TITLE I—RECIDIVISM REDUCTION

SEC. 101. RISK AND NEEDS ASSESSMENT SYSTEM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 229 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting after subchapter C the following:

"SUBCHAPTER D—RISK AND NEEDS ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

"Sec. 3631. Duties of the Attorney General.

"Sec. 3632. Development of risk and needs assessment tools.

"Sec. 3633. Evidence-based recidivism reduction programs and recommendations.

"Sec. 3634. Report.

"Sec. 3635. Definitions.

"Sec. 3631. Duties of the Attorney General

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The Attorney General shall carry out this subchapter in consultation with—

"(1) the Director of the Bureau of Prisons;

"(2) the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts;

"(3) the Director of the Office of Probation and Pretrial Services;

"(4) the Director of the National Institute of Justice; and

"(5) the Director of the National Institute of Corrections.

"(b) DUTIES.—The Attorney General shall—

"(1) conduct a review of the existing prisoner risk and needs assessment systems in operation on the date of the enactment of the FIRST STEP Act;

"(2) develop recommendations regarding evidence-based recidivism reduction programs and productive activities in accordance with section 3633;
"(3) conduct ongoing research and data analysis on—

(A) evidence-based recidivism reduction programs relating to the use of prisoner risk and needs assessment systems;

(B) the most effective and efficient uses of such programs;

(C) which evidence-based recidivism reduction programs result in the most effective reduction of recidivism, and the type, amount, and intensity of programming that most effectively reduces the risk of recidivism; and

(D) the factors for Federal crimes that are manufactured overseas and could be manufactured by prisoners participating in a prison work program without reducing job opportunities for other workers in the United States;

(4) on an annual basis, review and validate the prisoner needs assessment system, which review shall include—

(A) any subsequent changes to the risk and needs assessment system made after the date of the enactment of this subchapter;

(B) the recommendations developed under paragraph (2), using the research conducted under paragraph (3);

(C) an evaluation to ensure that the risk and needs assessment system bases the assessment of each prisoner’s risk of recidivism on indicators of progress, and of regression to the mean, and that such evaluations reasonably be expected to change while in prison;

(D) statistical validation of any tools that the risk and needs assessment system uses;

(E) an evaluation of the rates of recidivism among similarly classified prisoners to identify any unwarranted disparities, including disparities among similarly classified prisoners of different demographic groups, in such rates;

(F) determine any revisions or updates to the risk and needs assessment system that the Attorney General determines appropriate pursuant to the review under paragraph (4), including updates to ensure that any disparities identified in paragraph (4)(E) are reduced to the greatest extent possible; and

(G) report to Congress in accordance with section 3634.

§3632. Development of risk and needs assessment system

(a) In general.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of the FIRST STEP Act, the Attorney General shall develop and release a risk and needs assessment system referred to in this subsection as the System, which shall be used to—

(1) determine the recidivism risk of each prisoner as part of the intake process, and classify each prisoner as having minimum, low, medium, or high risk for recidivism;

(2) assess and determine, to the extent practicable, the risk of violent or serious misconduct of each prisoner;

(3) prioritize the type, amount, and intensity of evidence-based recidivism reduction programs that are appropriate for each prisoner and assign each prisoner to such programs; and based on the prisoner’s specific criminogenic needs, and in accordance with subsection (b);

(4) reassess the recidivism risk of each prisoner periodically and reassign the prisoner to appropriate evidence-based recidivism reduction programs or productive activities on the revised determination to ensure that—

(A) all prisoners at each risk level have a specific criminogenic need;

(B) to address the specific criminogenic needs of the prisoner; and

(C) all prisoners are able to successfully participate in evidence-based recidivism reduction programs or productive activities, and shall provide guidance on the type, amount, and intensity of evidence-based recidivism reduction programs and productive activities that shall be assigned for each prisoner, including—

(i) programs in which the Bureau of Prisons shall assign the prisoner to participate, according to the prisoner’s specific criminogenic needs; and

(ii) information on the best ways that the Bureau of Prisons can tailor the programs to the specific criminogenic needs of each prisoner so as to most effectively lower each prisoner’s risk of recidivism;

(5) housing and assignment decisions.—The System shall provide guidance on program grouping and housing assignment determinations and, after accounting for the safety of each prisoner and other individuals at the prison, prisoners with similar risk level be grouped together in housing and assignment decisions to the extent practicable;

(b) Evidence-based recidivism reduction program incentives and productive activities rewards.—The System shall provide incentives and rewards for prisoners to participate in and complete evidence-based recidivism reduction programs as follows:

(1) Phone and visitation privileges.—A prisoner who successfully participates in an evidence-based recidivism reduction program shall receive—

(A) phone privileges, or, if available, video conferencing privileges for up to 25 minutes per day, and up to 510 minutes per month; and

(B) additional time for visitation at the prison, as determined by the warden of the prison.

(2) Transfer to institution closer to release residence.—A prisoner who is successfully participating in evidence-based recidivism reduction programs shall be considered by the Bureau of Prisons for placement in a facility closer to the prisoner’s release residence upon request from the prisoner and subject to—

(A) bed availability at the transfer facility;

(B) the prisoner’s security designation; and

(C) the recommendation from the warden of the prison at which the prisoner is incarcerated at the time of making the request;

(3) Additional policies.—The Director of the Bureau of Prisons shall develop additional policies to provide appropriate incentives for successful participation and completion of evidence-based recidivism reduction programming. Such incentives shall include, but not less than two of the following:

(A) Increased commissary spending limits and product offerings.

(B) Extended opportunities to access the email system.

(C) Consideration of transfer to preferred housing units (including transfer to different prison facilities).

(D) Other incentives solicited from prisoners and determined appropriate by the Director.

(4) Time credits.—

(A) In general.—A prisoner, except for an ineligible prisoner under subsection (D), who successfully completes evidence-based recidivism reduction programming or productive activities, shall earn time credits as follows:

(i) A prisoner shall earn 10 days of time credits for every 30 days of successful participation in evidence-based recidivism reduction programming or productive activities.

(ii) A prisoner determined by the Bureau of Prisons to be at a maximum or low risk for recidivating, who, over two consecutive assessments, has not increased their risk of recidivism, shall earn an additional 5 days of time credits for every 30 days of successful participation in evidence-based recidivism reduction programming or productive activities.

(iii) prior to the date of the enactment of this Act;

(iv) during official detention prior to the date that the prisoner’s sentence commences under section 3585(a); or

(v) if that prisoner is an inadmissible or deportable alien under the immigration laws, to the extent determined in section 3585(a).

(b) Assignment of evidence-based recidivism reduction program incentives and productive activities rewards.—The System shall provide incentives and rewards for prisoners to participate in and complete evidence-based recidivism reduction programs as follows:

(1) Phone and visitation privileges.—A prisoner who successfully participates in an evidence-based recidivism reduction program shall receive—

(A) phone privileges, or, if available, video conferencing privileges for up to 25 minutes per day, and up to 510 minutes per month; and

(B) additional time for visitation at the prison, as determined by the warden of the prison.

(2) Transfer to institution closer to release residence.—A prisoner who is successfully participating in evidence-based recidivism reduction programs shall be considered by the Bureau of Prisons for placement in a facility closer to the prisoner’s release residence upon request from the prisoner and subject to—

(A) bed availability at the transfer facility;

(B) the prisoner’s security designation; and

(C) the recommendation from the warden of the prison at which the prisoner is incarcerated at the time of making the request.

(3) Additional policies.—The Director of the Bureau of Prisons shall develop additional policies to provide appropriate incentives for successful participation and completion of evidence-based recidivism reduction programming. Such incentives shall include, but not less than two of the following:

(A) Increased commissary spending limits and product offerings.

(B) Extended opportunities to access the email system.

(C) Consideration of transfer to preferred housing units (including transfer to different prison facilities).

(D) Other incentives solicited from prisoners and determined appropriate by the Director.

(4) Time credits.—

(A) In general.—A prisoner, except for an ineligible prisoner under subsection (D), who successfully completes evidence-based recidivism reduction programming or productive activities, shall earn time credits as follows:

(i) A prisoner shall earn 10 days of time credits for every 30 days of successful participation in evidence-based recidivism reduction programming or productive activities.

(ii) A prisoner determined by the Bureau of Prisons to be at a maximum or low risk for recidivating, who, over two consecutive assessments, has not increased their risk of recidivism, shall earn an additional 5 days of time credits for every 30 days of successful participation in evidence-based recidivism reduction programming or productive activities.

(iii) prior to the date of the enactment of this Act;

(iv) during official detention prior to the date that the prisoner’s sentence commences under section 3585(a); or

(v) if that prisoner is an inadmissible or deportable alien under the immigration laws, to the extent determined in section 3585(a).

(7) Recommendations for how to reinvest any savings into other Federal, State, and local law enforcement activities and evidence-based recidivism reduction programs in the Bureau of Prisons.

§ 3635. Definitions

“In this subchapter the following definitions apply:

(1) EVIDENCE-BASED RECIDIVISM REDUCTION PROGRAM.—The term ‘evidence-based recidivism reduction program’ means either a group or individual activity that—

(A) has been shown by empirical evidence to reduce recidivism or is based on research indicating that it is likely to be effective in reducing recidivism;

(B) is designed to help prisoners succeed in their communities upon release from prison; and

(C) may include—

(i) social learning and communication, interpersonal, anti-bullying, rejection response, and other life skills;

(ii) family relationship building, structured parent-child interaction, and parenting skills;

(iii) classes on morals or ethics;

(iv) academic classes;

(v) cognitive behavioral treatment;

(vi) counseling and trauma-informed support;

(vii) alcohol, drug use, and trauma counseling and treatment;

(viii) vocational training;

(ix) faith-based classes or services;

(x) civic engagement and reintegrative community services;

(xi) a prison job, including through a prison work program;

(xii) victim impact classes or other restorative justice programs; and

(xiii) trauma counseling and trauma-informed support.

(2) PHASE-IN.—In order to carry out paragraph (1), so that every prisoner has the opportunity to participate in and complete the types, amount, and types of evidence-based recidivism reduction programs or productive activities they need, and be reassessed for recidivism risk as necessary to effectively implement the System, the Bureau of Prisons shall—

(A) provide such evidence-based recidivism reduction programs and productive activities for all prisoners before the date that is 2 years after the date on which the Bureau of Prisons completes a risk and needs assessment for each prisoner under paragraph (1)(A); and

(B) develop and validate the risk and needs assessment tool to be used in the reassessments of risk of recidivism, while prisoners are participating in and completing evidence-based recidivism reduction programs and productive activities.

(3) PRIORITY DURING PHASE-IN.—During the 2-year period described in paragraph (2)(A), the priority for such programs and activities shall be accorded based on a prisoner’s proximity to release date.

(4) PRELIMINARY EXPANSION OF EVIDENCE-BASED RECIDIVISM REDUCTION PROGRAMS AND AUTHORITY TO USE INCENTIVES.—Beginning on the date of the enactment of the FIRST STEP Act, the Bureau of Prisons may begin to expand any evidence-based recidivism reduction programs and productive activities that exist at a prison as of such date, and may offer to prisoners who successfully participate in such programs and activities the incentives and rewards described in subsection D.

(5) RECIDIVISM REDUCTION PARTNERSHIPS.—In order to expand evidence-based recidivism reduction programs and productive activities, the Attorney General shall develop policies for the warden of each prison of the Bureau of Prisons to enter into partnerships, subject to the availability of appropriations, with any of the following:

(A) Nonprofit and other private organizations, including faith-based, art, and community-based organizations that will deliver recidivism reduction programming on a paid or volunteer basis.

(B) Institutions of higher education (as defined in section 101 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1001) that will deliver instruction on a paid or volunteer basis.

(C) Private entities that will—

(i) deliver vocational training and certification;

(ii) provide any paid or volunteer employment opportunities for prisoners;

(iii) employ prisoners; or

(iv) assist prisoners in prerelease custody or supervised release in finding employment.

(D) Industry-sponsored organizations that will deliver workforce development and training, on a paid or volunteer basis.

(E) REQUIREMENT TO PROVIDE PROGRAMS TO ALL PRISONERS; PRIORITY.—The Director of the Bureau of Prisons shall provide all prisoners with the opportunity to actively participate in evidence-based recidivism reduction programs and productive activities, according to their specific criminogenic needs, throughout their entire term of incarceration. Priority for participation in recidivism reduction programs shall be given to medium and high risk prisoners, with access to activities given to minimum risk and low risk prisoners.

(7) DEFINITIONS.—The terms in this subsection have the meaning given those terms in section 3621.

(b) PRERELEASE CUSTODY.—
   (1) IN GENERAL.—Section 3621 of title 18, United States Code, is amended—
      (A) by inserting ``(aa) participate in evidence-based recidivism reduction programs or productive activities assigned by the System, or similar activities;'' in subsection (b)(1); and
      (B) by inserting (bb) participate in evidence-based recidivism reduction programming or productive activities assigned by the System, or similar activities;'' in subsection (b)(1); and

(8) The rates of recidivism among similarly situated prisoners may be lower if the prisoner demonstrates reasonable cause for the violation.

(9) Time limits in subparts (b)(4) and (c) shall not apply to prerelease custody under this subsection.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall take effect beginning on the date on which the Attorney General completes and releases the risk and needs assessment system under subchapter D of chapter 229 of title 18, United States Code.

(3) APPLICABILITY.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply with respect to offenses committed before, on, or after the date on which the enactment is received by the President, except that such amendments shall not apply with respect to offenses committed before November 1, 1987.

GAO REPORT

Not later than 2 years after the Director of the Bureau of Prisons implements the risk and needs assessment system under section 3621 of title 18, United States Code, and every 2 years thereafter, the Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct an audit of the use of the risk and needs assessment system under subchapter D of chapter 229 of title 18, United States Code.

The audit shall include analysis of the following:

(1) Whether inmates are being assessed under the risk and needs assessment system, and whether the frequency required under such section.

(2) Whether the Bureau of Prisons is able to offer recidivism reduction programs and productive activities that are available in facilities defined in section 3636 of title 18, United States Code.

(3) Whether the Bureau of Prisons is offering the type, amount, and intensity of recidivism reduction programs and productive activities for prisoners to earn the maximum amount of time credits for which they are eligible.

(4) Whether the Attorney General is carrying out the duties under section 3631(b) of title 18, United States Code.

(5) Whether officers and employees of the Bureau of Prisons are receiving the training described in section 3236(f) of title 18, United States Code.

(6) Whether the Bureau of Prisons offers work assignments to all prisoners who might benefit from such an assignment.

(7) Whether the Bureau of Prisons transfers prisoners to prerelease custody as soon as they are eligible for such a transfer under section 3621(g) of title 18, United States Code.

(8) The rates of recidivism among similarly classified prisoners to identify any unwarranted disparities, including disparities among similarly classified prisoners of different demographic groups, in such rates.

SEC. 104. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

(a) In GENERAL.—There is authorized to be appropriated for the current fiscal year, this title $50,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2019 through 2023. Of the amount appropriated under this subsection, 80 percent shall be reserved for the use of the Director of the Bureau of Prisons to implement the system under section 102 and the amendments made by that section.

(b) SAVING.—It is the sense of Congress that any savings associated with reductions in recidivism that result from this title shall be re-invested in recidivism programs and productive activities offered by the Bureau of Prisons;

(1) into evidence-based recidivism reduction programs offered by the Bureau of Prisons; and

(2) to ensuring eligible prisoners have access to such programs and productive activities offered by the Bureau of Prisons.

SEC. 105. RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this Act, or the amendments made by this Act, may be construed to pro- vide authority to place a prisoner in pretrial custody who is serving a term of imprisonment pursuant to a conviction for an offense under the laws of one of the 50 States, or of a territory or possession of the United States.

SEC. 105A. FAITH-BASED CONSIDERATIONS.

In considering any program, treatment, regimen, group, company, charity, person or entity of any kind under any provision of this Act or the amendments made by this Act, the fact that it may be or is faith-based may not be a basis for any discrimination against it in any manner or for any purpose.

SEC. 301. USE OF RESTRAINTS ON PRISONERS DURING THE PERIOD OF PREGNANCY AND POSTPARTUM RECOVERY PROHIBITED.

(a) In GENERAL.—Chapter 301 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 4321 the following:

"(A) PROHIBITION.—Except as provided in subsection (b), beginning on the date on which a prisoner is sentenced to a term of imprisonment by a healthcare professional, and ending at the conclusion of postpartum recovery, a pris- oner in the custody of the Bureau of Prisons, or in the custody of the United States Marshals Service pursuant to section 4006, shall not be placed in restraints.

"(B) EXCEPTIONS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The prohibition under subsection (a) shall not apply if—

"(I) an appropriate corrections official, or a United States marshal, as applicable, makes a determination that—

"(II) serves an immediate and credible flight risk that cannot reasonably be prevented by other means; or

"(II) poses an immediate and serious threat of harm to herself or others that cannot reason- ably be prevented by other means; or

"(II) a healthcare professional responsible for the health and safety of the prisoner de- termines that the use of restraints is appro- priate for the medical safety of the prisoner.

(2) LEAST RESTRICTIVE RESTRAINTS.—In the case of a prisoner pursuant to an exception under paragraph (1), only the least restrictive restraints necessary to pre- vent the harm or risk of escape described in paragraph (1) may be used.

"(C) APPLICATION.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The exceptions under paragraph (1) may be used—

"(I) to place restraints around the ankles, legs, or waist of a prisoner;

"(II) to restrain a prisoner’s hands behind her back;

"(III) to restrain a prisoner using four- point restraints; or

"(IV) to attach a prisoner to another pris- oner.

"(D) MEDICAL REQUEST.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), upon the request of a healthcare professional responsible for the health and safety of a prisoner, a cor- rections official or United States marshal, as applicable, shall refrain from using re- straints on the prisoner or remove restraints used on the prisoner.

"(E) REPORTS.—

"(i) TO THE DIRECTOR AND HEALTHCARE PROFESSIONAL.—If a corrections official, or official of the United States Marshals Service, uses re- straints on a prisoner on request under subsection (b)(1), that official or marshal shall submit, not later than 30 days after placing the pris- oner in restraints, to the Director of the Bu- reau of Prisons or the Director of the United States Marshals Service, as applicable, and to the healthcare professional responsible for the health and safety of the prisoner, a writ- ten report which describes the facts and cir- cumstances surrounding the use of re- straints, and includes—

"(I) a statement of the basis on which the determination to use restraints was made;

"(II) the details of the use of restraints, in- cluding the type of restraints used and length of time during which restraints were used; and

"(III) any resulting physical effects on the prisoner observed by or known to the correc- tions official or United States marshal, as applicable.

"(ii) TO THE DIRECTOR.—Upon receipt of a report under sub- section (c)(1), the Director—

"(I) determines that the use of restraints is appropriate for the medical safety of the prisoner;

"(II) makes a determination that the prisoner—

"(I) the term ‘postpartum recovery’ means the twelve-week period, or longer as deter- mined by the healthcare professional respon- sible for the health and safety of the pris- oner, following delivery, and shall include the entire period that the prisoner is in the hospital or infirmary;

"(II) the term ‘restraints’ means any phys- ical or mechanical device used to control the movement of a prisoner’s body, limbs, or both;

"(III) the term ‘prisoner’ means a person who has been sentenced to a term of impris- onment pursuant to a conviction for a Fed- eral criminal offense, or a person in the cus- tody of the Bureau of Prisons, including a prisoner in a Bureau of Prisons contracted fa- cility.”

"(ii) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMEND- MENT.—The table of sections for chapter 301 of title 18, United States Code, is further amended by adding after the item relating to section 4321 the following:

"§ 4322. Use of restraints on prisoners during the period of pregnancy, labor, and postpartum recovery prohibited

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, and annually thereafter, the Director of the Bu- reau of Prisons and the Director of the United States Marshals Service shall submit to the Judiciary Committee of the Senate and of the House of Representatives a report that certifies compliance with this section and such other information as required to be reported under paragraph (1).

"(B) PERSONALLY IDENTIFIABLE INFORMATION.—The report under this paragraph shall contain any personally identifiable in- formation of any prisoner.

The auditor shall submit a report containing the information described in paragraphs (1) through (26) of subsection (a) to the Committees on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and of the Senate.

SEC. 413. ADULT AND JUVENILE COLLABORATION PROGRAMS.

Section 2901 of title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (34 U.S.C. 10651) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (b)(4)(D);

(2) in subsection (e), by striking “may use up to 3 percent” and inserting “shall use not less than 6 percent”; and

(3) by amending subsection (g) to read as follows:

(g) COLLABORATION SET ASIDE.—The Attorney General shall allow not less than 18 percent of funds appropriated to provide technical assistance to State and local governments receiving grants under this part to foster collaboration between such governments in furtherance of the purposes set forth in section 3 of the Mentally Ill Offender Treatment and Crime Reduction Act of 2004 (34 U.S.C. 10651 note).''

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days in which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous materials on H.R. 5682, currently under consideration.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection. Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 5682, the FIRST STEP Act. The bipartisan bill before us is a meaningful, historic criminal justice reform measure.

The FIRST STEP Act places a new focus on rehabilitation. While we recognize criminal behavior needs to be punished and criminals need to be incapacitated, we must also acknowledge that our prison population needs to be rehabilitated to the greatest extent practicable. The bill establishes a risk and needs assessment as the basis of both an effective recidivism reduction program, and an efficient and effective Federal prison system.

The FIRST STEP Act will incentivize prisoners to participate in evidence-based recidivism reduction programs, productive activities, and jobs that will actually reduce their risk of recidivism.

We know that over 90 percent of all prisoners within the Bureau of Prisons
Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to support the FIRST STEP Act, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 4 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I claim the time in opposition to H.R. 5682, the FIRST STEP Act. On principle, I cannot support legislation which fails to address the larger issue of sentencing reform, and, though this bill makes some modest improvements in areas related to our prisons, actually it does more harm by cementing into our system new areas of racial biases and disadvantage that make worse a criminal justice system desperately in need of reform.

Despite the bill’s good intentions, the new incentive system for pre-release custody credits could exacerbate racial biases and, unlike previous criminal justice efforts, is not balanced with the necessary reforms to our Federal sentencing system. As Monday’s New York Times editorial observed: “A partial sentencing reform of the H.R. 5682 bill could end up being worse than nothing.”

The bill excludes large categories of inmates, based on convictions for various offenses and on immigration status, but the pre-release custody incentives established by the bill.

Second, certain prisoners who are eligible to participate in the incentive system and who successfully participate in recidivism reduction programs would face being denied early entry to pre-release custody if such inmates are judged to have a higher than low recidivism risk under the new system. It would be unfair to deny these prisoners that they have earned, and it is counterproductive for all of us, to effect, create a disincentive for prisoners who most need recidivism reduction programming from engaging in it.

Third, the combination of these factors, implemented through a problematic risk assessment tool, could operate to exacerbate racial and socioeconomic disparities already present in the criminal justice system. As the Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights, the ACLU, the NAACP, the National Immigration Law Center, and dozens of other advocacy groups warned, “the exclusions could . . . have a disparate impact on racial minorities.” I want to acknowledge the tremendous work of my colleagues on the Judiciary Committee—Representatives JEFFRIES, RICHMOND, and BASS particularly—for their efforts to improve the legislation. I wholeheartedly support certain provisions in the current version of the bill, including time credits for good behavior, banning the shackling of women prisoners, and enhanced compassionate relief. But, unfortunately, these good provisions do not outweigh the potentially harmful provisions contained elsewhere in the bill.

Perhaps more importantly, it is clear that prison reform alone will not ameliorate the crisis of mass incarceration unless we address the principal cause of the problem: unjust sentencing laws.

For example, Attorney General Eric Holder writes in today’s Washington Post: “To reform America’s prisons, we must change the laws that send people to prison in the first place. Anything less represents a failure of leadership.”

It is unfortunate that after waiting nearly 1 ½ years to take up the issue of criminal justice reform, the majority was unwilling to subject H.R. 5682 to a single legislative hearing or even both—though the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, told us: “For any criminal justice system proposal to win approval in the Senate, it must include . . . sentencing reforms.”

Although I oppose this legislation, I remain fully committed to achieving balanced reform as part of an effort to make our criminal justice system more just and our constituents more safe. But I do not believe that passing this bill today would contribute to that goal. I therefore urge an opposition vote.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Ellison).

Mr. ELLISON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this FIRST STEP Act. I spent 17 years of my life representing people accused of crimes.

Some of them are people whom I will never forget. One is a woman named Daniella. She had some prior misdemeanor offenses and was charged with possession of crack cocaine. She was looking at a sentence of about 60 months, based on the amount. She had a small child. There were no weapons involved.

The prosecutors told her: If you tell on your boyfriend, we will take you to State court. If you don’t, we are taking you to Federal court. They took her to Federal court. And try as I did, she ended up getting 60 months of prison. She got taken away from her child. I remember the screams of that little boy as they walked his mother into custody.

I cannot imagine asking her to stay in prison one day longer than she needed to. I cannot imagine not giving every opportunity to improve her life and her skills.

Mr. Speaker, I urge a “yes” vote, and I do so with a lot of enthusiasm today. Mr. GOODLATTE, Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. Cicilline).

Mr. CICILLINE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I rise in strong support of the FIRST STEP Act. I supported this bipartisan legislation because it will help more ex-offenders reenter the workforce. It will reduce recidivism.

The FIRST STEP Act is just a first step in fixing our criminal justice system. We all realize there is a lot more that we must do, but this is an important start. I would remind everyone that the bill allows prisoners to earn an additional 7 days off their sentence each year they demonstrate good behavior. It funds important job training, drug treatment, and education services. It prohibits the shackling of pregnant women and improves compassionate release.

These are all very good provisions. It will not only reduce recidivism; it will enhance the safety of our communities by making sure folks have the ability to enter drug treatment, enter job training, and avail themselves of education services. These are all commonsense ideas. I hope that everyone will support this legislation.

I want to thank, particularly, my colleague HAKEEM JEFFRIES for his strong leadership in these difficult negotiations, and I urge my colleagues to vote for the FIRST STEP and then commit themselves to continuing to build on this, because there is much more work to do in sentencing reform and criminal justice reform broadly.

Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DANNY K. DAVIS of Illinois). Mr. Speaker, I commend the Judiciary Committee for its tremendous work in bringing this bill to the floor. They have put forth tremendous effort and tried every way they could think of to compromise.

But notwithstanding the effort, I find myself not in a position to vote in favor of the bill. One of the reasons is that many of the organizations and groups with whom I have worked over the years are in opposition. They are people who are on the ground floor of criminal justice reform. They recognize that, if we are going to provide an opportunity to seriously reduce mass incarceration, we have to make provisions for individuals to regain some sense of reality regarding what got them into prison in the first place.

I appreciate all of the efforts. I think we have got too much authority being given to the Attorney General. I wish we had been able to get closer to what people I work with daily would be in agreement with. Unfortunately, we did not.

Unfortunately, I do not support passage of the bill, but I support continuing our work to find the real, hard-nosed solutions that we need.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to Mr. ANTHONY WHITEHOUSE across the way in the Senate, who could get treatment and get help?

And once they come home—which over 90 percent of all prisoners in this country do, they come home—is it okay to say no to those folks, and say: No, we are not going to provide that for your family member; we are not going to provide treatment so that they can get help with addiction or work problems or anger management or skills deficits or education deficits? No, it is not.

Is it okay today to vote “no” and say: I like a lot of this bill, but I want to continue to shackle women as they have babies?

It is a pretty simple understanding. I get it. I want to see sentencing reform, too. I am on record as saying I do. I am on record as continuing past this to actually do that.

Mr. JEFFRIES and I have talked about this more than we ever imagined we would. But Congressman JEFFRIES is a great partner in this effort.

This bill is a meaningful reform. Senator CORNYN and Senator WHITEHOUSE across the way in the Senate have taken steps to actually introduce the same bill and are working to do this. The President has said this is something that can be signed. In fact, the President, Mr. Speaker, last week, said that America is a nation that believes in second chances.

The FIRST STEP Act gives those second chances. It gives us hope. It gives us a ability to look at people. As I have said on this issue many times, it is a money and moral issue.

In States like Georgia, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Texas, New York, and California, these issues have been discussed and evidence-based approaches have worked. We have seen it. Mr. Speaker, work in my home State of Georgia. We have seen an evidence-based approach be the way that you need to go. This bill provides the protection, and it also provides the incentives for this to work.

Now not only have we had many discussions on why we shouldn’t do this, and there have been many people in recent days coming forward. I think it is pretty amazing to me—and I am going to have to be honest here—for the former Attorney General to come out and say this is not enough and say that the current Department of Justice could do some of this, then I have one question for the former Attorney General:

Where were you when you held the office? Why didn’t you do something then? If it was within your grasp, why did you turn a deaf ear to the cries of families who were in need? Why did you not take action, and now weigh in on something that Congressman JEFFRIES and many others have put their hearts and lives into and weigh in and say it is not enough?

Look to those families, Mr. Former Attorney General, and tell them it is not enough.

It is easy to write an op-ed. It must be a lot harder to do it when you have the job.

But if we look forward here, this is a positive piece of legislation. This is something that we can look forward to doing, when you have a chance to give those prisoners the opportunity to cut the very things down in their life that caused them to get there to start with.

When we begin to look at the reasons they are there—and there are multiple—then we are taking a first step toward solutions, a first step toward hope, a first step toward making a difference. So that we can pass, if we can take this first step, then maybe we can get some of our colleagues to take that next step into sentencing reform and other areas that we have already worked on, that the chairman has fashioned, and others across in the Senate have advocated for.

But if we choose not to do that today, you are saying no to the future. Congressman JEFFRIES and I believe you should vote yes to the future. I know that when we have worked on this, it is about what we can accomplish and how we can accomplish it in a way that is meaningful to others.

When we look at this, I also find it rather interesting. Mr. Speaker, the groups that have come together here. As we went around talking about this, we went to so many different groups from the left and the right that say this is a great first step: Justice Action Network, American Conservative Union, FreedomWorks, FAMM, Prison Fellowship, Faith and Freedom Coalition, #cut50, Heritage Action for America, and many, many more both on the left and the right. The Koch Foundation and others have said this is good. This is something we can move on. This provides that hope that we are searching for.

To the bill’s detractors, I respect your position. To the bill’s detractors, I would just say: Why not? If why not, why not here? And if why not and why you don’t want to here, when? Is it ever good enough? Can we ever get to a point?

I think one of the things, Mr. Speaker, that we often deal with here is the art of the possible. Today is about the art of the possible.
We have an administration that says: We will sign the bill.

Jared Kushner has been such an advocate for this and worked with the administration to say: We will put forth the effort to make this work.

We have partners in the Senate who say: We want to work and do even more.

I am glad of that. And I have a partner here and many who have come alongside of us and have spoken to say: Let's do something today.

Today is about action. Today is about being a part of something bigger than ourselves. This is a day when we can come to the floor of this House and be proud of why we are here.

So many times we come down and we look at the bill and we see paper and we see words on a paper. But I tell you what I see, Mr. Speaker: I see the faces of the families behind these words. I see the faces of the families behind these words that it is actually going to help.

So when you look at this vote and you look at this bill, I say: Look beyond the pieces of paper, look beyond the ink, and look to the families that will be helped.

When you cast that “yes” vote, you are saying: I want to do something, and I am not afraid to wait on something I might want but know that I can take a step further now.

It is very simple: vote “yes” to move it along or vote “no” and say no to what they have achieved.

I can agree and disagree about a lot of parts, but this is about the people behind the bill.

Before I go, Mr. Speaker, though, in addition to the committee, the chairman, and the committee staff who have been so great, a few weeks ago, I had the chance to talk about a staff member of mine as a steel magnolia. Today, Jon Ferro, from my staff, a New York native, who works for a Georgia Member, has earned from me the highest praise.

He is now, as you will see in all of the groups that have worked on this, a Bulldog. He has worked this over and over. He has worked it to find solutions. For that I am thankful, and for that I am proud.

Mr. Speaker, this is a good bill. You could come up with every reason you want to vote “no,” and that is okay. I guess the reminder, there are families watching today. There are incarcerated people watching today. My question is: Will you vote for them or will you vote to hold up something that may or may not happen?

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Ms. BASS), a member of the Judiciary Committee.

Ms. BASS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the FIRST STEP Act.

There are thousands of women who are incarcerated while pregnant. My language in the FIRST STEP Act addresses the treatment of pregnant inmates and the use of shackles.

The current system is based on a male model that fails to meet the physical and mental health needs of women. This is occurring at a time when women are the fastest growing population in our prisons and jails, increasing in number by over 700 percent since the 1980s.

The treatment of incarcerated women is particularly glaring during pregnancy, delivery, and postpartum. Pregnant women must be provided appropriate prenatal care, which includes nutrition and housing.

We can also agree it defies common sense and logic to use shackles on a woman who is delivering a baby. More than 22 States have restricted the use on pregnant women, yet the practice continues. This is despite no reported incidents of women attempting to escape when shackles are not used during childbirth. If anyone knows of a woman who is able to jump up while delivering and overcome an armed guard, I would certainly love to meet her.

Women across the country have shared their horror stories about being pregnant or delivering while shackled. The experiences are as grim as you can imagine. One mother recounted being shackled after having an emergency C-section. She was handcuffed and a chain was linked across her belly.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CARTER of Georgia). The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentlewoman an additional 30 seconds.

Ms. BASS. She stated: “With the weight on my stomach, it felt like they were ripping open my C-section.”

We must institute Federal standards and educate correction officers, medical personnel, and pregnant inmates regarding the standard of care for pregnant women must be a part of the debate on prison and sentencing reform.

Mr. Speaker, I look forward to introducing additional legislation to highlight this issue.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. RICHMOND), a member of the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. RICHMOND. Mr. Speaker, let me thank Congresswoman JEFFRIES and Congresswoman COLLINS for this FIRST STEP Act.

Does it go as far as I would want it to? It doesn’t. But is it a substantial step in the right direction? The answer is yes.

When we start talking about prison reform, we start talking about ways to help those who are incarcerated, one, when they get out; two, to better themselves when they are already in.

And one of the things we do in this bill is to allow movement of inmates closer to their families so that they can keep that family connection, so that they can continue to be a part of the family, which also reduces recidivism.

We also fix the “good time” problem that has happened. For every 7 days that you increase good time, you save $50 million a year. Not only did we fix it this year, but we fixed the problem BOP interpreted in the law, contrary to congressional intent, in the first place.

So this bill takes, I believe, a significant step in the right direction, not to mention the $250 million toward restorative justice and other ways. Hopefully, the savings from this bill will continue to go toward criminal justice and we will continue to take second and third steps.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. JEFFRIES), a distinguished member of the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. JEFFRIES. Mr. Speaker, I thank Chairman GOODLATTE as well as several distinguished members of the Judiciary Committee—Senator RICHMOND and KAREN BASS—for their leadership on this issue and, of course, my good friend DOUG COLLINS for being a phenomenon champion of improving the lives of currently incarcerated individuals, folks who have no time for political games.

These are individuals who are in the system right now without hope, without opportunity, without a meaningful chance at transforming themselves.

And the FIRST STEP Act will provide that.

It will give them an opportunity to get educated now, give them an opportunity to get vocational training now, a GED now, a college education now, give them the opportunity, in a bipartisan way, to make a difference in their lives in so many areas. Any objective reading of this bill is that it will improve their quality of life.

And what is so wonderful about this is that you have the right and the left, conservatives and progressives, united in this effort.

Nothing meaningful is ever easy, but the mass incarceration epidemic has been with us for almost 50 years. You will not just take one legislative magic wand and wipe it away in one shot. It will require sustained effort, sustained intensity, sustained commitment, and a meaningful first step. That is what this bill represents.

Mr. Speaker, I urge all of my colleagues to support this effort to transform lives, save taxpayer dollars, and dramatically reduce recidivism now.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Washington (Ms. JAYAPAL), a distinguished member of the Judiciary Committee.

Ms. JAYAPAL. Mr. Speaker, there is one thing everybody agrees on, and that is that it is past time that we face the truth and fix racial inequity that is built into every single step of our mass incarceration system.

We know that mass incarceration disproportionately affects people of color and that, today, women in prison are, once again, the fastest growing demographic, frequently caught up with the arrests of their partners and struggling with mental health and addiction.

This bill does take important steps forward, and I want to say that it is a very good faith effort on the part of the bill’s two sponsors: my friend HAKEEM JEFFRIES and Representative DOUG COLLINS.

Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, I still am not going to be able to support the bill because I have serious concerns about work and on for a first step, and implements a new risk assessment system on a very quick timeline by someone who, frankly, has spent his career opposing criminal justice reforms and, in fact, has fought attempts to advance justice, and that is Attorney General Sessions.

This is especially concerning given that research shows us that risk assessments produce racial disparities. And this bill does not address sentencing reform, which is an issue that has bipartisan support and is the crux of the problem today.

In addition, Mr. Speaker, I am very concerned about language in the bill that excludes immigrants from being eligible for time credits. The bill excludes longtime, legal permanent residents, green card holders, who may have committed the exact same crimes as others and may be eligible for relief under U.S. law. If we are making re-entry services available for immigrants, regardless of immigration status, for the same set of crimes?

Moreover, continued incarceration of these people simply based upon citizenship status is a waste of taxpayer dollars and unnecessarily keeps families separated.

The reality is that these are deeply important issues, and this bill shows that we have the capacity to work in a bipartisan way. Even with all of the good work already done for a first step, and unfortunately, I believe we have more work to do to get to the place where our morals are being consistently applied.

I look forward to doing everything I can to work on this.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, I am prepared to close whenever the gentleman from New York is, and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I have one further speaker, and then I will be prepared to close.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. J JACKSON LEE), the distinguished ranking member of the Subcommittee on Crime, Terrorism, Homeland Security, and Investigations.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Mr. Speaker, I too, want to offer my appreciation for all of my colleagues—in particular, those who have offered this legislation. I recall, in the Congress preceding this, we offered a bipartisan combination of comprehensive criminal justice reform to reduce prison reform and sentencing reform, and were really on the way to passing that combination of very important partnership. Unfortunately, the politics of that time got in the way.

But my appreciation to Mr. JEFFRIES and Mr. COLLINS. It really is the coming together of Members. Mr. NADLER worked very hard to inject very important provisions, as well as many other Members. And they even did so on the day of the vote, and all but one that Mr. RICHMOND, Ms. JACKSON LEE, Ms. JAYAPAL, and Mrs. DEMINGS put in on retroactivity failed in the committee.

So let me give an open letter to the mothers and fathers of incarcerated persons who are in our constituency and, as well, to those inmates who may, by chance, be looking at this debate. Having recently visited one of the Federal centers, I know that inmates are astute and concerned about their future.

So I think it is important to establish to those parents why Democrats have consistently tried to sew together, tried to stitch together the idea of sentencing reduction and prison reform.

Elements of this bill are striking and good. But to a mom, is it more exciting for you to know that your son, who had or who may have had one because of mandatory minimums, and you, who are incarcerated, have your sentence reduced than maybe on the back end?

Now, it is important to note that all of those who have served, will participate in the rehabilitation programs, but it is also important to note that the Bureau of Prisons has closed halfway houses. That is a component of this bill. And they have reduced and cut the numbers of individuals who are corrections officers to the extent that corrections officers feel endangered and that augmentation has been used.

Augmentation means that nurses and teachers and others who are inside the prison are being used to augment the staff of correction officers which have been fired—or terminated, rather—under this administration.

In a letter from the BOP union president, they indicated that they are searches that could be difficult to implement this bill without those aspects being remedied—meaning more staff, more halfway houses, more money to implement this program.

So many of my friends have asked me: What is the harm? Let me give you what is the harm.

First, it would divert limited resources for programming by requiring a complex risk assessment process that would primarily benefit people deemed at a low or minimum risk of recidivism.

That means, if you came in with a harsh drug sentence but through the years, Dad or Mom, you saw your son or daughter fix their lives, you would note that they, in fact, would not be eligible for this program.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman has expired.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman an additional 30 seconds.

Ms. JACKSON LEE. Mr. Speaker, without provisions in the bill to reduce the excessive sentencing produced by mandatory minimums for drug offenses, overcrowding will still persist, and thereby divert resources from programs to reduce recidivism.

Let me be very clear: The corrections officers indicate they don’t have the staff to open halfway houses.

In addition, it is documented that, if your son or daughter has an offense that was considered excluded and they have repaired their life, through the prison they have made changes, they will not be eligible—not for the program, but they will not be eligible for relief.

So it is a first step. But I would simply say: If it is the first step, why not protection of immigrants? And, also, why not have a sentencing reform that addresses the issue which is the first step closed.

Let us work together for what is good, Mr. Speaker. Let us make a difference in the lives of all of the inmates.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak on H.R. 5682, the ”FIRST STEP Act of 2018” and thank my colleagues, Mr. JEFFRIES and Mr. COLLINS for bringing this forward. This legislation purports to help reduce recidivism for the millions of formerly incarcerated people that will return to our communities. I respectfully reserve the right to voice my concerns with this bill.

First, as the NY Times editorial noted, “the biggest problem with the FIRST STEP Act is . . . what’s left out, specifically, sentencing reform.” Eric Holder said in the Washington Post, “by choosing a tepid approach, the prison reform bill abandons years of work and risks making it harder for Congress to advance more serious legislation in the future. Meaningful sentencing reform will be less likely to occur if the narrow prison bill is enacted.”

Even President Trump specifically stated during his remarks at the White House Prison Reform Summit last Friday, “we want the finest prison reform bill that you could have anywhere.” I agree with the President on this, as I also want the finest prison reform bill. Hence, I continue to fight for the very best legislation that will adequately address the nearly 650,900 formerly incarcerated people that will return to our communities a year. That’s not partisan or personal politics, but rather, common sense, just and equitable politics.

Imagine you are the mother, child or loved one of an incarcerated person that was robbed by a system that played Russian roulette with his or her life because that system decided they were criminals rather than victims of a public health crisis during the crack epidemic. Now imagine that same system, rather than remediating the tragedy it caused in broken homes and communities through inept policies that had a racial and economic disparate impact, now seeks to put them on the bad books and further insulate an entire race by feeding them crumbs.

As a mother or loved one, you would demand that the system cure the defect in those sentencing laws that would drastically reduce his or her time in custody, and apply justice equitably. What we forget what happened in the 1964 Crime Bill. Congress has the power to do that. We should hold ourselves accountable to deliver on the promise we made when we acknowledged the draconian policies implemented during the “War on Drugs” crisis, in passing the Fair Sentencing Act. Let’s finish what we started then, by appealing to our better angels and not crucify each other because we disagree.

As Families Against Mandatory Minimum indicated in their letter, “sentencing reform should be included in any final justice reform package.”

Second, even if the majority chose to ignore sentencing reform due to pressure, we cannot sit idly by and allow a slim-fast version of prison reform when dealing with the lives of millions of our neighbors.

I will not apologize for demanding more from my colleagues. I will not apologize for fighting with every breath I have to secure justice for those left behind. And I will not apologize for doing my job and shedding light where there is none, even when we have in good faith, tried our best. We will all go home tonight. What about those that have longed for that same freedom after they’ve paid their debts to society. We owe it to ourselves, to the thousands of broken families, and to our society, to give each inmate that will return to our community, their best chance at success, by providing them incentives that will get them home to their families sooner also.

Even the bill’s supporter at markup said in their letter, “the bill unwisely reserves its incentivized programming for those who already pose little threat of re-offending”, for example, those that would commit the sort of crimes alleged against Kushner and others within Trump’s orbit. The supporters go on to say, “We fear that the bill’s failure to direct incentivized programming to the group that needs it most will result in little or no reduction in recidivism, and, worse, that failure will be blamed on prisoners rather than the bill’s mistaken design.” Most alarming here, is that great skepticism looms even in those who want to see the bill passed. And for good reason. The Act is potentially racially and socially discriminatory risk assessment to identify individuals who are eligible to earn credits, which primarily depends on static factors that correlate with socioeconomic class and race, such as criminal history, to assess the risk of recidivism, it will likely fail to reduce crime or mass incarceration.

The Act’s exclusions would likely have a disparate impact on racial minorities because the bill excludes individuals convicted of certain categories of offenses from redeeming credits towards early release, even if they successfully complete the program. The Act leaves it to the discretion of prison wardens to determine who can use their credits and when. Early release would be into a halfway house system that is so underfunded that there is no bed space. Therefore, it will be unlikely that prisoners can truly be released given the reality of the current halfway house system.

The Act gives a false sense of hope because it wraps the empty promise of prison reform around exclusions and wide breadth of discretion to a full-throated opponent to prison reform, policing reform and sentencing reform, in Jeff Sessions. BOP already has broad authority to implement the positive provisions of the bill, but has opted not to and Sessions cannot be trusted to implement these provisions. The FIRST STEP Act includes a list of prisoners who are ineligible for time credits if they participate in recidivism reduction programs by virtue of their convictions for certain offenses. Prisoners who are excluded from time credits are those convicted under Title 18, in the following sections:

(i) Section 113(a)(1), relating to assault
(ii) Section 115, relating to influencing, impeding, or retaliating against a Federal official by injury or threats
(iii) Any section of chapter 10, relating to biological weapons.

(iv) Any section of chapter 11B, relating to chemical weapons.
(v) Section 351, relating to Congressional, Cabinet, and Supreme Court assassination, kidnapping, and assault.
(vi) Section 793, relating to gathering, transmitting, or possessing false evidence.
(vii) Section 794, relating to gathering or delivering defense information to aid a foreign government.
(viii) Any section of chapter 39, relating to explosives and other dangerous articles, except for section 856 (relating to the transportation of fireworks into a State prohibiting sale or use).
(ix) Section 842(p), relating to distribution of information relating to explosive, destructive devices, and weapons of mass destruction, but only if the conviction involved a weapon of mass destruction (as defined in section 2332a(c)(2) of such title).
(x) Subsection (f)(3), (h), or (i) of section 844, relating to the use of fire or an explosive.
(xii) Section 924(e), relating to unlawful possession of a firearm by a person with 3 or more convictions for a violent felony.
(xii) Section 1030(a)(1), relating to fraud and related activity in connection with computers.
(xii) Any section of chapter 51, relating to murder, except for section 1112 (relating to an attempt), 1113 (relating to attempt to commit murder or manslaughter, but only if the conviction was for an attempt to commit manslaughter), 1115 (relating to misconduct or neglect of ship officers), or 1122 (relating to protection against the human immunodeficiency virus).
(xiv) Any section of chapter 55, relating to kidnapping.
(xv) Any offense under chapter 77, relating to peonage, slavery, and trafficking in persons, except for sections 1592 through 1596.
(xvi) Section 1751, relating to Presidential and Federal staff assassination, kidnapping, and assault.
(xvii) Section 1841(a)(2)(C), relating to intentionally killing or attempting to kill an unborn child.
(xviii) Section 1992, relating to terrorist attacks and other violence against railroad carriers and against mass transportation systems on land, on water, or through the air.
(xix) Section 2113(e), relating to bank robbery resulting in death.
(xx) Section 2118(c)(2), relating to robberies and burglaries involving controlled substances resulting in death.
(xxi) Section 2119(3), relating to taking a motor vehicle (commonly referred to as "carjacking") that results in death.
(xxii) Any section of chapter 105, relating to sabotage, except for section 2152.
(xxiii) Any section of chapter 109A, relating to sexual abuse, except that with regard to section 2244, only a conviction under subsection (c) of that section (relating to abusive sexual contact involving young children) shall make a person ineligible under this subparagraph.
(xxiv) Section 2251, relating to the sexual exploitation of children.
(xxv) Section 2251A, relating to the selling or buying of children.
Any of paragraphs (1) through (3) of section 2352(a), relating to certain activities relating to material involving the sexual exploitation of minors.
“(xxvii) A second or subsequent conviction under any of paragraphs (1) through (6) of section 2252A(a), relating to certain activities relating to material constituting or containing child pornography.

“(xxviii) Section 2260, relating to the production of and transmissions of a minor for importation into the United States.

“(xxix) Section 2283, relating to the transportation of explosive, biological, chemical, or radioactive or nuclear materials.

“(xxx) Section 2264, relating to the transportation of explosives and incendiary devices.

“(xxxi) Section 2291, relating to the destruction of a vessel or maritime facility, but only if the conduct which led to the conviction involved a substantial risk of death or serious bodily injury.

“(xxxii) Any section of chapter 113B, relating to terrorism.

“(xxxiii) Section 2340A, relating to torture.

“(xxxiv) Section 2381, relating to treason.

“The exclusions also apply to convictions under the following sections of Title 42, Title 49, Title 21, Title 8 and Title 50:

“(xxxv) Section 57(b) of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2077(b)), relating to the engagement or participation in the development or production of special nuclear material.

“(xxxvi) Section 92 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2131), relating to the atomic, energy, license requirement.

“(xxxvii) Section 224 or 225 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2274, 2275), relating to any communication or receipt of restricted data.

“(x) Section 236 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 (42 U.S.C. 2284), relating to the sabotage of nuclear facilities or fuel.

“(xi) Section 60123(b) of title 49, United States Code, relating to damaging or destroying a pipeline facility, but only if the conduct which led to the conviction involved a substantial risk of death or serious bodily injury.

“(xii) Section 401(a) of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. 841), relating to the manufacturing, distributing, importing, or possessing a controlled substance, but only in the case of a conviction for an offense described in subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of subsection (b)(1) of that section for which death or serious bodily injury resulted from the use of such substance.

“(xiii) Section 276(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1326), relating to the reentry of a removed alien, but only if the alien is described in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b) of that section.

“(xv) Section 601 of the National Security Act of 1947 (50 U.S.C. 3121), relating to the protection of identities of certain United States undercover intelligence officers, agents, informants, and sources.

“The exclusions also apply to those prisoners convicted of a prior Federal or State “serious violent felony,” as described in (Title 18):

“(xvi) An offense described in section 3559(c)(2)(F), for which the offender was sentenced to a term of imprisonment of more than one year, if the offender has a previous conviction, for which the offender served a term of imprisonment of more than one year, for a Federal or State offense, by whatever designation and wherever committed, consisting of (A) murder (as described in section 1111), voluntary manslaughter (as described in section 1112), assault with intent to commit murder (as described in section 113(a)), aggravated sexual abuse and sexual abuse (as described in sections 2241 and 2242), abusive sexual contact (as described in sections 2244(a)(1) and (a)(2)), kidnapping (as described in chapter 55), carjacking (as described in section 2191), arson (as described in section 844(f)(3), (h), or (i)), or terrorism (as described in chapter 10).

“Finally, prisoners may not obtain credit for participation in recidivism reduction programs if they: (1) completed recidivism reduction programming prior to enactment of the Act; (2) completed recidivism reduction programming during official detention before moving to Bureau of Prisons; or (3) are inadmissible or deportable under immigration law.

THE LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE ON CIVIL AND HUMAN RIGHTS, MAY 22, 2018.

VOTE ‘NO’ ON THE FIRST STEP ACT

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: On behalf of The Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights, and the 109 undersigned organizations, we write to urge you to vote NO on the FIRST STEP Act (H.R. 5682). While well intentioned, this bill takes a misguided approach to reforming our federal justice system.

Without acknowledging the inclusion of some promising provisions to address some of the problems in the federal prison system, however, the Bureau of Prisons (BOP) already has broad authority to make the majority of these changes through administrative action. In sum, this bill falls short on its promise to “meaningfully” tackle the problems in the federal justice system—racial disparities, draconian mandatory minimum sentences, persistent overcrowding, lack of rehabilitation, and the exacerbation of the war on drugs. Decisions we make now through this bill could have deep implications for our ability to impact the alarming and concerning harms that lead to mass incarceration.

As such, we continue to have several, grave concerns with The FIRST STEP Act, including:

The Dangerous “Risk Assessment System”: The Act purports to offer people in prison the chance to “earn time credits” towards early release to pre-release custody—but by building and placing a “risk and needs assessment” algorithm in the hands of the Attorney General—one not required to be designed or tailored for the individuals it is meant to judge—we risk embedding deep racial and class bias into decisions that heavily impact futures of federal prisoners and their families.

Researchers have shown that risk assessment tools applied in sentencing decisions in Florida—where the algorithm is twice as likely to be wrong when evaluating Black people as White people. One of the first independent studies of the use of risk assessment in pretrial showed that decisionmakers using risk assessment tools—in this case, Kentucky judges—ignored the algorithm while also overseeing an increase in failures-to-appear at court and an increase in pretrial arrests. A further recent analysis showed that risk assessment systems make a predictive decision made by a random human selected over the Internet.

We cannot introduce algorithmic risk assessment into the assignment of housing and release decisions or rehabilitative opportunities without sufficient transparency, independence testing for reductive-racism risk results prior to implementation, and regular effective oversight for not just what the tool purports to predict, but how decisionmakers use our prisons system. The Act uses “risk assessments” in an untested manner. It fails to ensure transparency, independent testing, or analysis of the proposed risk assessment system or its results prior to its adoption or implementation. And again, it doesn’t require the tool to be designed or tailored for the individuals it is meant to judge.

Without these things, and in the hands of the nation’s most prominent proponent of a racially targeted punitive, rehabilitative criminal justice system, “risk assessments” will further embed racism into the meting out of resources that could change prisoners’ lives—like access to treatment, work, and most importantly, the ability to earn time off of a sentence.

The Overbroad List of Exclusions: The majority of people in prison will not be released. Categorically excluding entire groups of people from receiving early-release credits will undermine efforts to reduce prison overcrowding and improve public safety, because such exclusions weaken the incentive to participate in recidivism-reduction programming. Furthermore, many of these exclusions, such as those based on immigration-related offenses, could have a disproportional impact on people of color.

The Misplaced Incentive System: Effectively reducing recidivism requires targeting those most likely to reoffend with rehabilitative programming. Yet, under this bill, only “minimum” and “low-risk” prisoners would be able to redeem their earned time credits, and they would earn more credits than prisoners categorized as “medium” or “high-risk.” Given that time credits would also be subject to denial by the BOP warden and they are not real time off of a sentence but rather a flawed mechanism to transition into a decreased number of halfway houses or to home confinement that is rarely used by BOP, the bill is unlikely to provide the incentives that would meaningfully reduce recidivism.

Allows for the privatization of certain public functions and allows private entities to profit from incarceration. The bill retains a provision that in order to expand programming and productive activities, the Attorney General shall develop policies for wardens of each BOP facility to enter into partnerships with private entities and industry-sponsored organizations.

The Absence of Appropriations for Implementation: The resources necessary to expand programming authorized under the bill have not been—and may never be—appropriated. In fact, Congress could decide today, absent this legislation, that programming should be funded and increase the BOP’s budget by $50 million a year for the next five

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

Re FIRST STEP Act, H.R. 5682, falls far short of meaningful criminal justice reform.

Hon. Paul D. Ryan, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Hon. Nancy Pelosi, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

Hon. Mitch McConnell, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. Charles E. Schumer, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Dear Speaker Ryan, Majority Leader McConnell and Minority Leader Pelosi and Schumer:

As Congress prepares to consider the FIRST STEP Act, I write to express The Sentencing Project’s significant concerns regarding the bill’s deficiencies in addressing the overcrowding, staffing and safety of incarcerated people in the Bureau of Prisons (BOP). Reform of the federal prison and sentencing system is long overdue and The Sentencing Project has been at the forefront of reform efforts. While this bill recommends to ensure a more humane, fair and proportional system for more than two decades, unfortunately, H.R. 5682 falls short of these objectives in two key areas. First, it would divert limited resources for programming requiring a complex risk assessment process that would primarily benefit people deemed at a low or minimal risk of recidivating. Second, without provisions in the bill to reduce the excessive sentencing produced by mandatory minimums for drug offenses, overcrowding will persist and thereby divert resources from programs to reduce recidivism.

The federal prison system currently operates at 14 percent above capacity, and at higher rates at high and medium security institutions, 24 percent and 18 percent respectively. Along with an “inmate to correctional officer” ratio among the highest in the country at 8.9 to 1, prison safety concerns are at critical levels. Indeed, the rate for some types of assaults in federal prisons has steadily increased since 2014. In order to truly reform the federal prison system, including improving conditions of confinement in areas such as medical and mental health care, and to comprehensively reform the bill to reduce the over-sentencing produced by mandatory minimums for drug offenses, overcrowding will persist and thereby divert resources from programs to reduce recidivism.

For the foregoing reasons, we urge you to vote ‘No’ on the FIRST STEP Act and The Leadership Conference will include a position on the bill in our voting scorecard for the 115th Congress.

Sincerely,

years. Instead, the FY19 BOP budget calls for a reduction. Furthermore, the recidivism re-duction programming that currently exists in the federal prison system is grossly under-funded and fails to serve those currently incarcerated. Therefore, without any guarantees that the necessary funding will be appropriated, this bill is an empty promise.

The Undetermined Human and Fiscal Impact: It is unclear what the fiscal impact of this bill will be, given that the Congressional Budget Office has released a score for the bill. Moreover, it is unclear what the human impact of this bill will be, given that neither the Bureau of Prisons nor the Sentencing Commission has produced updated estimates on the number of people projected to be impacted by the legislation. Proponents argue that at least 4,000 people will be impacted by the good-time fix alone; however, relying on that number is misleading because it is based upon data that is over a decade old. No hearings have been held, and there is no CBO score available in order to explore these questions further.

The Omission of Sentencing Reform: Sentencing reform is an important, but one will not work without the other. Meaningful reform requires both. Furthermore, advancing prison reform as a stand-alone issue undermines bi-partisan efforts in the Senate to advance a comprehensive justice reform package that includes sentencing reform.

Lastly, as signed over by 70 civil rights organizations in opposing this well-intentioned, but misguided legislation at the House Judiciary Committee markup, many of our concerns were also shared by the American Federation of Government Employees representing 33,000 federal correctional workers in the Bureau of Prisons, as well as lawmakers in the United States Senate, led by Senators Durbin, Booker, and Harris in a recent Dear Colleague letter. While we appreciate the inclination to support legislation that endeavors to reform our prison system, we believe that this particular bill would do more harm than good and would have unintended consequences that ripple into the future.

Finally, if presented with one choice, “to take what we can get,” then we must ensure that we can ‘get’ will exacerbate the existing harms of mass incarceration or give false hope to the men and women languishing in prison and the communities that suffer. Our communities are being demonized and criminalized so we must stand firm to resist the lure of a compromise that is ultimately a false promise that may never be realized and isn’t in their best interests.

For the foregoing reasons, we urge you to vote ‘No’ on the FIRST STEP Act and The Leadership Conference will include a position on the bill in our voting scorecard for the 115th Congress.

Sincerely,

The Sentencing Project is pleased by the growing bipartisan consensus among lawmakers to prioritize change in the nation's criminal justice system. We will continue to be a part of this conversation and look for-... removal. The bill also excludes those who have been convicted of drug crimes, including marijuana related convictions.

Given that immigrant and minority communities make up a disproportionate share of immigration and drug related offenders in the criminal justice system, these exclusions will be of little consequence by their very nature exclude those who most need the benefits of the bill.

Finally, any conversation about reducing recidivism must include sentencing reform that would keep low risk nonviolent offenders out of prison so that we are voting on today isunnecessary, as the bill explicitly states. The version of the bill we are voting on today is unnecessarily and will stand in the way of reducing recidivism for many prisoners. The risk assessment process may also exacerbate existing racial disparities in the federal prison system.

Second, experts have raised serious concerns about excluding groups of prisoners from this program who we know will be released from prison and therefore should be included in the program.

Third, there are questions of cost and funding. The Bureau of Prisons has cut contracts with halfway houses and terminated 6,000 correctional officers. Appropriations and yes, we are only good faith efforts to improve the reintegration of incarcerated individuals to participate in evidence-based programs to reduce their likelihood of recidivism. It is a bill that is supported by prominent civil rights and criminal justice reform organizations such as the National Urban League and the Texas Criminal Justice Coalition. It passed the House Judiciary Committee on a 25–5 vote, and I feel even more confidently about its passage on the House floor.

Mr. Speaker, there is no doubt that this Congress can do more to not only reduce recidivism through “back-end reform,” but also engage in “front-end reform” to keep individuals out of prison in the first place. However, we must consider a bill entirely on its merits and not just oppose a measure because it does not go far enough in its reforms. The FIRST STEP Act is exactly that—a first step to make meaningful and impactful changes to our prison system.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODLATTE) that the House suspend the rules and pass the bill, H.R. 5682, as amended.

The question was taken. The SPEAKER pro tempore. In the opinion of the Chair, two-thirds being in the affirmative, the ayes have it.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays. The yeas and nays were ordered. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this motion will be postponed.

AUTHORIZING USE OF CAPITOL GROUNDS FOR GREATER WASHINGTON SOAP BOX DERBY

Mr. BARLETTA. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and agree to the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 113) authorizing the use of the Capitol Grounds for the Greater Washington Soap Box Derby.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution. The text of the concurrent resolution is as follows:
