PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Our Father, be with us not only in great moments of experience but also during mundane and common tasks of life. Through the power of Your Spirit, make our Senators mount up with wings like eagles, running without weariness and walking without fainting. Lord, give them the wisdom to be patient with others, ever lenient to their faults and ever prompt to appreciate their virtues. Rule in their hearts, keeping them from sin and sustaining their loved ones in all of their tomorrows. Surround them with the shield of Your favor, as You provide them with a future and a hope, accomplishing in their lives more than they can ask or imagine.

We pray in Your sovereign Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME
The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Sasse). Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is closed.

Senators may ask or imagine. They will still have health insurance. But if it fails, many people will not be able to afford basic health insurance. They may lose it, and others may lose their coverage altogether. It could be a personal disaster—a family disaster across the board. I can’t believe that anyone—let alone the President—would suggest that is the best path to a constructive outcome. Responsibility suggests that there is a better way.

Thanks to the Affordable Care Act, 20 million previously uninsured Americans have gained healthcare coverage, including more than 1 million people in my State of Illinois. Thanks to the Affordable Care Act, our Nation’s uninsured rate is at the lowest level in history. We cut it in half in Illinois. Thanks to the Affordable Care Act, insurance companies can no longer engage in the type of abusive conduct that was well known and well established before the passage of the Affordable Care Act.
Before the passage of that law, insurance companies decided that women, because of their gender, had a pre-existing condition and, therefore, had to pay more for health insurance than men. They used to charge older people exorbitant annual or lifetime young-on-benefits and kick people off insurance when they got sick and needed care.

The Affordable Care Act changed each and every one of those things. Young adults, in addition, can now stay on their parents’ health insurance plans up to the age of 26, and seniors with Medicare are getting free preventive care and substantial discounts on their pharmaceuticals.

The law is far from perfect. Improvements need to be made. We have done that over the years to Social Security and Medicare. We should do it again here. Six percent of Americans and 3 percent of Illinoisans purchase their insurance in the individual market, and more than 50 percent of those people receive premium subsidies to help them pay for their monthly premiums. For these people, especially those who don’t qualify for subsidies, insurance options can be limited or expensive. So while there are clear challenges that need to be honest, but the scope of the problem and where we need to make fixes. There are ways to help.

First, the 19 States that have refused to expand their Medicaid Program should do so. If they did, 4.5 million more Americans would instantly gain access to healthcare coverage. Many of these people who would gain coverage go to work every single day—sometimes to more than one job a week—and they don’t have any healthcare benefits where they work. They have no place to turn. Medicaid can help. If Republicans are serious about wanting to provide people with access to affordable health insurance, Medicaid expansion is the most commonsense measure we can take.

Second, the administration should stop stoking uncertainty in the individual market and commit to paying cost-sharing reduction subsidies known as the Federal marketplace. This now help 7 million Americans with out-of-pocket health insurance costs. If the Trump administration sabotages the healthcare system and refuses to make these payments, premiums on these individuals would increase by 20 percent next year alone. Now, many of my Senate Republican colleagues, including HELP Committee Chairman LAMAR ALEXANDER of Tennessee, support the CSR payments. I think that is a responsible way to do it. In fact, they are especially incensed in some of the Republican healthcare repeal bills. It is time to end this “will they or won’t they” game—this uncertainty—and reassure Americans and insurers that payments are going to be made. The uncertainty is going to raise the cost of health insurance for everybody. For goodness sake, let’s move in the opposite direction, bring stability and bring assurance of where we are headed so that healthcare premiums can stabilize and perhaps not go up as far as they would otherwise.

Third, we should give people in the individual and market more affordable options. I support offering a Medicare-like plan. If insurers choose not to participate in the individual market, why wouldn’t the government step in and offer an option that individuals can decide whether they want to take it.

Finally, we have to do something about the high cost of prescription drugs. They are contributing directly to massive premium increases. The health insurance companies tell us—in Blue Cross Blue Shield’s case in Illinois, they are paying more for prescription drugs in Illinois than they are paying for inpatient hospital care—that is driving premiums higher.

What have we done to deal with prescription drug costs exactly? Nothing. There is nothing in the Affordable Care Act that even monitors these costs when it comes to the public at large and very little, if anything, has been proposed or passed in Congress to deal with these out-of-control increases in prescription drug prices. I think drug companies should have to publicly justify their prices and provide ample lead time when they are going to raise these prices.

Drugs that are developed with significant Federal taxpayer dollars—and that is many of them—whether from the National Institutes of Health or the Department of Defense, should commit to reasonable prices. If these drug companies are using taxpayer subsidized research to develop a drug, I think they have a special public responsibility when it comes to the pricing of that drug to make sure the pricing is reasonable. The taxpayers helped them to a profitable position. They shouldn’t go overboard and overcharge.

Last week when Senator MCCAIN made his appeal on the Senate floor, he really called on us to work together to get something done. I have noticed that there is a bipartisan effort underway in the House. I believe we will hear one this week in the Senate. I am glad that we were able to agree. I agree with the Senator from Arizona that it is time for the Senate to turn to regular order, hold hearings, bring in experts, and really work together on proposals that would expand access to affordable health insurance coverage and care. Democrats stand ready to work with Republicans to do this. It is time to put ObamaCare, help behind us. It is time to move forward on behalf of those who are counting on us.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Majority Leader.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, as I said yesterday, the Senate has a number of nominations to consider in the coming days.

Yesterday we voted to advance a well-qualified judicial nominee to serve on the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

Soon we will consider one of the President’s nominations for the National Labor Relations Board, and we obviously need to confirm an FBI Director. I would hope, with all the threats facing us at home and abroad, our Democratic colleagues would not launch the first filibuster of a nominee to be FBI Director, especially one who was reported out of the Judiciary Committee by a vote to 20 to 0. These are just a few of the many nominees who need to be acted upon and quickly.

Up until now, our friends across the aisle have thrown away the necessary procedural hurdle after the next on even the most uncontroversial of nominees. As a result, I noted last month that at the pace we were going, it would take more than 11 years to confirm the remaining appointments. Well, that pace has slowed even further. Now it would take 12 years.

It is time to end this. I look forward to our Democratic colleagues cooperating with us to do that so the Senate can spend its time considering other things that are important to our constituents. We have legislation to address over the remainder of this work period as well. Our veterans deserve the best care the country can provide. Under the last administration’s VA scandal, the veterans were let down in a big way. Congress came together in the wake of that scandal to pass the Veterans Choice Program, which allows many veterans to skip the long wait and travel times at some VA facilities and access private care.

The House recently acted to shore up the program on an overwhelmingly bipartisan basis, 414 to nothing. Now the Senate needs to act as well.

We also need to renew the FDA User Fee Program. This program is critical to speeding up the drug approval process, and that is important to everyone frustrated by the high costs of bringing lifesaving drugs to market. Without it, the important work of ensuring that drugs and devices are safe and effective would literally come to a screeching halt. Every 5 years, these agreements need to be reviewed and reauthorized. The Senate legislation to do so was reported by the HELP Committee on a 21-to-2 bipartisan vote, and given the lifesaving developments in immunotherapy and personalized medicine on the horizon, it is more important than ever.

We have important work to do over the remainder of this work period. I hope colleagues will cooperate across the aisle in our efforts to do so.

RECOGNITION OF THE MINORITY LEADER

The Democratic leader is recognized.

HEALTHCARE

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, the American people are looking to Congress to turn the page on healthcare and start working on bipartisan improvements to our healthcare system.

Stabilizing the individual market is the first thing we should all focus on. The repeated attempts to repeal and replace the healthcare law, as well as the administration’s threat to stop making the cost-sharing payments that help keep premiums down and keep markets stable, have injected massive uncertainty into the system.

Insurers hate nothing more than uncertainty. It drives them to jack up the costs of premiums and to pull out of markets. Already, insurers in three States have issued two separate sets of proposed rates for 2018—one if the administration makes the cost-sharing payments and one if it does not. The set of proposed rates if the payments are not made is 20 percent higher in all three States. I don’t know the third, but two of them are North Carolina and Pennsylvania, which are very significant States. In Idaho, the State insurance commissioner said that rates arise people’s rates? His only stated reason is petty, is childish, is un-Presidential. He will get back at people because his hope to repeal and replace was rejected. You do not hurt innocent people when you lose politically. That is not Presidential. That is not, frankly, what an adult does. The ball is in the President’s court, as I said, and let’s hope he does the right thing.

President Trump has already made it harder for Americans to afford insurance next year by publicly rooting for our Nation’s healthcare system to collapse, injecting a baseline of uncertainty into the system. President Trump would make things a whole lot worse of the cost of our healthcare system, particularly the Trump premium tax of 20 percent higher premiums on the American people next year by not extending the cost-sharing program.

Why would he do this? Why would he raise people’s rates? His only stated reason is petty, is childish, is un-Presidential. He will get back at people because his hope to repeal and replace was rejected. You do not hurt innocent people when you lose politically. That is not Presidential. That is not, frankly, what an adult does. The ball is in the President’s court, as I said, and let’s hope he does the right thing.

President Trump has already made it harder for Americans to afford insurance next year by publicly rooting for our Nation’s healthcare system to collapse, injecting a baseline of uncertainty into the system. President Trump would make things a whole lot worse of the cost of our healthcare system, particularly the Trump premium tax of 20 percent higher premiums, more bare counties, even more market instability.

The American people need a President who puts their interests first, not someone who plays political games with their healthcare. The American people can ill afford a Trump premium tax this year, and it is completely avoidable. All the President has to do is to make the payments and carry out the law as he is supposed to. Afterward, Congress should move to guarantee these payments permanently or at least for a significant period of time.

This uncertainty caused by the President’s threats has been the most destabilizing factor in the individual market. That is not according to CHUCK SCHUMER or any Democrat; it is according to the insurers’ largest trade group, AHIP. The President has proved that he cannot be trusted to faithfully execute the procedures that keep our healthcare system on track.

The only good news here is that there are moves by people on both sides of the aisle in this Senate to take some of this uncertainty of the table and guaranteeing these payments in the future.

My good friends, the chairman of the HELP Committee, the senior Senator from Tennessee, LAMAR ALEXANDER, and the ranking Democratic member, Senator PATTY MURRAY, have an ability to work together on many issues. I know they are meeting almost as we speak—in 5 minutes—to discuss how we can move forward. I spoke to Senator ALEXANDER in the gym, where the President, I believe conformed, was exercising and staying fit, too, and he seemed very eager to try to work together to stabilize the system.

TAX REFORM

Mr. President, on another matter—taxes—it is clear that our economy would benefit from a bipartisan package of changes to our Tax Code that would focus laser-like on increasing wages for working families, improving middle-class job growth, and promoting domestic investment while politicking our outdated business and international tax system.

From what we have heard from the White House so far, its plan would not do any of that. We Democrats are open to a bipartisan discussion on those issues, but we also believe that, in an economy in which wealth is seemingly funneled to the already wealthy, it is working Americans who deserve tax relief, not those at the very top. The wealthiest Americans—people with outsized benefits from recent economic gains. Now is not the time to shower millionaires and billionaires with another tax break while working Americans continue to struggle to make ends meet.

Today, 45 Members of the Democratic caucus sent a letter to our Republican friends, writing that we are open to bipartisan discussions on tax reform but that we will not support any effort to rewrite the Tax Code to give another tax break to the top 1 percent or add even more to the deficit and the debt.

Here are our three principles outlined in the letter:

First, no new tax breaks for the top 1 percent.

Second, it must not increase the debt and must be fiscally responsible.

Third, we must use a regular order process that will ensure true bipartisan input in the product, not the reconciliatory process that is out of the House. And the Senate should hold a hearing to the failure of the Republicans to pass repeal or repeal and replace. Ramming tax cuts through under reconciliation—the very same partisan process that failed for healthcare—is the wrong way to do business for this country.

Again, the Democrats are open to a bipartisan discussion on tax reform, but it has to be truly bipartisan, not under reconciliation, and tax reform cannot be a cover story for delivering tax cuts to the wealthiest or result in a ballooning deficit and debt.

CHINA AND NORTH KOREA

Mr. President, finally, on the matter of China and North Korea, under President Trump, North Korea continues to ramp up its aggression; yet China has not taken any significant steps to bring to an end its threatening and destabilizing behavior.

President Trump has staked his administration’s approach to North Korea on China doing more, but right now 90 percent of North Korea’s foreign trade is with China, and 95 percent of its foreign direct investment comes from China.

Even as the U.N. Security Council and the U.S. Congress have again sanctioned North Korea, China’s trade with this rogue nation has risen more than 30 percent over the past year, according to some reports. Even after the recent ICBM tests—clear violations of international resolutions—China and Russia have worked behind the scenes to water down and weaken additional U.N. Security Council sanctions resolutions.

President Trump has talked about his “wonderful relationship” with President Xi, but this is not the behavior we should expect from a partner that is serious about the crisis on the Korean Peninsula.

The bottom line is simple. China could put pressure on North Korea right now, but they are taking a pass, as they have for over a decade.

Mr. Gardner. Mr. President, today I am urging President Trump to take a tougher line and suspend the approval of all new acquisitions in the United States by Chinese companies. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. Gardner. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NORTH KOREA

Mr. Gardner. Mr. President, I rise today to speak about North Korea, the most urgent national security challenge for the United States and our allies in East Asia.

Secretary Mattis has said North Korea is “the most urgent and dangerous threat to peace and security.” Admiral Gortney, the previous commander of U.S. Northern Command, stated that the Korean Peninsula is at its most unstable point since 1953, when the armistice was signed.

Last year alone, North Korea conducted two nuclear tests and a staggering 24 ICBM missile launches. This year, Pyongyang already launched 18 missiles, including the two recent tests of intercontinental ballistic missiles that are reportedly capable of reaching the U.S. homeland.

President Trump said that the United States will not allow this to happen, and I am encouraged by the President’s resolve. Patience is not an option with the U.S. homeland in the nuclear shadow of Kim Jong Un. Our North Korea policy of decades of bipartisan failure must turn to one of immediate bipartisan success, with pressure and global cooperation resulting in the peaceful denuclearization of the regime.

As Vice President Pence stated during his recent visit to South Korea:

Since 1992, the United States and our allies have stood together for a denuclearized Korean Peninsula. We hope to achieve this objective through peaceful means. But all options are on the table.

But time is not on our side. I believe U.S. policy toward North Korea should be straightforward. The United States should deploy every economic, diplomatic, and, if necessary, military tool at our disposal to deter Pyongyang and to protect our allies.

However, the road to peacefully stopping Pyongyang undoubtedly lies through Beijing. China is the only country that holds the diplomatic and economic leverage necessary to put the real squeeze on the North Korean regime.

According to the South Korean state trade agency, China accounts for 90 percent of North Korea’s trade, including virtually all of North Korea’s exports. From 2000 to 2015, trade volume between China and North Korea has climbed more than tenfold, rising from $488 million in 2000 to $5.4 billion in 2015. Beijing is the reason the regime acts so boldly and with relatively few consequences.

China must now move beyond a mere articulation of concern and lay out a transparent path of focused pressure to denuclearize North Korea. A global power that borders this regime cannot simply throw up its hands and absolve itself of responsibility.

The administration is right to pursue a policy of “maximum pressure” toward North Korea, and we have a robust toolbox already in place to ramp up the sanctions track—a track that has hardly been utilized to its fullest extent and a track made even more complete last week with additional sanctions on North Korea.

Congress, I urge you to pass the North Korea Sanctions and Policy Enhancement Act, which passed the Senate by a vote of 96 to 0. This legislation was the first stand-alone legislation in Congress regarding North Korea to impose mandatory sanctions on the regime’s proliferation activities, human rights violations, and malicious cyber behavior.

A recent analysis from the Foundation for the Defense of Democracies says:

While North Korea sanctions have more than doubled since the North Korea Sanctions and Policy Enhancement Act came into effect on February 18, 2016, prior to that date, North Korea ranked eighth, behind Ukraine/Russia, Iraq, Syria, Israel, the Balkans, Syria, Sudan, and Zimbabwe.

Even with the 130-percent sanctions increase after the North Korea Sanctions and Policy Enhancement Act, North Korea is today still only the fifth most sanctioned country by the United States. North Korea is far from being sanctioned out.

So while Congress has clearly moved from the Obama administration inaction to some action, the Trump administration has the opportunity to use these authorities to build maximum leverage with not only Pyongyang but also with Beijing. I am encouraged by the actions the administration took last month to finally designate a Chinese financial institution, but this should be just the beginning. The administration, with congressional support, should now make clear to any entity doing business with North Korea that they will not be able to do business with the United States or have access to the U.S. financial system.

A report released last month by an independent organization known as CAADS identified over 5,000 Chinese companies that are doing business with North Korea. These Chinese companies are responsible for $7 billion in trade with North Korea. Moreover, the CAADS report found that only 10 of the 5,000-plus companies control 30 percent of Chinese exports to North Korea. So of 30 percent of Chinese exports, 10 companies are responsible for that number in 2016 alone. One of those ten companies alone controlled nearly 10 percent of all imports from North Korea. Some of these companies were even found to have satellite offices in the United States.

According to recent disclosures, from 2009 to 2017, North Korea used Chinese banks to process at least $2.2 billion in transactions through the U.S. financial system. This must stop now. The United States should not be afraid of a diplomatic confrontation with Beijing for simply enforcing existing U.S. and international law. In fact, it should be more afraid of Congress if it does not. As for the prospect of engagement, we should continue to let Beijing know in no uncertain terms that the United States will not negotiate with Pyongyang at the expense of U.S. national security and that of our allies.

Instead, we need to assert that the United States and the international community to disarm the madman in Pyongyang. Beijing has called on the United States and South Korea to halt our military exercises in exchange for vague promises of North Korea suspending its missile and nuclear activities. That is a bad deal, and the Trump administration was right to reject it.

Moreover, before any talks in any forums take to the United States and our partners must demand that Pyongyang first meet the denuclearization commitments it had already agreed to in the past and subsequently chose to brazenly violate.

President Trump should continue to impress on President Xi that a denuclearized Korean Peninsula is in both nations’ fundamental long-term interests. As Admiral Harry Harris rightfully noted, “We want to bring Kim Jung Un to his knees, not to his knees.” But to achieve this goal, Beijing must be made to choose whether it wants to work with the United States as a responsible global leader to stop Pyongyang or bear the consequences of keeping him in power.

Two weeks ago I introduced legislation with a bipartisan group of cosponsors called the North Korean Enablers Accountability Act. This legislation takes steps toward imposing a total economic embargo on North Korea, including a ban on any entity that does business with North Korea or its enablers from using the U.S. financial system and imposing U.S. sanctions on participants in North Korean labor trafficking abuses.

My legislation specifically singles out those 10 largest Chinese importers of North Korean goods and sends a very clear message: You can either do business with this outlaw regime or do business with the world’s largest economy. I urge my colleagues to support this legislation and our continued efforts to stop Pyongyang’s further development of nuclear weapons and intermediate-range ballistic missiles and bring peace to the peninsula and to denuclearize peacefully the North Korean regime.

In order to put real pressure, this administration must act, and it must act on the regime and its enablers wherever they are based.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. Collins). The deputy majority leader is recognized.

WORK BEFORE THE SENATE

Mr. CORNYN. Madam President, it is no secret that last week’s vote on repealing and replacing the provisions of ObamaCare proved a disappointment to many of us. I have found, though, in my time here in the Senate that so often we agree on the goal we want to achieve, but we disagree on the means to achieve it.

Some people see the private sector and competition and markets as the best place to regulate economic activity. Other people look at the government as the proper agent that does things like provide access to healthcare. The truth is, in our complicated healthcare delivery system, everybody plays a role one way or the other.

We know that government plays an outsized role already, because we have Medicare, Medicaid, veterans health programs, and the like—the Children’s Health Insurance Program, which we will have to take up and reauthorize this year. But these are very important private marketplaces for health insurance, and, frankly, many times I think the government makes it harder, not easier, for people to access products that they actually want to buy, and can afford.

But it is evident that there is a lot of passage about this issue, and that is not going to go away. Certainly, what is not going to go away is the need that consumers across this country of ours have for lower premiums, increased access, and a marketplace that actually functions, where people can buy an insurance product they want to buy, and, of course, there is always the issue of quality of care.

Some people think that maybe Medicaid is the ultimate answer. The fact of the matter is that Medicaid plays a very important role as a safety net for low-income Americans, but most of the medical studies that have been done indicate that medical outcomes under Medicaid are no better than those for people who don’t have insurance at all. And, in some cases, people who go to the emergency room includes many people who have Medicaid but have a hard time finding a doctor who will treat them because Medicaid pays doctors at such a low rate that only about one-third of the doctors, especially in my State of Texas, will see a new Medicaid patient. As one of our colleagues has suggested, it is kind of like telling people: Here is a bus ticket. But there is no bus. There is no way to get there. That is hardly what I would call access to quality care.

I know our work is not done. Now I and others turn to our colleagues across the aisle who fought us every step of the way to achieve progress on healthcare reform and ask them what their suggestions are. Democrats need to be constructive rather than continue to bury their heads in the sand about the fundamental problems with the Affordable Care Act.

My firm belief is that these problems are structural in nature. They are not something that can be solved simply by throwing more money at the problem, particularly when insurance companies would love to have us do exactly that. That is the way they do business. They are profit-oriented companies. I don’t begrudge them that.

It is simply not in our best interest, I believe, to just throw billions of dollars at insurance companies in a bailout without reforming the fundamental structure by which healthcare is delivered. I don’t think we can turn to the talking points and say that it is their obligation to bail out insurance companies, particularly when they have seen their premiums already triple under ObamaCare.

We can’t afford to do what the Senator from Vermont wants to do, which is enact a costly single-payer system, which would literally bankrupt our country.

With every day that passes, ObamaCare keeps getting worse, but we have no choice but to keep working to find new ways forward. That will include discussions and efforts to keep our promise and fix the mess that has been left to us to face.

We are a lot of the American people expect of us. With fragile majorities in the Senate, we have seen that we are forced to work together to try to solve these problems. I think, frankly, bipartisan solutions tend to be more durable.

As we move forward to that work and turn to legislative priorities such as breaking the blockade on nominations, tax reform, getting our economy growing again, getting people back to work—because the economy is growing and they get good, well-paying jobs—and doing things such as rebuilding our infrastructure, something we know is important to our economic future, we will continue this week focusing on something that, frankly, we should have the months ahead of us seeing that more of President Trump’s nominees are confirmed.

Of course, we know the approach of the Democratic leader from New York has been to obstruct, block, and slow down as many of these nominations as he can. For example, our Senate colleagues on the Democratic side have allowed only 10 percent of President Trump’s confirmations to go by a voice vote, which is a customary courtesy when there is no controversy associated with the nomination. President Obama’s confirmations went through with 90 percent of them by voice vote because they weren’t truly controversial. What we have seen happen this year is to burn the clock and delay and obstruct and foot-drag as much as possible in order to deny the President his own team.

I realize many people were disappointed on that side of the aisle when President Trump was elected. He was elected President of the United States, and he deserves to have his team in place—particularly when they are not controversial nominees—rather Tax Code to make it simpler and fairer, one that will encourage businesses to create jobs and bring profits back to our shore. Members of both Chambers—the House and Senate—have been hard at work on a solution that will provide long-term relief and protect jobs and put Americans first, not government.

I look forward to the debate and the fight for historic tax reform in the coming months. I want to particularly commend my friend and colleague in the House of Representatives, the Texas Republican, Kevin Brady, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, for his great work in that body, together with our chairman in the Senate, Senator Hatch, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. That is the committee of jurisdiction where we are going to have hearings and a markup this fall.

Finally, I wish to address another area that my Democratic colleagues and I are working together on a bipartisan basis, and that is strengthening our Nation’s infrastructure. It is absolutely imperative we build on the success of the FAST Act, the first multiyear surface transportation bill signed into law in more than a decade.

While this piece of legislation was critical to providing States and communities with the certainty they need, we must continue to invest in our Nation’s bridges, airports, ports, and other critical infrastructure.

I look forward to working with the administration and our colleagues in the Senate and in the House on legislation that will strengthen our Nation’s infrastructure and do so in a fiscally responsible manner.

Finally, I hope to pass the bipartisan legislation that I have introduced to combat domestic human trafficking with bipartisan support, hopefully, later this week.

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order of the quorum call be rescinded. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order of the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BARRASSO. Madam President, President Trump has been in office for just a little over 6 months. We had an election. The American people said they preferred the Republican vision for the direction this country should go, but it just seems today the Democrats in the Senate think the inauguration never happened.

For more than 6 months, Democrats have engaged in a historic effort to obstruct the work of the Trump administration and the U.S. Government. Normally, on inauguration day, the President gets a substantial number of people confirmed to his Cabinet. The idea is to let the President get his team in place so then they can go about hitting the ground running.

President Obama had six of his Cabinet Secretaries confirmed on Inauguration Day in 2009. All of them were confirmed by voice vote. They didn’t even have to do a rollcall. People agreed, in a bipartisan way, that President Obama had his nominees. Republicans in the Senate did nothing to try to block any of those Cabinet Secretaries for President Obama. We understood it is best to give the new President a chance and for all of us to work together when we can. President George Bush had seven people nominated and confirmed on his first day in office. That is the way it usually worked but not anymore.

Now, Democrats aren’t interested in giving a Republican President a chance. They’d rather be focused on obstructing. Last January, President Trump only had two people confirmed to his Cabinet on inauguration day. There were two people ready to get to work on the day he took office, the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Homeland Security. These were the only two jobs the Democrats let the President fill. By the end of January in his first 6 months, President Obama had 10 of his 22 Cabinet Secretaries in their places. His Cabinet was almost entirely set by the end of the month that he took office, January 2009, but because of ongoing obstruction by Democrats in the Senate, President Trump still had only three Cabinet Secretaries in their places by the end of January. That is an incredible level of obstruction when you compare it to what has happened historically.

It didn’t stop with members of the Cabinet, and it didn’t just end in January. Democrats have continued to make the Senate jump through procedural hoops. In President Obama’s first 6 months of office, 206 people were confirmed to serve in his administration. In President Trump’s first 6 months, Democrats continued to block the way, allowing us to approve only 55 nominees for those first 6 months. So President Obama had nearly four confirmations for every one of President Trump’s nominees in the same period of time. The difference is stark and the reason is simple: Democrats have been putting up roadblocks, one after another, on even the most noncontroversial of nominees. It is not how things worked in the Senate in previous administrations. Many of these nominees for important jobs would get approved by what we call in the Senate unanimous consent or by a voice vote.

Republicans have been willing to let a lot of Democrats take their jobs without wasting time on rollcall votes and running out the clock. In President Obama’s first 6 months in office, Republicans allowed 182 of his nominees to be confirmed by unanimous consent or voice vote. That is almost 90 percent of the jobs filled in those first 6 months by unanimous consent—general agreement—but in the same time, the Democrats only allowed five of President Trump’s nominees to get through without a rollcall vote. That is the level of Democratic obstructionism.

They have been blocking judges, Cabinet Secretaries, and other high-ranking officials. Many of these nominees even had Democratic support. It is interesting to see how they have顺应 many of these so they weren’t controversial at all. Democrats in the Senate forced us to file cloture 34 times on people nominated to fill important jobs in the U.S. Government. We had to force the Democrats to act.

In President Obama’s first 6 months, there were only eight cloture votes. There is no way Democrats can argue that they had principled objections to these 34 nominees where we had to file cloture on their nominations. The only explanation is that they did not want the President to have his team in place. When you take a look at these 34 people whom we had to go ahead and file cloture on, half of them ended up getting 60 or more votes for their confirmation so they had support by Democrats as well as the Republicans. There was no reason—no need to slow them down other than obstruction of the President. One nominee whom we had to cloture was the Attorney General. He cleared the way through the process even received a unanimous confirmation vote—a rollcall vote in the U.S. Senate—100 to 0. Yet the Democratic leader made us file a motion to proceed and get a cloture vote on this individual whom then they approved 100 to 0.

Why the need to go through this? Democrats blocked him as long as they could. Yet not a single Democrat then stood to vote against him when his name was called for a rollcall vote. So why are Democrats blocking votes on people whom they then intend to support and do support with their votes? They are just trying to slow things down. The Democratic leader actually admitted that was his plan during the debate over confirming the No. 2 person at the Pentagon. It is someone whom the Senate actually confirmed with 92 votes in his favor. Yet they slowed him down. Then he received 92 votes.

Republicans wanted to speed up the process a little. Senator SCHUMER objected. Did he have a problem with the nominee’s qualifications? No. The Democratic leader said on the floor: “We do not object to the nominee in regular order, and maybe once things change a little bit in healthcare, we can.”

It had nothing to do with the person who was nominated, nothing to do with anything, according to Senator SCHUMER, other than the fact that we were discussing healthcare in this country. It had nothing to do with the importance of the position that was going to be filled in the Pentagon. It was all because Democrats wanted to stall the debate over healthcare reform. There are the numbers: nominees confirmed in the first 6 months for Obama, 206; President Trump, 25.

Republicans are trying to keep the Federal Government functioning by filling these jobs that had been empty. Healthcare is a very separate thing. Both of these are important. The only thing they have in common is the Democrats have been playing politics with it in a nonnormal. It is not acceptable. The Democrats’ blockade against President Trump’s nominees has caused what I believe has been a dangerous backlog. We still have 84 people who have been nominated by the President for positions in the government who have cleared the committees and are now just waiting for a vote on the Senate floor—slowed down by Democratic obstruction.

Democrats are trying their best to drag this out. It seems to me, as long as they pass the inadequate rules that say that means up to 30 hours of debate once we vote to move forward on a nomination. Maybe that is too long. Senator RON JOHNSON wrote an op-ed in the Washington Post over the weekend with the headline: “Let’s break this Senate logjam.” He suggests we cut the time back from 30 hours of debate to 2 hours of debate. That would certainly speed things up, and maybe that is the answer. If it takes this level of obstruction continues.

Whatever we do, we cannot allow this logjam to continue. These are important jobs—important positions. The American people deserve to have someone fill these jobs.

Last Friday, after the healthcare vote, Senator SCHUMER called for us to work together. He said: “There are things we can do rather quickly, including moving a whole lot of nominations.” I am going to hold the Democratic leader to his word on this. Let him show that he meant what he said. We should be able to clear the decks of these 84 nominees who have come through the Senate committee, who are approved by the full Senate and are waiting here to be confirmed. We should do it by unanimous consent. If Democrats object to one or two of them, let’s have a rollcall vote so we can get it on the record. It is time to stop this mindless obstruction that serves no purpose except to delay.

Thank you, Madam President. I yield the floor.

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, I rise today in support of Kevin Newsom, formerly Alabama’s solicitor general and currently the President’s nominee for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit.

He is someone whom the President knows well, having himself been the solicitor general for the State of Texas before he became a U.S. Senator. I believe Kevin Newsom to be an exceptional choice for this high honor. I have the utmost regard for his intellect and integrity.

Kevin grew up in Birmingham, AL. He graduated first in his class from Samford University in Birmingham and went on to graduate with highest honors from Harvard Law School, as the President’s Officer of the Month prior to Harvard Law School, Kevin married his wife Debrah. They went on to have two sons, Chapman and Marshall James, who are now 12 and 14 years old respectively.

Kevin is no stranger to the courtroom. He began his legal career as a law clerk on the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals for Judge O’Scannlain, as well as U.S. Supreme Court Justice David

Most importantly, we must be willing to work in good faith with Members of the opposite party. All too often, we miss the opportunity to effect meaningful change by hiding behind partisan differences. We must take the opposite course by reviewing our efforts to reach across the aisle to overcome division and forge consensus. There is no better template for effective, bipartisan legislating.

This is the model I have followed for decades for the betterment of Utah and the Nation, and it is the model I have followed most recently in working with my dear friend Senator Coons to introduce the International Communications Privacy Act, or what we affectionately refer to as ICPA.

ICPA is more than just a commonsense proposal that updates law enforcement for the modern age; it is a symbol of what our two parties can accomplish when we lay aside petty differences and come together for the good of our Nation. This is this proposal. Senator Coons and I took great pains to strengthen international data privacy protections while also enhancing law enforcement's ability to access data across borders.

The issue has been a priority of mine. I have spoken about it at length both here on the Senate floor and in other venues and have introduced legislation on the subject over multiple Congresses. Most recently, I came to the Senate floor to explain how the rise of cloud and remote network computing has transformed the way we store data and to describe the implications of that transformation for our data privacy laws.

Until relatively recently, most electronic data was housed in personal computers or on servers located in offices or homes. This meant that in order to access data, a person could simply go to the relevant location and retrieve it. That is not the case nowadays. Much of our data is stored not on home or office computers but in the cloud—a network of remote servers spread throughout the world that allow us to access data from literally anywhere. Data pertaining to a single individual or even to a single document may be stored at multiple sites spread across countries or even continents.

This has profound implications for data privacy. To begin with, our privacy laws require government officials to obtain a warrant before they can access many types of electronic communications. Warrants, however, traditionally have stopped at the warrant's edge. This means that if a law enforcement agent is investigating a crime here in the United States but a key piece of information is stored on a remote server outside the United States, the agent may have significant difficulty obtaining the information. Without a warrant or the ability to get the agent to use diplomatic channels to obtain the information—a process that can be extremely slow and cumbersome.
Our privacy laws also prohibit disclosure to foreign entities. This means that when a foreign government is investigating a crime within its borders and a key piece of information is stored in the United States, the foreign government must likewise work through diplomatic channels to obtain the information.

The growing prevalence of cloud and remote network computing has put law enforcement into increasing conflict with these sorts of restrictions. Crime knows no borders. A child pornographer in Bangalore may post photos of an American victim on a British server which can be accessed worldwide. A U.S. official investigating the crime may need information stored on the British server in order to track down the culprit. If the server was in the United States, the official could simply issue a warrant. But that tool isn’t available in this scenario because the server is overseas.

Moreover, the United States and United Kingdom may have a statute, similar to our own law, that prohibits British service providers from disclosing communications to foreign entities. Diplomatic channels exist for sharing such data, but these channels are traditionally slow and can take months or even years to process requests. In the meantime, crimes go unpunished and perpetrators disappear.

This state of affairs is simply not tenable. We cannot allow outdated laws to hamstring law enforcement efforts in this way. At the same time, we must adequately protect Americans’ privacy against unwarranted government intrusion.

Some have suggested that the answer is to simply extend the reach of U.S. warrants worldwide. This, however, is not a viable solution as foreign disclosure laws can and do conflict with U.S. laws. Extending the reach of U.S. warrants is unenforceable limits and thus place service providers in the impossible position of having to choose which country’s laws to violate—ours or the foreign jurisdiction’s.

What we need is a sensible regime with clear rules that determine access based on factors that matter to the person whose data is being sought. At the same time, we need to take proper account of the laws and interests of other countries, especially our allies.

We ought to avoid, wherever possible, trampling nations’ sovereignty or ignoring their own citizens’ legitimate claims to privacy. Accordingly, ICPA sets clear rules for when and how U.S. law enforcement can access electronic data based on the location and nationality of the person whose data is being sought.

Here is what the bill says:

If a person is not a U.S. national, however, and is not located in the United States, then different rules apply. These rules are founded on three principles: respect, comity, and reciprocity.

First, respect. If U.S. law enforcement wishes to access data belonging to a non-U.S. national located outside the United States, then U.S. law enforcement must first notify the person’s country of citizenship and provide that country an opportunity to review the Office of the Attorney General’s decision. If the person’s country of citizenship gives the United States an opportunity to assert the privacy rights of its citizen, we ensure that the U.S. provides its own citizens an equal or greater level of protection against foreign requests for data.

Second, comity. If, after receiving notice, the other country lodges an objection, a U.S. court undertakes a comity analysis to determine whose interests should rightly prevail—the U.S. interests in obtaining the data or the foreign interests in safeguarding the privacy of its citizen. As a part of this analysis, the court considers such factors as the location of the crime, the seriousness of the crime, the importance of the data to the investigation, and the possibility of accessing the data through other means.

Third, reciprocity. In order to receive notice and an opportunity to object, the other country must provide reciprocal rights to the United States. This ensures that the U.S. provides its own citizens an equal or greater level of protection against foreign requests for data. It also offers incentives to foreign governments to properly safeguard the data of U.S. citizens within their borders.

Up to this point, I have been focusing on requests by U.S. law enforcement for data stored outside the United States, but there is another side to the problem, and that is what happens when foreign law enforcement requests data stored inside the United States.

As I have mentioned, our privacy laws prohibit disclosure to foreign entities. Suppose a British subject commits a crime in Britain that is relevant to the investigation is stored in the United States. Even if British law provides for extraterritorial process, a UK official investigating the crime will be unable to obtain the data because U.S. law prevents disclosure to foreign officials. As with U.S. requests for data in other countries, diplomatic channels exist for sharing such data, but these channels are slow and extremely cumbersome.

Accordingly, for the past several months, I have been working with Senator GRAHAM and others to find a solution for this second part of the problem. Senator GRAHAM, together with Senator WARRINER, convened a hearing in May of this year that I believe highlighted the need for action. I have also met with Ambassadors and other high-ranking foreign officials who have impressed upon me the challenges they face in exercising U.S. law.

I think we need to address this second side of the problem—foreign requests for data in the United States—as well. We need to address it in conjunction with the first side—U.S. requests for data in other countries.

It will not do to give foreign authorities reader access to data stored in the United States without likewise clarifying foreign law enforcement’s ability to obtain data stored abroad. Similarly, it is inconceivable to me that we would open our doors to foreign law enforcement requests while telling U.S. law enforcement that data in other countries is off-limits. We should not prefer foreign criminal investigations over domestic ones.

I believe these two issues—ICPA and the bilateral United States-United Kingdom agreement—are inextricably linked. I have worked in good faith with Senator GRAHAM and with Senator WHITEHOUSE to find a path forward on these issues. It is my firm belief that we need to move these two issues together. Everyone has a vested interest in privacy, and this is a vested interest in bringing criminals to justice. We are going to work together on this.

In closing, I would emphasize one additional point. The question of whether, when, and under what circumstances the United States should authorize law enforcement access to data stored abroad is a question for Congress. There have been suggestions in some corridors that this is a question for the courts to decide. I emphatically reject that question. This is a policy question for Congress.

We should not defer to the courts’ interpretation of a statute that was passed 30 years ago with no thought or comprehension of the situation we face today. Subject to constitutional constraints, it is Congress’s job to set the bounds of government’s investigatory powers. We decide what government officials can and cannot do. We should not pass the buck to the judiciary merely because this is a complicated issue. We shouldn’t do that.

The International Communications Privacy Act provides critical guidance to law enforcement while respecting the laws and interests of our allies. It brings a set of simple, straightforward rules to a chaotic area of the law and creates an example for other countries to follow. It is a balanced approach and a smart approach, and it deserves this body’s full-throated support.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, when polls ask Americans what issues are most important to them, one topic seems to score across time: jobs.

The American people have had a rough time over the past few years.
The Obama years were characterized by long-term economic stagnation. Jobs and opportunities were few and far between. Wage growth was almost nonexistent, and yearly economic growth alternated between weak and woe.

During the last year of the Obama administration—years, I might add, after the recession ended—economic growth averaged a dismal 1.5 percent. That is barely half of the growth needed for a healthy economy.

There have been some encouraging signs over the past few months. Economic growth for the second quarter of 2017 was stronger. We still have a way to go to get to where we need to be. Things still need to get better and better faster.

Another thing is, we want things to get better for the long term. During the Obama administration, there were periods of reasonable economic growth, but they were quickly followed by weakness. That is not good enough. We need to put our economy on a strong, healthy footing for the long term.

How do we do this? How do we get back on the path to long-term economic health? One important thing we can do is reform our outdated, inefficient, and growth-stifling Tax Code.

The Tax Code might not be the first thing people think of when they think of economic growth, but it actually plays a huge role in many aspects of our economy. It helps determine how much money you have left over to save or invest or whether you can afford a car or a house. When it comes to businesses, it can be the key to determining whether a young business gets off the ground or an existing business has the money to grow and to hire new workers.

Unfortunately, our current Tax Code is not helping our economy. Too often, American families find their opportunities limited by the size of the tax bill they owe to Uncle Sam. Large and small businesses alike find themselves struggling under heavy tax burdens that compromise their ability to grow and compete.

What does tax reform need to look like? On the individual side, of course, we need to lower income tax rates to put more money in Americans’ pockets. American families should be the ones to benefit and not Washington bureaucrats.

On the business side, there are two important things we can do that will have long-term benefits for economic growth: first, lower tax rates for all types of businesses—sole proprietorships, S corporations, limited liability companies, and corporations; and, second, accelerate the rate at which businesses can recover their investment costs to free up money for them to reinvest in their businesses, create new jobs, and compete.

When it comes to lowering business tax rates, there are several things we need to do. For starters, we need to lower our Nation’s corporate tax rate. The United States has the highest corporate tax rate in the developed world. That puts American businesses at a competitive disadvantage in the global economy.

When American businesses are taxed at a far higher rate than their foreign competitors, it is likely to be the foreign, rather than the American, companies that expand and thrive. It is not just our high corporate tax rate that puts American businesses at a competitive disadvantage. It is also our outdated worldwide tax system. If we want American businesses to stay competitive in the global economy, we need to move from a worldwide tax system to a territorial tax system.

The chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Senator ORRIN HATCH, delivered a speech the other day explaining exactly why we need to move to a territorial system. I highly recommend reading his full speech, but I am going to try to highlight some of the points he made in that speech.

What does it mean to have a worldwide tax system? Under a worldwide tax system, American companies pay U.S. taxes on the profit they make here at home, as well as any profit they make abroad, once they bring that money back home to the United States.

The problem with this is twofold. First, these companies are already paying taxes to foreign governments on the money they make abroad. While the current Tax Code gives them some credit for those foreign tax payments, they can still end up paying some U.S. taxes when they bring that money home, meaning they are being taxed twice on those profits.

This discourages companies from bringing their profits home to invest in their domestic operations in the United States. If the tax burden for bringing that money home is too great, they have a strong incentive to leave that money abroad and invest it in foreign workers and foreign economies.

The other problem is, most other major world economies have shifted from a worldwide tax system to a territorial tax system. In a territorial tax system, you pay taxes on the money you earn where you make it and only there. You aren’t taxed again when you bring the money back home to your home country.

Most of American companies’ foreign competitors have been operating under a territorial tax system for years so they are paying a lot less in taxes than American companies are. That leaves American companies at a competitive disadvantage.

These foreign companies can undercut American companies for new business simply because they don’t have to add as much in taxes into the price of their products or services. By moving to a territorial tax system in the United States—a move that is supported, by the way, by Members of both parties—we can put American companies on an even footing with their global competitors.

With a territorial tax system and a lower corporate tax rate, we can provide a strong reason for companies to keep their operations in the United States and to bring their profits back home, instead of incentivizing companies to send their operations overseas the way they do now.

Improving the competitiveness of American companies will help them return to their roots here at home that supply the raw material for the products that are sold abroad—businesses that handle the packaging and the shipping of those products and enterprises that supply support services like accounting and legal and payroll services.

The list goes on. America’s global competitors rely on a web of supporting businesses that spans the entire United States. As a result, when American companies are successful, so is the American economy.

Obviously, lowering corporate tax rates and moving to a territorial tax system will have the most impact on American companies with an international footprint. Tax reform also has to focus on that other engine of economic growth; that is, the American small business.

Like bigger businesses, small businesses currently face high tax rates, at times even exceeding those paid by large corporations. Lowering tax rates for small businesses has to be a part of any tax reform bill.

A dollar saved in lower tax rates is a dollar that small businesses can put back into the business to expand, to add another worker, or to give employees a raise. The other thing we can do for small businesses is to allow them to recover their investments in inventory, machinery, and the like faster.

Under current law, small- and medium-sized corporations are often required to use a method of accounting called accrual accounting. Basically, what that means is, a business has to pay tax on income before it receives the cash and cannot deduct all of its expenses when it pays the invoice.

For investments in equipment and facilities, the delay in recovering the cost of the investment can be even longer. For instance, right now, the cost of a computer is recovered over 5 years; tractors, over 7 years; and commercial buildings, over 20 years.

For many businesses, this means it can be many years before that substantial investment can be fully deducted. That can leave a business extremely cash poor. Cash-poor businesses don’t expand, they don’t hire new workers, and they don’t increase wages.

Boosting small businesses’ available cash by allowing them to recover their investments faster is one of the most important things we can do to help small businesses thrive.

I have actually introduced legislation that would do just that. My bill, which is called the INVEST Act, focuses on allowing new businesses to recover their startup costs more quickly and allowing existing small- and medium-sized businesses and farms and ranches to recover their investments faster, and in some cases deducting the acquisition costs immediately.

All of the other topics I have discussed today, and more, will be part of the final tax reform package that we develop in the U.S. Senate.

Members of the tax-writing committees, in both the Senate and the House, have spent years working out the best approach to tax reform. Both committees have redoubled their efforts this year, even as the Senate and the House took up a variety of different priorities.

Last week, leaders from the Senate, the House, and the administration announced that the Senate Finance Committee, of which I am a member, and the House Ways and Means Committee would begin putting together a final version of a tax reform package. Our goal is for the Senate and House to take up and pass the legislation some time this fall.

I am looking forward to working with Chair Hatch and all of my colleagues in the Senate Finance Committee to put together that final bill, because American families and businesses are counting on us to enact a tax system that works for them and not against them. That is what we intend to do. I yield the floor.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the quorum call during consideration of the Wray nomination be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. THUNE. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. KLOBuchar. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Hoeven). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. KLOBuchar. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize the 10th anniversary of the collapse of the I-35W bridge and to pay tribute to those who lost their lives on that tragic summer day, as well as all the first responders, healthcare workers, and ordinary citizens who engaged in extraordinary things on this day 10 years ago.

First, I want to acknowledge one other topic; that is, this evening we will be voting on the nomination of Christopher Wray to serve as the FBI Director. I was proud to join all of my colleagues on the Judiciary Committee—now, it is not an ordinary thing to have happen on its own that way—five all sides of the aisle to support Mr. Wray’s nomination in committee on July 20 with a unanimous vote of support.

In his hearing, Mr. Wray showed that he has integrity, that he will follow the law, and that he understands the importance of an independent FBI. Senators on both sides of the aisle asked him strong and tough questions. Given this important time in our Nation’s history for law enforcement and for the FBI, I don’t think you would expect anything less.

Mr. Wray handled the questions well. He was knowledgeable, but most importantly for me, he showed respect for the law, and he showed respect for his predecessors, both Mr. Mueller and Mr. Comey. He showed respect for the law, and he understood the somber time in which he comes in to take this job.

In particular, Mr. Wray said that if he were asked to do something illegal or unethical, he would urge the President not to proceed with such a course of action, and he would resign if necessary. Mr. Wray also responded to Senator Grassley, who did not consider Special Counsel Mueller to be on a witch hunt, and he agreed that anyone running for elected office should notify the FBI if a foreign government offers assistance on a political campaign.

Mr. Wray also agreed with the concerns I raised that are posed by organized criminals, including those from foreign governments or who work for foreign governments, or who work for their money in shell companies. He said that we had to “follow the money.” With news reports that the eighth person in the meeting with Donald Trump, Jr., Paul Manafort, and a lawyer connected to the Russian president was a Russian who has been linked to money laundering, this issue is as important as ever.

In addition, Mr. Wray pledged to continue the FBI’s efforts to work with the Election Assistance Commission and to address cyber security threats to our election infrastructure, so it is not just investigating things backward. A lot of what fighting crime is about—and I certainly knew this in my time as county attorney in Hennepin County—is making sure you protect people going forward. The FBI has enormous responsibilities going forward with cyber security, not only for our elections but for our government and also for business and for individual citizens.

Importantly, Mr. Wray promised to be responsive to requests from the Judiciary Committee as it carries out its oversight responsibilities. Those were questions posed to him by the committee’s chairman, Senator Grassley.

This is a tough time to take this tough job. The previous FBI Director, as we now, was fired because of the Russia investigation. The former Acting Attorney General was fired, and we have had a slew of other firings throughout the government over the last few months.

I believe Christopher Wray is someone who will come in there with the integrity that is needed to do the job for those brave agents who go to work every day, not wearing a political badge. They just go to work to protect us. I also believe he is in the right choice at this time for our country.

I am very proud of the work the FBI in Minnesota has done, especially in this past year, with the stabbing we had at the shopping mall. The police chief there often talks about how there was so much going on at that moment, and the FBI was able to come in and help with that investigation in a significant way. I think the FBI can only work on the investigation with his officers but also calm the community, work with them, and do the other work that had to be done in the aftermath of that tragic stabbing.

That is just one example of our FBI in Minnesota, but I think every Member in this Chamber has examples in their own communities, and that is why it is important to have someone of the caliber of Christopher Wray take charge. I look forward to voting for his confirmation this evening.
bridge as the school bus rested on the side, ready to fall. To get the kids off the bridge—they were just going to a summer camp and coming home for the day—the driver was helping them out one by one, not leaving that bus until every single kid got off the bus. During those hours after the bridge fell, the Minneapolis Emergency Communications Center received and processed over 500 calls, 51 of which came directly from the scene of the disaster.

The eyes of the Nation were on our State, and what they saw that day was the very best of Minnesota. That tremendous spirit of community is what carried us through the dark days after the bridge collapsed. I remember going there with then-Senator Coleman the next morning with the Transportation Secretary. There were already, literally, billboards the morning after, directing people where to go because this involved a major highway and telling them what buses would be going which way they should go. That is a community responding.

Senator Coleman and I pledged that day that we would work with Congress—man Oberstar, who was a major force—who worked with us on the House Transportation Committee and then, of course, with Congressman ELLISON, who is the Congressman for that district.

Senator Coleman and I pledged to get the money, and we secured $250 million in emergency bridge reconstruction funding in just the first few days. It was a bipartisan effort, and I was proud to have the support of so many people in this Chamber. As a result of that—and maybe this is a lesson in light of what we heard in Senator McCAIN’s beautiful speech and in light of what we know we still need to be doing with infrastructure in this country—with President Bush’s help and with bipartisan support that built that huge bridge in Minnesota in a little over a year. Literally 13 months later, I was driving over that bridge to my house.

It is a shining example of what we can accomplish when we put politics aside to get big things done. I believe the I-35W bridge can and should be a model, not just of a tragic disaster and of our declining infrastructure, which it certainly is, but also a model of how we can fix things—a Republican Senator working with a Democratic Senator, and we got it done.

We have made some progress in this Chamber when it comes to infrastructure. In 2015, Democrats and Republicans worked together to pass the Fixing America’s Surface Transportation Act or FAST Act, led by Senator McCONNEll, the leader, with Senator Boxer. They don’t agree on much, but they worked hard to get that bill done. I have always loved that it was called the FAST Act. It is kind of a scary thing to call a bill in Congress under the days, but they named it that, and it got done. It was a long-term reauthorization bill that increased transportation funding from existing revenue streams and helped provide certainty for local governments planning critical projects.

Under the FAST Act, Minnesota is scheduled to receive more than $4 billion in funding over 5 years, which will be of help to ensure that our infrastructure is safe and efficient, and by the last year, it will be an increase of about $100 million just for our State over what we were getting the year before we passed the FAST Act. But we still need to do more.

This year, the American Society of Civil Engineers, which every so often comes out with grades of the Nation’s infrastructure, gave America’s infrastructure a grade of D-plus. While other countries are running ahead with infrastructure investments, we are still standing still. Even with the FAST Act, it doesn’t propel us into the future, where we want to be. As we know—and as the Presiding Officer knows from his own State of North Dakota—we are an export State; we are an export country. We have to bring goods to market, and we have to bring goods into the United States. We also have to bring people to their jobs, and that is what infrastructure—roads, bridges, rails, locks, and dams—that was set up for the last century. Standing still means falling behind in this global economy. In Minnesota, we know the cost of neglecting our roads and bridges. Our country needs to build roads, bridges, airports, locks, dams, and rail that work.

While safety should always be our first priority, it shouldn’t be our only expectation. Our infrastructure should help farmers from the Presiding Officer’s home State of North Dakota and my State of Minnesota to get crops to market quickly. Small businesses have to grow, and workers have to get to their jobs.

Let’s not forget about updating our energy grid, repairing and replacing our water infrastructure and sewers, and making sure all Americans have access to broadband—not just low-speed broadband but high-speed broadband. I don’t want to hear about another farmer going to the McDonald’s parking lot to do his business or a doctor in northern Minnesota going to look at his x rays. If he couldn’t use the hospital, he couldn’t look at x rays at home or anywhere else except another coffee store parking lot. That makes no sense.

If our deteriorating infrastructure goes unaddressed, it will cost our economy nearly $4 trillion by 2025, leading to a loss of over 2 million jobs. If we address it, we can create millions of jobs.

Here are some ideas. Senators MARK WARNER of Virginia and ROY BLUNT of Missouri have a bipartisan bill that I am part of that would establish an infrastructure financing authority to complement existing funding and expand overall infrastructure investments by providing new incentives to increase private sector spending. Another idea is to reform our Tax Code—and we have to do a lot of work on that—to simplify it and to create incentives for businesses to invest right here in America. We can also provide incentives because especially when it comes to rural America, we are not going to see the same kind of public-private partnership that you might in other, more populated areas of the country. So it has to be a combination of funding sources to make this work for every State, especially for rural America.

I am committed to moving forward in a bipartisan way to address our infrastructure needs and to prevent another disaster like the collapse of the I-35W bridge. It is time to work together to make this happen. I actually believe the Senate is a place where we can make this happen. We showed the ability to get through a major infrastructure bill just 2 years ago, and we can do it again.

Today, on this 10th anniversary, we honor the victims, and their families, of that I-35W bridge collapse. We recognize the bravery of the first responders, who were incredible, and the 911 operas, who did their duty and answered those calls and got the help where they were supposed to go, and the doctors, nurses, ER people, ambulance workers, and everyone else.

Today, we also—and I can’t think of a better time, when we are going through a difficult period, as we are in our country—remember the actions of ordinary citizens who could have just said: Oh, this looks scary; I am going home. They didn’t do that. They didn’t run away from the disaster; they ran toward it. Ordinary citizens did extraordinary things. Why? Because they cared about their community. Because they knew that while maybe they had crossed over that bridge 5 minutes before it collapsed and could see it in their rearview mirror, or maybe they were approaching the bridge and actually saw it collapse—if it weren’t for a 5-minute or 1-minute or 30-second difference, it would have been them on that bridge, and they knew that, and that is why they helped.

That is what America is really all about. It is not just a lottery where only certain people win and certain people lose. You have to put yourselves in the shoes of other people and think, that is what democracy is about, and that is what we saw on this day 10 years ago, August 1, in Minnesota.

Thank you, Mr. President.
I met with Mr. Wray prior to his hearing, and I have carefully reviewed his record and listened to his hearing testimony. I believe he is well qualified and that he is sensitive to the fact that the FBI Director needs to be independent from this President and this Administration.

We are at a perilous moment in our history. Director Comey was fired by President Trump after he refused to pledge his loyalty to President Trump and after he publicly acknowledged that the FBI was investigating links between the Trump campaign and Russia. In the 109-year history of the FBI, only one FBI Director had ever been fired before. That director, William Sessions, was dismissed for serious ethical violations—not because the FBI was investigating the administration. Not since Watergate and the Saturday Night Massacre of October 20, 1973, has there been a President dismissed the head of an ongoing investigation into his administration.

From his own statements to NBC News and to Russian officials in the Oval Office, we know that President Trump wanted FBI Director Comey gone because of the Russia investigation. Russia—Russia attacked our democracy last year. Almost every day, there is a new revelation about Russian contacts with the Trump campaign and administration. We owe it to the American people to get to the bottom of what happened.

Fortunately, there's now a special counsel, Bob Mueller, who is investigating whether any crimes were committed. We also need to make sure no foreign adversary can interfere with our elections again. It is imperative that the next FBI Director allow Special Counsel Mueller to conduct his investigation without interference and that the FBI provide Mueller with access to the information and resources he needs.

It is also imperative that we have an FBI Director who will carry out the functions of the office with independence, integrity, and a firm commitment to the rule of law. I appreciate that Mr. Wray shares my view that the FBI Director should avoid meeting with President Trump one-on-one and that the FBI Director would be well-advised to make contemporaneous written records of any substantive conversations with President Trump.

Mr. Wray also told me he has no reason to doubt the intelligence community’s conclusion that Russia interfered in our election. I look forward to hearing more from Mr. Wray on this subject after he is confirmed and has reviewed the classified intelligence.

He also committed to work with me to address the scourge of illicit gun trafficking coming into the city of Chicago and to work with me on efforts to reduce youth exposure to violent trauma.

I asked Mr. Wray about the criminal division’s involvement in a 2004 memo by the DOJ Office of Legal Counsel on torture. He said he was not involved in reviewing or approving this memo or any CIA interrogation techniques and that he agrees with former FBI Director Mueller that interrogation techniques such as painful stress positions can never be used under any circumstances. I appreciate his commitment to ensuring that FBI personnel never use or participate in abusive interrogation techniques.

Mr. Wray also committed to me that, if confirmed, he would provide the Senate Intelligence Committee’s torture report, and I look forward to hearing his reflections on it.

Mr. Wray told me that he agrees with former Director Comey that Federal courts and Federal prosecutors are effective in prosecuting terrorists and obtaining valuable intelligence, which is clear when you compare our courts’ record in convicting more than 500 terrorists since 9/11. In contrast, military commissions have only produced eight convictions, four of which have been overturned.

I appreciate Mr. Wray’s commitment to “seek to maintain and build trust with all Americans, including Muslim Americans.”

The next FBI Director will be under incredible scrutiny. We need an FBI Director who will face that pressure with integrity, independence, and a firm commitment to the rule of law. He may also have to stand up to this President if the interests of justice call for it. I believe Mr. Wray can do that, so I will support his nomination, and I hope I will be joined by my colleagues in closely monitoring the FBI to ensure Mr. Wray is effectively serving the American people and the rule of law.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I supported Christopher Wray’s nomination in the Judiciary Committee to be the next Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. I did so because I believe he is qualified and—critically—I believe he will stand up for the independence of the FBI. Such independence has never been more at risk. We need a new FBI Director now because the President fired the last one, Director James Comey. The President’s reason for doing so was disturbing: to take pressure off of the FBI’s investigation into Russian interference in our democracy and connections between the Kremlin and the President’s campaign and administration.

This came after the President first sought Director Comey’s loyalty, then pressured him to terminate the ongoing investigation into Michael Flynn, and then misled the Nation as to the reason for Director Comey’s firing.

Time and again, this White House has shown it does not respect boundaries between politics and law enforcement or understand that an official’s loyalty is to the Constitution, not the President. The President routinely attacks the Attorney General, Deputy Attorney General, special counsel, Acting FBI Director, former FBI Director, and countless others. Each attack seems more outrageous than the last. Attorney General Sessions was required by Justice Department regulations to recuse himself from the Russia investigation. It was not discretionary. The President launched a weeklong campaign to impugn former FBI Director James Comey by stating he would have never hired the Attorney General had he known he would recuse himself. In other words, the President would not have hired our Nation’s top law enforcement official had he known he would actually follow the law.

Make no mistake, whether he asks for it or not, the President will demand loyalty from Mr. Wray. He has shown there are consequences for those who dare to maintain independence and follow the rules. Through Twitter attacks and firing top officials, the President is attempting to intimidate and improperly influence the behavior of our Nation’s top law enforcement officials.

This is not normal. We should not take it as such, nor should those officials be solely responsible for protecting the independence of our law enforcement institutions. All of us, Republican and Democrat, must stand up to a President who seems to only stand for himself and whose relentless attacks on the rule of law harm the entire Nation.

The next FBI Director will face many tests of integrity. He will be forced to make decisions, as Director Comey was, that will test his commitment to the rule of law. I believed Mr. Wray when he testified in response to my question that he would sooner resign than follow an unlawful or unethical order from the White House. While he served as the head of the Justice Department’s criminal division in 2004, the White House attempted to authorize a warrantless surveillance program over the Attorney General’s objections. Mr. Wray offered to resign in solidarity with then-FBI Director Robert Mueller and then-Deputy Attorney General James Comey. He takes his integrity and the independence and integrity of our Nation’s law enforcement agencies seriously.

I expect Mr. Wray will tenaciously guard the independence of the FBI, and I will vote to confirm his nomination today.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. BLUMENTHAL. Mr. President, I know that later this afternoon, we are going to vote on the nomination of Christopher Wray. I am proud to support him, as I was during the Judiciary Committee, voting for him, as did every other member of the Judiciary Committee. The reason is quite simply that he is a professional, as nonpolitically associated as anyone can be going into this position.

Like the FBI itself, he is known for his independence and integrity. There are two qualities needed today for the FBI and its Director, and those are independence and integrity. The FBI is one of the most important law enforcement agencies and certainly one of the most important in the country.

The FBI Director doesn’t serve the President. He serves the Constitution and the people of the United States. He must be independent of political interference, and his or her integrity must be unquestioned. The FBI deserves a leader with the integrity and strength necessary for that solemn mission, and Mr. Wray has shown himself to be that kind of leader. Those qualities are especially important because never before have the rule of law and our law enforcement been so threatened by political interference, and it begins at the very top.

The reason Christopher Wray has been nominated to serve as FBI Director is that the vacancy was created by the firing of Jim Comey for reasons that have led to an aspect of the ongoing investigation by the special counsel. The reason that position is vacant is because 3 months ago Jim Comey was fired by the President because of “the Russia thing.” The Russia thing was very much on the President’s mind, more so than any of the reasons given in the memos done by Attorney General Sessions and Deputy Attorney General Rod Rosenstein, according to the President himself.

“The Russia thing” is the FBI and special counsel investigation into whether the Trump campaign colluded with the Russian Government to influence our election. There is no question that there was a campaign of interference and meddling through cyber attacks, disinformation, propaganda, and other means, and there is no question that the Russians will do it again unless they are made to pay a price. Others may well collude or conspire with them—Americans—unless they are compelled to pay a price.

We have only to look at the morning headlines to see how far-reaching and significant this investigation may be. The reason the President himself wrote a statement to be issued in the name of his son about a meeting with the Russian who promised “dirt” on Hillary Clinton and directly misled about that meeting shows what is at stake.

The misleading words put into the President’s son’s mouth by Donald Trump himself are potential pieces of evidence relating to criminal intent fitting the pattern that the special counsel has assembled. They add weight and color to that mosaic; they are not alone proof.

The report today is proof that certainly describes a pattern of conduct—the threat of firing. Bob Mueller, the threat that Attorney General Jeff Sessions may be used as a vehicle to lead to Bob Mueller’s firing. Even before Jim Comey’s dismissal, I called for an independent special prosecutor at the Department of Justice. In fact, I was the only member of the Judiciary Committee to vote against Rod Rosenstein’s nomination as Deputy Attorney General, opposed to committing to appoint a special prosecutor, and I believed a special prosecutor was necessary not only to determine the full extent of Russia’s meddling in our democracy but also to protect that investigation from the President’s efforts to shut it down. This belief was brought into stark relief by Jim Comey’s firing, and it precipitated the appointment of Bob Mueller.

The firing of Special Counsel Mueller would precipitate a firestorm on both sides of the aisle. It would put the President over a precipice that likely could lead to the most drastic action possible in this democracy. That precipice can be avoided, and Congress must play a role in avoiding it. We are in the process of examining what action can be taken to provide a check and a firewall against that kind of firing—drastic action that would put the President over that precipice politically and morally and legally. Also, my hope in having the new Chief of Staff, General Kelly, will add a voice of reason and wisdom, perhaps, to check some of the more rash and impulsive action that might otherwise be taken by the President.

The special counsel was given a clear mandate to follow the evidence wherever it may lead. I believe that Special Counsel Mueller has the guts and backbone, as well as the expertise, to uncover the truth, to follow that evidence, and to bring charges if they are appropriate and necessary, if he is assured the resources and independence to do the job.

That is why Christopher Wray’s nomination is so critically important. He will be responsible for providing those resources and investigative agents necessary to do the legwork and the review of documents and other hard work—challenging work—that is necessary so that the special counsel task can be accomplished. He is charged with providing leadership and laws, and I hope that the new Director will do everything possible to enable it to be fair and effective, comprehensive and thorough, and to do justice. He will help the special counsel to do justice just as he will help prosecutors and law enforcement agencies across the country to do justice. The future of the FBI and our Nation are truly at stake.

Thank you. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator from Connecticut for his remarks, and I would like to make a few remarks with respect to my position as ranking member on the Judiciary Committee.

As has been well described, shortly, we will vote on the nomination of Christopher Wray to be the next Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The Judiciary Committee has reviewed his record and held a full and complete hearing. His nomination was sent to the floor for consideration by a vote of 20 to 0—a very good vote. I am very confident that Mr. Wray has the qualifications and independence necessary to lead the FBI, so I will support Mr. Wray’s nomination to be FBI Director.

I wish to begin by saying just a few words about what I think, after 24 years in this place, is necessary in going forward.

First, it is really important that we have a strong FBI Director. There can be no manipulation. Second, the Special Counsel Robert Mueller must be allowed to proceed with his investigation undisturbed.

Third, the FBI Director must manage and speak for the FBI on the basis of the Constitution and the laws of the United States, not at the dictates of any political figure. This is what the FBI and the American people need now.

As you and I know, the FBI is a critically important law enforcement agency. It must be able to move forward with its work and with its senior leadership in place. As I noted at Mr. Wray’s hearing and just noted again, the FBI must be an independent law enforcement organization that is free from political influence.

During his hearing and in his written responses to our questions, Mr. Wray stated that the FBI Director must maintain “strict independence,” and he committed to doing the job “by the book” and “without regard to any partisan political influence.” He also testified that his loyalty is to the Constitution and the rule of law, not to any ideology or any individual, including the President. He was believable to all of us in those statements.

Mr. Wray also testified that he would resist any efforts to interfere with FBI investigations. I take Mr. Wray at his word. As we discussed when Mr. Wray and I met in my office, I believe the next FBI Director’s independence, integrity, and commitment to the rule of law, sadly, will likely be tested by the circumstances we face.

One early test may come in relation to the investigations being conducted by Special Counsel Mueller, this committee, and other committees in Congress. Mr. Wray has committed to supporting the work and protecting the investigation being conducted by Special Counsel Mueller, and I trust Mr. Wray will keep the Judiciary Committee of our House informed of any attempts to interfere with that investigation.

Now, he has a tough job ahead of him. The FBI is our premier law enforcement agency. It faces new criminal terrorism threats every day. I remember FBI Director Comey telling us the FBI had a criminal investigation going on in virtually every State in the Union. That was last year, but I assume many are still going on. On top of that, his predecessor was, as we all know, suddenly fired by the President for reasons that are questionable, and that is the subject of ongoing investigations. Lately, we have seen the President attempt to bully his own Attorney General, but even in the light of these challenging circumstances, I believe Mr. Wray is up to the task.

Based on his testimony and the commitments he has made to me and other members of our Judiciary Committee, I believe we on the committee will all support his nomination, and, if he is confirmed, I commit to working with him to support the FBI, its mission, and the some 30-plus thousand FBI agents and employees who work every day to help protect our Nation.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from California for her fine remarks on Mr. Wray. I am with her. Her fine remarks on Mr. Wray. I am with her. I yield the floor to the Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Iowa for her fine remarks on Mr. Wray. I am with her. Her fine remarks on Mr. Wray. I am with her.

Mr. Wray received bipartisan support from more than 100 former U.S. attorneys, who enthusiastically endorsed him. He also testified that Mr. Wray “is a strong and effective leader with an unassailable integrity, judgment and courage.” According to this group, which included former Bush administration Justice Department officials like Larry Thompson and Ken Wainstein, as well as Eric Holder and Sally Yates, Mr. Wray will discharge the duties of FBI Director “with honor, independence, and a tireless commitment to the rule of law.”

Earlier this year, when we considered other nominees for the Justice Department, I pointed out that we need leaders with steel spines, not weak knees. I believe that Mr. Wray will be such a leader.

The issue of torture is very important to me. On this issue, I was encouraged by Mr. Wray’s acknowledgment that torture is wrong, unacceptable, illegal, and ineffective. He testified under oath that he did not participate in the interrogation techniques, such as waterboarding, painful stress positions, threatening detainees with dogs, forced nudity, and mock execution, are “abusive under all circumstances.”

Importantly, for me, he has committed that the FBI, under his leadership, will never engage in such techniques or other forms of torture and interrogation program under a former administration.

One early test may come in relation to the investigations being conducted by Special Counsel Mueller, this committee, and other committees in Congress. Mr. Wray has committed to support the work and protecting the investigation being conducted by Special Counsel Mueller, and I trust Mr. Wray will keep the Judiciary Committee of our House informed of any attempts to interfere with that investigation.

Now, he has a tough job ahead of him. The FBI is our premier law enforcement agency. It faces new criminal terrorism threats every day. I remember FBI Director Comey telling us the FBI had a criminal investigation going on in virtually every State in the Union. That was last year, but I assume many are still going on. On top of that, his predecessor was, as we all know, suddenly fired by the President for reasons that are questionable, and that is the subject of ongoing investigations. Lately, we have seen the President attempt to bully his own Attorney General, but even in the light of these challenging circumstances, I believe Mr. Wray is up to the task.

Based on his testimony and the commitments he has made to me and other members of our Judiciary Committee, I believe we on the committee will all support his nomination, and, if he is confirmed, I commit to working with him to support the FBI, its mission, and the some 30-plus thousand FBI agents and employees who work every day to help protect our Nation.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Thank you.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from California for her fine remarks on Mr. Wray. I am with her. Her fine remarks on Mr. Wray. I am with her.

Mr. Wray possesses the skill, the character, and the unwavering commitment to impartial enforcement of the law. Based on the unanimous vote Mr. Wray received from the Judiciary Committee, I am confident my colleagues believe this as well.

Mr. Wray has an accomplished record as a lawyer. He was a Federal prosecutor for a number of years and went on to serve in various senior roles at the Department of Justice, including leading the criminal division at the Department.

Mr. Wray earned the Department’s highest award for public service and leadership. His prior record of service demonstrates his competence in leading within the Federal Government and demonstrates he will be able to lead effectively at the FBI. He has shown he has the expertise needed to address the wide range of policy issues currently facing the FBI.

Of course, my colleagues and I asked Mr. Wray about his positions on many such issues during his hearing. He answered those questions very well, but the most important thing we wanted to learn from him had to do with his view of the job and where his loyalties lie.
As all of us in this body know, when we take the oath of office, we affirm that we will support and defend the Constitution of the United States. We do not pledge support to any member of the government or even to a political party. We pledge our loyalty to the Constitution and to the rule of law.

Many Members asked Mr. Wray very pointed questions about loyalty during his hearing. I was impressed with his plain answers, and I take him at his word when he says that his “loyalty is to the Constitution and the rule of law” and when he says that he will “never allow the FBI’s work to be driven by anything other than the facts, the law, and the impartial pursuit of justice. Period—full stop.”

Now, if he is confirmed, Mr. Wray will step into this role at a crucial moment, not only in the history of the FBI but in the history of this Nation. As we know, the investigations are underway, including by this body, to clearly lay out Russia’s activities that attempted to influence the 2016 election. These are important and sensitive investigations, and they cannot be influenced by people who are in powerful positions in any way whatever. This applies to the FBI Director.

Mr. Wray was asked very directly what he would do if urged with the opportunity to influence these investigations in any way. He told the committee that he will not condone tampering with investigations and that he would resign rather than be unduly influence by anyone or anything.

Mr. Wray’s record of service and his reputation give us no reason to doubt him. He was forthright when he was asked specific questions about the events leading up to his being offered the job of FBI Director by President Trump. He made no loyalty pledges then, and I expect him never to make such a pledge moving forward.

Mr. Wray will also face the challenge of running an agency that is powerful and in many ways has a reputation, has served America in many ways, and has now been appointed to a job that is essential to the health, safety, and welfare of the American people. I speak of Christopher Wray of Georgia.

Christopher Wray is my friend. Christopher Wray has been a very successful and respected business executive. He worked there at the same time as Griffin Bell, Larry Thompson, and Sam Nunn at King & Spalding, the same one Griffin Bell worked for—the law firm of Christopher Wray worked for the law firm of Griffin Bell. Larry Thompson, and Sam Nunn.

I urge my colleagues to join me in voting to confirm Christopher Wray as the next Director of the FBI. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. LANKFORD). The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I have a rare privilege and honor right now. A lot of times, the Presiding Officer and I come to the well to make speeches that we have to, that we’ve sought to, or that everybody wanted us to. Rarely do we have the opportunity to come to the well of the Senate and speak about an individual from our own State whom we know personally who is impeccable in their reputation, has served America in many ways, and has now been appointed to a job that is essential to the health, safety, and welfare of the American people. I speak of Christopher Wray of Georgia.

Christopher Wray is my friend. Christopher Wray has been a very successful and respected business executive. He worked there at the same time as Griffin Bell, Larry Thompson, and Sam Nunn worked for—a great law firm with a tie to our government and our country.

At a time for an appointment to be the great one, this is the time. We know there have been issues from time to time with the FBI. We all know we are looking for somebody who can do the job and do it well, in a fair and impartial way, without any question of impropriety. Christopher Wray is exactly that type of person.

He is the person who helped convict Zacarias Moussaoui and coordinated with local law enforcement in the prosecution of the Washington, DC, snipers who terrorized our city for so long. He is a dedicated and committed prosecutor.

He has been selected many times to work for the Department of Justice. He went to the Department of Justice under Larry Thompson as an assistant. He worked there at the same time as Griffin Bell. He also worked during many of the investigations into the terrorists who attacked America. He is the right man at the right time in the right place.

So if ever there were a time—

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, will my colleague yield for a brief moment?

Mr. ISAKSON. I am happy to yield to the minority leader.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I will have a statement in support of Mr. Wray after the Senator from Georgia finishes speaking.

Mr. ISAKSON. Put an exclamation point after that.

Mr. SCHUMER. I am in full support of Mr. Wray, and I thank my colleague for the courtesy.

I yield the floor.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I know when it is a good time for me to shut up. When the minority leader has come to the floor to endorse the guy I am talking about, the last thing I want to do is wear it out.

Let me end my remarks by saying that Christopher Wray is the type of person Chuck Schumer wants, the type of person I want, and the type of person we are looking for as the chief law enforcement officer of our country. He will make himself proud, he will make our State proud, and he will do the right thing at the right time in all places for the people of the United States of America.

I urge every Member of the Senate to heartily vote in support of Christopher Wray to be Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the United States of America.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, shortly we will take a vote on the nomination of Christopher Wray to be the next FBI Director.

The job of FBI Director has always been a crucial one. The responsibility is great and so are the expectations, and the demands facing our next FBI Director are perhaps greater than any time in our history.

No doubt, Christopher Wray has been put up for a tough job. In considering his nomination, it was important to me to take the measure of the man and determine whether he was up to the challenge. I met with him privately for an hour, and I closely studied his record and his performance in his hearings.

Based on his career in public service and the commitments he made to me, I am happy to yield to the Judiciary Committee in his confirmation hearing. I believe that Christopher Wray deserves the approval of the Senate.
He committed to informing the Judiciary Committee of any attempts to interfere with Special Counsel Mueller’s Russia probe and said he would consider any attempted interference to be unacceptable and inappropriate.

He committed to impartiality and independence, pledging that the FBI will follow the facts, the laws, and the Constitution, without regard to partisan political influence.

After a sterling career at the Justice Department, and based on the recommendation of hundreds of U.S. Attorneys who have validated his integrity, there is no reason not to believe that Mr. Wray will live up to these commitments as Director of the FBI.

I will vote yes on his nomination, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Thank you.

Mr. ISAKSON. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I yield back all time on our side and their side as well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded back.

The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the Wray nomination?

Mr. ISAKSON. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. CORNYN. The following Senators are necessarily absent: the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. BURR) and the Senator from Arizona (Mr. MCCAIN).

Mr. DURBIN. I announce that the Senator from Minnesota (Mr. FRANKEN) is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 66, nays 5, as follows:

[Yea-nay vote of the 115th Congress]

Mr. CORNYN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that with respect to the Wray and Newsmom nominations, the motions to reconsider be considered made and laid upon the table and the President be immediately notified of the Senate’s action.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

JUVENILE JUSTICE AND DELINQUENCY PREVENTION REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2017

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I rise to speak about the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Reauthorization Act.

I will make some short comments, and then I would like to defer to Senator WHITEHOUSE, and then I would propose a unanimous consent request.

I think we will soon be able to pass the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Reauthorization Act. I reintroduced this measure this year with Senator WHITEHOUSE.

The bill before us is almost the same as the one the Judiciary Committee cleared by voice vote in the 114th Congress, and it is very similar to the one we hotlined last year. We hotlined it in April, and all the Members of this Chamber had several months to review it. We had one objection, and we cleared it earlier this week.
The bill would extend a Federal law known as the Juvenile Justice Delinquency Prevention Act for 5 more years. The centerpiece of this 1974 legislation, which Congress last extended 15 years ago, is to protect the rights of at-risk youth. The managers of this bill are seeking to keep children off of adult courts, except in very rare instances. They ensure that juveniles will be kept separated from adult inmates whenever they are housed in adult facilities. They call for reducing disproportionate minority contact in State juvenile justice systems.

States adhering to these requirements receive yearly formula grants to support the juvenile justice systems. This bill would promote greater accountability in government spending. The Judiciary Committee, which I chair, heard from multiple whistleblowers that reforms are urgently needed to restore the integrity of the formula grant programs that are the centerpiece of our current juvenile justice law. The Justice Department’s Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention administers this formula grant program. This program would be continued for 5 more years under the bill, but the Justice Department would have to do more oversight if this bill is enacted.

This bill also calls for evidence-based programs to be accorded priority in funding. The goal is to ensure that scarce resources for juvenile justice will be devoted mostly to the programs that research shows have the greatest merit and will yield the best results for these young people.

Finally, I want to take this opportunity to thank our many cosponsors. This bill is truly a bipartisan effort, and many Senators contributed provisions to strengthen this bill since we introduced it last April. The bill reflects the latest scientific research on what works best with at-risk adolescents.

At this point, I would ask that the Presiding Officer turn the floor over to Senator WHITEHOUSE. I want to thank Senator WHITEHOUSE for being so persistent in this effort, as well. I thank him for his leadership.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Thank you, Mr. President, and thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Chairman GRASSLEY has been a wonderful colleague in this effort. It is the culmination of years of work, including multiple committee hearings, briefings at home in Rhode Island and elsewhere, and really working the regular order of the Senate to get this done. Chairman GRASSLEY has been both patient and persistent, and I really appreciate his leadership.

I also thank our ranking member on the Judiciary Committee, Senator FEINGOLD, for her work. I thank Senator RAND PAUL. He would have liked to have seen a stronger bill, but it simply—as would we have, by the way. He held on for a while, hoping we could strengthen it, but it turned out there was objection to that—and he was gracious about yielding—and now we are able to move forward bipartisanly and unanimously.

The history of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act is a noble history. It is because of this law that children aren’t locked up in adult prisons any longer. It is because of this law that children don’t get placed in solitary confinement for extended periods. It is because of this law that children aren’t arrested for things like running away from home or not coming to school, but it had been a while since this bill was updated.

The last time it was reauthorized was 13 years ago, and we have learned a lot about adolescent development and the best practices for dealing with children in those 13 years. So we are moving forward today.

I look forward to working with my chairman on the broad-based criminal justice reform that he is championing in the committee, but there is no reason we shouldn’t go forward with getting juvenile justice right while we move on to other areas.

I particularly want to thank him and recognize the groups involved for the patient work that was done over many years with all sorts of interested groups. We had to make this right. We wanted to minimize conflict. We wanted to maximize what we were able to accomplish, and the result is, we have over 150 organizations that have endorsed this legislation, from the ACLU to the national association that supports probation and parole officers, from Boys Town to the National Association of Counties and the National Center for Victims of Crime.

The bill focuses the way it should, on evidence-based and trauma-informed programs that have emerged in the last 13 years. It focuses on protecting juveniles, which are held in adult facilities, making sure they are fully separated in sight and sound from adult inmates. It limits the narrow circumstances under which they may be confined in isolation, and it requires data-driven approaches to reduce ethnic and racial disparities.

We recognize that kids now are much more vulnerable to substance abuse issues and that they, too, face mental health challenges. It is about time we stopped shackling girls once they are pregnant. It shouldn’t be asking too much, and it is about time we stopped shackling girls, particularly pregnant girls.

Last, something near and dear to my chairman’s heart, it improves the accountability and the oversight of the Federal grants program. I know that has been a goal he has pursued for a long time. The chairman is one of the most determined Members of the Senate when it comes to transparency and accountability, and so I am very pleased to be his partner in that particular piece of the bill.

With that, I yield the floor back to Chairman GRASSLEY so he may take us through the formal steps of passing this law. It is a very happy moment for me, and I extend my appreciation to Chairman GRASSLEY.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, once again, thanks to Senator WHITEHOUSE for his cooperation and working so hard over the course of the last two Congresses to get this done.

I ask unanimous consent that the Judiciary Committee be discharged from further consideration of S. 860 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the bill by title.

The bill clerk reads as follows:

A bill (S. 860) to reauthorize and improve the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Grassley amendment at the desk be considered and agreed to and the bill, as amended, be considered read a third time.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment (No. 741) was agreed to, as follows:

(Proper: To improve the bill)

Beginning on page 40, strike line 23 and all that follows through page 41, line 23.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading and was read the third time.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I know of no further debate on the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there any further debate on the bill?

He know of no further debate on the bill.

He knows the bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall it pass?

The bill (S. 860), as amended, was passed, as follows:

HEALTHCARE

Mr. ALEXANDER. Mr. President, this afternoon, Senator MURRAY, the Senator from Washington State who is the ranking member of the Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions, and I, the chairman of the committee, made a bipartisan announcement that the Senate’s HELP Committee will hold hearings beginning the week of September 4 on the actions Congress should take to stabilize and strengthen the individual health insurance market so Americans will have affordable insurance at affordable prices in the year 2018. We will hear from State insurance commissioners, from patients, from Governors, from healthcare experts, and insurance companies. Committee staff will begin work this week, working with all committee members to prepare for these hearings and discussions. That was the announcement Senator MURRAY and I made today.

Now, in my own words, the reason for these hearings is that unless Congress acts by September 27, when insurance companies must sign contracts with the Federal Government to sell insurance policies in the marketplace next year, millions of Americans with government subsidies in up to half of our States may find themselves with zero options for buying health insurance on the exchanges next year, 2018. Many others without government subsidies will find themselves unable to afford health insurance because of rising premiums, copays, and deductibles.

There are a number of issues with the American healthcare system, but if your house is on fire, you want to put out the fire. This is perhaps the most pressing priority, the individual health insurance market. Both Republicans and Democrats agree on this.

Our committee, the HELP Committee, had one hearing on the subject in February and we have worked intensively between now and the end of September in order to finish our work in time to have an effect on health insurance policies next year, sold in 2018. We are consulting with Senator HATCH and Senator WYDEN so the Finance Committee is aware of any matters that we discuss that might be within its jurisdiction. A number of Senators, both Democratic and Republican, have approached Senator MURRAY and me and said they would like to be involved. We are going to find a way for them to be involved and update them on our progress.

In these discussions—the ones I am describing—we are dealing with a small segment of the total health insurance market. Only about 6 percent of insured Americans buy their insurance in the individual market. Only about 4 percent of insured Americans buy their insurance on the Affordable Care Act exchanges. While these percentages are small, they represent large numbers of Americans, especially of our most vulnerable Americans. We are talking about roughly 18 million Americans in the individual market. About 11 million of them buy their insurance on the Affordable Care Act exchanges. About 9 million of those 11 million have Affordable Care Act subsidies, and unless we act, many of them may not have policies available to buy in 2018 because insurance companies will pull out of the collapsing markets. It would be like having a bus ticket and no bus coming through town.

Just as important, unless we act, costs could rise, once again, even making healthcare unaffordable for the additional 9 million Americans in the individual market who receive no government support to help buy insurance, roughly 2 million of them who buy their health insurance on the exchanges but who don’t qualify for a subsidy, and roughly 1 million who buy their insurance outside of the exchanges. This means they have no government help paying for their premiums, their copays, and their deductibles.

As we prepare for these discussions, I have urged again that President Trump temporarily continue the cost-reduction payments through September so Congress can work on a short-term solution for stabilizing the individual markets in 2018. These cost-sharing reduction subsidies reduce copays, reduce deductibles, and reduce other out-of-pocket costs to help low-income Americans buy their health insurance on the exchanges.

As a reminder, the American Health Insurance Plans, and insurance premiums will increase by roughly 20 percent, according to the American Health Insurance Plans, by September 27, when insurance companies must make their decisions about the 2018 market.

In my opinion, any solution that Congress passes for a 2018 stabilization package would need to be small, bipartisan, and balanced. It should include funding for the cost-sharing reductions, but it also should include greater flexibility for States in approving health insurance policies which should reduce costs.

Now, it is reasonable to expect that if the President were to approve continuation of cost-sharing subsidies for August and September and if Congress, in September, should pass a bipartisan stabilization bill that includes cost-sharing for 1 year—that is 2018—it is reasonable to expect that the insurance companies in 2018 will lower their rates. They have told us—in fact, Oliver Wyman, an independent observer of healthcare, has told us that lack of funding for cost-sharing reductions would add 11 to 20 percent to premiums in 2018.

So if the President, over the next 2 months, and the Congress, over the next year, take steps to provide certainty that there will be cost-sharing subsidies, that some insurance companies to lower the premiums they have projected they will charge in 2018. In fact, many insurance companies have priced their rates for 2018 at two different levels—one with cost-sharing subsidies and without. It is important not only that the President improve temporary cost-sharing for August and September but that we, the Congress, in bipartisan way, find a way to approve it for at least 1 year so we can keep the premiums down.

Now, this is only one step in what we want to do about health insurance and about the larger question of healthcare.
costs so we will proceed step by step. A subsequent step will be to try to find a way to create a long-term, more robust individual insurance market, but for the short-term, our proposal is that by mid-September, we will see if we can agree on a way to stabilize the individual insurance market to keep premiums down and make affordable insurance available to all Americans. I thank the Presiding Officer. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, I am here to speak about something else, but let me take just a moment and thank my chairman for what he has done. I had the experience of serving on the HELP Committee with Chairman ALEXANDER and Ranking Member MURRAY when we did the Education bill last year.

Education is nearly as fraught a topic politically around here as healthcare, and what we saw as a thoughtful, regular-order process that was developed under Chairman ALEXANDER’s leadership was a very considerable piece of work with real effect.

Sometimes we agree on something on both sides of the aisle in this body because there is nothing to it. It is “National Peaches Week” or something, and everyone votes for that. But when it is something big and something consequential, that is where difficulties begin to emerge, and what the chairman was able to work in the committee was something big and something consequential on healthcare. To the end of my days in the Senate, I am going to remember that closing vote, when the clerk of the committee called the roll, and every single member of the HELP Committee voted in favor of the measure. It came out of the committee unanimously, and with that burst of energy, it came through the floor fine, and it passed the House without changes. It was just a remarkable piece of work. So I have seen what the HELP Committee can do under Chairman ALEXANDER and Ranking Member MURRAY, and I am filled with confidence that the process can be terrific there, and I am filled with good will toward a successful outcome.

I just think what the chairman has said is terrific, and I wanted to say a few words of appreciation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to take up an up to 17 minutes in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CLIMATE CHANGE

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Mr. President, what I would like to speak about is a new form of fossil fuel-funded climate denial spin that has just entered the climate debate. They are always up to something, and here is their latest. The Trump administration’s two great scientists, Scott Pruitt and Rick Perry, the Prick and Frack of climate denial, have called for a science showdown, where climate denial and climate science can have it out for once and for all—red team versus blue team. “Fossil fuel man” Pruitt has even called for the showdown to be peer reviewed. Well, what is obvious is that climate science has been peer reviewed all along. That is how it gets to be science—by going through and surviving the process of peer review by other scientists.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a letter to Administrator Pruitt from a wide range of scientific organizations pointing out to him this very fact, that climate science is called climate science because it has been through scientific peer review.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

JULY 31, 2017.

Hon. SCOTT PRUITT,
Administrator, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Washington, DC.

DEAR ADMINISTRATOR PRUITT: As leaders of professional scientific societies with our collective membership of hundreds of thousands of scientists, we are writing in response to your letter to have printed in the RECORD an expedited peer review of the scientific process whereby scientists and scientific teams are constantly challenging one another’s findings for robustness. The current scientific understanding of climate change is based on decades of such work, along with overarching, carefully evaluated assessments within the United States and internationally.

As a reflection of that work, 31 scientific societies last year released a letter, updated from 2016, to support scientific consensus on climate change. We urge you to give its text consideration, along with America’s Climate Choices, the work of our premier United States scientific body, the National Academy of Sciences.

Of course, climate science, like all sciences, is an ever-changing discipline: our knowledge is always advancing. Robust discussion about data interpretation, methodology, and findings are part of daily scientific discourse. That is how science progresses. However, the integrity of the scientific process cannot thrive when policymakers—regardless of party affiliation—use policy disagreements as a pretext to challenge scientific conclusions.

Given your interest in the state of climate science, we would welcome the opportunity to meet with you to discuss climate science, including which areas are at the frontiers of scientific knowledge and which are well-established because of thousands of studies from multiple lines of evidence.

We look forward to hearing from you, and your office may contact Lexi Shultz, Kasey White, or Joanne Carney to coordinate a meeting.

Sincerely,
Rush D. Holt, Ph.D., Chief Executive Officer, American Association for the Advancement of Sciences; Robert Gropp, Ph.D., Co-Executive Director, American Institute of Biological Sciences; Chris McIntee, Executive Director and Chair, American Physical Union; Ellen Bergery, Ph.D., Chief Executive Officer, American Society of Agronomists; Crop Science Society of America, Society of American Biologists; Brian Crother, Ph.D., President Elect, American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists; Crispin B. Taylor, Ph.D., Chief Executive Officer, American Society of Plant Biologists; Barry D. Nurssbaum, Ph.D., President, American Statistical Association; Olin E. Rhodes, Jr., Ph.D., President, Association of Ecosystem Research Centers.

Linda Duguay, Ph.D., President, Association for the Sciences of Limnology and Oceanography; Robin L. Chazdon, Ph.D., Executive Director, Association for Tropical Biology and Conservation; Katherine S. McCarter, Executive Director, Ecological Society of America; Vicki McConnell, Ph.D., Executive Director, Geological Society of America; Paul Foster, Ph.D., President, Organization of Biological Field Stations; Raymond Meija, Society for Mathematical Biology; Stephen L. Fromhold, Ph.D., President, Society of Systematic Biologists.

Mr. WHITEHOUSE. Climate denial, on the other hand, avoids peer review as if it were Kryptonite, so this call for peer review of the contest between climate science and climate denial is actually an invitation for the evil intent behind it and, of course, the stakes. How very risky and dangerous continuing to get this climate issue wrong is for our country.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD an op-ed written by John Holdren, until recently the President’s climate adviser, called “The perversion of ‘red-teaming’ climate science.”

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From bostonglobe.com, July 25, 2017]

The Perversity of ‘Red-Teaming’ Climate Science

(By John P. Holdren)

EPA administrator Scott Pruitt is reportdedly giving serious consideration to investig the taxpayers’ money in a “red team-blue team” effort to determine whether current scientific understandings about climate change are accurate. If actualized, this is what a “red team” made up of officials from government agencies with responsibilities related to climate would try to poke holes in mainstream climate science, while a similarly constituted “blue team” tries to defend the mainstream consensus against this critique. Supposedly, this process would shed new light on what is known and what is not about human influence on the global climate. But the argument that such a process would be helpful is some combination of naïve and disingenuous.

All of science works through the continua-ous publication of the many of key findings by essentially everybody working in a given field. This happens in part through the peer-review process that findings must survive before being published in a scientific journal. It happens far more widely through the scrutiny of the wider community of given field once the findings have been published. That scrutiny is intense, not least because scientists make their reputations in substantial part by providing recommendations for published findings of others. This is the essence of the cumulative and self-correcting nature of the scientific enterprise as a whole.

Precise science provides policy implications that appear to challenge the status quo in global energy supply, moreover, professional peer review provides scrutiny to which key climate-science findings have been subjected has far exceeded even the already pervasive and rigorous norms. It has been properly “red-teamed,” both by groups of avowed contrarians sponsored by right-wing groups and by the most qualified parts of the world’s scientific community. The right-wing’s “red team” efforts have consistently been characterized by brazen cherry-picking, misrepresentation of the findings of others, recirculation of long-discredited hypotheses, and invention of new ones destined to be discredited. Almost none of this material has survived to be published in the respectable professional literature.

Of course, the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change itself, which works under the auspices of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change, can be regarded as a “red team-blue team” operation, in which every conclusion must pass muster with a huge team of expert authors and reviewers from a wide variety of disciplines and nations (including from Saudi Arabia and other major oil producers inclined to be skeptical). The Basic Five messengers of climate change (in 1990, 1995, 2001, 2007, and 2013–14), each more emphatic than the last in its conclusions that human-produced greenhouse gases are changing global climate with ongoing and growing impacts on human well-being.

Climate-change science has likewise been reviewed regularly by committees of the US National Academy of Sciences, the United Kingdom’s Royal Society, the World Meteorological Organization, the American Geophysical Union, and many other reputable bodies, all of which have contributed to and confirmed the overwhelming consensus of knowledgeable experts on the fundamental points that really matter for policy: (1) The Earth’s climate is changing in ways not explainable by the known natural influences; (2) the dominant cause is the build-up of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere that has resulted from burning coal, oil, and natural gas, and from land-use change; (3) significant harm to human bodies and ecosystems from these changes is already occurring; (4) the harm will continue to grow for decades because of inertia in the climate system and society’s energy and land-use models; and (5) the future harm will be much smaller if the world’s nations take action soon, so you know that is going to be a fair contest between climate science and climate deniers when the group involved is a fossil-funded group that has compared climate scientists to the Unabomber. Of course you want to influence public opinion. So that is the first trick: Hide the polluter nonsense doesn’t have to face peer review. Their phony science doesn’t even have to be true. In fact, they don’t care whether it is true; indeed, I contend that some of them know it is not true and are engaged in deliberate, knowingly fraud. But, in any case, so great is the self-confidence at the point of this phony parallel science that the goal is political, not scientific.

What they want is for government—us—to let them keep polluting. Polluting with their product makes them big, big money, and they don’t want to stop. So the goal is not to enter the scientific debate on scientific terms. This is no quest for truth: this is a quest to influence public opinion. So the polluter nonsense doesn’t have to be scientifically equivalent to the fact that scientific study be enough to influence an uninformed public. The goal is to fool the public and mess with politics. That is how they keep the political pressure off having to clean up their act. Their battlefield is the public mind, and their goal is to pollute the public mind with false doubts about the real science.

The climate denial apparatus that Pruitt and Perry serve just needs to create the illusion that there is still scientific doubt, and it just has to create the illusion, the minds of a non-scientific audience—the average voter, people who don’t know any better and shouldn’t be expected to. To do this, they have set up an elaborate con game to help them foment this illusion that there is a real contest here.

Their first trick, of course, is to hide the hand of the funders who back this scheme behind innocent or respectable-sounding names. If people saw the hand of the Koch Industries behind this, well, the jig would be up, so they have to back front groups—dozens, indeed, of front groups. The front groups take nice, cozy words like “heritage” and “heartland” and “prosperity” and they slap these names onto the front of the front group.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD an article entitled “EPA is asking a climate denier think tank for help recruiting its ‘red team’” in this effort at the conclusion of my remarks.

This article points out that they are actually recruiting one of these phony front groups, the Heartland Institute, comparing climate scientists to the Unabomber, comparing climate scientists to the Unabomber, comparing climate scientists to the Unabomber, comparing climate scientists to the Unabomber, comparing climate scientists to the Unabomber. Of course you want to influence public opinion. So that is the first trick: Hide the polluter’s hand behind an innocent or respectable-sounding name.

The second trick is camouflage. They ape real science by setting up groups that are like real scientific organizations. So when the United Nations convenes the real Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, they put up a Nongovernmental International Panel on Climate Change, They ape scientific activities. If scientific organizations have conferences, they have conferences. If scientific organizations have colloquia, they have colloquia. If scientific organizations publish findings, they publish findings. The difference is, it is all phony. It is not real science; it is a masquerade designed to give the appearance of science without any of the rigor of peer review and the other attributes of real science. They even ape the publications of real science. I don’t have the chart with me, but there is a publication by the legitimate U.S. Global Change Research Program task force entitled “Global Climate Change Impacts in the United States.” That is for real. It is real science. Then there is a look-alike publication called “Addendum: Global Climate Change Impacts in the United States,” which was cooked up by the Koch brothers and CATO Institute—same print, same text, same color. It virtually is a masquerade of the real item. The first thing is to hide industry’s hand behind the front group, and the second is to mask propaganda activities in camouflage that resembles actual scientific activity without having to pass any tests of scientific activity. The last thing is to run the operation like a marketing campaign, since, well, that is what it is. You wouldn’t market soap in peer-reviewed scientific journals, would you? First of all, the journals wouldn’t publish it. Secondly, that is not your audience anyway. It is the same here. It doesn’t do these scoundrels any good to be publishing in peer-reviewed scientific journals, even if they could get their nonsense published there. The people who read scientific journals know better. That is not their audience, and they know that they will lose face in front of a scientific audience. They would shrivel up like the Wicked Witch. So they want to go right to the public with Madison Avenue-quality salesmanship and glossy messaging, marketing their dressed-up climate denial nonsense like you would market a new soap or spaghetti sauce. Go straight to TV, straight to talk radio, straight into the political debate.

The notion that the climate denial crowd now wants a scientific showdown is a hook, line and sinker. “No, you won’t have more time for the polluters—more time for the polluters. Think how long this imaginary process of preparation for climate denial “high noon” will take. Oh, they could spin this out for years. One thing you can bet is that game day will never come, but in the meantime, they have the craftily embedded lie out there that climate denial and climate science stand on an equal footing and just await peer review to decide between them, and now that lie can just hang out there, leaking its poison into the public debate.

“I have to ask: Who thinks this stuff up? They have made a new art form out of propaganda. Think what a schemer you have to be to think this stuff up. That is the kind of people we are dealing with here, and in this bizarro world, Frick and Frack hold high office. The problem is that there actually is a judge here. A real “high noon” will actually come. As the old saying goes, time will tell. When it comes to climate change, the laws of physics and chemistry work. The things that CO₂ concentrations do in the atmosphere are going to happen no matter what we say or believe about them. The laws of physics do not depend on political beliefs. The chemistry of what happens when seawater is exposed to more and more CO₂ is going to happen, and it will follow the laws of chemistry, not our opinions or beliefs.

What we humans say or what we believe or what we have been conned into believing by the climate denial scheme will not matter at all. Our views—our opinions—are not part of the equation. Fill one room with climate deniers and fill another room with climate scientists, and the same chemistry experiments will yield the same results in both rooms. Chemistry does not care about our opinions.

The way trees and animals and fish and insects and viruses and bacteria react to new temperatures and new levels of acidity and new environments we have no say in. The fossil fuel industry can cow westerners into silence or even con them into believing the industry’s climate denial nonsense, and the bark beetle will not care. It will not even know that there is a bug run. The bark beetle will just keep eating its way up the warming latitudes and altitudes and killing pine forests by the hundreds of square miles.

What science does for us is give us the ability, as humans, to understand the laws of science so that we can predict what will and will not happen. Science provides mankind with headlightso that we can look ahead and see what the future portends, but turning off those headlights by denying the facts, pretending what the facts are, so that we are not even looking out the windshield will not change what is ahead. Whatever is coming at us is still coming at us. We just will not see it in time to steer around it in order to minimize the collision or slow down and soften the impact. We will not have time because we will have given that time to the polluters. Time is what the Heartland Institute wants—more time for the polluters to make big money.

All of this lying, all of this science denial is actually, truly, an evil thing, and the cleverer it gets with these bank shot, faux “high noon” show-downs, the more evil it is. The people who are behind this are doing a very grievous wrong. They are dishonorable, dishonest, and disgraceful. Time will tell us just how wicked they are.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From ThinkProgress, July 25, 2017]

EPA Is Asking a Climate Denier Think Tank for Help Recruiting Its ’Red Team’ (By Erin Auel)

The Environmental Protection Agency has asked the Heartland Institute, a D.C.-based rightwing think tank that denies the human causes of climate change, to help identify scientists to join the the actual red team-blue team effort to “debate” the science of climate change, according to the Washington Examiner.

The move is part of EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt’s efforts to undercut established climate science within the agency. In an interview with Reuters earlier this month, Pruitt suggested the possibility of creating a red team to provide “a robust discussion” on climate science and determine whether humans are contributing to warming.

The Heartland Institute offers a model of what the EPA red team might look like. Their contrarian NGO, the National Panel on Climate Change—often referred to as a red team—publishes regular volumes of a report called “Climate Change Reconsidered.”

Heartland communications director Jim Lakely told the Washington Examiner the red team exercises to critique climate science are necessary “to critically examine what has become alarmist dogma rather than a sober evaluation of climate science for many years.” But, as many scientists and experts have noted, the peer review process for scientific publications already requires and facilitates rigorous examination. For years, the Heartland Institute has spread misinformation about climate change and attacked the credibility of climate scientists. In 2012, the group launched a billboard campaign with the photographs of Ted Kaczynski (the Unabomber), Charles Manson, and Osama bin Laden, saying those men “still believe in global warming.” Heartland’s website at the time declared “The most prominent advocates of global warming aren’t scientists. They are murderers, tyrants, and madmen.”

More recently, the group announced plans to send a report titled “Why Scientists Disagree About Global Warming” to every K-12 teacher and college professor in America. The report incorrectly denies humans’ contributions to rising global temperatures. The group also recently released a video titled “Are Global Warming Claims Causing Global Temperatures to Rise?”

Pruitt has adopted much of the misinformation that Heartland promotes. Since being confirmed, Pruitt has said he wants to question the science behind climate change and repeated climate denier talking points claiming that humans are not the main contributors to a warming planet.

And Heartland experts have already had an active role in Trump’s administration. Dan Simmons, currently an assistant to Energy Secretary Rick Perry, is still listed as an author on Heartland’s website. Myron Ebell, a noted climate denier, led Trump’s EPA transition team and voiced concerns over environmental regulations. In 2014, leaked documents from the group showed the Koch family foundations were one of the largest funders of organizations that deny humans’ role in causing climate change and opposed policies to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

It remains to be seen who will staff the EPA’s red team. NYU professor Steve Koonin, a scientist who formerly worked with the Bush administration, is reported to be the top contender. In 2014, Koonin wrote a Wall Street Journal op-ed describing the ways in which climate science is not settled, which included the extent to which humans are causing climate change, a no-frequent talking point among Trump administration officials.

In April, Koonin published another op-ed in the Wall Street Journal, suggesting that a Red Team/Blue Team would be “a step toward resolving . . . differing perceptions of climate science.”

CLIMATE DISRUPTION

Mr. MERKLEY. Mr. President, climate disruption is a seminal challenge of our time, and it is affecting so many things that we value. In response, communities across the globe are transforming their energy economies—from increasing the energy efficiency of buildings, vehicles, and appliances to displacing a carbon-polluting fossil-fuel-energy economy with a renewable and clean-energy economy.

How much do you know about the changes under way? Let’s find out. Welcome to episode 4 of the Senate Climate Disruption Quiz.

Here we go. First question: Atmospheric carbon dioxide is at its highest level in at least how many years? Is it 88 years? Is it the highest level in the last 300,000 years? Is it the highest level in the last 800,000 years, or is it the highest level in the last 80 million years?

Think about your answer.

The correct answer is C, 800,000 years.

In September 2016, we reached a historic milestone. The carbon dioxide readings for the planet reached 400 parts per million. For perspective, before the industrial revolution, before we started burning fossil fuels in massive quantities, the number was about 280 parts per million.

Here is something that is even scarier. The rate is going up faster and faster. In 1965 and 1975, it was going up at about 1 part per million per year. Ten years after the oil embargo, it was 2 parts per million per year, and the last 2 years, it has gone up at a rate of 3 parts per million per year.

As the human civilization, we have to turn this around. We have to not only slow it down, but we have to turn it around and lower those levels of carbon dioxide if we are going to save our blue-green planet.
Question No. 2, which Governor announced that he or she will hold a global climate summit here in America next year?

Is the answer Jerry Brown? Is the answer Governor Rick Snyder of Michigan, Governor Susana Martinez of New Mexico, or Governor Rick Scott of Florida?

The answer—now that you have decided which one you think is right—is A. Governor Jerry Brown of California. He announced on July 6 that he will bring 100 mayors, business leaders, and others from around the world in September 2018 for a summit to “combat the existential threat of climate change.”

This meeting is being viewed as a very significant undertaking to keep the conversation going forward, because in the absence of the United States being deeply involved in the Paris Agreement, the United States has to be involved in many other ways. This issue is too big, and the challenge is too great for us to be sitting it out.

Let’s turn to question No. 3. The world’s first floating wind farm is being constructed off the coast of which country? Is it Germany? Is it on the coast of the United States? Is it Scotland? Or is it France?

I might point out that, when we see a floating wind farm, we are talking about a wind farm in which the sea floor is deep enough that it can’t be anchored; that is, the turbine cannot be anchored on the sea floor. There is a hint, a little clue.

Do you have your answer?

The correct answer is C, Scotland. The Peterhead wind farm, off the coast of Scotland, is using revolutionary technology to harvest wind power in waters that are too deep for wind turbines to be anchored on the seabed.

The wind farm’s first turbine was just towed into place. Once finished, it will include five 6-megawatt turbines. By the way, those are much larger turbines than the ones we have on land in the United States. The blades will be 246 feet long. Together, the group of turbines will be able to power 20,000 homes by the end of the installation.

Maybe we will see some of those appearing off the coast of the United States in the future.

Let’s turn to question No. 4. Glacier National Park in 1910 had 150 glaciers. How many are there today? Are there 200? Are there 150? Are there 25? Or are there 10?

What is the answer?

The answer is C, 25.

Here we are in just a century, and we have gone from 150 glaciers in Glacier National Park to only 25 left. According to Dan Fagre, a USGS research ecologist, “within 20 years, the bulk of the remaining glaciers will be too small to be called active glaciers.”

When these glaciers are gone, it will have a significant impact on Montana and its economy. They typically put off a significant amount of water in late August and early September. They feed streams that would otherwise dry up. They provide cool water that plays a critical role in the life cycles of both insects and fish. If you are planning to see the glaciers in Glacier National Park, go soon.

Let’s turn to question No. 5. Tesla, the electric car company, is set to install the world’s largest grid-scale battery in which country? Are they going to install that battery in China, in Australia, in Mexico, or in Spain?

If you had time to ponder the question and develop your answer, the answer is not China, which you might expect because China is so large and is so engaged in renewable energy today, nor is it Mexico or Spain. It is Australia. Australia has embraced renewable energy. In 2016, renewable sources produced more than 17 percent of the country’s electricity. South Australia has raced ahead of the rest of the country in embracing renewables, particularly wind power.

Until now, it has not been able to adequately store the energy generated by the region’s wind farms. Later this year, Tesla will install the world’s largest lithium-ion grid-scale battery and pair it with one of the wind farms, in a major leap forward for large-scale renewable energy use.

The idea is that the 129-megawatt-hour battery, which is capable of putting out 100 megawatts of power at a time, will help stabilize South Australia’s electrical grid and provide backup power if there is a shortfall.

More and more, as we have wind on the grid and as we have solar power on the grid, batteries are being turned to as a strategy to even out the flow of electricity.

There you have it, folks. Five questions in episode 4 of the Senate Climate Disruption Quiz. They are questions ripped right from the headlines. Facts on the ground are changing fast, as climate disruption increases and communities across the globe are responding. We are racing the clock. There is no time to spare.

Stay engaged in the fight to save our beautiful blue-green planet. In the near future, I will bring you episode 5 of the Senate Climate Disruption Quiz.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll. The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

POLICY JUSTIFICATION

The Government of Iraq has requested a possible sale of Follow-On Technical Support... to specialize in customized temperature regulation systems, including HVAC, central air, and geothermal heat and cooling, in addition to metal fabrication and sheet metal installations. In the State of Maine, where winter temperatures make home heating especially critical, Haley’s Metal Shop’s 24-hour emergency service helps keep the heat on in Maine homes.

I applaud Haley’s Metal Shop for its emphasis on employee development and supporting local communities. Haley’s Metal Shop employs over 40 people, including four father-son pairs. They support their staff by providing on-the-job training to help employees develop new and important skills in this technical field. Haley’s Metal Shop has made it their commitment to give back to the community by contributing to various organizations over the years, such as the United Way of York County, Biddeford’s Community Bike Center, the Maine Cancer Foundation, and the Biddeford Free Clinic, among others. These commendable efforts both in the shop and in the community help make Haley’s Metal Shop a great part of Biddeford and of Maine.

I am pleased to join the Biddeford community in congratulating the Haley family and the dedicated employees of Haley’s Metal Shop for this remarkable centennial achievement. I look forward to following their continued growth, and I thank them for their innovation, entrepreneurship, and hard work serving communities in the State of Maine.

In 2003, Dave served as mayor of the city of Lansing. While mayor, he inspired and led what is known as the “Lansing Works! Keep GM!” movement. Dave brought together community leaders in government, business, and labor and convinced General Motors to stay and invest over $1 billion in the Lansing area. This effort saved thousands of jobs and prevented a crisis in the region. Dave’s leadership serves as a model of teamwork for leaders and communities across our country. His life represents just one example of Dave’s leadership.

After serving in the Michigan House of Representatives, Dave was elected mayor of the city of Lansing in 1993. While mayor, he inspired and led what is known as the “Lansing Works! Keep GM!” movement. Dave brought together community leaders in government, business, and labor and convinced General Motors to stay and invest over $1 billion in the Lansing area. This effort saved thousands of jobs and prevented a crisis in the region. Dave’s leadership serves as a model of teamwork for leaders and communities across the country.

In today’s divisive political climate, Dave Hollister represents the very best of public service. He has selflessly served in State and local government, and with his tireless work, he has worked tirelessly to do what is right for people. Able to bring people together to forge solutions on the most difficult problems, he is a community organizer in the truest sense of the word.

I am pleased to commend LTC Daniel S. Artino for his dedication to duty and service as an Army legislative fellow and congressional budget liaison for the Assistant Secretary of the Army. Dan was recently selected to command an Apache battalion and will soon depart for Fort Bliss, TX.

A native of Stow, OH, Dan was commissioned as an aviation officer after his graduation from the U.S. Military Academy, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in international relations. He also earned a master’s degree in legislative affairs from George Washington University.

Dan has a broad range of assignments during his Army career. He has led troops as an attack platoon leader, a headquarters company commander, and as the commander of an attack reconnaissance company flying Apache helicopters. He has served overseas in Germany and deployed several times into combat in support of operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. Dan’s leadership has been felt from the platoon to the brigade level.

In 2015, Dan was selected to be an Army congressional fellow, and my office was fortunate to host him. For the next year, Dan served the State of Mississippi and the Nation admirably. In his subsequent role as congressional budget liaison, Dan ensured the Army’s budget positions were well represented to the Senate and House Committees on Appropriations.

I have enjoyed the benefit of Dan’s counsel over the past 3 years. It is a pleasure to recognize and commend Dan for his service to this country and to wish him and his wife, Cathy, all the best as they continue their journey in the U.S. Army.

Additional statements:

TRIBUTE TO DAVID HOLLISTER

- Ms. STABENOW. Mr. President, today I wish to pay special tribute to my longtime friend and former legislative colleague, David Hollister. On August 14, 2017, the city of Lansing will be renaming their city hall the “David C. Hollister City Hall,” a very fitting tribute to this dedicated public servant.

Over the years, Dave Hollister has been a mentor, a colleague, and a friend to me. I first met Dave when I was a student at Michigan State University, working at the Cristo Rey Community Center in Lansing. As a leader, he encouraged my first run for office: the Ingham County Board of Commissioners. I later served with him for over a decade in the Michigan House of Representatives and have worked closely with him over the years in various public service capacities.

In today’s divisive political climate, Dave Hollister represents the very best of public service. He has selflessly served in State and local government, and with his tireless work, he has worked tirelessly to do what is right for people. Able to bring people together to forge solutions on the most difficult problems, he is a community organizer in the truest sense of the word.

Dave Hollister is not only a fitting tribute to him, but a tribute to the kind of public service his life represents.

After serving in the Michigan House of Representatives, Dave was elected mayor of the city of Lansing in 1993. While mayor, he inspired and led what is known as the “Lansing Works! Keep GM!” movement. Dave brought together community leaders in government, business, and labor and convinced General Motors to stay and invest over $1 billion in the Lansing area. This effort saved thousands of jobs and prevented a crisis in the region. Dave’s leadership serves as a model of teamwork for leaders and communities across the country.

Keeping General Motors in Lansing is just one example of Dave’s leadership. After serving as mayor, he was appointed director of the Michigan Department of Labor and Economic Growth in 2003. Subsequently, Dave served as president and CEO of Prima Civitas, a nonprofit economic and community development organization.
based in East Lansing. Congratulations to my dear friend, David Hollister, on receiving this special distinction from the city of Lansing. It is my hope that the newly renamed city hall will serve as a lasting testament to your brand of public service to the people of the city of Lansing and the great State of Michigan.

TRIBUTE TO TAYLIN ALBRECHT

Mr. ROUNDS. Mr. President, today I recognize Taylin Albrecht, an intern in my Washington, DC, office, for all the hard work she has done for me, my staff, and the State of South Dakota.

Taylin is a graduate of DeSmet High School in DeSmet, SD. Currently, she is attending South Dakota State University in Brookings, SD, where she studies human development and family studies. Mr. UDALL. A bill was introduced that would end the Federal prohibition on marijuana and start to end the War on Drugs. For far too long we have approached drug use and addiction as something we can jail ourselves out of. It is beyond clear that that approach has failed. It is time we start to address the persistent and systemic racial bias that has plagued our criminal justice system, and adopt policies that will move us forward, not backward. It is time to de-schedule marijuana.

Since 2001, arrests for marijuana have increased across the Country and now account for over 50 percent of all drug arrests in the United States. The Justice Department, conducted a study of over 8 million marijuana arrests between 2001 and 2010. It found that 88 percent of those were for marijuana possession. Alarming, the study also found that African Americans are 3.73 times more likely to be arrested for marijuana possession than their white peers, even though they use marijuana at similar rates.

Over the last five years, States have begun to legalize marijuana in an effort to push back on the failed War on Drugs and combat the illicit drug market. Currently, eight States and the District of Columbia have legalized marijuana and more States are taking up measures to follow suit. We know from the experiences of States that have already legalized marijuana that we will gain far more than we lose—these States have seen increased revenues and decreased rates of serious crime, and a reallocation of resources toward more productive uses. In Colorado, arrest rates have decreased and State revenues have increased. Washington saw a 10 percent decrease in violent crime over the three-year period following legalization.

However, the Federal government still treats marijuana as an illegal substance. It is time for the Federal government to end the Federal prohibition of marijuana.

Today, I introduced the Marijuana Justice Act, a bill that would remove marijuana from the list of controlled substances, thereby ending the Federal prohibition. The bill would also automatically expunge records for people who were convicted of Federal marijuana use and possession offenses. We must help people with criminal records get back up on their feet and obtain jobs, and expunging their records is an important step in that process.

The legislation would allow individuals currently serving time in Federal prison for marijuana offenses to petition a court for a resentencing. One of the greatest tragedies from the Fair Sentencing Act was that it did not provide retroactive relief to individuals serving time under the old crack and powder cocaine sentencing laws. The Marijuana Justice Act would allow people currently serving time for a marijuana offense to seek immediate relief.

The bill would also use Federal funds to encourage States where marijuana is illegal to legalize the drug if they disproportionately arrest or incarcerate low income individuals or people... of color. Too often drug laws are enforced disproportionately against minorities and the poor. This is unacceptable and belies our values.

Finally, the Marijuana Justice Act would establish a community reinvestment fund, which would invest money in communities most affected by the War on Drugs. Building new libraries, supporting job training, and investing in community centers will improve public safety and is the right thing to do after decades of failed drug policies.

The Marijuana Justice Act is a vicious step in acknowledging, that after 40 years, it is time to end the War on Drugs. It is time to stop our backward thinking, which has only led to backward results. It is time to lead with our hearts, our heads, and with policy that actually works.

Today, we introduced legislation that is incredibly important to combating sex trafficking. The Senate also passed a resolution today by unanimous consent to provide information to the Justice Department that we did in the U.S.
Senate regarding sex trafficking. This is an important day in pushing back.

Let me talk about this for a second in personal terms. Imagine, if you will,
that your daughter is missing. You do everything you can do to find her. Finally, you see her picture on the inter-et, and she is being sold for sex. That could be totally true to you, but it is very real. Unfortunately, it is happening across our country.

Families in Ohio and in your State have experienced this nightmare situation. Let me tell you about Kubili Pride. Kubili Pride gave powerful tesmony before the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations in the Senate. Ms. Pride said her daughter had been missing for 9 months when she found her picture on the top website for commercial sex activity
backpage.com. She was actually glad to have found her daughter. So she called backpage.com and said: That is my daughter. She has been missing for 9 months. She is 14 years old. Thank you for taking down the ad.

Backpage.com said to her: Did you pay for the ad?

She said: No. It is my 14-year-old daughter.

They said: We are not going to take down the ad. You didn't pay for it.

Imagine if this were your daughter.
Imagine how you would feel.

These traffickers are using the internet to sell girls and women. Congress has a responsibility to act. We have responsibility to act because human trafficking is now becoming a national crisis.

Human trafficking, including sex trafficking, is a $150 billion-a-year industry. That makes it the second biggest criminal enterprise in the world, only behind the drug trade. And this ruthless, corrupt industry is growing significantly. Why? Because of the internet.

website for commercial sex activity
backpage.com. She was actually glad to have found her daughter. So she called backpage.com and said: That is my daughter. She has been missing for backpage after they were bought and sold on their website for sex. They, too, argued that backpage made sex trafficking easier. This case reached the First Circuit Court of Appeals, but backpage was once again spared of any legal ramifications because of the Communications Decency Act, specifically section 230 of that law—the statute creates conflict to giving third-party providers blanket immunity from crimes committed through their website.

Despite its ruling, the court recognized that the threat of backpage appearing to profit from online prostitution but maintained they couldn’t do anything about it because the law protected these acts. The court opinion stated that in order to fix the problem, “the remedy is through legislation, not litigation.” That is who we are. We are the legislators. The court of appeals said: Congress, do your job.

Numerous judicial decisions have suggested that Congress must act, before we bring justice to the victims and families of online sex trafficking. That is my intention in introducing this legislation today. I believe that we need to have free internet. All of us do. I believe that the Communications Decency Act is a well-intentioned law that has an important purpose. But the law was not intended to protect those who willingly facilitate illegal conduct, such as sex trafficking, and it wasn’t intended to protect backpage.com. That is why today I, along with a number of my colleagues from both sides of the aisle, have introduced this bill called the Stop Enabling Sex Traffickers Act. It clarifies section 230 of the Communications Decency Act to ensure that websites that knowingly facilitate sex trafficking can be held liable and the victims can get justice. It is very narrow. You have to knowingly be involved in supporting, assisting, and facilitating sex trafficking. This will not be a broad net.

The Stop Enabling Sex Traffickers Act puts in place three narrowly crafted and commonsense reforms.

First, it allows victims to seek justice against websites that knowingly facilitate crimes against them.

Second, it eliminates the Federal liability protections for websites that assist, support, or facilitate a violation of Federal sex trafficking laws—laws already on the books.

Finally, it amends State law enforcement—not just the Department of Justice—to take legal action if these businesses violate Federal sex trafficking laws. Forty-seven attorneys general asked for this.

The internet revolutionized illegal sex trafficking, and Federal law has not kept pace. It is time for this 21-year-old law to be brought into this century. The Stop Enabling Sex Traffickers Act is legislation our courts have been calling for, our attorneys general have been calling for, and most importantly, what victims and their families have been insisting that we do. Again, this law was never intended to protect sex traffickers who prey on the most innocent and vulnerable among us. This narrowly crafted bill gives law enforcement the tools they need to go after criminals who traffic women and children online for sex.

There are groups who have been critical of this effort to hold backpage accountable and stop this online exploitation. They have suggested that this bipartisan bill could impact mainstream websites and service providers. But it is the outliers out there. That is false. Our bill does not amend, and thus preserves, the Communications Decency Act’s Good Samaritan provision. This provision protects good actors who proactively block and screen for offensive material and thus shields them from any frivolous lawsuits. That is in the legislation and needs to be in there.

This bipartisan legislation preserves internet freedom, while holding those who actively facilitate online sex trafficking accountable. I recently visited the Ranch of Opportunity in Washington Court House. OH. This is a place of hope for girls between ages 13 and 18 to find healing and recovery during a residential treatment program. Many of girls at the ranch, I am told, have been victims of sex trafficking. As I heard heart-breaking stories from these girls who have had their most basic human rights stripped from them, backpage came up. As I said earlier, it almost always happens when we ask back the horrors they had to endure. What we can do and what this legislation will do is bring justice to these victims and their families.

I am proud to stand with my 20, now 25, bipartisan colleagues, as well as 18 anti-human sex trafficking advocacy groups and law enforcement organizations around this country, to support this legislation as we fight against this abhorrent evil.

In a letter of support, the president and CEO of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children said: “This bill will help ensure justice for child sex trafficking victims and clarify remedies available to civil attorneys and State attorneys general to assist victims in holding everyone responsible who participated in their trafficking.”

That is what it is about. It is about securing justice for those who have had their most basic human rights taken away, and it is about protecting vulnerable women and children. Victims of sex trafficking know evil far worse than many of us can ever imagine. The trauma they go through is unbelievable. We owe it to them to fix flaws in the justice system that allow people complicit in these crimes to profit from human misery and suffering. The Stop Enabling Sex Traffickers Act will do that.

Thank you, Mr. President.

By Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. CASEY, and Mr. COONS):

S. 1694. A bill to improve quality and accountability for educator preparation programs; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, we know that the quality of teachers and principals are two of the most important in-school factors related to student achievement. Yet the pipeline into the profession has been neglected. If we want to improve our schools, it is essential that we invest in the professional preparation of teachers, principals, and other educators. As such, today, I am reintroducing the Educator Preparation Reform Act with my colleagues, Senators Casey and Coons to ensure that the Federal government continues to be a partner in addressing this critical national need.

Today, we are facing a crisis in education. According to a research brief from Learning Policy Institute, we have seen dramatic declines in enrollment in teacher preparation programs—an estimated 35 percent decline between 2009 and 2014. We also continue to see high rates of attrition among educators. If these trends continue, there will be an estimated gap of more than 100,000 between the number of teaching positions open and the number of teachers available to be hired annually through 2025.

The impact of these shortages falls the hardest on our most vulnerable students in our highest need communities. Rhode Island is no exception. Providence, our largest school district, is facing an acute shortage of teachers certified to teach English language learners. My home State has also reported shortages in special education, science, math, and school nurses.

We cannot solve this problem without improving both teacher and principal preparation. We need to make sure that our educator preparation programs are worthy of the professionals entering the field and the students they will serve. That is why it is more important than ever that we enact the Educator Preparation Reform Act.

Our legislation builds on the success of the Teacher Quality Partnership Program, which I helped author in the 1998 reauthorization of the Higher Education Act. It continues the partnership between high need school districts, institutions of higher education, and educator preparation programs to reform pre-service programs based on current needs of learners. Among the key changes are specific attention and emphasis on principals and the addition of a residency program for new principals. Improving instruction is a team effort, with principals at the forefront. This bill will allow teacher preparation with principal preparation. The Educator Preparation Reform Act will also allow partnerships to develop preparation programs for other areas of instructional need, such as for school librarians, counselors, or other academic support professionals.

The bill streamlines the accountability and reporting requirements for... teacher preparation programs to provide greater transparency on key quality measures such as admissions standards, requirements for clinical practice, placement of graduates, retention in the field of teaching, and teacher performance, including student-learning outcomes, program completers, and certification rates, and provide a timeline for improvement. States would be encouraged to close programs that do not improve.

We have been fortunate to work with many stakeholders on this legislation. Organizations that have endorsed the Educator Preparation Reform Act include: the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, American Association of State Colleges and Universities, Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities, Council for Christian Colleges and Universities, Higher Education Consortium for Special Education, Hispanic Association of Colleges and Universities, National Association of Elementary School Principals, National Association of Secondary School Principals, National Association of State Directors of Special Education, National Disability Rights Network, National Network of State Teachers of the Year, Public Advocacy for Kids, Rural School and Community Trust, and the Teacher Education Division of the Council for Exceptional Children.

I look forward to working to incorporate this legislation into the upcoming reauthorization of the Higher Education Act. I urge my colleagues to join us in this effort and support this legislation.

SUBMITTED RESOLUTIONS

SENATE RESOLUTION 237—TO AUTHORIZATE THE PRODUCTION OF RECORDS BY THE PERMANENT SUBCOMMITTEE ON INVESTIGATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE ON HOMELAND SECURITY AND GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS

Mr. MCCONNELL (for himself and Mr. SCHUMER) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, on behalf of myself and the distinguished Democratic leader, Mr. SCHUMER, I send to the desk a resolution on documentary production by the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, and ask for its immediate consideration.

Mr. President, earlier this year the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations of the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs conducted an investigation into Internet sex trafficking. After completing that investigation, the Subcommittee referred its staff reports and findings to the United States Department of Justice for additional investigation. The Subcommittee has received a request from the Department seeking access to records that the Subcommittee obtained during the investigation.

In keeping with the Senate’s practice under its rules, this resolution would authorize the Chairman and Ranking Minority Member of the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, acting jointly, to provide records, obtained by the Subcommittee in the course of its investigation, in response to this request and requests from other Federal or State government entities and officials with a legitimate need for the records.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the material of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the text of the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. RES. 237

Whereas, the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations of the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs conducted an investigation into Internet sex trafficking;

Whereas, the Subcommittee has received a request from a federal law enforcement agency for access to records of the Subcommittee’s investigation;

PRO BONO WORK TO EMPower AND REPRESent ACT OF 2017

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be discharged from further consideration of S. 717 and the Senate proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 717) to promote pro bono legal services as a critical way in which to empower survivors of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking who might not otherwise know how to seek advice and protection.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Pro Bono Work to Empower and Represent Act of 2017” or the "POWER Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Extremely high rates of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking exist at the local, State, and national levels and such violence or behavior harms the most vulnerable members of our society.

(2) According to a study commissioned by the Department of Justice, nearly 25 percent of women suffer from domestic violence during their lifetime.

(3) Proactive efforts should be made available in all forums to provide pro bono legal services and eliminate the violence that destroys lives.

(4) A variety of factors cause domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking, and a variety of solutions at the local, State, and national levels are necessary to combat such violence or behavior.

(5) According to the National Network to End Domestic Violence, which conducted a census including almost 1,700 assistance programs, over the course of 1 day in September 2014, more than 10,000 requests for services, including legal representation, were not met.

(6) Pro bono assistance can help fill this need by providing not only legal representation, but also access to emergency shelter, transportation, and childcare.

(7) Research studies have demonstrated that the provision of legal assistance to victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking reduces the probability of recidivism and helps survivors move forward.

(8) Legal representation increases the possibility of successfully obtaining a protective order against an attacker, which prevents further mental and physical injury to a victim and his or her family, as demonstrated by a study demonstrating that 87 percent of victims represented by an attorney were able to obtain a protective order, whereas only 32 percent of victims without an attorney were able to obtain one.

(9) The American Bar Association Model Rules include commentary stating that “every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, has a responsibility to provide legal services to those unable to pay, and personal involvement in the problems of those disadvantaged can be one of the most rewarding experiences in the life of a lawyer”.

(10) As representatives of the Department of Justice, the duty of the Special Attorneys to the POWER Act is to present “equal and impartial justice to all its citizens”, which should include, especially, survivors of domestic violence, dating violence, and stalking who might not otherwise know how to seek advice and protection.

(11) As Federal lawyers who have knowledge of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking in their localities, United States Attorneys should encourage other lawyers to provide pro bono resources in an effort to help victims of such violence or behavior escape the cycle of abuse.

A dedicated army of pro bono attorneys focused on this mission will inspire others to devote efforts to this cause and will raise awareness of the scourge of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking throughout the country.

(12) Communities, by providing awareness of pro bono legal services and assistance to victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking, will empower those survivors to move forward with their lives.

SEC. 3. U.S. ATTORNEYS TO PROMOTE EMPOWERMENT EVENTS.

(a) In General.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, and not less often than once each calendar year thereafter, each United States Attorney, or his or her designee, for each judicial district shall lead not less than 1 public event in partnership with a State, local, tribal, or territorial domestic violence service provider orcoalition, or a State or local volunteer lawyer project, promoting pro bono legal services as a critical way in which to empower survivors of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking, who might not otherwise know how to seek advice and protection.

(b) Districts Containing Indian Tribes and Tribal Organizations.—During each 3-year period, a United States Attorney, or his or her designee, for a judicial district that contains an Indian tribe or tribal organization shall lead not less than 1 public event promoting pro bono legal services in partnership with a State, local, tribal, or territorial domestic violence service provider or coalition, or an Indian tribe or tribal organization.

SEC. 4. REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.

(a) Definitions.—In this section:

(1) have discretion as to the design, organization, and implementation of the public event required under subsection (b); and

(2) in conducting a public event under subsection (a), seek to maximize the local impact of the event and the provision of access to the quality pro bono legal services by survivors of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

(b) REQUIREMENTS.—Each United States Attorney shall—

(1) have discretion as to the design, organization, and implementation of the public event required under subsection (b); and

(2) in conducting a public event under subsection (a), seek to maximize the local impact of the event and the provision of access to the quality pro bono legal services by survivors of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

SEC. 4. REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.

(a) In General.—Not later than October 30 of each year, each United States Attorney shall submit to the Attorney General a report detailing each public event conducted under section 3 during the previous fiscal year.

(b) Report to Congress.—

(1) (In General.)—Not later than January 1 of each year, the Attorney General shall submit to Congress a compilation and summary of each report received under subsection (a) for the previous fiscal year.

(2) REQUIREMENT.—Each comprehensive report submitted under paragraph (1) shall include an analysis of how each public event meets the goals set forth in this Act, as well as suggestions on how to improve future public events.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

VISIT WITH HIS DIVINE HOLINESS HARIPRASAD SWAMIJI MAHARAJ AT THE JAIN TEMPLE OF CHICAGO ON AUGUST 12TH

HON. RAJA KRISHNAMOORTHI OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 1, 2017

Mr. KRISHNAMOORTHI. Mr. Speaker, today I honor His Divine Holiness Hariprasad Swamiji Maharaj, spiritual leader and founder of the Yogi Divine Society—a Hindu spiritual and humanitarian charitable organization—as he makes a historic visit to Yogi Divine Society members and devotees across North America.

The Yogi Divine Society is a global not for profit organization founded in 1974 that encourages all races, religions, and genders to lead enriched and harmonious lives. With over 500 educational and cultural centers worldwide, the Yogi Divine Society is devoted to working on issues like the environment, youth development, spiritual education, and health care.

His Divine Holiness Hariprasad Swami Ji Maharaj has dedicated his life to the principle of Atmiyata (Spiritual Affinity with one and all). He became a Sadhu (religious devotee) in 1965 and was made diksha (being appointed saint) by his spiritual educator Guruhari Yogiji Maharaj. His drive for global harmony led him to found the Yogi Divine Society. Through his work, his Holiness strives to promote humanity, peace, and understanding amongst the people of the world.

Every time I visit the volunteers and members of the Yogi Divine Society, I am reminded of the incredible virtues that the Society promotes not only to Americans but to people around the world. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to support their work and their devotion to creating a more welcoming and understanding world.

HON. MAXINE WATERS OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 1, 2017

Ms. MAXINE WATERS of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise to highlight Robert “Ian” Maloney, a May 2017 graduate of Georgetown Preparatory School and a newly accepted member of the Brown University class of 2021. Last year, I had the great pleasure of speaking at Georgetown Preparatory School about the call to serve and to give back to the community.

I accepted the invitation to speak at that school because Ian reached out and asked me to do so. Ian is a remarkable young man whom I have known since his birth. Ian was President of the Black Student Association. He is also a member of the National Honor Society and a National Hispanic Scholar, and he is passionate about serving others and giving back. He is committed to social justice and drawing attention to the scourge of homelessness.

Ian asked me to speak at Georgetown Preparatory School because he had made a promise to the school’s Headmaster, Mr. Jeff Jones. Mr. Jones was the school’s first African-American Headmaster and Interim President, and a leader who fostered diversity. At the time that Ian requested that I speak, Mr. Jones was awaiting a heart transplant at Cedars-Sinai Hospital in my Congressional District. Sadly, Mr. Jones would die two months after I spoke. However, several days before he had passed, he called to wish Ian continuing success in his studies and called on him to carry the torch and to continue to serve others.

Mr. Speaker, Ian wishes to honor the call and the memory of his Headmaster, Mr. Jeff Jones. Ian is a very special young man, and I wish him success in his academic endeavors. I truly believe that he has a very bright future ahead and that he will continue to give back to his community and make a positive difference in the world.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. SAM GRAVES OF MISSOURI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 1, 2017

Mr. GRAVES of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, on July 26, 2017, I missed a series of Roll Call votes. Had I been present, I would have voted “YEA” on Nos. 436, 437, and 438.

IN HONOR OF JOHN CHRISTOPHER LAMONICA

HON. BARBARA COMSTOCK OF VIRGINIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 1, 2017

Mrs. COMSTOCK. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take a moment to commemorate the life of Mr. John Christopher Lamonica. Mr. Lamonica’s career in broadcast journalism is a catalogue of the major events of 20th century history. From Central Asia to the Middle East to Southern Africa; from the secret nuclear cities of Siberia to New Orleans during Hurricane Katrina; he used facts to tell stories with moral truths.

Originally from Rye, New York, Mr. Lamonica attended Georgetown University’s School of Foreign Service. In 1979, he became an Adjunct Fellow at the Center for Strategic and International Studies. He cut his teeth as a consultant for Henry Kissinger and became a newsman with Ted Koppel, working for decades as an investigative producer for ABC News Nightline. In 2006 he took the legacy of journalism from that program with him to Discovery, where he produced cutting-edge documentaries with Mr. Koppel on subjects ranging from the history of race relations in America to surviving cancer. Mr. Lamonica continued that work as an executive producer at Al Jazeera America.

The sum total of years spent away from his family in Russia and Iran and some of the most dangerous places on earth rewarded Mr. Lamonica with numerous National Emmys, several Dupont-Columbia and Peabody awards, the Overseas Press Club Edward R. Murrow Award, and the Global Health Council Excellence in Media Award. In 1987, he earned the Benton Fellowship in broadcast journalism from the University of Chicago. But what meant the most to Mr. Lamonica was that it can be said of him that he was a great father, the best grandfather, and, quite simply, a good man.

In addition to his journalistic endeavors, Mr. Lamonica continuously gave back to our community. His philanthropic efforts included his involvement with the Knights of Columbus, HOPE in Northern Virginia and the Zambia Orphans of AIDS, and the St. Peter Claver Society.

Mr. Lamonica died peacefully in his bed at home in Virginia on March 13, 2016, after battling cancer for nearly a year. He is survived by his wife, Teresa; her son; their three children; and four grandchildren, who still miss the man they called “Papa Jay.”

Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me in celebrating the life of, and bidding farewell to Jay Lamonica. May he rest in peace, and his family be comforted.

Mr. WEBSTER of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I had to miss today’s votes on July 28, 2017, because I had a pre-scheduled meeting and briefing at the United States Air Force Academy. Also, I cast the same votes when each of these bills was considered under suspension on 7/24/17.

Had I been present, I would have voted “YEA” on Roll Call No. 437, and “YEA on Roll Call No. 438.”
RECOGNIZING THE SERVICE AND SACRIFICE OF SERGEANT CHRIS REDMAN

HON. KEN BUCK OF COLORADO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 1, 2017

Mr. BUCK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the service and sacrifice of Sergeant Chris Redman, and to congratulate him for being inducted into the Honorary Rolls of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, the “Blackhorse Regiment.” I believe that our nation’s men and women in uniform are America’s greatest assets. They have made incredible sacrifices for our country and deserve our utmost support and respect for their service.

Sergeant Redman has dedicated his life to protecting all Americans through his service as a sergeant in the United States Army and as a police officer. He received numerous recognitions while in the Army and has continued to serve the Blackhorse Regiment since his retirement. In addition to his selfless service to our country, Sergeant Redman has also been a great leader and supporter of the Blackhorse Regiment in his community, coordinating reunions and raising money for scholarship funds.

Our nation owes no greater debt of gratitude than the one we owe our veterans. They and their families should be commended. On behalf of the 4th Congressional District of Colorado, I extend my best wishes and deepest gratitude to Sergeant Redman.

Mr. Speaker, it is an honor to recognize Sergeant Chris Redman for his commitment to family, community, and the United States of America.

Mr. FORTENBERRY. Mr. Speaker, on Thursday, July 27, 2017, I was unavoidably detained and thus missed roll call votes 430 through 435.

Had I been present, I would have voted NAY on Roll Call No. 430, NAY on Roll Call No. 431, NAY Roll Call No. 432, NAY Roll Call No. 433, NAY Roll Call No. 434, and YEA on Roll Call No. 435.

HON. ELISE M. STEFANIK
OF NEW YORK
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 1, 2017

Ms. STEFANIK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor and recognize the service and sacrifice of Marine Corporal Luke McDermott.

Corporal McDermott was serving his second deployment in Afghanistan when on June 9, 2010, an improvised explosive device detonated underneath his vehicle during a routine security patrol. The damage caused by this explosion cost Corporal McDermott both of his legs, but it did not take away the fighting spirit which enabled him to persevere through the difficult recovery process.

It is a true testament to Corporal McDermott’s character that these injuries have not prevented him from pursuing life to its fullest. In addition to his training and traveling with the U.S. National Sled Hockey team, he has continued his service to the global community by participating in a volunteer trip to study social development in Morocco.

Through the generous work of Homes for our Troops, Corporal McDermott will soon become a resident of New York’s 21st District, and we are proud to welcome him. Since 2004, the organization has built 236 adapted homes for veterans, and now Homes for our Troops is providing Corporal McDermott with an accessible residence in Clayton, New York. Here, he can live comfortably and pursue his dreams of working toward a law degree.

I would like to thank Corporal McDermott for his service to our county and for the sacrifices he has made for our way of life. He is a deserving recipient of the incredible opportunity that Homes for our Troops provides.

HON. LINDA T. SÁNCHEZ OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, August 1, 2017

Ms. SÁNCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize Howard L. Chambers, City Manager for Lakewood, California in my Southern California district who is retiring after over 41 years of public service. Howard is concluding his career as the longest serving city manager with any single city in California, exemplifying his love and dedication towards the City of Lakewood and its people.

Howard was born and raised in Lakewood, having attended Lakewood schools and working at the local YVCA and the City of Lakewood’s recreation program. As his life progressed Howard never strayed too far from his beloved city, attending college at nearby California State University, Long Beach where he received a Bachelor of Science degree. Howard became Lakewood’s top executive in 1976, after receiving a Master of Arts degree in Planning and Administration from Pepperdine University and serving as Executive Assistant to the Lakewood City Manager.

During his tenure with the City of Lakewood, Howard always provided strong leadership and knowledgeable direction for major projects. While his accomplishments are far too numerous to name, I want to highlight the building of the Weingart Senior Center, the Centre at Sycamore Plaza, the S. Mark Taper Foundation Vista Lodge, the West San Gabriel River Parkway Nature Trail, and, most recently, the new Pumpkin Playground at San Martin Park. He also oversaw the renovation of the Veterans Memorial Plaza and Douglas jet plane at Del Valle Park.

Over the past decades, Howard has worked tirelessly to ensure Lakewood operates on firm financial footing and never outside its fiscal means. During the recent economic downturn, Lakewood was able to maintain funding for all city services and avoid employee layoffs thanks to Howard’s budgetary foresight.

Howard has also played an influential role amongst his peers in city management, through his leadership roles in League of California Cities, the California Contract Cities Association, the California Joint Powers Insurance Authority, the Gateway Cities Council of Governments, and the International City/County Management Association. Howard was recently honored by the League of California Cities with the 2017 Wes McClure Award of Distinction for outstanding career service, leadership, ethics, expertise and innovation as a city manager.

I wish to commend Howard Chambers on many years of outstanding public service and dedication to the City of Lakewood and its residents. I wish him the very best in retirement.
