to drain the swamp from special interests, and he is no stranger to the Department of the Interior. He held a number of senior political positions in the Department of the Interior. He traveled the country when he was campaigning and said he wanted to drain the swamp from special interests, and he is no stranger to this body and the challenges that dealing with undue influence is not being pressured and made decisions in those areas.

He has declined to comment on recusing himself beyond just the 1-year limit required by the ethics rules. I know Mr. Bernhardt says he will comply with whatever the organization and agency requires, but we don’t have the time, given the list of conflicts of interest and given that past case representation, to constantly know every issue and every meeting and every oversight to make sure that undue influence is not being pressured at the Department of Interior.

The President of the United States, who nominated Mr. Bernhardt, told the Times just yesterday in a conversation about the Attorney General: “If he was going to recuse himself, he should have told me before he took the job and I would have picked someone else.” Well, I hope that is not the issue here. I hope the agency isn’t running fast toward somebody who just won’t recuse themselves in hopes that they will get someone who will do the bidding of these interests and not take into consideration the complexity, the legal structure, and the challenges that dealing with these issues takes.

In fact, as late as March of this year, Mr. Bernhardt’s firm was submitting invoices to Westlands for lobbying charges with itemized expenses. Documents show he was engaged in regular contact with congressional offices and working on legislation and efforts to inform administration policy at the very time he was serving on the Trump transition team.

Even the appearance that Mr. Bernhardt was still lobbying on behalf of clients that do business with the Department of the Interior at the same time he wants to help lead it invalidates some of the concerns we have been expressing.

I remain concerned about his record on behalf of these corporations at the expense of the environment, and his tenure at the Department of the Interior and many other challenges. The Department’s responsibilities and jurisdictions are just too vast. They are too important to the American people to just green-light someone who I believe will be very engaged in doing this job. So I urge my colleagues to oppose this nomination.

Just today, a complaint was filed with a U.S. Attorney about this nominee’s alleged lobbying activities based on new records available pursuant to California public records law. I want answers from the nominee. We are going to continue to ask questions in the meantime, I ask my colleagues to oppose this nomination. Make sure we get the answers we need before the nomination of David Bernhardt can continue.

I thank the Presiding Officer. I yield the floor. Madam President, I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll. The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GARDNER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GARDNER. Madam President, it is my honor to come to the Senate floor today to talk in support of a fellow Coloradan’s nomination to be the Deputy Secretary of the Department of the Interior—David Bernhardt. I am very excited about his nomination, strongly support his nomination, and believe that my fellow Coloradan will do an absolutely incredible job for Colorado and for the rest of the country at the Department of the Interior.

I had the great honor just a month or more ago of welcoming David to the committee and welcoming his beautiful family there with him that day. I reminded him that his oldest son Will about the connection that my family and our oldest child will always have with Will, because when my wife Jaime was working at the Department of the Interior, our oldest daughter Alyson spent some time with daycare with David Bernhardt’s son Will.

Alyson spent some time the same daycare and the same work Jaime and David did at the Department of the Interior, working together all those years. But there is more than that. There are more connections I will share, between David Bernhardt and me, and one of the many reasons why I support him.

I have known him personally and professionally for nearly two decades. We both grew up in rural Colorado. I am from the Eastern Plains of Colorado, and Mr. Bernhardt is from the Western Slope. I am from the flatslands, and he is from the mountains. We share a lot of common interests in rural development and saving small towns.

We both began our public service 1 year apart, interning in the Colorado State Legislature for a member of the Colorado State Legislature named Russell George, who would go on, eventually, to become the Colorado speaker of the house.

I will never forget when I began. It was in the second term of then-State Representative of Colorado. I worked for him on Tuesdays and Thursdays in an internship through Colorado State University. He said: You should reach out and meet last year’s intern because I think he could help you. Hand me the phone number here and what you should know about the internship. He gave me the phone number for David Bernhardt. So I followed in the footsteps of David Bernhardt at the capitol, and I am excited to see the work that he continues to do.

As I mentioned, Mr. Bernhardt worked with my wife Jaime at the Department of the Interior, and, at one point, we were just around the corner from one another. His personal background and public and private sector professional experiences prove that he is a strong voice for the West and extremely well-qualified for the position of Secretary. He has extensive insight on western water policy, natural resource policy, and Indian affairs, just to name a few. Those who have worked with Mr. Bernhardt commend him for his integrity and knowledge on the issues under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior.

In 2008, after the Department reached the largest Indian water rights settlement in the Nation’s history, Mr. Bernhardt served as Deputy Secretary. He has extensive insight on western water policy, natural resource policy, and Indian affairs, just to name a few. Those who have worked with Mr. Bernhardt commend him for his integrity and knowledge on the issues under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior.

I think it is important to point out the Haynes-Schneider standard that was established for the Department of the Interior.

David Hayes, nominated for Deputy Secretary in the Obama administration, was confirmed by the Senate. He had previously served in both the Clinton administration and then he served in the Obama administration. In between that time, he had a private law practice.

Janice Schneider, nominated for Assistant Secretary under President Obama, served in the Clinton administration but in between served in a private law practice. What we see is another nominee who is a dedicated public servant, has gained experience in the private sector, and is willing to come back to public service to give back to our great country.

Mr. Bernhardt’s integrity and ability are two of his strongest qualities for his nomination. Public service requires certain sacrifices. I certainly appreciate Mr. Bernhardt’s and his family’s decision to accept the nomination that will be considered by this body today.

I hope the Senate process has not become a broken process, which disincentivizes qualified people—like Mr. Bernhardt, who is held in high professional regard—from serving and from returning to public service. That is why I hope his nomination today receives strong bipartisan support.

As the Senate takes up the vote on this nomination, I urge my colleagues to hold this nominee to the same practice, the same process to which we hold all nominees who are under consideration before the U.S. Senate.

There are a number of individuals and organizations that support David Bernhardt. The Southern Ute Indian Tribe, Colorado Water Congress, a very important organization made up of environmentalists and water users and municipalities, supports David Bernhardt’s nomination; the Colorado River District supports David Bernhardt’s nomination.

Why are these important? Because these are people who have worked with him throughout his career, from the time he was an intern for Russell George in the State legislature to the time that he worked with Scott McInnis, to the time he worked at a law firm, to the time he worked at the Department of the Interior, all the way up until today.

The National Congress of American Indians supports David Bernhardt as Deputy Secretary of the Interior; Ducks Unlimited applauds the nomination of David Bernhardt as Deputy Secretary of the Interior; the Boone and Crockett Club supports David Bernhardt’s nomination; the International Sportsmen’s Foundation supports David Bernhardt’s nomination.

Here is a letter from a wide variety of organizations: the International Snowmobile Manufacturers Association, the Recreational Vehicle Industry, environmental organizations that have done great work in conservation, the National Shooting Sports Foundation. These are groups, organizations—not partisan efforts, but organizations that rely on Democrats and Republicans.

The Indian Nation supports David Bernhardt’s nomination. These are Republicans, Democrats, and Independents across the country who believe David Bernhardt would do an incredible job at the Department of the Interior.

Here is a letter of support for David Bernhardt from the chief of the Penobscot Nation. The National Cattlemen’s Beef Association supports the nomination of David Bernhardt. The list goes on and on.

To my colleagues today, from those who know him best, I ask support for David Bernhardt, Deputy Secretary of the Department of the Interior, and stress the importance of a strong bipartisan vote today to show support for our western States that have so much need at the Department of the Interior. The need needs to be done so that we can start once again getting to the work of the people.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Pursuant to rule XXII, the Chair lays before the Senate the pending cloture motion, which the clerk will state.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 56, the nays are 39. The motion is agreed to.

The Senator from Utah, Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, is it appropriate to make a speech at this time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is. Mr. HATCH. Thank you, Mr. President.

President Ronald Reagan used to say that people are policy. Attacking a new President’s policies, therefore, often includes undermining his or her ability to appoint men and women to lead his or her administration.

The Constitution gives to the President the power to appoint executive branch officials. The Senate has the power of advice and consent as a check on that appointment power.

In the early months of the Obama administration, Senate Democrats were clear about how we should carry out our role in the appointment process. Less than 2 weeks after President Obama took office, the Judiciary Committee chairman said he wished that the Senate could have put the new Justice Department leadership in place even more quickly. Just 3 months into President Obama’s first term, the chairman argued that, “at the beginning of a presidential term, it makes sense to have the President’s nominees in place earlier, rather than engage in needlessly delay.”

Well, actions speak much louder than words. With a Republican in the White House, Senate Democrats have turned our role of advice and consent into the most aggressive obstruction campaign in history. This chart is an illustration.

Democrats complained about obstruction when, during the first 6 months of the Obama administration, the Senate confirmed 69 percent of his nominations. Today marks 6 months since President Trump took the oath of office, and the Senate has been able to confirm only 23 percent of his nominations.

To my Democratic colleagues: If 69 percent is too low, what do you call a confirmation pace that is two-thirds lower?

Democrats do not have the votes to defeat nominees outright. That is why the centerpiece of their obstruction campaign is a strategy to make confirming President Trump’s nominees as difficult and time-consuming as possible.

Here is how they do it. The Senate is designed for deliberation as well as for action. As a result, the Senate must end debate on a nomination before it can confirm that nomination. Doing so informally is fast. Doing it formally is slow.

In the past, the majority and minority informally agreed on the necessity or length of any debate on a nomination, as well as when a confirmation vote would occur. The first step in the Democrats’ obstruction campaign, therefore, is to refuse any agreement on scheduling debates and votes on nominations. The only option is to use the formal process of ending debate by invoking cloture under Senate rule XXII.

A motion to end debate is filed, but the vote on that motion cannot occur for 2 calendar days. If cloture is invoked, there can then be up to 30 hours of debate before a confirmation vote can occur.

The Democrats’ obstruction playbook calls for stretching this process out as long as possible. While informal cooperation can take a couple of hours, the formal cloture process can take up to several days.

The late Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan once said that you are entitled to your opinion, but not to your own set of facts. I would state, then, to let the confirmation facts do the talking.

President Trump and his three predecessors were each elected with the Senate controlled by his own political party. This is another illustration right here. At this point in the Clinton and George W. Bush administrations, the Senate had taken no cloture votes on anything—as you can see, on nominations. We took just four nomination cloture votes at this point during the Obama administration. So far in the Trump administration, the Senate has taken 33 cloture votes on nominations. Think about that. If that isn’t obstruction, I don’t know what is. It is not even close.

There is one very important difference between cloture votes taken in the beginning of the Clinton, Bush, or Obama administrations and those taken this year. In November 2013, Democrats effectively abolished nomination filibusters by lowering the vote necessary to end debate from a super-majority of 60 to a simple majority. It now takes no more votes to end debate than it does to confirm a nomination. In other words, the Senate did not take cloture votes during previous administrations on the grounds that doing so could have prevented confirmation.

Today, Democrats are forcing the Senate to take dozens of cloture votes even though doing so cannot prevent confirmation. At least half of these useless cloture votes taken so far would have passed even under the higher 60-vote threshold.

Earlier this week, 88 Senators, including 41 Democrats, voted to end debate on President Trump's nominee to be Deputy Secretary of Defense. We have seen tallies of 67, 81, 89, and even 92 votes for ending debate. Meanwhile, these needless delays are creating critical gaps in the executive branch.

A clear example is the nomination of Makan Delrahim, a former Senate staffer whom everybody on both sides knows, is a wonderful guy, and who everybody knows is honest. But this clear example is the nomination of Delrahim to head the Antitrust Division at the Department of Justice. Antitrust enforcement is a critical component of national economic policy. It protects consumers and businesses alike, and, without filling these important posts, uncertainty in the market reigns. This is a particular problem at a time of common mergers and acquisitions. Yet Mr. Delrahim, like dozens of others, has been caught in the maelstrom of delays. Mr. Delrahim was appointed out of the Judiciary Committee on a 19-to-1 vote. Everybody there knows how good he is, how decent he is, how honorable he is, and how bipartisan he has been. He is supremely qualified and enjoyed broad support throughout the Senate as a whole. Yet his nomination, like so many others, languishes on the floor because of Democratic obstruction. In short, it has taken longer to get Mr. Delrahim confirmed than any Antitrust Division leader since the Carter administration. Keep in mind that this is a former staffer of ours who served both Democrats and Republicans.

Regarding the delay of Mr. Delrahim's confirmation, I ask unanimous consent to have two news articles printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

SENATE FIGHT OVER TRUMP’S NOMINEES HEATS UP

(By Brent Kendall and Natalie Andrews)

WASHINGTON—A congressional battle over President Donald Trump's nominations for a range of influential positions is escalating and becoming more acrimonious, creating additional headaches for a fragile government that could belle government vacancies might be filled.

Mr. Trump has been slower than recent presidents to roll out nominees. For an array of reasons, including 92 Senate Democrats are using procedural tactics to slow the confirmation process to a crawl—at least in part to object to the lack of open hearings on health-care legislation, Democratic leaders say.

More than 30 nominees are sitting on the sidelines waiting for a final Senate confirmation vote. Those include several picks for the Justice and Treasury departments, as well as commissioners in a welter of federal agencies. A number of nominees have been invoking Senate procedures to require up to 30 hours of debate per nominee, an amount of Senate floor time that means lawmakers can't confirm more than a handful of nominees each week.

The minority party often waives a requirement for lengthy debate, but Democrats generally determine to impede the president from filling these important posts, unilaterally, even though doing so cannot prevent confirmation. At least half of these useless cloture votes taken so far would have passed even under the higher 60-vote threshold.

WASHINGTON—A congressional battle over President Donald Trump’s nominations for a range of influential positions is escalating and becoming more acrimonious, creating additional headaches for a fragile government that could suffer from a lack of Senate vacancies.

As of Friday, it has been 175 days since Trump's inauguration, and his nominees for assistant attorney general in charge of the Department of Justice’s antitrust division, Makan Delrahim, has yet to be approved by the full Senate despite pressuring matters as the government's review of AT&T Inc.'s proposed $85 billion deal to acquire Time Warner Inc., a transaction announced in October.

Also pending are two picks for Republican seats on the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which usually has five members but currently has just one. Since February, the commission has lacked a quorum to conduct official business such as approving energy infrastructure projects. The nominees, Neil Chatterjee, a McConnell aide, and Robert Povelson, each were approved on a 20-3 vote by the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee last week.

Mr. Trump may have made a tactical misstep by not moving to fill an open Democratic FERC seat at the same time he announced the tender of the project. For government commissions made up of members from both parties, usually look to pick Democratic and Republican nominees, which gives both sides more sway in deciding who moves forward with the nominations. Mr. Trump in late June announced his intention to nominate Richard Glick, a Democratic Senate staffer, to an open FERC seat, but he hasn't done so yet.

Other pending nominations include Boeing executive Patrick Shanahan to be deputy secretary of defense, the No. 2 slot at the Pentagon, and Kevin Hassett to be the chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Dozens of other nominees have been working their way through Senate committees and could be in line for full Senate consideration in the coming weeks. Those include Christopher Wray for FBI director as well as two nominees for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

WAIT TO CONFIRM TRUMP’S ANTITRUST CHIEF LONGEST IN 40 YEARS

(While Kroh)

It has taken longer for the administration of President Donald Trump to get its top antitrust lawyer in place at the U.S. Department of Justice than any since President Jimmy Carter, leaving the division running at a limited clip since six months into Trump's tenure.

As of Friday, it has been 175 days since Trump's inauguration, and his nominees for assistant attorney general in charge of the Division of Antitrust, his nominee Delrahim, has yet to be approved by the full Senate despite pressing matters as the government’s review of AT&T’s proposed $85 billion acquisition of Time Warner.

After taking office, Trump's five predecessors had their nominees to head the antitrust division confirmed by June at the latest. Delrahim has taken longer to get his pick permanently installed after a change in administration. Carter nominated John H. Shenefield to be the acting attorney general on July 7, 1977, and he was confirmed on Sept. 15 of that year.

In other words, the Senate did not take cloture votes during previous administrations on the grounds that doing so could have prevented confirmation. At least half of these useless cloture votes taken so far would have passed even under the higher 60-vote threshold.

Shenefield to be the acting attorney general on July 7, 1977, and he was confirmed on Sept. 15 of that year.
On the rung below, only two of five deputy assistant attorney general positions are currently filled at the antitrust division. Though the division is largely staffed by career employees who have been humming along under acting directors, the lack of a confirmed head and the vacancies at the deputy level could be a sign that the administration doesn’t give antitrust priority to significant matters, according to Christopher S. Sagers of the Cleveland-Marshall College of Law at Cleveland State University.

“It doesn’t seem like this particular White House has been as interested in the day-to-day administration of government as it has been in political issues,” Sagers said. “I don’t think that’s particularly well for antitrust enforcement.”

Trump did not take especially long to nominate Delrahim. It had been 66 days since his inauguration when Trump announced his choice on March 27. Former President Barack Obama was relatively speedy with his pick, naming Christine A. Varney to the position a mere two days after taking the oath of office. On average, though, the six presidents before Trump took about 72 days to announce their nominees.

However, it has taken an unusually long time for Delrahim to make it through the logjam of nominations in the Senate. As of Friday, two months after Trump announced Delrahim as his pick to lead the antitrust division, of the past six administrations, only President George W. Bush’s nominees were confirmed to ensure when the Senate approved Charles A. James on June 15, 2001, 120 days after he was nominated.

Popular wisdom holds that the antitrust division is in a kind of logjam because of major merger challenges or cartel investigations when it is operating under an acting assistant attorney general, but that is largely a canard, Sagers said.

“It’s true that the division has been mainly focused on addressing litigation and deal reviews that were already ongoing when Trump took office and continuing probes begun under Obama. However, past acting assistant attorneys general have not been afraid to take aggressive enforcement actions, such as the DOJ’s challenge to AT&T’s acquisition of T-Mobile in 2011 under acting head Shasir A. Pozen, Sagers said.

Nevertheless, the lack of permanent leadership is likely being felt at the division, Sagers said.

“At a minimum, it’s a burden on the agency’s ability to get all its work done,” he said.

For example, the DOJ asked the Second Circuit on two occasions for more time to file its opening brief in a case involving the music performing rights organization Broadcast Music, Inc.’s ability to get all its work done, he added. Trump took about 72 days to announce their nominees.

than 10 percent of the previous three Presidents' executive branch nominees, under President Trump, it is nearly 90 percent.

I admit the Democrats are bitter about the Trump win. I understand that everybody on their side expected Hillary Clinton to win. Many on our side expected her to win as well. But she didn't. President Trump is now President, and he did win, and he is doing a good job of delivering people up here to the Senate for confirmation.

This is how the confirmation process is supposed to work.

The Constitution makes Senate confirmation a condition for Presidential appointments. This campaign of obstruction is exactly what the Senate Democrats once condemned. Further poisoning and politicizing the confirmation process only damages the Senate, distorts the separation of powers, and undermines the ability of the President to do what he was elected to do.

I hope our colleagues on the other side will wise up and realize that what they are doing is destructive to the Senate, harmful to the Senate, and it is a prelude to what can happen when they get the Presidency. I don't want to see that happen on the Republican side.

TAX REFORM

Mr. President, to change the subject, I would like to speak about the effort to reform our Tax Code. Last week, I came to the floor to give what I promised would be the first in an ongoing series of statements about tax reform. Today, I would like to give the second speech on that subject in this series.

As I have said before, while there are tax reform discussions ongoing between congressional leaders and the administration, I expect there to be a robust and substantive tax reform process here in the Senate, one that will give interested Members—hopefully from both parties—an opportunity to contribute to the final product. I anticipate that, at the very least, the members of the Finance Committee will want to engage fully in this effort. I have been working to make the case for tax reform for the last 6 years, ever since I became the lead Republican on the Senate Finance Committee. This current round of floor statements is a continuation of that effort.

Last week, I spoke on the need to reduce the U.S. corporate tax rate in order to grow our economy, create jobs, and make American businesses more competitive. Today's topic is closely related to that one. Today, I want to talk about the need to reform our international tax system.

Over the last couple of decades, we have enjoyed a rapid advancement in technology and communication, which has been a great benefit to everyone and has improved the quality of life for people all over the world. Unfortunately, our tax system has failed to evolve along with everything else.

For example, in the modern world, business assets have become increasingly more mobile. Assets like capital, intellectual property, and even labor can now be moved from one country to another with relative ease and simplicity. The world is relatively immobile—those that can be easily moved—are becoming increasingly rare. The Tax Code needs to change to reflect that fact.

Our current corporate tax system imposes a hidden burden on businesses' assets, which creates an overwhelming incentive for companies to move their more mobile assets offshore, where income derived from the use of the assets is taxed at lower rates.

As I noted last week, there is no shortage of lower tax alternatives in the world for companies incorporated in the United States. It does not take a rocket scientist to understand this concept. If there are two countries that tax businesses at substantially different rates, companies in the country with higher tax rates will have a major incentive to move taxable assets to the country with lower rates. That dynamic only moves in one direction, as there are not many companies that are looking to move to higher tax countries, like the United States, from lower tax jurisdictions. This is not just a theory; this has been happening for years.

An inversion, if you will recall, is a transaction in which two companies merge, and the resulting combined entity is incorporated offshore. Let me repeat some numbers that I cited last week. In the 20 years between 1983 and 2003, there were just 29 corporate inversions out of the United States. In the 11 years between 2003 and 2014, there were 47 inversions—nearly double the number in half the time. That number includes companies that are household names in the United States. This is happening in large part because of the perverse incentives embedded in our corporate tax system and the stupidity of using the Congress to not solve this problem.

Keep in mind that I am only talking about inversions. There are also foreign takeovers of U.S. companies, not to mention arrangements that include earnings stripping and profit shifting. The collective result has been a massive erosion of the U.S. tax base and, perhaps more importantly, decreased economic activity here at home. Make no mistake—our foreign competitors are fully aware of these incentives. They have recognized that lowering corporate tax rates can help them lure economic activity into their locations. Yet, in the face of this competition, our tax system has remained virtually frozen.

As I noted last week, reducing the corporate tax rate would help alleviate these problems, but more will be required, including reforms to our international tax system.

Currently, the United States uses what is generally referred to as a worldwide tax system for international tax, which means that U.S. multinationals pay the U.S. corporate tax on domestic earnings as well as on earnings acquired abroad. Taxes on those offshore earnings are generally deferred so long as the earnings are kept overseas and are not repatriated to the United States after accounting for foreign tax credits and the like.

Put simply, this type of system is antithetical to the world. The vast majority of our foreign counterparts have already done away with worldwide taxation and have converted to a territorial system. Generally speaking, a territorial system is one in which multinational companies pay tax only on earnings derived from domestic sources.

By clinging to its worldwide tax system and a punitive high corporate tax rate, the United States has severely diminished the ability of its multinational companies to compete in the global marketplace. U.S.-based companies are subject to worldwide taxation while their global competitors are subject to territorial tax systems. U.S. companies all too often end up having to pay more taxes on their foreign profits than their foreign rivals, which effectively gives them at a distinct competitive disadvantage.

Generally speaking, foreign-based companies pay taxes only once at the tax rate of the country from which they derive the specific income. A U.S. multinational, on the other hand, generally pays taxes on offshore income at the rate set by the source country but then gets hit again—and at a punitively high rate—when it repatriates its earnings back to America.

This is stupidity in its highest sense. This needs to change. It is not only Republicans who are saying that; many Democrats have recognized this issue as well. For example, I will cite the Finance Committee’s bipartisan working group on international tax, which is cochaired by Senators PORTMAN and SCHUMER, our ranking minority leader, which examined these issues thoroughly and produced a report in 2015. In that report, after noting that most industrialized countries have lower corporate rates and territorial systems, this bipartisan group of Senators said: “This means that no matter what jurisdiction a U.S. multinational is competing in, it is at a competitive disadvantage.”

The report by Senators PORTMAN and SCHUMER and the members of their working group also referred to something called the lock-out effect. Simply put, the lock-out effect refers to the Incentives U.S. companies have to hold foreign earnings and make investments offshore in order to avoid the punitive U.S. corporate tax. This is not a dodge or a tax hustle on the part of these companies; they are simply doing what is necessary to stay competitive. The Tax Code essentially tells U.S. companies: You can have $100 in Ireland, say, or you can have $65 in the United States.
Well, no surprise here—companies generally opt to have $100 in Ireland.

Currently, a huge amount of capital—as much as $2.5 trillion or maybe even more—that is held by U.S. multinational companies is effectively locked outside the United States and is unavailable for investment here at home. However, as Senators Schumer and Portman and their colleagues on the international tax working group noted, these funds can easily be used to grow the economies of those foreign countries and to keep their tax codes up to date.

These are massive problems, and if we are going to put together an effective tax reform package and be competitive, we will have to find a way to tackle these issues. The most obvious way, of course, would be with a combination of reducing our corporate tax rates, transitioning to a territorial tax system, and ensuring protection of the U.S. tax base from things like earnings stripping. That approach, as it turns out, has bipartisan support.

These matters represent a significant portion of our tax reform efforts, and we already know it is one on which Republicans and Democrats can agree, at least in concept. In other words, there is ample reason for our Democratic colleagues to join Republicans and for Republicans to join Democrats in the tax reform discussions.

The issue is not just important for faceless corporations or tax planners; they are important for American workers who are up and down the income scale. Anyone who is hoping to have a job and opportunities here in the United States and not somewhere else has an interest in reforming our international tax system. If we pass up this current opportunity to address these issues, people should expect to see more and more economic activity and the headquarters and supporting staff of more household-name companies moved outside the United States.

With bipartisan recognition of the need for reform and agreement on international concepts already having been displayed, we owe it to the American people to work together and fix this problem.

As I have said multiple times, I hope my friends on the other side of the aisle will be willing to work with us on tax reform and, if they decline—and, sadly, we have seen some indication that they will—Republicans will need to be ready to take steps to fix these problems. I think we will be ready. Indeed, I think we are more than up to the challenge. I hope we do something about these important issues.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

HEALTHCARE

Mr. MURPHY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Georgia for the recognition.

Colleagues, the new CBO score is out on, I guess, version 4.5 or 5.5—it is hard to keep track of the bill to repeal the Affordable Care Act—and nothing has changed. This proposal, which is a moral and intellectual dumpster fire, is still a disaster.

Here is what the CBO says about the bill that Republicans are working behind closed doors by my Republican colleagues. The CBO says that, immediately, 15 million people would lose coverage by next year. That is a humanitarian catastrophe. It is something this country has never witnessed before. Losing coverage in that short a period of time. Our emergency rooms would be overwhelmed as they would be unable to deal with the scope of that kind of humanitarian need. Ultimately, the number would rise to 22 million by the end of the 10-year window. We know it will be far bigger than that in the second 10 years because that is when the worst of the Medicaid cuts will happen, but 22 million is a lot of folks. It is no different shrinking down to their version, which was 23 million, or in the House's bill, which somehow got a majority vote in that place despite 24 million people losing health insurance, according to the CBO.

Today, about 43 percent of Americans are covered by health insurance. The CBO says that number will go all the way down to 82 percent. I have heard my friend Senator Cornyn complain on this floor yesterday that the ACA will have millions of Americans uncovered. This would make it even worse.

When you get down to look at what happens to individual Americans, it gets even more frightening. Let me give an example of how this bill would dramatically increase premiums on individuals who are currently insured through the private market.

A lot of the coverage losses happen because of this assault on Medicaid, and individuals who have private coverage would not be able to afford it any longer. If you are a 64-year-old who is making, let's say, $55,000, that is over three times the Federal poverty level. In a lot of places, you can live on $56,000. Today, that individual is paying about a $6,700 premium. Under the Republican healthcare bill, that individual would be paying $18,000 in premiums. That is an increase of 170 percent. That is just one individual.

The bottom line is that, if you are older and you are less wealthy, you are going to be paying a whole lot more under this proposal.

Despite all of the guarantees made by Republicans and this President that under their plan, costs would go down, and deductibles would go down and premiums would go down, the CBO says the exact opposite. It says that, especially if you are sort of middle-income and are 50 or older, your premiums will go up dramatically.

This is a terrible bill. It does not solve a single problem that the Republicans said they were trying to fix. More people lose insurance, costs go up, and quality does not get better. This is a terrible piece of legislation.

We are at this very frightening time in the negotiations when changes are being made to this bill not to improve policy but to try to win individual votes that is what is happening as we speak. Behind closed doors, small changes are being made to this bill to try to win the votes of individual Senators, giving them specific amounts of money for their State, and their State alone, in order to win their vote. That is immoral and it is in fact to reorder one-fifth of the American economy. We are talking about 20 percent of the U.S. economy. And changes are being made to this bill right now that have nothing to do with good healthcare, that have only to do with winning individual votes to try to get to 50, because Republicans refuse to work with Democrats—refuse to work with us. So instead of building a product that could get big bipartisan support, Republicans are now down to a handful of their Members and are trying to find ways to deliver amounts of money to those Members’ States in order to win their vote.

There is a special fund in the latest version of the bill for insurance companies in Alaska that was not in the previous version of the bill. Now, all of these provisions get written in a way that if you are an average, ordinary American who decides to take a couple of seconds of your time to look at this bill, you would never know that it was a specific fund for Alaska because it doesn’t say “Alaska.” It sets up a whole bunch of requirements that a State has to meet to get this special fund for insurance companies, and only one State fits that description, and it is Alaska.

There is a change in this bill from previous law that addresses States that were late Medicaid expanders, States that expanded Medicaid into the adult-only population allowed for under the Affordable Care Act but did it late in the process. The previous version didn’t give those States credit when establishing the baseline for the new Medicaid reductions, but miraculously this new bill has a specific provision to allow for two States that were late Medicaid expanders to be able to get billions of additional dollars sent to their State. Those States are Alaska and Louisiana.

There is a new provision in the latest version of the bill that makes a very curious change to the way in which DISH payments are sent to States—that is the Disproportionate Share Hospital Program that helps hospitals pay for the costs for people with no insurance. Not coincidentally, it is a change that was advocated by one Senator from one State: Florida. The change will disproportionately benefit the State of Florida, and it is now in the new version.

These are not changes that help the American healthcare system. They are not changes that benefit my State or the State of the majority of Members here. Some of these changes don’t benefit 98 of us; they only benefit 2 of us. And they are in this version of the bill in order to win votes, not to make good policy.

We heard word this morning of a new fund that was invented in the middle of the night last evening that would supposedly help States that are Medicaid expansion States transition their citizens who are currently on Medicaid to the private market. Now there are reports that it is a $200 billion fund, and that is a lot of money. It sounds like a lot of money, and it is a lot of money, but it would represent 17 percent of the funds that are being cut to States, and it would only be a temporary bandaid on a much bigger problem. Why? Because CBO says definitively that the subsidies in this bill for people who want to buy private insurance are so meager that virtually no one who is kicked off of Medicaid will be able to afford those new premiums. That is why the numbers are so sweeping in their scale—22 million people losing healthcare insurance.

So even if you get a little bit of money to help a group of individuals in a hard-on-the-door transition transition when that money runs out—and it will—they are back in the same place. All they are doing is temporarily postponing the enormity of the pain that gets delivered, And once again, this provision being delivered to only States with Medicaid expansion populations is being targeted in order to win votes, and once again, this provision is temporarily postponing the enormity of the pain that gets delivered. And once again, this provision is being targeted in order to win votes, not in order to improve the entirety of the healthcare system.

Senator CORKER called out his colleagues today. He said that he was willing to vote for the motion to proceed, but he was growing increasingly uncomfortable with a bill that was increasingly—"I think his word was "incoherent." That is what happens when you get to a state where you have a deeply unpopular bill that everybody in the country hates and you need to put amounts of money in it to get a handful of additional votes. It becomes incoherent. And this was an incoherent bill to begin with. It is hard to make this bill more incoherent, but that is what is happening when these individual funds are being set up for Alaskan, Louisiana, and Florida.

We could solve all of this if Republican work with Democrats. If we set aside the big tax cuts for the wealthy and the pillorying of the Medicaid Program, if we try to fix the real problems Americans face today, we could do it on a bipartisan way. And wouldn’t that be great.

I get it that there is enormous political advantage for Democrats to sit on the sidelines and watch Republicans vote for a bill that has a 15-percent approval rating, just like there was political advantage for Republicans to sit on the sidelines and do nothing to help Democrats provide insurance to 20 million more Americans. Healthcare is a very thorny political issue, but it doesn’t have to be that way. We could sit down together and own this problem and the solution together, and we could end healthcare being a permanent political cudgel that just gets used every 5 to 10 years by one side to beat the other side. We are Senators too. We got elected just like our Republican friends did. Why won’t Republicans let Democrats into the room, especially after this bill has failed to get 50 votes from Republicans? We don’t have a communicable disease. We aren’t going to physically hurt you if you let us into that room. We are not lying when we say we have a desire to compromise.

Democrats aren’t going to walk into a negotiating room and demand a single-payer healthcare system. We understand that we are going to have to give Republicans some of what they want; it’s part of the design. We are going to have to give Democrats some of what we want, which is the end to this madness—an administration that is trying to sabotage the Affordable Care Act, destroy the healthcare our citizens get. But that could be a compromise. It is not illegal to meet with us. There are 48 of us; there are not 12 of us. My constituents in Connecticut deserve to have a voice in how one-fifth of the funds that are being cut to States, and it would only be a temporary bandaid on a much bigger problem. We tackled big, meaty, important issues of the future—the question of multiple and discriminatory taxes on internet commerce. We focused, for example, on Enron and what went wrong there and so many of these consumers were ripped off. We dug into consumer rights. John McCain was an early advocate for saying that if you rode on an airplane, it didn’t mean you ought to sacrifice basic consumer rights, and some of these same issues are getting more attention today.

Then, of course, we built on this floor the Y2K measure. When everybody was so concerned about what would happen at the end of the century, Senator McCain gave me the honor of being his Democratic partner in putting together a bill. We had the benefit of incredible work from the private sector and first responders and smarter Federal policies. We all know that some of the calamitous predictions about Y2K didn’t come to pass.

John McCain did some extraordinary work at that time. As a young U.S. Senator, what a thrill it was to be able to be involved with a real American hero on some of these first experiences I had in the Senate.

As we begin to absorb the news of the night, what struck me is that now we are counting on John McCain’s legendary strength to give cancer its toughest fight ever—toughest fight ever.

Mr. President, I just wanted to come to the floor this afternoon, I am here to speak about healthcare, but before I turn to that subject, I want to spend a few minutes talking about our wonderful colleague John McCain.

Some of the most satisfying moments I have had in public life have been serving with John McCain. When the United States Navy officer in Arizona’s first new U.S. Senator in almost 30 years—I had the honor of being chosen to serve on the Senate Commerce Committee, which was chaired by John McCain. And what an exhilarating way to start a new Congress. We tackled big, meaty, important issues of the future—the question of multiple and discriminatory taxes on internet commerce. We focused, for example, on Enron and what went wrong there and so many of these consumers were ripped off. We dug into consumer rights. John McCain was an early advocate for saying that if you rode on an airplane, it didn’t mean you ought to sacrifice basic consumer rights, and some of these same issues are getting more attention today.

Mr. President, it is my sense that if you thought the TrumpCare debate in the Senate had met its end on Tuesday, it is pretty obvious you ought to be thinking again. The zombie stirs once more.

The latest attempt by the majority to cobble together 50 votes, according to reports, comes down to a $200 billion slush fund in front of Senators from States that expanded Medicaid under the Affordable Care Act.

As the ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, I am very pleased that the President joined the committee this year. We have studied this one-time slush fund, and the theory, of course, is that it is supposed to be enticing enough for a Senator to vote for a bill that still slashes Medicaid to the bone.

Let’s be realistic about what the slush fund represents. In the context of the overall plan. Senate Republicans are steering tens of millions of Americans toward a cliff and are offering the world’s smallest pillow to break the fall.

Before I go further on the specifics of what this bill offers, I want to step back and take a look at what the American people have been subjected to over the course of this debate. The reason I want to do this is that, even by Beltway standards here in Washington, this is the absolute worst of this city.

In the crusade to repeal the Affordable Care Act, the ACA, there has been the AHCA—the House TrumpCare bill. That is the one that earned the big victory ceremony with the President of the United States in the Rose Garden. Next, we had the BCRA—the Senate TrumpCare bill. Then, there was a second version of the BCRA. Then, along came something called the ORRA, the bill I have called “repeal and ruin,” which I voted against in 2015. This morning, the public got a look at a third version of the BCRA. My sense is, if you are having coffee in Coos Bay, OR, or in Roseburg over lunch or something like that, your head is going to be spinning as you hear this news. I also want to make sure folks know about the strategy that has come out of the White House over the last few days. The President first endorsed the Senate’s TrumpCare bill, but then it was reported that while the Senate majority watched the administration sabotage the Affordable Care Act, the President said that everybody ought to just sit back and watch what happens. Then it was back to calling for the Senate majority to pass TrumpCare.

Nobody in this Chamber, with the possible exception of Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, can claim to really know what is coming down the pike on American healthcare. So with the health and well-being of hundreds of millions of Americans at stake, this shadowy, garbled, and wretched process really just leaves your jaw on the floor.

Senate Republicans seem to be speeding toward a vote on something. As I mentioned, there is the prospect of this $200 billion slush fund being dangled out there to help round up votes. My sense is that this slush fund is of zero consolation to the millions of Americans who live in States that didn’t expand Medicaid, or to the tens of millions of middle-class families who are going to have to pay higher premiums for coverage because of this bill. For those who care about the affordability of health coverage, there is a statistic that really leaves you without words. Under the Senate Republican bill, in 2026, a middle-aged American who brings home $26,500 annually will see their premiums skyrocket. It will be spinning as you hear this news. I want to do this is that, even by Beltway standards here in Washington, this is the absolute worst of this city.

America. What is not known is very often seniors need not just that care, but they need home and community-based care. They need a continuum of services so they get the right kind of care at the right time.

The key to this bill. They are saying this is going to make my prospects for being able to afford care—whether it is nursing homes, home and community-based services—an awful lot harder to figure out in the days ahead.

We have young people who have been through cancer scares. We have single parents who work multiple jobs to put food on the table. This is what I am hearing about at home. When I had the good fortune of being chosen Oregon’s first new Senator in almost 30 years, I made a pledge that I would have an open meeting, open to everybody in every one of my State’s counties. We have 36 counties in Oregon.

This year, so far, I have had 54 open-to-all town meetings. Each one of them lasts 90 minutes. There are no speeches. People say what they want. They ask a question. It is the way the Founding Fathers wanted it to be. They are educating me, and I am trying to learn. I am trying to go back to Washington, DC, which often strikes them as a logic-free zone—I am trying to take their thoughts back to Washington, DC. Frankly, my highest priority has been to find common ground with people of common sense on the Finance Committee, especially in the healthcare area, because long ago I decided if you and your loved ones don’t have your health, nothing else really matters.

At those 54 town meetings—they have been in counties where President Trump won by large numbers or Hillary Clinton won by large numbers—each one of those meetings has been dominated by the fears of Americans of all walks of life, of all political philosophies worried about what is going to happen to their healthcare.

Frankly, their worry seems to be just as great in rural communities that President Trump won by large majorities because Medicaid expansion in my State has been enormously helpful. So many Oregon communities, under 10,000 in population, have been able to use Medicaid expansion at a hospital to maybe hire another person. It has really been a lifeline. They have an awful lot of young people who are going to be charged five times as much as young people here, and they are going to get fewer tax credits to deal with it.

In all of these counties—counties won by Donald Trump, counties won by Hillary Clinton—fear about healthcare has been front and center. People are fearful and obviously would like some clarity, some sense of what is coming next.

One of our colleagues whom I do a lot of work with, Senator Thune—a member of the Finance Committee and his party’s leadership—spoke to a reporter a little bit ago. He couldn’t say what the Senate would take up, if the first procedural vote passes next week, whether it would be TrumpCare or a straight repeal bill.

My sense is, everybody is being asked to walk into this abyss on healthcare but particularly colleagues on the other side of the aisle. To be in the dark about what is on offer a few days before a vote that affects hundreds of millions of Americans, one-sixth of the American economy, to be in the dark, someone like myself, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee that has jurisdiction over Medicare and Medicaid and tax credits, strikes me as very odd, even by the standards of the beltway.

The American people are now left guessing about what comes next. The only guarantee, should the first procedural vote succeed, is that both options on the table are going to raise premiums, make care unaffordable for those with preexisting conditions, and leave tens of millions of Americans without health coverage.

I want to try to get a message that I and other Democratic Senators have been delivering for days. The choice between TrumpCare and straight repeal of the Affordable Care Act is false. Nobody is being forced to choose between calamity and disaster.

Democrats and Republicans absolutely can work together on the healthcare challenges facing the country. As soon as there is a willingness to drop the all-or-nothing approach—this partisan approach known as reconciliation—there will be a good faith effort on our side to find common ground.

I heard enough of the back-and-forth in this debate to know there is a bipartisan interest; for example, in flexibility for States. I know the President of the Senate is especially interested in this issue—flexibility for the States. He has given it a lot of thought. I want him to know I am always open to talking to him about this issue.

In the bill I described earlier—seven Democrats, seven Republicans—we had a special section which became law in the Affordable Care Act that in effect provided for what are called innovation waivers. The theory—and I am sure my colleague in the Chair has been thinking about these issues as well—is based on the idea we both have heard for decades. If those folks in Washington will just give us the freedom, we can find better ways to cover people, hold down the costs, and make what works in Louisiana work for us, and folks in Oregon can pursue what works in Oregon.

I said, at the time, that every single bill that I would be part of in this debate about fixing American healthcare would have a provision that would respond to this argument that the States are the laboratories of democracy. We would have a provision that would allow considerable flexibility for States to take their own approaches.

I continue to feel very strongly about it. I wrote an entire section of my comprehensive bill to give States flexibility, and fortunately it was included in the Affordable Care Act. There ought to be room to work on these kinds of issues. There has really been a major factor in the reason that our people get hammered by escalating drug prices.

We have heard for so long that some of the middlemen are called pharmaceutical benefit managers. They came into being a few years ago. They said: We will negotiate for businesses or States or labor unions. We will negotiate a better deal for the consumers.

Consumers said: Hey, we will see that in our pocketbook. At home we would see that at a pharmacy, at Fred Meyer or Rite Aid or Walgreens or any of our pharmacies. These are all big pharmaceutical companies around the country. They know, as of this afternoon, we don’t know what these middlemen put in their pocket and what they put in our pocketbook.

There ought to be an opportunity to find common ground. I think there ought to be a chance for Democrats and Republicans to work together on approaches like my SPIKE bill, which says that when a big pharmaceutical company wants to drive up the prices, they should have to publicly justify why they are doing so.

There ought to be ways for Democrats and Republicans to work together and bring down prescription drug costs. There certainly is bipartisan interest in getting more competition and more consumers into the insurance markets. That means more predictability and certainty.

My view is, if you are serious about really helping to make the private insurance market robust, you have to stop this crusade to repeal the ACA. Insurers are making decisions right now. All eyes are on this body to bring certainty back to the marketplace.

The reality is, there is only a very short time with respect to 2018 premiums. I know there are Republican Senators who would like to tackle challenges on a bipartisan basis. The reality is, many of my colleagues and are sending this message to the folks in Washington will just give us the freedom, we can find better ways to cover people, hold down the costs, and make what works in Louisiana work for us, and folks in Oregon can pursue what works in Oregon.

Let us set aside this partisan our-way-or-the-highway approach, opt for the alternative, which is more sunshine and more bipartisanship. I will pledge to you everything in my power on the Senate Finance Committee to bring that about.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. President, the White House started out this week with all kinds of activities on the White House grounds that are going to make here in America and the importance of manufacturing and, frankly, the kinds of good jobs that have traditionally come with manufacturing.

When we have an economy that focuses on making things and growing things, that has always been the strongest economy for working American families—an economy that competes, an economy that produces. Where the Presiding Officer and I live in Louisiana and in Missouri, in the middle of the country and close to that great transportation corridor and close to the resources of the country, we always particularly thrive when we are in an economy that is focused on making things.

With all of the other discussions this week, it would be a shame to not think about those products from every State that the President talked about this week about things they could make a living for themselves and lots of other people, doing just that. In fact, manufacturing employs 12.3 million people in the country today, including more than 260,000 people in my State of Missouri. There is no doubt that we benefit from those kinds of jobs.

I was glad that in 2014 we were able to get the Revitalize American Manufacturing and Innovation Act signed into law. It is a new opportunity for businesses to link with each other and to link with training facilities, maybe research universities. You have to have that kind of public partner, as well, to see what we could be to be even more competitive than we are. When we looked at Germany and other countries, they were not only doing this sort of thing, but they were doing it in a way that made it really hard for us sometimes to keep up with that level of interaction between innovation and manufacturing, innovation and labor.

Businesses are really very much impacted, jobs are very much impacted by the decisions that government ultimately sets the stage for. If you are going to make something in America today, the first two boxes I think you would have to check would be can you pay the utility bill and does the transportation system work with what you are trying to do. If you can’t check those two boxes, no matter how great that workforce and that location might be, you are not going to take those jobs there. So government, either as a regulator or as a provider, is going to be very involved in whether you can pay the utility bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

That is why I was really glad to see the new director at the Environmental Protection Agency look at the power rule. The courts fortunately had already said you don’t have the authority to do that—only Congress can do what you want to do here—which is look at the power rule and look at States like many of our States in the middle of the country where, in my State, we would have doubled the utility bill for families and the places they work in about 10 or 12 years. By the way, nobody pays the utility bill for you. The utility bill is paid based on how many megawatts you use. There is no utility rule that big government to come in and pay the utility bill unless we are going to have a totally different system than we have now. The utility bill would have doubled.

I have often said that in the last three years in this fight to see that this didn’t happen to Missouri families—and I said it again on the radio this morning in an interview, thinking that this fortunately had not happened—I said: If you want to test what happens if the utility bill is allowed to double because of some needless government action—and double before it has to because you are doing things before they have to be done—the next time you pay your utility bill just as if you are writing your checks out of your checkbook, pay it one more time and see what you are going to do with the rest of your family’s money that month, which suddenly you can’t do because you are paying the utility bill twice.

There are ways—when we need to transition to some other kind of utility provider if we want to transition in fuels or sources or whatever—there are many more tools can we put in the tool box. Senator WARNER and I reintroduced the BRIDGE Act to provide one more tool to create more incentive for private sector partnerships, to do things differently than we have done them before. If we are going to get different results, we have to do different things. If we do just exactly what we have been doing, we are going to get just exactly what we have been getting.

On the infrastructure front, we need to look not only at the infrastructure that we have now but also at how many more tools can we put in the tool box. Senator WARNER and I reintroduced the BRIDGE Act to provide one more tool to create more incentive for private sector partnerships, to do things differently than we have done them before. If we are going to get different results, we have to do different things. If we do just exactly what we have been doing, we are going to get just exactly what we have been getting.

As the President focuses, I think we need to think about those things. Then we have to think, with that infrastructure in place, what is the third and crucial piece of that puzzle coming together? It is a workforce that is competitive and prepared and an education system that is prepared to help with whatever comes next.

If we think we know what the average person, or any person, is going to be doing and how they are going to be doing it 20 years from now, I suspect none of us are quite that able to predict what 20 years from now is going to look like. In fact, if we had thought about the way we do most of the work over the last 20 years, we would have been amazed: Oh, it is just 20 years later, but there was nothing that the factory that did that machine does right now. We have to have a workforce that is ready, and we have to do all we can to make that workforce ready.

On the infrastructure front, we need to look not only at the infrastructure that we have now but also at how many more tools can we put in the tool box. Senator WARNER and I reintroduced the BRIDGE Act to provide one more tool to create more incentive for private sector partnerships, to do things differently than we have done them before. If we are going to get different results, we have to do different things. If we do just exactly what we have been doing, we are going to get just exactly what we have been getting.
this week without also thinking about those jobs, thinking about the 12.3 million Americans who work at making things, thinking about the more than a quarter of a million Missourians who do that. Think about the others who work at growing things and how an economy that makes things and grows things is a stronger economy than an economy where people just trade services with each other. There is nothing wrong with trading services, but if you do that on top of a productive economy, you will have a much better likelihood for everyone involved to serve the people who provide the services, as well as the people who are out there making things that are competitive in the world to have better opportunities.

I appreciate the President and Vice President this week calling attention to that important part of what we do as we move toward transportation and infrastructure and other things.

THOUGHTS AND PRAYERS FOR SENATOR MCCAIN

Mr. MCCAIN. Frankly, I never grew to like Senator MCCAIN and his family. Lots of stories today have been told and traded, as Senator MCCAIN said: Well, it has been a long thing. When asked about it, Senator MCCAIN said—when he was here last week. He was there, otherwise he did a lot of its in brief meetings with Senator MCCAIN. Frankly, I never grew to like Senator MCCAIN and his family. Lots of stories today have been told and traded, and there are lots of stories to tell. When I was in the House for 14 years, I was often in brief meetings with Senator MCCAIN. I know lots of prayers have been said for Senator MCCAIN and his family. Lots of stories today have been told and traded.

Mr. MCCAIN. Frankly, I never grew to like Senator MCCAIN and his family. Lots of stories today have been told and traded.

Let’s look at his record. Mr. Bernhardt has extensive political experience in the Department of the Interior under the Bush administration, but in the Obama administration, during the 2 years he oversaw the ethics division, the Department was awash in ethical scandals and scientific misconduct. And what did he do after he left government service? He scooted off to a lucrative lobbying firm to help Big Oil and other extraction companies maximize their profits by expanding offshore drilling and delaying air pollution limits on coal plants, regardless of the health of the children who would have on our children’s future.

Even Mr. Bernhardt isn’t proud of his own record. Prior to his nomination, his lobbying firm bio bragged about recently helping corporations fight against the Endangered Species Act, supporting corporate interests in offshore drilling and exploration for fossil fuels, and helping mining companies pursue public lands for development. He openly bragged about recently representing “criminal investigation by a Federal Agency” and “entities accused of violating the Department of the Interior’s regulations.” He swaggered through Washington. That is, he swaggered right up until he was under consideration for the No. 2 spot at Interior. Now that he is in the public spotlight, he has scrubbed all those pro-industry, pro-pollution references from his bio. Now that the public is paying attention, he is putting out a clean image of a public servant who never had any ties to Big Oil and big coal companies.

With that, I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. WARREN, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. President, I rise today to oppose the nomination of David Bernhardt as the next Deputy Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. Bernhardt has shown that he is unwilling to fight for the long-term conservation of our public lands and the responsible use of our public resources. By his own admission, he intends to be a big business yes-man for the Trump administration’s extreme disregard for our environment and the human lives that are affected.

President Trump promised to drain the swamp of DC, but with each day of this administration, this Republican-controlled Senate is another corporate insider to help out big business. The decision to nominate Mr. Bernhardt is no exception. He is another conflict-ridden, climate-dismissing Trump appointee who favors profits over people.

Let’s look at his record. Mr. Bernhardt has extensive political experience in the Department of the Interior under the Bush administration, but in the Obama administration, during the 2 years he oversaw the ethics division, the Department was awash in ethical scandals and scientific misconduct. And what did he do after he left government service? The Deputy Secretary serves at the pleasure of the President. But a Deputy Secretary—the No. 2 at the Department—is, first and foremost, bound to serve the American people and the mission of the Department. No President is truly served by a Yes-man, and Mr. Bernhardt’s Yes-man mentality was on full display during his confirmation hearing.

When my colleague from Minnesota, Senator Al FRANKEN, questioned Mr. Bernhardt about climate change at his nomination hearing, he was all too willing to dismiss the urgency of climate change, and he pushed aside the responsibilities of the Department of the Interior to act. In defiance of accepted climate science, he said the facts do not go to change to the extent we have the discretion under the law to follow it.

In other words, don’t bother me with the facts; we will just stick to whatever President Trump tells us to do.

But the rest of us can’t ignore the facts. Our planet is getting hotter. The last 16 years were all among the hottest 17 years on record, and our seas are rising at an alarming rate. Our coastlines are threatened by fierce storm surges that can sweep away homes and devastate even our largest cities. Our economically disadvantaged communities, too often situated in low-lying floodplains, are one bad storm away from destruction. Our naval bases are under attack—not by enemy ships but by rising seas. Our food supplies and forests are threatened by droughts and wildfires that are becoming so common across the country that they barely even make the evening news.

The effects of manmade climate change are all around us, and things will only continue to get worse at an accelerating pace if we don’t do something about it. We can act, and one important step is saying no to corporate raiders who are seeking to exploit public lands and gamble with our children’s future.

President Trump thinks leadership is having the cover of management of our public lands to Big Oil and Big Coal executives who are looking to stuff their pockets while the getting is good. Mr. Bernhardt, a seasoned advocate for corporate interests, seems all too eager to please President and corporate interests, no matter the cost to the American people. If President Trump’s highest ranking agency officials are not brave enough to speak even a little truth to power about this President’s climate delusions, then, who will?

The American people deserve leadership at the Department of the Interior—leadership that is committed to ensuring that our public resources and our public lands are preserved for future generations of Americans. The American people deserve leadership that fights back when the President seeks to cut thousands of jobs at the Department of the Interior or offers a budget that critically undermines the Department's mission and threatens our public lands.

The American people deserve leadership at the Department of the Interior—leadership that works for the people—and that is not David Bernhardt.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate be in a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(At the request of Mr. SCHUMER the following statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.)

VOTE EXPLANATION

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, due to a family related matter in Michigan, I was unable to attend today’s rollocal vote on the nomination of John K. Bush to be a United States circuit judge for the Sixth Circuit. Had I been able to attend, I would have opposed his nomination.

I also was unable to attend today’s rollocal vote on the nomination to become counsel on the nomination of David Bernhardt to be Deputy Secretary of the Interior. Had I been able to attend, I would have voted no on the cloture motion.

MCKINNEY-VENTO HOMELESS ASSISTANCE ACT

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, July 22, 2017, marks the 30th anniversary of the enactment of the McKinney-Vento Homeless Assistance Act, our Nation’s landmark law designed to prevent and address homelessness. Many communities in my home State of Washington and across the country are confronting a surge in homeless and housing-insecure individuals, and the resources brought to bear by McKinney-Vento are essential to continued progress. The McKinney-Vento Act also marked the first time that Congress provided dedicated funding to ensure equal educational opportunities for children and youth who are experiencing homelessness. The law requires States and school districts to remove barriers that homeless children and youth face in receiving a high-quality education. In the years since the McKinney-Vento Act was signed into law, hundreds of thousands of young people experiencing homelessness have received the supports they need in order to attend school, graduate, and secure a well-paying job that can provide for their families.

I am pleased that our nation has introduced and seen enacted legislation to remove barriers and provide support to homeless children and youth, from early childhood through postsecondary education. Many of these laws have codified best practices pioneered by dedicated Washington State educators determined to make a difference for homeless children and youth.

I have fought and continue to fight for funding that makes a difference for homeless children, veterans, and other adults, and families experiencing homelessness. I ask my colleagues to join me in celebrating the success of the McKinney-Vento Act and recognizing how far we still have to go in order to solve homelessness crisis and make sure that every child in our country has access to a quality education no matter where they live, how they learn, or how much money their parents make.

RECOGNIZING THOSE WHO SERVED ON WAKE ISLAND

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, today I wish to honor the servicemen and civilians who served on Wake Island in World War II, as the last gathering of the Survivors of Wake Island gave the following account: “Five hours after bombing Pearl Harbor on December 7th, 1941, Japanese forces attacked Wake Island, a tiny island midway between Hawaii and Japan. The United States was constructing a runway essential for planes to refuel on their way through the area. There were 449 Marines, 68 Sailors, 6 Army Air Corps, and 1146 civilians employed by the Boise-based Morrison Knudsen Company on the island. Approximately 250 of the MK workers were from Idaho. For 15 days the military and civilians bravely defended the island from the Japanese forces. Wake Island fell to the Japanese on December 23, 1941.

‘‘Following the battle, 96 civilian construction workers were kept on Wake Island to labor for the Japanese. When their work was complete, they were forced to dig their own graves before being executed. The remaining defenders of the island, both military and civilian, were taken as prisoners of war by the Japanese and held for 44 months. These brave heroes endured exceedingly harsh conditions, serving as slave labor for the Japanese government in Japan and China. Many died in captivity. In 1981 the civilian MK employees were granted Veteran status in recognition of their service in the War of the Pacific...’’

Those who survived and returned home have enriched our communities. Thank you to those who served on Wake Island and their families for the immeasurable service given to our country and for your enduring examples of devotion and strength.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

TRIBUTE TO MAJOR RICHARD E. HAGNER

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I am pleased to commend MAJ Richard E. Hagner for his dedication to duty and service to the Nation as an Army congressional fellow and congressional liaison for the Assistant Secretary of the Army. Major Hagner was recently selected for the Army’s prestigious Advanced Strategic Planning and Policy Program and will be transitioning from his present assignment to begin doctoral studies at Vanderbilt University.

A native of Milwaukee, WI, Major Hagner was commissioned as an infantry officer after his graduation from North Georgia College and State University with a bachelor of science degree. He subsequently earned master's degrees in joint information operations from the Naval Postgraduate School and legislative affairs from the George Washington University.

Major Hagner has served in a broad range of assignments during his Army career. He has served as a rifle platoon leader, communications officer, and network engineer, becoming instrumental to the success of his units from the battalion to brigade level. Notably, he has held many key staff positions in Mannheim, Germany, following a demanding combat deployment to Afghanistan. His leadership has brought great credit to the U.S. Army.

In 2015, Major Hagner was selected to be an Army congressional fellow, where he served in the offices of the late Congressman Alan Nunnelee of Mississippi and Congressman Steve Israel of New York. I have had the privilege of working with him in his role as a congressional budget liaison officer. In that role, Richard ensured the Army’s budget positions were well represented before the appropriations committees.

It has been a pleasure to have worked with MAJ Richard Hagner. His leadership, thoughtful judgment, and exemplary work have been a positive influence on his soldiers, peers, and superiors throughout his career. I am pleased to recognize and commend his dedication to our Nation and service to the U.S. Congress as an Army congressional liaison.

TRIBUTE TO JIM SINCLAIR

- Mr. DAINES. Mr. President, this week, I have the distinct honor of recognizing Jim Sinclair of Plains for the leadership he has provided to his community in northwest Montana. As the senior pastor of his church, Jim has provided a helping hand to others for over 30 years.

The people of Sanders County know Jim and his wife, Renee, for the admirable work their ministry has done to support those in need. Before becoming a pastor, Jim made a living harvesting timber, and those skills have been valuable with helping the most vulnerable members of their community stay warm during the cold Montana winters. In addition to distributing firewood, Jim’s church harnesses the talents of many volunteers in order to provide a food bank, soup kitchen, and clothing bank. Their approach to ministry has empowered his community to help each other overcome challenges.

Communities like Plains depend on folks like Jim and Renee, as well as the dozens of volunteers they have mentored over the years. I thank them for all that they do, and wish them the best as their ministry continues to grow in the service of others.

RECOGNIZING ST. PAUL AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

- Mr. MANCHIN, Mr. President. I am proud to stand before you this evening to celebrate the 125th anniversary of the founding of the St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal Church. First built on Court Street in Charleston, WV, St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal Church has served as a bastion of faith since its founding in 1892.

With humble beginnings, St. Paul AME first organized in the basement of the old Charleston courthouse under the leadership of Rev. Lewis McGhee. Sr. Once a year, construction began on a permanent home, and in 1897, that home was completed.

The St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal Church has been a leader of the community for its entire existence. In the early 1900s, Rev. Francis Herman Gow formed the first African American Boy Scout troop in Charleston. Reverend Gow’s trailblazing did not just end there, and in 1915, Reverend Gow established the Mattie V. Lee Home to provide housing for African-American women who traveled to Charleston in search of work.

The Mattie V. Lee Home still stands today under the direction of the Prestera Center, where it serves as an addiction treatment facility. Just as the Mattie V. Lee Home continues to make a difference in the Charleston community so long after its founding date, so too does the St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal Church.

Today the St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal Church works to provide both healing and spiritual guidance in Charleston. Under the direction of Rev. John Sylvia, the church serves free weekly dinners for all interested, and associate pastor Rev. Roberta Smith was recently creating RESET, a group to foster positive dialogue between law enforcement, clergy, and community of Charleston, WV.

It is through these acts of positivity and spiritual guidance that St. Paul AME has flourished in the Charleston community. I would like to thank Rev. John Sylvia and the entire congregation at St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal Church for their commitment to the Charleston community. I am proud of the work done by St. Paul AME, and I know that the church will continue to spread the Word of the Lord for many more years to come.

RECOGNIZING ROHINNI

- Mr. RISCH. Mr. President, today I would like to highlight the innovation, creativity, and entrepreneurial spirit that is found all across my home State of Idaho. Every month, I recognize a small business owner from one of our Idaho communities who embodies the spirit of innovation and determination in developing a service that makes a substantial difference in the lives of many Americans. The small business that I would like to highlight this month has done just that by having an outsized influence on the micro-electronic and lighting industries. As chairman of the Senate Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I am pleased to honor Rohinni as the Small Business of the Month for July 2017.

The future is bright for this Coeur d’Alene based technology startup. Rohinni develops and manufactures LED lighting products. Described as “the World’s Thinnest LED lighting,” they allow light to any shape, on any surface, and for any need. The company’s products have already been applied in many different fields, including transportation and consumer electronics.

Cofounders Cody Peterson and Andy Huska first worked together creating advanced force-sensing capacitive membrane switches, touchpads, and touchscreens for the Pacinian Corporation, which Mr. Peterson founded. With their extensive experience and backing in innovative technology products, they began with a new, clever concept: Using a thin slice of conductive material, they were able to disperse thousands of micro-LED diodes to create glowing surfaces. With this new direction, Rohinni was born in 2013. After further developing this innovative technique and obtaining 44 patents, including one for the world’s thinnest keyboard, Cody and Andy mastered micro-LED placement. With the help of some crucial venture capital investments 2 years later, the co-founders turned their idea into a successful company and have even expanded with a branch office in Austin, TX. Their new technology has been successfully used in many products, including fabric, television displays, mobile devices, and automotive displays.

Rohinni’s creative efforts have been recognized by several business and trade publications. As one of the founders of the Semiconductor Caucus, I recognize the impact these emerging technologies have on the advancement of our Nation’s scientific progress, as we continue to move towards manufacturing products that are simpler in design, more efficient, lighter in weight, and smaller in size. The innovation displayed by companies like Rohinni help to preserve our global competitive edge in the electronic, semiconductor, and memory industries.

It is my honor to recognize Cody Peterson and Andy Huska and the employees of Rohinni who have made lasting contributions to the electronics industry. You make our State proud, and I look forward to watching your continued growth and success.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Ms. Ridgway, one of his secretaries.
EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED
In executive session, the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The messages received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE

REPORT RELATIVE TO THE CONTINUATION OF THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO SIGNIFICANT TRANSNATIONAL CRIMINAL ORGANIZATIONS THAT WAS ESTABLISHED IN EXECUTIVE ORDER 13581 ON JULY 24, 2011—PM 14

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States in which he requested an accompanying report, which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, within 90 days prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent to the Federal Register for publication the enclosed notice stating that the national emergency with respect to significant transnational criminal organizations declared in Executive Order 13581 on July 24, 2011, is to continue in effect beyond July 24, 2017. This notice supersedes the notice regarding this topic submitted to the Federal Register on July 19, 2017.

The activities of significant transnational criminal organizations have reached such scope and gravity that they threaten the stability of international political and economic systems. Such organizations are increasingly sophisticated and dangerous to the United States; they are increasingly entrenched in the operations of foreign governments and the international financial system, thereby weakening democratic institutions, degrading the rule of law, and undermining economic markets. These organizations facilitate and aggravate violent civil conflicts and increasingly facilitate the activities of other dangerous persons.

The activities of significant transnational criminal organizations continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States. Therefore, I have determined that it is necessary to continue the national emergency declared in Executive Order 13581 with respect to transnational criminal organizations.

Donald J. Trump,

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 10:13 a.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mrs. Cole, one of its reading clerks, announced that it has passed the following bills, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and are referred to lie on the table as indicated:

POM–68. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Nevada urging the United States Congress not to repeal the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act or its most important provisions; to the Committee on Finance.

RESOLVED, That the Speaker of the House prepare and transmit a copy of this resolution to the Vice President of the United States, as the presiding officer of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives and each member of the Nevada Congressional Delegation; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly prepare and transmit a copy of this resolution to the Vice President of the United States, as the presiding officer of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives and each member of the Nevada Congressional Delegation; and be it further

Resolved, That this resolution becomes effective upon passage.

POM–69. A resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Michigan supporting and encouraging the International Criminal Court to conduct an independent investigation into the human rights violations allegedly occurring in the Chechen Republic of Russia; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

H. RESOLUTION NO. 79

Whereas, The Affordable Care Act mandates health insurance coverage for immunization vaccines for children, including, without limitation, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, mumps, rubella, hepatitis B, and chickenpox; and

Whereas, The Affordable Care Act includes many other benefits and protections to ensure access to health care by all; and

Whereas A number of national leaders have proposed repealing the Affordable Care Act during the 115th Congress without a plan to replace the Affordable Care Act, which adequately protects the thousands of Nevadans who benefit from or may not have access to health insurance coverage without the Affordable Care Act; and

Whereas, Repealing the Affordable Care Act without establishing mechanisms to preserve the significant improvements and protections afforded by the law, and without adequately providing for those who stand to lose their health insurance coverage upon repeal, will have significant detrimental effects on individuals and their families, on the health care industry in general and on the overall economic well-being of both Nevada and the nation as a whole: Now, therefore,

Resolved by the Assembly and Senate of the State of Nevada Jointly, That the members of the 79th Session of the Nevada Legislature urge the United States Congress to fully preserve the critical benefits afforded by the Affordable Care Act which many Nevadans have come to rely upon; and be it further

Resolved, That Congress should not repeal the Affordable Care Act so that these essential programs remain available to future generations of Nevadans; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly prepare and transmit a copy of this resolution to the Vice President of the United States, as the presiding officer of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives and each member of the Nevada Congressional Delegation; and be it further

Resolved, That this resolution becomes effective upon passage.

POM–68. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Nevada urging the United States Congress not to repeal the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act or its most important provisions; to the Committee on Finance.

Resolved, That the Speaker of the House prepare and transmit a copy of this resolution to the Vice President of the United States, as the presiding officer of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives and each member of the Nevada Congressional Delegation; and be it further

Resolved, That this resolution becomes effective upon passage.

POM–70. A resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Colorado relating to access to reproductive health care; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Whereas, Colorado has always been committed to a quality health care system and to creating policies that meet the health needs of women and families, including affordable reproductive health services; and

Whereas, Colorado was the first state to allow safe, legal abortion on a bipartisan basis in 1967; and

Whereas, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists has stated that “[s]afe, legal abortion is a necessary component of women’s health care”, and health providers and associations affirm that good access to reproductive health care depends and positively impacts women’s lives and futures; and

Whereas, Reproductive health care is both safe and common. More than 90% of women have used contraception, about three in ten women will have an abortion in her lifetime, and more than half of women will have a child during their lifetime; and

Whereas, People may disagree with the decision to seek an abortion, but is it a decision that each person should make for themselves with the counsel of their health providers, their families, and their faiths; and

Whereas, Rates of maternal mortality are decreasing around the world, but increasing in the United States for women of color who face an alarming and disparate rate of pregnancy complications and maternal mortality; and

Whereas, Restrictions on the availability of reproductive health care and limits on health coverage, such as policies denying insurance for reproductive health care services, have a disparate impact on low-income women and women of color and their families; and

Whereas, Obstacles to obtaining the best method of contraception for each person’s unique health and life circumstances remain a barrier to many; and

Whereas, Low-income women and women of color face a higher rate of unintended pregnancy, so ensuring access to contraception is a critical part of helping to address health disparities in marginalized communities; and

Whereas, An inability or difficulty to conceive is not only emotionally difficult for people within a family but can be prohibitively expensive, so we must do more to help people seeking to build their families, regardless of sexual orientation or gender identity.

Whereas, There is a continued need to address inequities in health care access and ensure culturally and linguistically appropriate care of health providers. Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Seventy-first General Assembly of the State of Colorado:

That we, the members of the Colorado House of Representatives, find that:

(1) Colorado continues to be a state where all individuals’ health remains a top priority, and Coloradans resist attempts to undermine the right to access reproductive health care;

(2) Access to comprehensive and affordable reproductive health care is critical to ensure that people have the information and services to prevent unintended pregnancies, the support to have healthy pregnancies and become parents when they are ready, and the ability to raise their children in a safe and healthy environment; and be able to care for their families with dignity;

(3) State, county, and city health departments shall promote policies to ensure access to comprehensive and culturally appropriate health care, including abortion, and eliminate disparities that prevent low-income women and women of color from seeking safe, high-quality care.

(4) Both public and private health insurancr should cover the full range of reproductive health care, including abortion;

(5) Facilities and professionals providing reproductive health services shall not be subject to regulations that do not have a medical benefit and that are more burdensome than those faced by health care providers who provide medically comparable procedures. Provision of non-emergency medical services and medical practices as developed by medical experts and supported by medical evidence.

(6) All qualified health care professionals shall be able to provide the full range of reproductive health care, including abortion, and have access to appropriate medical training; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to President Donald J. Trump; Vice President Mike Pence; Paul Ryan, Speaker of the United States House of Representatives; Cory G. Gardner, President Pro Tempore of the United States Senate; Governor John Hickenlooper; Dr. Larry Wolk, Executive Director, Colorado Department of Public Health and Environment; and the members of Colorado’s Congressional Delegation.

POM–71. A resolution adopted by the House of Representatives of the State of Colorado relative to recognizing the importance of Colorado libraries; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Whereas, Libraries are a vital and essential public resource that provide free and equal access to educational and recreational material and enrich the lives of all citizens; and

Whereas, Libraries play a critical role in democracy and community development by promoting civil discourse and empowering citizens to learn, imagine, and succeed; and

Whereas, Libraries across Colorado lead the way in developing new and innovative ways of meeting the needs of and uniting the state’s increasingly diverse population; and

Whereas, Colorado receives $2.7 million annually from the federal Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) for services and programs provided by Colorado libraries and staff; and

Whereas, Libraries across Colorado lead the way in developing new and innovative ways of meeting the needs of and uniting the state’s increasingly diverse population; and

Whereas, Colorado receives $2.7 million annually from the federal Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) for services and programs provided by Colorado libraries and staff; and

Whereas, clever, and culturally rich community of West Denver, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to Donald Trump, President of the United States; Mike Pence, Vice President of the United States; John Hickenlooper, Governor of Colorado; the Colorado Association of Libraries; the Colorado Department of Education; and the members of Colorado’s Congressional delegation.

Whereas, State legislatures across the United States have passed measures known as “Right to Try” laws authorizing access by terminally ill patients to experimental drugs and other potentially life-saving methods of treatment; and

Whereas, Louisiana, as of the date of filing of this Resolution, at least thirty-three U.S. states, including Louisiana, have established a Right to Try law; and

Whereas, Louisiana’s Right to Try law, enacted through House Bill No. 891 (Act No. 36) of the 2014 Regular Session, sets forth the following legislative findings:

The process of developing investigational drugs, biological products, and devices in the United States often takes many years.
(2) A terminally ill patient does not have the luxury of waiting for an investigational drug, product, or device to receive final approval from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Whereas, this law (R.S. 40:1169.1 et seq.) provides that, subject to certain conditions, terminally ill patients in Louisiana are authorized to use drugs, biological products, and devices that have successfully completed a phase one of an FDA-approved clinical trial but which remain under investigation in the clinical efficacy and safety benefit, and have not yet been approved by the FDA for general use; and

Whereas, the Trickett Wendler Right to Try Act of 2017 has been introduced in the One Hundred and Twenty-fourth United States Congress as S. 204 and would codify in federal law the essential provisions of the Right to Try laws of Louisiana and other states; and

Whereas, a key function of this legislation is to bar the federal government from prohibiting or restricting the production, manufacture, distribution, prescribing, or dispensing of an experimental drug, biological product, or device that is intended to treat a terminally ill patient and is authorized by and in accordance with state law; and

Whereas, Rev. Dr. King led the Montgomery bus boycott of 1955, against the segregated city bus system and is widely credited as the beginning of the civil rights movement in America; and

Whereas, In 1957, Rev. Dr. King was elected president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, an organization formed to provide leadership for the burgeoning civil rights movement; and

Whereas, Between 1957 and 1968, Rev. Dr. King spoke more than 2,500 times, wrote 5 books as well as numerous articles, led protests, helped register African American voters, was arrested more than 20 times, was instrumental in bringing about landmark legislation, such as the "Civil Rights Act of 1964", which prohibited segregation in public accommodations and facilities and banned discriminatory voting and other practices based on race, color, national origin, and the "Voting Rights Act of 1965", which eliminated remaining legal barriers to voting for disenfranchised African American voters; and

Whereas, In 1964, Rev. Dr. King was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his tireless and selfless work in the pursuit of justice for African Americans and other oppressed people in America; and

Whereas, Dr. King’s 13 years of nonviolent leadership ended abruptly and tragically on April 4, 1968, when he was assassinated while standing on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tennessee; and

Whereas, Rev. Dr. King’s life and work continue to influence the lives of those who strive to reach the lofty goal he set when he said, “Let us all hope that the dark clouds of racial prejudice will soon pass away and the deep fog of misunderstanding will be lifted from our fear-drenched communities, and in some not too distant tomorrow the radiant colors of racial justice will once again resound the entire nation with all their scintillating beauty.”; and

Whereas, Rev. Dr. King’s birthday is a federal holiday in the United States, a legal state holiday in the state of Colorado, which is celebrated each year on the third Monday in January; and

Whereas, On Monday, January 16, 2017, we celebrate the 31st anniversary of Rev. Dr. King’s holiday: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the Seventy-first General Assembly of the State of Colorado

(1) Honor the work of communities, governmental institutions, nonprofits, congregations, employers, and individuals in removing unnecessary legal and societal barriers that prevent individuals with a criminal record from becoming productive members of society; and

(2) A terminally ill patient does not have the luxury of waiting for an investigational drug, product, or device that is intended to treat a terminally ill patient and is authorized by and in accordance with state law; and

WHEREAS, THE TRICKETT WENLER RIGHT TO TRY ACT OF 2017 AND THE RIGHT TO TRY LAW OF LOUISIANA DESIGNATING APRIL 2017 AS "SECOND CHANCE MONTH"; AND

WHEREAS, THE LEADERSHIP OF REV. DR. KING WAS INSTRUMENTAL IN BRINGING ABOUT LANDMARK LEGISLATION, SUCH AS THE "CIVIL RIGHTS ACT OF 1964", WHICH PROHIBITED SEGREGATION IN PUBLIC ACCOMMODATIONS AND FACILITIES AND BANNED DISCRIMINATORY VOTING AND OTHER PRACTICES BASED ON RACE, COLOR, NATIONAL ORIGIN, AND THE "VOTING RIGHTS ACT OF 1965", WHICH ELIMINATED REMAINING LEGAL BARRIERS TO VOTING FOR DISENFRANCHISED AFRICAN AMERICAN VOTERS; AND

WHEREAS, IN 1964, REV. DR. KING WAS AWARDED THE NOBEL PEACE PRIZE FOR HIS TIRELESS AND SELFLESS WORK IN THE PURSUIT OF JUSTICE FOR AFRICAN AMERICANS AND OTHER OPPRESSED PEOPLE IN AMERICA; AND

WHEREAS, DR. KING’S 13 YEARS OF NONVIOLENT LEADERSHIP ENDED ABRUTLY AND TRAGICALLY ON APRIL 4, 1968, WHEN HE WAS ASSASSINATED WHILE STANDING ON THE BALCONY OF THE LORRINE MOTE IN MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE; AND

WHEREAS, REV. DR. KING’S BIRTHDAY IS A FEDERAL HOLIDAY IN THE UNITED STATES, A LEGAL STATE HOLIDAY IN THE STATE OF COLORADO, WHICH IS CELEBRATED EACH YEAR ON THE THIRD MONDAY IN JANUARY; AND

That we, the members of the Colorado General Assembly, hereby encourage appropriate observances, ceremonies, and activities to commemorate the federal and state legal holiday honoring the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., to: (1) Honor the work of communities, governmental institutions, nonprofits, congregations, employers, and individuals in removing unnecessary legal and societal barriers that prevent individuals with a criminal record from becoming productive members of society; and (2) Honor the work of communities, governmental institutions, nonprofits, congregations, employers, and individuals in removing unnecessary legal and societal barriers that prevent individuals with a criminal record from becoming productive members of society; and...
Resolved, That copies of this Joint Resolution be sent to President Barack Obama, Honorable Governor John Hickenlooper, the Congressional Black Caucus, the National Black Farmers Council, and the members of Colorado’s congressional delegation; Senators Michael Bennet and Cory Gardner and Representatives Diana DeGette, Jared Polis, Ken Buck, Doug Lamborn, Mike Coffman, and Ed Perlmutter.

POM-75. A resolution adopted by the City Council of the City of Oberlin, Ohio, to the President of the United States opposing the withdrawal of the United States from the Paris Climate Agreement; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. Kaine (for himself and Mr. Portman):

S. 1599. A bill to require the Secretary of Labor to award grants for promoting industry or sector partnerships to encourage industry growth and competitiveness and to improve worker training, retention, and advancement; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. Kaine. Mr. President, the U.S. infrastructure system is in critical capacity, condition, funding, future need, operation and maintenance, public safety, resilience and innovation. Any investment to improve our country’s infrastructure system would create millions of new jobs, requiring millions of skilled workers to fill them.

A recent study by the Center of Education and the Workforce at George- town University estimated that a $1 trillion infrastructure investment would create 11 million new jobs. Nearly half of these would require training past the high school level. Even without a significant investment, though, infrastructure industries are already struggling to meet workforce demands. Workers in infrastructure industries are expected to retire at a 50% higher rate than traditional workforces. Women and people of color who access these jobs have further constrained the pipeline of potential workers. To ensure infrastructure investments benefit businesses, workers and the economy, the U.S. must invest in the creation of a diverse pipeline of workers with skills necessary to access in-demand opportunities.

Industry and sector partnerships are a proven strategy for helping workers prepare for middle-skilled jobs and helping businesses find skilled workers. Congress requires States and local areas to support the development of these partnerships under the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA). While dedicated funding has been provided for these activities, work-based learning strategies, such as apprenticeships, are common pathways to skilled jobs in infrastructure industries. Many small and medium-sized businesses struggle from developing high-quality work-based learning programs, however, because of real or perceived costs associated with the strategy.

This is why I am pleased to introduce with my colleague, Senator PORTMAN, the Building U.S. Infrastructure by Leveraging Demands for Skills Act or BUILDs Act. The BUILDs Act creates a grant program that would support industry and sector partnerships working with local businesses, industry associations and organizations, labor organizations, State and local workforce boards, economic development agencies and other partners engaged in their communities to encourage industry growth, competitiveness and collaboration to improve worker training, retention and advancement in targeted infrastructure clusters.

Specifically, the bipartisan BUILDs Act would leverage sector partnerships to engage businesses in work-based learning programs. Businesses and industries would be incentivized to work with the greater community to create on-the-job training programs to fill the jobs necessary to expand the Country’s infrastructure system. Additionally, businesses and education providers would be connected to develop classroom curriculum to complement on-the-job learning. Workers on the other hand, would receive support services such as mentoring and career counseling to ensure that they are successful from the pre-employment to placement in a full-time position.

Our Country desperately needs improvements to critical infrastructure like our roads and bridges, homes. And that work we must have a trained workforce that’s ready to fill these good-paying jobs. Virginia businesses in the transportation, construction, energy, and information technology industries continue to tell me they have trouble finding job applicants with the necessary skills. This bill will help workers get the job training they need to be hired. I hope that my colleagues on both sides of the aisle consider the BUILDs Act as a necessary component to any investment in our Nation’s infrastructure.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 225—DESIGNATING JULY 22, 2017, AS “NATIONAL DAY OF THE AMERICAN COWBOY”

Mr. ENZI (for himself, Ms. HEITKAMP, Mr. CRAPO, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. RISCH, Mr. CORNYN, Mr. TESTER, Mr. LANKFORD, Mr. HAYES, Mr. BASS, Mr. HERRITZ, Mr. UDALL, Mr. THUNE, Mr. MERKLEY, and Mr. ROUNDS) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. RES. 225

Whereas pioneering men and women, recognized as “cowboys”, helped to establish the American West;

Whereas the cowboy embodies honesty, integrity, courage, compassion, respect, a strong work ethic, and patriotism;

Whereas the cowboy spirit exemplifies strength of character, sound family values, and good common sense;

Whereas the cowboy archetype transcends ethnicity, gender, geographic boundaries, and political affiliations;

Whereas the cowboy, who lives off the land and works to protect and enhance the environment, is an excellent steward of the land and its creatures;

Whereas cowboy traditions have been a part of American generations and have been passed from one generation to the next;

Whereas the cowboy continues to be an important part of the economy through the work of many thousands of ranchers across the United States who contribute to the economic well-being of every State;

Whereas millions of fans watch professional and working ranch rodeo events annually, making rodeo one of the most-watched sports in the United States;

Whereas membership and participation in rodeo and other organizations that promote and encompass the livelihood of cowboys span every generation and transcend race and gender;

Whereas the cowboy is a central figure in literature, film, and music and occupies a central place in the public imagination;

Whereas the cowboy is an American icon; and

Whereas the ongoing contributions made by cowboys and cowgirls to their communities should be recognized and encouraged; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates July 22, 2017, as “National Day of the American Cowboy”; and

(2) encourages the人民政府 of the United States to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

SENATE RESOLUTION 226—DESIGNATING THE WEEK OF JULY 17 THROUGH JULY 21, 2017, AS “NATIONAL ECTODERMAL DYSPLASIAS WEEK” AND SUPPORTING THE GOALS AND OBJECTIVES OF NATIONAL ECTODERMAL DYSPLASIAS WEEK TO RAISE AWARENESS AND UNDERSTANDING OF ECTODERMAL DYSPLASIAS

Ms. BALDWIN submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

S. Res. 226

Whereas ectodermal dysplasia is a congenital disorder that causes defects to the skin, hair, nails, teeth, and glands of an individual and can also cause harm to other body parts of an individual, such as the eyes, ears, and throat;

Whereas ectodermal dysplasia is a genetic disorder that is passed from parent to child;

Whereas a child may be the first individual in a family to be affected by ectodermal dysplasias and can then pass the condition on to the next generation;

Whereas ectodermal dysplasia is a rare disorder that affects fewer than 200,000 people in the United States;

Whereas symptoms of ectodermal dysplasias in an individual can include—

(1) the inability to perspire;

(2) lack of tears in the eyes;

(3) cleft lip and palate;

(4) sparse saliva;

(5) missing fingers or toes; and

(6) absence or malformation of some or all teeth, known as anodontia and hypodontia, respectively;

Whereas there are more than 180 different types of ectodermal dysplasias and a specific diagnosis depends on the combination of symptoms that an individual experiences;

Whereas there is no cure for ectodermal dysplasias;

Whereas the treatment for ectodermal dysplasias varies depending on the severity of the disease, which can range from mild symptoms to extensive health issues that require advanced care;

Whereas many types of ectodermal dysplasias affect the teeth and the nature of dental and oral symptoms;

(1) are specific to each syndrome; and

(2) can include severe hypodontia and anodontia that require complex care;

Whereas an individual who suffers from ectodermal dysplasias can expect to spend approximately $150,000 on dental care alone during the lifetime of the individual;

Whereas most insurance companies provide coverage for the treatment of a congenital disease or anomaly;

Whereas most States require coverage for oral reconstruction or restoration of body parts for a congenital disease like ectodermal dysplasias;

Whereas coverage for complex and medically necessary dental services relating to ectodermal dysplasias varies across the United States;

Whereas gaps in coverage for ectodermal dysplasias coverage have serious consequences for patients and their families and may lead to severe limits on proper oral function and the ability to eat or speak;

Whereas scientists across the United States are conducting research projects and

clinical trials and are hopeful that break-throughs in ectodermal dysplasias research and treatment are forthcoming; and

Whereas the Senate is an institution that can take a lead in ensuring that ectodermal dysplasias reach the general public and the medical community; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates the week of July 17 through July 21, 2017, as “National Ectodermal Dysplasias Week”;

(2) supports the goals and ideals of National Ectodermal Dysplasias Week to raise awareness and understanding of ectodermal dysplasias;

(3) encourages the people of the United States to become more informed about—

(A) ectodermal dysplasias; and

(B) the role of comprehensive treatment for all symptoms of ectodermal dysplasias, including dental misalignments, in improving quality of life; and

(4) respectfully requests that the Secretary of the Senate transmit an enrolled copy of this resolution to the National Foundation for the National Organization dedicated to improving the lives of individuals affected by ectodermal dysplasias.

SENATE RESOLUTION 227—RECOGNIZING “NATIONAL YOUTH SPORTS WEEK” AND THE EFFORTS BY PARENTS, VOLUNTEERS, AND NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS IN THEIR EFFORTS TO PROMOTE HEALTHY LIVING AND YOUTH DEVELOPMENT

Mrs. CAPITO (for herself, Ms. DUCKWORTH, Mr. UDALL, Mr. DURBIN, and Mr. MORAN) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation:

S. Res. 227

Whereas July 16 through 22 is “National Youth Sports Week”, a celebration of youth sports participation and all of the benefits youth derive from engagement in sports;

Whereas a primary goal in youth sports is to encourage active participation by all youth in healthy physical activities according to their age, interests, and abilities;

Whereas the relationship between sports skills and life skills provide young athletes with fundamental values, compassion, and the grit needed to succeed both on and off the playing field;

Whereas, in 2008, the National Council of Youth Sports (“NCY’S”) reported that there are more than 60,000,000 registered participants in organized amateur youth sports programs;

Whereas youth sports offer a multitude of positive benefits to participants that extend far beyond the playing field, including—

(1) improved academic performance, such as increased school attendance, lower dropout rates, higher high school graduation rates, and higher grade point averages;

(2) increased health and positive physical behavior such as improved health factors, and prevention of obesity, chronic diseases, and other health problems;

(3) social well-being, such as character development, and exposure to positive role models; and

(4) improved psychological health, such as decreased likelihood of substance abuse, reduced instances of behavioral misconduct, and high self-esteem; and

Whereas National Youth Sports Week highlights the benefits toward—

(1) promoting physical activity in all segments of the community;

(2) living healthy;

(3) making access to physical activities easier by removing barriers to creating youth development activities;

(4) encouraging youth development activities and outcomes; and

(5) improving the safety of participating in physical activities; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates National Youth Sports Week of July 17 through July 21, 2017, as “National Ectodermal Dysplasias Week”;

(2) supports the goals and ideals of National Ectodermal Dysplasias Week to raise awareness and understanding of ectodermal dysplasias;

(3) encourages the people of the United States to become more informed about—

(A) ectodermal dysplasias; and

(B) the role of comprehensive treatment for all symptoms of ectodermal dysplasias, including dental misalignments, in improving quality of life; and

(4) respectfully requests that the Secretary of the Senate transmit an enrolled copy of this resolution to the National Foundation for the National Organization dedicated to improving the lives of individuals affected by ectodermal dysplasias.

SENATE RESOLUTION 228—CALLING FOR A CREDIBLE, PEACEFUL, FREE, AND FAIR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION IN KENYA IN AUGUST 2017

Mr. CARDIN (for himself, Mr. COONS, Mr. BOOKER, and Mr. MERKLEY) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. Res. 228

Whereas the United States has deep interests in Kenya’s democratic stability and regional leadership; and

Whereas in Kenya holds regional significance as an example for other African countries with elections scheduled in the near future;

Whereas Kenya has general elections scheduled for August 8, 2017;

Whereas electoral violence in 2007 and 2008 resulted in the deaths of at least 1,300 people and the displacement of 600,000 in Kenya, effectively paralyzing the country and the wider region for more than two months before the creation of a power-sharing government;

Whereas the people of Kenya adopted a new constitution in 2010 that sought to devolve power to 47 counties and their elected governors and local representatives;

Whereas the public confidence in the electoral process is critical both to continued democratic progress in Kenya and to ensuring the transparency in electoral processes that is vital for the success of the August 8, 2017, elections;

Whereas, despite having a permissible legal environment, Kenya has taken actions to limit democratic space for civil society and media organizations, which could adversely affect their contributions to a credible, peaceful election and broader democratic consolidation;

Whereas there have been deeply concerning instances of hate speech by all sides in Kenya, inciting supporters to ethnic violence as a means by which to gain electoral advantage, intimidate electoral rivals, or suppress voter turnout; and

Whereas the political parties, monitoring groups, and the media in Kenya have the legal authority to record polling station results and tally lists at the constituency and national levels in order to ensure that the process is perceived as honest and transparent: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) calls upon the Government of Kenya and opposition parties in Kenya—

(A) to hold credible, peaceful, free, and fair presidential elections in August 2017 in order to advance democratic consolidation in Kenya and promote stability in the broader region; and

(B) to condemn in the strongest terms the use of hate speech and the incitement of violence by political candidates, the media, or any Kenyan citizens;

(2) calls upon Kenyan citizens to fully and peacefully participate in the general elections and seek to resolve any disputes over results through the legal system;

(3) calls upon Kenyan political candidates at the national, county, and local levels to respect the Electoral Code of Conduct and the Political Party Code of Conduct;

(4) encourages political candidates, civil society, and the media in Kenya to act responsibly with their parallel vote tabulations so as not to usurp the role of the electoral commission as the official source for declaring official election results;

(5) encourages civil society organizations in Kenya to continue providing critical early warning and response mechanisms to mitigate election-related violence and further strengthen democratic processes; and

(6) commends the key role the faith-based community has played in ensuring a peaceful pre- and post-election environment through periodically convening the Multi-Sectoral Forum to deliberate on matters of governance, election management, and looming insecurity;

(7) supports efforts by the Department of State and the United States Agency for International Development (USAID), including the Bureau of Conflict and Stabilization Operations, the Bureau of Democracy, Human Rights, and Labor, and the Bureau of African Affairs, to support election-related preparations in Kenya, including programs focused on conflict mitigation;

(8) strongly encourages the President to appoint an Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs in order to bolster diplomatic engagement with the Government of Kenya, the opposition, and the donor community, which has historically been critical during Kenya’s elections; and

(9) calls upon the United States Government and other international partners, especially election-focused non-governmental organizations, to continue to support Kenya’s efforts to address the remaining electoral preparation challenges and identify gaps in which additional resources or diplomatic engagement could make important contributions to the conduct of the elections.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 22—EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF CONGRESS ON USE OF INTERGOVERNMENTAL PERSONNEL ACT MOBILITY PROGRAM AND THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY EXCHANGE PROGRAM TO OBTAIN PERSONNEL WITH CYBER SKILLS AND ABILITIES FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

Mr. ROUNDS submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Armed Services:
