The Senate met at 2:30 p.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. HATCH).

PRAYER
The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Almighty God, who has given us this good land for our heritage, help us to be grateful for Your favor and eager to do Your will. Bless our citizens with honorable work, sound learning, exemplary conduct, and faithful service. Keep our Senators true to You. Use them to defend our liberties and to unify our Nation for the good of humanity.

Lord, give our lawmakers the spirit of wisdom that they may work for justice, as they strive to approve what is excellent. Inspire them to glorify You in all they think, say, and do.

We pray in Your merciful Name.

Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE
The President pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME
The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Hoeven). Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate is in a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak therein for up to 10 minutes each for debate only. The Senator from Ohio.

REMEMBERING GEORGE H.W. BUSH
Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. President, today I want to talk about the loss of a great American. I want to talk about George H.W. Bush. On C-SPAN, I was watching the coverage of what is going on in the Rotunda now, and there are hundreds of people crowded around his casket, paying tribute to this great man. They have been there all day. They will be there all night. Friends of mine from Ohio are in town who never met him but knew of him and were inspired by him. We were all inspired by him.

George Bush did it all. He was a war hero—youngest naval pilot at age 18, shot down over the Pacific. He was the last President, by the way, to serve in combat. He was also a Member of the U.S. Congress and proud of that. Prior to that, he was a successful business leader in Texas. He was an ambassador to the United Nations. He was CIA Director. He was Envoy to China—the first one. He was Vice President of the United States, and he was President, of course, during one of the most momentous times in our Nation's history. What a life.

In his absence, our country is losing a lifelong patriot, a guiding voice, and the embodiment of the very best of America. For me, President Bush was also my mentor. I was very blessed early in my career to have been able to work for him. He brought me into his White House when I was a young man trying to figure out my way in life. I would not be in this crazy business of politics but for him—not just because he gave me opportunities to work for him but because he showed me you could do this work of public service and politics with honor and dignity and respect.

He showed that nice guys can finish first. He showed that his approach—kinder and gentler, as he would call it in 1988—was something that indeed you could achieve here, even in the Halls of Congress.

I have a special reason to be so grateful: also, so sad about his departure because I relied on him for advice and counsel. He rarely gave it proactively, but when asked, he always had the wisdom of years and the judgment that so many of us will miss so badly.

He took a chance on me as a young lawyer from Cincinnati, OH, to come into his White House as his Associate Counsel to the President. He then took a chance on me to join his legislative affairs team, to be Director of the White House Office of Legislative Affairs.

To be frank, I was not particularly qualified for either job. I had only worked on the Hill briefly as an intern. I was not nearly as distinguished as the other members of the legal team who had been mostly Supreme Court clerks, but it made me work all the harder to try to earn his trust and his respect.
He didn’t just give me a job. He taught me about being a leader, a public servant, being a better husband and father. He showed me what servant leadership meant, what it looked like in practice, and I try to work every day to live up to that example. He was one of the most kind and honorable people I have ever met—in politics or otherwise. He saw himself as a servant. That is what motivated him. He saw himself as a public servant when he signed up to become a young Navy pilot, flying dangerous bomber missions. That sense of service, duty, and patriotism was why, years later, after a successful business career, he decided to put it on the line, run for the U.S. Congress.

By the way, I have noticed this week there has been a lot of discussion about all of his successes, and there are so many. One thing people might forget is that he was also resilient. He had setbacks in his life—certainly the death of his beloved daughter Robin at the age of 3—but he ran for the Senate twice in the State of Texas and lost. He didn’t give up. He bounced back. He was resilient. He was tough.

When he was asked to serve as U.N. Ambassador to China during the Reagan administration, he stepped in precisely because of his devotion to service. When he was asked to chair the Republican National Committee—an exceptionally tough time for the Republican Party, not a task most people wanted to take on—he took it on. When he was asked to become the first envoy to the new independent state of Germany, but he did it carefully, diplomatically, with respect. He knew Mikhail Gorbachev was in a tough position, so he handled the fall of the wall and, more importantly, the transition in Eastern Europe and Central Europe, again, with diplomacy and with respect for Gorbachev and the people—the millions of people who were affected.

The role he played as Commander in Chief was Desert Storm. He was there and the work they did and how, in many respects, they were on the frontlines for all of us.

I remember stories being told about him, including one I will never forget, which is that Directors for years had gone into the CIA and then taken their own private elevator up to their office, which makes sense. It is a big job. George Bush wouldn’t take that private elevator. He insisted on going on the employee elevator every morning. Why? As he said to me later: Because I think that’s what the people who are working there and the people there and the work they did and how, in many respects, they were on the frontlines for all of us.

which makes that comment easier, but the point is that he insisted that we get the American people behind that conflict, and it ended up being not just a relatively popular military fight, which was successful, but one that the American people understood because of the debate that happened here on the floor of the Congress, in the House and Senate, of what the stakes were.

He never chose to do things just because they were easy. The easiest thing would have been to go ahead without seeking approval from Congress. He made his decisions on what he thought was the right thing to do, and that was the kind of man he was.

There has been a lot of talk this week about his “thousand points of light” proposal. The Points of Light foundation continues today doing incredibly good work all around the country with people volunteering to help other citizens. He believed everybody had a responsibility and an opportunity to be a part of the change that moves our country forward to a better and brighter future, and that is what Points of Light is about. It resonated with Americans and continues to spur action and encourage cooperation where people give up their time and service. I do think it is just as important to have some bright guiding lights as it is to have the “thousand points of light,” and that is what he provided. He was the guiding light as an example for all the rest of us.

Throughout his incredible life he didn’t just tell us what it meant to lead, to serve others, or to be guided by what was right. In fact, that was not his style. He was not the lecturer. He didn’t consider himself a great philosopher. He led by example. He showed us. Again, I will be forever grateful for that.

He was also a person who put a lot of value on people and on relationships. He believed quite simply that building and strengthening relationships was incredibly important to building trust, which means people could come together to solve problems and which meant that you could achieve consensus, more importantly. He put that to work in the Congress. Being a liaison to Congress was relatively easy because he had so many friends. Even though he had only been here for a couple terms, he had so many friends—Republicans and Democrats. Relationship building was important to him.

It was important, for him to deepen the ties among nations to create a stronger, safer, and more prosperous world—whether it was Mikhail Gorbatchev, whom I talked about earlier, who was his friend to the end, or whether it was different Canadian foreign ministers, from Canada. I know that tomorrow there will be a number of heads of state who will be here for the funeral. This helped us as a country by having those relationships and building those relationships of trust to be able to build a safer and less volatile world.

He is known for writing these handwritten notes, and a lot of attention has been paid recently to the class and humility he displayed with the note he left for incoming President Bill Clinton on the day he assumed office, where he wished him well, but it goes beyond that.

He was personable and respected everywhere. A lot of his friends were Democrats. One example I thought was striking was a Congressman from Ohio. I am from Ohio, and I knew of this Congressman, who was a liberal guy. He was a Democrat named Lud Ashley, from Toledo. His relationship with Lud Ashley transcended politics. They were good friends.

I am told that just before his term as President ended, he and Barbara Bush invited two couples to the White House—Lud Ashley, the Democrat from Toledo, and his wife were at that dinner. It is just another example of George Bush’s reaching out, being a people person first. That aspect earned him a lot of goodwill on Capitol Hill, across both parties.

I have been in the habit since the 1990s of going up to Maine, to Kennebunkport, in the summer to visit President Bush, sometimes with members of my family, sometimes alone, or with members of Barbara Bush’s. It is always a great visit. It is always an opportunity to talk about people—again, focusing on people. His questions to me were sometimes about policy and what was going on, but often it was about this: What do you think of that Senator or that U.S. representative? What is he like? What is she like? Tell me about them.

Until the end he was curious. I was with him in September of this year for our last visit, and although he wasn’t speaking as much, he was as curious as ever and asking questions and, of course, willing to give me a little advice, all of which I treasure. A few years ago, back in 2015, you may remember he had a health scare. He had fallen and broken a bone in his neck, and he was in tough shape. I was up there for a visit. I had made plans to visit him before his injury occurred, but once it happened I thought I had better do something different, a little special. So I got a baseball, and I wrote: George H.W. Bush, America’s first baseman. I asked if a couple of my colleagues would be willing to sign it. Folks, when people found out this baseball was going to George H.W. Bush, everybody wanted to sign it.

I got a get-well card about this big—the biggest one I could find—and asked a couple colleagues who would be willing to sign it. Folks, everybody wanted to sign it. By the end of the process we had about 95 signatures on that baseball and on that get-well card. Why? Because everybody wanted to be a part of sending this message to the beloved former President.

He loved it. When I handed him the baseball, and, of course, he was very curious to see who had signed it. One of his questions to me, which was typical of George Bush, was this: Did so-and-so sign it?

The names he recited were some of the more partisan Democrats on the floor. One, as I recall, was whether Harry Reid had signed it, and, sure enough, he had, proudly. That made George Bush so happy. His eyes shown, and he smiled. He knew that those messages of encouragement to him were heartfelt—and they were.

Finally, it is impossible to talk about George H.W. Bush and Barbara Bush without talking about Barbara Pierce Bush. They were a partnership, and what an example for all of us. Seventy-three years together—they were a true team. They put family first, always. That has been a great lesson to my wife Jane and me and our family—to watch how they navigated this crazy political world we were in, and yet they kept their family strong and together to this day.

We saw the family yesterday. Every one of those children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren were coming with love and respect for their grandparents and great-grandparents.

That unconditional support and love that Barbara Bush and George had for one another formed a very equal relationship. Their children were opinionated, and George Bush respected that, and he respected and loved her. Those relationships in the family are what gave him so much strength, in my view. As much as anything for him it was always about family as the foundation.

He was also a man of deep faith. He didn’t wear it on his sleeve, but he believed that he was going to rejoin Barbara. To him that was a blessing. He also believed that he was going to see his daughter Robin, whom they lost way too soon. That was a blessing.

As we mourn the death of President George H.W. Bush, we can find comfort in knowing that he has been returned to those beloved family members.

Jane and I send our condolences to the entire Bush family and to his many, many close friends. At the close of this truly great American life and this guiding light, let us honor his legacy by following his example of patriotism, public service, and civility. Godspeed, George Bush.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Ms. KLOBUCHAR. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize our former President George H.W. Bush, and I want to thank my colleague Senator PORTMAN from Ohio for those personal memories. I now will always remember that baseball story. It is an example of what he stood for, and that is that he actually cared that there were people of both parties who would sign that baseball. I want to thank Senator PORTMAN for carrying on that torch of working across the aisle.

President Bush dedicated his entire life to the United States. His first service was as a decorated Navy pilot, as we know, who risked his life during World War II and in 1944 was shot down in the Pacific. That selfless sacrifice was not enough. He went on to spend 40 years in public service as a Congressman from Texas, as an Ambassador to the United Nations, as U.S. Envoy to China, as Director of the CIA, and then, of course, as Vice President and then President.

He wore so many hats during his time in service, but through it all he was a true statesman who treated both his friends and his rivals with grace and dignity.

He always viewed the world through the lens of history, which was often the guiding force in his approach to diplomacy in dealing with the rest of the world.

As President, he helped to bring an end to four decades of the Cold War and the threat of nuclear engagement as democracy spread throughout Eastern Europe, and he signed the bipartisan Americans with Disabilities Act, which had a lasting impact in expanding the rights of Americans with disabilities.

His commitment to his country was unshakable, and he instilled this value in his own children.

For George H.W. Bush, patriotism was bigger than political rivalries. In 1993, as he departed the White House, he left a note, which many of us saw for the first time this week. It was a note that he left for President Clinton, who had defeated President Bush in the Presidential election just two months before he signed that letter. President Bush said:

You will be our President when you read this note. I wish you well. I wish your family well. Your success is now our country’s success. I am rooting hard for you.

He wrote that note just as he was turning over the keys to the Oval Office to someone who had just defeated him in an election campaign. President Bush was someone who fought hard on the campaign trail, but once the votes were cast, he understood the underlying truth of America—that people with different political views are not enemies, and when all is said and done, we can come together to advance the cause of America, not tear it down.

As Senator PORTMAN noted, President Bush’s death comes less than 8 months after the passing of former First Lady Barbara Bush, his wife of over 73 years. Never one to be a shrinker, she was fiercely loyal to her family and an outspoken advocate for causes she believed in. I always respected her directness. She was her own person. She loved her family and her country. And we remember her this week as well.

I was reading a story in our local Minneapolis paper. I did not know that President Bush actually trained in Minnesota in the middle of winter for a few months before he went over to serve in the Pacific. During that time, he wrote a number of letters to his own mother about his service. OK, maybe he complained about the Minnesota weather a little bit, but one of the more amusing parts of those letters was that he told her that Barbara was sending him some socks that she had knit for him down in Texas. He said in the letter that she said they don’t even look like socks, but when he received the socks, he said: They are actually not bad. They are good socks.

You literally could follow that part of his life in the letters he was writing back then to his mother. You could see the patriotism shine through. You could see what it was like for him to be away from home, how much he loved his family. That carried on to the very end of his life. He was still so kind in these notes and so sweet to his family members and to those who had been his friends for so very long.

As we pay tribute to President Bush’s tremendous record of service, we also must stay grounded in his respect for all public servants—not just the ones he agreed with—and his unwavering belief, in his own words, that “no definition of useful life can do anything but include serving others.” Of course, that service can come in many forms, as he showed in his own life. Some people may serve in the military. Some people may take on causes outside of government and volunteer. Others may work in law enforcement. Others may, of course, get elected or have the privilege to work in this Capitol for the people. President Bush lived that life, and America has lost a true leader.

My prayers are with the entire Bush family.

Thank you, Mr. President. I yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. PORTMAN). The clerk will call the roll.

The senior assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. COLLINS, Mr. President, on Ocean Avenue in Kennebunkport, ME, as a Navy aviator, and as Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, as Vice President and President, George H.W. Bush was entrusted with the great treasure of principles, determination, and courage. He invested that treasure wisely and multiplied it to the benefit of all—not just here in America but throughout the world.

Like the master in the New Testament, to him we say: Well done, good and faithful servant.

May God bless him, and may his memory always be anchored in our hearts.

Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CRUZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.
Mr. CRUZ. Mr. President, I rise today to honor the life and legacy of President George Herbert Walker Bush.

This week, American hearts are heavy as we bid farewell to our 41st President. Since we heard the news of his passing, we've been hearing that as we've gathered in our homes, offices, and places of worship, there has been a ceaseless stream of communications and commemorations and testimonies to President Bush's character from every corner of our Nation—from the worlds of politics, philanthropy, entertainment, business, the Armed Forces, and from our living ex-presidents. Even those who were his rivals and critics during his public life have returned to praise that life so well and honorably lived.

He will be remembered as a good and faithful servant to his country, whose great legacy of leadership and love of homeland became a family tradition. It earned him the admiration of countless Americans and secured him a special place in the memory of every Texan.

Over his storied career, President Bush was a war hero and a businessman, a legislator and an ambassador. His 8 years as Vice President prepared him well for the heavy burdens of the Nation's highest office in his steering our 38-year-old country through steady and strong hand at the helm through the fall of the Berlin Wall and the first Gulf war. Indeed, of his legacy as President, that calm, steady, strong leadership as America won the Cold War will, no doubt, endure the longest.

A great many of us in this body were blessed to know President Bush personally and to have had experiences in which he and Barbara touched our lives. For me, my favorite experience with President George Herbert Walker Bush occurred in 2009. In 2009, I was beginning a campaign for attorney general in the State of Texas. It appeared that the job would be vacant, and I was campaigning to fill it. I was running for office before President Bush invited me to go to the family home up in Kennebunkport, ME. So I got on a plane, and I flew up to Maine. I remember sitting on that plane, wondering what to say to him, what to ask of him. I didn't know President Bush; I didn't know Barbara.

I remember, at the end of the day, resolving that I wasn't going to ask for anything other than, simply, his advice, to say: Mr. President, you are an elder, the enduring legacy, a refuge and a fortress in Him. It ends with a sacrifice, commitment, and a patriotism that can be bestowed on the faithful warrior. "I shall satisfy him with a long life and grant him to see my salvation." We yield the floor.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, several years ago, after his 3-year-old daughter Robin passed away from leukemia, George Herbert Walker Bush wrote to his mother about how much he loved and missed his little girl. It is a beautiful, almost heartbreaking letter. Near the end, he wrote about his daughter's continued presence in his life and the life of his family. He said: "I cannot touch her and yet we feel her."

President Bush himself has now passed beyond our reach. Yet, knowing or not, we all feel the difference he made in the Nation and in the world. Many of us feel that feeling, longing for a "kindler, gentler" Nation that President Bush promised in his inaugural address 30 years ago.

December 4, 2018 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE S7263
George Herbert Walker Bush was an American patriot who devoted his life to his family and to his country. On his 18th birthday—6 months after Pearl Harbor—he enlisted in the U.S. Navy and became one of the youngest aviators in the history of the Navy. He was commissioned a month after Japan’s surrender, but he never stopped serving America.

There is a book entitled "Flyboys" that tells the story of the squadron George Herbert Walker Bush was a part of and ended the war they were given in the South Pacific. He flew some 58 missions as a Navy pilot. On his last assignment, he was shot down, and two of his crew were killed in that confrontation. Fortunately for us and for him, he was rescued by a submarine. There is a grizzly, black-and-white film of his being fished out of the ocean by the American submarine that is still an inspiration to this day.

As the 41st President of the United States and the father of the 43rd President, he was the linchpin of a political dynasty that spanned four generations. He already had a lifetime of public service before he became President—as a Texas Congressman, Ambassador to the United Nations, Envoy to China, Director of the CIA, and Vice President to Ronald Reagan.

Despite his extraordinary achievements, he was a man of remarkable humbleness. If his syntax sounded a little choppy at times—Dana Carvey made a fortune imitating him—it was partly due to the fact that George Herbert Walker Bush had difficulty using the words "I" and "me." When he was a young boy, his mother taught him those were the words of braggarts. Riding in the Presidential limousine through streets lined with cheering crowds, he once told a fellow passenger: "They’re not clapping for me; they’re clapping for the office of the President." That was exactly how he thought of it.

It was still a rather new Congressman when George Herbert Walker Bush was President. I sure didn’t agree with all of his policies, as my voting record demonstrates, but that is a discussion for another time. As President Bush’s own life shows us, there is a time for politics, and there is a time to put politics aside and to recall the exceptional lifetime of service he gave to our Nation.

President Reagan helped hurry the end of the Cold War, but it fell to President George Herbert Walker Bush to successfully navigate the aftermath. When the Berlin Wall fell in 1989, he insisted there would be no gloating or triumphalism from his administration. His low-key approach helped set the tone for our NATO allies, and it helped make possible the peaceful end of the Soviet Union. Never before had such a heavily armed empire ended with so little turmoil or bloodshed in its final days. In the 2 years before the collapse of the Soviet Union, President Bush and then-Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev successfully negotiated the START nuclear arms treaty. Under President George Herbert Walker Bush, we saw the largest reduction in nuclear weapons in history, and America and the world are safer today because of it.

If you want an example of enduring respect for President Bush, look at the statesmen and stateswomen expected to attend his memorial service tomorrow at the National Cathedral. Among them are Mikhail Gorbachev, his partner in historic change; and German Chancellor Angela Merkel, who grew up in Communist East Germany.

It is said that the Germans today credit George Herbert Walker Bush more than any person for their successful reunification. He knew that America is stronger when we work with partners than when we imagine we can somehow go it alone. When Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait in 1990, George Herbert Walker Bush methodically assembled an international coalition to push back the Saddam regime. He left his mark on domestic policy as well. He fought for and in 1990 signed the Americans with Disabilities Act—one of the greatest civil rights laws in our Nation’s modern history. President Bush, a committed conservative and a Texan by choice, had close ties to the oil industry, but he believed in science. What a welcome contrast to the current administration.

President Bush understood that poisoning our planet is not just unfair to future generations, it is bad for business, and it is bad for our economy. He helped build bipartisan support—this Republican President helped build bipartisan support—and signed the Clean Air Act of 1990, strengthening the Federal Government’s role and protecting the very air we breathe. He signed the Global Change Research Act of 1990, establishing an interagency council to improve understanding of global change and to devise a plan to reduce the risks of climate catastrophe. What a sharp contrast to the current administration.

George Herbert Walker Bush’s work was the work of a leader. Between 1980 and 1990, America’s budget deficit tripled to $220 billion, driven largely by the Reagan-era tax cuts. In 1990, with a lot of criticism, President Bush had the courage to sign a tax increase. President Reagan had before him—to help pay down the deficit for future generations. He put the interests of future generations ahead of his own short-term political advantage, and he paid a heavy price in the next election. He may have even lost because of it. Years later, he received a Profile in Courage Award for that leadership.

In his inaugural address, President Bush said that the real strength and greatness of America came from "a thousand points of light"—the countless acts of decency and compassion we show to each other and to those in need. In his post-Presidential years, he remained a committed advocate for volunteerism, community, and national service. He was active in domestic and global humanitarian activities, often alongside former President Bill Clinton, an old political opponent turned family friend.

In 1995, after a domestic terrorist bombed the Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, killing 168 people and injuring 800 more, the National Rifle Association sent out a fundraising letter denouncing the former Federal firearms restrictions of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms as "jack-booted thugs." Former President George Herbert Walker Bush reacted with anger. He denounced that vitriol by the NRA as "a vicious slander on good people." He publicly resigned his NRA lifetime membership, placing conscience ahead of political calculation.

Like John McCain and others who have personally experienced the terror of war, George Herbert Walker Bush did not confuse politics with war. He did not mistake political opponents for enemies. He understood that people can have differences of opinion and still love the country.

Our sadness at losing him seems partly a reflection for our own deep, deep yearning as a nation today for the kind of leadership and character and integrity and honesty and courage that he brought to the Office of Presidency.

In his inaugural address, President Lincoln pleaded with a nation on the knife’s edge of war. He said:

"We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies."

Lincoln urged us to be guided "by the better angels of our nature."

In his own inaugural address, President George Herbert Walker Bush also spoke of all Americans as friends. Let me read two short sections of his remarks:

My friends, we are not the sum of our possessions. They are not the measure of our lives. In our hearts, we know what matters. We cannot hope only to leave our children a bigger house, a bigger car, a bigger bank account. We must hope to give them a sense of what it means to be a loyal friend, a loving parent, a citizen who leaves his home, his neighborhood and town better than he found it. And what do we want the men and women who work with us to say when we’re no longer there? That we were more driven to succeed than anyone around us? Or that we stopped to ask if a sick child had gotten better and stayed a moment there to trade a word of friendship?

President George Bush went on to say:

"America is never wholly herself unless she is engaged in high moral principle. We as a people have such a purpose today. It is to make kinder the face of the nation and the world. . . . My friends, we have work to do."

As a tribute to George Herbert Walker Bush, who lies in state in the Rotunda of the U.S. Capitol—the 32nd person to be so honored in our history—let us try to remember we are not enemies but friends, and may this moment mark the beginning of a new, kinder, gentler era. May the courage, the wisdom, and the humility to put the interests of our Nation and our world ahead of self-interest.
In closing, my wife Loretta and I send our deepest condolences to President Bush, his family, and all who knew and loved him.

BICENTENNIAL OF ILLINOIS

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, in 1830, a family of dirt-poor farmers moved to Illinois. In the previous 14 years, this family had moved from Kentucky to Indiana, always eking out a bare subsistence. In Illinois, they hoped their luck might finally improve.

After helping his father establish a small farm, the family's 21-year-old son struck out on his own. In the little village of New Salem, he found work as a shopkeeper, postmaster, and a member of the Illinois State Legislature.

On April 15, 1837, that young man moved to Springfield, Illinois' capital. There, this self-taught man began a successful law practice. He married, and he and his wife welcomed four sons. His 23 years in Springfield were the happiest of his life.

When he left his adopted hometown in the late winter of 1861, he told the friends and neighbors and well-wishers who had followed him to the train depot to see him off: "To the place, and the kindness of these people, I owe everything." He hoped he would return one day, but it wasn't to be.

On April 15, 1961, 28 years to the day after he first arrived in Springfield, President Kennedy was killed by an assassin's bullet. He died just days after the end of the Civil War, the "fiery trial" through which he had steered our Nation—the cataclysm that finally ended America's original sin of slavery.

Most historians rate Abraham Lincoln as America's greatest President, and I agree. We who live in Illinois are proud to call our State "The Land of Lincoln."

Illinois had entered the Union as America's 21st State only 11 years before Lincoln's father Thomas moved his family there.

Yesterday, Tuesday, December 3, Illinois celebrated its 200th anniversary as a State. To commemorate this historic annivarsary, Senator Duckworth and I introduced a resolution that passed the Senate earlier this year. An identical resolution was introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives, where Abraham Lincoln served one term.

Let me tell you about my home State. Illinois stretches from the Wisconsin border in the north to the Kentucky border in the southeast. The southernmost point in our State, the town of Cairo, Illinois, lies farther south than Richmond, VA.

We also border Lake Michigan to the northeast, Indiana to the east, Missouri to the west, and Iowa to the northwest. You could fit Switzerland, Denmark, Belgium, Albania, and Cyprus—our nation's borders; that is how large Illinois is.

If Illinois were an independent nation, our economy, valued at over $820 billion, would be the 19th largest economy in the world, just ahead of Saudi Arabia. We are the fifth-largest economy among U.S. States, and we are among the top States in exports, value-added manufacturing, and agricultural income.

The deep black soil of much of northern and central Illinois is among the finest in the world. More than 75 percent of Illinois is still covered by farms, more than 72,000 of them.

While this year marks Illinois 200th anniversary as a State, societies have flourished in Illinois for over a millennium.

Near Collinsville, IL, across the Mississippi River from St. Louis, is the Cahokia Mounds State Historic Site, the remains of the most sophisticated prehistoric native civilization north of Mexico.

Historians estimate that Cahokia was over 1,000 feet in diameter and 50 feet tall. It was thought to be the largest man-made earthen structure in the world. The flat-topped pyramids built by its inhabitants are as tall as the Great Pyramid of Giza.

Next came the Illinois Confederation, about a dozen Native American Tribes. The first Europeans to reach Illinois, French explorers, arrived in the 17th century. Most of the French Illinois settlers and colonists came from the 13 original States.

In the 1830s, Illinois, like most of America, experienced great waves of European immigrants, starting with the Germans and Irish, followed by immigrants from Poland, Hungary, Italy, Norway, Sweden, Austria, and Russia.

During World War I, the Great Migration began, the steady flow of African Americans from the Jim Crow South to the open spaces of the North, and Chicago was the Mecca of the Great Migration.

You can see and hear and taste our immigrant roots in the vibrant, ethnic neighborhoods of Chicago and in cities and towns and villages throughout our State.

Illinois is home to many firsts. In February 1865, Illinois became the first State to ratify the 13th Amendment, outlawing slavery and involuntary servitude in the nation.

The first skyscraper in the entire world was built in Chicago in 1885. The world's first Ferris wheel debuted at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893. Chicago gave the world the first televised presidential debate . . . the first successful colonoscopy by a woman in 1923. . . . and the world's first self-controlled nuclear reaction.

Evanston, the home Northwestern University, is also the birthplace of the ice cream sundae. The first McDonald's was first opened in Des Plaines. Lake Michigan is the largest body of freshwater in a world that is fast running out of water.

Illinois is a land of ingenuity and invention. In 1900, after vents threatened the safety of Chicago's water supply, engineers built a series of canal locks that actually reversed the flow of the Chicago River, a feat that was named a "civil engineering monument of the millennium" by the American Society of Civil Engineers in 1999.

Illinois inventors have contributed to inventions from meatpacking and blood-banking, to the farm silo, the zipper, the vacuum cleaner, the mechanical dishwasher, remote control, and the cell phone.

Illinois has sent its sons and more than a few of its daughters to fight for this Nation in war after war. Today, it is home to 20,000 Active-Duty members of America's Armed Forces, 24,000 members of the reserved forces, and more than 643,000 veterans who risked their lives to protect all of us.

As a partner in this body, Senator TAMMY DUCKWORTH is a proud example of the courage and dignity and self-sacrifice of Illinois veterans.

Let me tell you about some of the other remarkable men and women Illinois has given to our world.

Illinois champions of justice such as Jane Addams, the first American woman to receive the Nobel Peace Prize for her work a century ago founding Hull House and helping poor families, especially immigrant families, to achieve their American dream.

Other Illinois champions of justice include Clarence Darrow, the legal champion of underdogs, and Betty Bloomer, whose courage in helping to reduce the stigma surrounding breast cancer and addiction has saved untold numbers of lives. The world knows her better as First Lady Betty Ford.

Illinois comedians from Jack Benny to Robin Williams, John Belushi, and Richard Pryor have made the world laugh. Illinois singers and musicians, including Miles Davis, Sam Cooke, Nat King Cole, Mahalia Jackson, and the Staple Singers, have made the world sing and dance—and maybe even work for justice and peace. Illinois storytellers, including Walt Disney and Ernest Hemingway, have captivated viewers and readers for generations.

In the field of sports, the Chicago Cubs have taught generations of fans the virtue of patience. The Chicago Bulls have made the world laugh. Illinois singers and musicians, including Miles Davis, Sam Cooke, Nat King Cole, Mahalia Jackson, and the Staple Singers, have made the world sing and dance—and maybe even work for justice and peace. Illinois storytellers, including Walt Disney and Ernest Hemingway, have captivated viewers and readers for generations.

In the field of sports, the Chicago Cubs have taught generations of fans the virtue of patience. The Chicago Bears won the Super Bowl in 1986. The Chicago White Sox won the World Series in 2005. The Chicago Blackhawks clinched the Stanley Cup in 2010, 2013, 2015.

The Chicago Bulls, led by the legendary Michael Jordan, won the NBA championship every year from 1991 through 1993 and from 1996 through 1998. Illinois is the home State of President Ronald Reagan, and the adopted home State of President Barack Obama, America’s first African-American President.

It is also home to the first African-American woman ever to serve in this body, Senator Carol Moseley-Braun.

The Neo-Neptune, Carl Sagan, another son of Illinois, wrote, ‘Nothing happens unless first we dream.’

In Illinois’ 200 years as a State, its sons and daughters have never stopped dreaming of ways to make life better and have worked hard to make those dreams come true.

As we begin our third century as a member of this great Union, we intend to continue that proud tradition.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

REMEMBERING GEORGE H.W. BUSH

Mr. BLUNT. Mr. President. I am honored to join my colleagues here to talk about President Bush. The outpouring of appreciation from the country has been significant.

His son, the 43rd President, said that it takes a long time for the determinations to come in. I think the 41st President had almost 25 years for people to begin to put his Presidency in the right kind of historical reference, the right context of looking back and seeing not only what happened then but why we remember it because of what happened then. I am pleased that he and Barbara were able to live long enough after that significant Presidency to see what happened.

Certainly in Missouri, we claim part of the Bush family. His mother grew up in Missouri. The Walkers were from Missouri. He treated Missouri like it was one of the States that he was connected to by relationship. His grandfather and later his Uncle Herbert and the rest of the family would go in the summertime to Walker’s Point, named after that Missouri part of his family, just like the Walker Cup is named after that part of his family.

The impact of his mother is pretty great. I heard the President talking the other day, in an interview with Jenna Bush, about whom he would look for when he got to Heaven. That was a couple of years ago, I think. He said: Well, if Barbara has gone there first, I think the right answer would be that I am going to look for her first. But then he said: I think my mom and my dad, and he said their daughter Robin, whom they lost when she was 3 years old.

So his mother was an important part of his life. You could tell that when talking to him or to his children, when they remembered their grandmother, and you could see a lot of what she taught him in, including that competitive nature. They don’t name sporting cups after your family unless your family is in the competition. There is that competitive nature, but that was also based on never bragging about yourself. To be a real competitor like the President was and not brag about yourself is not always an easy task, but certainly, maybe to his political detriment, it was part of his upbringing.

Another part of his upbringing included, in many ways, the best values of the Iowa State University. Stand up straight, take responsibility, share credit, and take blame. Those were all part of who George Herbert Walker Bush had become—that idea that you should do what you are supposed to do and that idea of the importance of service to others. If you are going to be part of the team, if you are President Bush—I hear Jon Meacham, his biographer, say that he tried to kind of get into the depth of that: What about this commitment to service, and aren’t there lots of ways to do that, and can’t you have service without recognition? But President Bush, understanding the conflict, actually, in what he believed and the profession he had pursued said: Well, there is nothing wrong if you are learning to be on the team to want to be captain of the team, whether it is captain of the Yale baseball team, which he was, or the President of the United States.

The Yale baseball team leads me to another thing that the Presidency offered and I know when we think about him: that is, the willingness as a young man to serve—and to serve immediately. In fact, at 17, still in high school, after Pearl Harbor, he talked about wanting to go into the Canadian Air Corps because you could do that at 17, but in our country you couldn’t join the Air Corps until 18. There was no Air Force yet. It was the Army Air Corps or the Navy Air Corps. He was persuaded by, I assume, his mom and dad, and others, by saying: Well, let’s finish high school first, and then when you are 18, you can join the U.S. Air Corps. He did that, I believe, on his 18th birthday, or really close to his 18th birthday. Then when he was the youngest aviator in the war at the time he got his flying credentials and serving in that way. That was part of that generation.

Then, the war was over, and he and Barbara got married right before the war ended. Then he goes to college. That young man with a wife and a baby goes to college and becomes the captain of the baseball team. He was a man with really always great athletic ability. He was still good enough to join the Canadian Air Corps because you could do that at 17, but in our country you couldn’t join the Air Corps until 18. There was no Air Force yet. It was the Army Air Corps or the Navy Air Corps.

He was persuaded by, I assume, his mom and dad, and others, by saying: Well, let’s finish high school first, and then when you are 18, you can join the U.S. Air Corps. He did that, I believe, on his 18th birthday, or really close to his 18th birthday. Then when he was the youngest aviator in the war at the time he got his flying credentials and serving in that way. That was part of that generation.

Now, when you are the captain of the Yale baseball team, you can talk a lot about the team instead of yourself. When you decide to enter politics, there is an almost total contradiction between pursuing political office and not talking about yourself. It just doesn’t quite work that way. You have to talk about the team. We could always see in President Bush that reluctance to cross the line his mother had taught him and talk about himself and talk about his accomplishments. Even at his best, he was held back, in many ways, by that reluctance—what he would see as bragging on himself.

His public service was significant and broad-based. I believe you could make the case that perhaps no one had ever been better prepared to be President than George Herbert Walker Bush, but in that effort to become President, you have to run first. I remember in 1980 hearing Barbara Bush talking about this. I remember this because it was so unusual. I don’t remember anybody else saying anything like this when they decided to run for President in 1980. When he ran for President, I heard Barbara Bush say this when asked: This guy has run for Congress once; it is the only elected office he has ever had, the House of Representatives and reelected. And she said: Yes, but George has a big family and thousands of friends.

Now we see, at the end of his life, how that network of friends continued to be important. It was not unusual, but I don’t recall a single other person ever successfully running for President on the basis that he had a big family and lots of friends. But that was his unique way to associate with people, who included the famous and the not so famous, the people he wrote to. As the Vice President said yesterday, he wrote to friends over the years, and as it turned out, in retirement. He wrote letters to almost anybody who would write him. He would respond, always, again, as that network taught him to do: If somebody takes the time to write you, you take the time to write them back. He was a man of appreciation and thank-you notes and sympathy notes. So that network of friends and family eventually became very important.

Now, where I live in Missouri, we were the ultimate bellwether State for about 100 years. My friend from Ohio would come close to being able to take his two sons for a win. But usually he had been a winner in Presidential elections. But for 100 years, from 1904 to 2004, we voted for the winner every time but one. So that last part of that—that last 20 years of that time period—very much is the time period when President Bush 41 and Bush 43, for that matter, were part of national politics.

Missouri would have been a significant place for him anyway. His brother was there—his younger brother, Bucky, who passed away in the last few years—and Ambassador Burt Walker was there. So there are lots of interrelated and connected family members.

So we saw Candidate Bush and then Vice President Bush and then President Bush in our State a lot. I was the elected secretary of State when he was Vice President, and I was the secretary of State when he was President. So I had the chance to benefit from knowing him.

I had a chance to go to Walker’s Point a few times and to go to church with the Bushes. If you were with the Bushes on a Sunday, either you were going to be left by yourself or you were going to go to church, because that was as much a part of who President Bush was as anything else—maybe a bigger part than anything else.

He said that in his faith—the Episcopal faith. Maybe he wasn’t about sharing publicly his faith, but he was absolutely committed to his faith. In fact, he raised the money to build a chapel at Camp David during his Presidency. There had not been a chapel there before. A number of Presidents, starting with Franklin Roosevelt, had used Camp David, but it was President Bush who decided: Well, church services on Sunday in the cafeteria could be in a better place; let’s do what we can.

So he raised the money privately to build the chapel that is there today.

The Missouri connection goes a little bit further. Not only did Missouri vote for President Bush in 1988—and if my story is going to have any truth to it, I want to point out that Missouri voted for Bill Clinton in 1992, because we were still voting for the winner by pretty much the margin of whatever the national average was in the last 50 years of that 100-year era or so.

After Desert Storm, President Bush looked around to find a place to do the first Fourth of July parade, and he came to Marshfield, MO, in the county where I was born—Webster County. I was going to be grand marshal of the parade that year, as I recall, but when it became apparent that the President wanted to come to be in that parade, I was more than willing to concede that he should be the grand marshal of that parade, and I walked not too far behind him.

Then, in 1992, after the convention—I believe it was the first kickoff—the first campaign kickoff was at Branson, MO, in the county where I was born—Webster County. I was going to be grand marshal of the parade that year, as I recall, but when it became apparent that the President wanted to come to be in that parade, I was more than willing to concede that he should be the grand marshal of that parade, and I walked not too far behind him.

There was Desert Storm. Saddam Hussein, the President said: ‘This will not stand.’ He assembled what may have been the greatest coalition of nations at any time. The nations that weren’t willing to fight were often willing to help others pay if they had the means. I don’t know if anybody else could have put that coalition together the way President Bush did, but he put that coalition together with maximum force and to guarantee Germany, had ‘an kind of supplied Kuwait and showed that the United States was still going to stand up for people who couldn’t stand up for themselves. Then, there was the collapse of the Soviet Union. We have just enough time may be heard by many others over the last few days talk about how that could have gone so badly wrong for all of the other countries that were trying to emerge from the domination of Russia and the Soviet Union. But George Herbert Walker Bush was on the phone, reaching out, talking to leaders, saying the things that actually had just been predicted by the West Germans themselves to be impossible—East Germany could become part of West Germany. That is exactly what happened. The President encouraged, stood beside, and went out of the way to be sure that Helmut Kohl, the leader of West Germany, had ‘an kind of supported that he and his government needed. He reached out to bring this country, which had been isolated for 40 years, back as part of their country and into the country. So all of these East European countries were engineering from Soviet domination had a chance to move from domination to democracy. That would not have happened the way it happened if somebody less prepared and less capable had been there. Character paid off then, and character is being recognized today for the value it has. As thousands have walked by the casket in the Rotunda of the Capitol of the United States of America, millions of others have thought about what a life of character means, about what the willingness to take responsibility means, and about how important it is to share credit, to take blame, to be prepared, and to believe there is great value and virtue in serving others. That is what George Herbert Walker Bush did.

As we think back at the impact he and Mrs. Bush and their family have had on the country, there is a great lesson to be learned. I hope we are all taking something away from this.

Mr. CARPER. Mr. President, the President of the United States of America sent a message to the country with respect to the Distinguished Flying Cross. You don’t get much better than a Distinguished Flying Cross. So there were three air medals—I had one, and this guy had three—and the Presidential Unit Citation awarded to his ship, of which he was a member for a number of years. That is one heck of a record for a guy who signed up as a seaman second class at the age of 18 and 3 years later finished up after flying all those missions when he was 21. I am still thinking about what I was doing when I wasn't doing this. I was looking forward to going into the Navy on Active Duty and ended up in Southeast Asia with John McCain, from Arizona, one of our colleagues and the Presiding Officer's wingman in the Senate for a number of years. I had never met George Bush when he was on Active Duty or in the Navy. I was not yet born. My dad served about the same time, never at the same time at the same duty station, although they both spent a fair amount of time in airplanes. My dad was a chief petty officer.

My guess is that George Bush got pretty good leadership training from his parents, but, starting from the age of 18, he had a number of demanding and challenging positions—that he was President and Vice President. He was the kind of leader who, when the team did well, he would give credit to the team, and when the team fell short, he would take the blame. He was one of those leaders who actually sought to unite people, not divide people. We heard a lot about building bridges and building walls. He was a bridge builder, never much for building walls.

One of my favorite quotes about politics is that our friends come and go, but our enemies accumulate. All of those years, the people he ran against—Bill Clinton certainly comes to mind, but others, as well—had great affection for him and loved him. There is some secret there that the rest of us could probably learn from.

The other thing I am especially mindful of him as a leader is that he was interested in doing what was right—not what was easy or expedient, but what was right. He treated other people the way he wanted to be treated—on the Friedman amendment and provided him with exceptional leadership training. I would like to think some others—including John McCain, hopefully yours truly, and some others with whom we served, not just in World War II but in Vietnam and even today—received great leadership training in the military. George Herbert Walker Bush was trained, as was I and as were many of our peers, that leaders are humble, not haughty, that leaders are humble, not haughty. Speeches were given last week as we gathered in the Capitol, and thousands of people have walked by his casket since. If there was ever a leader I have met who was humble, not haughty, it was George Herbert Walker Bush.

He was trained that leaders lead by example. It is not do as I say, but do as I do. That is what he was like. He had the heart of a servant throughout his life and provided him with exceptional leadership training. mistaken, I think he was maybe our Ambassador to the United Nations as well.

In 1992, he helped form the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change, which has now been embraced by nations on Earth and is taking place this very week in Poland. Countries from throughout the world are there.

I mentioned earlier the 1990 amendment to the Clean Air Act, which turned out to be some of the most important environmental laws that we have on our books in this country, and that law enabled the government to control the nearly 200 toxic substances that do harm to our air and pose threats to human health. That same law paved the way for cleaner running cars and clean fuels that have dramatically reduced pollution from smog.

I can remember when I was in the Navy, spending part of the summer at the Long Beach Naval Station on a big jumbo tanker. I like to run, and I remember running close to L.A. in the summer—late sixties. I remember on some days that I ran. I felt I was doing more work than my lungs that day was doing good for my body, running and breathing that kind of air. The air in California was awful. It is not perfect today, but it is a whole lot better, except when there are all these fires they have to put up with.

According to the EPA, the 1990 amendments of the Clean Air Act, over the first 20 years of enactment, have also prevented 160,000 premature deaths, reduced illnesses and diseases related to air pollution, and spurred $2 trillion in overall economic benefits.

I will end with this. In February of 1990, President Bush said this about our changing climates. I want to quote him. He said:

We all know that human activities are changing the atmosphere in unexpected and in unprecedented ways. Much remains to be done. Many questions remain to be answered. Together, responsibility for ourselves and the generations to come to fulfill our stewardship obligations.

Those are his words. Those words and the positions he took and the work his administration did on this front show real leadership and, maybe, the courage to stay out of step when everyone else is marching to the wrong tune. It is a very prudent thing to say. Saying that to an author whose title for his book might be “The Last Gentleman’’ could have easily gone in another direction. Take the disintegration of the Soviet Union. It is a very dangerous situation. They have a lot of nuclear weapons in the Soviet Union that will make a combat pilot in a world war, and you can still treat antagonism toward much of Europe and the United States. But President Bush, because of his temperament and his skill and the extraordinary team he had around him, presided over that in a way that allowed the United States and the Soviet Union to come apart. It could have easily gone in another direction.

There was the reunification of Germany. You can be sure that France was skeptical about the reunification of Germany. Wouldn’t you be, as well, if you had been involved in two World Wars in that century with Germany?
Margaret Thatcher was quietly opposed to the unification of Germany, according to Vice President Quayle, who should know about such things. Mr. Kohl, from Germany, was for it. Our President had to know those individuals well enough and be adept enough to preside over the reunification of Germany and the disintegration of the Soviet Union at the same time.

Balancing the budget wasn’t popular within the Republican Party. When you look at the portraits of the Presidents in the White House, you often think, what did that President do that went beyond his base—that his original supporters might not have agreed with but that put the country first? When you look at Nixon, you think China. When you look at Reagan, you think the Berlin Wall.

When you look at George Bush, you think a number of things, but one of the things he did was balance the budget in a way that most Republicans didn’t like. He paid a price for it when he ran for reelection, but the country and President Clinton, during the 1990s, benefited greatly from that fact.

Then, as Senator CARPER pointed out, he led the amendments of the Clean Air Act. I was in East Tennessee these last few weeks. We like the fact that you can see the Great Smoky Mountains, and they are not the “great smoggy mountains” anymore. That is true because of the Clean Air Act, which, more than anything else, has required coal plants when they operate to put pollution control equipment on them. They can still operate. There is nothing to keep a coal plant from operating in this country as long as you put pollution control equipment for mercury, nitrogen, and sulfur on it. Then they can be perfectly clean. That doesn’t include carbon, but carbon you can’t see. We like to see the mountains.

There were the decisions that were made that had to do with exhausts from trucks and cars. America is healthier, cleaner, and we can attract businesses to our State now that our air is clean. Before that, it was a problem.

The Americans with Disabilities Act was a difficult law to pass and a difficult law for many parts of our country to accept and, frankly, pay for. Think of the lives it has changed. No one will ever know. It was the first time I had a chance to do anything using the bully pulpit. As President Bush understood, we got more lasting results.

He was well prepared, a gentleman, and a pioneer of education. Some people are suggesting he might have been the most effective one-term President in the history of the country. He could very well be, when you add it all up, with the Gulf war handled like it was, the reunification of Germany, the successful disintegration of the Soviet Union, the clean air laws, the Americans with Disabilities Act, pioneering in education with America 2000, balancing the budget. That is a lot to do in 4 years. Maybe James K. Polk is the only one I can think of who might give him a good run for his money in terms of that accolade.

I remember when the Gulf War was over and President Bush came to speak to the Congress. I will close with this. It was the first time I had a chance to sit and listen to a Presidential address as a Member of the Cabinet. I remember thinking after that wonderful victory that was so well done—with a million men and women on the ground and very few casualties; the rest of the war was paid for by_Gov.; we avoided going into Baghdad. It was a very successful operation. The President’s approval rating was at 91 percent. I remember thinking, I wish he would say: Now that we have won the war, let’s turn our attention to the home and apply the same sort of energy to the disposable agenda. No one will ever know.

What we do know is, he was a gentleman; he was as well prepared as any...
President in history for the job; he served at a time when we needed that preparation because the challenges were immense; he was a pioneer in education; and he may have been the most successful one-term President in American history—a man who put the country on a path we all admired. George H.W. Bush. Thank you.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. JOHNSON). The Senator from Texas.

Mr. CORKY. Mr. President, I join my friend, the Senator from Tennessee, in saying a few words about the service of George Herbert Walker Bush. I would note the difference between him and me, though, is he, having served as Education Secretary and worked here under Howard Baker and having had a chance to work with and watch and listen to George Herbert Walker Bush firsthand, has the advantage over me. I come from the Bush family and President Bush “41” from my experience in Texas. They were the dominant family and influence in politics in Texas—certainly during the time I grew up in politics.

I appreciate the comments the Senator from Tennessee has made. He and I had a conversation about what our side of the aisle needs, which is to do more in the area of supporting public education and which is, I think, probably at the top of the list of most people’s concerns.

Certainly, when you look at what happened in the midterm elections—particularly in the suburbs—and you talk to people about what motivated them one way or the other, education had to be way up high on that list. We simply need to find a way of working together and coming up together with creative ways to demonstrate our support for public education, and I think our constituents will respond very well to that.

Certainly, the Senator from Tennessee, as chairman of the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee, who is responsible for a lot of the healthcare-oriented legislation that emanates from this body—and that is another area where, frankly, we didn’t do as good a job as we could or should have done, explaining what we were for and what we could do actually to help bring premiums down and make healthcare more possible. So I think the contributions of the Senator from Tennessee to this body and his comments particularly about this great man. I think it is important to say he was not just a great man but a good man, George Herbert Walker Bush.

We know, to his family, he was a loving and caring father, grandfather, and great-grandfather. To his country, he was a devoted public servant who fought to defend our freedoms and led the Nation at the end of the Cold War and at the fall of the Berlin Wall.

Every time I think about the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989, I think about my dad who was a B-17 pilot in World War II. He was shot down on his 26th bombing mission over Nazi Germany. He was stationed in Molesworth, England. He and his fellow crew in the 303rd Bomb Group in the Eighth Air Force would fly their bombing missions from there, that Molesworth Air Force Base across the English Channel and drop their bombs in Germany in an effort to bring an end to that terrible, terrible war.

Unfortunately, my dad died before the Berlin Wall came down. That is one of my regrets; that he was unable to see what ultimately happened as a result of that terrible war in World War II. It is a shocking number. We need to be reminded of what the terrible wages of war can be—20 million people died in the Soviet Union alone. I know that stagers our imagination. We need to never forget on this anniversary of a wise man, we will be condemned to relive it. Certainly, George Herbert Walker Bush’s contribution to ending the Cold War and bringing down the Berlin Wall are one of his most notable achievements abreast of his military service.

He served first as a war hero. He actually enlisted in the Navy after the attack at Pearl Harbor. He, like a lot of other young men, decided this was the time to come to the aid of their country. After nearly losing his life after being shot down but being saved by rescuing forces, he came back home and, like so many of the “greatest generation,” he went to work and raised a family.

In my dad’s case, he, too, was part of the “greatest generation.” Fortunately, he got out of the prison of war camp and met my mother and married and had a family. He continued his education and, like so many of the “greatest generation,” made enormous contributions to our country in the post-World War II era that we are benefiting from ever today.

We also know George Herbert Walker Bush represented his fellow Americans starting as a Congressman in Houston, TX. Then he moved on to be Director of the Central Intelligence Agency. He was Vice President. He was President. It has been said that George Herbert Walker Bush was the best prepared person ever to have served as President in virtue of his experiences and his resume. I think there is a lot of truth to that. Alluding to the time in the Navy, you can say he was an anchor for our country during tumultuous times—steady and strong.

While he was a fierce defender of his principles and ideals, he was sometimes seen as a quiet soldier. Some people even commented that he was too nice a person to be President. I think that is a misconception. He was, in fact, a good man and a great leader, but I think he showed us you could be both. Not all great leaders are good men. We are all flawed, of course, but he showed that you could be both a good man and a great leader.

President Bush carried the lessons he learned in the Navy with him. Specifically, we heard from the Vice President yesterday at the ceremony in the Rose Garden talking about a speech known to Navy pilots as the crows foot CAVU, which stands for “ceiling and visibility unlimited.” I only mention this again after the Vice President talked about it yesterday because President Bush shared it on his 80th birthday. He said it summed up his attitude about his life perfectly.

He said:

But, you see, that is where my life is now. Thanks to my family and my friends, my life is CAVU.

Through all he did, his compassion, his love of country, his basic humanity, and his optimism shone through, which made him such an attractive political figure. One reason for his tremendous success was because people elected him, and they believed in him. They believed he was doing what he did for the right reasons.

After a long and tough campaign for his second term as President—a campaign which he lost to former Secretary of State Bill Clinton. There has been some social media circulating this letter, but I think it is worth noting because it is a snapshot into his character and the type of man he was.

He wrote to President Clinton:

Your success now is our country’s success. I am rooting hard for you.

It takes a big man to say that to your competitor after a tough, losing campaign, but, again, this is a window into the character of a good and great man. Just like everything else he did, it was gracious and sincere. This letter conveyed the same sense of “it is not about me, it is about the country.” In a word, it is about patriotism—a word that embodies President Bush so well. He was the type of man who makes us look at our own lives and ask, what more can I do for my country and for my countrymen and women we all love?

After graduating from college, he went to Midland, TX. It was kind of an improbable place to go in those days, but he wanted to get involved in the oil business. Later, after his successes in Midland, TX, in the Permian Basin, which continues to be one of the greatest reserves of oil and gas in the United States, he went on to Houston and grew his business and ultimately, as I said earlier, ran for Congress.

Even though Texas was an adopted state for him, Texans loved and embraced him, as we did the entire Bush family. We were privileged to have President Bush as one of our own. He once said: “I am a Texan and an American . . . what more could a man ask?” I don’t think anyone could have said it better. His four-hour time in public service and even afterward, he could have moved anywhere in the world, but he chose to live his life in Texas and in
I can't begin to count them or recount them all for you, but I am going to tell a few of the stories. You have all heard about how he was in the CIA, how many planes he shot down, and how many times he did whatever he did. We all know him, and I know him as equal to none. I mean, nobody has one equal to his. We also know, those of us who knew him—and I know Senator CORNYN of Texas did—as a public servant, he was a passionate, compassionate, get-the-job-done, conservative leader who wanted to see not just the promises made but the promises kept.

How did I meet George Herbert Walker Bush? I will tell you how I met him. He was Vice President of the United States of America. He was on Air Force One. He was Vice President under Reagan, who controlled Air Force One. We were riding from St. Augustine, FL, to Atlanta, GA, to do a fundraiser that night. Bring your family. Let's have some fun and get you elected Governor of Georgia.

We had a ball. That was not hard. Winning the governorship was a little bit more difficult, but it was a lot easier to try when the Vice President of the United States came out and put his name on the line for me. I really didn't understand how he could risk his career doing that until I realized nobody cared who I was anyway, but he cared who I was because I was a potential candidate for Governor. I was a Republican. I was somebody he liked and admired, and I was somebody he wanted to help and work with.

So my family and I piled onto Air Force One, flew into Atlanta, Dobbins Air Force Base, and went to the Waverly Hotel. It's a quarters of a million dollars at that fundraiser. It was over in the flash of an eye, but I could still smell the room, indelibly remember the lights that were on, the banners we had, and the speeches made that night because he was an overpoweringly impressive guy. When he stood there and made a speech and he knew he might be risking his career doing that until I realized nobody cared who I was anyway, but he cared who I was because I was a potential candidate for Governor. I was a Republican. I was somebody he liked and admired, and I was somebody he wanted to help and work with.

President Bush felt a kindred spirit in Texas A&M University, choosing it first to bear his legacy through his Presidential library and a graduate school of government and public service and then later to be his and Barbara Bush's final resting place. I think President Bush identified with the university's unique culture, including its inculcation of patriotic values and the emphasis it places on hard work and public service.

President Bush taught us all that there is nothing more powerful in life than the power of a good example. He challenged all of us, and he still does by the standards he set for himself.

Joined today by my colleague from Texas, Senator CRUZ, we introduced a resolution recognizing the nearly 30 years of public service President Bush devoted to our nation. Our Nation's Capital one last time, where many have and will continue to have the opportunity to pay their respects and give their thanks for his extraordinary life.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Georgia.

Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, I am honored to follow the Senator from Texas and to have shared time with President Bush, as he has, and appreciate very much his service to this Senate and this country.

You know, the hardest thing they ever ask you to do in public office is eulogize someone you don’t even know. But because you are a Senator and they have given you a name like everybody back home knows, they think that would be a good idea. It is the hardest thing for a Senator to do.

The easiest thing to do is to be asked to eulogize somebody you know and love. You don’t have to look things up, you just read things and do a biography. But that, too, is very hard. It is hard to hold back the tears when you talk about the experiences you had with someone who has gone on to a better place. That is the role I am in today.

George Herbert Walker Bush did so many things for me in my lifetime that I have never seen or heard anybody who took credit for giving him that state. He did it because that moment probably led to his most difficult time in his re-election campaign. But at the time he made it—he made it because George Bush knew he might have to do that. He wasn’t going to continue to run for President without saying: Look, I don’t want to raise your taxes, but it is something we think might happen. And it did happen, and it cost him the election. He did what was right for the country, although it might not have been right for George. He was that kind of guy. He put the test on what is best for the people, what is best for the country.

If you listen to or read many of the stories of the Iraq war when we first started, George Bush was the first one to do that. I remember riding home in my car from my office in Atlanta when the news broke. The President was about to do a press conference. When I turned the radio on, he was making the announcement about sending troops into Iraq from Kuwait and going after Saddam Hussein to give up his weapons of mass destruction.
TRIBUTE TO TIMUEL BLACK

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, one of our most preeminent oral historians of our time turns 100 on December 7. Timuel Black was born near the end of World War I and has been the keeper of the soul of the south side of Chicago to this very day. World War I was supposed to be the war to end all wars, but we now know some of America’s greatest wars were yet to come. Tim Black was on the frontlines of many of those fights. As a historian, as an activist, and a human being, he fought and continues to fight for the dignity of people and a better future.

Professor Black was born in 1918, in Birmingham, AL, the son of sharecroppers and grandson of slaves. At 8 months, his family moved to Chicago, joining the first wave of migration of African Americans from the deep South to the North. His family settled in an area of Chicago then-called the Black Belt. It is now known as Bronzeville.

Tim would go on to celebrate and shape the history of Chicago’s Black Belt. To Tim, this is sacred ground. But first, he went to Burke Elementary School and DuSable High School. His classrooms included Nat King Cole; future publisher and founder of Jet and Ebony Magazine, John H. Johnson, the first African American on Forbes’ 400 most wealthy; and future Mayor Harold Washington. Don Cornelius and musician Sonny Cohn also were among the many famous students of DuSable High School.

It was on his birthday in 1941 that Japan attacked Pearl Harbor. The U.S. Army drafted Tim into a segregated army 2 years later. In the last 2 years of World War II, Tim experienced the worst of the war. He participated in the Normandy invasion, the Battle of the Bulge, and the liberation of Paris. He earned four battle stars. But it was what he saw while liberating the Buchenwald the Nazi concentration camp, that altered the way Tim saw the world. The horrors of the human capacity for cruelty at Buchenwald filled Tim with despair.

He returned to Chicago, resolved to fight for human rights and human dignity. He earned an undergraduate degree from Roosevelt University and a master’s degree from the University of Chicago. Tim started his professional career as a social worker, but he quickly discovered that his real love was, in his words, “teaching young men and women about the world they live in and how to be responsible citizens of that world.”

For 40 years, Tim did just that through his teaching positions at DuSable and other Chicago public schools, as well as Roosevelt University, Columbia College Chicago, and schools in the City Colleges of Chicago system.

Tim also has spent his life on the frontlines of the struggle for human rights and dignity. At age 13, he walked his first picket line to protest the refusal of White-owned businesses in Bronzeville to hire Black clerks. As an organizer in labor and social justice movements of the 1940s and 1950s, he worked with Paul Robeson and W.E.B. DuBois.

Tim helped establish the Congress of Racial Equality and the United Packhouse Workers of America labor union. I might not be where I am today were it not for Tim’s work because it was the Packhouse union that helped me work through college.

In December of 1955, Tim was watching television when he first saw an inspiring man in Montgomery, AL. He hopped on a plane to meet him. A year later, Tim convinced him to come to Chicago. This was the first time Dr. Martin Luther King would speak in the city. Tim then helped organize the Freedom Trains that carried thousands of Chicagoans to hear Dr. King roar “I Have a Dream” in Chicago, in 1963. In 1966, Tim was right there with Dr. King when an angry mob attacked him in Chicago’s Marquette Park. Whenever there was a good fight against Jim Crow housing, segregated public beaches, job discrimination, or the shortchanging of Black students in public schools, you would always find Tim Black.

There is one student of Professor Black we all remember. A couple of decades ago, a young community organizer who had just returned to Chicago with a Harvard law degree asked Professor Black to teach him about organizing people so they could create a better life for themselves and their children. The young organizer and Professor Black became friends over the years. It was my privilege to invite Professor Black and his wonderful wife Zenobia Johnson-Black to be my guests as that community organizer swore an oath to become the President of the United States. I could not have had a better guest to see the history that he had helped make possible as Barack Obama became our first Black President.

Tim may have retired from teaching years ago, but we are all still students in his never-ending classroom. His three-volume history of Chicago’s Black Belt, entitled “Bridges of Memory,” is the story of the great Black migration to Chicago from the deep South, told by those who made that journey and by their descendants. His home in Hyde Park is an incomparable museum of stories about every place he’s lived and every place he’s been. I first heard Duke Ellington, Count Basie, and Billie Holliday are still alive and well in memories to be shared.

Happy birthday, Tim Black. Generations have grown up with a better appreciation of their homes and the history they inhabit because of you.
TRIBUTE TO DR. GEORGE MULCAIRE-JONES

Mr. DAINEs. Mr. President, this week I have the honor of recognizing Dr. George Mulcaire-Jones of Silver Bow County for his tremendous impact on lives of folks in Butte and surrounding areas.

Dr. Mulcaire-Jones has spent over 30 years practicing medicine, each of which he committed to improving the health of those around him. He founded Maternal Life International, which goes above and beyond, to provide training and program development in Africa and Haiti. Over the course of his career, Dr. Mulcaire-Jones has also focused on addressing the growing issue of substance abuse among pregnant and postpartum moms. Dr. Mulcaire-Jones led the fight to address the growing drug crisis in pregnant and postpartum moms across Montana. Dr. Mulcaire-Jones directed an initiative that defines symptoms for these moms and ensures they receive the proper medical care. He was instrumental in a $150,000 grant awarded to a local hospital that works to treat these moms. Dr. Mulcaire-Jones also worked hard to ensure that other care providers in the industry have the training they need to properly treat those patients.

I congratulate Dr. Mulcaire-Jones on his proactive approach in recognizing the signs of drug abuse in pregnant and postpartum mothers. Through his efforts, Dr. Mulcaire-Jones has paved the way for other communities around Montana to combat this growing epidemic.

RECOGNIZING FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S SOCCER TEAM

Mr. RUBIO. Mr. President, today I recognize the Florida State University Women’s soccer team on securing its second NCAA National Championship, becoming one of six schools in NCAA women’s soccer history to win multiple championships. Head coach Mark Krikorian led the Florida State team to the 2018 College Cup for the ninth time in his 14 seasons at Florida State, including four appearances in the national championship game. FSU defeated each of the last three national champions in the 2018 tournament on the way to the title, delivering a stunning end to Stanford University’s 45-match unbeaten streak in the semifinal game. The championship game against the University of North Carolina, Dallas Dorosy scored the game’s only goal on a pass from Deyna Castellanos, in the 60th minute. This NCAA title completes the team’s 2018 Atlantic Coast Conference championship win, the sixth in the past 8 years.

I extend warm congratulations on their hard-earned national championship to players Caroline Jeffers, Megan Connolly, Kristina Lynch, Anna Patton, Jaelin Howell, Dallas Dorosy, Kirsten Pavliske, Deyna Castellanos, Gloriana Villalobos, Kaycie Tillman, Taylor Hallmon, Natalia Kuikka, Olivia Bergau, Gabby Carle, Malia Berkley, Macayla Edwards, Kristen McFarland, Alexa Orrante, Bella Dorosy, Makala Thomas, Emily Madril, Clara Robbins, Yujie Zhao, and Brooke Bollinger, as well as head coach Mark Krikorian, assistant coach Mike Burdick, assistant coach Moritano Imaizumi, and director of operations Nathan Minion.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) The Indo-Pacific region—

(A) represents nearly 50 percent of the global growth; and

(B) is home to some of the most dynamic economies in the world; and

(C) poses security challenges that threaten to undermine United States national security in-interests, regional peace, and global stability.

(2) The core tenets of the United States-Asia correlation is that the United States is the backbone of the international system and its forces are being challenged, including by—

(A) China’s illegal construction and mili-tarization of artificial features in the South China Sea and coercive economic practices;

(B) North Korea’s acceleration of its nuclear and ballistic missile capabilities; and

(C) the increased presence throughout South-

East Asia of the Islamic State (referred to in this Act as "ISIS") and other international terrorist organizations that threaten the United States.

(3) The economic order in the Indo-Pacific re-

on continues to transform, presenting oppor-

unities and challenges to United States economic interests.

(4) The United States has a fundamental in-interest in defending human rights and promoting the rule of law in the Indo-Pacific. Although many countries in the region have improved the treatment of their citizens, several be presented to the Committee on Energy and Public Works of the Senate and the Committee on Commerce of the House of Representatives a report assessing the Federal Government to assist remote areas in the State of Alaska in meeting the energy needs of those areas in an affordable and reliable manner using—

(1) existing emissions control technology; or

(2) other technology that achieves emissions reductions similar to the technology described in paragraph (1).
Indo-Pacific governments continue to commit human rights abuses and place restrictions on basic human rights and political and civil liberties.

(5) Without strong leadership from the United States, the international system, fundamentally rooted in the rule of law, may wither, to the detriment of regional, and global interests. It is imperative that the United States continue to play a leading role in the Indo-Pacific region by—

(A) maintaining peace and security;
(B) advancing economic prosperity; and
(C) promoting respect for fundamental human rights.

(6) In 2017, the Subcommittee on East Asia, the Pacific, and International Cybersecurity Policy of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate held a series of hearings on United States leadership in the Indo-Pacific region, in which experts, including Representative Randy Forbes, Ambassador Robert Gallucci, Ms. Tami Overby, Dr. Robert Orr, Ambassador Derek Mitchell, Ambassador Robert King, Mr. Murray Hiebert, and others, testified. As realistic students of history, Chinese leaders believe that the role the United States has played since World War II as the architect and underwriter of regional stability and security has been essential to the rise of Asia as a global power. But they believe that as the tide that brought the United States to Asia recedes, America must learn with it. Much of the Asia region today lies in the Western Hemisphere faded at the beginning of the twentieth century, so must America’s role in Asia as the region’s historic superpower resumes its place.\(^{(4)}\)

(7) “At the top of the agenda of the United States and its partners is our active engagement in the Indo-Pacific region, which stretches from the west coast of India to the western shores of the United States, represents the most populous and economically dynamic part of the world. The United States is one of the Indo-Pacific’s largest trade partners and it is back to the earliest days of our republic.;” and

(8) “Our vision for the Indo-Pacific excludes no nation. We will redouble our commitment to establish and expand alliances and partnerships, deepening and deepening relationships with new partners that share respect for sovereignty, fair and reciprocal trade, and the rule of law. We will reinforce our commitment to freedom of the seas and the peaceable resolution of territorial and maritime disputes in accordance with international law. We will remain committed to an international system where all nations—large and small—can chart their own course and enjoy the benefits of an open and inclusive global order.”

(9) The U.S. government and the United States have a responsibility to stand up for human rights and democratic values in the Indo-Pacific region.

(10) In December 2018, the Senate held a series of hearings on United States leadership in the Indo-Pacific region, in which experts, including Representative Randy Forbes, Ambassador Robert Gallucci, Ms. Tami Overby, Dr. Robert Orr, Ambassador Derek Mitchell, Ambassador Robert King, Mr. Murray Hiebert, and others, testified. As realistic students of history, Chinese leaders believe that the role the United States has played since World War II as the architect and underwriter of regional stability and security has been essential to the rise of Asia as a global power. (9) The U.S. government and the United States have a responsibility to stand up for human rights and democratic values in the Indo-Pacific region.
States and Japan, done at Washington, January 19, 1960, and all related and subsequent bilateral security agreements and arrangements concluded on or before the date of the enactment of this Act; and

(2) recognizes the vital role of the alliance between the United States and Japan in promoting peace and security in the Indo-Pacific region; and

(3) calls for the strengthening and broadening of diplomatic, economic, and security ties between the United States and Japan.

(b) UNITED STATES–REPUBLIC OF KOREA ALLIANCE.—The United States Government—

(1) is committed to the Mutual Defense Treaty Between the United States and the Republic of Korea, done at Washington October 1, 1953, and all related and subsequent bilateral security agreements and arrangements concluded on or before the date of the enactment of this Act; and

(2) recognizes the vital role of the alliance between the United States and South Korea in promoting peace and security in the Indo-Pacific region; and

(3) calls for the strengthening and broadening of diplomatic, economic, and security ties between the United States and the Republic of Korea.

(c) UNITED STATES–AUSTRALIA ALLIANCE.—The United States Government—

(1) is committed to the Security Treaty Between Australia and the United States of America, done at San Francisco September 1, 1951, and all related and subsequent bilateral security agreements and arrangements concluded on or before the date of the enactment of this Act; and

(2) recognizes the vital role of the alliance between the United States and Australia in promoting peace and security in the Indo-Pacific region; and

(3) calls for the strengthening and broadening of diplomatic, economic, and security ties between the United States and Australia.

(d) UNITED STATES–PHILIPPINES ALLIANCE.—The United States Government is committed to the Mutual Defense Treaty of the United States of America and the Government of the Philippines, done at Washington August 30, 1951, and all related and subsequent bilateral security agreements and arrangements concluded on or before the date of the enactment of this Act, including the Enhanced Defense Cooperation Agreement, done at Manila April 28, 2014.

(e) THAI-UNITED STATES DEFENSE TREATY.—The United States Government is committed to—

(I) the Agreement Respecting Military Assistance Between the United States of America and the Government of Thailand, done at Bangkok October 17, 1950; (II) the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty Between the United States and Southeast Asian Nations, done at Bangkok September 8, 1962; and (III) all related and subsequent bilateral security agreements and arrangements concluded on or before the date of the enactment of this Act, including the Joint Vision Statement for the Thai-United States Defense Alliance, issued in Bangkok November 15, 2012.

SEC. 203. UNITED STATES–CHINA RELATIONSHIP.

(a) GENERAL.—The United States Government—

(I) expresses grave concern with Chinese actions that seek—

(A) to further constrain space for civil society within China; and

(B) to undermine a rules-based order in the Indo-Pacific; and

(II) encourages China to play a constructive role in world affairs by demonstrating consistent respect for the rule of law and international norms.

(3) seeks to build a positive, cooperative, and comprehensive relationship with China—

(A) through areas of cooperation; and

(B) by addressing areas of disagreement, including over human rights, economic policies, and maritime security; and

(4) is working with China on shared regional and global challenges, especially—

(A) upholding and strengthening the rules-based international system; and

(B) the denuclearization of North Korea.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the President should—

(I) welcome a decision by China to change course and pursue a responsible results-oriented relationship with the United States and engagement on global issues;

(II) support China to play a constructive role in the Indo-Pacific region and globally; and

(III) continue to call on Chinese actions that undermine the rules-based international system.

(c) UNITED STATES–ASEAN CONNECT.—The United States Government is committed to—

(I) advancing the United States-ASEAN Strategic Partnership; (II) strengthening and expanding bilateral security agreements and arrangements concluded before the date of the enactment of this Act; and

(III) calls for the strengthening and broadening of diplomatic, economic, and security ties between the United States and India and

(III) is committed to—

(B) The India-United States India Defense Technology and Trade Initiative, launched in 2012;

(C) The Joint Strategic Vision for the Indo-Pacific and Indian Ocean Region, announced on January 25, 2013;

(D) The United States-India Joint Statement on Prosperity Through Partnership, issued on June 26, 2017; and

(E) all related and subsequent bilateral and security agreements and arrangements concluded as of the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) INDIA AS MAJOR DEFENSE PARTNER.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Section 1292(g)(1)(A) of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2017 (Public Law 115-91, 130 Stat. 2556, 22 U.S.C. 2751 note) requires the recognition of India as a major defense partner.

(2) The designation of India as a major defense partner, which is unique to India—

(A) institutionalizes the progress made to facilitate defense trade and technology sharing between the United States and India;

(B) elevates the United States-India Defense Technology and Trade Initiative to a level commensurate with the closest allies of the United States and India; and

(C) recognizes the vital role of the strategic and economic relationship between the United States and India to a level commensurate with the closest allies of the United States and India.

(c) UNITED STATES–ASEAN STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIP.

(a) GENERAL.—The United States Government is committed to—

(I) Advancing the United States-ASEAN Strategic Partnership;

(II) Supporting the regional integration objectives of member countries of ASEAN under the ASEAN Economic Community and build upon economic relationships in the Indo-Pacific region;

(III) support efforts by the nations comprising ASEAN—

(A) to address maritime and territorial disputes in a constructive manner; and

(B) to pursue claims through peaceful, diplomatic, and legitimate regional and international arbitration mechanisms, consistent with international law, including the adoption of a code of conduct in the South China Sea to further promote peace and stability in the Indo-Pacific region; and

(IV) support efforts by United States partners and allies in ASEAN—

(A) to enhance maritime capability and maritime domain awareness; and

(B) to protect unhindered access to, and use, of, international waterways in the Asia-Pacific region that are critical to ensuring the security and free flow of commerce; and

(C) to counter piracy;

(D) to disrupt illicit maritime trafficking activities such as the trafficking of persons, goods, and drugs; and

(E) to enhance the maritime capabilities of countries or regional organizations to respond to threats to maritime security in the Asia-Pacific region; and

(V) urge ASEAN member states to develop a common approach to reaffirm the decision of the Permanent Court of Arbitration’s ruling with respect to the case between the Republic of the Philippines and the People’s Republic of China.

(b) REPORT ON STRATEGIC FRAMEWORK FOR ENGAGEMENT WITH ASEAN.—The President shall submit to Congress a strategic framework for engagement with ASEAN, with respect to the case between the Republic of the Philippines and the People’s Republic of China.

(c) STRATEGIC FRAMEWORK.—The strategic framework submitted under this section shall include—

(I) a determination whether the case between the Republic of the Philippines and the People’s Republic of China is resolved in a manner consistent with international law;

(II) an assessment of the implications of the decision of the Permanent Court of Arbitration for the relationship between the United States and member countries of ASEAN;

(III) the role of the United States in working with member countries of ASEAN to promote the creation of new businesses, sustainable technologies in their respective energy sectors.

(IV) the role of the United States in supporting economic conditions in member countries of ASEAN that promote innovation, the creation of new businesses, sustainable growth, and the education of the region’s future innovators, entrepreneurs, and business leaders.

SEC. 207. QUADRILATERAL SECURITY DIALOGUE.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the security dialogue between the United States, Australia, India, and Japan is vital to address emerging security challenges in the Indo-Pacific region in order to promote—

(A) a rules-based order;

(B) respect for international law; and

(C) a free, open, and inclusive Indo-Pacific; and

(2) such a dialogue is intended to augment, rather than to replace, current mechanisms.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

1. The Indo-Pacific region—
   (A) represents nearly 50 percent of the global population;
   (B) is home to some of the most dynamic economies in the world; and
   (C) poses security challenges that threaten to undermine United States national security interests, regional peace, and global stability.

2. The core tenets of the United States-backed international system are being challenged, including by—
   (A) China’s illegal construction and militarization of artificial features in the South China Sea, and coercive economic practices;
   (B) North Korea’s acceleration of its nuclear and ballistic missile capabilities; and
   (C) the increased presence throughout Southeast Asia of the Islamic State (referred to in this Act as “ISIS”) and other international terrorist organizations that threaten the United States.

3. The economic order in the Indo-Pacific region continues to transform, presenting opportunities and challenges to United States economic interests.

4. The United States has a fundamental interest in defending human rights and promoting the rule of law in the Indo-Pacific region. Although many countries in the region have improved the treatment of their citizens, several Indo-Pacific governments continue to commit human rights abuses and place restrictions on basic human rights and political and civil liberties.

5. Without strong leadership from the United States, the international system, fundamentally rooted in the rule of law, may wither, to the detriment of United States, regional, and global interests. It is imperative that the United States continue to play a leading role in the Indo-Pacific region by—
   (A) defending peace and security;
   (B) advancing economic prosperity; and
   (C) promoting respect for fundamental human rights.

6. In 2017, the Subcommittee on East Asia, the Pacific, and International Cybersecurity Policy of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate held a series of hearings on United States leadership in the Indo-Pacific region, in which—
   (A) experts, including Representative Randy Forbes, Ambassador Robert Gallucci, Ms. Tami Overby, Dr. Robert Orr, Ambassadors Derek Mitchell, Ambassador Robert K. Tuttle, and Dr. Murray Hiebert, and others detailed the security challenges, economic opportunities, and imperatives of promoting the rule of law, human rights, and democracy in the Indo-Pacific region; and
   (B) Dr. Graham Allison, the Douglas Dillon Professor of Government at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University, testified. “As realistic students of history, Chinese leaders recognize that the role the United States has played since World War II as the architect and underwriter of regional stability and security has ... been essential to the rise of Asia, including China itself. But they believe that as the tide that brought the United States to Asia recedes, America must leave with it. Much as Britain was the Western Hemisphere faded at the beginning of the twentieth century, so must America’s role in Asia as the region’s historic superpower resumes its place.

(7) The United States National Security Strategy (referred to in this Act as the “National Security Strategy”), which was released on—
(A) “A geopolitical competition between free and repressive visions of world order is taking place in the Indo-Pacific region. The region, stretched from the west coast of India to the western shores of the United States, represents the most populous and economically dynamic part of the world. The United States interest in a free and open Indo-Pacific extends back to the earliest days of our republic.”; and
(B) “Our vision for the Indo-Pacific excludes no nation. We will redouble our commitment to established alliances and partnerships, while expanding and deepening relationships with new partners that share respect for fair and reciprocal trade, and the rule of law. We will reinforce our commitment to freedom of the seas and the peaceful resolution of territorial and maritime disputes in accordance with international law. We will work with allies and partners to achieve complete, verifiable, and irreversible denuclearization on the Korean Peninsula and preserve the non-proliferation regime in Northeast Asia.”.

TITLE I—UNITED STATES POLICY AND DIPLOMATIC STRATEGY IN THE INDO-PACIFIC REGION

SEC. 101. POLICY.
It is the policy of the United States to develop and commit to a long-term strategic vision and a comprehensive, multifaceted, and principled United States policy for the Indo-Pacific region that—
1. secures the vital national security interests of the United States and its allies and partners;
2. promotes American prosperity and economic interests by advancing economic growth and development of a rules-based Indo-Pacific economic community;
3. ensures an influence by reflecting the values of the American people and universal human rights;
4. supports functional problem-solving regional initiatives and programs; and
5. accords with and supports the rule of law and international norms.

SEC. 102. DIPLOMATIC STRATEGY.
It is the diplomatic strategy of the United States—
1. to work with United States allies—
   (A) to confront common challenges;
   (B) to improve information sharing;
   (C) to increase defense investment and trade;
   (D) to ensure interoperability; and
   (E) to strengthen shared capabilities;
2. to strengthen relationships with partners who—
   (A) share mutual respect for the rule of law;
   (B) agree with fair and reciprocal trade; and
   (C) understand the importance of civil society, the rule of law, the free and reliable flow of information, and transparent governance;
3. to support functional problem-solving regional architecture, including through the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation, and the East Asia Summit;
4. to emphasize the commitment of the United States—
   (A) to freedom of navigation under international law;
   (B) to promote peaceful resolutions of maritime and territorial disputes; and
   (C) to expand security and defense cooperation with allies and partners, as appropriate;
5. to engage in concrete measures to achieve complete, verifiable, and irreversible denuclearization of North Korea;
6. to improve civil society, strengthen the rule of law, and advocate for transparent governance;
7. to develop and grow the economy through private sector partnerships between the United States and Indo-Pacific partners;
8. to pursue multilateral and bilateral trade agreements in a free, fair, and reciprocal manner and build a network of partners in the Indo-Pacific committed to free markets;
9. to work with and encourage Indo-Pacific countries—
   (A) to pursue high-quality and transparent infrastructure projects;
   (B) to maintain unimpeded commerce, open sea lines or air ways, and communication; and
   (C) to seek the peaceful resolution of disputes; and
10. to sustain a strong military presence in the Indo-Pacific region and strengthen security relationships with allies and partners throughout the region.

TITLE II—PROTECTING UNITED STATES SECURITY INTERESTS IN THE INDO-PACIFIC REGION

SEC. 201. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.
(a) Defined Terms. In this section, the term “appropriate committees of Congress” means—

(e) THAILAND.—It is the sense of Congress that the United States should deepen diplomatic, economic, and security cooperation, especially in the areas of maritime security and counterterrorism, with Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, and Vietnam.

SEC. 209. COMMITMENT TO TAIWAN.

(a) UNITED STATES COMMITMENT TO TAIWAN.—It is the policy of Congress that the United States—

(1) to support the close economic, political, and security relationship between Taiwan and the United States;

(2) to faithfully enforce all existing United States Government commitments to Taiwan, consistent with the Taiwan Relations Act of 1979 (Public Law 96-6), the 3 Joint communiqués, and the Six Assurances agreed to by President Ronald Reagan in July 1982; and

(3) to counter efforts to change the status quo and to support peaceful resolution acceptable to all parties to the Taiwan Strait.

(b) ARMS SALES TO TAIWAN.—The President should conduct regular transfers of defense articles to Taiwan that are tailored to meet the existing threats from the People’s Republic of China, including supporting the efforts of Taiwan to develop and integrate asymmetric capabilities, as appropriate, utilizing mobile, survivable, and cost-effective capabilities, into its military forces.

(c) TRAVEL.—The President should encourage the travel of United States officials to Taiwan, in accordance with the Taiwan Travel Act (Public Law 115-135).

SEC. 210. NORTH KOREA STRATEGY.

(a) FINDING.—Congress makes the following findings:

(2) The Government of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea engages in gross violations of human rights, including those of the people of North Korea and the citizens of other countries, including the United States, the Republic of Korea, and Japan.

(3) The United States is committed to pursuing a peaceful denuclearization of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea through a policy of maximum pressure and engagement, in close concert with its partners.

(b) POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES WITH RESPECT TO SANCTIONS AGAINST THE DEMOCRATIC PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF KOREA.

(1) STATEMENT OF POLICY.—It is the policy of the United States to continue to impose sanctions with respect to activities of the Government of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, persons acting for or on behalf of such government, and other persons in accordance with Executive Order 13551 (50 U.S.C. 1701 note; relating to blocking property of certain persons with respect to North Korea), Executive Order 13687 (50 U.S.C. 1701 note; relating to imposing additional sanctions with respect to North Korea), Executive Order 13846 (50 U.S.C. 1701 note; relating to blocking property of certain persons engaged in significant malicious cyber-enabled activities), Executive Order 13851 (50 U.S.C. 1701 note; relating to blocking property of the Government of North Korea and the Workers’ Party of Korea, and prohibiting certain transactions with respect to North Korea), and Executive Order 13810 (50 Fed. Reg. 47496; relating to imposing additional sanctions with respect to North Korea); and such orders are in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act, until the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea is no longer engaging in, and the United States has determined that it is no longer engaging in, the illicit activities described in such Executive orders, including actions in violation of the United Nations Security Council resolutions referred to in subsection (a).

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 30 days after terminating any Sanction with respect to the activities of the Government of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, a person acting for or on behalf of such government, or any other person provided for in an Executive order listed in subsection (a), the Secretary of State, in consultation with the Secretary of Treasury, shall submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees justifying the termination of the sanctions and explaining the relationship between such termination and the cessation of any illicit activity that violates any of the United Nations Security Council resolutions referred to in subsection (a), the Secretary of State, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury, shall submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees justifying the termination of the sanctions and explaining the relationship between such termination and the cessation of any illicit activity that violates any of the United Nations Security Council resolutions referred to in subsection (a), the Secretary of State, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury, shall submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees justifying the termination of the sanctions and explaining the relationship between such termination and the cessation of any illicit activity that violates any of the United Nations Security Council resolutions referred to in subsection (a), the Secretary of State, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury, shall submit a report to the appropriate congressional committees justifying the termination of the sanctions and explaining the relationship between such termination and the cessation of any illicit activity that violates any of the United Nations Security Council resolutions referred to in subsection (a).

(3) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to limit the authority of the President pursuant to the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.).

(c) POLICY OF THE UNITED STATES WITH RESPECT TO NEGOTIATION ON THE DEMOCRATIC PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF KOREA AND BALLISTIC MISSILE PROGRAMS.—It is the policy of the United States that the objective of negotiations with respect to the nuclear and ballistic missile programs of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea be the complete, verifiable, and irreversible dismantlement of such programs.

(d) REPORT ON A STRATEGY TO ADDRESS THE THREATSPOSED BY, AND THE CAPABILITIES OF, THE DEMOCRATIC PEOPLE’S REPUBLIC OF KOREA.

(E) ELEMENTS.—Each report required under paragraph (1) shall include—

(A) a summary of ongoing efforts by the United States to identify strategies and policies, including an assessment of the strengths and weaknesses of such strategies and policies—

(i) to achieve peaceful denuclearization of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea; and

(ii) to eliminate the threat posed by the ballistic missile programs of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea;

(B) an assessment of—

(i) potential road maps toward peaceful denuclearization of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea and the elimination of the nuclear and ballistic missile threats posed by the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea; and

(ii) specific actions that the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea would need to take for each such roadmap to become viable;
(C) a summary of the United States strategy to increase international coordination and cooperation, whether unilaterally, bilaterally, or multilaterally, including sanctions enforced through UN Security Council resolutions, to address the threat posed by the nuclear and ballistic missile programs of the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea, which shall include—

(1) by redesignating section 275 as section 276; and

(2) by inserting after section 274 the following:

“SEC. 275. 21ST CENTURY MUSEUM PROFESSIONAL PROGRAM.

(a) Purpose.—It is the purpose of this section to develop and enhance the diverse workforce of museum professionals in order to best anticipate and serve the needs of the diverse communities and the public by—

(1) recruiting and educating future museum professionals from diverse and underrepresented backgrounds, including through encouraging middle or high school students and postsecondary students to pursue careers and build skills in museum services;

(2) developing museum leaders from diverse and underrepresented backgrounds, including by increasing the capacity of institutions that offer early career and mid-career professional development, specialized training, and leadership programs that directly relate to museum studies and management; and

(3) supporting the professional development of current museum professionals and the museum workforce to enable them to meet identified needs of their communities.

(3) Activities.—From the amounts provided under section 276, the Director may enter into arrangements, including grants, contracts, cooperative agreements, and other forms of assistance, with museums, museum organizations, consortia and associations, institutions of higher education (as defined in section 264(b)), and other entities that the Director determines appropriate, for projects that further the purpose of this section, such as projects that—

(1) increase the number of students from diverse and underrepresented backgrounds enrolled in graduate and undergraduate museum-related programs as well as other relevant programs offered through other education-focused entities, such as State and local governments, associations, and nonprofit organizations, in order to effectively prepare the students for, and retain the students in, careers in museum services;

(2) recruit future museum professionals from diverse and underrepresented backgrounds, including efforts to attract promising middle school, high school, or postsecondary students to consider careers in museum services such as through offering paid internships, mentoring, and fellowship opportunities;

(3) develop new or enhance current professional development and retention programs for museum professionals and the museum workforce, including through mid-career skill-building, mentoring, and fellowships, and by supporting the development of local and regional networks for those who may not have easy access to such opportunities; and

(4) support and conduct research, needs assessments, pilot programs, and evaluation of education and professional development programs to explore successful approaches that can successfully recruit, prepare, educate, and retain the next generation of museum professionals.

(c) Evaluation.—The Director shall establish procedures for reviewing and evaluating arrangements supported under this section.
